Chinese Pay Bloody Price In Campaign

TOKYO — (AP) — Lt. Gen. Matthew B. Ridgway returned today from the Korean front confident Chinese armies will continue to pay the bloody price they have been paying "as long as they stay in Korea."

On a two day trip the United Nations supreme commander saw a front dominated by Allied planes and freely roaming U.N. tanks.

Ridgway shared with his front line troops their "complete confidence, complete self-assurance in their ability to handle anything that's thrown at them."

Friday the Reds threw artillery, mortar and high velocity shells from self-propelled guns at tank columns fanning out from Seoul.

For the third straight day a heavy tank force raided Uijongbu, 11 miles north of Seoul. The tanks' guns added to the daily toll of Red casualties. Communists made no attacks.

"So far the only things they've succeeded in destroying are a few tens of thousands more of their own men," Ridgway said.

By U.S. Eighth Army estimate the price is close to 80,000 Red casualties since their now-bogged-down spring offensive started April 22. The Eighth Army revised its estimate of Thursday's Communist losses to 1,815.

On this third trip to the front since he became supreme commander, Ridgway wondered "how long those (Chinese and North Korean) fellows are going to continue to put up with the empty Communist promises to throw us out of Korea and defend their own country."

Airport Bond Election Set For May 26th

Gray county's $287,500 airport bond election will come to a vote on May 26.

This morning County Attorney Bill Waters began preparing notices of election to be posted in the county's 18 precincts.

Action came after attorneys were unable to find any statutes stating definitely that 10 percent of the qualified property taxpayers must sign a petition to have the special election called.

Tuesday, county commissioners called the election, subject to legality of the 49 names on the 12 petitions presented there. But when County Clerk Charlie Thut began checking the validity of the signers he ran into unexpected trouble.

Although Texas' civil statutes provide county commissioners shall call special road, bridge and hospital bond elections upon petition by 10 percent of the qualified voters, there are no statutes governing bond elections for airports.

In opinions gleaned from several attorneys during the past few days, county officials were advised (See AIRPORT, Page 6)

Saboteurs Held HONG KONG — (AP) — The Peiping radio last night announced a large group of counter-revolutionaries arrested in a big 24-hour roundup in Shanghai April 27. The Red radio indicated the arrests ran into the hundreds. Those arrested were charged with sabotaging the city's industry.

Both house and senate cleaned up a lot of loose ends before they quit for the weekend yesterday afternoon. Action included: 1. The house passed and sent to the senate a bill to authorize the railroad commission to set minimum prices for natural gas in the field.

2. An attempt to bring up the controversial labor bill tightening the anti-labor shop law failed in the house. The motion brought a 60-54 vote but needed a two-thirds majority to carry.

Allies To Bomb Manchuria If Red Air Force Strikes

TOKYO — (AP) — Allied airman will get the green light to bomb Manchurian bases if the Chinese Reds throw the weight of their air force against United Nations ground troops in Korea.

The 14 U.N. countries fighting in Korea are reported in agreement on the need to hit back hard if the Chinese fly out of their Manchurian sanctuary in force.

But air strikes at Manchurian bases involve many touchy problems militarily. Extent of the strikes would depend on whether U.N. instructions were general or specific.

General instructions might limit the attack to Red air fields. Specific orders could extend the attack to rail yards, communications centers, war plants and roads.

Allied airmen would strike first perhaps at the airfields. They know there are many of these in Manchuria and North Korea.

U.S. B-29s blast those in Korea every few days. The Reds just as Goggedly put them back in shape.

Whether the Reds could keep a sufficient number of airfields operating in Manchuria would depend on availability of personnel, fuel and other needs.

The general public knows little of the Red air potential. The pilots, presumably, are Chinese. Some are good. They've shown improvement with practice. But American fliers haven't let them get too much air combat experience.

The Reds have used fighter planes almost exclusively. They put Russian-made Yak-9s in the air at first. Those propeller-driven planes didn't last long against faster and superior U.N. fighters, such as the F-51 Mustang.

The Reds came up next with Russian-type MIG-15 jets. American jets outgouged the MIGs in round after round of aerial combat and still hold the upper hand.

There are well grounded reports that the Reds have some bombers. They would need such long-range planes to sweep below the 38th parallel and return to Manchuria in an all-out assault.

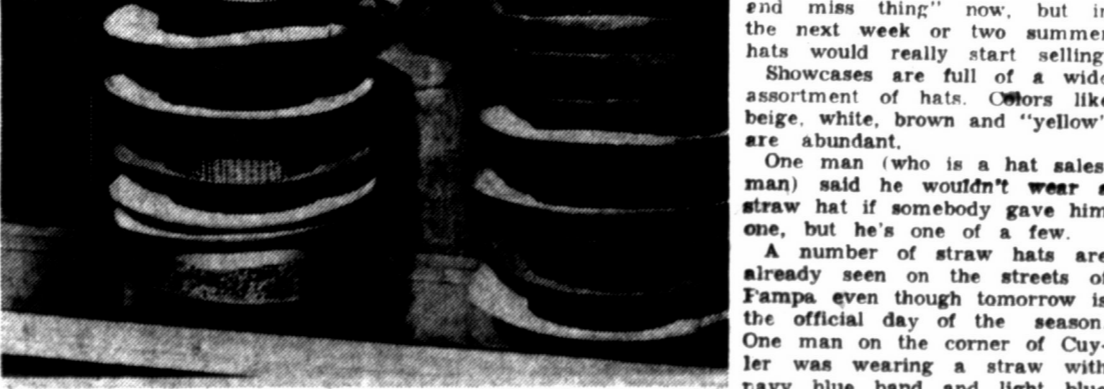

And for a successful attack, the Red bombers would have to run through a powerful screen of U.N. fighter planes and ground fire.

An all-out air smash to U.N. ground forces should not catch the allies unprepared.

Lt. Gen. George E. Stratemeyer, U.S. Far East Air Forces commander, has warned that such an attack is expected.

Korean Official Says A-Bomb Ores Sent To Russia PUSAN, Korea — (AP) — A captured North Korean official said today atom bomb materials were shipped from Red Korea to Russia and China in the past three years.

Chi Tae Yong, former chief of Red Korea's general affairs section, told a South Korean investigating committee that the materials contained 0.1 and 0.9 percent uranium. He said the ore came from mines in Northeastern Korea.

Armed Services Plan To Release Reservists

WASHINGTON — (AP) — The armed services will begin releasing enlisted reservists "as soon as practicable," the defense department said yesterday.

Its announced plans call for the Air Force to start the program almost immediately with the Marine Corps following in June, the navy in July, and the army by next September.

Priority will be given to World War II veterans.

The entire program is subject to change should the international situation be altered substantially, the department said.

The Air Force said its enlisted personnel ordered to extended duty from the volunteer reserve may get out after 12 months of active duty. But officers ordered to duty since the Korean outbreak in June 1950, may be required to serve 24 months.

The Marine Corps announced plans to permit release of 5,400 officers and 58,300 enlisted members of the volunteer and organized reserves. Expected were second lieutenants and non-veteran officers.

The navy said it will begin releasing about 1,000 enlisted reservists a month starting in July. By October the rate is expected to be around 6,000 monthly. Reserve officers generally will be required to finish out the 24-month minimum.

The army said it will start releasing in September enlisted reservists who were ordered to active duty as individuals from a non-pay status in the inactive and volunteer reserves. The release of reservists now in Korea, the announcement said, will depend upon combat conditions in all cases.

Individuals ordered to service, but who have been granted a delay and have not reported for active duty, will not now be required to serve.

