Bond Set In Beating Case

Billy Phillips, 18, charged with aggravated assault in the Monday night beating of Darwin Malone, was free on $1,000 bond today following his arraignment before County Judge Bruce Parker yesterday.

Phillips was released from Gray County jail at noon yesterday after posting the $1,000 bond.

Meanwhile Sheriff Rufe Jordan reported the Malone boy as improving in Worley Hospital where he was taken suffering severe head injuries received in the fight near Four Corners late Monday night.

"This latest bit of gang fighting may bring on a grand jury investigation," Jordan said late this morning, but gave no further details.

Two Plead Guilty To Theft Of Auto

Two men pleaded guilty in Justice Court Tuesday to charges of car theft. Bond was set at $2,000 each.

Bond was set on two other men, also charged with car theft, at $1,000 each. One man is from Victoria and another from Wichita Falls.

The men are being held in the local jail, and will go before the grand jury June 4.

LIVING COST

Board charted an all-day hearing today on whether to allow certain types of deferred wage increases.

The wage board also is in the process of changing its existing limit of 10 percent of wage hikes since January 1950. It has been waiting on yesterday's living cost index before acting. However, the government already has broken its 10 percent rule in several important respects.

The ruckus stirred by Di Salle's price rollback on steel continued on Capitol Hill. Hearings resumed before the House Agriculture Committee. Di Salle was due to release new livestock slaughtering quotas for June accounting period.

be set aside for military and economic help to Asiatic nations including Formosa "to help keep that island out of the hands of the Communists."

The president also urged Congress to increase by $1,000,000,000 the lending authority of the government's export-import bank. This was not a request for appropriations, but an appeal for permission for the bank to draw on the Treasury up to this amount when needed.

The added loan funds, he said, are urgently required to develop export loans abroad, especially those which will increase the flow of strategic raw materials to the United States.

The president cautioned his whole program "is not without danger." He added:

"There can be no absolute assurance of success. There are far greater dangers in any other course.

"We cannot win peace through appeasement. We cannot gain security in isolation. We will not surrender."

Backing up his plea, the president declared "a very real and terrible danger" would face the American people if they are forced to stand alone against Russia.

"We cannot maintain our civilization," he said, "if the rest of the world is split up, subjugated and organized against us by the Kremlin."

The president said his proposed military-economic aid program was tailored to meet three major characteristics of the Soviet threat:

"First, the Soviet threat is world-wide. Second, Communist attack may come in the form of armies marching across frontiers, or it may come in the form of internal subversion, economic warfare, psychological warfare, political infiltration, sabotage. . . . third, the Soviet threat is of indefinite duration."

The president said $1,650,000,000, the President estimated, would be spent for economic aid to Marshall Plan countries, but primarily to support expanded defense efforts abroad.

Some of the money, however, would go to Yugoslavia to help meet what Mr. Truman called its "minimum requirements" in maintaining strength against the threat of Soviet imperialism.

To counter Russian threats to the strategic Middle East, the President proposed the first time setting aside money for aid to Arab countries and Palestine. A total of $125,000,000 was earmarked for this.

The largest slice of funds for that area, however, would be a total of $15,000,000 for continued arms aid to Greece, Turkey and Iran and other Middle-East nations, if it is needed.

The President gave no breakdown on the specific sum for arms shipments to China, Kalashnik's Nationalist forces on Formosa and the Philippines.

Russia's aims in the Far East, he declared, are unmistakably clear — all nations in the area "the immediate danger of being overthrown by Communist conspirators."

"Using the weapons of subversion, false propaganda and civil war, the Kremlin has already reduced China to the status of a satellite," he asserted. To lose the rest of the Far Eastern nations, Mr. Truman said, would be not only a blow to America's security and economy but "a terrible defeat for the ideals of freedom."

The President made it clear, however, that he still regards Western Europe, with its huge industrial plant, as the priority theater for American attention.

Air Officers Are Replaced

WASHINGTON (AP) — The two top Air Force commanders in the Far East are being replaced.

Lt. Gen. George E. Stratemeier, who was stricken with a heart attack in Tokyo last week, will be succeeded by Lt. Gen. O. P. Weyland as commander of the Far East Air Forces.

Major Gen. Frank F. Everest, assistant chief of staff for operations at Air Force headquarters, was named to succeed Lt. Gen. Earle E. Partridge as Fifth Air Force commander in Japan.

Announcing the changes last night, Gen. Hoyt S. Vandenberg, Air Force chief of staff, said he and the whole Air Force "deeply regret the illness which has made it impossible for General Stratemeier to continue in command of the Far East Air Forces."

Stratemeier has held the key Far East command since April, 1949. Weyland formerly was his vice commander for operations. Latest dispatches from Tokyo said Stratemeier was still very ill. The Air Force did not mention any reassignment for him.

could see Almond directed its jumpoff from a helicopter.

Chinese troops were firing on the lead tank before the full armored and infantry column was on its way.

Almond changed to a light plane to watch the tanks battle with a Chinese holding force up the road.

The task force pushed back up the line of the Reds' most powerful offensive thrust, fighting as it rambled along. It reached the banks of the Choyang River in North Korea. Field dispatches did not pin-point it, but presumably the task force thrust up the road from Hanyang to Inje.

Other units in Almond's command gained more than three miles. Often they fought stiff actions with Red rear guards.

Chuncheon is on the western flank of this sector, 45 miles northeast of Seoul. Americans driving into the town reported they captured "more enemy than we could handle." Nevertheless, the tank and infantry force in that sector pushed on across the Chyang River and headed north. South Koreans cleaning up the area south of Chuncheon advanced 6 to 12 miles.

in taxes. An 87 percent ceiling now applies.

The estimated additional revenue is the same under both plans — $2,845,000,000 a year.

The $730,000,000 increase in corporate taxes would be achieved by broadening the base of the tax for affected companies. The tax now applies to that part of a company's profits which exceed 35 percent of its average earnings from the best three of the four years from 1948 through 1949. The committee voted to apply the excess profits tax to everything above 75 percent of the average.

