President Asks Organization of Country - Wide Crime Prevention Drive

Plan Is Aimed At Juvenile Delinquency

MIAMI BEACH, Fla., Dec. 11.—(AP)—President Truman in a personal message called today on the nation's police officials to organize a country-wide crime prevention drive aimed at the roots of juvenile delinquency.

Mr. Truman said in the message, read to the International Association of Chiefs of Police convention, that he looked upon the rise in juvenile delinquency as perhaps the most alarming problem faced by law enforcement officers.

Mr. Truman's message was read by Frank J. Wilson, chief of the United States secret service, who immediately proposed a national crime prevention and juvenile delinquency council with the slogan "Keep the Good Boy Good."

The convention opened yesterday with J. Edgar Hoover, chief of the Federal Bureau of Investigation, warning that a major crime wave that "startles the imagination" is even now sweeping the country, spearheaded by an army of juvenile delinquents.

Steel Workers May Call Strike Jan. 14

PITTSBURGH, Dec. 11.—(AP)—The CIO-union steel workers wage policy committee today adopted a resolution calling for a steel strike January 14, at 12:01 a. m.

The resolution said: "Over 400,000 workers throughout the nation, in a secret ballot, have given their mandate—to strike in self protection."

"This is the solemn judgment—after careful consideration—of the steel workers, aluminum workers, and iron ore miners, under the jurisdiction of this union."

Police Hunt for 'Maniac' Slayer Of Chicago Girl

CHICAGO, Dec. 11.—(AP)—The brutal murder of Tiny, comely Frances Brown, 33 year old stenographer and former Wave, by a man police described as a maniac, was under investigation by Chicago's top detectives today.

"Whoever the killer was, he's a maniac, and we must get him," said Capt. Frank Reynolds as police intensified their search to solve the latest in a series of slayings in Chicago in the last week. Police reports disclose nine persons were slain in the last week. Three of the deaths have not been solved.

Miss Brown, discharged from the waves last September after three years of service, was killed some time Monday morning in her apartment at the Pine Crest hotel in the north side Lakeview district. The slayer twice shot and twice plunged an eight-inch bread knife into the throat of the 95 pound, five foot, one inch Miss Brown and then left her nude body hanging over a bathtub in her blood-spattered apartment. A hotel maid found her body.

The killer, before leaving, wrote a message on the wall in lipstick in large, uneven letters. It read: "For heavens sake catch me before I kill more I cannot control myself."

Criminologists studied the writing in effort to obtain clues. The letters were three to six inches high and the highest sentence was about six feet from the floor.

Capt. Reynolds theorized the slayer was prompted by sex desire and surprised Miss Brown in her room. Another theory was that the killer was a thief. The victim's room was ransacked and her purse emptied. The slayer gained entry from a fire escape.

A medical examination disclosed Miss Brown had not been criminally assaulted.

Two Men Fined In County Court

Two men charged with driving while intoxicated were found guilty by jury in county court yesterday and each fined $100 and costs, assessed by County Judge Sherman White.

Driver's licenses of both men, A. W. Thompson and Morris Grover Crownover, were suspended for six months.

Courtnay Baird, also charged with driving while intoxicated, failed to appear in court when his case was called.

About six cases remain on the jury docket, to be disposed of on Wednesday, Dec. 19, when the jury was ordered to return.

Union's Plan for Curbing 'Wildcat' Strikes Favored

DETROIT, Dec. 11.—(AP)—A union plan for curbing "wildcat" strikes and slowdowns paved the way today for wage talks with the Ford Motor company, only member of the automotive "big three" still under union control.

The Ford company's favorable reaction to the proposal also raised the possibility some similar method might be used in solving other car industry labor deadlocks.

Countering a management demand for "company security," the CIO united automobile workers offered to subject instigators of unauthorized work stoppages in Ford plants to discharge and participation in such action to fines.

An unauthorized interruption of work was described as one resulting from a dispute which could be settled by the impartial umpire or, if not in this category, an issue not approved by the international union.

Any employee ordered discharged by the umpire could demand an investigation by the local union, and on proving his innocence could have a grievance processed. If a settlement then could not be reached the dispute would go back to the umpire for decision.

The fines—$3 a day for the first offense and $5 for the second—would be deducted from the worker's pay and donated to the President's infantile paralysis fund.