The announcement emphasized that the orders will not apply to members of units called into active service or to the National Guard.

Aly Denies He Seeks Custody Of Little Daughter NICE, France — (AP) — Prince Aly Khan denies he is seeking to gain custody of his 16-month-old daughter from his estranged wife, Rita Hayworth.

The newspaper L'Espresso reported here Wednesday that Aly planned legal action in Paris to get the child, Yasmin, who was taken to New York last month by her mother.

In a letter to the newspaper yesterday, Aly said he categorically denied the article and that the "tenor" of it "is entirely false."

He said he was "greatly upset and surprised" by the article and asked that a corrective story be published.

The article Wednesday was headed: "Aly Khan will ask that Rita give him his daughter, because she has taken the daughter away without having the right and even clandestinely."

Miss Hayworth announced in New York last week that she would seek a legal separation.

General Says Chiefs Okayed Border Drive

WASHINGTON — (AP) — Gen. Douglas MacArthur said today the joint chiefs of staff approved when he split his United Nations forces last fall in a drive for the Korean-Manchurian border.

MacArthur made that statement while under questioning from Senator McMahon (D-Conn.), a vigorous supporter of the Truman administration position in the Far Eastern policy row that led to the general's dismissal from his commands.

MacArthur brought up also a statement of 1947 that he fell that his forces were launching a "win-the-war" offensive which would have them home by Christmas.

There has been some criticism of MacArthur because he split the Eighth Army and the Tenth Corps, sending them off on different slants toward the Yalu river.

When the Chinese Communists poured into Korea in force, the boys home by Christmas. MacArthur told McMahon: "The movements, all tactical and strategic movements that I made, had the prior knowledge and approval of the joint chiefs of staff."

MacArthur said MacArthur yesterday had described the drive by his forces in November as a reconnaissance in force. "Then he said: 'As I recollect it, general, last November you issued a communique in which you said that this was the end-of-the-war offensive which would bring the boys home by Christmas.'"

MacArthur said: "That was my hope," MacArthur replied.

MacArthur: "Did you anticipate that you could get them home by Christmas with a reconnaissance in force?"

MacArthur: "The reconnaissance would have developed the strength of the enemy. If it was not sufficient to resist us, it would have undoubtedly destroyed the last remnants of the North Korean forces."

MacArthur added that the line between a reconnaissance force and an assault attack "is a rather nebulous one and depends upon circumstances."

Soon after MacArthur settled the witness chair for his second day of testimony, Senator Knowland (R-Calif.) protested there had been too much censorship of MacArthur's testimony yesterday dealing with restrictions on American air operations in the Korean war.

Knowland said Defense and State Department "combers" had deleted portions of yesterday's record he believed should have been made public.

Knowland is a member of the Senate Armed Services committee, one of two Senate groups inquiring into MacArthur's dismissal from his Far Eastern commands and the policy differences which led President Truman to oust the five star general.

The other committee is that on foreign relations. The hearings are being held behind closed doors, but reported (See GENERAL, Page 6)

Pampa Flyers Lay Plans For Biggest 'Pilots Breakfast'

Pampa flyers and chamber of commerce officials began laying plans for the biggest "Pilots Breakfast" in the history of the local airport to be held May 20.

Handbills were put in the mails Thursday to aviation enthusiasts throughout Texas, Oklahoma, New Mexico, Kansas and other scattered points. Special letters of invitation have also been sent to aircraft dealers in the Southwest as well as some public officials of other cities.

Although program plans are still in the embryonic stages, Earl McConnell, secretary of the Pampa Flying Boosters (the new name for the Pampa Pilots Assn.) said visiting planes are expected to arrive from 7:30 a. m. on through 10 a. m. Members of the chamber of commerce, local flyers and others have indicated they will provide cars to take the visitors to the Pampa Moose auditorium where the breakfast and program will be held.

E. O. Wedgeworth, manager of the chamber of commerce, will be in charge of entertainment following the breakfast.

Legislators' Ears Ringing With Tax, Money Problems

By MARTHA COLE AUSTIN, Tex. — (AP) — Legislators went home this weekend with tax and money problems ringing in their ears.

Coming up on their return Monday is an expected wind-up on anti-crime legislation.

Rep. Jimmy Adams of Mexico said he would ask the house to agree to senate changes in the anti-slot machine bill and send it to the governor. Adams said he would also ask for action Monday on the bill outlawing punchboards in Texas. It has been passed by the senate and was approved by a house committee yesterday.

A group of house members still vowed a fight to the finish against raising the state tax of four cents on a gallon of gasoline to five cents. The Senate State Affairs committee yesterday approved a bill with that provision.

Both house and senate cleaned up a lot of loose ends before they quit for the weekend yesterday afternoon. Action included: 1. The house passed and sent to the senate a bill to authorize the railroad commission to set minimum prices for natural gas in the field.

2. An attempt to bring up the controversial labor bill tightening the anti-labor shop law failed in the house. The motion brought a 60-54 vote but needed a two-thirds majority to carry.

3. A senate committee approved a proposed constitutional amendment to raise the $35,000,000 annual ceiling on public welfare spending. The committee raised the ceiling to $45,000,000 and attached a provision allowing the state to hold a mortgage on property owned by a person receiving old age benefits. The state could subtract benefits paid the pensioner from his estate when he died.

The measure clashes sharply with a house version that lifted the ceiling entirely and had no mortgage provision.

4. The senate approved two bills and sent them to the governor. One bans the shooting of powerful BB guns that can shoot 300 feet a second within city limits. The other strengthens the hot check laws. It raises the penalties and requires the recipient of a hot check to notify its writer. If the check isn't made good within 10 days, intent to defraud is presumed.

5. The senate passed and sent back to the house for agreement to minor changes the bill setting up the Rio Grande authority. It also passed and sent back to the house for agreement a measure to allow a city of 70,000 or less population to hold an election every two years on whether to keep the firemen's and policemen's civil service system. At present it can be done every five years.

Fashion Dictates Men Should Don Straw Toppers Tomorrow

By WANDA CAMPBELL Women aren't alone in their mania to keep up with the season's fashions!

One of the first straw hats seen today was worn by a man at the post office who said, "Why thank you for noticing my hat, but frankly, it's last year's!"

Another man at the post office (still wearing a felt) admitted he had forgotten that straw hat day was coming up.

One man was overheard at a hat counter buying a straw topper. "That isn't too expensive," he said. "Hats range in price from $5.95 up to $20 for the imported panamas."

Besides the many types of straw used in the hats (panama, leghorn and ballbunt) there are several styles. The high crown and wide brim is popular and one may see many "sailor" styles.

Typical of this section is the "western straw" and one workman at the Citizen's Bank was wearing such a hat today.

But whatever the style, whatever the price, the majority of the men will retire felts to the top corner of the closet and get "in the swim" Saturday with a new straw hat.

Tomorrow's the day. Let's leave the bands on these summer hats do to a man's hat what a...

New Ban On Building Is Predicted

WASHINGTON — (AP) — The government prepared for probable issuance today a ban on building of large apartments, luxury residences and large industrial plants without advance approval.

Officials of the National Production Authority (NPA) said the order is designed to conserve further scarce steel supplies. So far, only commercial construction—stores, office buildings and the like—are under the permit system. Most recreational and amusement construction projects are barred.

NPA also announced last night that its controlled materials plan (CMP) will go into effect July 1, as had been indicated earlier.

The plan provides for allocation of three scarce materials—steel, copper and aluminum on the basis of defense needs. Manufacturers using these metals were asked to submit estimates by June 1 of how much they will need for the first three months the plan is in operation.

