Jittery Albania Files Protest For Violations

LONDON (AP)—Jittery Albania protested today against alleged violations by Greece and Italy of its territories by Italy and Greece.

Accounts of the protest published by the Soviet news agency Tass coincided with reports from various neighboring countries that the Soviet satellite government on the Adriatic had thwarted a planned uprising by 2,000 anti-Communist Albanians, Turks, Greeks and Yugoslavs against the regime of Red Premier Enver Hoxha.

Tass, however, made no mention of any such plot. The Russian agency said Albania lodged its protest against Greece with the United Nations Secretariat, charging 18 violations between March 1 and March 28.

At the same time the foreign ministry sent a note to Italy "resolutely protesting" eight flights across its frontier by Italian planes.

Tass reported last night that Albania, a protest to the Yugoslav government, accused it of nine "frontier provocations," which the Albanians charged were aimed at touching off World War III.

Reports of the attempted uprising varied and the "invasion" itself lacked confirmation from non-Communist Balkan groups.

But, as pieced together from reports of eastern European diplomats, contacts with diplomatic missions still in Albania, exiled Albanians and broadcasts, this is the story:

Early in the year, 3000 anti-Communists entered Albania by land and sea and made their way to Tirana, the capital, where they contacted elements hostile to Hoxha. They planned a general uprising and the assassination of Hoxha.

In February, a bomb exploded in the Soviet embassy in Tirana. This was to have been the signal for the uprising.

The plot failed because Hoxha's men immediately moved in and arrested many of the "invaders" and other suspects.

There is no word that any attempt was made on Hoxha's life. He was said to have ordered a state of emergency and to have ordered an intensive drive against his opponents.

An Athens dispatch said five nations—the United States, Great Britain, Yugoslavia, Italy and Greece—were working through emigre Albanians and intelligence agents paracuted into the country in an effort to upset the regime.

"ANTI-BIBLICAL" CHOO-CHOO CHUGS AHEAD—Freight train huffs and puffs as it chugs through track-high flood waters outside Springfield, Minn. Floods drove some 3000 persons from their homes in Minnesota, Iowa and the Dakotas, and the rising waters threatened to force 15,000 others to flee for higher ground. (NEA 7-1ephto)

Thaws Send Rivers Up In The Dakotas

(By The Associated Press) Some 4,300 persons fled their flood-struck homes in a Minnesota town Sunday as the swollen Minnesota River swamped streets. With temperatures down near freezing, at 500 North Mankato, Minn., residents left their homes under orders of local officials. Most were cared for in Mankato, south of the suburb.

Meanwhile, the spring thaw sent the Red River rising. A flood warning was posted at Fargo, N.D., and Moorhead, Minn., lying on either side of the river. The river is expected to crest at 26 to 27 feet today.

Elsewhere in Minnesota, the community of Marshall counted its losses as the Redwood River ebbed. Damages were estimated at $1,000,000.

In Alabama, Iowa and South Dakota, flooded rivers were subsiding.

In Alabama, disaster relief workers still aided victims of the mopping up of the Tennessee River which had marooned an estimated 1,025 lowland residents. The river dropped about 14 inches Sunday from its maximum flood stage.

In South Dakota, the Big Sioux River fell slowly and steadily after forcing 1,500 from their homes in Sioux Falls. The peak flood stage was reached late Friday.

In Iowa, the Little Sioux and Cedar Rivers were reported falling Sunday.

A band of cloudy weather stretching from east sections of the Dakotas, Nebraska and Kansas through the Crest Lake region and Ohio Valley to the Atlantic States Monday.

Elsewhere in the country, fair weather was in prospect.

City Manager Dick Pepin said several other smaller items would also be brought up, but the agenda for the Tuesday meeting had not been completed this morning.

Auriol To Leave For Home Today

MONTREAL (AP)—President Auriol of France leaves for home today after his first state visit to the United States and Canada.

Reds Send Tons Of Water Rushing On Advancing UN

Gen. M'Arthur Has President In A Squeeze

WASHINGTON (AP)—President Truman was caught today in a squeeze between home front supporters of Gen. Douglas MacArthur, mostly Republicans, and U. S. allies who want him to discipline the outspoken general for his latest policy statement.

Capitol Hill friends thought that after a weekend of studying the situation, Mr. Truman might act quickly to make known his views on recent MacArthur statements which have run counter to military and state department policies.

It was certain that any move to strip MacArthur of any authority as supreme commander in Korea would touch off a storm in Congress.

Most lawmakers carefully avoided predicting the course of Mr. Truman's action, although some speculated privately that a presidential reprimand to the five-year general would be forthcoming.

Senator Knowland (R-Calif.), a persistent critic of administration foreign policy in the Pacific, forebode even more drastic action.

"It is not a piece of news that the handful men of the administration have been turned loose to undermine the position of General MacArthur and to force a rearmistice or 'peace'," he said.

Knowland said it would be wiser to keep MacArthur and put in Secretary of State Acheson, Senator Ferguson (R-Mich.) advocated the dispatch of a 12-man congressional committee, six Democrats and six Republicans, to consult MacArthur and learn his views on the Korean war and Far Eastern policy generally.

MacArthur's latest statement was made public Monday (6:30 p.m. EST) with the newly named mobilization advisory board.

The 17-member board was selected by the President last Friday. Headed by Mobilization Chief Charles E. Wilson, it has four other members each from labor, industry, agriculture and the public.

Mr. Truman is reportedly seeking to get the group agreed, or at least to get a possible, on changes needed in the defense production act to do a better job in smothering inflation.

That present controls have been ineffective is the main point Mr. Truman wants to discuss at his first meeting (6:30 p.m. EST) with the newly named mobilization advisory board.

There were reports that Great Britain may move directly for steps to curb the United Nations commander. Informal sources in London said strong British objections to the proposal to put Chinese Nationalist troops in the field will be forcefully but formally presented in Washington.

British opinion has been strong against any action which might spread the Korean fighting. Acheson's latest statement was made public Monday, when State Secretary of State Kenneth Younger warned Red China against being "misled by irresponsible statements."

Mr. Arthur's views on the Chinese second front issue have some vocal supporters in Congress. But there has been no indication of a change in the present policy of neutralizing Formosa and holding Chiang's army in reserve for possible use in an attempt to invade the island.

Given the general's spectacular personality and gut for words, such a controversy as might be stirred up by disciplinary action might go a long way toward splitting the country into two camps at a critical period.

Partly because of this, Mr. Truman might have difficulty in finding any large number of congressional supporters for any drastic action against MacArthur, such as his removal from command.

Red Concentrations Offer Terrible Danger Says Texan

WASHINGTON (AP)—Speaker Rayburn said today "we are in terrible danger" because the Russians are building up concentrations "here and there and everywhere."

