Acheson Claims U.S. Vetoed On Pursuit Of Reds Into Manchuria

Allied Troops Roll Within Artillery Range Of Triangle

TOKYO (AP)—Allied troops rolled today within artillery range of Chorwon, key to the Red "Iron Triangle" in Korea. But 6,000 battling Chinese blocked the advance of other United Nations troops trying to reach the triangle from the east. Most of the U. N. west and central front surged closer to the Communist assembly area bounded by Chhorwon, Kumhwa and Pyongyang. The threatening allied advance was made against diminishing Red resistance along the rain-swept Yonchon-Chorwon highway in the west.

Prosecution Of U.S. Reds Gets Backing

WASHINGTON (AP)—Wide-spread prosecutions of individual members of the U. S. Communist Party for plotting violent overthrow of this government appeared certain today. The Supreme Court opened the doors for an extensive program of such actions when it upheld yesterday the convictions of 11 top officials of the party charged with a conspiracy of force against constituted U. S. authority. In an historic 6-2 decision delivered by Chief Justice Vinson, the court held constituting plots of violence, and said the activities of the Communist leaders involved "a clear and present danger" to the United States.

The group, the court said, "intended to overthrow the government of the United States as speedily as the circumstances would permit." Jail terms up to five years and fines of $10,000 assessed against the 11 in the New York federal district court in October, 1949, after a long and stormy trial, were affirmed. This was the sort of decision on Communist designs which the Justice Department has been working for years to get from the highest federal court. The court has never previously ruled directly on the issue. Raymond P. Wherry, one of Attorney General McGrath's top assistants in the criminal division, told the House Appropriations Committee last year that the department was making time "a program of extensive suits to prosecute members of the Communist Party."

It was thought that prosecutions might be confined to less than 100 cases of Communists of at least local leadership stature. (See PROSECUTION, Page 2)

Four Men Killed As Aircraft Explodes During Rainstorm

JACKSON, Tenn. (AP)—Four men were killed last night when an Air Force supersonic plane exploded during a rainstorm and crashed on a farm near here. Three of the seven crewmen aboard the C-119 were blown from the plane and, although dazed, jerked the ripcord of their parachutes. They suffered shock and minor injuries. Wreckage of the giant plane was spread over a wide area about 15 miles southwest of here. One of the bodies found near the wreckage were a half-opened chute.

The Air Force withheld identification of the dead. The search for the bodies was conducted by Highway Patrolmen and two units of Tennessee National Guardsmen. The pilot, Capt. Russell D. Brewington, of Nashville, Tenn., said he did not know exactly what happened. "Suddenly I found myself in midair and pulled my ripcord," he added. Howard E. Johnson, who lives near the scene, said he heard the plane explode "just like a big clap of thunder." "I didn't hear the plane hit," he added, "but I heard screaming just a few minutes later. I started out to see what I could find. I saw two of the men coming down in parachutes and ran to help them."

L. Paul Briand, press officer at Seawart, said the C-119 was enroute to Oklahoma City on a training flight.

MICKEY COHEN TRIAL BEGINS — Gambler Mickey Cohen and his wife, Lavonne, a petite redhead, sit in federal court in Los Angeles June 4 waiting for the start of their trial on charges of evading income taxes. They are accused of not paying $156,123 in federal taxes in 1946, 1947, and 1948. Cohen said he is "clean as a bound's tooth" and that his wife doesn't know anything about his finances. Living On Borrowed Funds:

Cohen To Tell How To Be A Millionaire

LOS ANGELES (AP)—The Mickey Cohen case — or how to live like a millionaire on borrowed money — moves swiftly into its second day of testimony today. It took only 30 minutes yesterday to choose a federal court jury of seven women and five men to hear the government's charges of $156,123.48 in income tax evasion against the Hollywood gambling boss and his petite wife, Lavonne. She signed joint returns. The testimony disclosed what the Kefauver Committee knew last November that Cohen's method of financing is one of the most unusual yet. Even his own counsel commented in his opening statement: "Mr. Cohen's affairs are complicated. Mr. Cohen lives a complicated life."

Rain Closes Road Again

Roads to Amarillo were again impassable early this morning after .58 of an inch of rain fell late last night. Scattered thundershowers were forecast for the Plains, according to the Associated Press. Skies were generally cloudy over all of Texas today. Flood threats had been removed with only a forecast of a four-foot overflow of the Trinity River at Rosser Wednesday. A low of 50 degrees was recorded here last night and the high this morning was 67.

