Two Old Soldiers Clash On Politics

By ED CREAUGH
WASHINGTON (AP) — Two old soldiers, heavy with honors: George Catlett Marshall, Virginia squire, 70, grey-haired, reserved; Douglas MacArthur, deposed ruler of a deposed empire — 71, black-haired, by turns aloof and warmly genial.

They've much in common, these generals, besides the closeness of their ages. (MacArthur is about 11 months older than Marshall.) Both served with distinction in World War I, rose to the peak of military eminence in World War II. Each was more than a soldier; Marshall became secretary of state, later secretary of defense. MacArthur ran occupied Japan.

But look at the headlines: "MacArthur Charges Marshall Favored Chinese Reds," "Marshall Declares MacArthur Spoiled Peace Change."

They're firing at each other, now, in the great foreign policy debate — the one which President Truman said "is not a political issue — it is a matter of life and death."

Marshall is on the President's side, MacArthur is against both of them — on some key questions of how to fight the Chinese Reds. The three profess a common purpose: preventing World War III.

This was the first time MacArthur and Marshall have clashed. In World War II, in the aftermath of Batavia, MacArthur and again raised a cry for troops, says, plans to fight Japan. Marshall, as army chief of staff, often turned him down, until the war in Europe was won. "Europe first" was the decision then. MacArthur still demands at least equal priority for Asia.

There's a Pentagon scuffle about the Marshall-McArthur split is more personal than this.

Marshall was promoted to Brigadier-general in 1936 on the recommendation of the World War I leader, Gen. John J. Pershing, says after MacArthur had attained that rank. MacArthur, who was chief of staff from 1930 to 1935, was reported at the time to have held up Marshall's promotion.

Some say and others deny that a "coolness" developed between them during that period.

JUST SWELL!—Three-year-old Michael Canade was the sweetheart of Detroit policewomen when he was brought to the police station after being found lost on a street corner. The policewomen and matrons petted him and fed him candy bars. They wondered at his strange method of chewing. Then he walked his mother, who explained: "Michael has the mumps."

Anti-Commie Bill Is Due

AUSTIN (AP) — Communists are barred from state employment in the big state spending bill up for legislative consideration this week.

The bill says that no person in state employment can draw his salary until he has filed an oath saying he is not and never has been a member of the Communist Party.

He also must swear that he has been a member of the Communist Party for any organization listed by the U. S. attorney general as totalitarian, Fascist, Communist or subversive, or a Communist front organization.

Previously, state employees have been required to take a loyalty oath saying only that they were not Communists.

JACOBY ON CANASTA

Take A Smart Melding Tip
By OSWALD JACOBY
Written for NEA Service

This brings us to a conclusion that good players have known about for a long time. Don't take the spread for your mind meld, but until the pile amounts to something worth taking. The only reasonable exception to this rule is when you have a really good play for a fast out.

Read The News Classified Ads.

Let's see what you stand to gain from such a play. Then we can compare it with what you stand to lose.

When you take the spread and meld six cards out of your hand, you are then left with six cards, from which you must select a discard. With five unmatched cards and no deuce you are not in good position to go out.

If your partner happens to fit your queens and tens, he may be in position to go out fairly soon. For that purpose he must have a really good hand — enough queens or tens or wild cards to complete a canasta in some way, and then a balance of mediocre cards.

The odds are your hand against your partner's having such a hand. But even if he has a good hand, he does not particularly help you. He would be able to make his initial meld himself, and perhaps would be able to get the discard pile if you had not melded.

At most you get a queen from you. Perhaps you would find never to draw a queen, so this was your only chance to make your meld.

This gain is so slight that you can put it in your own pocket comfortably. Now let's see what you stand to lose by melding so quickly.

When you reduce to five cards, one of the opponents will probably freeze the pack soon afterwards. Then your partner will have to fight those against two opponents, since your hand is practically worthless. The odds are very good that the opponent will get and been control of the discard pile. Meanwhile, you are in poor position to meld out, and your partner must well be in equally poor position.

Poet-Psychologist Is Given Tribute By Medical Journal

By SAUL PATT
NEW YORK (AP)—Among other distinctions, Merrill Moore is one of our few poets, if not our only poet, whose work is reviewed in medical journals.

His latest little volume, "Illegitimate Sonnets" (Twayne Publishers), was favorably received by the New England Journal of Medicine, along with some non-lyrical works titled "A Primer of Venous Pressure," "Pathology in General Surgery" and "The Abnormal Pneumocephalogram."

The medical interest in Moore's non-medical, uninhibited, realistic poems is easily explained. For, besides being the world's most prolific producer of sonnets, he is a long distance swimmer (who at 48 still cravels two miles just for exercise) and an industrious sea shell collector. Moore also is a prominent Boston psychiatrist.

He believes he is the first poet to have his work reviewed in the New England Journal of Medicine since Dr. Oliver Wendell Holmes.

Dr. Moore also has been reviewed by lay critics. Those who liked his poetry said of him: "Kinsey in verse," "acute insight," "... Dr. Moore's therapy for the repressed tradition sonnet has released its inhibitions and shown it how to go out and have a good time."

Dr. Moore, a tall, ruddy man with greying brown hair and an easy manner, estimates that in the past 30 years he has written more than 100,000 sonnets.

He has published about 2,000 sonnets. "Only about one out of 20," he says, "is worth printing. But I'd rather write 10 lousy sonnets and lose one good one than wait and wait and not write any at all."

The poet-psychiatrist's father was John Trotwood Moore, a writer of highly romantic novels. Dr. Moore's poetry is far from orthodox.

"Psychoanalytically, I suppose, I was competing with my father," he explains. "But I find it easier to write sonnets than to write them. They provide an escape from my work, a chance at self-study and an opportunity to set my fantasies down."

One-third of his poetic characters, he estimates, are drawn from his patients and friends, one-third from his imagination and one-third "are just me."

Dr. Moore grabs at any free moment to create his poetry. He composes between patients, dictates to a portable recorder in his car (someone else does the driving) and writes late at night at home.

Frequently Dr. Moore finds himself writing a sonnet without understanding it immediately.

"I think the creative unconscious," he explains, "writes the poem. It comes up, as if on a dumb-waiter, from the cellar kitchen of the mind, and the conscious mind writes it down. Putting it another way, it's cooked by the unconscious and served by the conscious."

Briton Hints China Trade May Be Cut

LONDON (AP)—A labor government spokesman has hinted Britain is ready to cut off all exports of strategic materials to Red China if the United Nations so decrees.

Sir Hartley Shawcross, president of the board of trade, told the House of Commons Britain bought 2,700,000 pounds sterling ($3,500,000) worth of goods from Red China in the first quarter of this year. He said British exports to Red China in the last 15 months totalled 4,900,000 pounds sterling ($1,720,000).

Defending the labor government against criticism of its trade with China, Sir Hartley said:

"It has not so far been the policy of the United Nations to impose economic sanctions against China, and we have not ourselves prohibited all trade. We are in close consultation with other friendly powers and our present practice is certainly no less restrictive than that of other friendly countries, apart from the United States."

Shawcross told the House there have been "exchanges of view" between Britain and the U.S. in the matter of exports to China.

An independent member, Raymond Blackburn asked "if it not high time the government woke up and stopped making vast profits out of people against whom our boys have been fighting?" Blackburn last week filed a censure motion against the government on the China exports issue.

Pretzel 90 Years Old

LITITZ (AP)—This town is gift-wrapping little boxes, filled with a famous tidbit, and sending them to President Truman, the veep and all 96 U.S. senators.

Largesse by the scrupulous will be lavished on everybody here. Schoolkids are getting a special mid-week holiday.

And the whole community of 5,000 people, to say nothing of a lot of outsiders who are coming for the festivities, means to have more fun than it's ever had in a not too exciting history.

All this fuss is being made because the pretzel—American variety—is 90 years old today. Joining in the birthday celebration in the town where the pretzel first was made in this country is Senator James H. Duff (R-Pa.) and other important men.

Besides the pretzels shipped to Washington, stacks of them are being handed out free in stores, at street corners and at the N. D. Sturgis factory where a plaque will be unveiled. The Sturgis plant is said to be one of the oldest pretzel factories in the world.

Domestic Crude Production Up

TULSA (AP)—Domestic crude oil production during the week ended May 5 continued its record-breaking trend and climbed to a daily average of 6,107,825 barrels, the Oil and Gas Journal has reported.

In netting its third straight all time high above the 6,000,000 barrel mark, the industry's output was 23,875 barrels above the previous week's record.

Most of the net gain was in Texas production, up 18,255 barrels to 2,743,000 barrels.

Shortage Of Trained Men Aiding College Graduates

NEW YORK (AP)—The shortage of trained men is coming to the aid of this year's college graduate even if the draft board is breathing down his neck.

Big corporations are hiring men they need in the June crop even when they're 1-A in the draft, the Northwestern National Life Insurance Co. reports in a survey of college placement officials. Smaller firms often seek veterans rather than the younger collegians, but the big firms are choosing a desirable man, even if for only a few months' work before military service, and offering to have his job waiting on his return.

"Large concerns hire men subject to draft, after careful selection," says the University of Washington at Seattle. "Smaller companies are trying hard to get men they are more certain of keeping."

The biggest demand is for engineers.

Bureau Director Robert C. Goodwin says that at least 30,000 engineering graduates are needed annually.

The Engineering Manpower Commission of the Engineers Joint Council says that engineering schools would have to train 30,000 more students a year just to maintain peacetime requirements of industry.