Rayburn, Texas Democrat, told White House reporters following a conference with President Truman, that Russians are building up troop concentrations "in lots of places."

He added: "Just where this is being done is a little beyond my draft-UMT bill to deplore 'communist aggression' in these troubled times."

Pressed to elaborate, Rayburn said he would have more to say later, but that he would tell House members things which they should know.

He didn't tie in his remarks directly with the debate on draft legislation. But they apparently brought their effect on that issue.

The House Republican Policy Committee recently endorsed a move to add a troops-to-Europe limitation to the draft bill. Another Republican drive, headed by Rep. Short of Missouri, aims at crisscrossing off votes and lessening chances for winning out on either a straight draft or UMT proposal.

Nation Counts Air Death Toll As Two Planes Crash Sunday

(By The Associated Press) Military planes in the eastern United States, in California, and Sunday in the crashes of two aircraft killed 22 lives Friday night.

At Morningville, Md., a man and two child were killed as a crewless bomber plunged into a house. The crew had parachuted to safety after the plane's landing gear jammed.

Twelve soldiers were among the victims of the Southwest Airlines plane crash on the side of Santa Ynez Peak, near Santa Barbara, Calif.

Many of the bodies in the California crash still have not been identified positively. The Civil Aeronautics Authority is investigating.

The West Virginia crash had two survivors. The 21 airmen on board were to have served as an honor guard from Godman Field, near Louisville, Ky., at the funeral of Maj. Woodford W. Sutherland.

Sutherland died in a plane crash Thursday. He was from St. Albans, W. Va.

Called in the Maryland crash were Irvin Caver, of Cranford, N. C.; Kay Snyder, seven, and Rene Denise Snyder, two months.

Mrs. Guyer and Marie Sergeant and Mrs. Samuel Snyder were injured.

Big Reservoir Is Opened; No Danger Is Seen

TOKYO (AP)—Chinese Communists opened the massive Hwachon Reservoir dam in central Korea today and sent thousands of tons of water rushing down on allied-held ground.

But the Pukhan River rose no more than four and one-half feet.

By Monday night the water level was receding and there was no danger to United Nations forces.

Nearly all allied elements had moved above the expected high-water mark.

A U.S. Eighth Army engineer said: "There will be no real strain. They can't do any worse without blowing the dam and that's a dam that will take a hell of a lot of blowing."

The Hwachon Reservoir, about seven miles north of the 38th Parallel, is the main point of the stoutest Red resistance in North Korea in several weeks.

The dam is 275 feet high. The Reds opened 10 of its 18 floodgates. Six gates were reported inoperable.

The Reds may have had two purposes in loosing their manmade flood:

First, to cut the Chunchon-Hwachon highway, a main artery supply artery.

Second, to pave the way for a counter-offensive down the Chunchon-Wonju highway.

Although fighting near the reservoir has been severe, a correspondent left Erickson, U.S. Fifth Army headquarters, said there was no indication the Reds had started a mass drive.

An estimated Communist regiment was sighted Sunday afternoon between the river and advancing allied soldiers. Aerial photographs clearly showed the floodgates closed then.

The Chinese apparently opened the floodgates and pulled out sometime after dark.

UN troops of four nations are deployed around Chunchon. Some forward elements might be temporarily cut off by the rising water. The high water may extend as far down the Pukhan River as Seoul, some 55 air miles southwest.

The reservoir is shaped like an inverted "T" with a base and stem each 15 miles long. The city of Hwachon is on its western tip.

Chunchon, an important Red base 17 miles north of 38th parallel, was brought under American artillery fire Monday. Only light to moderate ground contact was reported from this sector.

There was little fighting on other fronts.

The Communists threw up a strong line of resistance Monday from the Hwachon-Chunchon road east to the Inje-Hangrye distance of nearly 25 air miles.

Monday's big battle raged south and southeast of Hwachon. The Reds stopped one allied force there. They also threw two 200-man counterattacks against other UN units.

Wheeler Council Okays Building

WHEELER — (Special) — The city council Thursday night approved plans for remodeling the fire house. The building which now houses the fire truck must be remodeled to make room for the new truck which is to be delivered this month. Alterations will include widening of the door and bracing with cables to relieve the stress caused by the new opening which will extend the full width of the building front. A new paint and stucco job will complete the remodeling.

The new fire truck was custom built. It will carry a water tank and high pressure hose. Nozzle pressure will adapt from a stream of water to the fog spray. The old fire engine is being reconstructed by the city with aid from the county so that it can be used in fighting fires especially rural fires.

Be Careful When The Lights Go Out

By MR. FIX
Distributed by NEA Service

Just when you're snug in your easy chair, all settled down with the evening paper, always seems to be the time the lights pick to go out.

Even if you're in the middle of a whodunit instead of the paper, there's nothing to read. You're shocked out of your wits who rush out of the house with their hands over their ears the minute their husbands start tinkering with electricity.

Sharks won't fly and you won't be shocked out of your shoes if you treat electricity with respect.

Since the lights are still out, however, let's get started. We'll assume the whole house didn't go dark, but get a flashlight anyway. Check the lamps and appliances in the rooms that did go dark, looking for faulty wiring or loose connections that would have caused a short circuit and disconnect the one that did the damage.

Then go to the main fuse box. Stand on a dry board or dry rubber mat before you open it. You should be able to tell which fuse or fuses blew out by markings inside the box showing what lights and outlets the various fuses control.

If they aren't marked, however, you'll have to look closely through the transparent "window" of each fuse to see which one is burned out.

Replace with a 15-ampere fuse for ordinary household or lighting circuits, but never stick a penny or other metal under a blown fuse because you forgot to keep a spare one on hand. Experts have been preaching about this as long as anybody can remember, but a lot of houses still burn down because of that penny foolishness. If you don't have an extra fuse, go sit in another room and read.

Fixed cords won't end up or lengths of wire probably a user damaged plug probably a user most of the short circuits around the house. One way to avoid them is to keep people from yanking them out of the base receptacle by pulling on the cord.

To replace the standard outlet plug, cut off the frayed end of the cord and then pass it through the wire to unbraided and bare are shown in the diagram.

Use the "Underwriters Knot," also sketched, if the well in the plug is deep enough; otherwise

KITCHEN MEMO
BY ANN CLARK

COMES the day when you're particularly busy, test this recipe together to make a Skillet Dinner. Saves dishwashing time and energy.

Melt 2 tbs. fat in skillet, add 1 cup chopped onion, 1/2 lb. ground beef. Cook until brown, about 10 mins. Add 1 cup sliced carrots, 4 oz. wed. noodles, 1 qt. water. Cover, simmer over low flame 45 mins. Add 2 tbs. Worcestershire sauce, 1 tsp. salt, 1/4 tsp. pepper. Mix lightly. Serves 4.

Timely check: The filter on your gas furnace is bound to clog with dust from the air. About twice a year remove the filter and replace it because a clogged filter cuts heating efficiency.