Green Tells Solons Wages Tied To Controls On Prices

WASHINGTON (AP)—Labor Leader William Green told Congress today that if price controls are scuttled, wage stabilization will also have to be abandoned. The American Federation of Labor president testified before the House Banking Committee, which is studying the administration's proposals for extending and strengthening the Defense Production Act. "If the workers' wages are to be regulated," he said, "he has every right to expect that the prices of the food he has to buy at the grocery store will be effectively controlled."

Green recommended that the President be given authority to use subsidies "as a measure of last resort" to prevent necessary farm price increases boosting the cost of living. He also urged an overhaul of rent control legislation, making it stronger and placing it on a "for the duration" basis. Among other recommendations, he urged removal of the $10,000 limit on damages that can be recovered for over-ceiling price violations; more emphasis on dollar- and cent ceilings rather than profit margins; control of margin requirements on commodity exchanges; and a change in the law so that credit controls on housing will not penalize low and moderate income families. A community - by-community pricing program for some 15 to 20 grocery items is planned to become effective in another 30 days. Announcing this yesterday, Green said DiSalle had not quit

UN Blocked Plan For Limited Chase

WASHINGTON (AP)—Secretary of State Acheson today told senators how other United Nations vetoed an American plan last November for "hot pursuit" of enemy planes across the Korean border into Manchuria. He said the U.S. proposed only two or three minutes of air penetration of Manchuria but the other allied governments would not go along with the plan. Acheson was testifying for the fourth day at hearings by the Senate Armed Services and Foreign Relations Committees on the ouster of Gen. MacArthur. Acheson read a telegram sent under his signature last Nov. 13 to American embassies in other United Nations. This simply advised that it "may become necessary" to put in the "hot pursuit" plan. The approval of the other governments was not asked. There has been previous testimony from U. S. military leaders, however, that such strong objections were raised by other nations with troops in Korea that the plan was never put into effect.

Survey For Gray Airport Is Scheduled

A survey committee to feel out the attitude of the voting public on a Gray County airport, and then reach an agreement on site and amount of money to be spent, is to be appointed sometime today or tomorrow by chamber of commerce President Gene Fatheree. The action came late Monday afternoon at the close of the chamber of commerce airport committee meeting. The airport committee itself is scheduled for reorganization with some of the old members remaining while new faces will be added to the council table. However, a request by Hugh Burdette, chairman of the committee, for a completely new airport committee was rejected on the grounds it would be a waste of experienced manpower on the committee. But, a suggestion by Fred Thompson to add new members to the committee, from the ranks of those who said they voted against the May 26 bond issue because they didn't like the site was accepted unanimously by the committee. Thompson when asked for his suggestion said: "You can't quit now if you want to build the county. We should get our various factions together and then present a program satisfactory to all. If these opposition groups are sincere in what they say, we'll have an airport in a few months. I believe we should call in the county commissioners, leaders of the League of Gray County Taxpayers, the East Pampa property owners." (See SURVEY, Page 2)

Mary Hardin-Baylor Holding Closed Sessions On Moving

DALLAS (AP)—A group of alumnae opposing proposals that Mary Hardin-Baylor College be moved from Belton got a "very cordial reception" today from the school's board of trustees. "We were given a very cordial reception," said Mrs. W. N. Furey, wife of the publisher of the Hillsboro Mirror. "The proceedings were in the best of Christian spirit." The alumnae appeared at a board of trustees meeting called to hear a report from a special study committee. The committee, which has been studying proposals that the Baptist girls' college be moved to Houston or Corpus Christi, had a "closed meeting" here last night. Today's meeting of the board of trustees also was closed. A woman reporter who sought admittance as an ex-student was turned away. Georgia Nelson, reporter for the Abilene Reporter-News, said she sought admittance as a member of the group of alumnae opposing moving the school. Dr. Speight Jenkins, Dallas physician and brother-in-law of the college president, Dr. George Singleton, asked if any members of the group were newspaper reporters. Miss Nelson said she was appearing as an ex-student, not as a reporter. She was asked to wait outside.

NEW YORK (AP)—Rita Hayworth's attorney said today that Aly Khan is balking at the $3,000,000 settlement the actress demands for their daughter, Yasmin. The attorney, Bartley Crum, said he would go to Paris this week to talk over the money situation with Aly's lawyers.

Commission Talks Taxes

City commissioners this morning discussed possible renewal of the Catholic service which eliminates rust and various growths in city water tanks. Present contract for the service expires Aug. 23. Other discussion centered on an orientation session with the tax equalization board to outline duties of the board and renewal of the annual contract with the Texas Railroad Commission for rent of office space in the city hall. Commissioners indicated their willingness to renew the contract when it arrives from Austin. The office space brings in a rental revenue of $30 per month.