There were indications the 4,000,000-member General Council of Labor Unions (SOHYO) might resort to a nationwide protest strike.

Opponents of the Plaza ban say it is unconstitutional.

Congress Hampers Tuna's Love Life

By ED CREECH
WASHINGTON — You can stop snickering about the love life of the tuna. It's no laughing matter.

America's prestige is at stake. A sacred treaty is in danger of being violated. The Latin-Americans are going to think we are pinheadbrains. And all for the lack of a paltry $47,000.

That's the word today from a hopping mad Californian, Donald P. Loker. He's general manager of the High Seas Packing Co. in San Diego and his complaint, aired in the Congressional Record, goes back a long way.

Seems the $128,000,000 tuna-fishing industry has had trouble for years with various Latin-American governments, and vice versa. They've seized American fishing vessels at sea, held onto them for months. Hot words and some punches have been thrown.

Why? Because the tuna people fish for bait near the coasts of nine Latin-American republics. They pay $2,000,000 a year for the privilege. But our neighbors to the South aren't satisfied.

"In two weeks' time," Loker said grimly, "it will have to fire its skeleton staff for lack of funds to pay their wages."

"We have been held up to ridicule before the Latin-American republics and so has the entire Congress.

"Solemn international commitments made by this nation to a sister republic are being wrenched on."

Loker had one word for it: "hanky-panky."

He said the tuna people would pay the money themselves except that the Latin-Americans would think they were trying to load the dice.

Rep. Cecil R. King (D-Calif.) put Loker's letter into the Record. He found the missing $47,000 seemed to have been frozen by an appropriations subcommittee. He was pretty sure he could get it unfrozen — unless somebody brought up the love life of the tuna.

"Last year," he declared, "we produced $100,000,000 worth of food and marketed 11,000,000 cases of delicious, nutritious, boneless, skinless tuna meat in this country — enough to provide three and one-half cans for every man, woman and child."

"This is not an effort which should be held up to ridicule."

And every blasted time somebody asks for money to run this commission, somebody else asks if the money is to study the love life of the tuna, and there is general laughter, and it all gets into the papers, and California's Mr. Loker says it's a shame.

"What's more important: Costa Rica came through promptly with its share of the commission's cost. But the U.S. Congress, while promising $59,000 has forked over exactly $12,000 to date. And the wolf is at the commission's door."

"We have been held up to ridicule before the Latin-American republics and so has the entire Congress."

"Last year," he declared, "we produced $100,000,000 worth of food and marketed 11,000,000 cases of delicious, nutritious, boneless, skinless tuna meat in this country — enough to provide three and one-half cans for every man, woman and child."

"This is not an effort which should be held up to ridicule."

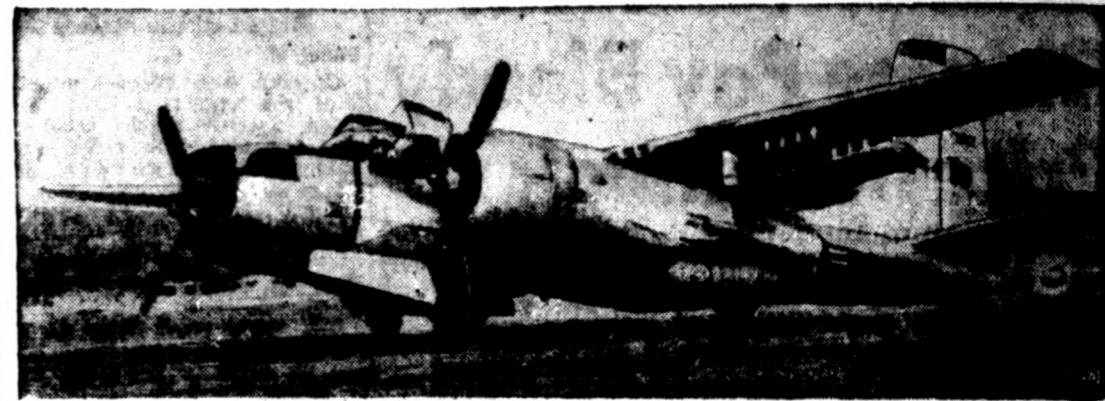

And every blasted time somebody asks for money to run this commission, somebody else asks if the money is to study the love life of the tuna, and there is general laughter, and it all gets into the papers, and California's Mr. Loker says it's a shame.

"What's more important: Costa Rica came through promptly with its share of the commission's cost. But the U.S. Congress, while promising $59,000 has forked over exactly $12,000 to date. And the wolf is at the commission's door."

"We have been held up to ridicule before the Latin-American republics and so has the entire Congress."

"Solemn international commitments made by this nation to a sister republic are being wrenched on."

Loker had one word for it: "hanky-panky."

DOWN BUT NOT OUT—With its landing gear shot out by enemy fire, a B-26 light bomber comes in for a belly landing at a base in South Korea. The bomber is skimming a few feet above the ground, and the pilot's compartment is already open for a quick getaway. The pilot made the landing without injury to his crew.

Cross-The-Nation Dialing To Be Tried

NEWARK, N. J. — (AP) — Transcontinental dial calling by telephone subscribers will become a reality by the end of this year. The New Jersey Bell Telephone Co. said the first coast-to-coast dial call by a subscriber will originate from the Englewood, N. J., exchange.

The first phase of the cross-country dialing will enable 10,000 customers of the Englewood exchange area to dial directly to any of 11,000,000 telephones across the nation.

At the start of the Englewood dial trial, subscribers there will be able to dial cross-country, but persons at the other end cannot dial to Englewood.

Cities and their suburbs which will be reached by the initial dialing will be San Francisco, Boston, Philadelphia, Providence, Pittsburgh, Cleveland, Detroit, Chicago, Milwaukee, Oakland and Sacramento. Additional offices in New York state also will be included.

Here's the way the dialing will work: Through 10 tugs at the dial, the subscriber can reach any of the 13 offices named. Seven pulls at the dial now are used for local calls.

On a call from Englewood to San Francisco, for instance, a customer first would dial the code "3-1-8" and following immediately with the number of the telephone being called. On a call to a subscriber with a number Garfield 1-9990 in San Francisco, the calling party would dial 318-041-9990.

The company said the new apparatus, developed by Bell Telephone laboratories, will cut down completion of a long distance call from about the present two-minute average to a matter of seconds.

A company spokesman said the Englewood office was chosen because it is a typical small community in which there is a wide range of calling, and it has one of the newest types of central office equipment easily modified to long distance dialing.

No estimate of the ultimate cost nor the time to spread cross-country dialing to all parts of the nation was available from the company.

Professor Says He Would Do Anything To Stall Commies

LOS ANGELES — (AP) — "I would do anything to prevent Communism from coming to this country," says a college instructor indicted on charges that he lied in testimony about an alleged spy ring.

Clarence Howard Vetterli, 41, made that statement Wednesday after his arrest. Vetterli is an assistant professor of journalism at El Camino Junior college near here.

The indictment accuses Vetterli of perjury before a grand jury investigating espionage here in 1949. It charges he lied when he denied he had been told Ignacy Samuel Witezak was a Communist agent and when he denied furnishing money to various persons to go to Japan.

Witezak was identified as a Soviet spy by Igor Gouzenko, former code clerk at the Soviet embassy in Ottawa, Ont., during the Canadian espionage trial of 1948.

Federal authorities said the trips to Japan were believed to be in connection with a Russian espionage ring there in 1941. "I knew Witezak merely as a friend," Vetterli said yesterday. "We met while we were both students at the University of Southern California. I never gave anyone any money to go to Japan and I stand by my previous testimony."