The manpower demand isn't

Sandies Lose First Tilt To Bronchos

AMARILLO (AP)—Odessa's Bronchos won the all-important District 1-AA championship baseball series opener with a 13-6 decision over the Amarillo Sandies here Tuesday afternoon.

Second game is booked for Odessa Thursday afternoon. The third game, if necessary, will be played there the following afternoon.

Odessa led off on the three Sandie pitchers for nine hits but Amarillo got only two less off all-state Garland Fuqua.

The defending state champions got started much quicker.

Fuqua didn't allow but one run and two hits until the Sandies got to him for five more and five hits in the seventh.

Sports Round-Up

By HUGH FULLERTON, JR.
NEW YORK (AP)—The Southern California track team trimmed UCLA Saturday 1-2 to 3-2, it was the decisive 42nd consecutive meet without a defeat.

Counting out the war years, they haven't lost to a collegiate opponent since 1933. You'd think that should satisfy them, but they already have their eyes on the 1952 Olympics.

For instance, there's Sim Iness, a six-foot-six discus thrower who bettered 170 feet last year. He has been having scholastic difficulties but expects to have them solved by next spring.

Dean Cromwell figures that the guy most likely to hit 200 feet with the discus. Then there's freshman Jim Lea, who has run the 220-yard hurdles in 23.3 seconds and looks like an Olympic "cinch" in the 400-meter hurdles.

Of course, he can't match sophomore Jack Davis in the low yet. Still another soph, Parry O'Brien, has put the shot 55 feet 4 1/2 inches, which makes him a threat to Jim Fuchs' records. No wonder Californians find track meets interesting.

Lobos Edge Berger In Mound Duel, 4-3

LAMESA (AP)—Ed Arthur bested Earl Butler in a tight mound duel here last night before a sparse crowd of 339, as the Lamesa Lobos edged the Berger Gassers, 4-3, in the opener of a two-game series.

Arthur annexed his third win scattering nine hits — all singles — and fanning six, while Butler collected two batters. The Lobos collected 10 hits off Butler, former Gasser outfielder, who was making his first start on the mound after several relief appearances.

Lamesa scored what proved to be the winning run in the seventh when Perfo Santiago beat out a bunt and went to second as Butler threw wildly past first. Don Stokes scored Santiago with a one base smash to right-center.

The Lobos had to quell a Gasser rally in the ninth to save the game. Windy Eldridge opened with a single, and Woddy Fennington walked. Bob Cluey, batting for Ed Brawley, singled to right to score Eldridge.

Arthur then bore down to whiff Bill Dennis, and pinch hitter Homer Matney grounded into a game-ending double play.

Matthews Up Tonight; Lobos In Tomorrow

For the third time in as many meetings this year the Albuquerque Dukes of Hershel Martin's whipped the Pampa Oilers. This time it was in a wind-blown high-scoring battle at Oiler Park with the Dukes grabbing the 11-10 victory. Several rally attempts by the Oilers were snuffed out in the late stanzas by some fine pitching and good fielding plays.

Tonight the two clubs continue their series at Oiler Park with lefty George Matthews due to start for the Oilers against right-hander Don Cantrell for the Dukes. Matthews won a beautiful 3-2 duel his last time out. It will be the final game of this brief two-game set between the two clubs. Thursday night the Lamesa Lobos move in for a two-night series to be followed by the Abilene Blue Sox for a pair.

Last night's game was played in a high wind that kept the ball doing tricks as far as the fielders were concerned.

Neither starting pitcher was able to survive the first frame. Mack Hyde was tagged for four hits and four runs before he gave way to righthander Howard Bass, who had fair sailing until derailed for a pinch hitter in the seventh. Steve Lagomarsino, who started for the Dukes, left in the first inning also, after he was socked for four runs and but one hit and three walks. His relief, Lee Zamora, was also tagged for a run in the first inning before the Oilers would give up, giving Pampa 5-4 lead at the end of one inning.

The Oilers had several chances for rallies, but each time something sailed. Several times it was fine fielding plays on the part of shortstop Freddie Haller that stopped the drive.

The Dukes got their four in the first on four hits sandwiched around a pair of walks and mixed in with a double play, driving Hyde to the showers and bringing on Bass.

The Oilers came right back with Gil Castillo leading off with a home run, his third of the year. An infield out, followed by three straight walks, brought on Zamora, who promptly hit Whitehorn to force across run number two. After Davis was called out on strikes, Francis Rice singled to left and went to second on an error by the left fielder, but was thrown out at third in an attempt to stretch it. In the meantime, basemen Jeffrey I for 0 in 0 (faced 2 hitters), and the Oilers came out of the weird first with a 5-4 lead.

In the second the Oilers moved ahead on three hits and walk, scoring twice.

But the Dukes came back in the third to move ahead 6-4 in keeps. Hyde scored four more times on two hits, a walk and two errors. And just to make certain, they scored three more in the fifth. Five base hits, a walk and an error did the damage. Included in the Oilers' tally was a wind-blown double by Cutti that landed midway between the mound and home plate.

The Oilers tried in the seventh when Richardson slammed a long home run over the left centerfield fence with two on to close the gap to the final score. That was all the Oilers could do however.

In the ninth the Oilers managed to get runners as far as first and second but they died there as the Oiler hitters were ineffective against the twirling of righthander Jesse Priest, the third Duke hurler.

Mahatma's Masterminding Keeps Opposition Guessing

(By The Associated Press)
Branch Rickey's manipulations with the Pittsburgh Pirates makes that old 'who's on first, what's on second' gag as outmoded as a day game in St. Louis.

Pittsburgh fans were prepared for some changes with the announcement last winter that Rickey had been lured from Brooklyn to take over the reins of the Buccaneers.

But who would have been so clairvoyant as to foresee that Ralph Kiner, the home run hitting outfielder, would be playing first base this year? Or that Pete Reiser, who did some infielding and outfielding in his day, would be classed as a catcher? Or that they'd live to see their club experiment with a left-handed receiver?

Just when the bewildered faithful get used to these sudden switches to and behold, Rickey really sends them reeling.

More than one reader of the sports pages must have wondered what's up when he saw the Pittsburgh box score for Tuesday's game. It shows a leftfielder Ebbets Field. They split a pair in at first, a centerfielder at third, a shortstop at second and a third baseman at short. If the reader is befuddled, how must those perplexed Pittsburghers feel?

There is a method to Rickey's madness as there is to everything this celebrated brainbuster does. The crazy, bushy-browed mahatma's daily shifts have been more confusing than amusing to the opposition.

Ask those pennant hungry Dodgers. Or the contending Boston Braves. Or the defending Philadelphia Phillies. All experienced a taste of the Rickey switch and look what happened. The Pirates swept both games at Boston but had the satisfaction of slapping a no-hitter on the hard-hitting Braves. Last night, they drubbed the Phils under the Philadelphia lights, 9-3.

It took the Phils eight innings before they finally scored off Mel Tolan. It probably took them that long to get over their surprise at seeing the Pirates take the field with centerfielder Wally Westlake at third, third baseman Pete Castiglione at short and shortstop George Strickland at second. Kiner, of course, was at first. That made a completely revamped infield.

Except for an error by Westlake, the new lineup did right well in the field.

The Pirates, consigned to the cellar again, currently are clinging to third place, ahead of Brook-

Blue Sox Rally To Trim Clovis

ABILENE (AP)—The Blue Sox broke a seven-inning drought with a five-run thunderstorm in the eighth to defeat the Clovis Pioneers, 9-7, in a series opener here last night.

Two new pitchers, lefty Charles Davis and a rookie righthander, little Miguel Avila, made their debuts for the Blue Sox and did right well except in two innings. Davis departed after the sixth when the Pioneers choked the bases and collected two runs.

Avila got the Sox out for two innings and the first two batters in the ninth, then a walk and a single was followed by a Knight's home run over the right field wall. Chuck Novotney accommodatingly ended the game by flying out to Weidon Day in left field.

Mayfield Gets Buff Grid Post

CANYON (AP)—Odis Crowell, line coach at West Texas State College since 1948, has resigned his post here to take a similar one at the University of Arizona, the school announced today.

Gene Mayfield, who quarterbacked the Border Conference champions last year, was named to replace Crowell on the Buff staff.

Under a general realignment of duties, Mayfield will be used mainly for backfield tutoring. Head coach Frank Kimbrough will spend more of his time working with the line.

With the new freshman rule, Borden Price, previously the coach, will assist in priming the middle of the line with Hatcher Brown continuing to work with the ends.

Longhorns Home Win Run Broken

(By The Associated Press)
The Texas Longhorns, perennial champs of the Southwest Conference, made baseball history Tuesday ... by losing a game.

The Steers lost, 3 to 4, to Texas Christian. All the Frogs' runs were unearned.

Pitcher Knobby Graves throttled the Longhorns after a rally in the ninth to upset the loop-leading, chagrined Texas nine.

In the other conference game of the day, Buddy Parker paced Baylor to a 6-to-5 victory over Southern Methodist at Waco.

It was Parker's third double of the day plus bingles by Charlie Price and Harry Davis that gave the Bears their 10-inning win.

The Longhorn loss at Austin broke a home - ground Longhorn victory streak at 54 consecutive games.

Texas leads Texas A&M two and one-half games with worst record of five and two.

At Huntsville, Sam Houston's Bearcats took a 6-to-5 ninth inning victory from the Rice Owls. Rice was the only other conference team in action Tuesday.

Sports To Bring German Together

VIENNA (AP)—East and West Germany, enemies in politics, may get together athletically so they can compete in the 1952 Olympic Games.