Supreme Court Backs Pampa's Ban On Out-Of-Town Dealers

The U. S. Supreme Court yesterday ruled a city has the right to ban door-to-door peddling by book agents, magazine subscription agents, studio salesmen and "other peddlers." The ruling, in effect, put a legal stamp on Pampa's ordinance that makes it mandatory for out-of-town merchants to first obtain a permit from the city tax department before operating here. City officials here expressed their satisfaction with the Supreme Court ruling which upheld an Alexandria, La., ordinance designed to stop door bell ringing by salesmen unless they first receive permission of the occupants to call. The Supreme Court action was brought by Jack H. Beard, Dallas, who was arrested in Alexandria and given his choice of paying a $25 fine or serving 30 days in jail for house-to-house selling without a city permit. Beard contested the sentence on the grounds that it violated the Constitution's guarantee of freedom of speech and press. The Pampa ordinance banning unlicensed door-to-door salesmen was passed in 1949 by the city commission.

New Price Battlegrounds Opened Across The Nation

NEW YORK (AP)—The nation had new price battlegrounds today as merchants in several cities adopted the cut-rate tactics of warring New York City department stores. There were no signs of a truce in the price war that started here a week ago today. On the other hand, the war spread yesterday to Baltimore, Md., Newark, N. J., Omaha, Neb., and San Francisco. As the battling bargain hunters stormed store counters, New York merchants were bringing up replacement items for goods that had been snapped up in the initial onslaught last week. Macy's made the boldest maneuver late yesterday when it slashed prices on Bulova watches. It reduced them from a range of $27.50 - to $195 to a range of $18.75 - to $121.88. Gimbel's Herald Square neighbor of Macy's promptly met the reductions and also slashed Elgin watches from a $29.75 - $104.17 range to a $23.87 - $92.02 range. Meanwhile, another price warrior, Bloomingdale's, said it would reduce phonograph records by 30 percent starting today. Brooklyn's Abraham and Straus said it would add a long list of Father's Day gifts to its price-lashed items. The holiday is June 17. Gimbel's and Hearn's remained open last night until 8 (EST), a schedule normally reserved for Thursday nights and Christmas rushes. In the Bronx, three persons were usually pays to bid game in the major suit. The play for game is usually just as good, sometimes better; and the major suit is usually far safer against a bad set.

West opened the king of hearts, and South played low from the dummy. East signalled enthusiastically with the ten of hearts, knowing that this signal would clarify the situation for West (if necessary) by denying the jack.

Here we might take a moment out to explain that point. A player who can afford to signal with the ten could equally well afford to signal with the jack if he had that card. Conventionally, a player who signals with a high card uses the highest card he can afford. If the highest card he can afford is the ten, he cannot have the jack.

As it happened, West had the jack of hearts and could continue hearts without danger. When West led the queen of hearts dummy won with the ace.

South had to play for the ace of diamonds onside or for West to begin the diamonds. He plan-

BARGAIN DAY, COURTESY OF SUPREME COURT—The U. S. Supreme Court started something when it recently ruled that non-signers of price agreements with manufacturers are not bound by state fair trade (price-fixing) laws. In New York, Macy's cut prices 6 per cent on nearly 6000 price-fixed items of merchandise. Declaring that nobody, but nobody, would undersell Gimbel's, that rival store cut its prices below Macy's. "Oh, yeah!" said Macy, and took another cut at prices. Gimbel's gave their another slash—and so it went through the day. The rival stores were mobbed by bargain seekers as scene above, in Macy's, shows. Clerks were exhausted. "It's worse than Christmas!" wailed one. Price war was expected to spread through the country.

Draft Official Backs Student's Deferment

AUSTIN — (P) — The state selective service director said Saturday postponement of inducting a Kilgore student is a right granted to all students of his category at this time.

Two Gregg County draft board members — J. H. O'Toole of Longview and J. Russell Smith of Kilgore — resigned Friday because of the decision to postpone the student's induction.

A — Bid three spades. This is a strong invitation (but not a force) to game. If partner has a sound overall he will proceed to four spades. If his overall was very shabby he will pass.

TODAY'S QUESTION
The bidding has been:
West — 1 Heart, North — 1 Spade, East — Pass, South — ?
You, South, hold: Spades K-9-7-2, Hearts Q-8-3-2, Diamonds K-6-4, Clubs A-8. What do you do?

Make The Bride's Cake At Home

BEAUTIFUL WHITE SHOWER CAKE will give glamor to wedding announcement party.