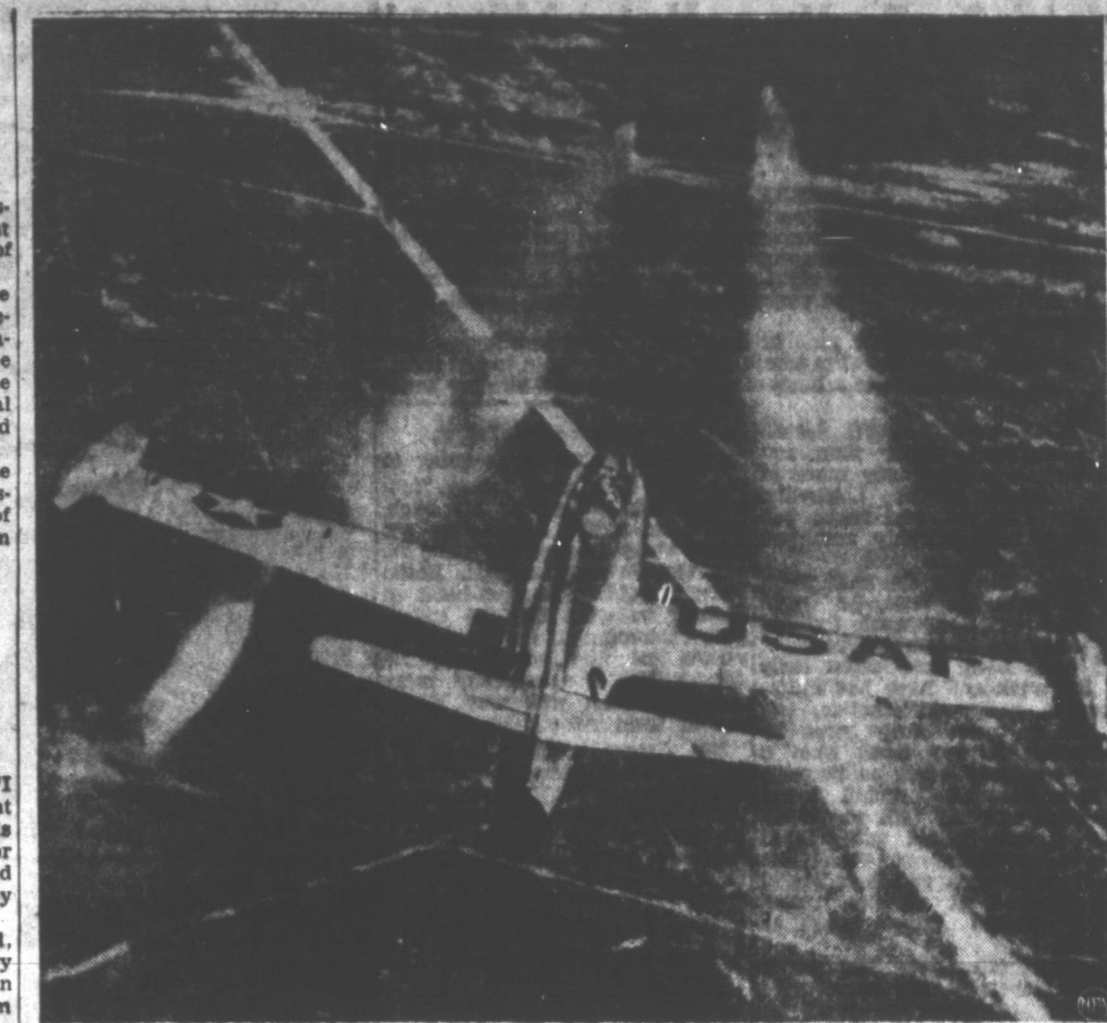

Federal agents said Vetterli's testimony threw them off the trail and hampered investigation of Witezak, who disappeared in 1948.

Vetterli, who is married and has two children, has taught at El Camino since 1949. He previously taught at high school.

Developed under sponsorship of the Air Force's Air Materiel Command, the sight computes aerial and ground gunnery, rocketry and bombing. It has been a major contributor to success of jet fighter-bombers in Korean operations.

Oil Supply For Streets Is Exhausted

The city administration is being forced this year to revert to the old policy of "find your own oil" for street oiling.

City Manager Dick Pepin reported this morning the street oil supply donated two years ago by the old Danciger Refinery Co., and the supply donated last year by Magnolia Petroleum Co., have been exhausted.

For two summers residents on unpaved streets could have their streets oiled by the city for the asking. They still can. But now they will have to find their own sources of oil, Pepin added.

"Once they find it, all they have to do is notify us and city trucks will haul it in, oil the street, and blade it at no expense to the property owners," the city manager said.

Union Bosses Should Look At Taxes

The move by labor bosses to withdraw from the national defense setup on the grounds that the program directed by a big businessman, Charles E. Wilson, was being run in the interest of big business, brings to mind a point that is too frequently lost sight of these days. Maybe they should have trained their sights on the tax collector instead of Big Business. They may be after the wrong guy. Here's why:

Take a big war equipment producer like General Motors. Last year it paid its employees an average of about $8.50 a week in salaries and benefits. It paid directly in taxes an amount equal to approximately $46 a week for each of its employees during that year, and indirectly in sales and excise taxes an amount equal to another $17.30 a week for each of its employees. In other words, if it had not been for taxes, the company would have been able to pay its employees an average of about $143.80 a week in wages.

The employee was obliged to pay an income tax on the $8.50 a week he did receive, which means he had reduced his take-home pay to about $6.50 or $7.00 a week. In using this take-home pay to buy groceries, pay rent, buy clothes, etc., he paid dozens of additional "hidden" taxes. These might have amounted to another $10 a week. Thus his net after all taxes would make a very sad comparison with the $143.80 he could have collected if it were not used for the taxes the company had to pay.

Now, let us suppose the employee instead of saving what was to be paid out for him in taxes, received every nickel the company paid to its owners in dividends. Then his net wages after direct and indirect taxes, instead of being probably about $55 or $60 a week, would be about $22.30 a week higher. The result would still leave him far short of $143.80.

The question the labor boss might very well ask himself, therefore, is why go after a portion of the $22.30 which the stockholders received as owners of the property when that is the tax collector's share of $63.30 to shoot at?

The Nation's Press

"Truth," London, Eng.

It must have been a stern ordeal for Stalin when he presented himself before the joint session of the Supreme Soviet to seek a favorable vote on his defense Budget. How could he—the Man of Peace—justify asking his fellow comrades to vote to purposes of war 6,425,000,000, pounds, or 21.3 per cent of the total Budget? How could he make the free and independent members of the Supreme Soviet agree to spend 3 per cent, less than next year on non-military purposes? However, the personal magnetism and eloquence of Comrade Stalin must have overcome the misgivings of the men and women from the Ukraine, Latvia, Georgia and the rest of the Soviet Union for he not only had his vote but with it the acclamations of 1,300 members.

Obviously Stalin derives some benefit from staging this munificent jumbo otherwise he would not trouble to rise from his desk to confront his dupes. The only certain thing about the figure, which is supposed to represent total Russian war expenditure, is that it is false. It is obvious propaganda, carefully put out to prove that the Americans and their "Imperialist" allies—the Russians—are the "war-mongers." No doubt the Dean of Canterbury and other Red stooges in this country will solemnly quote Stalin's figure as indisputable truth.

MacArthur

BY DAVID BAXTER

Now that the first tidal wave of resentment over General MacArthur's removal is over, we might take a calm look at the situation.

Let's take the arguments against the General first.