The International Olympic Committee has indicated Germany can't enter the 52 games unless the two national groups settle athletic differences within two weeks.

The IOC Monday admitted Russia. Yesterday it set down conditions for participation of Germany, but left the executive commission to settle the delicate details.

The committee also had outlined the road to admission for Israel where two national groups had sought approval.

A German Olympic committee was approved unanimously, but to stay in the good graces of the IOC this committee — now made up only of West Germans — must admit East German members and athletes.

The East and West Germans were given two weeks to settle their differences.

Error In 10th Defeats Hose

LUBBOCK — (AP) — Pinky Higgins' error with the bases loaded in the tenth inning gave the Lubbock Hubbers an overtime 4-3 decision over the down-trodden Amarillo Gold Sox here last night.

C. Sargent sent the game into extra innings in the bottom of the ninth when he slammed his second home run of the season over the leftfield fence. Losing pitcher Pat McLaughlin was one pitch away from victory when Sargent leaned into one of his soft pitches. Amarillo threatened to unknot things in the top of the tenth. With McLaughlin starting trouble on a single to left with one out, Nick DeLuca flied to left. Chick Howard singled and Bob Fugatch made a great running catch of Paul Halter's bid for a hit to left center to end the inning.

Royce Mills, who pitched superlative relief ball for his first victory of the season, lined out to open the Hubber tenth. Jackie Wilcox was safe when DeLuca hooted his grounder, throwing it away at first base. Paul Dobkowski, who had homered in the second, singled sharply through shortstop and Fugatch walked to lead the bases.

Earl Hochstatter, whose first inning double scored the first Hubber run, looked at one pitch and then drilled a sharp line to Higgins. The shortstop knocked the ball down, but couldn't hold onto it and the runners, who had stopped, broke. Higgins uncorked a high throw to Les Mulcahy and Wilcox scored with the winning run.

DALLAS — (AP) — Unless there is summer baseball for Texas high schools, the diamond game is most likely to die on the vine.

More than 600 schools signed up for baseball this year but only about 400 are actually playing. That is 200 fewer than last year. The Interscholastic League attributes this fall-off to spring football training and there's even more of the same coming up.

The member schools of the Interscholastic League voted spring training for all classes and the ballot was so decisive—436 to 228—that there seems little reason to believe it ever will be voted out again. For that matter, there isn't likely to be another referendum on it for a long time.

It was something of a surprise for even the football coaches when spring training was given such a resounding endorsement. Most of the grid mentors were gloomily predicting that spring training would go out for sure. They didn't actually know because the school administrators do the voting. But it appears quite a few talked one way and voted another.

Anyway, whereas spring training was in three of five classes this year it will be in all six classes next year (one class has been added), even six-man football.

Baseball can not survive with spring training unless it is played during the summer — when school is out. Many coaches favor that, but the school heads don't because of the expense involved. A coach would have to be employed for the summer and other expenses would be involved.

School leaders saw in the coming of general spring training the eventual end of statewide high school baseball. The Interscholastic League favors spring training because they have the manpower but the little schools can't. They don't have enough boys for football and baseball and track at the same time.

The larger schools can have it along with spring training because they have the manpower but the little schools can't. They don't have enough boys for football and baseball and track at the same time.

Texas Freshmen Aiming At New Relay Record

AUSTIN — (AP) — The University of Texas holds the 440-yard relay record in several major relays in the country. But they say around here that you haven't seen anything yet.

Embarrassing to the varsity is the freshman sprint relay team. It did 41.5 last week and that's within a tenth of a second of the fastest time in the nation this year. And it's a half second better than the varsity.

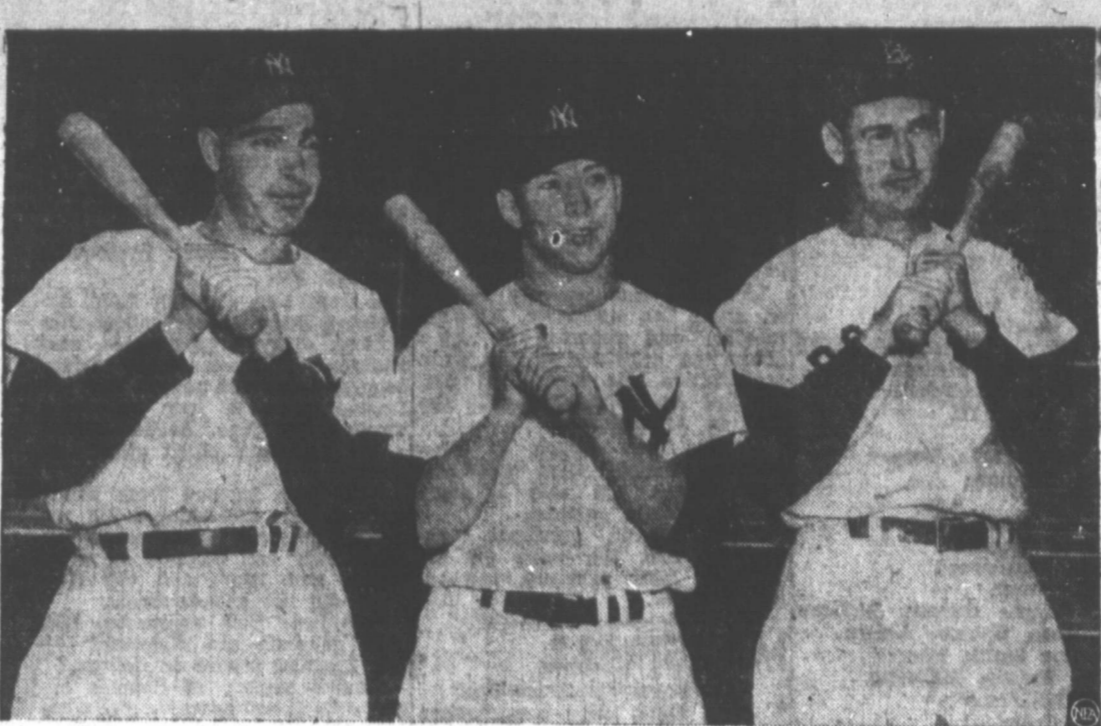

Picture this team: Charles Thomas runs a 9.5 200 yards, Dean Smith does 9.3 and S. M. Meeks and Jim Brownhill each turns in a 9.8. No wonder the sprint relay outfit isn't about to lose.

Just how fast they can run, with competition is due to be illustrated next week. Coach Clyde Littlefield has been invited to put his freshman team, unattached, into the Coliseum Relays at Los Angeles May 18 and the California Relays at Modesto May 13. He says chances are good that he'll take the team out there.

It was at the Coliseum Relays in 1947 that a Texas quartet featuring Charley Parker did 40.6 seconds — still the record there. That's one-tenth of a second over the world mark.

Littlefield says flatly that Thomas is a greater sprinter than was Parker, who set all kinds of records and was national champion in the 220. Thomas is stronger — he weighs 135 — and has more power than Parker. He has done the 220 in 20.6 seconds with a slight wind favoring him. He ran 20.9 last week with less than three miles of wind.

All those sprinters are in the ROTC and will not be taken into the armed service.

Mantle Revives Talk Of Speed In Baseball; Swanson, Archdeacon Flew Around Bases

By DAN DANIEL
NEA Special Correspondent
NEW YORK — (NEA) — If Mickey Mantle has accomplished nothing else, the Yankees' phenomenal recruit has revived interest in speed achievements in baseball.

Not since Ben Chapman stole 61 bases in 1931 has there been so much talk at the Stadium about fast moving. In Brooklyn, the aficionados are reminded of Pistol Pete Reiser, when he came up from Elmira in 1940.

Before Mantle starts doing any base-stealing, he will have to establish himself as a fixture on the New York club.

In the meantime, he will specialize in bunting enterprises patterned after the drag.

Precisely how fast Mantle can run very likely will be settled in the not-too-distant future. Possibly during the Old-Timers' festivities with which the Yankees will celebrate 50 years of American League competition, in June.

There is talk of sending Mantle against the record of 13 2-8 seconds for circling the bases, held in the majors by Evar Swanson and in the minors by Maurice Archdeacon.

Archdeacon set his mark in 1921, while with Rochester. Swanson turned in his mark, Sept. 15, 1929, when with the Reds.

Swanson was one of the greatest all-around athletes yet seen in the majors. At Lombard College in Illinois, he held three records — 9 4-5 seconds for the 100, 21 2-5 for the 220, and 23 feet in the broad jump.

Not until 1907 did major league fans become interested in feats of speed. That summer, little Tommy Leach of the Pirates set the first official record for circling the bases at 15 1-5 seconds.

Three years later, Hans Lobert challenged the mark, and a four-man race was arranged. Lobert and Ward Miller represented Cincinnati and Vince Campbell and Pois Miller dashed for the Pirates.

Lobert and Campbell were caught in 14 seconds, and when they ran off the tie, Hans clipped the mark to 13 4-5. Leach went after the new record, but could do no better than 11. With slides to first and third, he made it in 16 1-5, and that still stands.

George Washington Case of the Senators, who stole 61 bases in 1943, never took a crack at Swanson's figure.

Managers usually do not encourage speed tests as they fear injuries.

But this Mickey Mantle kid can scamper and the customers would like to know how fast.

Only 29 batters have hit .400 or better in the history of the major leagues. Cap Anson was the first to turn the trick. He batted .407 in 1879. Ted Williams was the last to reach that charmed circle. He hit .406, in 1941.