The commission would agree not to permit any lockout and could impose "appropriate financial penalties" upon any of its representatives if it finds guilty of provoking a strike. The umpire, at the union's request.

County Commissioners Court Holds Session

Various landowners of lands across the requested right-of-way of the proposed Pampa to Perryton state highway 17 and state highway 273 will be contacted by a county commissioners committee, which will recommend to the commissioners court the amount to be paid land owners for the right-of-way and damages incurred, in accordance with action taken by the county commissioners yesterday.

The committee is composed of John Haggard, W. B. Campbell and Clyde Carruth.

County commissioners also set calendar dates of the 1946 term of county court at the regular session held yesterday, attended by all commissioners, Joe W. Clarke, Wade Thomason, Thomas O. Kerby and C. M. Carpenter, presided over by County Judge Sherman White.

Atomic Bomb Test At Sea Is Planned

Army Details Its Military Training Plan

WASHINGTON, Dec. 11.—(AP)—The army detailed to congress today how it would handle universal military training of President Truman's request for such a law is grand.

Four major generals explained the "here's how" to the house military committee.

They're George J. Richards, war department budget officer; Ray E. Porter, director of the special planning division; Willard S. Paul, assistant chief of staff for personnel, and I. H. Edwards, assistant chief of staff for training.

The universal one-year training program, today's witnesses said, would operate thus:

Who would be trained? Young men in the age group of 18 through 20, a blood-chilling account of the horrors modern war visits upon civilians. Members of the survey now are making a similar study in Japan, where the two atomic bombs were dropped.

TESTS AGAINST WARSHIPS The announcement on the forthcoming tests against warships was cryptic. It said only that plans for the operation involve assembling "many naval vessels," extensive use of recording instruments and the gathering of necessary personnel.

Young Russians Were Kidnaped For Slavery in Nazi Factories

NUERNBERG, Dec. 11.—(AP)—Ten-year-old Russian children were kidnaped for slavery in German war factories as part of the Nazi campaign of "extermination through work," according to evidence submitted today at the war crimes trial of 21 of Hitler's top leaders.

Producing the Germans' own records, U. S. Assistant Prosecutor Thomas J. Dodd said the kidnaping policy was approved by Alfred Rosenberg.

Not only were children kidnaped for slave labor but the abduction also of children of "good blood" was favored by the Gestapo to build up Germany's war-depleted population, other Nazi records disclosed.

The Nazi leaders on trial before the international military tribunal build up Germany's war-depleted population, other Nazi records disclosed documentary film of themselves.

Indonesians Threaten To Use Poison in Java

BATAVIA, Java, Dec. 11.—(AP)—Indonesian leaders threatened today to use both poison and arms to resist military restoration of Dutch sovereignty in strife-torn Java.

Premier Sutan Sjahrir of the unrecognized Indonesian republic said Indonesian forces would fight if the British attempted to land more troops to back up the rule of the Netherlands.

NATIVE LEADER SPEAKS From a radio station near Soerabaja, the native leader Soetomo spoke of a campaign of poisoning against the Dutch, saying: "The Dutch are boasting that they soon will bring in thousands of soldiers. What of it? We are determined to annihilate them, even if we have to poison them to death."

PROMISE POISON "We have 70,000,000 behind us. It is an easy task for us to get rid of 100,000 or 200,000 enemies by poison."

Marshall Is Quized On Alert Message

WASHINGTON, Dec. 11.—(AP)—Gen. George C. Marshall said today President Roosevelt personally ordered included in prewar warning messages to American commanders instructions to wait for an overt act by Japan.

Marshall told the senate-house Pearl Harbor inquiry committee the President's directions were being followed when Lt. Gen. Walter C. Short was told "the United States desires that Japan commit the first overt act." Short was the army commander in Hawaii at the time of Pearl Harbor.

The former army chief of staff said he had a "dim recollection" that Mr. Roosevelt personally gave him those instructions. He said he was worried about how to transmit them without too rigidly restraining defense actions.

FERGUSON OPENS SESSION Senator Ferguson (R-Mich.) opened the fifth day of testimony for the five-star general with questions about an alert Marshall had ordered in Hawaii on June 17, 1940.

At that time the Hawaii garrison was ordered on a full alert with the request that Lt. Gen. C. B. Herron, then commander there, acknowledge to Washington that the order had been carried out.