The overall limit on the amount the government could take from a corporation in all kinds of taxes — normal, surplus and excess profits — would be increased from 62 percent to 70 percent.

Surrender Becomes A Touchy Moment

SOMEWHERE IN KOREA — (DELAYED) — (P) — "Look! Look! There's one now. He's waving something white — a handkerchief."

PFC William Linhard, Baltimore, points to some green scrub across the wide draw in the hillside.

Other riflemen swing around in their foxholes and rocky dugouts. Some cup hands over eyes, shielding out the sun. Others raise binoculars.

Lt. Gene C. Kurcob, Chicago, shouts:

"By God, it is one of them. We've got to get him Volunteers!"

There had been a savage fight that morning.

A North Korean battalion at dawn stormed across the jagged crest, crowned by a medieval wall. Even when they ran into triple barbed wire, mine fields and a torrent of American machinegun and mortar fire, the Reds still tried. They stormed within hand grenade distance before their attack dissolved into a bloody, broken wreck.

The dead lay where they had fallen, stiffened in odd postures. The wounded whimpered.

There were Reds unhurt, too, hiding on the brush covered slope or in deep ravines, afraid to move a muscle under the waiting guns.

The men of E Company from the Second Battalion of a famous U. S. regiment — did not know whether the Reds shown there would surrender or try again to kill.

So Kurcob tried his scheme. He sent out the company's boy Korean interpreter, Jackie, with a rifle escort.

Jackie belloyed in brassy Korean, over and over:

"Come on over... surrender! We do not shoot you! We give water and plenty food... surrender! We do not shoot you! We give water and plenty food... doctors dress your wounds. Surrender! Surrender! Don't be fools! Come out with hands up... we do not shoot!"

Then the white handkerchief waved. Another Red pumped his hand.

"You over there get the one with the rag," Kurcob barks. "Now, volunteers for the one at the bottom."

"What about the mines?" Asks Pfc Michael J. Killarney, New York.

"Get Groat to show you, he knows where he laid them."

The squad starts down the bare nose of the hill, works through the barbed wire and tangles single file through the yellow sand of the minefield.

Kurbob picks up a walkie-talkie and bellows:

"Hell, Mike, I'm going with you and give you some cover."

The men hold their M-1s ready at waist level and sweep the rocks and brush below with searching eyes.

"Hold it," Killarney rasps. "There he is... Jackie, tell him to come out with hands up... tell him if he screws up we'll blast him."

The moment is tense. Is it real, or is it a trap? The next few seconds will tell.

The Red, in brown wool uniform with baggy pants, walks slowly up the hill toward us, hands clasped atop his head.

On the hill, every trigger is cradled by a finger. One wrong gesture one nervous motion and the Red Korean will die.

He comes on in. The tension eases.

Suddenly a shout. "There's another. Over there."

Then another... six... eight, nine... six... That first Red was not a deserter. The little valley is filled with surrendering North Koreans, some unhurt, some hobbling, and some only moaning louder among the still forms of the dead.

The little patrol has bagged one of the biggest prisoner hauls of the war.

But still, the valley is no easy place. The patrol is far out, swamped with prisoners and near the enemy's positions. The ground is littered with rifles, tommy guns and hand grenades. There are more wounded Reds up every ravine and draw.

It would take only one shot to touch off a massacre.

The patrol calls for more manpower — quick — goes the word. Some GIs start the Reds up the hill, helping or carrying their own wounded. The GIs call for American medics and litter for the bad cases.

Others fan out to cover side ravines.

"We ought to kill all them god damn gooks," one GI says. But the GIs handle the gook litters as carefully as their own and curse the Red Korean bearers when they stumble or bump. Many of the Reds are youths not out of their teens.

The order comes down to destroy all enemy food and bring back his weapons.

The GIs and Reds stagger uphill with their burdens. It is a long, gasping grind.

Senate Okays Driver Bill

A bill introduced in the Texas Legislature by Rep. Grainger McIlhenny, aimed at making juvenile drivers responsible for their acts, was one step nearer reality today after it won senate approval and returned to the house with minor changes.

If the house approved the changes and the governor signs it, juveniles will no longer be turned loose with only a warning of "not to do it again," but will face prosecution for speeding, reckless driving, drunken driving and other traffic violations.

The bill, suggested to McIlhenny by City Manager Dick Pepin and members of the Pampa News editorial staff, was passed earlier this month by the house.

Fines for violation, upon conviction, can range up to $50.

Cotton From Burmas Going To Reds

RANGOON, Burma — (P) — Financial sources said today Burma sent 30,000 bales of cotton overland to Communist China last year and that since Jan. 1 she has trucked another 15,000 bales along the Burma Road to the Chinese Reds.

These same sources said Burma also has shipped 15,000 bales by sea to Hong Kong since the first of the year.

The informants said that in the first five months of this year Burmese production totaled approximately 85,000 bales of which 5,000 remain unsold.

They said a bale at present weighs between 360 and 380 pounds. (by U. S. measurement standards a bale weighs 500 pounds.)

The informants said Chinese traders are using gold from the black market in the trading port of Amoy to buy cotton "by the truckload" which they are routing along the Burma Road to Chungking.

In 1939-40 Burma produced a total of 100,850 bales of cotton, of which 19,700 were exported to China.

Sleeping Dogs Protect Belongings Too Late

TOLEDO, Ohio — (P) — Mrs. Marcia Miller left her front door open while she chatted with a neighbor yesterday. She knew her two dogs, sleeping by a radio in the living room, would protect her belongings.

When she returned the dogs were sound asleep, the back door had been opened and the radio was gone.

When two policemen arrived to investigate, the dogs awakened and tried to keep them from entering the house.

Marauding Gang Killings Disrupt Life In Indonesia

AP Newsfeatures — Gangs of marauders — many of them one-time guerrilla fighters who could not be included in the regular and sharply reduced armed forces of Indonesia — are being blamed for Indonesia's current wave of crime and terror.