A clove of garlic in olive oil, mix in 1/2 tsp. paprika, let set for five minutes, then brush over thick steak. Slide into broiler 3" from flame. Out of this world for flavor and crusty finish!

If it's washday in your house and you need plenty of hot water, don't worry about the 15 gals. of hot water your man uses up for his morning shower because your automatic gas water heater immediately starts to replace hot water as it is used.

Gentle reminder: Tepid soapy water and a cloth wipe up spilled food in your gas refrigerator more easily than if you wait for the food to harden.

Butterscotch toast: Spread toast with butter or margarine, sprinkle with brown sugar. Keep under broiler about 4" from the flame until it bubbles.

Chinese Invaders Believed Stopped

HANOI, Indochina — (AP) — A French Army source said today that a Chinese invader battalion was believed to have halted its march towards Lai Chau, provincial capital of the Thai tribal country, 170 miles northwest of Hanoi.

The source said French patrols, alerted to Lai Chau, had made no contact with the Chinese and air observers had not been able to spot them.

French Army headquarters said yesterday the Chinese battalion, probably Communist irregulars, crossed the frontier April 2 and headed toward the provincial capital after seizing the frontier villages of Ban Nam Koung and Phong Tho.

The Chinese, said the Army source today, had had time to close on Lai Chau if they had pursued their southern movement after occupying Phong Tho, about 50 miles to the northwest.

American troops trying to reach the dm. Both Red attacks were thrown back.

American artillery fire drove a Communist concentration from a steep cliff on a 2500-foot hill. The Reds there had poured their 60 mm mortar fire and machine gun and rifle fire into attacking American infantrymen.

To the east, near the Inje Road, American doughboys carved out slight advances in the face of heavy mortar fire.

On the east coast South Korean forces skirmished with small North Korean units. They reported substantial gains.

Allied fighter bombers took a hand in the fight for the Hwachon Reservoir. They hammered an estimated Communist battalion dug in south of Yangju, at the reservoir's eastern end.

Southwest of there, American troops were forced back by 600 attacking Reds.

From the western front north of Seoul, AP Correspondent John Randolph reported Reds stayed out of contact with United Nations forces for the third straight day. He said the Chinese appeared to have pulled back all along that front.

CONGRESS

The three-day conference, at which University of Chicago economists were hosts to government officials, lawyers, business men, labor spokesmen, and colleagues from other universities.

The sessions failed to produce what their sponsors had sought, agreement on federal anti-inflation policy during and in the wake of the nation's mobilization program.

Most of the dozens of discussions involved several suggestions for preventing the value of the dollar from shrinking, but these points apparently had strongest support:

- Higher taxes.
- Tightening by the government of money and credit supply.
- Use of direct controls like those on prices and wages where they are necessary, with provisions for easy lifting of such controls later.

Party Given In White Deer Honoring The Reverend And Mrs. M. V. Mears

WHITE DEER — (Special) — Honoring the Rev. and Mrs. M. V. Mears of the first anniversary of their coming to White Deer, the Winsome and Everly Ready Sunday school classes of the First Baptist church here entertained at a party recently in the Car-gray recreational hall.

Rev. Mears began his pastorate here on March 1, 1950, but because he was in Arizona conducting a revival on that date this year, observance of the anniversary was delayed. The honorees were presented several pieces of silverware.

Supper was served to about 40 members of the two classes and their guests.

Miss Helen Walker, Mrs. R. Y. Corder, and Mrs. Bert Isbell gave reviews of several magazine articles at a meeting of the Venado Blanco Club in the home of Mrs. Gayle Spann. Mrs. Fred Mullings was co-hostess.

Among the topics discussed were the wise use of time, racial understanding, and poise.

Others present were Mmes. Bob Farley, Alvin Smith, John

Banks, Kenneth Gibson, Luke Guerin, Hope Rusk; Misses Gertrude Golladay, Virginia Alexander, Claudia Everly, and Mildred Cole.

At the next meeting, April 17, in the home of Mrs. Alvin Smith, Mrs. Guerin and Miss Alexander will give a program on trends in modern art.

Misses Allen, Clubb Host Meeting Of Wesleyan Service Guild

Miss Minnie Allen and Miss Inez Clubb were hostesses to the Wesleyan Service Guild of the First Methodist Church in the church parlor Monday night.

Miss Clubb was in charge of business when plans for the district meeting of guilds on Sunday afternoon were completed. This meeting will be at 2:30 p. m. in the chapel with the social hour in the parlor.

A nominating committee was appointed as follows: Miss Ila Pool, Miss Faye Ann Porter and Mrs. Ben Ogden.

A devotional on "Cooperation" was given by Mrs. Mildred Hill, and "Methodism in the United States, Canada, Latin America and Mexico" was discussed by Mrs. Diamia Wood. The hostesses served refreshments to the 10 members present.

'Springtime Music' Is Theme Used For Canadian Program

CANADIAN — (Special) — "Music of Springtime" was the general theme used for the program given at the regular meeting of the Canadian Woman's Club Tuesday evening, in the H. S. Wilbur residence.

A sketch of Rubenstein was given by Mrs. J. L. Cleveland; Edward McDowell and his compositions were discussed by Mrs. Erbin Crowell; and Mrs. Furman Williams talked on Mendelssohn.

Featured on the program were piano selections by the three composers, by Mrs. William Flewelling. She played "Melody in F" by Rubenstein, "Spring Song" by Mendelssohn, and "To a Wild Rose" by McDowell.

Mrs. John Waters, president, presided at the short business session. Plans were made at this time for members to attend the district convention of Federated Women's Clubs in Amarillo April 9, 10, and 11. Headquarters of the convention will be in the Folk Street Methodist Church in Amarillo.

Refreshments were served from a well appointed table lighted by green-tapers in silver candelabra. Mrs. Flewelling, who was being honored on her birthday, served the cake, and Mrs. A. H. Breazeale presided at the coffee service.

Twenty-six members and Mrs. Ida Ray, who makes her home with her daughter, Mrs. Wilbur, were present for the evening.

Hostesses were Mrs. Wilbur, Mrs. Preston Hutton, Mrs. A. H. Breazeale, Miss Reita Austin, and Miss Daisy Childers.

Inflation Is Major Problem Of Planners

The major problem now faced by the top defense planners is inflation. That, it is reported, is the view of Defense Secretary George Marshall.

According to the current report, he addressed a grave-faced meeting of the Defense Mobilization board with these words:

"Inflation is getting out of hand. That is especially true as far as the military is concerned. Since Korea, the prices of essential supplies which the services have to buy have continued to rise without a halt. We have lost more planes, tanks and guns by high prices than have been destroyed by the enemy. Unless drastic action is taken promptly to curb inflation, this nation will soon be so weakened that it could not win in an all-out war with Russia."