MESSAGE TO SHORT Ferguson noted that Short's Marshall's Nov. 27, 1941 message to Short who succeeded Herron, told Short to take measures he deemed necessary and report what those measures were.

"Isn't it the procedure that if a commander is told to take measures he deems necessary and report back and you are not satisfied with measures he has taken, that you would advise him differently?" the Michigan senator asked.

"I would assume so," Marshall replied quietly. "That's the correct army procedure?"

"Yes, sir, that's right," the general said. Short has contended that when he reported he had placed into effect only an anti-sabotage alert and Washington gave him no further instructions, he felt the measures he had taken were satisfactory.

INTEREST IN ORDERS Ferguson and another republican committee member, Rep. Keefe (Wis.) both have evinced interest in why the 1940 orders for a Hawaii alert were, they said, more specific than the Nov. 27, 1941 "war warning" that went from Washington to Honolulu.

With Marshall up for a fifth day of testimony before the congressional Pearl Harbor investigation, Ferguson told reporters he plans to question the former chief of staff about the 1940 message sent in command in Hawaii.

Keefe said: "If G-2 (army intelligence) had sufficient grounds in 1940 to prompt the issuance of orders for an all-out alert, it had a million times as much grounds in 1941 for an even more specific order."

General Patton's Condition Termed Slightly Improved

HEIDELBERG, Germany, Dec. 11.—(AP)—Gen. George S. Patton, Jr., paralyzed by a fracture of the neck in an automobile accident Sunday, improved slightly during the night. He has had a blood transfusion.

Mrs. Patton arrived here following a flight from the United States in an army plane, and went immediately to the 130th station hospital.

"You can tell me all about it," Mrs. Patton said to Maj. Gen. Julius Kenner, army theater surgeon, "but I have seen Georgie in these scrapes before and he always comes out all right."

The colorful commander of the U. S. 15th army had a good night and his general condition was "maintained at a satisfactory level," an official bulletin said.

Vote of Confidence Is Given Chandler

By CHARLES DUNKLEY
CHICAGO, Dec. 11.—(AP)—Commissioner A. B. Chandler had a paradoxical vote of confidence from his baseball bosses, six minor leagues were promoted a notch, and two national league doormats had launched a 1946 rebuilding program as the major leagues moved into the second day of their winter meeting today.

Chandler, rebuffed by the minor leagues at their annual convention in Columbus last week, was depicted by the majors as a victim of "misunderstanding," but also defined as a commissioner without the dictatorial power of his predecessor, the late Kenesaw Mountain Landis.

The majors approved the amendment to the major-minor agreement adopted by the minor's last week which removes from the commissioner authority to rule baseball legislation "detrimental."

The unofficial highlight of the opening session was the sale by the Cincinnati Reds of veteran first baseman Frank (Buck) McCormick to the Philadelphia Phillies for a reported $30,000 in cash and one player to be named later.

The majors approved the boost of the International League, American association and Pacific coast league to "AAA" classification; the Southern association and Texas league to "AA" and the South Atlantic league to "A."

The bigwigs huddled to study the plea of the Pacific coast league to become a third major league but deferred action until Wednesday.

Less than 2,000,000 motor vehicles had been built when the federal aid road act became law.

Sports Round-up

By HUGH FULLERTON, JR.
CHICAGO, Dec. 11.—(AP)—Jack Zeller, retiring as the Detroit Tiger's general manager, isn't getting out of baseball after all. He'll help run tryout camps in Texas cities for the East Texas and Evangeline leagues. Arkansas is all ears to hear the Razorbacks' announcement of a new football coach today and it's a good bet that's just who he'd be—J. B. "ears" Whitworth, assistant to Wally Butts at Georgia. Whitworth's line coach will be Lt. (jg) Bill Godwin from the Fort Pierce, Fla., navy amphib.

ILLINOISES
Jeff Heath, the "most traded" Cleveland outfielder who is hanging around the major league meeting to learn first-hand where he's going, says he wouldn't mind being traded to the Yankees or Tigers. They're probably the clubs that want him least.

When the Cincinnati Reds were announcing the sale of Frank McCormick someone asked where they got Eddie Shokes, who likely will get the first basing job.—The answer from a dark corner was: "From Joe Miller's Shokes book."

