Jap Resistance Crumbles on Kwajalein Island

U. S. NAVY PLANES BLAST ROI

By GEORGE E. JONES NAMUR ISLAND, Kwajalein Atoll, Feb. 4. Pope Refuses To Flee from Rome

LONDON, Feb. 4. (AP)—A thinly veiled warning that the Germans intend to defend Rome step by step, whatever the destruction entailed, is reported to have been conveyed to Pope Pius XII by the Nazis, who apparently have been trying for some time to persuade the pontiff to come to Germany.

The Ankara radio said the warning had been handed the pope by Baron Ernest von Weizsacker, German ambassador to the Vatican, in the form of a statement from Field Marshal Albert Kesselring declaring that the ultimate fate of Rome necessarily will be "subject to military considerations."

Finns Still Face Russian Assault

MOSCOW, Feb. 4. (AP)—There is good reason to believe here that unless the Finns act soon to abandon their German alliance and get out of the war they must feel the might of a Red army offensive again shortly.

U. S. Suffers Only Light Casualties

(By The Associated Press) Japanese resistance crumbled on big, crescent-shaped Kwajalein atoll today under overwhelming pressure of American invasion troops fighting from a foothold in the strategic Marshall Islands.

Imminent fall of the largest in the string of mid-Pacific bases was indicated by front-line reports on the five-day did offensive which Under-Secretary of War, Robert Patterson declared will "widen the cracks in the outer defense ring" of the Japanese empire.

The enemy already had forfeited more than half of the 30-odd keys forming the Kwajalein back door to the mandated islands. Casualties ran high for the Japanese, unexpectedly low for the Americans.

U. S. Marines, following up on the seizure of Roi islet with its valuable airstrip, captured adjoining Namur and four other coral keys to gain control of the atoll's northern end. Operations reached the mopping-up stage yesterday on Kwajalein islet at the southern tip, where army forces used tanks and field artillery to beat back the hard-hit enemy.

The navy said the known Japanese dead on Kwajalein islet as of Wednesday night totaled 1,250 of an estimated garrison of 2,000 men. American casualties were announced as 27 dead, 9 missing and 190 wounded. In the Roi-Namur sector, 100 U. S. Marines were killed and 400 wounded.

Radio Tokyo, in its first mention of the Marshalls action in 24 hours, asserted that the Americans "have risked it in order not to nullify the costly adventure in the Gilberts." U. S. forces last November captured the islands 300 miles south of the present fighting at a cost of 3700 casualties, but provided air bases for pre-invasion assaults on the Marshalls.

The draft board placed him in 3-A, the group deferred for dependents. Yesterday the 28-year-old automobile mechanic was arrested by FBI agents on a federal indictment charging failure to report for induction and making false statements to his draft board.

Your Income Tax -- No. 1

WHO MUST FILE A TAX RETURN

Many persons must file income tax returns who do not have to pay a tax, or who already have paid in full or even overpaid.

Whether or not you have to pay anything, you must file a return by March 15 if:

- You were unmarried and your entire income during 1943, from all sources, was as much as $500.
- You were married, but not living with your wife or husband during the year, and your entire income from all sources was as much as $500.
- You were married and living with your wife or husband during any part of the year and your entire income from all sources exceeded $624—or, if both husband and wife had income, if their combined income for the year was as much as $1200.

Regardless of other considerations—if you were liable for an income tax in 1942.

INCOME TAX OFFICIALS WARN that if you have a tax refund coming because of over-deduction or over-payment, you cannot collect the refund unless you file the tax return due March 15.

Following is the first of 12 authoritative easy-to-follow articles telling the reasoning behind the new logic of income tax returns. Readers should clip and save each installment of the series.

Beard Testifies In Behalf Of Atlanta Route

WASHINGTON, Feb. 4.—(AP)—Charles F. Beard, vice president of Braniff Airways, declared Thursday that public transportation needs require establishment of a route his company seeks to operate between Oklahoma City and Atlanta.

Beard was asked at a civil aeronautics board hearing on the Braniff application whether there was need for the route from Oklahoma City to Memphis, via Shawnee, Tulsa and Muskogee, Okla., and Fort Smith, Ark.

He said there was an adequate traffic demand not only for this distance but also for the remainder of the route extending east from Memphis via Birmingham to Atlanta.

In response to questions from counsel for Eastern Airlines, Delta and Chicago & Southern, Beard said he considered the Memphis to Atlanta traffic sufficient for his company's proposed facilities and Eastern's present service as well.

The Braniff and Delta applications are two of five airline proposals being considered by CAB Examiner Berden Bell. All are to supply additional passenger, mail and express air service in the Southwest.

Cities whose representatives have stressed need for added postwar facilities in the area at the hearing include Fort Smith, Lubbock and Amarillo.

Gas Contracts In Louisiana Probed

MONROE, La., Feb. 4.—(AP)—A federal power commission hearing into gas contracts from which four Louisiana companies, including former Gov. Richard W. Leche, allegedly split $702,000, was adjourned this week subject to reopening by the commission.

Besides Leche others named in testimony were members of the partnership: W. C. Peazel of Monroe, Thomas J. Hill of New Orleans and F. Floyd Hodge of Ruston.

The power commission called the hearing to determine whether the partnership was a public utility under the law. Testimony during the hearing brought out that the partnership purchased natural gas for two cents per thousand feet and sold it to the United Gas Pipelines under contract for four cents.

Peazel and Hodge testified before Trial Examiner Edward B. Marsh, but Leche and Hill did not appear. Leche is serving a federal sentence for mail fraud and Hodge said a subpoena issued on Hill had been returned by the United States marshal at New Orleans, who said he was unable to serve it.