General Marshall, the report continues, was followed by Eric Johnston, the economic stabilizer, who endorsed these views and added, "I just cannot stabilize prices and wages with every group demanding concessions. It's impossible."

High prices have really come with a vengeance to the defense chiefs — as they have to the public at large. As an example, the Army, Navy and Air Force have asked for budget appropriations which would total substantially more than $100,000,000,000. Under present conditions, of course, there is no chance of such figures being approved. The services will have to get along as best they can with a great deal less. But it is an indication of the way things are going. The military dollar, like every other dollar, is a sad and shrunken thing by comparison with past times. And, to make matters still worse, the machines of war are becoming complicated than were those of World War II. The planes and tanks and other weapons of the present make those of the last conflict look almost cheap.

Johnston has said that every major group in the country — business, labor, and the farmer — is exerting pressure on his office for preferred treatment. It seems to be human nature to ask that the other fellow be made to carry the major burdens of inflation and related problems. But, going beyond this, the great majority of economists, including some of the "liberal" schools, are convinced that the government is the major offender. The "cheap money" policy which the Treasury clings to so adamantly, coupled with the constant expansion of sizeable credits as a result of government securities to the Federal Reserve Bank, are believed to be the primary causes of the present inflationary spiral. What has happened is that the amount of money which has been used to buy goods has heavily outstripped the volume of goods for sale. Under these conditions, prices always rise. So long as this situation obtains, the economists also think, the price and other controls can not effectively matter and brake the progress of inflation.

Washington... by Peter Edson

WASHINGTON — (NEA) — "We are now engaged in an utterly fantastic performance," said Republican Senator B. H. Buck of Iowa, and he was never more right in his life.

He was speaking on the Senate floor and he was talking about public relations. The Senate's resolution on sending troops to Europe, he called it "a pious declaration of words."

He said it ought to "speak the mind of the American people... then bury it six feet under the ground," because "there is no command and there can be no command in a simple Senate resolution."

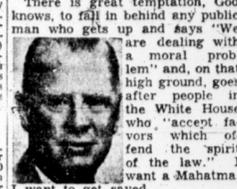

"In spite of this," the Iowa senator said, "I shall vote for this utterly useless resolution."

Immediately after this a majority of the Senate did likewise. They passed Wisconsin Sen. Joe

Fair Enough-Pegler

By WESTBROOK PEGLER

There is great temptation, God knows, to fall in behind any public man who gets up and says "We are dealing with a moral problem" and, on that high ground, goes after people in the White House who "accept factors which offend the spirit of the law."

I want to get you. You horn the pitch and I will holler "Hallelujah" like to bring down rain. But I am not going to settle for a hen freeze delivered to an ignorant cat in a soldier suit who honestly doesn't know it is wrong to take a pig. I won't settle for a mink mantle given to a babe in the White House to pay off her husband. If Senator Fulbright wants to make time with me, he can't stick up a homemade statute of limitations against the corruption wrought by the God-man whose example was the worst moral disaster in our history. He has not to "repudiate with sincere disgust the larcenous part that F. D. Roosevelt played in the dead-beat loans of his son, Elliott, and the use of the White House as a business headquarters for Jimmy LaRoca Grande, Hopkins, Howe, and the whole greedy pack of racketeers in public office and popular trust."

Damn it, Fulbright, you can't touch the good in the soul of the American people by ignoring disgraceful facts which they know as well as you do. They hang on your words for assurance that you have got the moral courage to admit that your party and its administration are over and that your henchmen wallowed in the muck and loved it. You are faking, Mr. Fulbright. Go ahead and enjoy the editorials praising you in papers which share the guilt of concealment and try to justify their cowardice by intoning that the man is dead so peace to his soul. Warren G. Harding is dead. Did history forbid to record the vile events of their administrations because it was wrong to speak ill of the dead? Your party was desecrating Harding's grave by ritual as lately as two weeks ago in an effort to mitigate Roosevelt's immorality in office. Except for the hypocrisy of that it was all right with me, though Harding seemed to be the victim not the instigator, of the scandals of his poor, brief presidency.

Are you trying to tell us, Senator Fulbright, that you blame that girl, an ordinary Washington-type political female, for taking that idiotic coat, as grotesque as a royal crown on a midget, and wearing it, but have no censure for Eleanor Roosevelt, who took an $8,000 mink coat in much more flagrant circumstances and an aquamarine as big as a dornick worth $12,000? There are your trays of gold, your medals, your going to try to drive that woman out of public life?

If you really are wrought up in your soul, and brother, I have been wrought up for 15 years, study the shocking behavior of trust that your party tried in the investigation of Elliott's dead-beat loan of $200,000 from John Hartford of the A. and P. Grocery chain. That was real corruption. Roosevelt was dead and the House demanded the strictest kind of economy in government has reached a climax, in and out of Congress, Senator Byrd's documented contention that the proposed budget can be cut by some $9,000,000,000 is being taken as a challenge. That budget will be subjected to an extremely thorough going over before it is brought up for a vote.

McCarthy's amendment saying it was the sense of the Senate that the resources of West Germany, France and other countries be utilized on a voluntary basis for the defense of Western Europe.

Then after another couple of hours of wrangling the Senate passed the full resolution, approving the sending of four more U. S. divisions of ground troops to Europe.

All this happened on the second anniversary of the signing of the North Atlantic Treaty. While the Senate's action may be considered an approval of the Truman-Acheson-Marshall NAT program, it was in no sense a victory for the President, nor for the slim Democratic majority in the Senate.

PLEASURES NOBODY They had to give ground on nearly every point — on the McCarthy amendment, on Arkansas Sen. John McClellan's amendment that no more than four additional divisions of ground troops should be sent to Europe without congressional approval. The result is a hopeless hedge-podge. It is congressional log-rolling at its worst giving everybody everything he wants, trying to satisfy everybody and yet pleasing nobody.

The only question is what the Senate resolution will do to anti-Communism. Russian propaganda will probably pick-up the McCarthy amendment and make the most of it. The Communies may be expected to claim that the imperialist warmongers in the United States have now shown their true hand by embracing Spanish Fascism and German Nazism. How much Gen. Dwight D. Eisenhower will be embarrassed by having a limit put on U. S. troop commitments to Europe re-

Ways and Means committee, leading practical men, all knew him for a chisel who would swind the butt of a nickel cigar. So the Democratic majority pulled a fast one to cover up. They decided to call no witness and just read the record of the Treasury's investigation, which was a whitewash done slapdash. On this they based a whitewash of their own as rotten as the Tydings' whitewash notoriety.