NEA Staff Writer
Will there be a June bride in your home? Are you wondering how to cut expenses a little? Then here's a beautiful answer—make the bride's cake yourself. How? It's simpler than you think. Here are short-cuts to a wedding cake that will do you and the bride proud.

Start with plain cake layers bought at your favorite baked goods counter. (If you prefer to do the complete job yourself, then simply it by using an instant white cake mix for the layers.) Let coconut take over the major portion of the decorating. Drifts of snowy lacy coconut on the top and bottom layers set off effectively the in-between layer. Here you can concentrate with frosting festoons and flowers. Instead of the usual bride and groom, top your wedding cake with a double-ring decoration for an original and charming touch.

WEDDING CAKE FROSTING
One cup uncolored fortified margarine, 8 cups sifted confectioner's sugar, 3-4 cup milk (about), 4 teaspoons vanilla, 1-2 teaspoon salt, 2 packages (3 cups) shredded coconut.

Cream margarine; add part of the sugar gradually, blending after each addition. Add remaining sugar, alternately with milk, until smooth. Add vanilla and salt and blend. Frost cake and decorate with coconut.

To Frost the Cake: Prepare Wedding Cake Frosting as directed above. Use 2 oblong or square layers of baker's cake. However, trim off some of the second layer to make it a little smaller than the bottom layer. To make top layer, frost together the strips cut off the second layer. Place first cake layer on flat oblong serving plate or tray. Spread top generously with frosting, sides thinly. Top with second layer, centering evenly; frost top generously, sides thinly. Top with third layer, centering evenly. Frost top generously, sides thinly. Spread frosting generously on sides of cake. Sprinkle coconut on top and bottom tiers, leaving center tier uncovered. Use remaining frosting with cake decorator tube to garnish middle tier with roses, leaves and garlands.

To Make Double Wedding Rings: Cut two small rings of cardboard. Cover these rings with frosting. Then carefully place silver dragees around top half of one ring to resemble diamonds in the bride's ring. Place rings on top of cake.

NOTE: Butter may be substituted for the uncolored margarine in the frosting recipe, but this will give a cream-colored frosting. An all-white appearance will be obtained if uncolored margarine is used.

Mmes. Garman And Hahn Attend State Meeting Of League Of Women Voters

"The strength of the League of Women Voters stems from its 'grass roots' organization," Mrs. Martin A. Row, Dallas, member of the national board of directors, told delegates to an organization conference in Houston, May 28 and 29. "The League works on Main Street, U. S. A. Its members are organized in 730 local leagues, in widely differing communities; the leagues within a state together form a state league to work on problems of government. There are 100 local leagues in 41 states, the District of Columbia, Hawaii, and Alaska, and more state organizations are on the way," Mrs. Row explained.

The French Room of the Rice Hotel was the scene of the sessions, attended by representatives of local and provisional leagues from all parts of Texas. Mrs. Row was chairman of the conference, assisted by Mrs. Ed Kilman, Houston, state president. Tape recordings were made of pertinent comment during the meetings.

Principal speaker for the conference was Mrs. Ray Horner, staff member of the national office, Washington, D. C. Informally characterized all sessions, and opportunity was given for questions and exchange of ideas among members of the group.

Delegates were given a complete orientation course on the purpose, policy, and procedure of the organization.

"We must often remind ourselves," Mrs. Horner stated, "that we are not really going to solve all problems, to save the world. As a league let's concentrate on disseminating information to the community. Let's remember that we do nothing outside the field of government. The purpose of the League of Women Voters is to promote political responsibility through informed and active participation of citizens in government. Our most cherished characteristic is our policy of non-partisanship, and we guard it zealously. However, individual members, exclusive of members of the board, are free, indeed, are urged, to work actively in the party of their choice."

"Ours is not an invitation organization; membership is always open. We must strive continuously for membership that is truly representative of the community," Mrs. Horner emphasized. This thought was further amplified by Mrs. Row who illustrated the point by one of her "stuffy definitions," the collection of which is her special hobby. "The league is not an organization of the 'upper crust.' Do you know what the 'upper crust' is? It is a few crumbs held together by their own dough."

Unit study groups were given particular emphasis. Since the unit provides the maximum opportunity for the individual member to develop her own thinking and her own talents, it is the most successful technique for the development of leadership within the league. "You can't ask headlines to explain. You can't argue with a radio. You can't discuss with a film—and you can't talk back to a book," Mrs. Horner stated. "But, in a good discussion with other members of the league, you determine why certain problems have arisen and consider various means of solving them, and, in some instances, really arrive at a course of group action."

