

Keep Your Eye On KPND

By COY PALMER
Well here we go again. Seems like we only get the ink dry on one Sunday's addition until we are back for another little chat with you. But it's lots of fun, and we look forward to it once a week.
To begin with, I want to tell you all about some coming sports events on KPND. KPND is proud to announce we will carry all out of town OILER BASEBALL games exclusively this year. Game broadcast time will be nine p. m. Naturally, our old standby and very popular Warren Hasse will be at the microphone every night for the games.
By the way, Warren will have time each time the Oilers are out of town, called Oiler Sketches. This feature was very popular with our listeners last year, and we are sure you will like it again this year. It will get you, the sports fans, acquainted with our Oiler Baseball players. Incidentally, on the nights the Oilers are home, KPND will bring you a fifteen-minute interview with Warren Hasse at the microphone direct from the dugouts at Oiler Park. This popular feature will be at 7:30 p. m. each day the Oilers are in town.
Remember the Oilers' first game at home will be April twentieth. Listen to KPND for more particulars on this.
Knowing that Pampa Fans really love their baseball and want to stay up with major league teams as it happens, KPND has again contracted to bring you the popular GAME OF THE DAY direct from Major League Ball Parks. Mutual's sportscaster, Al Helfer, will be on hand to bring his colorful play-by-play description of THE MAJOR LEAGUE GAME OF THE DAY. This feature starts on KPND April sixteenth.

Since we are talking about sports, let me remind you that you can keep abreast of all the latest sports news both nationally and locally by listening to Kay Fancher every evening Monday thru Saturday at 6:15. Kay brings you the latest scores, many interesting highlights of all sports events and keeps you up to date on the local sports. And if you like to delve back into the past, Kay always has an interesting sports feature called "SPORTS MEMORY LANE," at 6:25 p. m. each day on KPND. So if you like sports, KPND is the place to get them. Just stay tuned to 1340 on your radio dial.

By the way, KPND not only features sports for all you sports-loving fans, but we have many fine mystery, comedy and musical shows. I don't think we've ever mentioned the DAVID ROSE SHOW before in this column. If you love fine music, and yet music with a heart beat, listen each evening to the David Rose Show at 7:30. It's the kind of music that relaxes you after a hard day's grind. Gets you into the proper mood to enjoy your evening. Be sure to listen to the David Rose Show every evening over KPND at seven thirty.

Have you heard the "CHAPEL BY THE SIDE OF THE ROAD?" It's a program of hymns, featuring the voice of Frank Raye every morning Monday thru Friday at 9:15. Beautiful organ music, plus the voice of Frank Raye make this program a fine feature for the housewife. Remember that time is 9:15 every morning Monday thru Friday.

Keep your dial set on KPND 1340 for the finest in all around entertainment and news. And we'll be seeing you next week.

Cairo Forbids Oryx Hunting

CAIRO (AP)—The hunting and killing of the wudhyhiya, or oryx, has been forbidden by a government decree in Saudi Arabia, the Arab News Agency reports from Hofuf (Saudi Arabia). The decree was issued to protect this nearly extinct animal which can only be found in Arabia today, ANA's dispatch adds.

The oryx is said to be quite ferocious. It has two straight horns from 24 to 30 inches long, and has been seen to charge its enemies at great speed. Bedouins commonly believe that its flesh has unusual healing powers. Some swear that it helps to mend broken bones in a short time.

Scholar Says Nothing New In American Morals Crisis

By RELMAN MORIN
NEW YORK (AP)—Remember the Kinsey report? "It shocked a great many people," a noted scholar said today, "but in point of fact, there was nothing new in it at all. And there is nothing new in this so-called crisis in political or business morality today."

Dr. Irwin Edman, who expressed these views in an interview, is executive of the Department of Philosophy at Columbia University. For more than 10 years his writings on morals and ethics have commanded wide attention. He has been studying the subject for nearly 35 years.
He agreed that the recent disclosures of corruption in government, the reports of widespread gambling, gangsterism and "fixing" may indicate a critical low point in public morality.
"But there has been a somewhat hysterical exaggeration of the decline of morals," he said.

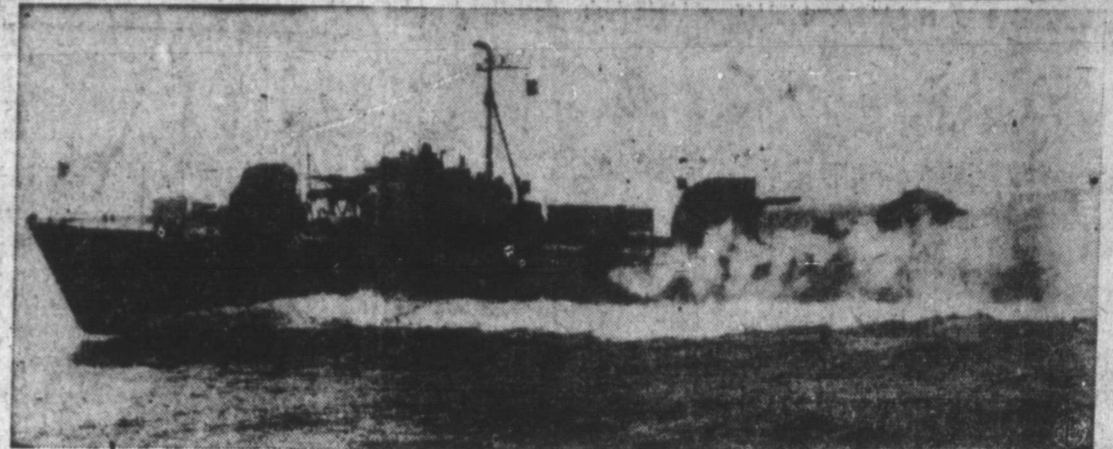

He recalled the insurance scandals of 1904, the Teapot Dome case in the Harding administration, and the Seabury investigation following that.
"And if you want to go all the way back," Dr. Edman said, "take a look at the things Paul said to the Corinthians about the state of their morals."
That, he said, is not depressing in itself.
"What is depressing is that, in all these years, there has been so little progress, so little reform."

There are several reasons for it in this country, Dr. Edman said.

"People are cynical today, or in despair, because they have lost confidence in the old standards and the old cliches. These have not yet been adequately restated in terms of conditions as we see them."
"Moreover, the individual is appalled by the size and complexity of life. He doesn't feel that he can do much to change conditions, however bad they may be. Even in government, officials feel helpless. Government has grown too big for any one man to affect very much."
"So people are discouraged," he said. "But like some other observers, Dr. Edman expressed confidence in this generation of college students.

"They may come up with something new and better," he said. "At the moment, they are fairly hard-boiled. They don't believe in success stories. They don't expect to earn a million dollars in a quick killing, or be famous overnight. And they don't like the looks of some of the people who have done that."
"I have been struck by the numbers who are going into what you can call a dedicated life, into professions—like academics—where success is not measured by ordinary standards. And a great many are preparing themselves for government, not in order to get in on the graft, but to try to make it the way they would like to have it."
They sense, but have not defined, their own ideals, Dr. Edman said.

"The old cliches are a joke to them," he added.
with a story of an acquaintance, a veteran of World War II who voluntarily placed himself on the Army's active list. Said the vet:

NEW PT TAKES TO THE SEA—The Navy's new all-aluminum motor torpedo boat, the PT-812, slashes through rough seas off Cape May, N. J., in its first speed test. No figures have been made public, but officials call it the fastest PT boat ever. With a length of 105 feet, the PT-812 is much larger than the famed wartime mosquito boats.

"I'm willing to fight for America again. But I'm not fighting for what they call the American way of life. That kind of talking for a re-valuation makes me sick. It isn't that stuff. It's something else." Dr. Edman illustrated the point. "Men do not learn morality from teachers. They learn from observing the market-place."

The pitality. They have not only charge was made in an official sought to malign Ethiopia abroad, but also have engaged in subversive activities within."

(In Cairo, last January, an informant reported about 100 DPs established in farms in the semi-wild interior south of Addis Ababa had fled to the capital after demonstrations by shouting natives brandishing spears, sickles and other weapons. The informant said IRO was seeking exit visas and transport back to Europe for the DPs.)

Most Graduates Can Go To College

By JAMES MARLOW

WASHINGTON — (AP) — Practically every high school senior graduating this spring will be able to go to college in the fall, if he wishes, and be draft-proof at least until the end of his freshman term in 1952.

There may be a few exceptions to this, but they'll be very few.

Those two statements come from selective service headquarters. An explanation will be given in a moment. But first here is what the draft bosses also said about draft deferments for college students.

1. Anyone finishing his freshman term in college this spring — provided he's among the upper half of the male members of his class — can go back to college in the fall for his sophomore year without fear of being drafted for the next full college year.

2. Suppose a freshman finished below the upper half of his class this spring but wants to return for his sophomore year in the fall. How can he avoid being drafted? By taking a test provided by selective service — on May 26, June 16 or June 26 — in one of 1,200 locations. If he makes 70 or more, he can return to college, draft-proof for another year.

3. This year's sophomore can go back to college as a junior in the fall, draft-proof for another year, if he's in the upper two-thirds of his class or gets 70 or more in the test.

4. Same for a youth finishing senior year this spring — if he wants to go into graduate school in the fall — provided he's in the upper half of his senior class or makes 75 (not 70) in the test.

5. There is no test for those now in the graduate or professional schools. They can continue to be draft-proof in one way only:

If their school officials notify their draft boards that their work is satisfactory.

Now for the selective service explanation — and all that follows here is from selective service headquarters — about the high school graduates who'll be draft-proof if they want to go to college in the fall:

Under present law youths 19 through 25 can be drafted, unless they get a postponement because they're in school or for some other reason.