Marauding gangs roam the countryside, attack estates, and terrorize their own people. Holland recently protested against Indonesian government against what was termed the continuous murders and attacks on Dutch lives. U. S. Ambassador H. Merle Cochran notified Indonesia's Foreign Minister of the assassination of an oil company employee Michael Jones, who was knifed to death at Jakarta's dockside.

Jones was the fourth American to be killed in Indonesia since December 1949, when independence came to this rich but uneasy archipelago.

The Indonesian people themselves have suffered heavily too. Hundreds of village heads (lurahs), estate workers and "Dutch collaborators" were killed for political or material reasons.

Indonesian officials in Jakarta are seriously worried about their young republic and have little hope that things will change for the better at short notice. Then what's behind all the murders? Most, they think, must be regarded as individual killings.

Clergyman Outlives Insurance Policy

CHICAGO — (AP) — A 65-year-old clergyman has become the beneficiary of his own insurance policy which he had taken out 53 years ago.

Here an Indonesian worker feels he has been insulted and is on the prowl for personal and extremely drastic revenge. Next time and most of times it's plain robbery.

Dr. Joseph H. Gauss has exceeded the life span covered by the insurance mortality tables and yesterday he received $2,861 from the Mutual Life Insurance Co. of New York. The payment was made on the annual premium date nearest the 65th birthday. Gauss will be 66 on Aug. 20. An insurance company official said only about three persons in 1,000 can expect to reach 65. He said statistics show there are only a but seven persons in 100,000 now living in the United States who are 65 or older.

Beef Ceilings Explained

Details of retail ceiling prices on beef that will be under the Office of Price Stabilization's rationing program were released Friday by Alfred L. Seeley, regional director.

All stores are required to ceiling prices applying to them by June 2.

New ceilings will apply until August 1, when a cut on all items will go into effect.

The OPS has divided the United States into zones for the beef pricing program, with prices at any point in the country fixed in relation to a price in a base zone in the Midwest.

Seeley pointed out that a transportation cost addition is used for determining ceiling prices in zones other than the base zone.

Price ceilings are designated according to types and grades of cuts.

Government Payroll Has Heavy Increase

WASHINGTON — (AP) — The federal government's payroll increased by 53,205 persons during March to a total of 2,361,806, the Civil Service Commission said today.

Of the total at the end of the month, 243,638 persons were employed in the Washington metropolitan area and 165,492 were employed outside the continental United States.

The commission said the month's increase included a "large" payroll addition by the defense establishment, and that the treasury, agriculture and commerce departments and the economic stabilization agency each added more than 1,000 persons.

New Legal Code For Armed Forces

By JAMES MARLOW
WASHINGTON (AP) — The four branches of the armed forces — Army, Navy, Air Force and Coast Guard — will get a new system of military justice, starting May 31.

Its purpose: to give servicemen, accused of punishable offenses, fairer treatment and more of the kind of legal protection they would have received in civilian life.

The system, which will work the same in all four branches, is the latest step in the unification of the armed forces, approved by Congress in 1948.

A group of prominent civilian lawyers was appointed that year to work out this new and uniform system of justice for servicemen. The result of their work goes into effect next Thursday.

From now on a serviceman, found guilty of a serious offense, can appeal his case to a superior court which never existed before — called the Court of Military Appeals — where the judges will be civilians, not military men.

It will be the final court of appeals for all four services except where the death penalty is involved. The President has been, and will remain, the final voice on that.

Tuesday the President named three civilian lawyers to this new high court: Paul W. Brown, member of the Tulane University Law School; George W. Lattimer, member of Utah's Supreme Court; and Robert Emmett Quinn, judge of Rhode Island's Superior Court. In addition to this court — although penalties for the various offenses remain pretty much the same — new safeguards and appeal machinery have been set up for servicemen.

An example is given below of how this new system will work in the four branches. Some parts of it have been in use in one or more branches before now, but not all. And the legal steps in the various branches differed. It was for this reason the decision was made to make the whole business uniform.

Take Jones, an Army private. To illustrate how this system will now work the same way in all the services:

He's arrested for robbery. He must be told what his offense is. The company commander makes a preliminary investigation. If satisfied the charge is justified, he notifies the regiment commander, a colonel. The latter then orders a more complete investigation.

At this investigation Jones has a right to be represented by a civilian lawyer of his own choosing or an officer appointed for him. Jones can give evidence in his own behalf at this investigation and examine witnesses against him.

If the colonel decides there's enough evidence for a trial before a general court martial, he notifies the division commander, a general. The latter turns the case over to his legal advisor, a staff judge advocate, who must be an officer and a lawyer. He makes arrangements for the trial.

Presiding as judge will be an officer who is also a lawyer. In the past he was on the jury, too, but from now on will not take part in reaching a verdict. There must be at least five other members of the court. Usually, they're officers but not necessarily lawyers. Jones can insist that one-third of them be enlisted men like himself.

The prosecuting counsel, an officer, must be a lawyer. So must the defense counsel, another officer, appointed to defend Jones, or Jones can bring in a civilian lawyer, say the court finds Jones guilty and sentences him to jail for five years.

Then the general in command of the division — with the help of his staff judge advocate — will review the case. He can overrule the court and free Jones or reduce his sentence or agree with the verdict.

If the general doesn't free Jones, the case must then go to the Army's judge advocate general who turns it over to a review board made up of three army officers, all lawyers.

Jones can be represented before this board by his own civilian lawyer or an officer-lawyer appointed for him. The board can do anything it wishes about the sentence: turn Jones free, reduce his sentence or uphold it.

PAMPA NEWS, THURSDAY, MAY 24, 1951 PAGE 5

If Jones isn't freed, the soldier has 30 days in which to appeal to the new Court of Military Appeals. That court's decision then is final.

(All this extensive procedure is only for men accused and convicted for minor offenses get rid of major offenses. Men legal safeguards, but not all those mentioned here, and can't appeal to that high court.)