He came from a military family; was an only child and probably more than a little pampered and pushed in his military career. He was in charge when the bonus veterans were burned and driven out of Washington when Hoover was president. He hasn't been a front-line general. Roosevelt appointed him to the Philippine command and he tried to get Australia when the Japanese got too hot, but Roosevelt's orders (it never seems to occur to anyone that Roosevelt may have deliberately ordered MacArthur to leave the Philippines in order to embarrass the general, and sour people on him, since Roosevelt had no use for MacArthur, a Republican and Communist). The present charge against the General is that he has been to rambunctious, has overlapped into the political and policy-making field instead of being strictly an unthinking, disciplined war dog. Finally, he has been accused of initiating or maneuvering moves which would violate China's neutrality and possibly involve an all-out war with the Chinese Communists.

I think that pretty well sums up the case against MacArthur. Frankly, I have never been among the General's admirers myself so I could hardly be called prejudiced in his favor. Yet, on this PRESIDENT issue I think he's right. In fact, I think so strongly enough that, in spite of having thought pretty well of Truman for the first couple of years of his administration, I placed my name on a telegram a few days ago asking that the President be impeached—removed from office—for his actions in the present MacArthur matter.

No doubt that will qualify me for the list of columnists the President intends to personally punch in the nose when he's through presenting, but I honestly believe he is incapable of either the capacity or the dignity required of any man occupying his high position. So let him retire and start punching noses (although nothing is said about what some of the columnists are going to be doing while he is punching them).

Now, on the credit side of MacArthur's ledger, while he hasn't been a front-line general, he has been a remarkably able and experienced one. We invest millions of dollars in top, over-all commanders with experience enough to direct several armies at once and carry a mass of details and strategy around in his head. It is important, both to the men serving under him and to the nation, that he keeps that head and doesn't get it blown off in some wild display of personal bravery. In short, while MacArthur might have preferred being down where the fighting was hottest, the government simply couldn't risk having him blown up—and with him the strategy and conduct of the war. You can't just pick top commanders off trees.

Now as to the claim that MacArthur attempted to make policy as well as to command our armed forces, the simple fact is that he was and is a realist. He knew very well that Chinese "neutrality" is a myth and that we are already at war with the Chinese Communists. We're fighting them, aren't we? Well, then, why hem and haw about stepping over their border and literally bombing their bases to hell and back? The Chinese Reds in Korea are streaming in from China. They are flying their planes into Korea from China, then slipping back over the border where our planes may not pursue them. Why kill the horde of Red ants in Korea while more keep coming from the ant hill in China? If we are going to get rid of the ants there's nothing for it but to wipe out the hill from where they're coming—get their bases. For Truman to say that this might involve us in war with China when we're already at war with China is the height of something or other. MacArthur, being on the spot and having to be responsible for our military victory or defeat, naturally felt that he was fighting with his hands tied behind him. If we lost, he would be held responsible—and we couldn't win unless he could handle the Communists in his own way. You can't very well plan a campaign with politicians—some of them very near being Reds themselves—in far-away Washington gunning up your strategy.

Likewise, MacArthur wanted to accept Chiang Kai-shek's offer of a half million well trained and equipped Chinese nationalist troops in letting them come up into Korea and take care of the Chinese Reds. First, the Nationalists were old hands at fighting Communists. Secondly, a half million Nationalist troops would not only balance the half million Reds in Korea but would, at the same time, save a half million American and United Nations men. MacArthur wasn't thinking about the political situation between the Chinese Nationalists and Communists. He was thinking about getting the war over with. Realistically, he figured that you can't be too choosy about who helps you put out a fire when your house is burning. MacArthur is a soldier. He asked no questions. He had one job—to win that war.

Hold On To Your Hats, Mac Picks Kentucky Derby Winner

By HENRY McLEMORE

LOUISVILLE, Ky.—If I were you I wouldn't read another word of this column because it concerns my choice of the winner in tomorrow's seventy-seventh running of the Kentucky Derby.

The information comes right out of my own head, which means that it is very likely to be wrong, biased, nonsensical, or all three put together.

I doubt if there is a man in the United States who knows less about horses than I do. I'm afraid to ride them, afraid to pat them, and have yet to offer one a lump of sugar for fear he'd bite my hand off.

So if I were you I'd do almost anything rather than run the risk of reading any more of this dispatch from Louisville. It'll confuse you, and make you nervous, and probably cost you a little money to boot.

So turn over to the next page, or go know the laws, or build a picket fence, or wash the dog or prune an orchard or two.

I have been here since early in the week and have had ample time to gather information. But I can no more keep horse information in my head than a duck can keep water on its back. I have been at Churchill Downs at dawn and sat with the clockers. I have talked with Bill Corum, president of the track, trainers, owners and breeders. I have looked at all the horses, and studied them from all angles.

Lots of folks have told me to select Repetitive, the horse who doesn't know how to spell his own name. This attractive little beast has been out four times this season and won four times, which stamps him as consistent if nothing else.

But I am not going to choose him. I don't like his face, actually. He doesn't have a frank, honest countenance. He has a sort of horse face, if you know what I mean.

At this writing no one knows for sure what others will go to the post. Between now and the time for the parade to the post some of them are sure to come up with athletic foot, earache, fallen arches and the like and be scratched.

As for my choice of the winner, I am going to string along with Battle Morn. This one belongs to the Cain Holy stable, which means one of the Guggenheims owns him. If I haven't got Battle Morn mixed up with some other horse, he is by Blenheim II out of Good Morning by Sir Galahad III. And if I haven't these parents mixed up with other parents, Battle Morn's breeding means that he is a stayer and can carry his weight over a distance. Of course, my memory being what it is, Battle Morn's papa may be Black Beauty or Traveller.

carrying out his orders—to win the war—he should be forced to tell the American people what he was trying to do so that they could put a stop to the pinks and Russian-lovers and political hacks in Washington who were cutting his throat and preventing him from doing his duty—win the war. Of course, when MacArthur told the people what he was up against, his enemies raised the cry that he had overstepped into the POLITICAL field. What else could the poor country do? It was either tell the people, so they could take their home-grown pinks and Achesons off his neck so that he could do his duty of war-winning, or have his throat sliced from ear to ear and yet be expected to shoulder the responsibility of LOSING the war.

It is not to General Eisenhower's credit that he hoped MacArthur would not return to the United States and be a "storm-center."

WE NEED a storm-center so strong that it will blow every double-dealing crook out of Washington and establish a thorough house-cleaning. But then, what else could Eisenhower say? After all, he was jumped from a mere colonel over the heads of top-ranking army men by his sponsor, Roosevelt, he was James Roosevelt's choice for President, and even now he is playing ball with Truman and Acheson in getting us mixed up in a lot more European Jewlery. Eisenhower to the contrary, I hope MacArthur will be the instrument to bring about a

Prime Minister Nehru's warning to India's hundreds of deposed princes to cooperate with the government gives rise to the query of the query of just what has happened to these bejeweled potentates since the establishment of the republic.

The Premier told Parliament that a few of the rulers haven't appreciated the obligations that rest upon them under the new regime, and he cited the Gaekwar as being one of them.

The government is stripping the Gaekwar of his titles, privileges and $556,900 annual pension as punishment. And that is likely to hurt his highness mightily, for money runs through his fingers like millet seeds through a funnel. He is appealing his case. Meantime, his prerogatives have been turned over to his son.

Well now, how does it come about that the princes still retain some of the trappings of royalty under the republic? There were over 600 of these rulers under the empire, and many of them not only possessed fabulous wealth but had the power of life and death over their humble subjects. A great number of the old, and the maharajahs were proud of their prerogatives in other similar cases.