And then, like a passel of push-cart thieves passing the bunch of bananas from hand to hand, in the run, your Ways and Means committee, tried to suppress the testimony. To get away with this without seeming to do it, they issued only a dozen photostats sets of this Treasury record, had them dumped on a table and slipped the word to friends of the New Deal to come and get them quick — and keep the dirt out of unfriendly hands. Everyone would be expecting the usual printed document and this trick was intended to suppress the facts which showed up F. D. Roosevelt as a swindler using the President's office and White House phones and stationery. Friends of the management grabbed up most of the photostats, but there had to be three for the press associations which the committee didn't dare withhold. They knew that if they tried to keep the record away from them the fat would be in the fire. On the other hand, they knew that such a long and complex record would never get through treatment on the busy wires.

They were right and they were having a good time as I chased all over the hill for a copy of the official text on an inquiry which I had touched off some months before. Nobody knew who got the dozen copies that were dumped on the table in the Capitol. Nobody knew where I got one. Not even Charlie Halleck, the Republican on the committee, could get one or tell me where to try. But, well, I got one, and that, Mr. Fulbright, is a rare document, a treasure and a revelation of petty unbelievable until your holy guru came to power and loused up our ideals and turned his wife and scamps loose on the country to degrade our homespun, hand-spanked ideals.

Look to your guru, Mr. Fulbright, for the present solution to the freezing machine and the $9,000 hogger. Confession and contrition are good for the soul. But you can't drop an iron curtain on the Roosevelt era.

They were right and they were having a good time as I chased all over the hill for a copy of the official text on an inquiry which I had touched off some months before. Aviation Magazine Gives Plane Costs

WASHINGTON — (AP) — The annual cost of a 50,000-plane year program would be $40,000,000,000, the magazine Aviation Age says. Referring to President Truman's plan to boost plane production capacity to the point where that many planes could be produced a year, the aviation trade publication said today that "this staggering sum compares with the entire cost of World War II military aircraft production (July 1, 1940, to August 31, 1945) of $4,831,000,000." No plans have been announced for actual production of 50,000 planes a year.

Texas Crude Output Allowable Hits High

AUSTIN — (AP) — An all-time high in Texas crude oil production of 2,912,771 barrels per day was reported by the Texas Railroad Commission Saturday. As the April proration order went into effect last week, the average calendar day allowable output rose to 2,912,771 barrels from last week. It surpassed the previous record of 2,886,458 barrels daily, set last Sept. 16.

It is to be seen, certainly, in the Senate debate, General Eisenhower's position was more mis-represented and maligned than it has ever been. How much Defense Secretary Marshall and the Pentagon feel that the Senate will cramp their question of General Eisenhower is questionable. Actually, the NATO program is moving ahead rapidly.

ALL SUPPORT All the heat in the Senate debate was over the four U. S. divisions of ground troops. Missouri Sen. James P. Kenn's proposed amendment, requiring the Joint Chiefs of Staff to certify that ample air support for such ground troops was available, was defeated.

No mention has been made by the Pentagon on how much air support the U. S. ground troops will need. Considering Russia's reported air superiority, however, NATO defense forces will require strong tactical air cover.

The ratio in World War II was one Air Force group to every ground division. So four more U. S. ground divisions would need at least four more tactical air groups in Europe. The normal tactical air group contains 73 fighter bombers.

The U. S. now has two fighter groups in Germany and one in England. From one to three strategic bombing groups have also been based in Europe, and a group of troop-carrying transports. They have been operating from 14 bases in England and seven in Germany. Five in France are currently in process of activation. Bases in Austria, Tripoli and other Mediterranean countries are also available. No estimates have been given as to the number of Air Force personnel involved in this maintenance. THE VOICE OF FREEDOM!

Wholly aside from the military realities of our world, there is an ideological struggle for the minds of men which must be won either for freedom or for slavery. This is not to claim that bullets and bombs can be stopped by mere ideas, but it does recognize that millions of confused and desperate people can be lost to the "freedom side" if they cannot understand its spiritual, intellectual or material value to them.

It seems to be the consensus of opinion, as revealed in countless speeches and articles, that the Voice of America is a great disappointment to practically everybody, both at home and abroad, and that it is not accomplishing its intended goal in the battle. Mr. John Nueven, our former ECA chief in both Greece and Belgium, argues that it actually antagonizes far more people than it persuades. He disagrees completely with those Americans who insist that the Voice merely needs to be expanded. On the contrary, since its weakness is in not knowing what to say, or how to say it, expansion would merely confound and enlarge its mistakes.

This leads to the unhappy conclusion that too many Americans trying to sell the idea of freedom to the world, do not know what they themselves, a mere broadcast of how many American workers own automobiles, or bathrooms, or freezers full of food, is no inspiration to starving and tyrannized peoples, unless they can be shown how personal freedom made such blessings possible, and how a duplicate freedom in their own countries could produce a similar miracle for them. In the January Reader's Digest, Lewis Galanter, who has devoted 25 years to Franco-American culture, writes a vivid and enlightening article called "The Essence of The American Story," which emphasizes some basic "whys" and "whys" of freedom. After recounting the story of individualism and local control, he writes: "There is no stronger safeguard against dictatorship than this. In the first place, where self-government is local, the central power at Washington (or Paris or Moscow or New Delhi) cannot get a stranglehold on the country; no conspiracy of industrialists, financiers, and the whole nation. In the second place, the habit of exercising local responsibility preserves the citizen from slipping into a selfish dependence upon government; it nourishes his spirit of self-reliance and makes him a civic fireman — a fellow who is quick to smell the smoke of governmental encroachment and run to fight it."

"The fact is, the strongest enemy of democracy is not Communism as such, or Fascism as such; it is centralized power, whatever may be the political philosophy preached by that power... This is to my mind the long and the short of the American story. Because we are really self-governing, John G. Mill was able to put this tribute to the American people in 1859: 'Let them be left without a government, every body of Americans is able to improvise one, and to carry on this or any other public business with a sufficient amount of intelligence, order and decision. This is what every free people ought to be; and a people capable of this is certain to be free.' While I share Galanter's diagnosis of American freedom, I only wish I could share his apparent belief that Americans still understand it — and support it. Unfortunately — the signs are much too evident that they no longer merit Mill's tribute, that they have voluntarily voted away much of their self-reliance and local self-government, and have come to accept and actually to welcome Federal subsidies, management and control over their lives. If this be true, and it seems undeniable to me, then how can Americans possibly hope to sell the idea of personal freedom and responsibility to the world, when they no longer believe in it themselves? If they really prefer centralized political power, and believe it to be a surer source of human blessings, then they have nothing original or thrilling to offer in the ideological battle for the minds of men. If the Voice of America cannot be truly the Voice of Freedom, then it had better close its lips in silence, for that is the only native and dynamic commodity this nation has ever had to sell! The Communists, the Fascists, and the Socialists are better salesmen of government power and benevolence: If we Americans have no clear and better alternative to offer, then we ought to shut up — and concede the ideological battle to them.