U. S. Parcels Still Pour Into Germany

FRANKFURT, Germany (AP) — Open-hearted Americans are still parcels.

Medalist Dot Kirby of Atlanta advanced to the second round, defeating Frances Rich of Bainbridge, Ga., 5 and 4.

Wichita Falls Oil Bowl Appears To Have Considerable Future

Wichita Falls, Tex. — The Oil Bowl, a charity project, really was.

A total of 729 votes were cast and the proposal won by only 53.

The Oil Bowl was actually not what the league was aiming at but it went out just the same. The idea was that all-star games were mushrooming, that personal profit was behind them, and that high school boys should not be exploited in such a manner.

The Oil Bowl is a worthy project and has been conducted quite properly. It seems a shame that such a project should have to be eradicated just to get at others that are not so worthy.

The Oil Bowl may go on but not in Wichita Falls. The only suitable stadium for it there is high school property. It will be no trouble to get the boys to play because the Interscholastic League has no control over a boy who has finished his high school eligibility. For that reason, it is believed by some that the Oil Bowl will crop up in Dallas and be played in the Cotton Bowl, which is not connected with any school.

Leo Diegel, Famed Golf Pro, Dies

NORTH HOLLYWOOD — (AP) — Leo Diegel, who won many of golf's top honors, died at his home last night after a lingering illness at the age of 52. He was stricken with cancer of the throat and lungs four years ago.

Diegel, who used an unorthodox, arms-skimbo putting stance, was PGA champ in 1928 and 1929. He represented the United States on the Ryder Cup team from 1927 through 1933, finished second in the British Open in 1929 and third in 1928 and was third in the U. S. Open in 1931.

Born in Detroit, Diegel began caddying when he was 10 and he had been playing golf seven years when he adopted his peculiar putting gimmick.

"I'd been missing too many short putts," Diegel explained recently. "Nobody actually copied my style exactly, but Henry Cotton won the British Open with most of that stance one year, and Willie Hunter used some features of it."

Diegel said the stance cured his "jitters" as he started to putt.

The ever-popular Diegel's reputation was such that movie executive Joseph M. Schenck once paid him a year's salary to act as his personal pro. It was Diegel who stopped the great Walter Hagen

Babe, Alice Tip Patty, Marlene

SAN FRANCISCO — (AP) — Babe Didrikson Zaharias, the nation's golf queen, teamed with Alice Bauer yesterday to defeat Patty Berg and Marlene Bauer 2 up, in an exhibition match at the California Golf Club.

Mrs. Zaharias, now tied with Miss Berg at the half-way point of the cross-country Open Weathervane Tournament, fired 37-39 for a women's par 76. Alice Bauer shot 41 and 39 for an 80.

Mrs. Zaharias and Miss Berg will play off their 305-tie in the third lap of the 144-hole Weathervane at Indianapolis next week. Alice and Marlene rank in the Weathervane standings.

in the PGA in 1928, after "The Hag" had won 22 consecutive individual matches.

"Lighthouse Harry" Cooper said Diegel's greatest asset was his ability to make any kind of shot. "He could play any kind of shot, hook, pitch-and-run, high, into the wind, anything you asked," said Cooper. "That and his grim determination made Diegel one of the greatest in the business."

Diegel's remains will be sent to Detroit for interment.

A Tribute... To Mothers!

Abraham Lincoln said, "All that I am, or ever can be, I owe to my mother." And that, we think, sums up what all of us think about our mothers. It isn't only on Mother's Day that we should revere the name and memory of Mother. Every minute of every day we should unstintingly show our love and endeavor to make her life easier and happier. If your Mother has passed on, show that her memory still lives in your heart. Visit the cemetery frequently and lay lovely living flowers on the sacred spot where she sleeps forever. This will be a token payment of all she did for you.

Regional Officer Speaks To Jaycees

Guests of the Junior Chamber of Commerce in their meeting Tuesday were Gene McDonald, vice-president of Region I and Dick Chamberlain, president of the Borger club and 15 members of the Borger club.

McDonald has recently returned from the executive board meeting and reported to the group the activities of the state organization. He announced that the fall board meeting will be held in Amarillo.

A film was shown at the meeting, called "The Ted McClain Story." It was a story of impractical science.

R. S. Taylor, president, announced that the work on the summer youth program will begin soon.

MARSHALL

(Continued from Page One) I think there were consultations with individuals sent out by the State Department, but they can answer that directly."

Marshall said he had no directive from the President to consult with MacArthur about his China mission.

Today's hearing, as have been the others, was held behind closed doors. A stenographic report of what is said is sent to news reporters. Military and State Department censors first "comb" it for anything harmful to the national interest if made public.

Senator Fulbright (D-Ark) predicted the questioning of Marshall would last at least two days longer and possibly five.

He said the Republicans "are working together" in cross-examination. Senator Knowland (R-Calif) alone apparently has enough questions to take up a full session, Fulbright said.

Before today's session, Knowland said he wants a "clearer answer" from Marshall as to how the administration expects to end the Korean war.

The Manchus overwhelmed China in the 17th century.

THUNDERING

The striking force was composed of 206 UN fighter-bombers, covered by 106 jet fighters.

The power of the UN strike compared to the opposition it met underscored reports of Chinese dissatisfaction over inadequate Russian aid.

A front line dispatch from Associated Press correspondent Jim Becker, delayed by censors, said absence of Russian-made armor bogged down the recent Red offensive after it had broken through UN lines. Becker quoted a high ranking allied officer as saying:

"We have learned from many sources that the Chinese did not follow up their planned offensive because they had planned on using planes and tanks and the Russians did not deliver them."

"We hear that many top Chinese generals are disgusted by this Russian failure to deliver."

Similar reports of Chinese anger with Russians came previously from AP correspondent John Randolph.

Becker said the UN push northward forced the Chinese to launch their offensive prematurely, with infantry alone.

Since that drive fizzled, the Reds have made strenuous efforts to re-equip their front line forces. A U. S. Defense Department spokesman in Washington said 16,000 Red vehicles were spotted on North Korean roads last week.

Tuesday, 1,625 were seen on the roads. This is less than recent traffic, but still far above road movements before the offensive.

South Korean troops expanded their three bridgeheads inside Red Korea. All were on the eastern front.

The third crossing of the 38th Parallel was made Tuesday southward of the Red supply base of Inje. Other South Koreans were north of the border on the eastern seaboard.

White, Negro GIs Stage Free-For-All

KARLSRUHE, Germany (AP) — Nearly 100 white and Negro U. S. soldiers fought a wild battle in a German cafe here last night. Forty of them were taken to hospital, German police reported.

The police refused to give details, other than to say no German patrons in the nearly-ruined cafe were injured.

A crowd of some 400 Germans returning from a nearby movie crowded the sidewalks in front of the cafe to watch the fight.

U. S. Army authorities declined to make any statement on the fracas until their investigation is completed.

The premiere was for a new film, "Hollywood Story," which closely resembles the story of William Desmond Taylor. The silent film director was the victim of an unsolved murder and a resulting scandal rocked Hollywood in the twenties.

The old timers, wearing their best finery, arrived at the academy award theater in studio limousines and were profusely photographed and interviewed. They all seemed to enjoy their big night. As one of them, Heine Conklin, said:

"If only we could get a reception like this from the casting office."

OVERTIME

(Continued from Page One) would be made at the time of the withdrawal of gas under the contracts. The minimum tax was pegged at one cent per 1,000 cubic feet.

Texas industries producing paper, chemicals, aluminum and carbon black would be exempt from the tax if it is passed on to them.

Critics questioned constitutionality of the measure and predicted it would only buy the state a lawsuit.

"Don't get the idea your job is done when you pass this bill," counseled Senator A. M. Aldrich of Paris. "When you send this bill to the comptroller he will have no choice but to tell you it won't raise the money."

Senator George Nokes, Jr., of Corsicana attempted to substitute the house-passed Sewell gas tax bill for the pipeline proposal. It would also tax pipeline gas but would split the revenue among the school fund, rural roads and city streets. A voice vote quickly blocked Nokes' move.

Laughter rocked the chamber when Senator Wardlaw Lane of Center proposed a gathering tax on wool.

"You know what happens to OUR wool?" inquired the lawmaker from gas-producing East Texas. "Those old meanies from up North come down here and buy OUR wool for $2 a pound, take it off and make suits out of it and then sell it back to us at $50 a pound."

Senator Dorsey B. Hardeman of San Angelo, representing a wool-producing West Texas district, countered with a proposal to tax timber saved into lumber.

"That's OUR timber, just like OUR gas and OUR wool," he argued. "Those old rip-saws night and day are tearing through the very heart of our good pine timber."

Both Lane and Hardeman withdrew their proposals.

Taft To Speak At Union Meet

WASHINGTON (AP) — The American Watch Makers Union will hold a convention here May 14-16 and its president, Walter W. Cenerazzo, said today speakers will include Secretary of Labor Tobin, Senator Lodge (R-Mass) and Senator Taft (R-Ohio).

Size of the convention? There will be 26 delegates. But Cenerazzo said they represent 8,500 members of the union.

initials inside the coat, and I didn't.

It took the homicide squad about 20 minutes to get there after I called and they came en masse. Inspector Merica was in charge, which didn't suit me so well, for they never made cops any smarter. There was a sergeant with him, Lew Cost, and it was Cost who answered most of my questions while the fingerprint and photography boys began in a great big way. I knew they would find my fingerprints, for I had left them on the glassware.