They 'Watched Them Socks' And Lost One Game in 4 Years

TAYLOR, Texas, Dec. 11.—(AP)—Taylor's Ducks, who have lost only one football game in four years, think maybe the tradition of the red socks has something to do with it.

The Ducks last week won the Class A schoolboy regional championship—their eighth since 1930 when this socks business started.

The captain of the team has since that day worn red socks. The tradition began when the Ducks were winning their first regional title.

Walter Pythian, who later starred at Texas A. and M., donned red socks because of badly bruised shins and in the game his furious play soon attracted so much attention everybody was yelling, vociferously if ungrammatically, to "watch them red socks!"

Pythian, upon graduation, presented his socks to the succeeding captain and thus it has been ever since.

Taylor had its first undefeated, untied season in 1938, its second in 1942.

Then 1943 went without a single loss and last year, the Ducks headed by the great, top player Taylor ever produced, Frank Struska, were apparently on the way to another perfect record when Struska suffered a fractured skull and missed the all-important game with Killeen. Taylor lost 14-6, snapping a winning streak of 33 games, one of the longest in Texas football history.

They snapped back this year, encountering stiff opposition until the bi-district game when they walloped Lampasas 34-7. Last week they won over Mexia 18-6 for the region title.

Lot Depending On Big Sneeds

LUBBOCK, Dec. 11.—(AP)—Texas Tech is depending upon the largest of the big Sneeds of Petersburg to help out in basketball this season.

Tilley Sneed, 19, is 6 feet 8 1/2 inches tall. He is a freshman and is playing center on the Tech quintet. Cheering him up at home will be:

Mr. and Mrs. Paul J. Sneed, his parents, each 5 feet 10; two sisters, Gertrude and Vera Joyce, each 5 feet 10; brothers Fletcher, 6 feet 8; Horace, 6 feet 6 1/2; Paul, Jr., 6 feet 7, and 16-year-old George, 6 feet 3. Harold Dean, 14, and Vernon, 9, haven't started growing unusually tall yet.

Fletcher recently was discharged from the army a staff sergeant in the 36th division after four and a half years service. He was so tall when the 36th was mobilized he was given a choice of getting out or serving a year. He stayed in and found the year extended through Italy and 54 months. Brother Frank, 6-6, was killed on the Anzio beachhead.

Tilley Sneed was rejected by both the army and navy because of his height. He passed all tests along the line except the tallness and found "giantism" written on all papers. He was told he would be accepted, but would not go overseas. So Tilley just stayed home and helped on the farm. Fletcher had trouble getting clothes to fit him, anyway, and Tilley, being slightly taller, didn't want to be uncomfortable in too tight clothes when he was needed at home.

Clubs Are Urging Poll Tax Payment

AUSTIN, Dec. 11.—(AP)—The attorney general has given the go ahead for civic groups interested in stimulating payment of poll taxes.

An opinion released yesterday said that there was nothing in the law to prevent such groups from setting up booths to aid citizens in filling out applications for payment of poll taxes.

It continued that aid could include the furnishing of stamps and envelopes for mailing such applications. The applicant may be furnished with a certified check to forward with the application provided the applicant advances the money and "it being understood that the check is furnished as a convenience."

The civic groups or others may conduct door-to-door campaigns to stimulate and aid citizens in paying poll taxes, taking notaries along with them, the opinion held. It was furnished at the request of County Attorney Perry Jones of Travis county.

The suit was filed by Police Lieut. L. D. Pyle, Desk Sgt. J. C. Squires and Jailers W. F. Brown and H. N. Wilson.

Christmas Table Whets Appetite

Floral motif in damask tablecloth is duplicated in Christmas table decoration—a centerpiece of cardboard tree, candles, fruit and roses.

By GAYNOR MADDOX
NEA Staff Writer

Christmas decorations are a joyous part of the season. Let's carry them to the family dinner table and make the Yule feast colorful and beautiful. Here are some suggestions:
A centerpiece made of finely crushed ice, evergreens and red flowers such as poinsettias, carnations, roses, cyclamen, and popcorn. Invert a glass in a large mixing bowl. Pack bowl with crushed ice and place in refrigerator for three hours. Turn out on a shallow bowl or a large uplate. Remove glass and fill the glass cavity with red flowers. Bank edges of your home-made snowball with fir, and complete concealment of the plate or bowl with popcorn snowdrifts. Encircle with red Christmas candles in now holders concealed in the evergreens.