Average U.S. Shopper Ponders Effect Of Blow At Fair Trade

(By The Associated Press) The average shopper is pondering whether any money would be saved as a result of the U.S. Supreme Court's blow at fair trade laws in 45 states. In some areas, there were hints of price wars, especially in drugs and liquors, that would benefit the consumer's pocket-book.

"The lid's off," said a New Orleans, La., liquor distributor. "Here we go."

A Hartford, Conn., attorney said the ruling "kills" the fair trade act in his state. Druggists and dealers in electrical appliances feared a return of cut-throat competition.

Joseph T. Meek, executive secretary, Illinois Federation of Retail Assn., said that "the ruling has potentialities for a trade war."

But in other areas, merchants did not seem very concerned over the prospects of price battles. The supreme court said Monday a merchant who has not signed a fair trade agreement can charge what he wants to for what he sells.

Assistant Attorney General Mike Culligan of Louisiana said the decision apparently does not affect merchants who have signed fair trade agreements covering nationally-sold goods. Nor, he said, does it appear to affect the fair trade sale of goods that originate and are sold in one state only.

The Portland, Me., Better Business Bureau chief, Alan F. Whitman, predicts that manufacturers can enforce fair trade prices by refusing to sell to retailers who cut agreed prices.

Moreover, trade sources in Seattle, Los Angeles, and New York pointed out, merchants may be reluctant about starting price wars in the current period when many items are under federal price control and other goods are threatened with it.

In other states, like Georgia, it was noted that fair trade minimums often are below the actual selling price of an item.

Officials in many states thought the decision killed their own fair trade laws, but many refused to comment until they could study the opinions.

Engineers Hold Meet

A paper relating to super-refractories was presented by R. W. Brown of the Carborundum Co. of Perth Amboy, N.J., at a meeting Tuesday night of the Pamphile Chapter of the American Institute of Chemical Engineers.

Brown discussed the application of super-refractories in high temperature reactors, such as coking ovens and other applications related to the carbon black and petroleum industries.

The paper was written by Brown, H. M. Killmar and Art Turner of Perth Amboy.

N. V. V. Franchot of Christy Firebrick Co. of St. Louis, introduced the subject and the speaker.

N. Dudley Steel is president of the Pamphile chemical society. The Howard Weaver was program chairman for the Tuesday meeting.

Attending the meeting held in the Hughes building were the following Pamphans: Steel, Weaver, Jim Edminister, Charlie Hoffman and John F. Campbell.

About 50 other engineers from the Berger and Phillips area attended.

Farmers Can Raise Hired Hand Wages

DALLAS — (AP) — Farmers can raise the wages of their hired hands as high as 95 cents an hour without getting Uncle Sam's permission.

That interpretation has been placed on a new Wage Stabilization Board order. William J. Rogers, regional director of the Labor Department's wage-hour division, said it also means piece rates can be raised to the equivalent of 95 cents an hour.

If the rates paid during the base period of 1950 were greater than 95 cents an hour or the equivalent they can be increased only ten percent without board approval.

Rogers said that farm workers paid by the month can be paid no more than $225 a month, that where year-round use of a house is given along with the usual incidentals the ceiling is $195 a month, and where room and board is furnished, $175 a month is permissible.

Scientist Says Political Acts Aid Soviet Research

By ROBERT GOLDSTEIN

CHICAGO — (AP)—An atomic scientist contended today that American political and military leaders unknowingly may have given Russia's atomic strength a bigger boost than did the spies who gave out A-bomb secrets.

Dr. Eugene Rabinovitch, editor of the Bulletin of the Atomic Scientists, said spying may have advanced the Soviet atomic weapons program by at least 18 months. That was the estimate given by a congressional joint committee on atomic energy.

But the biggest factor in the A-bomb race, he said, might well be whether uranium supplies available to Russia are equal to those available to the United States and Canada. He added: "From this point of view, the most fateful step which has permitted the Soviet Union to achieve its present atomic strength was not the betrayal of our secrets... but the decision of American political and military leaders in 1945 to give to the Soviet Union control over the parts of Czechoslovakia and Germany in which important uranium ore deposits were known to exist.

"These regions had been reached by American troops first and abandoned to the Soviet Union in accordance with the demarcation agreement.

"Perhaps if the atomic bomb development in the United States had not been surrounded by such extreme secrecy, those responsible for the drawing of the demarcation line would have known better what they were giving away—or at least would have been exposed to the advice of those who knew."

He said that looking backwards, "it seems doubtful whether America has gained anything at all from the immense effort and expense it had invested in keeping the entire wartime atomic bomb development secret."

If instead, he added, a strict secrecy had been limited to the mechanism for exploding the bomb, possibly no spies would have slipped through the security precautions. He said the exploding mechanism was "the supposedly most important secret."

"As things are now, he said, the FBI is 'overburdened with investigation of innumerable people, most of whom will never have access to any classified information not to mention information which is really worth keeping secret—and has asked to be relieved of it in order to be able to concentrate on guarding the really important areas.'"

Rabinovitch said the bottlenecks America faced in turning out A-bombs were not in solving technical problems or establishing basic facts but in a actual construction of large production plants.

"There is no reason to assume that the same was not true of the Soviet progress as well," he said in an article in the bulletin.

Video Court Is Formed As School For Motorists

AP Newsfeatures
BALTIMORE — When a drunk driver comes up before Magistrate Joseph Kolodny on Tuesday nights, thousands of spectators are sitting in on the case.

What's more, the judge often times asks those spectators to determine whether the defendant is guilty, and if so, how much he should be fined. But if the driver is found guilty, he isn't actually fined nor put behind bars.

That's because the Judge is conducting an educational program to teach drivers the rights and wrongs of their traffic manners.

"The Court of Common Sense" is broadcast over a local television network each week.

The setting is realistic as Judge Kolodny raps his gavel, and the bailiff describes the case to be tried — taken from actual court records.

The bailiff uses a diagram and miniature cars to give the TP audience an idea of what happened at the scene of a traffic violation.