Wheeler HS Class Of 1950 Holds First Annual Reunion

WHEELER (Special) — The class of 1950 held its first annual reunion Friday night. Class members had a covered dish supper at the Clarence Helton home in Wheeler. They voted at graduation last year to hold a reunion each year on June 1. During the evening "Round Robin" letters were written to the six member of the class who are now in the service. They are Bobby Henderson, Doyle Waters, Corky Robertson, C. R. Bailey, Londo Sanders, and Jack Mitchell.

Four of the girls have married. Mr. and Mrs. Bob Holde-man (Dorothy Esslinger), Mr. and Mrs. Lloyd Weatherly (Margaret Holdeman), and Mrs. Imogene (Reid) Zybach attended. The class was unable to contact Ruby Davis because her married name was unknown. Attending the reunion were Garland Parks, a student at West Texas State College in Canyon, J. T. Johnson, Lennie Newkirk, Martha Hastings, WTSC; JoAnn Richerson, Red Crossland, Winnie Reid, Gene Hubbard, WTSC, Charlotte Weatherly. George Hibbitts had planned to attend but had to leave for the Summer session at ACC in Abilene. Mr. and Mrs. Clarence Holdeman and Mr. and Mrs. Roy Esslinger were class parents during high school and were hosts of the reunion. Mr. and Mrs. W. O. Carrick were guests of the class.

In days of great tension, when feeling runs high, it is a temptation to take short cuts by borrowing from the totalitarian techniques of our opponents. But when we do, we set in motion a subversive influence of our own design that destroys us from within.

BEAUTY AFTER FORTY
So many letters come to me from women who are just at the stage of what I call Mature Dignity. It seems they are faced with many questions of what to wear, how to live, whether to try to act young or to act old.

If you are one of those women who have reached the Mature Dignity stage, here is my advice to you. Be Yourself, portray your role of Mature Dignity with charm, poise and a wise understanding of yourself!

The woman whose charms have been publicized around the world and who heads almost every list of the world's best dressed women, follows that plan. She always chooses clothes that flatter her blue-white hair and clothes which highlight her well preserved figure. She is always as charming as possible, always smartly groomed and always herself!

No need to try to change your type, just put the accent on good grooming and on your good looks. Insist upon time for yourself, whether you are a busy career woman or a homemaker, wife and mother. Plan a beauty routine. Know that you must concentrate on keeping a youthful appearance. Sacrifice not a whit of that, but a certain amount of Dignity can be most becoming, whether it be in your clothes or your manner, or both.

Your skin demands stimulated circulation. Give yourself a special mask treatment at least once a week. Use a good estrogenic cream at least once every day. If your skin is especially dry, use warm oil application several times a week. Your neck must have attention. Here's a quick treatment which work wonders for dry, crepey necks.

Apply a warm cloth, quite wet, to the neck for about 5 minutes. Remove and apply warmed oil. Mold the hands around the neck with a quick in-and-out suction movement. Also use the oil and cream on arms and shoulders. They will gleam like satin! Have a professional hair stylist plan a coiffure for you and learn to do it yourself, at home.

VICTIMS OF THE HLC—Frankie Russello, 14-year-old Boston, Mass., newsboy, and his 125-pound St. Bernard dog were parted by the high cost of food. Frankie found the dog recently and brought it home as a pet. After his mother watched the dog gobble up five cans of dog food with no effort at all, she decreed he had to go. Here the St. Bernard tries to console heartbroken Frankie.