Military supplies are rolling to Europe in ever-increasing quantities. An April 1 report reveals that the millionth ton of NATO supplies has now been shipped. From 39 to 40 ocean transports are now plying the Atlantic on this traffic.

Included in the shipments are an announced 350 tanks and 40 armored vehicles, 11,000 general purpose vehicles, 2000 artillery weapons, 750 aircraft, 100 vehicles, "large quantities" of small arms, "millions of rounds" of ammunition. Also spare parts, electronic equipment, special gear and military stores. It's a big business.

EXCERPTS — Since it is impossible to improve upon the explanatory leaflet prepared by the Foreign Chamber of Commerce and Civic Association, here are a few broad-and-butter excerpts showing how the plan operates, as well as its underlying purpose:

"An illustrated magazine is even better than the famous Sears, Roebuck & Co. catalog. It shows how we live and how we think, and it depicts the freedom and prosperity of democracy, as opposed to the tyranny and poverty of Communism. It costs only 12 cents a pound to send magazines anywhere in the world, save behind the Iron Curtain; and you may be sure that many magazines sent to such places as Berlin, Vienna and border towns will reach through the Iron Curtain to help undermine the Kremlin."

State Department records bear out this last statement. RESPECT — "The official propaganda," the leaflet continues, "is always discounted. Therefore, it is vitally important for us all to cooperate in supplying key individuals and institutions with our better magazines. Many foreigners still look upon Americans as either millionaires and gangsters (especially since the Kefauver-Fulbright hearings — Ed. Note), as a bunch of scoundrels from the intellectual and spiritual point of view; and now, at this moment when we need world opinion solidly aligned on our side in the struggle with Russia and its threat of world tyranny, it is vitally important that we make the world like, respect and understand us."

INDIVIDUAL — The leaflet warns against sending "cheap pulp magazines, or those which present a gaudy, sensational and distorted picture of American life and character, as many of our picture magazines and movies frequently do." The unique objective of this

"Ya-ah-ah, and Phooey on You, Too!"

National Whirligig

By RAY TUCKER WASHINGTON — A simple, inexpensive, one-man Marshall Plan for making friends for the United States among the peoples living inside and outside the Iron Curtain comes, this is underlining the Kremlin, has been sponsored by a group of enterprising Californians with seemingly startling potentialities.

Although this column never indulges in propaganda of any kind, the program appears to be so constructive, and so helpful toward international understanding in the "cold war" that it deserves the fullest publicity. If it can become a nationwide movement, properly organized, it could do far more good for our side than all the diplomatic and propaganda efforts of Secretary Dean Acheson's costly establishment at Washington and overseas.

MAGAZINES — Briefly, it proposes that the American people send to key individuals and institutions overseas their good magazines, after they have finished with them. They should be shipped to legislators, mayors, politicians, business men and industrialists, newspaper and magazine editors, public and college libraries, teachers and preachers, leaders of labor, agriculture and finance.

The idea originated with Professor Albert Croissant of Occidental College, Los Angeles. It has been taken up by the Pasadena Chamber of Commerce and Civic Assn.

The movement itself is known as "Magazines for Friendship." This organization can furnish full information on the plan, including strategic addresses to which the publications should be sent.

DRAMATIC — Eventually, it is planned to enlist Rotary-Kiwanis clubs, women's clubs, churches, schools, 4H organizations etc. American corporations with branch offices and distributing systems abroad will also be included in the program to explain how and why more than 60,000,000 American workers and 15,000,000 farmers live more abundantly than the so-called upper classes do abroad.

"It can do more good than all the cookie-pushers and bureaucrats in the world," writes Professor Croissant. The dramatic story of how letters from American-born Italians and immigrants kept that country from going Communist several years ago, suggests that the plan is not exaggerated, if the American people will get behind the project in a big way.

Zebra, Gnu and Elephant Cuts May Be On American Tables

By HENRY McLEMORE

When zebra is served should it be sliced with the stripes or against the stripes?

What is the most economical cut of elephant? Is it true that a pinch of rosemary and a pinch of thyme bring out the best in marinated ant-eater? What is the best cut of gnu?

These and a dozen other similar questions, seem likely to be asked by our rowdies in the near future. With the astronomical cost of meats Americans are accustomed to eating — beef, lamb, and pork — animals hitherto not considered for their meat are coming to the fore.

They already have come to the fore in England. The cost of a standard meal, with a portion of ant-eater, the shortest of same, plus rationing, has the Englishman eating almost any animal that does not speak a language and lives in the wide open spaces.

If an Englishman wants pork, beef, or lamb, he must be satisfied with a portion about the size of an airmail stamp, and of standard meats the shortest of same, plus rationing, has the Englishman eating almost any animal that does not speak a language and lives in the wide open spaces.

Before the English people realized it the fun had become deadly serious and rabbit, beaver, reindeer, whale and heaven only knows what, was standard fare. The people were expected to take it and like it. If they didn't — well, there wasn't anything else.

With this sort of procedure comes a decline in national pride, national drive, and a general willingness to admit we aren't what we once were. It may be funny for the telephone company to serve whale, but it won't be funny when Rhode Island, New York, Texas, California, and the other states find that whale is their staple diet, too.

But if we must have whale let it not be said that I was not patriotic enough to furnish my fellow Americans with the best way of cooking it. The wise housewife will buy a whole whale whenever possible, or when the purse will permit. The best whales are those with blue eyes and which weigh between two and three tons. If you bring the whale from the grocery shop you get it is best to have help. Even though you have to pay as much as $4 for helpers, it will be money saved, as the history of whale shopping has shown that women attempting to lug a whole whale by themselves always pay heavily in doctor's bills, wheel chairs, etc.

Remove the brisket. This is the part of the whale commonly known as the spout. It is the best part of the whale and is best served as Whale à la Moby Dick, the recipe for which can be obtained from the Museum of Natural History, culinary section. Cut the head into small, 50-pound sections. These can be used to throw at robbers or smash-and-grab men. Every lady walking under dark should always carry a whole whale chunk in her purse.

As for the rest of the whale: Place in a pre-heated oven (250 degrees) and cook until the oven wears out. Remove whale and place in a new oven. When done (about 1100 days) dip in hot sauce, oil, fry in bread crumbs, and serve to anyone who likes whale. This dish is known as "Thar She Blows."

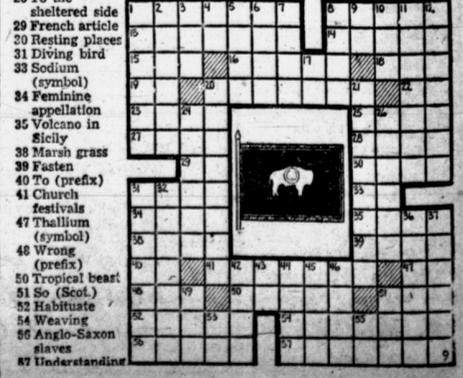

For other whale recipes, address me care of Rita Wyworth, and enclose a new or used Aly Oop. You'll get your recipe some time before you die, unless you hang around another 100 years.