But no board can take a man between 19 and 20 before taking those 20 or over. The boards so far have had to take very few youths under 20.

That leaves a big pool of those between 19 and 20 still untapped. But Congress shortly will pass a new draft law, probably lowering the draft age to 18 or 19.

1-2. At first glance that might seem to indicate that a lot of youths 18 or older would be then taken.

No. The rule still holds: boards must take older men before taking younger ones. Since there's still a big pool between 19 and 20, Drafting of those 18 or 19 is still a long way off.

Further, if draft calls remain at their present number, about 80,000 men a month, the draft boards generally will still be taking men mostly 20 to 21 by next fall without still having made much of a dent in the 18-year old group.

Most high school graduates are under 19. So it will be many months, after they get out of high school in June, before the boards will start looking at most of the new high school graduates. They'd have to take those 19 or over first.

Further, it takes a board about three months to process a man for the draft: from the time it classifies him, notifies him, orders him to take a physical examination, and then orders him inducted.

When you put all these factors together — plus the fact that it's hardly three months before youths getting out of high school go into college in the fall — there's no time for the boards to tap them.

And once they're in college, starting as freshmen, they can't be drafted until next spring at the end of their freshman year, and then only if they are not in the upper half of their class or fail to make a grade of 70 in the aptitude test.

A couple of questions arise here:

1. If all these youths are going to college and thus become undraftable, who'll be left for the draft? The National Education Association says only 45 percent of high school graduates go on to college.

Selective service at this time has no plans for these youths. But it points out the number of them would be very small.

Jacks, ball and rope jumping were games played by the ancient Roman children.

CABOT TOUR Friday at General Atlas Carbon Company, a subsidiary of Cabot Carbon, was conducted in connection with Texas Industrial Week activities here. E. J. O'Brien, plant official, explains the furnace process of manufacturing carbon black, one of the primary industries of the area. (News Photo)

Petroleum Specialty, General Atlas:

Two Open Houses Saturday End Industrial Week Tours

Open house at the General Atlas Carbon Co. and Petroleum Specialty Co. on Saturday rounded out the observance of Texas Industrial Week in Pampa.

The week, proclaimed by Governor Allan Shivers, was emphasized by Mayor C. A. Huff as a week aimed at paying tribute to Pampa industry, in particular the petroleum, carbon black, agricultural, machine shop and diversified industries of this trade area.

The final tour of the week was conducted Saturday through the Petroleum Specialty Co., owned by Frank Morris and Chick Hickman, with the local 29-30 Club serving as hosts.

The Kiwanis Club conducted the tour Friday through General Atlas Carbon Co., a subsidiary of Cabot Carbon Co., where the furnace type process is used in the manufacture of carbon black.

General Atlas is the only furnace type plant in this area (other plants employ the channel process pioneered by Cabot). They have 86 employees who maintain and operate units producing carbon black for commercial use in plastics, automobile tires, paper and all types of inks.

Thursday, two tours through the Bash-Ross Tool Co. and Jones-Everett Machine Shop were conducted by the Lions Club.

Jones-Everett began operation here in 1928 and besides repair work, they sell welding supply drills, stainless steel shafting, 41-40 heat treated steel (unknown 12-15 years ago) and all sizes of power tools for commercial and home use.

Bash-Ross Tool Co. began with eight employees in 1936 and now has 32 on full time. Their chief job is repairing large stationary gasoline engines, but they also manufacture replacement parts.

The Pampa Rotary Club conducted tours through the Cities Service gasoline plant on Wednesday which was attended by some 100 persons who watched the plant in operation. In this one industry, employment is provided for about 40 persons.

The Pampa Foundry has grown since its beginning three years ago from two employes to 27. Local industrialists, viewing the work, said the foundry here equals in production the work done by any two other foundries in the area.

Local industrial week activities began Monday with open house at the Cabot Shops, west of Pampa, where the steps necessary in the manufacture of a pumping unit were seen by visitors.

To pay tribute to the industry of the area, The News carried a series of pictures during the week, and Radio Station KPDM recorded interviews during the visitation periods for re-broadcast at 3 p. m. each day.

Joe Key, chairman of the Industrial Committee of the Chamber of Commerce, acknowledged the cooperation of the civic lunch-club groups who acted as hosts at the various plants, and expressed his appreciation of the interest shown in the week's activities.

In speaking for the industrial leaders, Noel Dalton, said, "We appreciate the opportunity this open house provides for us to show our operations, and the equipment we have."

Mayor C. A. Huff was definite in his praise of work done by the local Chamber of Commerce, in particular the Industrial Committee, who made arrangements for the tours.

The schools were most helpful in the week's observation, one Chamber of Commerce member said. The high school machine shop was open Thursday morning for inspection, and several groups of grade school students made tours of plants.

Seventh grade students at Pampa Junior High School made tours of the industrial plants in connection with their study of "Texas Industry."

As one spokesman summed up the week's observance of Texas Industrial Week, "In viewing the full scope of our local industry we have a true picture of the growth and development Pampa has known during the last three decades, and we can look forward to continued industrial security."

Canada To Launch 1951 Census Taking

OTTAWA — (AP) — When Canada launches the 1951 census in June she will be striving to maintain a leadership in census-taking captured almost 300 years ago. Then, in 1666, an obscure little French colony hacking her way out of the wilderness, she lay claim to the title of the first country to take a name-by-name census in modern times.

Deer, as Macbeth, was chosen as best actor. Barbara Lewis, Madeline Dowd, and Betty Williams, as the three witches in Macbeth, were named best supporting actresses.

A. A. Roberts Heads Schools At Follett

NEW YORK — (AP) — Friends of a man who couldn't stay poor are "quite sure" now he would keep his latest inheritance.

The man is Alexander Ector Orr Munsell, 56, who gave away a million-dollar legacy 20 years ago for the "reality of being poor."

A court has approved the will of his mother, Mrs. Juliet Orr Munsell, leaving him a new fortune of $650,000.

The friends said they believed he had experienced enough "reality."

"We are quite sure he will keep his inheritance this time," said one.

Munsell himself declined comment.

You Can Eat All You Want But Eat Less Too

Sounds like double talk, but it isn't. In other words, take the fat out of the battle of the bulges. "How can I take off weight without going hungry?" Well, common sense is the watchword. You eat plenty to satisfy your appetite and still eat LESS.

It just doesn't make sense to go on a strenuous diet — take off weight, then quickly put it back on again when the diet period is over. For it is obvious that one cannot go on a rigid diet over a protracted period.

Recently there has appeared on the market several diet and vitamin "plans" which mean a strenuous diet and vitamins to fortify against weakness caused by lack of food. But as mentioned above, you can't keep this up very long and when you quit, back comes the fat.

An exhaustive survey made among Texas druggists recently has shown one outstanding remedy is not based on the diet and vitamin "plan". It allows you to eat all you want, but you eat LESS.

Nearly four million bottles of this preparation, called Barcentrate, have been sold in Texas in the past eight years.

There is an ingredient in Barcentrate which definitely curbs your appetite and stops you from eating more than necessary for the energy you spend. At the same time it dehydrates and eliminates. There is nothing harmful in Barcentrate. The formula is plainly printed on the label. You can get a four-ounce bottle of Barcentrate from any Texas druggist. Mix with 15 ounces of canned grapefruit juice and take two tablespoonsful twice a day. If the very first bottle doesn't show you the simple, easy way to lose that ugly fat, the makers agree to refund your money.

Sports Round-Up

By HUGH FULLERTON, JR. EAST LANSING — (AP) — Earle Edwards, Michigan State's end coach, accepts the pass to get you accuse him of having the best group of ends on any football squad in America. . . But he's dead serious when he says he has the best one end. . . Usually rather conservative, Edwards claims Captain Bob Carey is "it. . . His six feet five and 215 pounds," says Earle. "He can fake well and he runs like a half-back after he catches the ball. . . Carey is the best prospect of any end I've seen, but the trouble here is that we don't have the passer to get the best use out of him. . . I'd like to see what he could do with a passer like Lujack. . . Carey, incidentally, isn't working with the squad in spring practice. He's trying baseball and track for a change while Art Ingram, who is a heck of a track man but wants to try football, is filling his place on the first string.

Michigan's Bennie Oosterbaan may find the chilly game of hockey a pleasant change from the hot spot usually occupied by football coaches. . . At least he became such a fan that he flew to Colorado Springs last month to give the pep talks to the Michigan hockey team before the start of the season. . . Oosterbaan nominated himself as "honorary assistant to handle speech assignments. . . Oosterbaan promptly disqualified himself as an orator through his speech at the tournament statement: "These hockey goals are almost as hard to score as touchdowns — but we did it!"

Next year's NCAA Boxing Tournament likely will include ten weight classes instead of just eight, according to the Olympic divisions. . . Dick Raklovic, who led the Big Ten footballers in rushing yardage last fall, also is the leading hitter on the Illinois baseball team. . . Ed Coleman, Jr., and Ralph Coleman, Jr., pitching candidates for a go-a-State, are the nephew and son, respectively, of the former Shirliff, outfielder on the same team, is a cousin of Glen Elliott, athletic outfielder. And Bud formerly of the Braves. . . Would you say they have a relatively good squad?

Looks like a cheer is due to Detroit's Tommy Ivan, who has coached the Red Wings four years and has had them in the Stanley Cup Hockey playoffs every season. . . For the first time since 1900 — except war years — Harvard will have an open date on its football schedule next fall. . . Don't look for a repeat on Harvard's other 1900 record — beating seven opponents by shutouts in 22 days.

TCU Golfers Best Baylor Bears, 4-2 FORT WORTH — (AP) — TCU's golf team defeated Baylor 4-2 in a Southwest Conference tournament.