Bricks Add Color

Here's a modern centerpiece. Buy four class bricks, six by six inches. Arrange bricks with sides of three of them touching, like boxcars, down the center of the table. Place the fourth brick atop the center of the trio. Set low red candles in the center of each of the three units, stabilizing them with florist's putty or some of junior's modeling clay. Wreath base of candles and bricks with holly, and fill in with pine or fir.

Use your Irish damask cloth with a floral pattern. Repeat the floral motif in your centerpiece. Make a silver cardboard Christmas tree for center. Bank up a little way with colorful fruits—apples, oranges, grapes and bananas. Above the fruit, mass roses or lilies, according to design in the damask cloth. In candlesticks hidden in flowers, place long thin candles. The effect is beautiful and new.

PIN-WORM ITCH MAY THREATEN YOUR CHILD'S HEALTH

Don't let your child suffer a single needless minute of distress with Pin-Worms! Recent medical reports reveal that an amazing number of children (and grown-ups too) may be victims of Pin-Worms—often without suspecting what is wrong. So watch out for the warning signs—especially the tormenting, embarrassing rectal itch. Because now you can and should do something about it!

A highly effective way to deal with this icky infection has now been made possible. It is based on the medically recognized drug known as piperazine. This special drug is the vital ingredient in P-W, the Pin-Worm tablets developed in the laboratory of Dr. D. Jayne & Son.

P-W tablets are small and easy to take, and they act in a special way to remove Pin-Worms. So, if you suspect Pin-Worms in your child or yourself, get a box of JAYNE'S P-W right away, and follow the directions.

NOT CRAZY ENOUGH
For four and a half years it has been anybody's guess whether Rudolf Hess was sane or mad. After he flew to England in May of 1941 Hitler said he was crazy. It now appears that Hitler was crazy mad himself at his deputy's scheme to bring the King of England to Germany and arrange a peace in the west before the nazis attacked Russia.

It was a crazy idea, to be sure, almost as crazy as Hitler's dream of world conquest. But Hitler's mad activities were so much to the fore that, in time, people almost forgot the beetle-browed Hess after his mission failed and he was taken out of circulation.

When Hess next made the front pages, Hitler was gone. And with no one bothering to accuse him of insanity, Hess put on a little mad scene of his own in the hope of saving his neck. It was a pretty good performance. The psychiatrists said his amnesia was of the hysterical variety, but Hess was an accomplished phony and they couldn't shake him out of his act.

When then did he suddenly give up the pretense and decide to play it straight? We should like to venture a conjecture, even though we are as unacquainted with psychiatry as we are with Hess.

Before the Nuernberg trial began, Hess was shown some newsreels of the days of nazi rage. There was Hess, and there were Hitler, Goering, Goebbels and the rest, and the hysterical heeling thousands of German citizens. Hess must have realized that it would be a hard job to convince anyone that he was mentally more unstable than the mad colleagues and the mad throngs that surrounded him in these pictures.

Then the trial began. Hess heard the criminally insane plans for unprovoked civilian slaughter and mass extermination read from the nazi records or recalled in the direct evidence of witnesses. He had been in on those plans, but so had his co-defendants.

Finally Hess was brought up to date on the activities of the nazi gang which he, as a prisoner in England, had missed. He saw more newsreels, ghastly pictures of torture camps where the plans for mass extermination which he had helped prepare were carried out. He saw the revolting evidence of deeds which his co-defendants had ordered or condoned, even though they may not all have personally witnessed the results.

The behavior of those co-defendants had been so methodically manic as to make his own misdeeds and aberrations seem pale by comparison. And as the evidence piled up it must have been increasingly hard for Hess to keep up the pretense of being the only madman in the lot.

He may have asked himself: How can I claim to be crazy if the court on the watching world consider my former colleagues sane? And if Hess really is rational, there was only one logical course open to him. He had to end his shamming; the competition of real madness was too keen.

Common Ground

A Most Dangerous Statement

I recently heard Clarence Dykstra, Provost for the University of California at Los Angeles say that everything changed but change.

He was arguing for the point that tax-supported educational systems must expand; that the state must give them more money.