A. NANABARRO appeared to notice Sonya Sereeta for the first time. He invited her to sit down and added to me: "No hard feelings, I hope?"
"The heck there aren't! One of your punkies crossed my dome!" I told him what had happened in the afternoon.
Nanabarro looked me squarely in the eyes. "Sure, LaGrange's gang was my gang. I admit that. I sent LaGrange to the Bidault place looking for a confession about Frankie's death. I thought Rose Bidault had it and if he couldn't find it, he might make a deal with her."
"I never got to know what LaGrange found—except the bullet you gave him. I didn't like that. But I never doubted your self-defense story. My boys didn't take it in such easy style—as you know. I told them to lay off, but they didn't. They must have followed you today. They asked for it."
"That's the truth," said Star. "I decided it was time Al and I got together. Al doesn't care who killed Rose Bidault—he wants to know who killed his girl. I'd be interested to know who killed Frankie Martin, but my professional life depends on proving who killed Rose. I say 'proving'—I told you before, I already know."
"The cops are looking for you," I told Star.
"I'll attend to that in due time," Star said gently. "But I wanted first to have a heart-to-heart talk with Al. It would help to know there was a confession about Frankie's death."
I said painfully: "Did he tell you?"
"Yes, Barney Bidault called Al the night before he was killed. He told Al he had a confession clearing up Frankie's death and that it would be given to the D. A. the next day. Al wanted to see it first. I gather he wanted to save the state the expense of a trial."
"Right!" said Nanabarro between his teeth.
"Al went to the Bidault place and found it swarming with police. Al left and kept his silence. He was afraid of being implicated."
"LaGrange's being at the Bidault house threw suspicion on me," Nanabarro said coldly. "Even Sonya began to distrust me. I turned so that I could look at Sonya and asked: 'Just what is your angle?'"
Star quietly answered. "You should have figured it out when you saw that Sonya could wear Clara Mayhew's clothes. Frankie Martin was Sonya's sister."
I was too stunned to note the non-sequitur. While I was giving Sonya a stupid stare, she said: "Now you know why I took the job at the La Jolla Club. But I haven't given Al a clean bill of health. He could have killed Frankie and signed that confession. Bidault might have threatened Al and he could have silenced him."
Nanabarro eyed her coldly. "What kind of a fool do you think I am? Why would I sign a confession?"
"You've have it," Star said blandly. "Why would anyone be fool enough to sign such a confession?"
THE three of us, Star, Sonya and I, rode back in my car, for Star and I were going to give Andy Prater the satisfaction of seeing me arrested? No, Jim, I'm going to produce Barney Bidault's killer with proof so conclusive that Andy will have to drop the charges against me to keep from being made the laughing stock of River City!"

I shrugged. "I hope you've got more than a hunch as I had last night when I promised to turn in Frankie Martin's killer in 24 hours."
"I'll not only turn up Barney's killer, but Frankie Martin's as well."
Soon after we reached the city limits Star stopped and got out of the car. He told Sonya to take me to the hospital, but I took her to the La Jolla Club instead.
"Take this," said Sonya, pressing something in my hand as she got out of the car. It was the little automatic again. I had given it to her before we left Nanabarro's.
"No thanks. I wouldn't be shot dead with that in my hand. Say, what was Star talking about when he said he had emphasized the way I wore Clara Mayhew's clothes?"
"I don't think he knows himself," I stopped. Two people were walking from the La Jolla parking lot. Smiley Weller and Clara Mayhew. They waved at us and went on into the club."
I REALLY did go straight home—but not to rest. I let myself in the back way and climbed the stairs, stumbling a couple of times and almost falling down. I opened the door.
I smelled him before I heard his breathing. I stepped inside in a hurry and closed the door behind me. I wished that I had Sonya's little gun. The light of a bridge lamp flashed on.
Carl Prater stood beside the lamp, almost in front of me. His face was red and moist with perspiration and the nickel-plated revolver in his hand trembled. I spoke first.
"You, too, Prater? Everybody's trying to kill me."

Hereford Breeders Slate Barbecue To Be Held Thursday

Members of the Top o' Texas Hereford Breeder's Assn. have extended invitations to a bout 530 persons to attend a "real western barbecue" Thursday, June 7.
The association is staging the barbecue as a means of expressing appreciation to the many people who supported the building of the new Hereford breeding farm.
The barbecue, prepared by Frank Carter and Hal Suttle, will begin at 6:30 and will be held in the new sales barn at Recreation Park.
Many out-of-town guests are expected to attend the barbecue that is to be followed with special entertainment. There will be no speeches, a spokesman said.

JACOBY ON CANASTA Don't Be Miscast In Canasta

By OSWALD JACOBY
Everybody knows the old legend about the clown whose great ambition is to play Hamlet.
Some Canasta players are just like that; they can't seem to figure out which part they are cast for.
The confusion usually arises just after somebody has won the first substantial discard pile. For the sake of clarity, let's suppose that the South player has taken that pile. At that moment the East is complete and each player should know exactly what part he is to play.
South's role is, of course, very easy. He should meld sparingly so as to keep a large number of cards in his hand. If he can keep about twenty cards in his hand the opponents will not dare freeze the pack. He is Simon Legree, and he should represent his hand by melding his whip. If he melds too many cards, his whip is gone.
North's role is equally clear cut. He must attempt to win the second substantial discard pile. Then he will have his own whip, and the two partners have a chance to cut the opponents to ribbons.
It sounds cruel, but it's just a game after all. It may be healthful to play really cruelly in this way. You work off your savagery at the card table and can be a model citizen everywhere else.
The two defenders, East and West, must recognize their parts instantly. Otherwise they will be the lambs that get led to slaughter.
Since South has taken the first substantial pile the offensive has passed to North and South. This means that East and West must take the defensive at once. They must not freeze the pack, they must not fight for the discard pile; they must play to meld out as quickly as possible.
West is the first defender to act after South has taken the pile. He must meld at once if he can do so with cards that have some reasonable chance of developing a canasta. If his only melds are in ranks already melded by the enemy (or known to be in an opponent's hand), he should refrain from melding in the hope that his partner can meld more conveniently.
There is no longer any fear of too many cards from the hand. That caution is necessary when you are fighting for the discard pile. It is no longer necessary when the pile has been taken by the enemy.