Castillo Turns In Fielding Gem At Short Stop Position

By SPECK REYNOLDS

News Sports Editor

The Oilers overflowed at Gold Sox Park in Amarillo Sunday afternoon, and Manager Buck Fausett's baseballers couldn't check the Pampa crew as it banged out 15 hits to bury Amarillo under a 10-3 score.

Manager Grover Seitz's Oilers look in mid-season form in winning their second exhibition victory out of three starts. The Pampans didn't give the partisan crowd of 1,454 paying customers much to cheer about the whole afternoon.

The Oilers committed only one miscue during the nine inning stretch. Second baseman Deck Woldt juggled Glynn Braden's grounder in the second inning for the one bobbie.

One of the fielding gems of the day was turned in by short stop Gil Castillo. The Cuban made a back-handed stab of Paul Halter's hot smash in the seventh inning and turned it into a twin killing. Castillo flipped to Woldt to erase Crawford Howard at second and Deck threw to Virgil Richardson to nip Halter by a step at first.

Woldt, batting in the number three hole, worked Amarillo pitching for four walks and one hit in six trips to the plate.

The Gold Sox didn't show much in the way of base knocks against Oiler hurlers. Centerfielder Howard was the only bright spot in the Gold Sox hitting department. He got three singles out of four times at bats.

Veteran Carroll "Red" Dial started for Pampa and received credit for the win. He was touched for three hits and one run in three frames. Dial was relieved by right-hander George Payte. He toiled three innings and gave up two runs on five hits. Then George Washington Matthews worked the last three innings. The Pampa southpaw struck out three Gold Sox and gave up two bingles and no runs.

Francis Rice lined a double down the left field line to open the game. Castillo worked a walk out to starter Joel Calloway. Woldt also got a free ticket to first to load the bases. Richardson plated Rice with a single to right center. Hank Chatterlier skied out to short, and Jack Wadsworth hit into a double play to end the inning.

Pampa picked up another run in the second without the aid of a base knock. Luis Suarez walked. Bill Whitehorn and Dial failed, for two Pampa outs. Rice got life on Braden's error, and Suarez came in to score. He had a walk out to second on a wild pitch and to third on a fielder's choice.

The Oilers scored three more runs in the top of the third. Richardson got to first base on Braden's second error of the ball game. Chatterlier worked a walk out to short, and Dial hit the bag and bounded away from the Sox third sacker, for a single. Wadsworth sent Richardson in to score with a single to left field. Suarez fled out to Coby Kitchens in right field for Pampa's second out. Whitehorn got on base when Dellis fumbled his grounder, and Dial plated Chatterlier with a one baser to left. Wadsworth scored the third run, when Amarillo failed to work a double play on Rice's grounder to short stop.

Amarillo got to Dial for one run in the third frame. Calloway started things off with a fly ball to right field. Wadsworth misjudged the ball and it rolled to the boards for a triple. Calloway scored on Dellis' grounder to Castillo. The Pampa short stop threw to Woldt for one, but Dellis beat the throw to first on the twin-killing attempt.

The Oilers pushed across two more tallies in the fourth inning. Martin McMurray, who relieved Calloway in the fourth, walked Woldt. Richardson fled out to left field, but Chatterlier rifled a double down the left field line to score Woldt. Wadsworth went out third to first. Suarez dumped a single into right field to plate Pampa's seventh run. The Oilers got single runs in the fifth, sixth and ninth innings.

Amarillo's Doc Fletcher was the only hurler for the host team who had much success with Pampa batters. He was touched for one run and four hits in three innings.

The Oilers play their first exhibition home game of the year Wednesday night at 8 o'clock. Manager Heraldo Martin's Albuquerque Dukes will furnish the opposition. The Dukes have been given the inside track to take the West Texas-New Mexico League championship this season.

Bronko Nagurski Placed At Tackle On All-Time Eleven

NEW BRUNSWICK, N.J. — (P) — Minnesota's Bronko Nagurski was endowed with such size, speed and natural talent that he probably could have become an All-Time All America football star at any position he chose.

The nation's sports writers and broadcasters had a tough time finding the right place for him in the Associated Press' poll but finally placed him at tackle.

Washington and Jefferson's great tackle during and just after the first world war.

In the poll to determine the All-Time All America for consideration to the National Football Hall of Fame, Nagurski drew the third highest vote total, beaten out only by those two immortal halfbacks, Red Grange and Jim Thorpe.

He received 305 points for the tackle position and 302 for fullback for a total of 607 points, on the basis of ten for a first team vote, five for second and two for third.

Henry, a chubby bulwark on a small college team, was so impressive as a kickblocker and play-spiller that he gained 298 points to beat out Ed Widaeth, the Minnesota All America of 1938, and Cal Hubbard of little Centenary and Geneva, who later won additional fame as a pro and a major league baseball umpire.

Alex Wojciechowicz, who cracked the jaws of foes and radio

announcers alike when he was the most solid of Fordham's seven blocks of granite in 1935-37, and Frank (Bruiser) Kinard of Mississippi, the terror of Dixie during the same years, won third team berths.

Members of the first three teams chosen in the nationwide poll, representing more than 106 ballots and the opinions of thousands, qualify for consideration for the hall of fame, located at Rutgers University here.

The hall of fame honors court will make the final selection of who will have permanent niches in this projected $5,000,000 shrine, located where intercollegiate football was born in 1869. It's probable that most if not all the players on these teams will be honored.

Nagurski came to Minnesota in the fall of 1926 from International Falls, Minn., and reported to the freshmen squad a trim six-foot-two and 210 pounds.

When he made All America tackle in 1929 he weighed 230, was hard as nails and agile as a jungle cat. He was almost as dangerous.

The 18-year-old mass of gristle from Northern Minnesota became of age in the Minnesota-Notre Dame game when, with the Gophers apparently beaten, he recovered a fumble that gained Minnesota a touchdown and a 7-7 tie. From then on there was no keeping Nagurski off the veteran Gopher varsity.

In 1928 Spears experimented with Nagurski at fullback and from then on alternated him between the backfield and line wherever the "Nag" was needed most.

Washington and Jefferson's Henry had a chubby build that earned him the nickname "Fats" but he was powerfully built around the shoulders and had the trim trim legs of a boxer. This made him exceptionally fast and adept at knifing through enemy lines to break up plays.

Although Washington and Jefferson was a small team, it grew in stature with outstanding performance against such powers as Notre Dame, Penn State and Pittsburgh. It was in these games that Henry caught the eye of Walter Camp and other experts of the period.