But this statement that everything changes but change leaves the erroneous conclusion that there are no eternal principles that do not change with time.

Nothing can do more harm to society than the belief that there are no eternal laws of human relations that govern society.

If it be true that everything changes but change, then we have no guide. We could rely on no principles; the law of gravitation would exert a different attraction at different times. And if we have no guide to human relations we have nothing but anarchy.

Probably where the pedagogues erred was in that our conception of principles often change. Our understanding of right and wrong changes, but right and wrong never change. They are eternal.

It is certainly a pity to have a man who is supposed to educate the youth of the land so miseducating them as to contend that everything changes but change.

There can be no greater disservice to the youth of the land than to get them to believe that there are no eternal, impersonal laws that they need to obey, but that they, with the majority, can do anything they want to and that will make it right.

When Dr. Dykstra was asked in the forum part of the meeting how tax supported schools could teach the principles that would promote peace when they were teaching by their example that might made right, he evaded the question. No wonder he did. There is no answer to this question. They can not teach peace when they are using the force of the state to make people support the majorities ideas of education.

No wonder we are so worried about unemployment, inflation and war when the youth is being miseducated as it is by tax-supported educational institutions in which the opinion that would promote peace is as much in selecting the educators as the opinion of the ten-talent man.

The columns of this paper are open to Dr. Dykstra or anyone who can write an impersonal rule of conduct that sanctions tax-supported education and that contemplates the above conclusions.

Can Chaplains in the Army Be Christians?

The Christian Century reports that 2200 Protestant chaplains will be employed full time by the armed forces following demobilization.

It is hard to conceive how chaplains in the army can really preach Christianity. They are trying to serve two masters, the state and God.

THE RUSSIAN DEMAND

(Truth, London England)

All hopes of Europe's making some kind of recovery from its paralytic plight depend on Germany's being given the opportunity of economic recovery being prevented from rearming. This means a certain amount of demilitarization. The Potsdam declaration dealt with this matter, but in a very slipshod way. It declared that Russia was to have, on account of reparations, 25 per cent of Germany's surplus industrial equipment, without stating the basic figure. There is no sign yet of agreement between Great Britain and Russia on what is to be the size of Germany's industry.

Differences exist ranging up to 300 per cent between British and Russian calculations—the Russian idea being that Germany is to become virtually an agricultural country. It is not explained how 80,000,000 people can gain a livelihood from German soil.

Having stripped Eastern Germany pretty thoroughly of all movable plant and machinery, Russia is now turning her attention to the industrial West, and is demanding her 25 per cent of the undefined "surplus." On the amount of reparations, any chance of maintaining the German people. It is little use pouring food into Germany if the people are deprived of the opportunity of earning a living. Unless the Potsdam agreement is made more explicit, reparations and the future of Germany will be settled by the Russians grabbing all available plant and machinery. That would mean the pauperization and starvation of 60 to 80 million people. Such a reduction of a whole nation to serfdom would make the chaotic economic recovery virtually impossible.

Turned down for West Point, the future President joined the Missouri National Guard, which has one of the strongest units of the forty-eight states, and he did squads right twice a week in a Kansas City army unit. Unlike so many guardsmen of those days, he took the training seriously.

He went overseas in World War I as a lieutenant of artillery and returned as a captain. Prophecic of the human, kindly figure Washington now knows, he was so popular with his men that they voted him a ten-gallon hat while en route to the United States. He still has it.

Guided—Mr. Truman, like so many returned soldiers of World Wars I and II, had trouble in readjusting himself to peacetime days and ventures. He tried several non-ownership enterprises, including part ownership of a haberdashery store. None succeeded.

He went back to the family farm fifteen miles outside Kansas City, and at first he was seeing the world from behind a horse as he ploughed a small cornfield. It appeared then that a pastoral life was to be his lot.

But Harry Truman, for all his apparent humility and modesty, had ambitions and thought that he had a fair for politics because he liked the military rather than civilian life. And here comes the chapter in his career that is not generally known, but which shows how his military yearnings and acquaintances guided him straight to 1600 Pennsylvania Avenue.

Remembered—Mr. Truman remembered that one of his men overseas had been a young fellow named Pendegast, the nephew of "Old Tom" Pendegast, the democratic boss of Missouri and a power in national politics. Harry looked up the boy and asked him to put in a good word with his uncle.