The Frogs No. 1 and No. 2 shooters, Dan Jenkins and Jim Hickey, each battled to a draw against their respective foes, Frank Barkdale and George Wagner, but dropped their double match-ups. . . Bill Tatum, TCU, defeated Hank McFaddin 3-2; Grover Swift, TCU, defeated Jack Westfield 2-1 and Tatum and Swift defeated McFaddin and Westfield 3-2.

Texas Game, Fish Outlook Is Best In Several Years

By BOB BRISTER ATHENS — (AP) — Good news for Texas fishermen and hunters: H. D. Dodgen, executive secretary of the State Game Fish and Oyster Commission, said in an interview that Texas' general game and fish outlook is the brightest in years.

"Proper game management, hunter regulations, and the ever-widening practice of conservation has brought back the numbers of our leading game species to their highest levels in years," he said. He pointed out that deer, for instance, are more numerous in some sections than they ever were, even in pioneer days.

Dodgen explained that big game species respond quickly to proper management. The same practice which brought about the abrupt about-face in the deer decline, however, can be applied to quail, dove, squirrel, and other small game species, he said.

Rookie Southpaw Attracts Attention In Giant Camp

Pampa Seeks Second Victory In Three Exhibition Starts

With a 1-1 exhibition record, the Oilers move to Gold Sox Park Sunday afternoon to battle the Amarillo West Texas-New Mexico League representative at 2:30. The Oilers have defeated Lamesa and lost to Southwestern State Teachers College of Weatherford.

Manager Grover Seitz will send George Washington Matthews, Carrol "Red" Dial and George Payte to the hill this afternoon for three-inning duty.

The Oilers will be strengthened by the arrival of Luis Suarez, a sharp-fielding third baseman. Suarez will start at the hot corner against Buck Fausett's Gold Sox.

Rounding out the infield for the Oilers will be Gilbert Castillo, short stop, Deck Woldt, second base and Virgil Richardson, first base. In the outfield will be Hank Chatellier, Francis Rice and Jack Wadsworth. Big Bill Whitehorn will start behind the plate. The gigantic catcher has blasted two home runs in the two exhibition games. He also hit two doubles at Weatherford for a perfect day at the plate.

Manager Fausett will use Joel Calloway, Martin McMurray and Doc Fletcher on the hill this afternoon. The infield will have George Dellis at third, Pinky Higgins, short stop, Frank Murray, second base, Glynn Braden, first base, Cuby Kitchens, Rip Robinson and Crawford Howard, outfield.

The Pampa mound crop was bolstered Friday, when Manager Seitz received word from Shreveport that Mack Hyde would rejoin the Oilers. The right-hander left Shreveport Friday. He had a 10-5 record last season, and he hit .270 and hit five home runs.

Manager Seitz sent his baseball candidates through practice Saturday afternoon. The weather was ideal for a winter carnival, not baseball. After a warm-up game of pepper, the Pampans held batting and infield practice.

Workers are busy at Oiler Park getting the place in shape. The lights are going to be installed today, and painters are putting the finishing touches on the outfield signs.

Box seats are almost sold out, and boy scouts are handling sales for the opening game here April 29, with the Borger Gasers. Scouts are canvassing Pampa, selling ducats for the first game.

Someone caused the Oilers' electrician plenty of work. He stole the cable that fed the score board. It was cut off at ground level and at the score board. The electrician will have to splice more than 120 wires to repair the damage.

TEXAS AGGIES Tip SMU, 3-0 (By The Associated Press) The White Deer defeated the Southwest Conference baseball race and Rice managed its first victory of the season Friday.

A&M, favored to battle Texas for the championship, hung a 3-0 licking on Southern Methodist behind the four hit pitching of Bob Tankersley.

Rice licked Texas Christian, 4-2, with Bill Golibart's two run sixth inning homer the difference.

Golibart's home run broke up a pitching duel between Richard Leeder and Norris Graves. Graves gave up only six hits while Leeder spaced nine.

A&M touched southpaw Dick Beale for eight hits and cinked the game with a two run spurge in the fourth inning, off a double by John DeWitt and singles by Henry Candelari and Hollis Baker.

Gen. Bradley Outspoken In Summarizing Military Men

By HAL BOYLE
NEW YORK — (AP) — The memoirs of generals and statesmen, even published after death, are often more noteworthy for what is left out than for what is told.

They would rather dwell upon their victories than upon the clash of personalities behind those triumphs. And thus later generations learn only what the famous men did, not what they thought. They learn what happened—but not what went on.

General of the Army Omar Nelson Bradley is an exception to the rule. The chairman of the joint chiefs of staff, writing at the peak of his career, has pulled no punches in giving his views of the second world war.

In "The War America Fought," the first installment of which is published in the current Life Magazine, Bradley gives a painfully honest personal evaluation of the allied armies and leaders in the European conflict.

His picture of Gen. George S. Patton is one of the frankest and fairest ever given of the man known to his troops as "Old Blood and Guts."

Bradley served under Patton in Tunisia and Sicily. He admired Patton's ability to win ground but resented his "vulgarity" and felt he hadn't "learned how to command himself."

When Bradley was later named to head American ground forces in Europe he wished at the time that Patton hadn't been named to command one of the armies under him. He felt "George" would resent the reversal in roles.

"To this day," he writes, "I am chagrined to recall how uncharitably I first responded to Patton's assignment. For when George joined my command he came eagerly and as a friend without pique, rancor or grievance. My year's association with him in Europe remains one of my brightest remembrances of my military career."

Bradley criticizes American Army intelligence, says it was inferior to British intelligence, but expressed belief that American field commanders obeyed orders from higher headquarters with better discipline than did British field leaders.

A self-admitted "Yankee partisan" in several of the disputes between British and American commanders, the general thought Eisenhower sometimes "too eager to appease the British."

He had no personal fondness for Field Marshal Montgomery but welcomed his selection to lead British troops into Normandy.

"Nothing becomes a general more than success in battle, and Montgomery wore success with such chipper faith... that he was cherished by a British people wearied of valorous setbacks."

Among the top divisional commanders he names Maj. Gen. Ernie ("Old Gravel Voice") Harmon for his "rare combination of sound tactical judgment and boldness that together make a great commander." He is now retired.

Bradley picks as perhaps his finest army commander the one least known to the public—Lieut. Gen. Courtney H. Hodges, a faultless technician who had no gift for self-dramatization.

Some of the judgments given by Bradley may stir some tempers of dissent, notably his views on Anglo-American mil-

Arti-Semites Still Exist in Romania

VIENNA—(AP)—Anti-Semitic hooliganism still exists in Communist Romania. The Bucharest newspaper "Bata Noua" said: "In Galatz, a gang of seven anti-Semitic hooligans attacked some citizens, most of whom were Jewish workers. Although they succeeded in getting away, the Fascist hooligans were identified and sent before the courts."

The report said the seven men were sentenced to prison terms ranging from 18 to three months.

A group of Spanish colonists, first white settlers in the Southwest, arrived in what is now New Mexico in the year 1598.

TWA Official Wants Trade In Ethiopia

ADDIS ABABA — (AP) — Ethiopia has great tourist attractions, says Ralph S. Damon, President of TransWorld Air-

President Asks Additional Funds

WASHINGTON — (AP) — President Truman has asked Congress to add $6,422,000,000 to the $41,800,000,000 the Armed Forces are authorized to spend in this fiscal year.

The request, made yesterday, is intended to cover fiscal deficiencies resulting from the expansion of the Armed Forces to 3,462,000 men by June 30. That is when the fiscal year ends.

The funds asked were about $3,500,000,000 less than Mr. Truman had estimated in his budget message last January. The apparent explanation was that deliveries on some military orders have been slower than was expected.

On a visit here recently Damon said he intended to explore the possibilities of having American tourists visit the country.

The main reason for Damon's trip to Ethiopia, he said, is that TWA has a seven-year contract for supplying Ethiopian Airlines with managerial, technical and flying personnel.

The Second Time: March 13 Is A Bad Day For Mr. Geyer

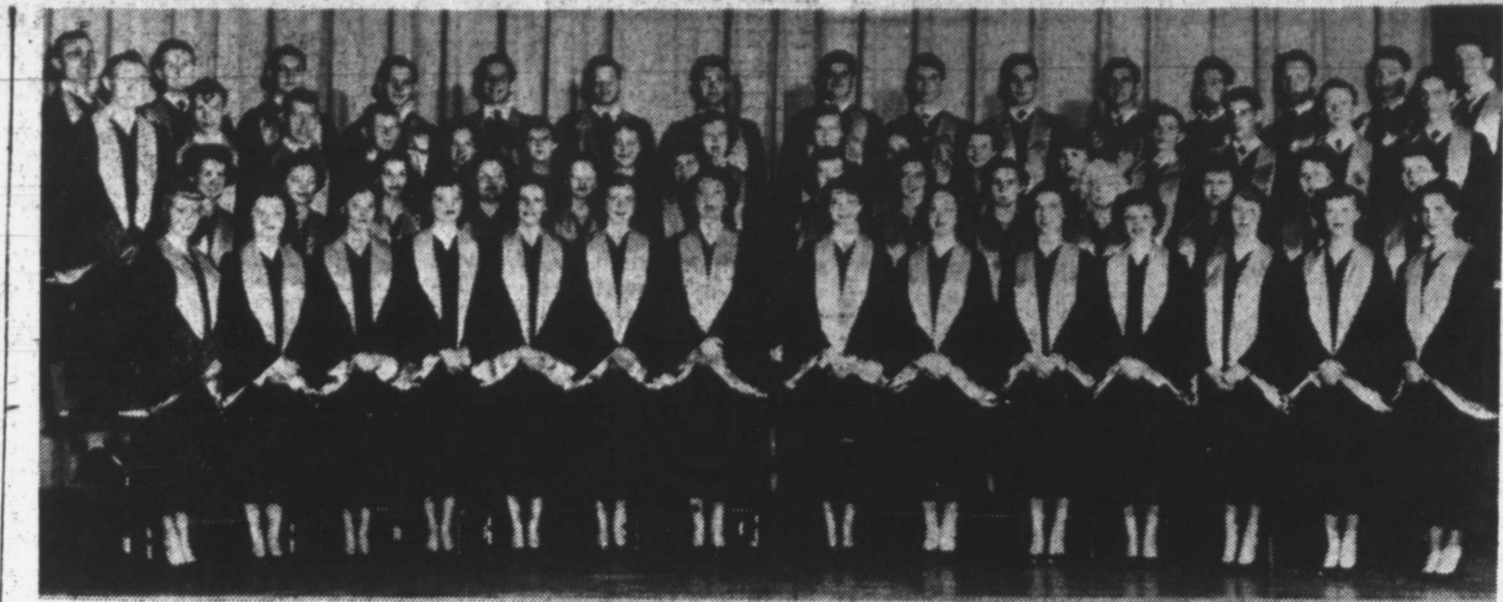

SHAMROCK — (Special) — Gerald F. Geyer, manager of a drug store here, is suspicious of March 13. It was on that date in 1942 that he was called for induction in the armed forces. Geyer reported April 14.