Reds Arrest Missionaries

HONG KONG — (AP) — Chinese Reds arrested 14 American and Canadian missionaries April 18, Communist news dispatches have reported.
Six others, including a bishop, were denounced. The Reds said the six caused the deaths of 16,000 Chinese children. The Communists' New China news agency did not say whether these six had been arrested. Denunciation is usually a preliminary to arrest or expulsion.
Those arrested included American Father Robert Kennedy, Sister Alice Ledoux of Canada, Sister Marie Gellert of France, Sister Antonio Balsan of Hungary and Sister Berthe Rassin of Malta. Others were not identified but they are known to include three Americans.
Bishop Robert Kowalski, his deputy, and four Franciscan brothers were denounced. Bishop Kowalski, a Polish American born in Michigan, has been in China since 1926. His assistant was identified as an American named Schneider.
Most of the missionaries operated orphanages.
Many of the children taken to the orphanages are dead on arrival or dying of starvation and disease. The high mortality rate gives the Communists the excuse they need for driving the missionaries out of the country.

John, Jr., Discovers It's Tough Being A Barrymore

By BOB THOMAS
HOLLYWOOD — (AP) — John Barrymore, Jr., who is 19 years old today, wonder if it wouldn't be easier merely to be Joe Doakes, Jr.
The young actor, who started his professional career just two years ago, has found the going isn't easy. He is his own severest critic and is amazingly self-effacing.
"Sure, it's easy for me to get into a studio," he admitted. "The name 'Barrymore' is a key that unlocks any door. But once you're inside, you really have to prove yourself."
"There are thousands of Joe Doakes in Hollywood eager for the opportunity to get into the studios. They would envy the opportunity that I have. My trouble is that I'm really a Joe Doakes with a well-known name."
John would never qualify as a press agent for himself. He is now making his fourth picture, "The Long Night." Said he: "If I'm not any better than I was in the first three, I ought to quit and find myself a trade."
He claims he "stank" in all three. "I got sick in my stomach after seeing each picture," he declared. "I was terrible."
Of course, it's possible that John is expecting too much. He hinted that seems to be the trouble with others who see him; they compare him with others in his illustrious family.
"It wouldn't be so bad if only my aunt and uncle had been actors," he said. "But so were my father, my mother, my grandfather, my grandmother and so on back for 10 generations." He referred to such famous relatives as John, Lionel and Ethel Barrymore, Dolores Costello (his mother), Maurice Costello, John Drew, etc.
If John needs any dramatic lessons, he ought to be getting them soon. He is now living in the Pacific Palisades home of his Aunt Ethel. And they are going to do a picture together, a western in which she'll play a cattle queen.
"I don't know if she'll be giving me any lessons," he observed, "but it's an education just to be around her."
Actually, John's movie plight doesn't seem so bad as he paints it. He perhaps was thrown into big roles at too young an age; he was only 17 when he signed his first contract and had none of the stage experience which helped his famed relatives. But he has come a distance since those green days.
When I first interviewed John, he was a hesitant, unsure kid. But a couple of years of the glamor routine has polished him up somewhat. He now browses around a movie set, picking up

Salesman Is Working Hard

By SAM DAWSON
NEW YORK — (AP) — The salesman is going to work again. His first job, as they see it at the annual convention of the national sales executives, is to cure the blues.
Businessmen have been singing the blues of late, because they are carrying a heavy load of goods and customers flock to buy only when there's a sale or a price war.
The NSE president, Robert A. Whitney, reports that a survey of 100 leading companies shows most of them expecting "a marked tapering off" in sales in the last half of the year, but a dollar volume gain of 18.6 percent for the year as a whole, over last year.
But some of the 1,500 top sales managers at the convention think this tapering off doesn't have to be so. One of these is Fen K. Doscher, president of the Sales Executives Club of New York. He says today that the salesman's job is to concentrate on fighting the blues in business.
There are plenty of untapped markets, Doscher contends. He bolsters his sales talk with the arguments that the population is growing, people have plenty of unsatisfied desires for goods, incomes will be rising by fall, and production of goods may be less by then. A golden opportunity, he says, for the salesman who thinks of himself as a professional man, and not just a pitchman.
Many industries need customers right now. And their sales executives are swapping ways and means of first creating the desire for the goods in the customer's mind and then coaxing the money out of his pocket. All of this, they will tell you very persuasively, would benefit everyone — the manufacturer, the merchant and the consumer.