Nephew Pendegast told Old Tom about Truman's fine record overseas and his popularity with the rank and file. He praised his former commander as a man who would make a strong vote-getter.

Old Tom, whose political crimes were even then beginning to catch up with him, needed a few respectables on his slate that year. So, at his nephew's request, he nominated Mr. Truman as a Jackson County judge, a position which paid $6,300 a year. The newscaper was elected.

Senatorship—Now, a Jackson county judge is not a high position and need not be a lawyer. The court is actually a board of supervisors which handles the letting of public contracts. Moreover, Mr. Truman was not a member of a backwoods

"Will Ned escape the clutches of the maniac monster of killers' Gulch? Listen in tomorrow for more thrills, horrors and suspense—good night now, and pleasant dreams!"

News Behind the News
The National Whirligig

By RAY TUCKER
ARMY-MINDEDNESS—The selection of General George C. Marshall as special ambassador to China in this difficult hour reflects a side of President Truman's character which only a few intimate friends appreciate—his deep and almost reverential love of military lore and life. He is an "army man," whereas his predecessor's hobby was the navy.

Some friends of Mr. Truman suggest that he would never have become President if it had not been for his soldierly cast. His strange public career, which did not begin until he was almost forty, substantiates their belief.

His military complex explains many things about the seemingly odd President. Harry Truman, it accounts for his willingness to delegate authority to trusted subordinates as against F. D. R.'s one-man rule. The former chief executive, like the captain of a battleship, kept his fingers on all levers of the ship of state at all times.

Mr. Truman's army-mindedness underlies his reliance on so many ex-officers for posts in the White House family, for his advocacy of universal military training, for his insistence on an expanded and modernized National Guard as a possible alternative, for his preference for military rather than civilian rule of Germany and Japan.

It also explains why his principal relaxation and intellectual interest is the reading of war history and biography. Incidentally, in his historical browsing he shows a strong partiality for Robert E. Lee, "Stonewall" Jackson and other great commanders of the confederate army.

PROPHETIC—As a youngster, Mr. Truman tried to enter West Point, but he was rejected because of defective eyesight. His great admiration for General Marshall may derive from the fact that the former chief of staff could not make the academy roll. General Marshall's father happened to be a democrat when the U. S. P. owned Pennsylvania, and the man whom the President characterized as "one of the top commanders of history" married at Virginia military institute.

Turned down for West Point, the future President joined the Missouri National Guard, which has one of the strongest units of the forty-eight states, and he did squads right twice a week in a Kansas City army unit. Unlike so many guardsmen

Peter Edson's Column:
WORLD BUSINESS BUREAU IS DEVELOPMENT

By PETER EDSON
NEA Washington Correspondent
WASHINGTON.—A new "Charter for International Trade Organization," proposing a book of rules for what might be called a world-wide better business bureau, will emerge as the most important by-product of British-American loan negotiations that have been going on in Washington since Sept. 11.

Terms of the loan and the long-term financial agreement will grab all the headlines, but the proposed "ITO Charter" is really far more sensational.

The ITO Charter seeks to do for the world trade what the Dumbarton Oaks proposals do for world peace. Outrigger international trade rivalry will be outlawed. In its place will be an international trade organization that would lay down rules of fair play in the "game" of world business through limitations on the subject of: 1. Control of international cartels. 2. Control of trade barriers and tariffs. 3. Control over principal commodity exchange agreements.

As now planned, this new international trade organization would be a part of the social and economic council reporting to the Assembly of the United Nations organization, "ITO," as it would be called, would thus become parallel to the other international organizations already set up in the world of business. These are: ILO—The International Labor Office. FAO—The International Food and Agriculture Organization. The International Bank and the International Stabilization Fund proposed in the Bretton Woods plan.

Birth of the ITO idea, however, goes back to April, 1944, when an executive committee on economic foreign policy was created to advise the president and secretary of state on international trade policy. On the committee were representatives of state, treasury, agriculture, commerce and labor departments, the U. S. tariff commission and the now-defunct FEA—Foreign Economic Administration, Assistant Secretary of State Will Clayton has

LONDON, Dec. 11.—War has brought England a heavy increase in divorce, most of which have been based on infidelity, and in addition to those that actually have reached the courts there has been a flood of matrimonial suits adjusted through welfare societies.