Came March 13, 1951, and again Geyer was called into service. Once more he was ordered to report on April 14. Geyer will report to the medical service corps of the U. S. army at Fort Hood, the 4005th A.S.U., U.S. Army hospital.

Geyer has been a reaver since he left the service five years ago.

He spent 47 months in service in World War II, including 22 months in the Southwest Pacific, taking part in the invasions of New Guinea and the Philippine Islands. He worked in the first air evacuation of wounded ever attempted in the area.

Mr. Geyer is connected with the Southwestern Bell Telephone Company here.

Indian-Pakistan Argument Over Kashmir Is Dangerous

By DEWITT MACKENZIE AP Foreign Affairs Analyst

The dispute between India and Pakistan over possession of the rich principality of Kashmir has reached a state of bitterness which bodes no good to peace. Unhappily this area also has been marked by a surge of anti-American feeling among Indians. This hostility is due to two things:

One is the participation of the United States with Britain in sponsoring a UN Security Council resolution which included arbitration of the Kashmir question — the Indians being strongly opposed to any arbitration. The other is the fact that the American Congress hasn't voted a gift of grain to needy Indians.

Prime Minister Nehru himself gave this feeling a decided fillip by a speech in which he not only condemned the arbitration proposal but declared he shared "the resentment of the people of Kashmir." His statement was interpreted by observers as meaning that India won't give up any area it holds in Kashmir. In fact one official nailed the thing down like this:

"So far as Nehru is concerned the problem is settled — Kashmir is India's."

If this does represent the final word from India, the situation is indeed grave, for there is no indication that Pakistan will meekly accept any such ultimatum, especially since she regards her own position as strong.

The quarrel over Kashmir is based on a peculiar circumstance which one must know in order to understand the situation. When the two nations of India and Pakistan were created they were formed largely on the basis of race and religion. Pakistan is chiefly Moslem while India is largely Hindu. At that time the some 600 principalities, ruled over by princes, were permitted to choose the nation which they would join. It so happened that the rich and powerful state of Kashmir was ruled by a Hindu prince — Sir Hari Singh — whereas most of his people were Moslems. He elected to join Hindu India, without any reference to the wishes of his subjects — and the fight between Pakistan and India was on.

Both nations have their armed forces in Kashmir and there has been some fighting. However, a "cease-fire" status was achieved by a United Nations team. The safety of that team is now feared in some authoritative quarters to be jeopardized by the anti-American feeling among Indians.

Inquiry in U. N. circles at Lake Success indicates the peace organization has by no means abandoned hope of settlement either by arbitration or through a referendum. However, many anxious onlookers fail to find much encouragement in the present position.

Probably the greatest concern will revolve about the attitude of Nehru himself. He is a powerful figure in the vast Asiatic theatre, and consequently in world affairs.

Should the Kashmir imbroglio result in war between India and Pakistan, it might produce an Asiatic conflagration which would have no limit. Communism most certainly would take immediate advantage.

Wheeler Passes Red Cross Goal

WHEELER — (Special) — Final report on the North Wheeler County Red Cross Fund drive shows the campaign $117.43 over its quota. Mrs. C. B. Kirk, drive chairman, said $554.43 of the $814 quota was raised in Wheeler.

Almost every community belonging to this chapter doubled the contribution it made to the drive last year she said. Allison turned in $6.30 in 1950 and this year it raised $25.50. Brisco's 1951 contribution of $51.85 lacks only 15 cents of doubling last year's donations and Mobeetie exceeded its 1950 mark of $92 by raising $186 this year.

Only God Can Make A Tree But County Can Transplant

As Joyce Kilmer said, "Only God can make a tree!" And He made so few in the Texas Panhandle that people all over the county have been in an uproar since it was decided that the trees around the court house "had to go."

The where, when and why questions have been pouring into County Judge Bruce Parker's office ever since the city workmen began trimming the "crowning glory" from the trees.

And the trees stood for weeks, rather grotesque figures, ready to be uprooted and moved this weekend.

Those who wonder where the trees are going will be glad to hear that a place is being prepared for the trees in the valley behind the county hospital. Home Demonstration agents landscaped the grounds and workmen prepared holes for the trees last week.

The new location of the Court House trees will serve as a convalescent center for patients who are able to walk on the grounds, and who would enjoy such a spot outdoors.

The space the trees have been occupying will be put to a worthwhile use. Plans are being made to broaden Russell street and make oblique parking places out of the space now used for parallel parking. As one county official pointed out, there will be about three times the parking space now available.

The large trees in front of the Court House on Kingsmill are coming down, too. Kingsmill street will also be broadened in the city's street improvement program, and the extra width will take in the space now held by trees.

The front lawns of the Court House will remain the same with the low shrubs and evergreen trees left.

NOBODY WANTS to move the trees located around the Court House, but two workmen prepare to move them to their new home behind the County Hospital following a series of damages caused by the size of the trees.

"Exclusive But Not Expensive"

People are sentimental about matters concerning their town, but with the Court House officials it's a practical matter (even though at times they feel like George Washington chopping down the cherry tree) they have to admit the truth. "The trees have just got too big for their breeches!" They have in recent years caused considerable damage to county property.

There is one thing to which we can look forward. We'll get a good glimpse of the Court House for the first time since the trees were planted back in the early 30's!

And what do the trees think about moving?

Well, we just know they're real proud of their new home!

Boyer Sheds 'Lover' Tag; A Hard Fight

HOLLYWOOD — (AP) — It was a hard fight, but Charles Boyer figures he has finally shed the "great lover" tag.

The reluctant Lothario started a campaign four years ago to escape type-casting after a decade of film love-making. Every radio comic and night club imitator was mocking him with lines like "come wiz me to the Casbah."

Boyer stayed off the screen for three years rather than play in movies he thought were "silly."

"I'm not against romance," he commented. "But I am against playing in the same silly love stories. I may do a love story in the future. But it will be as a mature lover, not as a dashing romantic."

When he return to the screen, Boyer first played a Catholic priest in "The First Legion." Then he did an out-and-out character role in "The 13th Letter."

"That doesn't mean that I am going to play character roles exclusively," he explained. "I did that picture to show Hollywood that I was serious about wanting to get away from the label of 'lover.'"

Boyer is currently playing another non-romantic role — that of a Maharajah's secretary in "The Rage of the Vulture." He is delighted to leave love-making in the film in the hands of Alan Ladd.

The Frenchman has been seeing a lot of the United States lately, as a member of the first drama quartet. The others in this band are Charles Laughton, Sir Cedric Hardwicke and Agnes Moorehead. They have been touring the country in a forum version of George Bernard Shaw's "Don Juan in Hell."

"We were a little worried about how it would go over," Boyer admitted. "It is not like the usual stage presentation. The four of us merely stand before podiums and talk into microphones. We weren't sure if the public would go for that."

"But the results have been amazing. So far we have played 50 engagements, mostly college towns, and the business has been capacity."

Heartened by the success of the first tour, the quartet will play "Don Juan" in London this summer.

SWIFT SWIFTS
Often confused with swallows, swifts are near-relations to the humming-birds. These birds are well named, having been clocked at speeds ranging between 171 and 300 miles an hour.

IN PILATE'S PLACE

To stand in Pilate's place today, as young folks of our school are turning to God and calling on His Name against sin.

As in the days of Pilate, some said "Do away with Him," while a few said "We find no fault in Him." Some looked on and laughed and others mocked, so Pilate couldn't stand to lose his fame and to be counted as one of Jesus' followers so he consented to have Jesus put to death.

So as these young boys and girls are asking for prayer to God in our land of freedom and land that is called a Godly country and school of freedom. Where boys and girls spend most of the day in a school room, learning some things to make them wise in this world and leaving out the most important thing that they need, which is that soul that lives inside that boy or girl needs to be taught about the Creator in the day of their youth. They should turn to God in the day of their youth.

But who shall offend one of these little ones which believe in Jesus. It is better for him that a millstone were hanged about his neck and that he was drowned in the depth of the sea, Mat. 18-6. That boy or girl that is saved from Hell through the prayers of the other boys and girls is worth everything in this world. And to be wise is to take Jesus along to school everyday. For without Him, we could do nothing.

What have we profited if we gain the whole world and lose our soul? Nothing.

Once in a while, any man's entitled to let himself go. He's entitled to that glow of pride that comes from feeling like the very important person that he really is. He's entitled to take practical steps to make his dreams come true.