Obviously these principles and their rulers couldn't be abolished willy-nilly without compensation of some sort. So the Indian government decided to incorporate the states into the various Indian provinces and, where feasible, employ the princes as sub-governors with liberal powers. This is a logical arrangement, since the guidance of the old rulers is needed in some of the states. This scheme may change, of course, in succeeding generations.

In some cases several adjoining states have been merged into one. An example of this is seen in the great province of the Punjab where the principalities have been made into one, which is called Madhyabharat. The Maharajah of the former state of Patiala is governor. Another prince acts as sub-governor, an arrangement which also is in effect in other similar cases.

The state of Baroda was merged with Bombay province in 1949. The major change made against the Gaekwar grew out of this merger. He is accused of having challenged the constitution and engaged in disloyalty in contending that this merger was effected without his concurrence and wasn't warranted by the terms of his agreement with the Indian government.

The principality of Baroda has kept well in the lime-light over the generations. The most famous of all the Gaekwars was the grandfather of the current prince, who was ruling at the time of World War I. His philanthropies were international, and he did much for his people.

However, when I first visited India in 1918 the old Gaekwar was in trouble. He had fallen into royal disgrace with the King-Emperor, George V. Instead of backing away from the royal presence, the Gaekwar (a rather regal personality himself) turned too quickly and walked away. He explained it as being due to nervousness, but he was for a long time deprived of special prerogatives at vice-regal lodge in New Delhi.

The old Gaekwar was notoriously liberal with his children, which perhaps accounts for the leanings of the present generation. Harvard men of about that period may remember Prince Gaekwar, who was sent to Harvard with an allowance of half a million dollars a year. I saw him spending money like water in India. The Gaekwar's daughter, a young lady who had a mind of her own, eloped and married a prince of whom her dad didn't approve, and I was in New Delhi when she visited her father there for a reconciliation.

Now the old Gaekwar's descendants still have their place in the royal sun, but they must learn the ways of India's new life.

India's Princes Still Have A Place In Sun Under Republic

By DEWITT MACKENZIE

Prime Minister Nehru's warning to India's hundreds of deposed princes to cooperate with the government gives rise to the query of the query of just what has happened to these bejeweled potentates since the establishment of the republic.

WASHINGTON—Although General Douglas MacArthur's spectacular reappearance on the American scene has presented the administration and the Democrats with a difficult challenge on the eve of the 1952 elections, he has also given considerable disfigurement to fellow-Republicans, especially to would-be presidential candidates.

He has even upset the so-called Dixiecrats' political plan.

He has driven many prominent GOP-ers to take a definite stand on the Truman-Acheson policies in Europe and Asia, whereas they had hoped to avoid this practical and emotional issue until it had been clarified or eliminated by future events, including possible war with Russia.

Without meaning to be unfair to the on-the-fence honorables, he has forced them to lay down their cards at a time when they would prefer to "hold them close to their chest" until next spring.

HAVOC—Not a single Republican prospect has escaped MacArthur's line of fire. Having no political ambitions himself, he did not mind whom he hit—hurt—although it is doubtful if even he realizes the havoc he seems to have wrought in current American politics.

The only 1952 possibility who has not been embarrassed by these dramatic developments is Sen. Robert A. Taft of Ohio. To him MacArthur has meant a reinforcement, and the Ohioan has been quick to take advantage of this fresh support.

PROBLEM—Mr. Taft has embraced the MacArthur doctrine so wholeheartedly—and this is another major consequence of the general's abrupt firing—that the GOP lineup today finds the

But Sebald had something to do with that lucky break, too.

It happened this way: When Armo Steel was only six years old, Sebald held a job to work for the firm as an office-boy. From the beginning he started studying the business. He asked questions. He learned all he could about the steel business. He spent his own time studying the steel business.

Then, one day, a contractor called on how to install a steel being office boy, nor to salesman. There was nobody available to send except that extraordinary office boy who knew so much about the steel business. Apparently all the contractor wanted was free advice anyway, so Sebald, the office boy, was sent.

When he came back he had big order for galvanized sheets. He was promptly promoted to the job of salesman. And he just kept on getting promoted in a pretty much the same way right on up to the job of president.

"There was always some 'break,' which is just another way of saying there was always some 'opportunity' for his extra work and study to pay off. They would not have been 'breaks' to an office boy who thought only about being office boy, nor to a salesman who thought only about being a salesman. 'Breaks' come to those who prepare for them. They come only to those who 'ask' for them. Sebald 'asked for it,' and he got success. Many others 'ask for' failure and they get that, too.

A grade school music teacher had been working on majors and minors. At the end of the lesson he turned to a little boy and asked: "Teacher—Can you tell me what a minor is?" "Boy—it's somebody too young to tell liquor to."

Boy—I want to be a bone specialist. Father—Well, you've got the head for it.

 At a brief meeting last night, County Auditor Ray Wilson estimated a bond issue would cost individual taxpayers seven, six and five cents per hundred dollar taxable valuation for 20 year bonds.
 Amplifying, Wilson said:
 "On rough figuring, this would mean a seven cent rate through 1958; a six cent rate through 1967; and a five cent rate through 1971."
 Citing a $10,000 property as an example, the auditor suggested it would cost the owner "no more than 70 cents the first few years on the present basis of tax levying."
 Boosters of the bond issue were scheduled to meet today to organize a campaign they hope will result in carrying the election.

OKLAHOMA CITY — (AP) — Wesley Sanford worked like a plow horse last Sunday to get a garden planted on his 1.2-acre tract.
 A rain fell that night and he envisioned bushels of lush vegetables for his efforts.
 Sanford rushed home from work last night to see if any of the seeds had come up yet.
 As he entered his house, his wife greeted him with: "Guess what I've done? I've just finished plowing and raking the garden plot so you can go out and plant the seeds."

Knowland's protest dealt with messages exchanged between MacArthur and the Pentagon about bombing operations in Korea itself.

"I knew that our air force was under some restrictions in going north of the Yalu (river), but I had no understanding that there were restrictions within Korea itself, which was under aggression from the Chinese Communists," Knowland said.

He added that this material "is pertinent" and ought to be included in the public records of the committee's hearings.

MacArthur told the senators yesterday that he was first instructed not to bomb within five miles of the Yalu, the boundary between Korea and Manchuria.

That would have meant the Chinese Communists, pouring in to Korea last fall, could come in for five miles without air attack. MacArthur said this first order was changed after he protested vigorously and he then was allowed to bomb to the border. He testified his planes then were permitted to bomb to the middle of the bridges over the river.

 All along, the forecasters of a crop flop have had their skeptics, for spring is an open season for pessimism. One Kansas editor commented that the crop forecasters kill in every winter wheat in the spring than all the foul weather and insects combined. Somehow a crop gets harvested, the editor reminded.
 If the pessimism is borne out in the harvest, there's the stored reserves to fall back on and the spring wheat planting. The latter usually equals one-third to one-half of the winter production.
 Here's a summary by states—winter wheat:
 Kansas—the prediction of 125,000,000 bushels is 64,000,000 under the 10-year average; best production expected in central area with heavy abandonment southwestward to Colorado line; situation worst in Big Bend county where farmers expect poorest crop since 1936 when 87 percent of acreage abandoned.
 Oklahoma—outlook worst since 1936; 27,272 bushels harvested in 1936; Santa Fe railroad forecast of 30,000,000 bushels well below earlier federal prediction of 41,880,000 and less than half 10-year average of 73,998,000; half of planted acreage given up in southwestern and west central areas with remaining stands thin and headed short.
 Texas—Santa Fe estimates 19,248,000 bushels, worst since 1936; 95 percent loss in Young county reported by County Agent R. O. Dunkiel Wichita Falls Record-News survey found in 28 county area of North Texas and Oklahoma only one bushel yield expected for four last year.
 Colorado—outlook of all with forecast of 34,430,000 bushels, four million under last year's crop but about equal to the 10-year average; Floyd Reed, U. S. Department of Agriculture, said of 3,443,000 acres planted 860,750 have been given up in southeastern counties.