Whatever knowledge he can. He is assured without being cocky; his self-criticism precludes any conceit.
The closer association with his aunt will no doubt prove valuable to his career. And he plans to gain some stage training this summer, touring with "The Hasty Heart" in little theaters.
John's career will probably be interrupted in the future. Being 19 today, he is subject to another kind of casting by his draft board. He's 1-A, and ready.
Caption Review: "Excuse my Dust" is a pleasant if not sensational Red Skelton vehicle. This time the redhead is an early-century auto nut, and the horseless carriages are the basis for gag could become wearing, but genial coming keeps the laughs coming. Also thrown in are a number of songs and dances of the nostalgic type typical of this kind of film. Sally Forrest, MacDonald Carey and William Demarest offer good support. Pleasant warm-weather entertainment.

Retirement is a milestone towards which the average life-traveler moves with equanimity — especially if his journey is along pleasant lines, as mine has been. But time plays its tricks with the imagination. Always the end seems far away until, with sudden rush, the mark is reached, leaving the traveler bewildered, since beyond that point his journey isn't charted.
No, I'm not scared, but will admit to some uneasiness. Right now my feelings are about what they were one day on Vimy Ridge in World War I. The Germans chucked a high explosive shell right into the small depression where I was sheltering. As I flung myself flat beside the big fellow I thought frantically:

"Wonder what it's going to feel like when it explodes."
Well, obviously it didn't explode. It was the only dud the Germans threw into my neighborhood that day. However, it had put me up against a great uncertainty. And that's the way I feel about this retirement. I just don't know what to expect.
Still, I've made some plans for the canny blood of my Scottish Highland forbears runs strong in my veins. Having spent many years chasing thrills of all sorts to the four corners of the world, I quite realize that it would be folly now to retire to idleness.

SET FOR THE SEASON—From frostbite to mosquito bites is the switch that has taken place at the Korean battlefield, and Etc. Williams M. Rich of Outman, Ga., is one GI who is well prepared. Rich, of the 24th Infantry Division, puts the finishing touches on his elaborate canvas and mosquito netting "bungalow-type" boxhole before retiring for the night. Venerable Writer Sends A Farewell

By DEWITT MACKENZIE

This is the most difficult article I ever have had to write, for it is to say good-bye to the readers of our column.
I am "retiring," having reached the age at which the actual chaps say a man should cease his labors and devote himself to repenting of his sins.
Retirement is a milestone towards which the average life-traveler moves with equanimity — especially if his journey is along pleasant lines, as mine has been. quite the reverse, but all instructive and welcome.
And so you have my best wishes and affectionate regards. Keep in mind the little motto on Uncle Sam's coins.
Thus ends one part of our journey, and we begin another.

Says New Jet Being Developed

WASHINGTON — (AP) — Production of a jet fighter superior to the Russian-designed MIG is being used by the Communists in Korea has started, Maj. Gen. D. L. Putt said last night.
Putt, director of research and development for the Air Force, said on a television show the new model is not yet in combat because it is not available in sufficient quantity. He added that "we're doing everything possible to get it in action."
He did not identify the fighter, but apparently it is a new model of the P-86 Sabre Jet.

Britain Upsets Red Monopoly Of Skeletons With Plastics

By DON SCHWIND
LONDON — (AP) — A Briton is challenging the westward march of skeletons from behind the Iron Curtain.
Russia is the world's biggest producer of skeletons for scientific use. The USSR exports them by the thousands yearly to meet a global shortage.
T. W. Fazakerley of Croydon, a London suburb, is competing with the Soviets in a big way — with plastic replicas that fool even anatomy experts.
He produces about 2,000 a year under his present production schedule, and markets them everywhere — except in Iron Curtain nations — at half the current price for real ones.
Fazakerley feels pretty strongly about Russia's skeletons, not so much on political or ideological grounds but because they are mostly flatheads.
"From the anatomical point of view," he said, "Soviet skeletons are inferior products with those flat Asiatic-type noses. We can supply good old normal round heads in quantity and they are the type requested in most museums, medical schools and colleges all over the place."
The plastics have some advantages over real skeletons, says Fazakerley: they're easily marked with ink to identify each bone, they're not so breakable, they're cheaper, and they can be mass produced.
The skeleton manufacturer pointed to a passing blond: "That would bring about sixty quid (sixty pounds or $168). I could do a plastic job at half the price."