Lambert McAllister, government counsel, indicated he would seek an order from the commission to take the deposition of Leche at the federal correctional institute at Texarkana, Ark. It was considered probable that any further hearings would be held in Washington.

Right to Draw Legal Instruments Studied

AUSTIN, Feb. 4.—(AP)—The supreme court has agreed to pass upon the question of how far a title company may go in drawing up legal instruments without being deemed guilty of practicing law without a license.

It granted a writ of error on the importance of the case to the Hexter Title and Abstract Co., of Dallas, vs. The Bar Association of Dallas.

Attorneys for the title company in a sharply worded application for the writ of error, contended that if the principles of law set up by the court of civil appeals are upheld, no title company would be permitted to draw up an instrument to which it was not a party, and no real estate agent could fill out an ordinary contract of sale.

Further, they noted if the principle should be applied to other professions, "no hospital would be permitted to employ an intern, no nurse could give a hypodermic, without being guilty of the unlawful practice of medicine."

Refrigerator Car Curtailment Asked

DALLAS, Feb. 4.—(AP)—E. O. Walker of Dallas, assistant railway director of the division of defense transportation, announced today that a drastic curtailment of the use of refrigerator cars has been asked of certain shippers to provide more of these cars for the perishable food production areas of Texas and other states.

He said the ODT has requested shippers of beer, wine and canned goods to reduce their requirements for refrigerator cars by 50 per cent during the next 60 days. If this reduction is made voluntarily, he pointed out, shippers of such products may avoid the imposition of an interstate commerce commission service order.

TODAY on the HOME FRONT

by JAMES MARLOW and GEORGE ZIELKE

WASHINGTON, (AP)—The two main questions on the tortured soldier vote debate have been broken into the open: Whether Negro soldiers should be permitted to ballot and whether President Roosevelt would have an advantage over any opponent in the 1944 elections.

More than a year of argument has come down to this: Senator Overton (D-La.) said "Let's be frank. Down in the solid South we've got to retain our state voting qualifications to preserve white supremacy."

And Senator Taft (R-O.) expressed fear that the servicemen would know the name of Roosevelt better than any other in a national election.

Community Property Rights Defended

WASHINGTON, Feb. 4.—(AP)—The supreme court has been urged by attorneys for eight states to uphold a decision by the Louisiana supreme court declaring unconstitutional a section of the 1942 legislation that provided that, in computing the federal estate tax on property of a decedent, community property held by a surviving spouse shall be included.

In the brief filed here, the attorneys charged that congress, in approving the 1942 legislation, had assumed as self-evident truth the inferiority of women and their subordinate place in the social order.

The brief on behalf of California, Arizona, Idaho, Nevada, New Mexico, Texas, Washington and Oklahoma was filed as a "friend of the court" in connection with oral arguments to be heard later this week on an appeal by the tax collector of Caddo parish, Louisiana, from the Louisiana supreme court decision.

Community property laws "confer upon the spouses property rights of equal dignity," said the brief, which added:

"Congress, fleeing from what it regards as a fiction—that the wife can possibly be regarded as part owner of property acquired through cooperative endeavor in which she shares burdens and sacrifices—embraces the most outmoded fiction of the common law, namely, that husband and wife are one, and that one is the husband."

"It seems to us that in the best of all possible worlds, equal ownership of the spouses would be more likely to be regarded as consonant with natural justice than the concept, beloved of the common law and congress, that property acquired through the joint efforts of two persons must of necessity all belong to one."

Heavy Shelling Doesn't Hurt U. S. Appetites

By HAL BOYLE

ON THE FIFTH ARMY FRONT, Jan. 23. (Delayed.) (AP)—Breakfast was an hour and a half late at the headquarters mess of one outfit, but not a single soldier complained. They were in their foxholes sweating out a three-hour German barrage from across the Rhine.

It began about 4:10 a. m. as T4 Joe Woolley of Moody, Texas, and T3 Lawrence Heard of Euvalde, Texas, were pumping up the gasoline stove in the mess tent.

"That first shell landed about 20 feet outside the tent," said Heard. "The concussion knocked me down and spilled two heavy boxes of rations over me. I was stunned for a moment, but Joe pulled the cases off me and helped me up. We spent the next three hours on our bellies in our foxholes counting the shells. "It sure was lucky for me that it was my day to get up early. When I went back to my bunk later I found four big chunks of shrapnel buried in my blanket. If it had been there they would have been buried in me."

It apparently pays to sleep on your back.

Shrapnel ripped through the tent of Tech Sgt. Charles W. Koone of San Antonio and shredded the blankets on his sleeping form while he was turned on his side.

"We didn't start feeding the boys until 8:45, about an hour and a half late," said Woolley, "but nobody grieved. We had some creamed bread and fruit juice, jam, coffee and bread. The shelling didn't seem to affect their appetites."

"A soldier never gets hurt in the appetite," said Sgt. E. L. Shook of South Waco, Texas. "It's awful hard to hit him there."

"They put 116 shells in our area and we lost one fellow," said Pfc. Raymond H. Kemp of Santa Anna, Texas, who was only 15 feet away from one shellburst. "That shows how hard it is to kill people in a war."

Bricker to Invade Southern States

WASHINGTON, Feb. 4.—(AP)—Plans of Gov. John W. Bricker of Ohio, to carry his campaign for the Republican presidential nomination into the South have been disclosed here, along with word that Gov. Dwight D. Eisenhower might be receptive to the GOP vice presidential candidacy.