Texas Will Get Three Defense Radar Stations

WASHINGTON — (AP) — The government plans to place modern airport surveillance radar installations at three points in Texas during the year beginning July 1.

The Texas points will be a part of a 28-unit program set up for the United States, Alaska and Hawaii.

These devices, which scan the skies and detect planes within a 30-mile radius, will be civilian installations, but will be closely tied in with the national defense set-up.

Plans for the radar installations were disclosed in House Appropriations subcommittee testimony made public today.

Their value for identification purposes in wartime is obvious, a CAA spokesman said.

He added that the radars are to be placed "in general" at airports handling a heavy volume of traffic. He noted, however, that many of the sites are adjacent to strategic defense areas.

The installations are proposed at Nashville, Tenn.; Corpus Christi, Tex.; Louisville, Ky.; Burbank, Calif.; Buffalo, N. Y.; Oklahoma City, Okla.; Baltimore, Md.; Knoxville, Tenn.

Dayton, O.; Long Beach, Calif.; Fort Worth, Tex.; Harrisburg, Pa.; Providence, R. I.; San Antonio, Tex.; Norfolk, Va.; Columbus, O.; Covington, Ky.; Jacksonville, Fla.; Memphis, Tenn.; Birmingham, Ala.; New Orleans, La.; Denver, Colo., and Salt Lake City, Utah.

Those outside the U. S. would be located at Annette Island and Fairbanks, Alaska, and Honolulu.

President Truman told his news conference yesterday he personally approved the orders. DiSalle urged they be given "a fair trial."

The order calls for progressive reductions in the amount slaughterers may pay for live cattle. It also provides for retail cutbacks of about nine cents a pound by Oct. 1.

L. R. Shaddix, representing the district Office of Price Stabilization in Lubbock, will be in Pampa Monday to conduct classes for local and area businessmen who need additional information on OPS Regulations.

Shaddix will be the first of four specialists who will be here each Monday in May to assist businessmen in complying with the federal pricing program.

First clinic Monday will concern Regulation 7, and amendment No. 2 which includes the following categories: musical instruments, radio and television sets, phonographs, recorders, records, housewares, notions, luggage, sporting goods, silverware, chinaware, glassware, jewelry, watches and clocks.

Retailers in this category are required to file pricing charts by May 30. Shaddix is a specialist in the consumer durable goods branch of the OPS, but he will be able to give information concerning other regulations, particularly the General Ceiling Price Regulation.

Regulation 11, concerning cafe and all food handlers, will be covered in a clinic Monday, May 14. A regulation governing farm machinery, new and used cars and building materials will be explained and discussed in a meeting Monday, May 21. The final clinic will be held Monday, May 28, covering Regulations 14, 15 and 16, which

Alan Is Popular Ladd Around Hollywood Offices These Days

By BOB THOMAS HOLLYWOOD — (AP) — Alan Ladd is the envy of his fellow stars these days. He's being serenaded by virtually every producer in town. The reason for all this wooing is that Ladd has a year and four months to go on his Paramount contract. Now this may seem like a long stretch to us but it's a short time in terms of star contracts.

Already Ladd has negotiated a deal with Warner Brothers, which he expects to sign soon. It will be one of the most unusual star contracts ever made. It is a one-picture-a-year deal to last 10 years. The star will reportedly get $150,000 a picture plus a whopping 10 percent of the world gross. And the contract won't go into effect for 18 months.

Even the modest Ladd couldn't hide his delight with his newfound popularity. When the "Rage of the Vulture" company broke up for lunch, he told me: "I might as well get the best deal I can. You can get the gravy in this business only so long and then you're through. So I'm going to take all the traffic will allow." Ladd mentioned some regrets at leaving Paramount. "You can't help but feel some sadness at leaving the place where you've been for 10 years," he explained. "But we reached an impasse on signing a new exclusive deal. I want some say in the stories I do, but that's the one thing they won't give up. "I'm tired of being thrown into anything. People don't realize that I don't have anything to say about stories and they blame me for some of the pictures I have been in. Exhibitors have even come up to me and said, 'why do you let them put you into something like "Captain Carey, USA"?' I try to explain that it's not my decision at all." The star has made no secret of the fact that he has been dissatisfied with the vehicles provided him. His favorite picture is "This Gun For Hire," and that was his first one at Paramount. Since then his vehicles have ranged from good to fair

Workers Due Latin Paper

BUENOS AIRES — (AP) — President Peron's announcement that La Prensa, closed independent newspaper, would be turned over to "the workers" stirred speculation today it might appear soon as a publication of the government-sponsored labor federation.

The president, in a May Day speech yesterday to thousands of his followers, asserted that "the newspaper which represented the crudest form of treason to this country will pay for its sins by serving the working people in defending their gains and sovereign rights." He said the newspaper will be handed "to the workers in the form they indicate" as soon as expropriation proceedings are completed.

La Prensa, a frequent critic of the administration, was taken over by action of Congress last month. It has been closed since late in January by boycotts, strikes and court action. Peron's reference to "the workers" apparently meant those in the government-supported general confederation of workers. This group has urged that La Prensa be given to its leaders for use as a government labor publication.

Bells Pastor Seeks Dollars

BELLS — (AP) — The insatiable curiosity of the average American is expected to be the major factor that may lure thousands to this tiny northeastern Grayson County town Sunday.

Promptly at 1 p. m. the Rev. S. M. Baxton Bryant, pastor of the Bells Methodist Church, plans to unroll a string of one-dollar bills from a spot located a measured mile from the site of the burned ruins of the Bells church. This string will have approximately 7,500 $1 bills.

By 4 p. m. the red-haired pastor hopes enough people will have viewed the string of dollars — and added enough bucks — to complete the "mile dollars." This will make 10,500 dollar bills — each bill measuring six inches in length. That is the amount needed to complete the construction of the Methodist church that burned to the ground last Thanksgiving Day. The 80-year-old edifice had only $5,000 in insurance and the church congregation, with no big money members, boosted the total to nearly $20,000.

Cartooning Talk Given At Miami Club Meeting

MIAMI — (Special) — Members of the Men's Service club were entertained this week by Hut Hutson, of Amarillo, who gave a talk on the "Enjoyment of Cartooning."

Misses Myrna Montgomery and Myles Mathers played a piano duet. Explorer Scouts were special guests of the club and three of them, with Scoutmaster Woody Pond, presented a humorous stunt. The club voted to co-sponsor with the Miami Business Men's club, a brochure on Miami and Roberts county history, which will be illustrated by Hutson.

A film on Texas Tech, Lubbock, was shown by Carroll Wilson, high school agricultural teacher. In 1950 the electric utility industry in the United States used more than 90 million tons of coal. Whales which reach a length of 100 feet and a weight of 200 tons are mammals.

Our Boy goes to CHURCH

WHAT a fine lad he is! How proud we are of him! And now he goes to Church and the Church School. There he will worship and learn to love the great and the good; he will hear the most "wonderful story ever told," of the love and graciousness of God, as revealed in a human person. He will fellowship with other children who are learning to know and to serve God. This is a splendid picture. How we wish that all the boys in the land would do as this fine chap who is on the way that leads to life!