In short, he's entitled to own a ROADMASTER, and particularly a ROADMASTER as it is custom built for '51.

For this great automobile is more than big and roomy and distinguished in its styling.

It's more than sweetly willing in performance, and superbly poised in stride.

It does things to you, when you let yourself sink deep down in the subtle softness of its cushions, and run a caressing hand over the fine texture of its fabrics.

This is everything a fine car should be!

Of course, this brilliant performer is Fireball powered. It is cushioned by coil springs on every wheel. It provides, at no extra cost, the complete relaxation of Dynaflo Drive. It has durable and dependable sturdiness engineered into every mechanical part.

But the best is yet to be told. When you check the ROADMASTER price list, you'll find that the car of your choice can be yours for hundreds of dollars less than you'll pay for others with comparable reputation.

Voice Improvement Plan Started At Shamrock

SHAMROCK — (Special) — Shamrock high school teachers have been recording their voices in an effort to improve the teaching quality of their tone. Edward M. Burkhalter, high school principal, made the recordings on a tape recorder.

He interviewed each teacher as if they were on a radio program. Some teachers read from papers and reports, other talking of their work as libbing.

Records were then played back. Most expressed surprise at their voices and all promised to work in improving tone quality and variations so classwork would be advanced.

Burkhalter is also instructor of speech in addition to his principal's duties. The school has a tape recorder, disc recorder, public address system, a projector and a portable and permanent screen to advance group activities.

Recordings will also be made of voices of teachers in the junior high school and the two grade schools, North Ward and South Ward.

"We believe this voice program will result in a definite improvement of teaching

Dobie Denies Red Charges

TUCSON, Ariz. — (AP) — J. Frank Dobie, noted storyteller and Texas historian, last night denied he had ever been connected with an organization branded Communist.

The House UnAmerican Activities Committee in Washington yesterday had listed Dobie Mid-Century Conference for Peace, held in Chicago last May, as an organization participating in a Communist "peace offensive" in the United States.

Dobie said: "I have never been a member of the organization or affiliated with it in any manner. I signed some appeal for peace because I thought it was a good idea. I didn't know exactly what it was but I knew it was some sort of appeal for peace."

"I don't know anything about it as a Communist organization and never belonged to it."

Dobie, here to participate in a festival of arts celebration, expressed irritation over the situation.

"I don't like the idea of living in a place where a man can't believe in an ideal merely because some Communist happens to believe the same thing. It is not American and does not allow freedom of thought."

Most of the 400-plus sponsors of the mid-century conference were pastors, church people or teachers.

E. Urner Goodman, director of the program division, Thomas J. Horsely, chairman of the regional committee, and Harold W. Lewman, regional scout executive of Dallas.

The local group plans to return Monday night.

Slot Machine Bill Passed

AUSTIN — (AP) — The House voted overwhelmingly today to give special priority to an anti-slot machine bill.

Rep. Jimmy Adams of Mexia, its author, said "This is an emergency matter."

The vote was 91-5 to set the bill as special business for Tuesday at 10:30 a. m. Yesterday the House refused to set it for special order next week, principally because it might hold up other legislation.

The bill would make mere possession of a slot machine illegal. Present law makes it illegal only to exhibit a machine for use.

La Rosa Sorority Has Presentation For New Members

MARY WINDSOR AND ROY KING

La Rosa Sorority honored new members with the annual presentation dance in the Palm Room recently.

Decorations featured a "dream-land" theme. A sequin covered vanity surrounded by clouds of snow-white angel hair was the center of attraction, and was balanced on either side by a rose-covered lattice. Strips of blue and silver paper on the walls gave the effect of mirrors and reflected the colored spotlights which were centered on the vanity.

At 9:45 the young man came from the left side of the audience and the girl from the right side. They met before the vanity and the boy placed a silver crown on the girl's head.

Anita Guidrey, eight-year-old daughter of S-Sgt. and Mrs. Charles Guidrey, presented the girls with nosegays of red and white carnations. Anita was dressed in a pink organdy dress with a silver crown on her head.

Miss LaJuana Garner, president of the club, introduced the pledges and their escorts as follows: Iris Stockton, Don Skelton, Juanita Cox, Bobby Pore, Patsy Walls, Jack Traywick, Mary Windsor and Roy King.

Miss Mary Lou Gantz, junior sponsor, presented the best pledge, Mary Windsor, who was chosen as the most cooperative during pledging. She was crowned and presented with a dozen red roses. Miss Gantz then introduced the club sweetheart, LaJuana Garner, and she was also crowned and presented a bouquet of red roses. The sweetheart is chosen for her club work during her year as a La Rosa.

Mildred Jones, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. M. A. Jones, a beloved member of the sorority who lost her life last July, was made an "all-time sweetheart" and each year a bouquet of red roses will be placed on her grave on the Sunday following the presentation.

Bill Smith's orchestra furnished the music. Sponsors included Mrs. Ole John, Miss Gantz, Mrs. Orval Walls, Mrs. Harold Garner and Mr. and Mrs. M. A. Jones.

CANCER DRIVE PLANS — Mrs. W. D. Others in the picture are Mrs. Noel Thompson, cancer drive treasurer, left; Mrs. Finis Jordan, Gray County chairman, second from right, and Mrs. Minnie Barnes, right, publicity chairman. Mrs. Kelley is county commander and can be reached at telephone 1108. Mrs. Barnes will also help schedule the films, and will be at telephone 413.

EMILY POST wouldn't approve but Jewel Beckham dunks the first doughnut in observance of National Doughnut Week which begins today. There are about 3,000,000 members in the National Doughnut Association who strive to perpetuate dunking in this country. Their emblem is a coffee cup and hand holding a doughnut ready for a dip!

It's Done In The Best Of Families: Doughnut Dunking Is Here To Stay

By WANDA J. CAMPBELL

Do you approve of dunking? If so, you are one of about 3,000,000 other persons in this country who defy all the rules set down by Emily Post and enjoy this traditionally American habit.

With National Donut Week beginning today it brought to mind the National Dunking Association, an organized group that delights in dunking doughnuts and causing brows to rise!

When did dunking begin? In this country? Hardly. Here's one who'll wager it began long ago in the days of the old English coffee houses. For as long as there's been people meeting for coffee, there's probably been those either 'fer dunking or agin it!

While visiting several "coffee houses" frequented by local people, no persons were seen dunking — but that doesn't mean that it's not being done!

As one local business owner, (a woman,) said, "Dunking is about the nicest thing you can do to a doughnut!"

Another woman who loves doughnuts said she definitely likes them best dunked in coffee. And a prominent doctor in Pampa admitted that "they surely were good dunked."

One group of beauty operators said that dunking may not be proper, but sometimes all in fun they dunk. Their opinion was that dunking has its place.

And with that Emily Post agrees. The last word in etiquette, Miss Post says it is approved in lunch wagons, but she prefers to put "thumbs down" on dunking anywhere else.

One man said he saw absolutely no harm in dunking — so long as you were careful not to splash coffee on somebody near you.

When asked whether he approved of dunking, one man connected with a local oil company said, "Is there another way to eat doughnuts?"

When asked about the dunking situation in Pampa, one woman connected with a restaurant said she rarely saw it done in public.

Library Is Offering Variety In Reading

By GEORGIA SMITH

If its variety in reading you're looking for, the Pampa Public Library has it to offer with this week's shipment of books.

What could be more off the beaten track in writing and reading than a new Phillip Wylie book? And he's done it again in "The Disappearance."

Wylie stopped millions of people for a little thinking in his "Generation of Vipers," "Essay on Morals," "Opus 21," which the library has, and the hundreds of short stories in the magazines, which he admittedly wrote to make money.

But in "The Disappearance," Wylie sets one to wondering for sure if this is not a human volcano which erupts now and then to destroy old and settled ideas that man has had since civilization began.

In this new book, Wylie separates the sexes for a particular length of time in order to examine each one, in its deepest psychological sense and he makes the reader believe that these things could really happen.

But from the phenomenal to seemingly frivolous and nonsensical intent, we forget that the rain is actually a serious one.

The various groups over the country (3,000,000 remember) meet over coffee cups and while they dunk their doughnuts they formulate plans for combating juvenile delinquency or use their energy in other constructive channels.

They maintain that even Republicans and Democrats are on a more friendly basis when they share the dunking habit! And their cry is, "Down with stuff-shirtedness!"

But though some say dunking and doughnuts go together, even if you don't dunk remember that today begins National Doughnut Week.

So pass the "sinkers," please!

The Gold Mannequin

By Myles Connolly

COPYRIGHT 1951 BY NEA SERVICE, INC.

THE STORY: Tim Reese, a crippled veteran, who has kept "Jean Paul" an exclusive gown shop, in business with his designs, has learned to walk again. On his first night out since Normandy in 1944, he goes to New York to surprise Jean Roland, a beautiful model, who is half owner of the shop. Jean has led Tim to believe she cares for him as a method of making him create beautiful gowns. Actually Jean cares nothing about Tim. In New York Tim learns Jean is attending the Cotuiters' Ball, an exclusive fashion show at which the "Dress of the Year" will be chosen. Tim manages to get in posing as a member of a television crew and watches Jean win in a gown designed by him. He also sees Paul Pendergast, Jean's partner, accept gold mannequin as "the designer." Tim sends a note to Jean and, realizing a serious situation confronts the firm, Jean meets Tim.

XXI

THE bellboy, Jigger, astounded that the interloper from the sidewalk should know this beautiful creature, stood pop-eyed a few feet behind Tim Reese and Jean Roland.

Tim reached for his canes, moved to get up. Jean did not take her eyes off him.

"Hi," Tim grinned, fully enjoying her astonishment now.

Jean Roland did not smile. She was, as she studied Tim, trying to make a decision.