Bricker made known his plans for a Southern trip during a visit this week. He said he would make two or three speeches in Miami, Fla., March 14.

Griswold, who with four other governors were here as the governors' conference executive committee, indicated he would not decline the vice presidential nomination and in an interview said the Republicans could win in November on these two issues.

"Who can best insure business prosperity after the war?"

SPRINGFIELD, Ill. — Governor Green has freed a state farm prisoner who served four months of a nine-month sentence for theft of four watermelons.

"The melons were not stolen with intention of selling them but for the purpose of eating them," the governor said. "The penalty was out of proportion."

The prisoner, Cletus Womack, 23, was ordered released immediately.

SPREADING KISSES

CHICAGO — Lipstick kisses may furnish just the right trim for Valentine letters and they may look good on some stationery—but not on V-mail. The army hats noted that such kisses create smudges on other letters. For that reason, says Maj. Orman V. Rowe, lipstick traces have been barred from V-mail.

Sunday School Lesson
Text: Mark 8:34-37; 1:3-9
The Golden Text is the vital importance of this lesson. It is from John 6:25: "I am the bread of life: he that cometh to Me shall not hunger, and he that believeth on Me shall never thirst."
The lesson consists of the record of two miracles of the feeding of hungry multitudes: the first of 5000 people, and the second of a similar feeding of a multitude which had been for three days with Jesus, listening to His words, perhaps awaiting the performance of another miracle, and hungering for His words.

All this interest, as Jesus Himself reminded them, was not upon a high plane of spiritual concern, or even of high-minded curiosity. Jesus complained of the material motive that drew these multitudes about Him: "Ye seek Me," He said, "not because ye saw the miracles, but because ye did eat of the loaves and were filled."
In a somewhat different way, but in much the same spirit, we may make the same mistake. Our interest and attention may be so concentrated on the physical wonderment of the miracle as to miss altogether its spiritual meaning and significance. The story of an amazing, and seemingly impossible, physical accomplishment may seem so large as to exclude the proper thought of the wonder-working and life giving Christ.

The miracles, as we have frequently pointed out, occupy a strange and limited place in the New Testament records. They are interwoven with the Gospel story in a way that seems to make them inseparable from it, yet they never dominate the story or take the place of the supreme figure and the supreme fact—Jesus of Nazareth and His mission as the Servant of men. That has always seemed to me the greatest miracle of all. It would have been so easy an easy natural for the Gospel writers to have made the story one of a great miracle, to which they constitute a stumbling block instead of an aid to faith, for to these is seems incredible and impossible that thousands could have been fed with a few loaves and a couple of fishes.

Those who believe in the miracles need say no helpful word; to others I would say: fix your attention on the Christ, it is He who is Christ, and not the miracles.

Christian Science Sunday Study Topic
"Spirit" is the subject of the lesson-sermon which will be read in all Churches of Christ, Scientist, on Sunday, Feb. 6. The Golden Text is: "We through the Spirit wait for the hope of righteousness by faith" (Galatians 5:15).
Among the citations which comprise the lesson-sermon is the following from the Bible: "The Lord is high above all nations, and his glory above the heavens" (Psalm 113:4).
The lesson-sermon also includes the following passage from the Christian Science textbook, "Science and Health with Key to the Scriptures" by Mary Baker Eddy: "In Christian Science, Spirit, as a proper noun, is the name of the Supreme Being, and is used to denote deity, and applies exclusively to God" (page 83).

Backs Pin-Up Fad

Staff Sgt. Allen Blake of DeJance, Ohio, believes in the pin-up girl fad and backs it up—literally. Blake, waist-gunner of a Flying Fortress in England, is pictured wearing his leather jacket, named "Flossie" after his wife. The pin-up girl on his back says, brought him luck on raids over German targets in Europe.

In the miracles, that men are saved and made strong.
As for myself, I find it impossible not to believe that much physical wonder-working was associated with the earthly ministry of Jesus. I am sure that He healed the sick, and that He gave evidence of a divine power that men do not ordinarily possess. But I am sure also that there are questions and problems associated with the miraculous that we can properly leave to the judgment of reverent and competent scholars.

Free People Are Happy

Men are sent to the battlefronts to preserve Democracy. And what is Democracy? A press free to print any and all facts and a people free to form their own opinions are a part of that Democracy. We can't help but take newspapers, for granted — they become such an integral part of our daily living. What's Washington doing? What's happening in the theatres of war? Newsprint becomes a living thing, it vividly portrays the scene of action... it carries millions of Americans to the spot to hear congressmen talk... to hear the pros and cons of arguments to help people think clearly for themselves.

Free people are happy. Newspapers tell how to make homes comfortable, how to prepare delicious meals, how to keep healthy, where to go for entertainment.

They are performing this service, true to the traditions of the free and independent press they represent and to the more than 40,000,000 free and independent American homes of their daily readers. Through both their editorial and advertising columns they have typified the American way of war service, and in doing so have given the lie to our enemies who scoffed at the power of free men and free institutions.

Common Ground

By E. C. BOILES
I speak the pass-word, I give the sign of democracy. By God I will accept nothing which all cannot have their counterpart on the same terms.

Union Suspends Fast Workers

A nice example of the natural results of the belief in collective bargaining is the suspension by the United Automobile Workers of the Ford Motor Company at Edgewater, New Jersey of certain men because they worked faster than other employees. These men were John Elvin and Neil Smith who tested twice as many trucks in a day as other workers tested.

Elections? Why Not?