Actors from Baltimore theater clubs parade before the judge as witnesses, defendants and attorneys. Sometimes the judge will tell a witness to stop chewing gum or to stand up straight.

And, he'll sometimes clear up a case by asking more details.

When defendants, witness and lawyer have had their say, Judge Kolodny may render a decision and then lecture on the follies of careless driving.

Or, he may turn to the video audience and ask them to write in their opinion of whether a man is guilty and if so what the punishment should be.

"Sometimes," says the judge, "sympathy gets the better of the audience and the defendant in turn gets a break. But quite often the audience is tougher on a traffic violator than I'd be."

The program often crusades against driving while tired and against the more serious offense of driving while drunk.

Judge Kolodny doesn't have any patience with the tippy cases.

The "Court of Common Sense" has been honored for its educational efforts. It has received the Alfred P. Sloan Award and a plaque from the National Safety Council, both presented for promoting safe driving.

Through the ages, the diamond has been the symbol of constancy and purity says the National Geographic Society.

Dioloma Time Gowns Serve Double Purpose--Wear Now And In The Future

A graduation dress, neat to the bridal dress, is the high point in a girl's life. Here is white organza (left) for a formal graduation. Off-shoulder neckline has a starched cuff. This dress can go dancing when the ceremony is over. Silk gauze (center) in pale blue makes a graduation dress now, evening dress later. The strapless bodice is topped by a small Quaker shawl. Short afternoon or evening dress (right) in wide-ribbed pique is one-piece, has square-bib collar edged in tiny white ball fringe.

NEW YORK (NEA)—For most girls, graduation day, no matter what the school, is tremendously important. The graduation dress, therefore, assumes an aspect not achieved by any other dress ever, with the exception of the bridal dress.

Should the dress be long—or short? White or pastel? Silk or cotton?

In some instances, these things are decided by the school authorities. But if they are left to the graduate, she can have her dress long or short, white or pastel, silk or cotton, billowing or slightly tailored. And she can have it at the price that's right for her particular purse.

A graduation dress must, for the average girl, serve as a summer evening dress once the excitement of commencement exercises has died away. Mauve starched silk organza, simple enough for graduation, pretty enough for evening, makes such a dress.

Designer Ceil Chapman has given it a tailored, classic top with high-collared neckline and short, cuffed sleeves. A full skirt is caught in folded drapes at one side. They part to reveal lace-trimmed pleated ruffles on the hem of the underskirt.

For the very formal graduation, this same designer has used white organza. An off-shoulder neckline has a starched cuff that falls into a small cape collar at the back. A vaulted bodice, set with corded seams, has a row of small rhinestone buttons to the waist. The floor-length skirt is very full.

A simple dress in wide-ribbed white pique, by Emily Wilkens, is short and can be worn either afternoon or evening. A wide, round neckline is made pretty by a narrow, square-bib collar edged with small white ball fringe. The fitted bodice buttons in back, pinafore-style. The very full skirt is worn over crinoline petticoats, as are most of these dresses.

Elegant, fragile silk gauze is turned by Ceil Chapman into a mid-length dress with tightly-fitted, strapless bodice. Shoulders are concealed, for daytime wear, by a tiny Quaker shawl that has a raised, ruffled collar. Its saah crosses in front and ties in a bow at the back.

WE, THE WOMEN

By RUTH MILLET
NEA Staff Writer

WHEN WIFE HAS JOB
A "very resentful" housewife asks me why I don't write a piece for the husbands of working wives. As she points out there are two categories of wives—the stay-at-home wife and the working-out wife. There are, in consequence, two classes of husbands, the husband of the stay-at-home little woman and the husband of the working-out homemaker.

She thinks the latter should be told their situations are entirely different.

They are, of course. If Mama says "Okay, I'll help earn the living" and shoulders the responsibility of an outside job, then Papa can no longer regard himself in the light of THE breadwinner and expect his wife to handle the job of homemaking without his help.

If she helps earn the money, then he shouldn't even have to be told that he should have the housework with her. Of course, if they can afford a maid it's a different story.

OLD-FASHIONED IDEAS
But where the work is there to be done when Mama drags in from the office or factory after a hard day's work it becomes a mutual responsibility.

This is, of course, an important matter today, where there are more married women than single women employed, and where a lot of marriages couldn't take place unless the wife agreed to do the housework.

So the husband of a working wife should get out of his head all those old-fashioned notions of the house being the wife's full responsibility.

Not for him the easy chair and the evening paper while Mama cooks the dinner, does the dishes, and slicks up the house.

For him housework has got to be teamwork. He is accepting teamwork on his wife's part, if she holds down a job and she has every right to expect teamwork from him when it comes to homemaking.

BEAUTY AFTER FORTY

MARLENE DIETRICH

Every woman needs a reconditioning program now and then to pep up her vitality, to put the spotlight on her good looks. Many of you believe this, too, but you can't find time, or so you tell yourself, to map out a program. And, too, you wonder about the cost to your beauty allowance.

I have taken all of this into consideration and I have been able to prepare and release Bulletin No. One, the very first thing of its kind!

Here for you is a complete plan for reconditioning at home — A BEAUTY PROGRAM, A FOOD PROGRAM, outlined day by day for ten days. There is a special exercise routine to give you flexibility After Forty, not strenuous exercises which leave you breathless and exhausted but planned movements to really benefit those tired After Forty muscles. There is a short as a guide to food buying and meal planning.

How to get the Bulletin No. 1. Just send to me, in care of this paper, a self-addressed long envelope, with 6c in stamps on it to cover mailing. The beauty bulletin will be sent to you at once. You don't have to write a letter, I will know exactly what you want, and I want you to have it. So get busy now — first come, first served! Remember, the supply is not unlimited!

"Beauty After Forty" loves the letters and questions which you send. Sometimes it takes, so it must seem to you, forever to answer when you send a stamped, self-addressed envelope, but it is just impossible to work any faster. The bulletin containing the home reconditioning program will be the answer to many requests for exercise and diets. I have prepared it just for you and I hope you like it. Use the plan and truly gain Beauty After Forty!