Abruptly, characteristically, she made the decision. She turned abruptly to Jigger.

"Would you fetch my wrap, please? Miss Roland."

Jigger sped away.

Jean turned back to Tim. "Suppose we go somewhere we can sit down and celebrate?"

Tim was embarrassed. "But—I don't want you to leave the Ball for me."

She gave him a full radiant smile.

"I do," she said.

That evening it was very quiet at Giulio's, a gracious little dining room, a few doors east of the Avenue on 52nd Street. In the mistily lighted lounge in front, a gnomish young pianist played Debussy with delicately wistful fingers.

The music tinkled back into the luminous dusk of the small dining room, just reaching the wall table where Jean and Tim sat side by side.

At first, Jean did most of the talking. It was a great happiness for her, she told Tim, to see him out of the wheel chair. Now, she intimated, they could be together often in New York. That is, she smiled, if he wished it.

Then, before he had opportunity to question her, she shrewdly sought to divert his mind of any doubts or suspicions he might have had. She had been so busy on her return to New York, she explained, she had not had a single minute to write or telephone.

The business of getting home had thrown her into complete confusion, and, on top of that, she said, the hasty preparations for the Ball had all but driven her mad.

Finally, she decided, she would not let Tim know of the Ball until it was over. She was certain, she said, the winter white gown would win the award. She thought it best to wait then and surprise him with the announcement.

But Tim had long since forgiven, or, more correctly, forgotten.

EARLIER, when they left the Empire, Tim thought they would be gone only a few minutes. But Jean, at Giulio's, at ease and enjoying herself, made no move to return. When Tim suggested perhaps it was time she should go back, she was amused.

"You are much more fascinating than anyone there," she said.

"Now, wait a minute," Tim protested.

"Whose design won tonight?"

"But look who modeled it!"

"A model is only as good as what she wears." She was all candor now. "Here you are in New York, walking around handsome and healthy. What could be more exciting? I haven't begun to get over the surprise of seeing you—"

She was intimate, physical now. "—and I have an idea it'll take longer than tonight to get over the pleasure of it."

"Take as long as you like," he grinned. "We're both young. It sounds fine to me."

Paul Pendergast alone troubled Tim's evening.

It was with some uneasiness that he mentioned him. Was he the Paul of the Jean Paul? Was he the egre she had intimated the head of the firm to be?

Jean was immediately wary. "I don't think anyone could consider him a Prince Charming—underneath."

"He has the old charm on the surface, I'll say that for him."

"He does make a pleasant appearance, and that is important in the business," Jean moved closed.

"I didn't want to describe him to you out at the hospital. I was afraid you'd be jealous."

Tim was pleased, soothed. "You knew even then I might be jealous of someone else?"

She laughed her intimate little laugh. "No one could ever call you subtle, Mr. Reese."

Thus easily was Mr. Reese disposed of.

Eager Spectator Demands Action

KNOXVILLE, Tenn. (AP) — A spectator took a seat just as Judge H. O. Pollard convened court yesterday and demanded: "Come on, come on, let's have some action!"

The action came slowly but surely. After the spectator repeated his demands in subsequent sittings, a deputy sheriff escorted him to jail.

He was charged with drunkenness.

Town Looks At Socialism

VANDALIA, Mo. (AP) — The home town folks learned last night their traveling mailman—Abraham Lincoln Kilby—still strongly prefers the American competitive system.

Kilby has just returned from a seven-week tour of Great Britain. His journey was financed by fellow townspeople who wanted a man-on-the-street report on Britain's socialist government.

Said Kilby: "Capitalism, democracy and freedom are inseparable synonyms."

"There isn't any way of administering into the society of a happy, contented people any sort of a plan, control or program of envy and hate without the powers of compulsion and without that socialism would fall flat."

He added that Britain's social gains are good to a certain extent but the economic policies "if practiced or continued long enough, will lead to utter economic collapse because incentive and private initiative will have been destroyed."

The 58-year-old rural mail carrier declared, however: "The people of Great Britain are a great nation of intelligent people; they can and will solve their problems."

He spoke at a public meeting.

More State Tax Collectors Turning An Eye To Sales Levy

NEW YORK — (AP) — Don't look now, but the state tax collector may have an eye on your shopping dollar.

Hard-pressed for funds to meet increasing costs of road building, school construction and public services in general, state governments are depending more and more on the sales tax as a Grade "A" revenue producer.

In most of the 29 states that have it, the sales tax is the extra two or three percent you pay when you buy a pair of nylon, a necktie, washing machine — almost any purchase made at retail — or a ticket to a ball game or a lobster dinner. There also are less obvious ways of collecting sales taxes.

State tax collectors have found the sales levy a bonanza.

Twenty-two years ago, when the government's costs were a tiny fraction of what they are today, sales taxes were practically unknown.

Last year they produced more income than any other form of state taxation, and this year they're likely to produce still more.

State taxes run into big money. The total of all taxes collected by the 48 states last year was just under $9,000,000,000. That was equivalent to nearly 22 percent of the $39,400,000,000 federal taxes collected by Uncle Sam.

Of that $9,000,000,000 in state taxes, sales taxes provided $1,679,000,000 — more than a fifth.

Here's how they operate:

First, there's the familiar tax on retail sales, out in the open where everybody can see it. It's imposed on sales of tangible property for personal use — also, in many states, on admission tickets and restaurant meals.

There's also a general sales tax, which can be applied at the wholesale or manufacturing level. The customer may not know it's there, but he pays it just the same: It's included in the price of the product.

The term "sales tax" does not mean the taxes collected by states on sales of gasoline, tobacco or liquor. State tax officials regard each of these as in a class by itself. The gasoline is right behind the sales tax as a major revenue source. Every state in the union has one. Last year U. S. motorists paid more than one-and-a-half billion dollars in gasoline taxes. Add that to the $749,000,000 they anted up for drivers' licenses and registration — and you get a breathtaking total of $2,297,000,000 which autoists contributed to the high cost of government in their home states. However, the sales tax is still the biggest single item.

The sales tax may be an irritating annoyance to the customer and to the merchant an object of great and terrible wrath, but in tax collecting circles it's a darling. It's about the easiest way there is to raise tax money at low cost. The retailer — the businessman — has to do the collecting.

The idea is growing. Georgia put a three percent sales tax into operation last the other day — April 1. And if you're hunting for a utopia where the sales tax is unknown, don't buy a ticket to Maine, because the Pine Tree state is seriously considering a general sales levy.

Among the hold-outs is the wealthy state of New York, which relies heavily on gasoline.

auto license and personal income and inheritance taxes for its annual billion-dollar levy. But New York City is hiking its sales tax from two to three percent.

Like their counterparts in the federal government, state tax experts have long been intrigued by the money-raising possibilities of personal and corporate income taxes.

Taxes on personal and business income made up nearly 17 percent of the total state taxes collected last year. New York was tops with $443,000,000.

If you want to get away from it all, there are five states which — at the moment — depend neither on income nor on retail sales taxes. They are Nebraska, Nevada, New Jersey, Texas and Maine.

With no golden flow of dollars from sales or income taxes, what are these five state governments using for money? All collect gasoline taxes and auto license fees; all clamp a tax on alcoholic drinks and tobacco. Each levies a tax on insurance premiums; each has a property tax. Texas has a very special tax, a so-called "severance tax" on natural resources, imposed on every barrel of oil, every cubic foot of natural gas, extracted from the hallowed soil of the Lone Star State. Last year — it brought in a cool $102,700,000.

Here's what some state governments have in mind for the future:

The Tax Foundation, a 13-year-old non-partisan, tax-exempt research and education organization supported by private individuals and business groups, recently queried state governors on their intentions. It found that the present trend is toward more and higher taxes. Eighteen governors said tax increases were urgently needed in their states; a few promised to try to hold the line; only four said they wanted lower taxes.

Many of the 18 said they favored higher sales and income taxes.

Higher personal income taxes are being recommended in Massachusetts, Arkansas and Oregon; new corporate profits taxes in Washington and Michigan. In Arkansas, says the foundation the proposed increase in the income tax is 100 percent! Higher sales taxes have been urged in North Carolina and Ohio.

Sales and income taxes also figure prominently in tax-cutting proposals.

Utah Legislature recently he wants a reduction in personal income taxes, or if that can't be done, he wants medicines and certain foods exempted from the retail sales tax. And he offered the legislators an unorthodox proposal. Said Lee:

"The easiest way is for the legislature to reduce taxes, then fit its appropriations to the anticipated revenue."