Isn't it too bad that in such a critical year politics will play such a big part in everything congress does? We see such expressions every day. David Lawrence wishes the Constitution did not require an election. Others say, "Let both parties nominate the same candidates" which is the same thing as no election.

Making Unloyal Americans

Few people realize that newsboys who are not what is called "loyal" carriers are subjected to having pay deductions made from their wages for unemployment insurance. This is done even when they have no chance of collecting unemployment insurance.

The Nation's Press

Recently adherents of the Roosevelt Administration have been amazed and sometimes indignant because newspaper men, Senators, Congressmen and other common citizens seemed skeptical regarding the accuracy of statements emanating from the White House.

A PRESIDENTIAL PET

An Associated Press dispatch states that Presidential Adviser Harry Hopkins "arose from a naval hospital bed" to testify before a grand jury which is investigating the alleged forgery of his name to the mystery letter about Wendell Wilkie. A lot of people must be wondering how it is that Hopkins happens to be a patient in a naval hospital in Washington.

Wolf in Llama's Clothes

News Behind The News

The National Whirligig

By RAY TUCKER
The ten Republicans are selected by vote of state delegations with few first-terms are ever named. No man is given this assignment unless his colleagues adjudge him safe and sound, for general irritation over imposts has probably caused the defeat of more incumbents than any other issue.

But in the Seventy-Eighth Session it has turned on the White House with a vengeance. It scrapped the New Deal's tactics in matters long before the sponsor offered a prize for a different name for his regime.

PROTEST—Old-timers cannot remember any Ways and Means crowd split so completely with the Treasury and the White House. Here is a short summary of its hostile accomplishments:

It provided for raising a mere two billion-plus in fresh assessments, although Henry W. Morgenthau pleaded for an extra billion or two hundred million. It rejected the President's demand for a statutory ceiling limiting salaries to twenty-five thousand dollars a year.

It abolished the Bituminous Coal Commission, financed by levies on mine operators.

The Committee pigeonholed Secretary Morgenthau's repeated request for repeal of the Community Property clause, by which a husband and wife may share their payments in filing a common return.

It is a kind of treatment does little to promote loyal American citizenship among the youth of our land.

is apparent when one is reminded that while the private citizen who gets $25,000 net per year has to support himself and his family out of this sum, a generous Government pensioner to the Roosevelt family the most gigantic allowance for the support of the White House in all the history of that rather comfortable residence.

When the private citizen gets through paying for rent, food, servants' wages, medical care, laundry, upkeep on household furniture, automobile, traveling expenses, entertainment, and other costs for himself and family, including the wives and children of the President in wartime, even if he is lucky enough to have a net income of $25,000 a year, that $25,000 looks as if it had been blizzed.

On the other hand, a generous country gives the President $300,000 FREE OF TAX, a year, to cover every conceivable expense incidental to living in an atmosphere of luxury not enjoyed by a crowned head in the world today.

No citizen of the republic is attended by so many servants, and no home in America is maintained on such a basis as the White House. Fifteen automobiles are attached to the mansion, and when he travels outside of Washington he moves in a special train.

To attempt to make it appear the President is sharing wartime hardship of income with private citizens is just the type of political fraud which causes skepticism regarding many statements from the White House.

The letter is now known to be a forgery. The typewriter on which it was written is known to have been one in the outer office of George N. Briggs, speech assistant and grammar corrector to Secretary of the Interior Harold I. Ickes.

The handwriting, or rather the hand-lettering of printing, of the name and address on the envelope in which the letter was mailed to Mayor Sparks, has been studied and identified by the man who addressed the envelope. It is believed to have been established.

DR. FOSDICK'S 'ON BEING A REAL PERSON'

Faith Increasingly Recognized
As he has been the varied psychological effects of positive faith—how it awakens limitless moods, expels negative moods, releases dormant energy, breaks through the isolating walls of lonely selves, and creates in insecure souls a basis for steadiness and poise—it becomes clear that the way we handle our faith-faculty is predominantly important even to physical health.

In the ancient world, largely ignorant of what we now call "scientific medicine," reliance for cure of disease rested mainly on non-physical factors. Whether in the New Testament or out of it, healing in the ancient world is the most familiar kind of "miracle": maladies both of mind and body were cured by spiritual means, especially by faith and prayer conceived as energy leading divine help.

That change is indicated by the affirmation of one of our outstanding physicians: "It is not an overstatement to say that fully 50 per cent of the ailments of the most advanced stages of an illness and 75 per cent of the difficulties of convalescence have their primary origin not in the body, but in the mind of the patient."

The personal counselor is often unsure with which set of factors the patient is dealing. Each of us has many people present moral and spiritual symptoms behind which one suspects a physical cause; the loss of inward peace and the power of prayer may spring from hyperthyroidism. Many others, however, crushed by physical ailments, seek spiritual resources to endure them.

Now it's the dogs who are about to have their day in Hollywood's glorification of the war. Columbia is planning a movie based on the exploits of canines trained for battle duty. The picture will be titled, "Army Dog."

Several years ago Songwriter Lew Porter was musical director for the U. S. in the Panama Canal Zone. One night he gave a command performance for the duke and duchess of York, the present king and queen of England.

He spoke movingly of his wife and his learned daughter. Were those women, whose intelligence and energy alone had enabled him to do his modest work in Education for Democracy—were they mere toys to fondle in his idle hours, were bric-a-brac to be laid aside if war should ever come? Were they? Never! He hoped and believed that it would never be necessary for them to be fighters, not so long as he himself could strike a blow. But should the occasion ever arise, he would be the first to applaud their putting on khaki and shouldering a gun.