GI Describes U.S. Charge On Chinese

By WILLIAM C. BARNARD
SOMEWHERE IN KOREA (DELAYED) — (AP) — A broad-shouldered corporal told today how GIs made a night banzai charge on attacking Chinese. Reds and broke out of a trap.

Earlier in the night he had crawled for three hours through a ring of Chinese to safety, then returned to rescue wounded. Cpl. Paul Anderson of Revere, Mass., leaned on a borrowed rifle as he related the story. His own had been wrecked by a Chinese bullet.

It happened the night of May 17 when his Second Division company fought from ridge to ridge to get away from swarming Chinese.

Once they crawled between two Chinese, so close Anderson said "I'll swear we could smell the garlic."

that led to the rear. All of us were hollering and whooping and shooting. Some of the Chinks got scared and threw down their weapons and ran.

They were on the hills all around us. "I crawled under a wrecked jeep and began shooting and I tell you it was a hell of a fight. We really knocked off the Chinese. The fight lasted an hour and then the Chinks quit. There were Chinese bodies all over the place."

Points To Consider On The Bond Issue

Yesterday this space was devoted to a discussion of the 12 points advanced in favor of the proposed airport bond issue which voters will decide Saturday. Today, the balance of the points will be printed, followed by editorial comment outlining the newspaper's reasons for opposing the measure.

7. Additional taxes increased to retire the Bond Issue are more than offset by the increased property values which will be created.

Comment: This is nebulous thinking predicted on the theory that if the airport is located on E. Browning, industry will flock to Pampa. Those who favor defeating the bond Saturday and then improving the northwest airfield come much closer to factual thinking when they reason like this: If the land now occupied by the E. Browning airport were to be returned to the tax rolls at a figure somewhat equitable with which proponents of the bond issue propose to pay for the land, and when the improvements that are sure to follow are placed on that land, the tax gains made by a greatly increased valuation will probably pay for the northwest field.

8. The airport would be only five minutes from downtown Pampa, which would be easily accessible to all parts of the city.

Comment: Whether an airport is five minutes from town or 9 or 15 should be a minor matter in deciding an issue of this kind. Safety of people living near the present airport and economy would be the guiding factors in casting a vote.

9. Pampa has been trying for 15 years to get a permanent airport. Other cities have gone ahead. We are far behind. A decision must be made now.

Comment: Let's not "keep up with the Joneses" by accepting anything that will not be of real benefit to the community. As for the permanency of the airfield, why not look at it this way? Aviation has moved swiftly in this past decade and will continue to do so. Jets are coming into their own and it will be a comparatively short time until jet propelled planes are used commercially as they now are in England. Jets demand a lot of landing space and runways at the northwest field could be lengthened to serve them, whereas there is limited room at the E. Browning site. This bond proposal could be a foot-in-the-door measure. Later, demands for more money and more land might come.

10. The Civil Aeronautics Administration has set aside money for the improvement of Gray County Airports. If this money is not used at this time, these grants might be withdrawn.

Better Jobs Undermining Christianity

By R. C. HOILES

"Outlook For Freedom"

This is the fourth installment of "Outlook For Freedom" written by Leonard E. Read, president of the Foundation for Economic Education.

The Nature of Influence "Influence" maybe he had better do some thinking about the nature of influence. So he observed how his adversaries accomplished influence over others. They were effective for their purposes. Persons who make false promises and hold out witchcraft cures to people in trouble—whether the trouble be in arthritis or cancer or poverty—seem all too successful.

Two Kinds of Influence "Slowly but surely he discerned that influence is of two kinds: destructive and creative. He thought of the building in which he was sitting, how centuries of creative study in engineering, architecture, and construction had preceded its creation by man. And then he reflected on how any fool with sense enough to light a match could destroy the building in a few minutes.

How Are Teachers Selected? "How is understanding advanced? He resorted to an old standby—try it on one's self. He simply asked: "What would help me to advance his own understanding? Who were his real teachers? Were they self-appointed or did he select them? Who had an influence on his beliefs? The answers to these questions were clear cut. Then, to clinch the matter, he posed this final question: "To whom do I turn when I seek perfection in any field, to someone who knows less than I, or to the person whom I regard as knowing more than I? Again, the answer was clear.

The Student Designates His Teacher "There followed those logical deductions. The true person in the past designated his own teachers—designates his own teachers. One cannot change the beliefs of another. New evidence can, of course, be offered to those desiring to consider it. Their desires, however, will be determined by their confidence in the integrity and intelligence of those who offer the evidence. I have no means, whatever, he then reasoned, of assisting others to understand the matter and test his own beliefs—that was all. What advanced his own understanding beyond their, and give them valid reason to have confidence in his intellectual attainment and integrity.

At first blush this seemed to make the situation hopeless; it is so slow. How can socialism and communism ever be stopped in this slow and laborious manner, before it is too late? The speaker thought entered his mind that man is liberty was something quite new in the world, that like Christianity, it had never been fully tried, and that perhaps there were many answers yet unknown to anyone. You Can't Shoot An Idea "Noneless, he wanted to stop this social disease. But how? Again he referred to his own past experience as a guide for the future. Had anyone stopped him from believing in the use of force as a means to achieve social performance; the speaker at the banquet had stimulated him to study the matter and test his own beliefs—that was all. What actually had happened to his former beliefs in the use of force? Had someone else destroyed these beliefs? He persisted in the minds of others, and he was certain that he himself was yet wholly free from them. He found, when reflecting on his own experience, that an idea or a belief is never destroyed; it is merely accepted or rejected by a person, nothing more. In his own case he had rejected his beliefs in the inordinate use of force because he had accepted the new belief that took their place. The belief that society can be best served by the release of human energy—that is, by man acting voluntarily and freely. This acquisition was a product of his own personal thinking. No one else had any command of the process except as he considered someone else to be ahead of him in understanding, and could thus be chosen by him as his teacher."