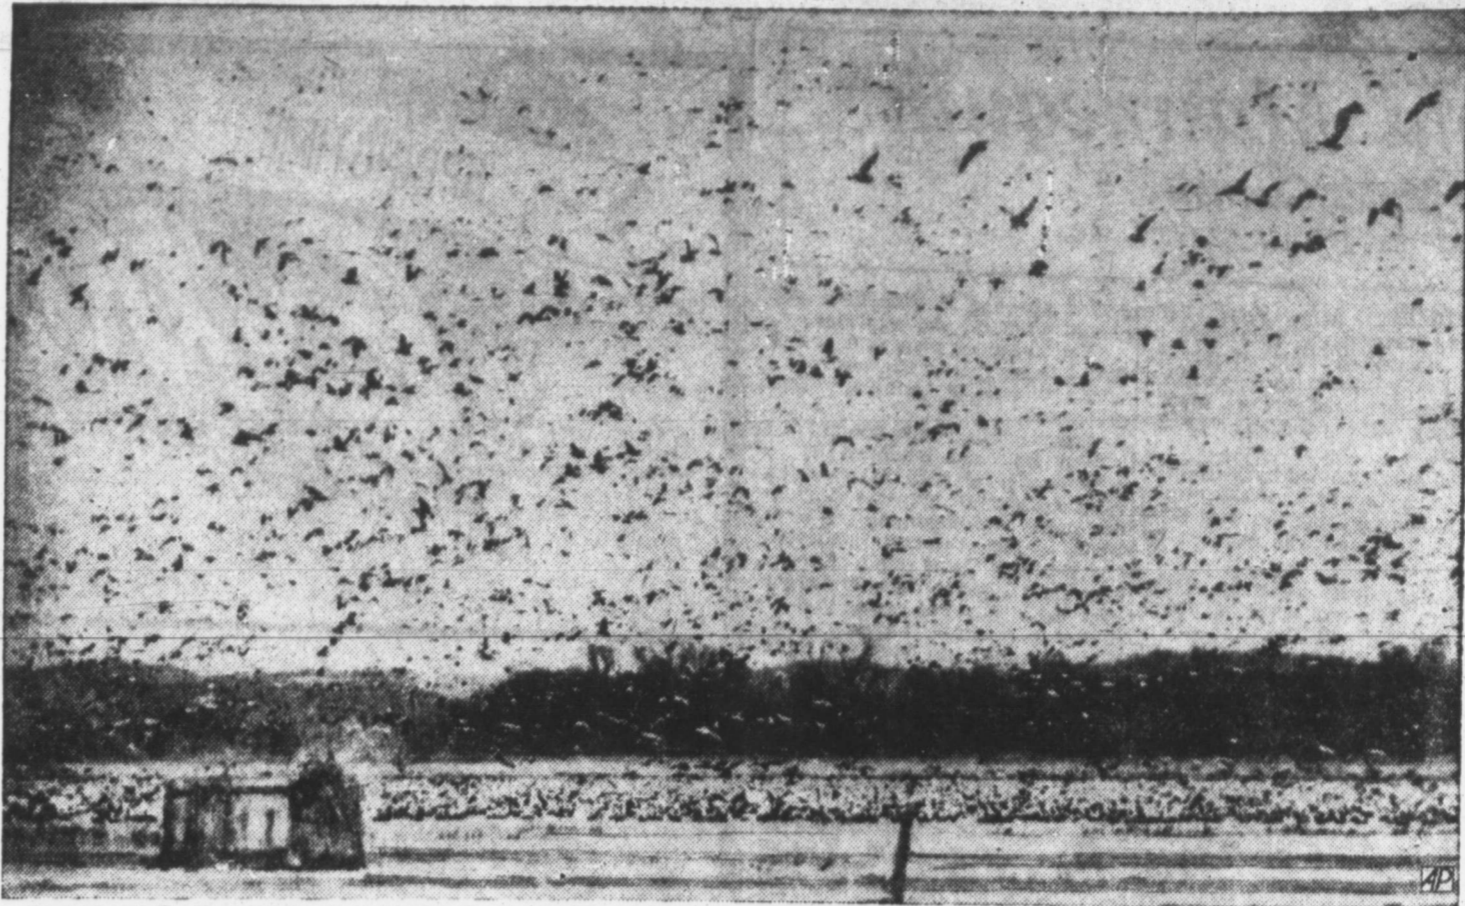

Other governors who ask for lower state taxes are Delaware's Elbert Carver, Charles Russell of Nevada and Edwin Mechem of New Mexico. Mechem told his legislature:

"We must curtail our spending on those activities that are not absolutely essential to our survival."

Strictest economy during the present emergency was urged by Governor Johnson Murray of Oklahoma, who said:

"A tax is a tax no matter what its source . . ."

And that seems to be pretty much the way Mr. John Q. Taxpayer feels about it.

Delegates Are Named By Kiwanis

Delegates and alternates to attend the Kiwanis National Convention were announced at the luncheon meeting Friday.

E. L. Henderson and Clinton Evans have been appointed delegates and Walter Debn and Jeff Bearden, alternates. Announcement was made by Leslie Hart, president.

Friday was Ladies Day at Kiwanis, honoring the wives of members, whose wedding anniversaries are celebrated this month.

Those honored were Mmes. Aubrey Jones, E. W. Voss, Huelyn Laycock, Phil Pegues, H. O. Darby, Jeff Bearden and Julian Key.

No program was scheduled for the meeting because members participated in the Texas Industrial Week observance by visiting the General Atlas Carbon Co. plant. Superintendent of the plant W. S. Dixon was a special guest at the meeting.

NEW YORK — (AP) — Wholesale food prices, as measured by the Dun & Bradstreet index, declined this week for the third week in a row.

The index at $7.15 compared with $7.21 last week and $5.74 a year ago.

It's still 20 percent above the index level when the Korean war broke out ($5.96), but well below the peak for the year to date — $7.31 on Feb. 20.

The index represents the total cost at wholesale of one pound each of 31 foods in general use.

Mines Wash Onto Japanese Shores

TOKYO — (AP) — Floating mines, presumed from North Korea, killed 63 persons, injured 50 and damaged 2,000 homes along Japan's coast in the last four months, the Japanese maritime board announced today.

Forty-three mines washed onto Japan shores between December and March. Many exploded. They caused greatest damage in fishing villages. Seventy-eight others were tracked down in the Japan Sea.

Communists heavily mined the Wonsan harbor on Korea's east coast last year to delay United Nations landings. It was believed the Reds also let some mines float out to sea.

Hot Air Buckles House Ceiling

WASHINGTON — (AP) — Too much hot air caused the buckling of stainless steel plates in the new ceiling of the recently rebuilt House chamber of the Capitol.

It cost $823 to patch up the damage.

This was related in appropriations committee records, just made public. Experts made it clear to the committee that the trouble was caused by the turning on of steam heat to test the metals—not by House debate.

Prague People Told To Hate Americans

PRAGUE — (AP) — People were told to hate the "American imperialists" in an editorial front-paged by the Prague cultural newspaper, "Lidove Noviny."

"The Americans are even more barbaric than the Germans," said the editorial, by Jeroslav Putik. "In Korea, they are using gas and other kinds of prohibited weapons. The American Fascist will not attack us only because he is afraid of us, of the Soviet Union and of the peace movement in his own country.

"The murderer is too cowardly to commit suicide. But this does not mean that we should hate him any the less."

Combatting Subversives Is Topic For Meeting Monday

Legionnaires, police officers and servicemen at 8 p.m. Monday are scheduled to get the "low-down" on how to combat Communies, subversives and saboteurs from an expert in the American Legion-V. F. W. Hall.

The clinic will be held in conjunction with the regular American Legion meeting, but all veterans have been invited along with Legion members, police officials, defense production officials, the press and others.

In addition to local people a large number of American Legion members, police and others from the surrounding area have signified their intentions of attending the meeting.

Hawkins is a veteran F. B. I. agent who "knows the ropes" when it comes to dealing with subversive activities on the home front. He has given similar studies to other Legion and civic groups throughout Texas and is expected to have a large audience when he appears in Pampa tomorrow night.

NATURAL WONDER
The Natural Bridge of Virginia, one of the natural wonders of the United States, is a mammoth arch of limestone, 215 feet high, 100 feet wide, and 90 feet between the walls.

WASHINGTON — (AP) — Confidence is growing in oil circles that the present 27½ percent tax depletion allowance is safe for another year at least. Members of Congress from oil states and Washington representatives of oil and gas organizations seem to feel that Congress is unlikely to make any change in the figure this year. The administration had proposed that the allowance be cut to 15 percent.

The petroleum industry contends that the present allowance — under which producers and royalty holders can charge off, for income tax purposes, 27 1/2 percent of their new revenue — is a necessary incentive to continued exploration for oil. A member of the House Ways and Means Committee, who declined to be named, told this reporter he is confident the committee will leave the allowance unchanged when it approves a new tax bill. Another member said, after Secretary of the Treasury Snyder appeared before the committee April 2, that there seemed little likelihood the committee would recommend a change in the allowance.

Similar, but more guarded views, came from some oil industry spokesmen here. They said they saw little chance of a change but they added they are keeping a close watch until the new tax bill becomes law because "anything might happen."

But another problem — the shortage of steel — is causing the industry new concern. Russell Brown, general counsel of the Independent Petroleum Association of America, said the steel situation for the industry is "pretty discouraging right now."

"There is not a loose string of casing in the country," he asserted. He added that the National

Completions Show Increase In Area

Panhandle operators set a somewhat different pattern of operation during the first week of April, breaking a three-week influx of new locations.

Area activity showed a decline of nine in the number of intentions to drill but a gain of six in completed wells in the field. Twenty new locations were staked during the week ended April 7 compared to 29 the previous week. Completions rose from 10 filed for the week ended March 29 to 16 reported the past week. Of this number of completions, 7 were for oil, eight for gas and one plugged well was filed. Total increased oil potential was 448 barrels of oil and 37,475 MCF gas compared to 211 barrels of oil and no gas reported the week ended March 29. During the week, one location was staked in Carson, five in Gray, seven in Hutchinson, one in Potter and six in Sherman. Carson showed three completions; Gray, five; Hutchinson, two and Sherman, six.

Rig Activity Reported Off

DALLAS — Reversing the trend of a week ago, rotary drilling activity was off in most of the principal areas of the United States and Canada during the week of April 2, it was reported to American Association of Oilwell Drilling Contractors by Hughes Tool Co. The only area to show increased operations was Illinois, with 31 more rigs busy.

The total for the week of 2332 active units, compares with 2251 a week ago, 2202 a month ago and with 2078 for the comparable week of 1950. A comparison by areas for the past two weeks, shows: Pacific Coast, 140, unchanged; Oklahoma, 293, down 8; Kansas, 151, down 2; Rocky Mountain, 108, unchanged; Canada, 99, down 1; Ark-La-Tex, 140, down 9; West Texas & New Mexico, 502, down 23; Gulf Coast, 624, down 7; Illinois, 75 up 31.