President Riot said, at length, that Dr. Planish was a deep thinker, but all off on today's deep thought.

AT 9:29, President Riot and the Planishes had a quick one at the Fanfare Folly Bar, and at 9:41 they sat down at the speakers' table at the dinner, in the Belle Poule Restaurant, of the Movement to Restore Christianity and Regular Church Attendance in Manhattan, just as Winifred Marcude Homeward arose and began defying the microphone.

Religion, said Winifred, would be restored only when True Democracy was instituted. Her father and she wished that there was some way of making every woman, man and child realize what Democracy was; that it opposed all pressure groups and held that the rights of man and woman, rich and poor, were equal; that all honest labor, whether of the editor of the furnace man, the poet or banker or harvest-hand, was equally noble.

She didn't exactly say it, but she implied that if the poets, bankers and/or harvest hands did not listen constantly to her and to her father, then civilization would smash.

After the Movement dinner, the Planishes had the privilege of being taken, with the Marcudes and the Homewards, to the flat of Governor Blizard.

The Doctor rode with Winifred. She pointed to her chauffeur's back, and whispered—she thought she was whispering—"But look at my driver—the stupidest, stoudest man I know. How can you persuade people like him to listen to the Voice of Democracy? He never thinks of anything but driving. I'm sure he's never even looked at me. He does; I know whether I'm dull or clever. I don't believe I'm beautiful."

In the other car, Peony patted the hands of Tom Blizard, Charley Marcude and Hal Homeward, in turn, and told them that they looked tired but handsome after their gigantic labors, told them that she was so proud of knowing them.

At three o'clock she smiled like an angel to the Governor's bachelor living room was 40 feet long, with a bar at each end and a fireplace on each side.

Dr. Planish interested them all by saying that although the Colonel or the Governor would be a much better President than Mr. Roosevelt, Winifred told them, but she had heard it confidentially and they must not repeat it, that a correspondent who had had a cocktail with a French diplomat, who had had a cup of time with Marshal Petain, had said that France would rise up against Germany before the end of January, 1942.

ON Saturday morning, December 6, 1941, Dr. Planish flew with President George Riot out to Bonnell College for Women. It might have been an extravagant journey, but the college paid his expenses, and he also charged them in full to Travel on his DDD account.

At 1, there was a "banquet" at Bonnell.

At 2 p. m., in the ceremony of Winter Convocation, he received from President Riot the honorary degree of Doctor of Letters. He now had almost as many stuffed heads and horns as Colonel Marcude; two LL.D.'s, three Litt.D.'s, one D. H., and even one real green A. P. D. Thus, invested, he had in his veins a different and more royal blood—maybe Type 5.

At 7:30 that evening, George Riot and he publicly repeated their debate of the evening before: "Resolved: In Case of War, Women Should Bear Arms."

Around Hollywood

By ERSKINE JOHNSON
One actor playing two biographical roles in the same picture is the latest wrinkle in Hollywood casting. Sidney Blackmer does it in "Wilson," Darryl Zanuck's screen biography of America's World War president. He portrays Josephus Daniels, secretary of the navy in the Wilson cabinet, and Lew Dockstader, the famous minister, doing a blackface imitation of Theodore Roosevelt. . . Hollywood's war films continue to be a pain in the neck to men in service. General opinion is that they are insipidly patriotic and inaccurate in battle detail. That scene in "Sahara" in which a tank knocks down a Nazi plane with one look and its heavy gun is getting howls in showing overseas. As one tank gunner put it, "It would be just as easy to swat a fly on the wing with a .22 rifle."

Betty Hutton has moved to the desert for two weeks on doctor's orders, to avoid a nervous breakdown. . . She hates to admit it, but Marjorie Reynolds has had nine love affairs in a popular pulp magazine under a pen name. . . Dorothy Lamour has been asked to have her day in Hollywood's test this summer. It's the same one in which she lost her best friend, Dorothy Dell, before Hollywood discovered her. . . Incidentally, Dottie will sing a new tune, "It Could Happen to You," in "Road to Utopia." It was written by Jack Hope, brother of comedian Bob.

SILENCE IS NOT GOLDEN
It's Roy William Neill's story about the producer who was advised not to hire a writer because he was inarticulate at conferences. "Besides that," agreed the producer, "he never opens his mouth."

Add oddities: Director Lloyd Bacon is such a watch fancier he carries around four besides his wristwatch. One is a super number which has six dials giving the correct time in Paris, London, Mexico City, Moscow, Shanghai and New York City. No, he isn't always late for appointments.

Now it's the dogs who are about to have their day in Hollywood's glorification of the war. Columbia is planning a movie based on the exploits of canines trained for battle duty. The picture will be titled, "Army Dog."

Dr. Planish interested them all by saying that although the Colonel or the Governor would be a much better President than Mr. Roosevelt, Winifred told them, but she had heard it confidentially and they must not repeat it, that a correspondent who had had a cocktail with a French diplomat, who had had a cup of time with Marshal Petain, had said that France would rise up against Germany before the end of January, 1942.

ON Saturday morning, December 6, 1941, Dr. Planish flew with President George Riot out to Bonnell College for Women. It might have been an extravagant journey, but the college paid his expenses, and he also charged them in full to Travel on his DDD account.

At 1, there was a "banquet" at Bonnell.

At 2 p. m., in the ceremony of Winter Convocation, he received from President Riot the honorary degree of Doctor of Letters. He now had almost as many stuffed heads and horns as Colonel Marcude; two LL.D.'s, three Litt.D.'s, one D. H., and even one real green A. P. D. Thus, invested, he had in his veins a different and more royal blood—maybe Type 5.