Through Express

By DAVID BAXTER

I have an article by a writer who makes a living by getting people mad at Jews and feeding them continual doses of a literature to keep them mad. Unfortunately, many well-meaning people take this man's word for it that he is "defending" the Christian faith and "the cause of Christ."

This New Yorker quotes an article he says was written by one Marcus Eli Ravage, a "noted Jewish writer." His idea in quoting this "noted Jewish writer" (whom I have never heard of) is to show his readers how Jews, generally, have always conspired and schemed to destroy "white civilization" in general and Christianity in particular.

This, of course, implies that all Jews are something other than white, although I have felt that Judaism is a religion and not strictly a race except for those who want to make it a racial matter. I can point out white-skinned blue-eyed, blond-haired believers in the Jewish religion here in America while there are black-skinned negro Judahites in Abyssinia and Africa, generally. In China there are almond-eyed, yellow-skinned Jews. You will also find white Christians in Ethiopia and yellow Christians in Manchuria.

However, to get back to our anti-Jewish friend "Marcus Eli Ravage," this "noted Jew" is supposed to have written an article on the Apostle Paul. Ravage begins by bragging about the superiority of Jews and how "you gentiles" would still be happily running around naked and carefree in the woods had it not been for the interferences with such goings-on and mastered the gentiles by inflicting their "civilization" and laws of Moses (moral law) upon them.

One reason seems to have been that the area was a kind of rural utopia. The valley was so difficult to get to that it had no trade with the rest of the country. It lived off of what it could produce, and that wasn't enough.

The town itself had a population of about 2000, with another 6500 or so in the valley. It had some 750 farms, and about 20,000 acres were under irrigation. Rice was a principal crop, and there were half a dozen rice mills scattered in the valley. But they had been operated to gouge the farmers for so long the victims finally rebelled. And the Communist deputy from Camana demanded that the government build a canal to irrigate the valley.

Shortly after the end of the last war, Peru's President Jose Luis Bustamante called in Jack Neale and told him he was in trouble over Camana. The people there were demanding a government-operated rice mill, threatening all kinds of trouble if they didn't get it. But anti-Communist deputies wouldn't approve it, because all the people in the valley were so politically Red.

Dr. Bustamante wanted Institute of Inter-American Affairs to move into Camana, build the rice mill and operate it, then set up one of the IIAA "Services." These are extension service operations which direct agricultural, health and education development projects, jointly financed by U. S. and Peruvian government funds.

At first Jack Neale wouldn't touch it. One of the big secrets of the IIAA success since it was first started by Nelson Rockefeller's office at the start of the last war has been that all its operations steered clear of Latin American politics. Presidents and cabinets and congresses may change. But the IIAA has continued, endorsed and continued by all governments, regardless of who was running the country.

Washington... by Peter Edson

WASHINGTON (NEA) — John R. (Jack) Neale is a Wyoming county agent who for the last seven years has been an Institute of Inter-American Affairs active director in Peru. He came back to Washington the other day for an IIAA conference and he brought with him a first-class tale on how you go about beating communism in an under-developed area.

The story concerns a little town in southern Peru named Camana. It is located in a valley, also known as Camana, on the Majes River. But by a curious configuration of the land and surrounding mountains, with the Pacific Ocean at one end and a canyon at the other, the valley is almost completely shut off from the rest of Peru.

Everyone in the valley was once supposed to be a Communist. Even the Camana deputy in the Peruvian Congress was a Communist, and he was always raising plenty of trouble. Some time, somehow, between the two world wars, a Commie agent had gotten into the isolated valley and done a real job of organizing it.

FAIR ENOUGH - PEGLER

By WESTBROOK PEGLER

The contrast of this gorgeous figure with the bums whom the Communists had organized into the bonus "army" was intentional. The publication of this lying sneer was an injustice to MacArthur and to readers who have a right to truthful information as a basis for their opinions.

National Whirligig

By RAY TUCKER

WASHINGTON — The fear of sharpening the current cleavage between the United States and Great Britain, which has become the principal aim of Soviet diplomacy, may lead the two western nations to postpone or call off the proposed "Big Four" conference for settlement of the Korean and kindred world problems.

In view of the behavior of Deputy Delegate Gromyko at the current Paris meeting which was supposed to frame an agenda for a future get-together of the foreign ministers of the United States, England, France and Russia, Secretary Acheson feels that a full-dress assembly would be futile.

He realizes, too, that Foreign Minister Molotov, who would represent Russia at the big-time affair, can be far more insulting than his present understudy at Paris.

STRAINED — For almost two months the deputation has been sitting at Paris under the original plan to stake out the field of disputes that would be considered in an attempt to prevent World War III.

Although the general idea of peaceful discussions was first proposed by Gromyko, he has used this publicity stage only to discredit the United States and to try to smash the already shaky North Atlantic military alliance. He also hopes to prevent rearming of Western Germany.

Not since Theodore Roosevelt's day, when Washington and London stood on the brink of armed action over the Venezuelan boundary question, have the relations between the two English-speaking peoples been so strained.

The White House and 10 Downing Street have spent almost as much time and energy in concealing major and minor differences between themselves as they have in devising a strategy for checking Communist aggression in Korea, China, Indo-China, Iran and Central Europe.

INCONCEIVABLE — The British are less insistent on postponement because they are willing to knock at any door to peace. Their wishes may prevail with Acheson.

A permanent rift between the British and ourselves is inconceivable. Finally Neale agreed to put an agricultural agent in the valley on one condition. This was that he be authorized to clear of political involvements, and that he should do only the things he considered best for the agricultural rehabilitation of the area.

IRAQ - WORLD HOT SPOT - One of the most "inflammable" spots in a troubled world is the area highlighted on the Newsmag above. It includes the heart of the British oil concessions in Iraq, around the Persian Gulf. Britain, facing the threat of Iranian nationalization of its oil, was recently reported ready to send troops to guard British lives and property around the big Iranian port of Abadan - site of the world's largest oil refinery. British government is reported delaying the troop movement for fear it might provoke Russia into marching into Iran under terms of a 1921 treaty. Such moves might easily touch off World War III.