"All right," said Merica, when I had finished. "You can drop in at headquarters and sign a statement. So far it sounds pretty good. Except for one thing. You admit you got in here with a skeleton key and that Rose Bidault didn't know you were coming back. That makes you guilty of breaking and entering."

"Not at all, Inspector. I was only checking back to see if Rose was getting along all right. Like I said, we did quite a bit of celebrating. You know what a strain she had been under."

Merica nodded. "I know. I worked on the Bidault case. I can understand what a relief it was for her to beat the rap. But you still walked in here without her consent."

"Merica hadn't been very serious about the breaking and entering phase, and he dropped the subject by regarding the body of the dead man. "Ever see him before?"

"No. My guess is he's a stranger in town. But he must have been around long enough to know about the Bidault house being deserted. He probably figured to clean out the place. You'll probably find proof in his pockets."

Merica eyed me shrewdly. Cost said: "You seem a little sure about what's in his pockets. You look?"

"No, Cost. I phoned you people right away."

Cost made a face to show that he was not fooled.

Cost said: "Funny his gun hasn't been fired. Yet the guy had all the advantage. It don't look like self-defense to me."

KILLER'S PACE BY JULIUS LONG

THE STORY: Star Williams gets Rose Bidault acquitted of murder by slinking a gun, advertised as foolproof against accidents, so that it is accidentally discharged in court. But a camera in the court exposes the trick and now Star faces dishonor. Star now must prove Rose innocent to save himself.

BY the time I had reached the city it was so hot and stuffy that I almost abandoned my coat and gun. But I'm superstitious about such things. That's why I'm alive to tell about them. So I wore my coat and gun to the Bidault house. The door was locked.

Rose had probably kept on drinking after I left and I knew there was no use to ring the bell. I got out a key-ring with some very special keys and the third one did the job.

I went inside and ascended the stairs to the second floor. The condition of the writing desk in Rose's sitting room saved me. When I hit the floor, I rolled, brought up the pistol and actually held my fire till I made sure I had a case of self-defense. I had, all right. The guy standing there had reversed the revolver in his hand and the muzzle was coming around toward me. I squeezed my trigger three times in very fast style.

The guy folded up, the revolver spilling unfired out of his dying hand.

I got to my feet and stared at the prone man. This fellow would never give anybody else any trouble. I walked over and snatched on the light, for there wasn't much sunlight in the room. I took a good look at the party on the floor. It didn't bother to feel for his pulse. I knew he was very dead. I had never seen the man before in my life. He was probably 35, I guessed, middle-sized except for a hulkiness of the shoulders. His hair was sandy and cut close, and his nose veered slightly to one side. It looked as if it had been broken. I thought it was possible that the man had been a pug.

I wondered if the shooting had awakened Rose Bidault. I walked across her sitting room and peered into her boudoir. I snapped on the light and approached her bed. The shooting hadn't awakened her. Nothing would ever awaken her again. She was as dead as the party out on her sitting room floor.

IT had been done with scissors. They had been rammed through her throat. I don't think she had really known what had hit her. Her eyes were closed; her face was very pale. I felt her wrist. The body had lost some of its warmth.

I went back into the sitting room and looked at the ransacked desk. Rose's handbag lay on the floor. Its contents had been dumped upon the desk. There were the usual cosmetic accoutrements and about $50 in small bills. I picked up the bills and went back into Rose's boudoir. There was a jewelry box on her dressing table and I left the contents intact, for there was nothing in it but costume jewelry. I supposed Rose had put all her good stuff in storage. There was a watch on her wrist, a pretty good one with diamonds. I removed the watch. I carried it with the bills back to the dead man and stuffed them into his trouser pocket.

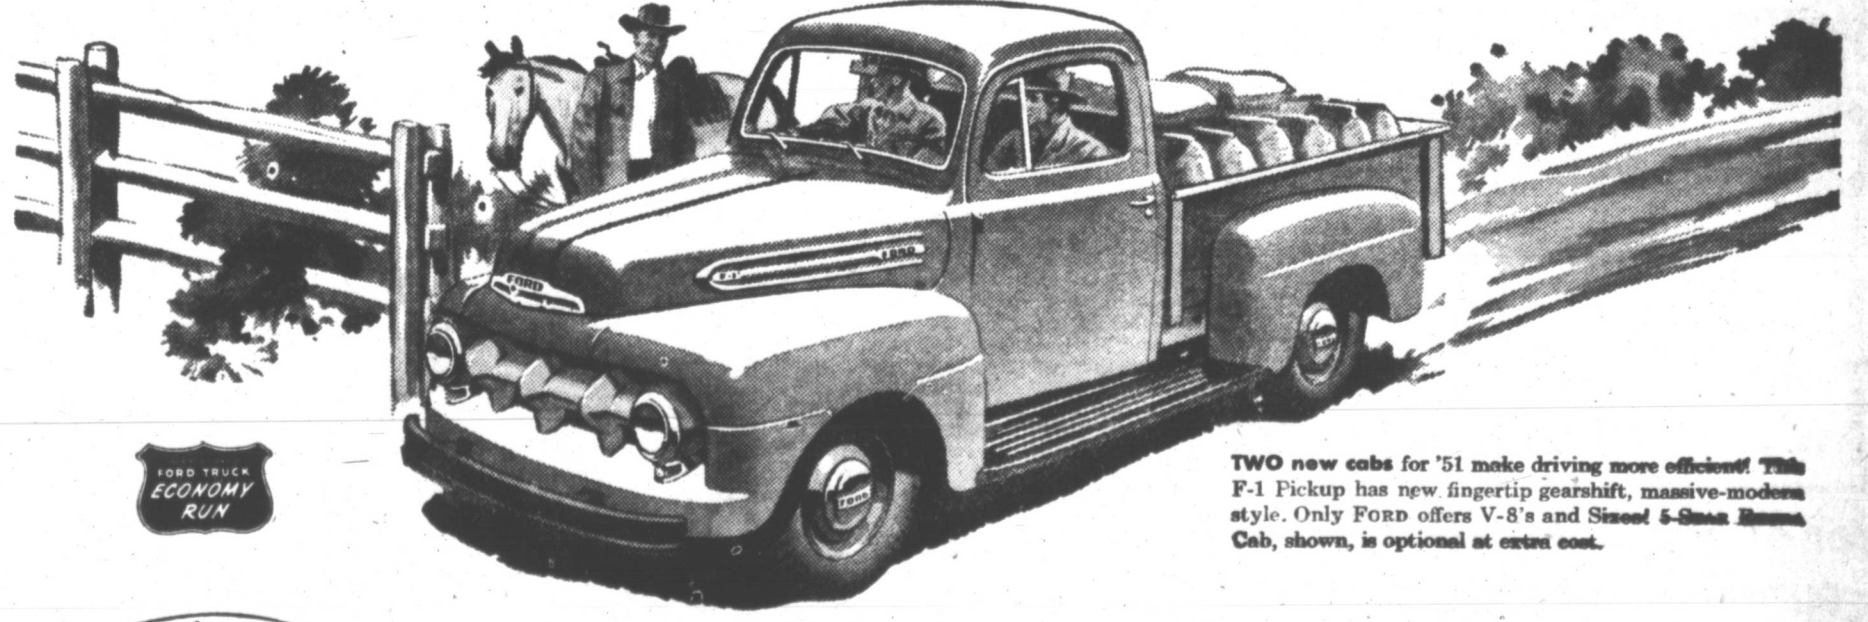

I went through his pockets. Aside from a few bills and change in another pocket and a set of keys very similar to my own, there wasn't a sign of identification. I didn't expect to find any

UN Renewing Discussions Of Embargo On Red China

By DEWITT MACKENZIE
AP Foreign Affairs Analyst

The increasingly caustic international argument over trading with the enemy specifically of selling strategic materials to Red China — is coming to a head. Criticism of Britain for continuing such trade finally has resulted in a conciliatory gesture by Sir Hartley Shawcross, president of the British Board of Trade, in the House of Commons. Sir Hartley made a statement hinting that the country would cease all exports of strategic materials to Communist China if the United Nations so decreed.

Coincidentally the United States delegation to the United Nations presented an embargo resolution to the 12-nation sanctions committee. This measure would provide for a world wide embargo against the shipment to Bolshevik China of war materials, or raw products which can be used in manufacturing war materials.

The UN last summer asked all members not to lend aid to aggressors. The United States and the Philippines instituted absolute embargoes. Many other countries inaugurated voluntary controls.

Britain, while inaugurating some trade controls, has opposed an embargo, as has France. This has been on the ground that an embargo might hinder any Red inclination to agree to a cease-fire. Britain's main objection has been to the timing of the proposed embargo, on the ground that a delay in imposing it would give China a chance to negotiate peace. Even in England the British government attitude has drawn fire, as witness an editorial by the conservative Daily Telegraph, which says in part:

"General MacArthur's evidence before the Senate joint committee is likely to inflame to an acute degree the smoldering irritation of American opinion against the British government's dealings with Communist China. To many Americans the fact that Britain should have been prepared to recognize the Peking regime and accept it as a member of the security council is regrettable enough. But the apparent reluctance of the British government to refrain from trading with the enemy is even more serious.

"It is impossible to defend this British error. The Chinese Communist government is engaged in a war against us and other United Nations members. It is time that the British cabinet obtained reliable information and imposed a reliable embargo."

The attitude of Britain and France has been a major factor in the struggle of the United

New Methods Underway To Reduce Taxes

By SAM DAWSON

NEW YORK — (AP) — Many businessmen are exploring ways to avoid — but not to evade — payment of excess profits taxes this year. They have even been advised by one of their leaders that it is their duty to their company to do so.