At 7:30 that evening, George Riot and he publicly repeated their debate of the evening before: "Resolved: In Case of War, Women Should Bear Arms."

War Today

By DeWITT MacKENZIE
Associated Press War Analyst
Hitler's world is shrinking so drastically that he can't find a place to hide from the vengeance which is closing in on him.

The Red armies—striking fiercely and unceasingly in order to make every hour count before spring arrives to turn the steps into sea of mud—have placed the German front in fresh jeopardy in three sectors:

1. Most sensational is the operation in the far south, within the Dnieper bend, where two Red armies have pinched off the famous Smela salient and trapped 10 Nazi divisions—probably more than 100,000 men. Moscow reports that 10,000 already have been slain.

2. In the south-central zone the Thrust into pre-war Poland. The Germans say they've abandoned the important railway cities of Lutsk and Rovno. If that's true, it brings the Reds still closer to the great railway junction of Lemberg (Lwow).

Nancy Kelley and ex-husband Edmund O'Brien are discussing a reconciliation. . . Promised and hoped for: Frank Sinatra and Ann Sheridan playing Mr. and Mrs. with Bert Wheeler and their son, in a buy-more-bonds cast.

Bette Davis will receive an honorary degree from Rawlins College in February. . . Red Skelton's gag about the difference between a rich Okie and a poor Okie—a rich Okie has two mattresses on top of his car—got him into plenty of hot water with the State of Oklahoma. If Californians and Floridians were equally sensitive, screen and radio comics would have been paroled years ago.

Two Jap Cities Are Evacuated

NEW YORK, Feb. 4.—(AP)—The Japanese order at Batavia said partial evacuation of certain areas in the Japanese cities of Kyoto and Yokosuka had been ordered by the government as an air raid precaution measure.

FUNNY BUSINESS

"His sense of smell gets the best of him!"

Gideon Planish by Sinclair Lewis

Copyright, 1944, Sinclair Lewis. Distributed by NEA Service, Inc.

DR. PLANISH reached the anteroom to the Gold Ballroom of the Grand Hosannah Hotel at 12:32, and was photographed with the officers of the Riverdale Ladies' Sociological Study Club; he lunched with the club till 2; then, to that sea of upturned minks and Tecla pearls, he talked for 25 minutes about "Politics Needs Your Help." He told them just what changes in the daily life of Paris had been made by the German occupation, and if he did not tell them that he had never been in Paris, neither did he say that he had.

He met Winifred Homeward in the Baboon Bar of the Hosannah, and they had a quick one and went together to a committee meeting of the new Call to Arms League.

He rode the subway down to Pine Street, called on Walter Gilroy, looked tearful, and got a check for $400.

He went back to the DDD office, signed his mail, and endured a little quiet torture with callers who were blessed with wealth but cursed with ideas.

At 6, he was in a studio of the Bronctaurus Broadcasting Company, introducing Senator Bultitude on the radio.

In swap for the Doctor's spirited introduction, the Senator mentioned the DDD—favorably.

At 6:20, the Doctor had another quick one, with the Senator, and at 6:40 still another, with Peony, at home.

Peony put on a new frock while he became beautiful in tails and white tie. They dined at a cafe, and Peony, in a crimson velvet evening cape and red roses in her hair, carried a tray with scrambled eggs, coffee, a chocolate éclair, a mocha layer cake and caramel ice cream.

At 6:15 they entered the Artists' Dressing Room of Village Green Hall, and embraced their friend, George Riot, president of Bonnell College for Women. At 8:24, Dr. Planish and President Riot began, before another set of furs and ing taken, with the Marcudes and the Homewards, to the flat of Governor Blizard.

The Doctor rode with Winifred. She pointed to her chauffeur's back, and whispered—she thought she was whispering—"But look at my driver—the stupidest, stoudest man I know. How can you persuade people like him to listen to the Voice of Democracy? He never thinks of anything but driving. I'm sure he's never even looked at me. He does; I know whether I'm dull or clever. I don't believe I'm beautiful."

In the other car, Peony patted the hands of Tom Blizard, Charley Marcude and Hal Homeward, in turn, and told them that they looked tired but handsome after their gigantic labors, told them that she was so proud of knowing them.

At three o'clock she smiled like an angel to the Governor's bachelor living room was 40 feet long, with a bar at each end and a fireplace on each side.

Dr. Planish interested them all by saying that although the Colonel or the Governor would be a much better President than Mr. Roosevelt, Winifred told them, but she had heard it confidentially and they must not repeat it, that a correspondent who had had a cocktail with a French diplomat, who had had a cup of time with Marshal Petain, had said that France would rise up against Germany before the end of January, 1942.

Our national security must have as its first foundation the maintenance of the great sea and air power which the United States navy is now in the process of building.

Peter Edson's Column: THIS AND THAT FROM WASHINGTON

By PETER EDSON
Pampa News Washington Correspondent
President Adviser Harry Hopkins, who has been the target for more personal abuse and hatred than any man in the administration, got one of the best breaks of his career through the publication by Akron's Mayor C. Wilson Sparks of the letter reported to have been written by Hopkins to Dr. Umphrey Lee expressing confidence that Wilkie would be the Republican candidate in 1944.

The letter is now known to be a forgery. The typewriter on which it was written is known to have been one in the outer office of George N. Briggs, speech assistant and grammar corrector to Secretary of the Interior Harold I. Ickes.