WHERE are the other three boys who make up three-fourths of our boy population? Perhaps their parents were too busy doing "practical things" on Sunday morning when they could have been leading their children by the hand to Sunday School and Church. Boys go to church better if they are brought by worshipping parents than if they are "sent by indifferent fathers and mothers." Our children will follow pretty much in our steps, and will take the same Sunday paths that we follow.

EVERY child born in a Christian land has a right to the advantages of religion. We do them an injustice if we fail to give them their rightful heritage of faith and hope and love. These are the Goods which will abide when other things fail us. Let's give our children the best. Since they are minds and souls as well as bodies, they have a right to expect of us good food for their higher nature as well as shelter and food for their bodies. Let's live with them in reverence toward God and in goodwill toward all men. The Church is ours to use and ours to serve. Shall we deny ourselves and our children the high and noble values of civilization?

YOU IN THE CHURCH
THE CHURCH IN YOU

Character is a by-product of the church. It is here that young and old alike are showered with benedictions that fortify and influence for a better citizenship and a stronger democracy. In the church the ministers are molding religious character. Statements today declare that the church alone can furnish leadership to handle the affairs of state in these perilous times. Then we with our children should go to the church of our choice on Sunday. "You in the Church and the Church in you" - form a combination for good. Be a regular CHURCH-GOER and a daily BIBLE READER.

A Hymn Is Born

BY CLINT BONNER

Just as I Am

The doctor stopped his carriage at the Anglican parsonage in Brighton, England. But there was nothing in his medicine kit to help the paralyzed sister of the Rev. Henry V. Elliott. He was calling to offer his usual word of cheer and to leave one of the little leaflets he had brought to distribute among his shut-in patients.

The leaflets were selling all over England, he said, and were being translated into many foreign languages. And for a good cause, too. Someone had written a poem to help finance the building of a school for children of poor clergymen. It sold so at the top of the page... "Sold for the benefit of St. Margaret's Hall, Brighton." Under that, the line, "Him that cometh to me I will in no wise cast out." Then came the six-verse poem.

Everybody in town had helped. That is, everybody except her... a 46-year-old spinster who could hardly drag about the room.

Lonely and helpless, she had written a poem to console other invalids. She had sent it to a publisher in the hope that from its sale she could contribute a few shillings to her brother's school. And now, her little poem was bringing in more revenue than all the bazaars the town could give.

The doctor was pleased with his call. He had left his patient so happy that she was crying.

The following year Charlotte Elliott published a whole book of hymns and she wrote many another before she died at the age of 82. Perhaps the good doctor might have kept a little himself that day in 1834 had he known it was his patient who had written...

Just as I am, without one plea,
But that Thy blood has shed for me,
And that Thou bidst me come to Thee,
O Lamb of God, I come! I come!

Just as I am—poor, wretched, blind,
Sight, riches, healing of the mind,
Yes, all I need in Thee to find,
O Lamb of God, I come! I come!

Just as I am, though tossed about
With many a conflict, many a doubt,
Fighting and fearing within, without,
O Lamb of God, I come! I come!

Owe no man anything, but to love one another; for he that loveth another hath fulfilled the law. —Romans

Charity is quite as rare as wisdom, but when charity does appear, it is known by its patience and endurance. —Mary Baker Eddy

United We Stand; Divided We Fall

By WILLIAM E. GILROY, D.D.
The famous saying, "United we stand; divided we fall," never had more forceful illustration than in the history of the Jewish people.

Shortly after the time of David and Solomon, the nation was divided by the successful revolt of 10 tribes led by Jeroboam. Two tribes, remaining loyal to Rehoboam, Solomon's son, comprised the Southern Kingdom, or Kingdom of Judah, and were hostile toward the newly-formed Northern Kingdom.

In a little over 200 years the Northern Kingdom fell under the armies of Assyria, never to be reestablished; and 158 years later, in 586 B. C., the Southern Kingdom fell, and its people were carried off in exile to Babylon. From that exile, of course, there was the glorious return and reestablishment of the Jews in their homeland, described in the Books of Ezra and Nehemiah. From that exile, too, there was a great recovery in Babylon itself.

But the bitterness of that caused it, is set forth in the story of the invasion, and in exile, and of the events that the tragic 137th Psalm. That period of Jewish history, approximating in years the entire period of American history, surely constitutes a warning against division and internal strife.

Many chapters of the Old Testament, read individually and casually, must involve considerable confusion to a reader, unless the whole story, and some broad framework of events and movements is borne in mind. It may help, if I suggest a brief outline of what occurred.

Following the return of the Jews from Egypt, the people were ruled by Judges, one of the greatest of whom was the woman, Deborah. The account of that period is in the Books of Joshua and Judges.

Then came the great leader, Samuel, grown from the little boy in the temple, who combined in himself the functions of prophet, priest, and king. But the people wanted a king, in reality, and not in name only, and so they complained to Samuel.

As a result, Saul became their leader. But his reign ended with a suicide, in a disastrous battle that marked a low ebb in Israel's defeat. Then came David, a man of war and vigor, despite the tradition of the shepherd-boy and the harp-playing, Psalm-writing King. He fought down his enemies, and made the king-dog strong.

Solomon "in all his glory" extended its bounds, and made it stronger still. But much of that glory was built upon exploitation and oppression, and on Solomon's death the people cried out for an alleviation of their burdens.

It will be remembered that Rehoboam, Solomon's son, asked advice from the older men, who advised him to yield, but followed the advice of the younger men, who advised him to show them who was the master. It was then that Jeroboam came up from Egypt, where he had escaped after leading an unsuccessful rebellion. Now he succeeded in dividing the nation, with the movement toward doom that I have cited above.

"History repeats itself," and what is happening in Palestine today recalls much that happened long ago, giving a contemporary aspect to the interesting and inspiring story of Nehemiah.

Revival In Progress At Pentecostal Holiness

FIRST WITH PEDIGREE
Thoroughbred racehorses first were developed in England. A horse called Dodsworth, bred by Charles II, is reputed to be the first racehorse on record possessed of an authentic pedigree.

Although a soldier is holding an American flag in the stern of the boat in the famous painting of Washington crossing the Delaware, the flag had not been designed at that time.

Mobile Phone Aids Hospitalized Veterans

NEW YORK — (AP) — The "telecart," a mobile telephone, now makes it possible for bed-ridden veterans, who could not otherwise make or receive calls, to keep in touch with the folks back home.

The new device, which resembles a teacart with a telephone on top, was developed by the New York Telephone Co. for use in veterans' hospitals. The machine, first tried out in 1945, was standardized in 1949.

When a bed-ridden patient wants to make or receive a call, the telecart is moved by a hospital attendant to his bedside and connected by a long cord to the nearest telephone outlet installed in the wall. The portable phone is equipped to hold an incoming call until the patient is ready to receive it.

President Truman's proposal to "freeze" farm parity at the beginning of each marketing season is sure to meet stiff opposition in Congress. Some legislators predict they will still be wrangling over the issue when the present price and wage control law expires June 30. The Newschart above, based on data from the Department of Agriculture and the National Industrial Conference Board, shows how farm prices have stood in relation to the parity (so-called fair price) figure of 100 over the past 40 years. Farm prices are considered a weak link in present price controls. The law exempts farm products from control as long as they're below parity. The difficulty is that every spark of inflation sends the parity level a little higher, so that prices of farm items now below parity—such as potatoes, oranges and dairy products—might go sky high and still never reach parity's "magic level."