If that's bad news to the U.S. Treasury, it could be good news to others: advertising men and media, research scientists, and the long list of worthy causes to which corporations contribute in the name of public relations. That is because the way to avoid excess profits taxes is to see that a firm's taxable earnings don't rise to the level where they can be classed as excess. And one of the best ways is to spend more for better organization, say, or better packaging, better equipment, better brains in the business or increased good will.

Estimates are that corporate earnings are running at an annual rate of $26 billion, and that the portion subject to the excess profit tax may be $12 billion. Ordinary corporate profits are taxed up to 47 percent, but excess profits up to 77 percent.

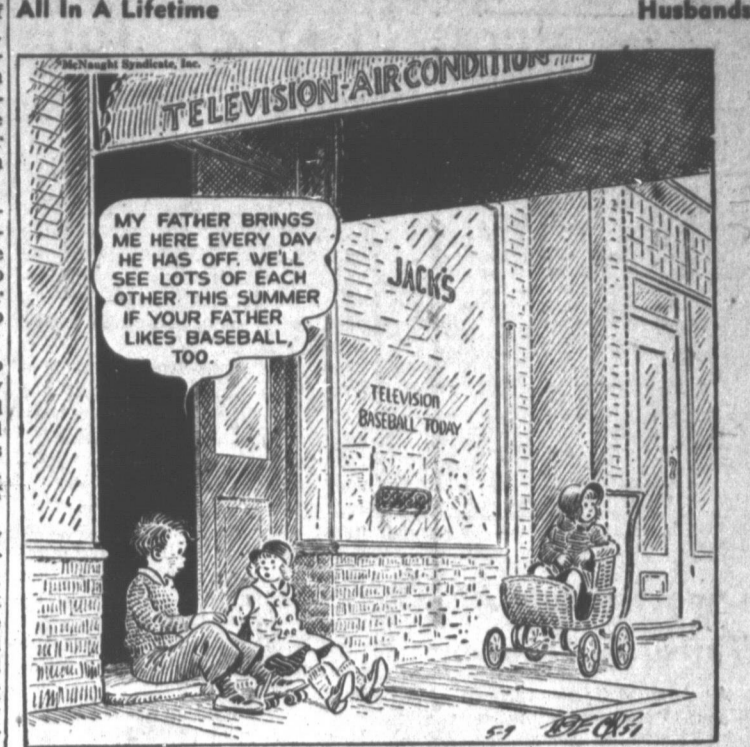

Therefore, the company keeps 53 cents of each dollar of ordinary earnings, but only 23 cents of each dollar of excess earnings. The government calls profits excess when they are more than 85 percent of the company's average earnings in the best three out of four years in 1946-49, or when the profits exceed certain fixed ratios to investment.

The joint congressional committee on the President's economic report warns that "if the tax burdens are so great as to shock the sense of justice or qualify some way is found to avoid them."

An economist tells how to do it. You'll remember Bradley Ruml as the man who fathered the pay-as-you-go tax. He told the annual meeting of the Gas Appliance Manufacturers Ass'n. that businessmen should avoid paying the excess profits tax. Ruml to husband very carefully the 53-cent dollar left over after paying the ordinary income tax. But the dollar the government calls excess profits would be worth only 23 cents and Ruml urges businessmen to spend all of these "cheap" dollars on something that will benefit the company. Here is how he advises going percent of them over to the corporation, rather than turn 77 percent.

First, estimate your earnings the tax: Businessmen are advised by but don't underestimate or you'll find yourself forking over the about avoiding — not evading —

Second, determine how much of these earnings are subject of the regular corporation tax only. These are your 53-cent dollars and worth saving. Then figure how much of the estimated earnings will be subject to the 77 percent excess profits levy. These are your 23-cent dollars and the ones you can afford to spend freely — not just to throw away, but rather with an eye on improving your business.

"The existence of cheap dollars," says Ruml, "makes prudent many business activities that would not be prudent except for the fact that the dollars expended are cheap." A ton of coal is needed to produce a ton of paper.

Old Duck Recalls A Varied Life

VANCOUVER — (AP) — A 15-year-old pet mallard, "Goo-Goo," has become a famous duck in these parts.

It was a good laying duck until two years old when it laid the biggest egg of all by turning into a Drake.

In the first blush of growth Goo-Goo laid some 324 eggs, then outlived himself. The tail feathers changed and the colored ring typical of male mallards appeared on the neck. The beak darkened and the eggs stopped entirely. Experts came around and suggested its name be changed to "Sir Francis" or something suitable to its sex.

As a lady duck, Goo-Goo had only one brief fling. "A wild mallard was winging over the yard and saw Goo-Goo and put on his brakes," said Mrs. Lamontaine. "Goo-Goo fluttered boldly and got about four feet off the ground. Then she sank. She'd put on too much weight to fly."

VANCOUVER — (AP) — A 15-year-old pet mallard, "Goo-Goo," has become a famous duck in these parts.

It was a good laying duck until two years old when it laid the biggest egg of all by turning into a Drake.

In the first blush of growth Goo-Goo laid some 324 eggs, then outlived himself. The tail feathers changed and the colored ring typical of male mallards appeared on the neck. The beak darkened and the eggs stopped entirely. Experts came around and suggested its name be changed to "Sir Francis" or something suitable to its sex.

As a lady duck, Goo-Goo had only one brief fling. "A wild mallard was winging over the yard and saw Goo-Goo and put on his brakes," said Mrs. Lamontaine. "Goo-Goo fluttered boldly and got about four feet off the ground. Then she sank. She'd put on too much weight to fly."

VANCOUVER — (AP) — A 19-year-old who under-estimated a blind man's ability to remember voices was sentenced to three months for false pretenses here. The accused was arrested when a blind cigar store proprietor recognized his voice as that of the same man who once had tried to pass a $1 bill as $20.

Rev. Berneking Has God Without Commandments

I have been discussing for a few days the public statement made by Rev. Gerald Berneking of the First Christian Church of Colorado Springs...

Note the word "must," which represents force and coercion.

It was because I believe that preachers like Rev. Berneking are doing untold harm to mankind...

I recently read an article by Dr. Henry Link on the subject "Is a God Without Commandments Worse Than No God at All?"

Dr. Link is author of "The Rediscovery of Man," "The Return to Religion," and "The Rediscovery of Morals."

If what Rev. Berneking advocates is not covering his fellow countryman's property and not legalized stealing...

None of these things are complicated. None of them require that you be a graduate engineer in order to conceive them.

In Dr. Link's article in the October issue of "Faith and Freedom" he takes to task church people for not speaking out against violations of moral law.

"When a recent series of Supreme Court decisions declared that stealing, violence, and the deliberate ruining of a man's business, when done by unions under certain circumstances, were not illegal, the churches should have marshaled their complete powers of moral intolerance.

Dr. Link observes...

But, as Marx pointed out, the proletariat cannot be emancipated so long as it is Christian any more than the Jew can be emancipated so long as he clings to his religion.

They bear a remarkable resemblance, even though the parallel can be carried too far, to the White House and the GOP's downfall in 1932.

They represent an entirely different generation and outlook from such weary and cynical oldsters as President Truman, Vice President Barkley and Speaker Sam Rayburn.

DISGUSTED — These Democrats, who number at least a dozen in the Senate and possibly 40 in the House were elected without any assistance from the Truman-Boyle organization, and are not politically beholden to the party's bigwigs.

While approving Truman-Roosevelt "liberal" ideas in the social and economic fields, they recognize that rearmament has blown taps on domestic reforms, at least temporarily.

That is exactly what Rev. Berneking and Dr. Link are advocating that the majority has a right to do.

Several had even proposed creation of special commissions to serve, in effect, as moral trustees and guardians over the man in the White House.

It is strange that a preacher would be advocating a religion not based on the Commandments, which is worse than no religion at all because it tends to fool and misguide individuals who are seeking light.

When the government makes new money and spends it in the effect on the supply of things in the market to be bought by civilians with their earnings, and the effect on prices, is exactly the same as when any private counterfeiter does so.

We shall continue to have inflation until the control of the money supply is returned to the people and until the money issued has a tangible value back of it.

Counterfeiting A Threat To Economy

A release from the Southern States Industrial Council written by Thurman Sensing, brings sharply into focus the administration's practice of legal counterfeiting and the harm it is doing by bringing the nation closer to inflation by hampering the normal operation of economic laws.

Says Mr. Sensing: "It is generally recognized throughout the country that inflation remains the greatest danger threatening our economy at the present time. It is not so generally recognized that inflation is or how it can be prevented.

Inflation means too much money in proportion to the goods available. It means the normal operation on economic laws has been blocked.

How do we happen to have too much money? Who is blocking the normal operation of economic laws?

We have too much money because our government in 1933 took the control of our money supply out of the hands of the people.

Since 1933, our government has had a monopoly on the money industry. It alone operates the money factories. It makes a dollar bill worth a dollar simply by printing on the face of it that it is a dollar.

It is not so with present-day money. With the paper bills and deposits that make up most of our money of exchange, it doesn't cost much for the paper and ink and printing needed to make a $100 bill. It is probably the most profitable monopoly that ever existed, and the entire force of the federal government is available to protect its monopoly against the infringement of private counterfeiting.

When a private citizen counterfeits money, the wrath of other citizens is aroused, and they say:

"He did no useful work to get that money, and yet he spends it in the market place, taking food, clothing, and other things away from those of us who have earned our money by working for it. He takes useful things out of the market without producing other useful things to go into the market, as we do. The effect of his chicanery is that prices go up and the rest of us receive less and less for our money."