The handwriting, or rather the hand-lettering of printing, of the name and address on the envelope in which the letter was mailed to Mayor Sparks, has been studied and identified by the man who addressed the envelope. It is believed to have been established.

The missing link in the chain of evidence are establishment of the identity of the actual writer of the letter, and proof of the connection, if any, between whoever wrote the letter, whoever addressed the envelope, and whoever mailed the letter to Mayor Sparks.

What, asks Senator Gurney, "is going to happen then?" Secretary Stimson couldn't answer.

DILEMMA OF FARMER'S DAUGHTER

A new hypothetical story about the farmer's daughter not injected into the record when Secretary of War Henry Stimson appeared before the senate committee on military affairs to give his statement in support of national service legislation. After the formal statement, the senators took turns in questioning Secretary Stimson, and Senator Chas. Gurney of Yankton, S. D., posed this one.

"We all know that work is limited in war time," said the senator. "But supposing we get this national service act and some farmer's daughter from the northwest is drafted and sent down to Chicago to work in a war plant.

"After a time she writes back, 'Dad, they don't need me down here. You do more work before breakfast than they do down here in a full day.'"

"What," asks Senator Gurney, "is going to happen then?" Secretary Stimson couldn't answer.

WALLACE ORIGINALITY
Every time the President Henry Wallace makes a speech, which is often, he bobs up with an idea that makes good reading and good headlines, whether you agree with what he has to say or not. Too many people, however, have the idea that these theories of Henry's are all brand-new stuff—new pipe dreams, new economic panaceas he has off what used to be known as the New Deal griddle, new schemes for a planned economy, regimentation, specialism, and all the other old bugaboos and bogeymen. As a matter of record, however, many of the ideas which the vice president has spoken in the last year are old stuff around Washington.

The vice president's December speech at Chapel Hill, N. C., in which he lashed out at cartels, monopolies, and the production of medicine was right out of the department of justice anti-trust division, and so was his October speech in the northwest in which he gave a mean kick at "integrated transportation systems," and his September speech at Chicago attacking international big business.

His speeches during the South American trip were pretty much the original New Deal line of ending poverty, ending great fortunes for a few, and ending the middle class for the rest. Earlier in the year he was merely endorsing the Four Freedoms calling for better living conditions for plain people, promoting everyone to the middle class for the post-war world.

1 cup sifted flour 1/4 teaspoon salt 1 1/2 cups milk
2 1/2 teaspoons Calumet 3 tablespoons sugar 3 tablespoons melted Baking Powder 1 egg, well beaten shortening
1 cup Post's 40% Bran Flakes or Grape-Nuts, slightly crushed

Or instead of greasing the griddle, rub it with a little bag of salt before baking each batch of cakes. This keeps cakes from sticking and saves grease. For salt bag, the 1/4 cup salt in cheese cloth.

Phony Post-War Planning

(The Chicago Tribune)

Speaker Rayburn came to Chicago with the conviction of the discredited Mayor LaGuardia, head of the United States Conference of Mayors, for the apparent purpose of throwing a scare into that outfit. He visioned a man on horseback and a dictatorship if America fails to follow the fantasies that the New Dealers call post-war economic planning.

Their ideas of planning are pretty much limited to vast public works projects, for which too many of the mayors have a weakness, since federal subsidies give them a chance to make an impression on their constituents while the cost is extracted from the same constituents by federal income taxes instead of local rates.

Another speaker before the conference was Henry J. Kaiser, who also plumped for a vast program of publicly financed construction. Mr. Kaiser admittedly has engineering talents of a high order and the executive ability to pick assistants who carry his plans thru. If his speech before the mayors is a true index, however, his economic and social ideas are strictly of the pickup variety. His talk might be a transcription of Harold Ickes, played with a less scratchy needle.

The trouble with Speaker Rayburn and Mr. Kaiser, and the New Deal ghosts who do their economic thinking for them, is that they start out with the assumption of a great depression after the war. Then contend that the government is going to have to bail the people out of whatever trouble the peace finds them in. This is the firm belief of Mr. Roosevelt's tax and spend crew, because it is the only formula they have ever been able to learn. They measure national wealth in treasury balances and the money turnover of public pay rolls.

Speaker Rayburn, with Mr. Kaiser as his precursor, was trying to perpetuate this gang in office after the next election. As he comes from Texas, it may be presumed that Mr. Rayburn's worries are not personal. But the country is thru with the New Deal crew who have brought such ruin upon it and it certainly will be in no mood after it has got rid of the New Deal politicians next fall to countenance the continued economic deprivations of the New Deal planners for whom the speaker was fronting. He adds nothing to his stature and to the supposed economic sanity of the Texas Democrats by allying himself with such people.

While this economic blue sky stock was being peddled to Chicagoans by imported emissaries of the little minds of Washington the real economic post-war problem was being stated by a Chicagoan in another city. James L. Donnelly, executive vice president of the Illinois Manufacturers' association, told an Atlanta meeting of industrialists that the country's post-war goal must be "the production of the largest possible volume of peace time goods, in the shortest possible time, and at the lowest possible cost."

If that goal can be attained there need be no fear of a post-war depression. It can be attained unless the country is so foolish as to tolerate a dictatorial regime in Washington which stifles industry with taxes in order to carry out a sterile program of public works and other make-work devices.

The economic planning of the New Deal is worthless because it is all based on the fallacy that the objective should be employment purely for the sake of employment, regardless of whether the employment produces anything useful. What this country wants after the war is steel and automobiles, and washing machines and new homes, and better laundry service and more convenient local transportation. It is those things that American industry is prepared to furnish, in Mr. Donnelly's words, in the largest possible volume, in the shortest possible time, and at the lowest possible cost.