UNDERGOING ROUTINE OVERHAUL — U. S. Navy giant Lockheed double-decker has hull and tail surface removed as it undergoes 1,500-hour overhaul at Burbank, Cal.

Oil Industry Asked To Drill 170 Million Feet This Year

NEW YORK — (AP) — The government wants the oil industry to drill 170 million feet of holes in the U. S. this year. Trouble in Iran, at Russia's doorstep, adds urgency to the task. Some of the wells drilled will be rank wildcats, with the chances of striking oil regarded at one in nine by the industry. Others will be drilled in known oil-bearing fields, where the chances are rated one in five. The industry places the cost in the billions. That's because there's a lot more to drilling for oil than just hiring a rig. It's now a costly, if scientific, gamble. Steel shortage, could hamper the attempt, but the government has promised to allocate 1,800,000 tons of tubular steel for the record 44,000 well goal. Both the industry and the government agree the holes should be drilled because the nation needs new sources of petroleum. Civilian consumption of gas oil, fuel oil, diesel oil, ship bunker oil is rising. Military demand could rise much faster in an emergency. More important is the threat East's rich oil fields should the double in Iran spread or the beds march into Arabia. Should that happen, the United States might need badly whatever oil the 44,000 holes might tap. Oilmen estimate that every week the United States drills as many wells as the Russians plan to drill a year, according to their last five-year plan announcements. Even so, American military would like to see our rate stepped up. Last year more than 43,000 feet were drilled here, for a total of 160 million feet, the American Petroleum Institute reports. Costs of drilling a well vary widely. A 10,000-foot exploratory well may cost from $200,000 to $1 million, whether or not it taps oil, depending upon location and the nature of the operation. Indirect Controls Cited As Best Weapon Against Inflation

DALLAS — (AP) — The president of the U. S. Chamber of Commerce says the nation's inflation problems can be whipped through "application of indirect controls rather than use of direct controls on prices and wages." D. A. Hulcy of Dallas says the government's curbs on prices and wages "are not working anyhow." The newly elected spokesman said the U. S. Chamber is solidly behind the country's defense for the nation's business interest effort, but is opposed to the administration's policy of pouring billions into the hands of a citizenry which already possesses "more money to buy things with, than things to buy." In calling attention to the chamber's position that the federal government through Congress adopt a pay-as-you-go program, Hulcy said such a program could be supported by a $5,000,000,000 tax increase. In addition, some $6,000,000,000 can be cut from the present federal budget," he said. "These economies, plus a general tightening up of credit controls will lick the nation's inflation problems."

Bigger Atom Explosions Are Hinted

WASHINGTON — (AP) — Hints of still another and even bigger atomic explosion at the mid-Pacific nuclear weapons proving grounds were current today. A statement by Rep. Jackson (D-Wash.) more than ten days ago suggested that a series of tests at Eniwetok in the Marshall Islands had been ended. But there were fresh indications today that another explosion remained on the schedule after Jackson's return from the proving grounds. The Atomic Energy Commission has not issued its customary announcement on the conclusion of a series of tests. The commission was still standing on its announcement that "we are engaged in a test program" at Eniwetok. There seemed reason to believe that the final shot of the current Eniwetok experiments, whenever made, was expected to be the most powerful set off. Nuclear weapons experts have been aiming at an explosion about ten times the magnitude of the original "Model T" bombs used at Hiroshima and Nagasaki in World War II. The next atomic test series is looked for in the Aleutian Islands. There the weaponeers hope to find what happens when an atomic blast is set off underground. Another question which may be posed — although not intentionally — is: How will Russia react to an atomic explosion experiment run off so close to her Siberian frontier? When the atomic testing ground at Frenchman's Flats in Nevada may be used again is not clear. A series of five explosions were made there early this year. The Atomic Energy Commission has retained its use of the area, transferred from the Air Force, apparently for future experiments.

Pampa Rotary Club Hears Mormon History Explained

The Church of Jesus Christ of the Latter Day Saints (Mormons) is not as mysterious as it seems, Pampa Rotarians learned yesterday while listening to Elder Darrell Rigby, Mormon missionary stationed here. The youthful missionary, outlining briefly Mormon beliefs, disclosed the Mormon Church follows the Bible from beginning to end. But the fundamental part of their beliefs are that Christ walked among the ancient inhabitants of America after his resurrection. The Book of Mormon is written in the same style as that of the Bible and is regarded as the Gospel written on this continent the same as the Bible is the Gospel written of the Old World. At various points in The Book of Mormon footnotes refer to books of the Bible where prophecies refer to The Book of Mormon. Elder Rigby recounted the story of how Prophet Joseph Smith, founder of the church, was led by an angel to the hills of Cumorah, in western New York, in 1827 and unearthed the metal plates which he translated from Egyptian into English. Only one-third of the works have been translated; the other two-thirds are still hidden by God until the world is ready to receive them. Prophet Smith, the speaker said, returned the metal plates to the angel who reconcealed them until the Lord is ready to reveal their hiding place to another. Prophet Smith was given the wisdom and the power by God to translate this Gospel, Elder Rigby said. He recalled the incident in American history when Cortez, the Spanish explorer, was worshipped by the Indians as their returned white God. Christ, he explained, walked among the people of this continent after his ascension to Heaven, but within a few years the natives of this land became so wicked Christ destroyed their church, and darkened their skin — these are the American Indians of today. The speaker also said archeologists were amazed several years ago to find crucifixes in the ruins of ancient cities in South America. The crucifixes, he added, were complete to the nail imprints on the hands and feet of Christ's image. Prophet Smith was murdered while in jail, his 47th arrest for his beliefs, by a mob that stormed the jail house. His successor, Brigham Young, prophesied the building of Salt Lake City while lying on a sick bed in a covered wagon near the spot the fabulous mid-western city now stands. Elder Rigby, a young man, was accompanied by Elder William Rowley, stationed at Lubbock. Prior to the history of the