This is a correct statement of what happens under counterfeiting. It is the reason for objecting to counterfeiting, because the counterfeiter gets something for nothing. And it is the reason for objecting to legal counterfeiting, too. If everybody tried to live off counterfeit money, one would at once discover its effect in the extreme. There would be nothing to buy with the money and it would be completely worthless.

When the government makes new money and spends it in the effect on the supply of things in the market to be bought by civilians with their earnings, and the effect on prices, is exactly the same as when any private counterfeiter does so.

Most trouble is just a stretch of the imagination that you put back on you.

National Whirligig For Once, Right Man Has Been Given Right Job, 'Mac' Says

By HENRY McLEMORE

NEW YORK — When Bill Corum was named president of Churchill Downs I said to myself that it couldn't be true. I walked into a cleft with myself, and talked to myself, and said that nothing Americans have done makes this much sense.

My echo talked back to me and said that for once in the world the right man had been given the right job. I say this with the full knowledge that every man who ever looked at a thoroughbred horse knows Matt Winn, Colonel Matt Winn, a gracious gentleman and a sweet man. To prove how sure I am that Corum got the right job is the fact that nobody ever loved Matt Winn more than Major Bill.

This is the first time that any of the great builders and developers of America to tell me that Bill didn't reach the presidency of Churchill Downs with all the things we'd like to have — a willingness to overlook the other fellow's shortcomings, and a strict belief in men. Lots of men have let Bill down, but how many men has he let down?

This sounds like a love column. That's all right by me. When they lay me away I could use no more than my headstone there engraved, "He was a friend of Bill." Don't mention the day I was born or the day I died, or my ancestry. Lots of people will wonder who lies beneath that curate piece of marble, but men will know that there sleeps a man whom Bill liked and who liked Bill.

The greatest tribute I can pay Corum is that everybody is glad he's got the job. You who are reading this may be a toy manufacturer, for all I know, and are throat to throat with another toy manufacturer, but the newspaperer doesn't feel that way about the major.

To tell the truth, newspapermen are sorry for Corum. He's a horse player at heart. Up until last year there was nothing Corum liked to do as much as read The Racing Form, put an "X" by his best winners, and run around the press box to give all of us a winner.

Now he's got a leather swivel chair, and I heard two newspapermen here at the Derby call him "mister"—and that is hard on Bill. It practically killed him.

As president of Churchill Downs, he can't go around giving out tips. American people, being what they are, would suspect him. On Derby Day I went back to his office, and he said it was nice to see me, and I said, being a nice-born boy, "It's nice to see you, too, major."

He said, "How are you doing since you've been here?" and I said, "No good," and then he said, "That's a shame. If I weren't president of this track, I could give you some hot things going here today." I replied, "Well, don't jeopardize your job, major!" and he didn't.

I looked at Bill, and these things went through my mind: The boy from Booneville running a Kentucky Derby. The youngest major in World War I in charge of all the people who come to see America's number one event.

Nobody will ever tell me they don't spin his dreams like I'm spinning mine now, and I defy anyone to contradict me.

rearm as a means of preserving any British state at all—preserving it from Joe Stalin, that is. There isn't enough money for both complete welfare statism and adequate rearmament.

Bevan and his faction want to sacrifice guns in favor of butter—and by quitting, they apparently agree with the dopesters that their party will lose the next election.

Adding measurably to the irony of it all is the fact that under the Labor welfareers the unfortunate British people have had less and less meat and other substantial chow since they set either false or natural teeth.

The next few weeks or months in British history ought to be uncommonly interesting—and unusually instructive on the way Socialism's gaudy promises often work out in reverse.

An Indiana motorist bid a police officer on the arm after being pinched for speeding. We didn't know there was a shortage of meat.

The Doctor Says

By EDWIN J. JORDAN, M.D.

During times of personal stress or national crises there is an increased likelihood of developing an ulcer of the stomach.

With the world in turmoil and with practically no peace in sight, it is not surprising that the incidence of peptic ulcers may be large or small, may be located one place or another. All these things enter into the symptoms, the ease of diagnosis, and the treatment. But they are alike in being irritated by too much acid in the gastric juice and needing time for the ulcerated area to heal over.

It is most distressing to receive letters from people having symptoms which might well mean the presence of an ulcer but who do not seem to want to do much about it. Yet that happens frequently, perhaps because they expect an ulcer to be more painful than it actually is. Many ulcers, for example, cause only a slight amount of pain or none at all, and yet should be treated as carefully as those which are causing worse symptoms.

Actually any strange sensation in or near the stomach should raise the suspicion of ulcer. The most common is pain—but usually one which is not present all the time.

As a rule (but not always) this pain is absent on getting up in the morning but is likely to come on about one to three hours after meals. Often it will go away if milk is drunk or some food is taken.

The pain varies in unpleasantness. Sometimes it is little more than a vague feeling of discomfort. Other times it may be sharp and severe. In neither case should it be neglected.

ANTAGONISTIC — Numerous veteran Democrats were also becoming antagonistic toward President Truman, although for entirely different reasons.

Some of these men might not enjoy public listing of their names. But those known to fall into "his category" are the Senators Kefauver, Fulbright, Monroney, Douglas, Hunt, O'Connor, Gillette. They may be characterized as the "Young Guard."

La Prensa In Our Backyard

BY DAVID BAXTER

PART 1

Well, I'm off again on a cause. Up in Pasco, Washington, a deal every bit as dirty and unscrupulous as was given the Argentine paper, La Prensa, is being perpetrated right here in America.

Talk about collectivism! Here a good example of it. Now let's get down to business.

First, let's quote from TIME, December 5, 1949:

"In an old bottling plant in Kennewick, Wash. two wartime navy buddies, ex-Lieutenants Robert Philip and Glenn Lee, started the Tri-City Herald, first daily newspaper in Washington's closed-in triangle of Kennewick, Pasco and Richland. In the next two years their hard-bitten editorial campaigns on local issues earned them a reputation as fearless crusaders, pushed their circulation up from 2,000 to 10,258 and put them in the black. Fortnight ago they got into their toughest scrap yet.

"Publisher Lee sent a reporter to check up on a group of $7,500 houses in Pasco that the Columbia Construction Co. had sold to veterans. A group of tenants led by disabled Lloyd Kestin, a Pasco schoolteacher, had refused to sign their mortgages, claiming they had found building defects. While the TRI-CITY HERALD investigated the builder sued Kestin to compel him to sign. Next day the HERALD broke a series of stories supporting the veterans' charges.

"The construction company went back to court. It complained to Superior Court Judge Bartholomew B. Horrigan, 69, who runs a wheat ranch on the side, that the HERALD'S series would make it impossible to get a fair trial of the Kestin suit. Headlong, Judge Horrigan promptly forbade the HERALD to publish any more stories on the houses, forced it to yank the fourth article a half hour before press time. Last week, after re-reading the Bill of Rights, Judge Horrigan decided he had gone too far. He rescinded his injunction but hinted that if the HERALD kept printing such stories it might be found in contempt of court. Meanwhile, the project's builders had slapped a $100,000 libel suit against the HERALD. Unperturbed, Publisher Lee said: "We'll keep on printing the news when, where and how it comes."

The TRI-CITY HERALD of Pasco, Wash. is one of the papers running this column and I have heard a great deal of Glenn Lee. He's a scrapper all right, and he doesn't hesitate to publish whatever he wants to so long as he's conscientiously convinced of the honesty of an issue. He is 39 years old and definitely the rugged, individualistic, independent type. He worked his way through college as a bellhop.

Richland, Wash., one of the Tri-cities, was organized as a "company town" with 24,000 population, owned by the Atomic Energy Commission and General Electric. According to NEWSWEEK, a couple of years ago the HERALD began printing stories on waste on the Hanford reservation. "It ran figures and accused the AEC of mismanagement. It claimed, for instance, that $500,000 had been spent on a new water system and that the system was then scrapped and another started. Lee, who grits his teeth grimly at such 'socialistic empires' as Hanford, had a personal grudge against AEC-GE. It had taken him almost a year to get even a 'heatless, toiletless' clapboard shack for his Richland bureau."

A rival newspaper, which Lee claimed was a mere "house organ" for GE, was established and promptly brought suit against him. Lee raised the issue of free press and free enterprise.

What goes here—anyway? I am informed that U. S. Senator Magnuson is referring the veterans matter to the FBI, that U. S. Senator Cain talked with the vets and will investigate and that the U. S. District Attorney at Spokane has also talked to the vets who purchased those houses.

Who knows—the fighting HERALD with its on-the-level publisher may yet survive the political Gethsemane it is undergoing and fly the flag of victory. More next time.

Now, as of April 16, suit has been brought to trial against the HERALD for damages of $300,000 by the Columbia Construction Co. and others because of the HERALD'S stories in defense of the veterans. Particularly distasteful to the plaintiffs was the HERALD'S fourth article in the veterans housing affair (which the judge forbade publishing) in which even the plumbers union was reported as having found the plumbers in the homes so poor that it slapped a fine on the plumbers who installed it.

A peculiar thing about this case is that after the HERALD ran the veterans articles and exposed the builders and contractors, the company agreed to arbitrate with veteran Kestin and withdrew the suit to compel him to sign a mortgage. A man named Bowelle was selected to represent the veterans. Now, by a remarkable coincidence, according to the HERALD this same Bowelle, although "representing" the vets in the arbitration, is being represented in the case by one John Cartano of the Seattle law firm of Peyer, Cartano, Borer and Chapman, ATTORNEYS FOR THE CONSTRUCTION COMPANY SUING THE HERALD. Bowelle is also listed as a plaintiff.

will call Mary Small; or "A bride you'll be before leaves fall from the tree"; or "You'll write to fame, we'll watch for your name, etc. It is a good idea to choose your rhymes after considering the goal of the guest.