The kind of employment that produces these things is the employment that raises the living standards of the nation. The kind of employment that the New Dealers are talking about is that which will merely pile added burdens of debt on the people and make it increasingly difficult to produce the articles that better living conditions. The public works program is not likely to result in a high percentage of usefulness, because the projects, as ten years' experience has demonstrated, are going to be allocated on a political basis and not on a basis of economic need.

Pampan Directs Thunderbolts Home Somewhere in England

Flying Control Officer Second Lieut. Fred Boswell, son of Mr. and Mrs. C. E. Boswell, 1031 E. Brown, is shown above directing another Thunderbolt F-47 pilot in for a landing somewhere in England.

The Pampan went overseas in April, 1941, at which time he was a sergeant, assigned to a Royal Air Force school, he completed a course there and was commissioned on July 6, 1943. On Dec. 21 of last year he was made a senior control officer and put in charge of a new station. Parents of the lieutenant have resided in Pampa for four years. The lieutenant has a brother, Virgil Boswell, and a technical sergeant, La Junta, Colo.; another brother, James, a Warren & Bradshaw Drilling Co. employe, Pampa; and another brother, Paul, and sister, Betty, junior high school students.

Spring high school in 1937. He enlisted in the army air forces at Pampa on Nov. 26, 1940, trained at Randolph Field, Selfridge Field, near Detroit, Mich., and at Charleston, S. C.

Lieut. Boswell is entrusted with the very important job of bombing pilots to this field. He gives them directions, courses to fly, and tells them if their landing gear is properly functioning at landing time. Pilots must sign in and out at this building and received weather clearance and routings from the officer in charge. Lives of countless pilots have been saved in England by the skilled specialists in charge of the control towers. In the scene above the lieutenant is actually steering a Thunderbolt F-47 ship home, after a mission over Germany.

Lieut. Boswell graduated from Big Pacific (Continued from Page 1) anese resorted to a few of their favorite tactics. During the night, some crawled back into wrecked pillboxes and had to be killed yesterday morning.

The most ambitious maneuver of this kind involved a half-dozen fifteen who sneaked into a dug-out and harassed rear echelons until an unidentified sergeant walked inside alone with a Garand and killed them all.

First Sgt. Archie Vale, 45, Grand Junction, Colo., was credited with destroying another nest of snipers. He shot three Japanese and then tossed in a grenade.

"They'd keep popping up and I threw more grenades," he said. "The tip of one officer's saber kept showing above the shell hole where the Japs lay."

Vale killed 13 Japanese, including three officers.

ITALIAN (Continued from Page 1) proved their positions. French and Dutch warships bombarded Formosa on the Apennian Way between the mountains and the Rome area.

Fighting in and around Cassino ranked with the most savage of the war. The Americans edged slowly toward the center of the white-topped mountain strongholds.

The Nazis fought with thoroughness and stubbornness, attesting to the importance they attached to barring the Allies from the Liri valley leading to Rome.

Many Americans died around Cassino as they ferreted out the hidden foe with strong artillery, bayonet and tank.

British Eighth Army troops near the Adriatic captured Torricella, 20 miles inland, and gained control of a considerable mountain area.

The Ankara radio said the Nazis were trying without success to persuade the pope to quit the Vatican and go to Germany, asserting that they would defend Rome step by step.

RUSSIANS ARE ON THE MARCH

(The Chicago Tribune)

The Russians were on the march from Estonia to the Ukraine today after trapping 10 German divisions in the Dnieper bend south of Kiev and killing 10,000 who tried to break out of the ring of death. Strategic Narva (map), five miles inside Estonia, was all but invested. The Germans spoke of retreats deep in Poland west of Kovno and Lutsk in "embittered defensive fighting."

WAR FOOD

Changes in WPA personnel under Jones have been of the same pattern. Roy F. Hendrickson, who as an agriculture department official was associated with the AAA crop control and other New Deal farm programs, resigned recently as director of food distribution. He was replaced by Lee Marshall, a baking company official on leave.

C. B. Baldwin quit as farm security administrator after being under fire of farm leaders in and out of congress who charged he was promoting socialistic programs. His post was filled by Frank Hancock, former congressman from North Carolina and friend of some of Baldwin's severest critics. Baldwin, like Appleby, was a protégé of Wallace.

Changes in policies and personnel under Jones appear to belie the statement often made in political circles that the administration would make little effort to win the mid-western farm vote to the Democratic party this year. In the last three elections, there was a decided farm vote swing to the Republicans. Both Democrats and Republicans attributed this to farmer shift to conservatism.

CLAPPER (Continued from page 1) go up in the bomber that crashed him to his death in a lagoon in the Marshalls.

He didn't need to. He could have stayed at home. He had seen what war is. He had covered part of the Mediterranean campaign. He and down in a bomber on the last American pin-pointing bombing of Rome.

Well, then, why risk his life once more in a bomber in the Marshalls? Nothing would be new to him. Maybe the column he wrote from San Francisco on New Year's day can explain some of it. He said then just before his departure for the South Pacific:

"Some people in Washington feel that there is not sufficient awareness at home of how much our men are doing (in the South Pacific) and in what a living hell they must sometimes do it. So somebody says why don't I go out and get a taste of it and so here I go, dragging these aging bones."

He was 51 and so he went. And he was killed, just as 15 other American correspondents had been killed or died abroad since the European war started. All of them making far less than Clapper's $100,000 a year.

Why did they die? For the same reason Raymond Clapper gave his life. They were trying to report the news.