Small Refineries Will Have Important Role In Emergency

By MAX B. SKEETON
SAN ANTONIO — (AP) — Small refineries are to have an important part in supplying petroleum products during the national emergency.

A Petroleum Administration for Defense official last week said these refineries possess the "flexibility" the industry needs for emergency operations. Reid Brazell, PAD refining division director, said the small plants' figure prominently in plans for meeting aviation gasoline, jet fuel and domestic oil and industrial fuel requirements. He said the number of products made in the small refinery is comparatively small with operations and product yield changes normally causing little disruption.

The Alma, Mich., refiner spoke here before the annual convention of the Western Petroleum Refiners Association, whose membership predominantly consists of operators of refineries with small daily capacities. "When an emergency occurs, the small refiner can almost instantly change his operations to products needed and thereby give to the country's refining program the flexibility which is required," Brazell said.

The nation has less than 400 oil refineries. Their daily crude oil processing capacities range from 500 to 250,000 barrels. Over half have capacities of only 5,000 barrels or less a day. Another 85 to 100 can process from 10,000 to 50,000 barrels daily. Late 1950 statistics placed over half the nation's refining capacity in 31 plants, with individual capacities ranging from 50,000 to 250,000. These plants had total facilities of handling 3,519,000 barrels a day, compared to the nation's overall capacity of from 6,700,000 to 6,900,000. Brazell said the abilities of small refineries to reduce construction costs of complicated and expensive plant installation will aid greatly in averting a shortage of aviation gasoline. Some operators, he said, have removed, without loss of processing efficiency, the "gold plating" from normally expensive projects, thus adjusting costs to fit the pocketbook of the small refiner. "We in PAD view the small refiner as the one hope for causing the cost of alkylation units (vital to production of high octane aviation gasoline) to be reduced sufficiently to permit economical peacetime operation," he said. The jet fuel situation, Brazell said, still is being complicated by pending military specification changes. A jet fuel established two years ago involves a mixture of gasoline, kerosene and light burner oil. "Normal gasoline, kerosene and light burner oil blends will no longer meet requirements," he said. Specification changes normally require six months or more, but Brazell expressed hope products meeting the new jet requirement will be in production within a matter of weeks. "As jet fuel demands increase, the small refiner can play an increasingly important part in supplying military requirements," he said.

U. S. Tin Action Affects Malaya
SINGAPORE — (AP) — Tin brokers here say Malaya would suffer a staggering financial loss if the United States government attempts to depress the price of tin for as long as a year. They estimate this loss would total $43,300,000 in that period of time. The United States has taken over as sole buyer of tin for Americans and suspended purchases for stockpiling until prices reached what is considered a "reasonable level."

Speech Students At Shamrock Begin Program On Stories
SHAMROCK — (Special) — Principal Edward M. Burkhalter's speech students have embarked on a program of storytelling. Each of the 21 students is required to prepare three stories, suitable for fourth-grade, junior-high and adult audiences. Burkhalter has invited the fourth grade pupils from North Ward elementary school to be the audience for stories on their local and the junior high English classes will hear the stories on that level. Some stories will reach adult groups. Burkhalter plans to develop a program of impersonation in the speech class soon. Students will seek to impersonate the voices of well-known individuals. There also will be a program of pantomiming. Speech includes drama, oration, impersonation, story-telling, extemporaneous speaking and other areas which will help provide forceful speakers for the years ahead. "Story-telling gives vent to the imagination, an important quality in speaking," declares Burkhalter. "It is part of an integrated speech teaching program designed for modern living." Mata Hari's real name was Margaretha Geertruida Zelle.

NO TYRO IN EITHER MEDIUM—Leonard E. Bersson, a waiter in New York's Carnegie Hall, handles a call beside his painting "Half Slip," exhibited in the Hall art gallery.

Not All Excitement:

Newsmen Present A Varied Picture

By HAL BOYLE
NEW YORK — (AP) — Do you want to write for the newspapers? Would you like to be a war reporter or a foreign correspondent? Maybe you wouldn't. But a big percentage of young Americans now growing up seem to want to be. For them newspapering still holds a lure above that of other professions that appear more humdrum.

They write dead-end earnest letters to men in the field wanting to know what they should do to prepare themselves to become newspapermen. Recently I have had several such letters from high school and college students. And the other day a fellow who works the typewriter next to mine said: "My eleven-year-old daughter just announced she is going to become a newspaperwoman, and wants to know what I think of the idea? Why don't you write a piece about the business?"

Well here goes:

Newspapermen don't fit in any standard type of pigeonhole. They come in all sizes, shapes and temperaments. Some are full of the milk of human kindness, and some are so mean they wouldn't get up to give their old mother a seat on the subway.

But, by and large, the best of them live up to an unwritten code. The goal of that code is to find out what is going on in the world, and to write down what they find out. Their newspaper then prints it.

That sounds like a very simple task — merely to find out information and put it on paper. Actually it can be, and often is, an excruciatingly complex and painful job. It is easy to get most people to tell you what they want you to know. The art of reporting is to get people to tell you what you yourself want to know — the truth of a situation. And often that isn't easy.

One of the most difficult things for an idealistic young man or woman, reporter to realize is that nice-looking people not only can lie boldly — they can lie with a disarming smile. And they will sometimes lie when it isn't necessary.

As reporters grow more experienced they are rarely fooled.

State Bank Resources Reported Climbing

AUSTIN — (AP) — Texas bank resources shot upward $14,540,671 last year, State Banking Commissioner J. M. Falkner has announced.

Resources at the end of 1950 stood at $1,427,679,687, compared to $1,283,139,014, Falkner said.

The bulk of the increase occurred after the outbreak of hostilities in Korea, the banking commissioner commented.

Scientist Claims New Rubber Method

WASHINGTON — (AP) — Dr. Derso Sebek Shybeky of Minneapolis says he has a process for producing cheap synthetic rubber from peat but has been unable to interest the Reconstruction Finance Corp.

The RFC administers the government's rubber program. Shybeky testified before the Senate Small Business Committee.

Peat is semi-carbonized vegetable matter. It is found in swamps and areas where trees and other vegetation have fallen and accumulated for years.

Shybeky said Russia uses peat as a big source of rubber.

Soviet Newspaper Brands Gen. Collins As A Warmonger

MOSCOW — (AP) — The Soviet army newspaper Red Star branded U.S. Army Chief of Staff Gen. J. Lawton Collins "a veteran warmonger" and said that he recently has been intensifying his warmongering activities.

It said Gen. Collins' oral and written statements — "an example of the most rampant war propaganda being openly disseminated by high ranking warmongers in the U.S. Army" — did not hide "the fact that the United States is preparing for war."

Red Star singled out for particular criticism a recent inter-

Architect Says City Is Crumbling

KUALA LUMPUR — (AP) — This capital city of the Federation of Malaya is "crumbling." So says C. O. Jennings, municipal architect. He said Kuala Lumpur is a few years would be a "rotten, filthy, overcrowded town, scourged by tuberculosis" unless something radical is done.

view with the general printed in the U.S. News and World Report.

(In a copyrighted interview with U.S. News and World Report in February, Gen. Collins said it was unnecessary to match Russia's division for division because, with new weapons and techniques, the U.S. Army could deal with hordes of men and tanks coming across Europe.)

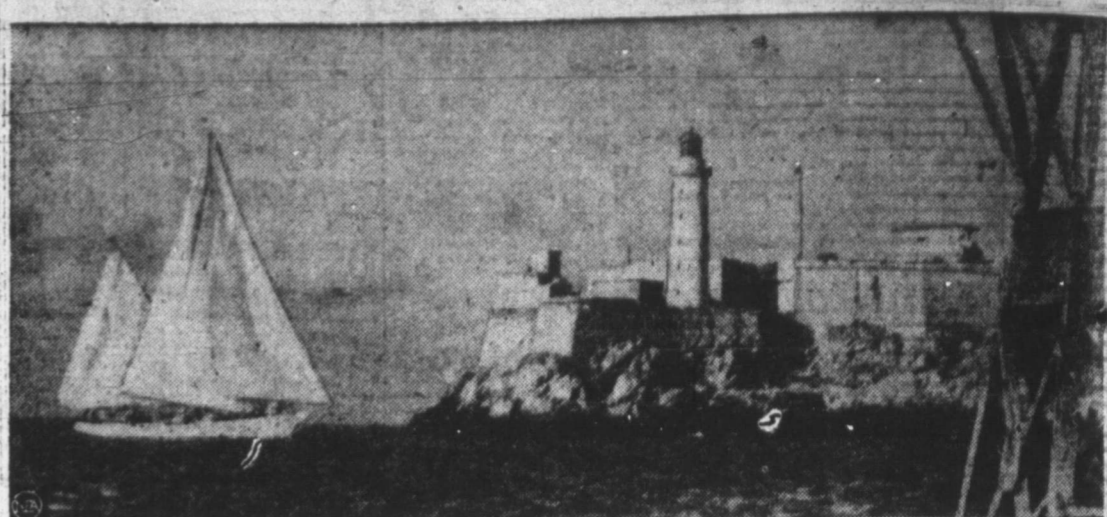

Vienna Gives You Miss Information

VIENNA — (AP) — The Viennese housewife can get a suggested dinner menu by telephone, with a complete recipe for each dish and just how much it will cost at today's prices. Vienna possibly has more dial services than any other city in the world. You can dial different numbers and get:

"Miss Ski" — who gives you recorded snow information;

"Miss Bus girl" — who recites the departure times of all buses.

"Miss Toto" — who gives you the results of the weekend soccer games. Then Vienna's thousands of musicians can tune their instruments to a perfect A-pitch by dialing A-0-69.