Washington and Jefferson's Henry had a chubby build that earned him the nickname "Fats" but he was powerfully built around the shoulders and had the trim trim legs of a boxer. This made him exceptionally fast and adept at knifing through enemy lines to break up plays.

Although Washington and Jefferson was a small team, it grew in stature with outstanding performance against such powers as Notre Dame, Penn State and Pittsburgh. It was in these games that Henry caught the eye of Walter Camp and other experts of the period.

announcers alike when he was the most solid of Fordham's seven blocks of granite in 1935-37, and Frank (Bruiser) Kinard of Mississippi, the terror of Dixie during the same years, won third team berths.

Members of the first three teams chosen in the nationwide poll, representing more than 106 ballots and the opinions of thousands, qualify for consideration for the hall of fame, located at Rutgers University here.

The hall of fame honors court will make the final selection of who will have permanent niches in this projected $5,000,000 shrine, located where intercollegiate football was born in 1869. It's probable that most if not all the players on these teams will be honored.

Nagurski came to Minnesota in the fall of 1926 from International Falls, Minn., and reported to the freshmen squad a trim six-foot-two and 210 pounds.

When he made All America tackle in 1929 he weighed 230, was hard as nails and agile as a jungle cat. He was almost as dangerous.

The 18-year-old mass of gristle from Northern Minnesota became of age in the Minnesota-Notre Dame game when, with the Gophers apparently beaten, he recovered a fumble that gained Minnesota a touchdown and a 7-7 tie. From then on there was no keeping Nagurski off the veteran Gopher varsity.

In 1928 Spears experimented with Nagurski at fullback and from then on alternated him between the backfield and line wherever the "Nag" was needed most.

Elkins, Hampton Buy Out Henry Jordan

Top O' Texas Realty & Insurance Represents Only Old Line Companies

Meeting the many and varied insurance and realty needs for the people of this area are H. T. Hampton and Garvin Elkins of the Top o' Texas Realty and Insurance Agency, Room 10, Duncan Bldg. As they begin their third year of service this week, they are announcing the purchase of Henry Jordan's Insurance Agency. Friends and customers of Mr. Jordan are urged by Hampton and Elkins to bring their business to them with the assurance that they will continue to receive the same attentive and interested service. Mr. Hampton, senior partner in the agency, heads the real estate department and the insurance business is handled by Mr. Elkins.

Any type of real estate sale will be welcomed by Hampton; they accept listings for both city and farm property and will help you with the sale of royalties and leases. Perhaps your needs are in the direction of rentals rather than selling. In that case they can help you, too, for they stand ready to take more listings.

If you are interested in obtaining either a GI, FHA, or an auto loan stop in at the Top O' Texas Realty and Insurance Agency and let them discuss your particular needs with you. You will find them anxious to assist you.

Interest Heightens In Fishing Contest

All of you fishermen who have been anxiously waiting to go out and get that big one to enter in the Sportsman's Store's current fishing contest will find that the competition is suddenly becoming stiffer.

Just last week, Dave Caldwell announced that Vernon Goldston of Albreed, brought in a catfish to enter in the contest that had a dressed weight of sixty-four pounds. Vernon said that he landed the catfish at Bridgeport (we don't know where he originally started) and used a crowd on a throwline to catch him.

But don't let this discourage you. There's talk that there are plenty more larger catfish that haven't been caught. And besides, there are some mighty fine second and third prizes in the catfish class and also a wide open field on bass and crappie. This is just a good challenge to the real Top o' Texas sportsmen.

Also this last week, Ray Bourland brought in fifty-four Sand Bass that he caught at San Saba. Their average weight was around two pounds. Ray didn't say what he used to catch them, nor did he enter any of them in the contest.

Dave said that he had heard some strictly bottom-of-the-barrel dope on some good spots where they have been catching fish recently. A few of these are Possum Kingdom, Canton, Oklahoma, and Lake Lugert. Catfish are being caught at Lake McClellan.

Dave also heard last week that Kendall Geen caught a four and one-half bass at Lake Marvin. According to Kendall's brother Bill, they had a sporting good time landing him, but finally succeeded.

Dave wanted to pass on to you sportsmen his thanks for your interest in the Contest so far, and to urge you to bring in your catches, large or small. There are plenty of good prizes offered.

Incidentally, to give you an idea of the great interest created by the Sportsman's Store's Fishing Contest, there are already around 250 Top O' Texas Sportsmen that have registered. If you haven't already registered, come on down to the Sportsman's Store at 115 E. Kingsmill, at your convenience, and do so.

Knowledge Of Facts Brings Better Cleaners Relations

Oliver Jonas, of Service Cleaners, says that one of his main problems is that of getting along with the public and the public getting along with the cleaners. To bring better relations and understanding, Jonas would like to submit the following article taken from the Woman's Home Companion, February 1950 issue, by Morton Sontheimer, entitled "How to Get on with your Dry Cleaner."

"Traditionally, cleaning plant workers refer to all garments as 'rags.' It is part of the trade jargon and harmless enough unless they start treating clothes as if they were rags. A spotter with whom I worked said, 'I've seen employees in badly run plants kick garments around the floor and even wipe the machines with them before cleaning.'"

The good cleaner not only has to suffer for the reputation such establishments give the industry but he gets blamed for much that is not his fault. If a manufacturer cheats the customer with shoddy materials of workmanship, it generally shows up in the cleaning. But it is the cleaner who gets the complaint. Knowledge of some of the more common manufacturing faults helps you to recognize the truth when your cleaner tells it. And you may be able to get satisfaction from the store where you purchased a defective article. Many cleaners will help you prepare your claim. Here are some of the more important:

FANCY BUTTONS — made of an inferior plastic often dissolve in the cleaning solvent, marring all the clothes around them. Poor dyes on buttons run. Paper backing disintegrates.

BELTS, even on expensive costumes for women, are often backed with paper or artificial leather that disintegrates in the solvent. Often too the backings are fastened with a glue that may dissolve. Rubberized and poorly dyed interlinings dissolve and stain through. Decorative trim, poorly fastened, comes off.

DENTRIFICES may spatter unremovable spots on your dressings if you brush your teeth before cleaning.

DIRT TENDS to set in neglected materials, particularly if they have been hung in a warm closet.

MOISTURE DAMAGE doesn't always show until after cleaning loosens weakened fibers.

IRONING a stained garment may set the stain permanently. In view of all this, you may wonder just how often the cleaner is to blame for disputes over his work. Some indication is given by the record of the Columbus, Ohio, Better Business Bureau's arbitration plan. In a hundred and ninety-five cases here is how the score broke down:

AT FAULT—Number of times: Cleaners 85; Customers 42; Manufacturers 37; both cleaners and manufacturers 12; no decision 19.

Thus, you see the problem that faces Oliver Jonas of Service Cleaners. The next time you have a complaint, think first of the cause.