Roll each of the forecasts into a little scroll and add a party frill to it. The frill is made by cutting out the center of a 6-inch round doily inserting the scroll through the opening and gathering the doily in a ruffle around the scroll with a pool of wire. Tie a satin ribbon with a long streamer to a forecast for each guest at the party, using school colors alternately. The ribbons should extend from the centerpieces to each place serving. If, because of a shortage of guests, you must fill up the box, put blank scrolls in the bottom of it, but do not attach ribbons. The guests should be invited to pull the streamers just before they leave the table, and read forecasts aloud.

Graduation - Bouquet Place Card... First get a batch of ordinary white place cards which can be stood up. On the right hand side of the card, paste tiny strips of ribbon in your school colors. Write the guest's name in the center of the card. If you want to add a yum-yum flavor, trap them in cellophane, securing them with spool wire. Cut out green paper fringe and set the gum drops in the center of the fringe. Put through a 5-inch round paper doily by inserting the doily. Attach to the doily and the left-hand side of place-card.

New Bonnets Designed To Match Young Budgets

These summer hats for teenagers range from the naive to the slightly sophisticated. Mauve felt (upper left) by Sally V dips over one ear, is trimmed in white cording. White toy (lower left) is a John-Frederics Charmer banded with pink scarf. Jockey cap (center) by Yearounder is young and simple, has button top. Tailored white tricorne (upper right) by Beachurst has cuff trim bound in red-and-blue grosgrain. The cap (lower right) of natural muslin straw is a John-Frederics Charmer sprinkled with felt field flowers.

NEW YORK (NEA)—The average teen-ager budget doesn't stretch to cover the kind of hat wardrobe her big sister owns. But it does stretch far enough to keep her well-hatted at all times. This includes the summer vacation time, when the average teen-ager grows careless about her appearance.

There are hats enough to encourage any teen-ager to look her absolute best this summer and on a budget, however limited. Sally Victor does a line of youthful budget hats which bear the label "Sally V." Other name designers do youthful budget hats, too.

John-Frederics, for one, does one of his budget-priced Charmers for summer in white toy.

Garrard, Ernest Rose and the teacher of the class, the Rev. R. G. West.

Children attending were Connie and Kenneth Ray Burger, Buster and Zandra Kay Zimmerman, Beverly Jean Bond, Sherry Shelley, Mrs. and Mrs. Mel Hooper, Mr. and Mrs. Otis Lee McClellan, Mr. and Mrs. Bill Pat Garrard.

GAINESVILLE LADY LOST 48 POUNDS

"I highly recommend Barconate to take off fat and not harm you," writes Mrs. Beale Beasley, Route 1, Box 29, Gainesville, Texas. "Before taking Barconate, I weighed 228 pounds. The first bottle made me feel better and I lost 5 pounds the first week. I now weigh 180 pounds and want to get down to 160 pounds. I have now taken 5 bottles. I am 3 years of age and wouldn't be without Barconate, for it is a laxative as well as to reduce and no pains or griping after taking so many laxatives I have taken. I just say no use to carry that excess fat when Barconate will take it off so easy and no ill effects.

"When I get to the weight I want, I intend to still take it its regularly makes me feel so much better every morning; no tired feeling. I have recommended Barconate to my friends."

When you buy Barconate, you buy a preparation for taking off weight. You do not pay for a diet list. Barconate is not a vitamin tablet to fortify you against weakness while on a starvation diet. You need never know a hungry moment while reducing with Barconate. It contains no harmful drugs, but does contain ingredients to make you feel better.

Just ask your druggist for four ounces of liquid Barconate. Add 12 ounces of canned grapefruit juice. Then take just 2 tablespoonsful twice a day. If the very first bottle doesn't show you the simple, easy way to lose weight, unslightly fat, turn the empty bottle for your money back.

For dressy wear, with black or natural linen, there's a close-fitting cap in natural tussan straw. This John-Frederics Charmer is sprinkled with gay felt field flowers.

Fine white straw braid is worked into a tricorne, for the city in summer, by Beachurst. This neat little hat has a simple cuff brim in red-and-blue grosgrain.

A mauve felt Sally V, corded in white, dips slightly on one side, rises high on the other.

BRITISH TRAIN GERMANS—While re-arming Germany remains a point of hot debate between Russia and the Western Allies, the British are giving military training to some 60,000 labor service troops, mostly Germans. By SAUL PETT
NEW YORK (AP) — I got into the cab and gave the driver the address.
"Yeah, sure," he grunted. We pulled away from the curb.
This, I reasoned, is one of the unhappy ones. This one, I knew, I would be afraid to under-tip or ask to go to Brooklyn or cross with one wrong word.
I looked in my wallet. There was only a ten inside. Desperately, I searched my other pockets. No luck. Finally, as panic mounted, I worked up enough courage to say the worst. I apologized in advance for having to ask the hackie to break a ten for a six-bit ride.
"So what're you worried about, so what?" he asked. "After all, it ain't like it's a hundred or a thousand. So stop worrying already. So relax and enjoy the scenery."
So I relaxed. So the driver told me a story.
"Two or three years ago there was a character," he began, "who carried a thousand dollar bill around with him. A real big operator, you know. He'd be picked up at the Waldorf and he'd make all the right spots — the Copa, the Latin Quarter and the rest."
"A big operator trying to look bigger. No, it wasn't Frank Costello. Everybody thinks all you got to do is mention big operator and the Waldorf and it's Costello right way. It wasn't Costello, be sure."
I told the driver I'd take his word for it.
"This guy," he continued, "always operated with the G-note. He'd go every place by cab and he'd keep the cab waiting. He'd drop into a club for a drink, and he'd give the hackie the thousand as a guarantee, I guess, he'd be out again."
"So he'd come out and go to several other places. Always keeping the cab waiting. Always leaving the thousand as security. But, of course, he made sure to get the driver's name and number every time he left."
"Then, finally, he's ready to turn in, he goes back to the Waldorf, gets his thousand back and pays the bill. Maybe he ran up seven bucks on the meter, maybe ten."
"A good customer, I guess." I guessed he was.
"Good!" he says. "Nobody liked him. Big operator! Shmo! Besides, it makes a cab driver very nervous to be holding somebody else's thousand dollar bill. Supposing he loses it, supposing. Then he's in trouble and trouble is something a cabbie has got to steer clear of or he loses his police medallion and never drives again."
"I see what you mean," I

Flotsam Of War A Pitiful Sight

By JOHN RANDOLPH
SOMEWHERE IN KOREA — (AP) — The little old Korean man sat on the ground in his dirty white cottons.
His back was against a rice paddy bank. His bandy legs and straw-slippered feet extended straight out before him.
He was clenching and unclenching his hands. His scraggly gray beard wiggled as he poured out his unhappy story in the guttural, explosive language of his country.
But no translation was needed to catch the desperation in the old man's voice.
The words gushed out in panic haste to persuade the Americans before they could send him south in the waiting trucks — already filled with about 40 refugees.
"My daughter . . . house in village . . . baby last night . . . now she sick . . . bad fever . . . she may die . . . baby die . . . I must go back . . . give medicine . . ."
The old man looked up at Lt. Boyd W. Mayo, Jacksonville, Fla., civil affairs officer for the Seventh Cavalry Regiment.
Mayo's lips twisted in sympathy.
But there was nothing to be done, he told an interpreter, adding:
"The Chinese were back in the village. One American soldier already had been killed on patrol. The soldiers could not go back to get the sick mother. The Americans couldn't let the old said sympathetically. "But why couldn't the drivers refuse to hold the bill?"

"After a couple weeks," my cabbie said, "it wasn't necessary. The big operator hails a cab at the Waldorf. Up in the sixties, somewhere, he stops at a bar, gets the driver's name and number and asks him to wait with the G-note."
"The driver waits until the big operator gets through the door. Then he drives like hell away. With the thousand, of course."
"Of course when the guy comes out of the bar he sees what's up and calls the cops. In 26 minutes, the hackie is down at the station house."
"Ever seen this guy before?" the cops ask him. Sure, the driver says — what a cool customer, he was — sure, I picked him up tonight at the Waldorf. Took him to such and such a club.
"He says he gave you a thousand dollar bill to wait for him and you ran off with it, the cops say. The driver is flabbergasted. Search him, he says, he's got nothing bigger than a five. Very coolly — what a cool customer he was — he asks each of the cops if they ever heard such a thing — a fare should give a strange cabbie a thousand while he goes inside the car."
"He looked each cop in the eye and each cop had to shake his head."
Big operator wasn't so big any more."

With Texas Ahead, Southwest Leading In Factory Workers

ATLANTA (AP) — With Texas in the lead, the Southwest continues to set new postwar records in factory employment, the U. S. Department of Labor reports.
The factory workers also are making more money.
Figures released by Brunswick A. Bagdon, regional director of the department's bureau of labor statistics for the South, covering Arkansas, Louisiana, Oklahoma and Texas.
Bagdon said manufacturing employment in the four states climbed from 663,300 in February to 672,100 in March, an 8,800 rise. Texas rose from 361,700 to 385,200, up by 3,600. Arkansas rose from 76,700 to 78,100, up