This seems so contrary to the ultra-conservative character of the Briton, who always has been averse to washing family linen in public, that in searching for the reasons one comes up against the question whether there has been any change in moral standards.

I have talked with three British experts this trio agrees a slump in John Bull's moral standards is not among the reasons for the increase in divorce. There obviously has been a slump in conduct but the moral outlook is held to remain about the same.

When I first came to England during the last war, England as a whole regarded divorce as a disgrace quite as deep as the religious condemnation of it. Then, too, there was the code which held that Caesar's wife must be above reproach, but that Caesar himself could raise a fair amount of devil without reuke.

A husband could divorce his wife for misconduct, but she couldn't raise a voice here on that ground. No fear! She had to prove some other matrimonial offense in addition to infidelity. The law coolly held that it was the husband's prerogative to sow as many wild oats as he wished. But having helped her worried woman who stubbed her toe.

In 1938 parliament altered the divorce law so that a woman could get a divorce for adultery, desertion for three years or more, physical (not mental) cruelty and incurable insanity. The result was an immediate heavy increase in the number of suits filed. This slumped temporarily after the outbreak of war, but the present year has seen all previous figures exceeded. This may represent a piling up of war time matrimonial suits, but although immediate heavy increase is said to be towards more divorces.

body, for Jackson county has Kansas City within its borders. Mr. Truman was defeated when he sought re-election, but he was elected as presiding judge when he ran a year later. One day he asked for and got an audience with Boss Pendegast. He argued that he had been a loyal political servant, had done a good job and suggested that he be allowed to run for county collector, a post which paid the occupant about $25,000 annually on a fee basis.

"I'm sorry, Harry," replied the Boss. "You're too good for that job. Besides, I have another man in mind for it. The best I can offer you is a United States Senatorship."

CHAIRMAN—World War I veterans of Missouri saved his political skin when he sought re-election to the senate in 1940. By that time Old Tom had been convicted and sent to jail, and his protege had a hard time getting only 7,000 in a three-cornered contest and it is believed that the ex-Servicemen's vote alone put him across.

When war threatened in 1941, the old National Guard spirit stirred him. He offered himself as an officer in the army and General Marshall said that he was more valuable as a senator. The two men who could not make West Point often recall and chuckle over their rejection as physically or politically unfit for the drill school on the Hudson.

"Caddy," Truman once succumbed to his military complex, luckily for him. A thrifty person, and recalling his experience in watching Jackson county contracts, he thought it might be a smart idea to organize a congressional committee on "caddy" contracts and conditions. He introduced the resolution and by senate custom he was named chairman. Had it not been for his fine performance on this assignment, he would not have been mentioned even for vice president at Chicago in 1944.

It is small wonder that he dotes on this branch of the service—and on General Marshall.

In Hollywood
By ERSKINE JOHNSON
NEA Staff Correspondent

HOLLYWOOD—There is a good deal of eyebrow lifting when strangers enter the mad studio of Hollywood artist John Decker, pal of Errol Flynn. In one corner of the studio there is a bar, in half light, is a very attractive young lady. She is wearing a perky hat, black net, stockings with saucy French garters and a milk coat, thrown loosely and revealing over her shoulders. And that, brother, is all she is wearing. She was a gift to Decker from Flynn. Decker introduces her to newcomers as "Mona," and explains that she is rather dumb. She is—like all department store window dummies.

There's quite an argument on between Humphrey Bogart and Warner Bros. after the panning Lauren Bacall took from the critics in "Confidential Agent." They have nicknamed "Stallion Road" as a starring film, with Bogart telling pass that he's going to be careful in the future in helping Baby pick her screen roles.

STREET-CORNER BAND
Meredit Willson, rehearsing his Burns & Allen orchestra, wasn't quite satisfied with what he heard. "There's something missing from a violinist," he remarked. "Yeah," barked a member of the brass section, "a tin cup."

Studio barber Bobo Scharf got a bit role in "Swamp Fire," which is being produced by Bill Pine and Bill Thomas, noted for the speed with which they produce their pictures. To accept the job Bobo closed up shop and put this sign on the door: "Doing Feature Role in Pine-Thomas Picture. Back in 15 Minutes."

That mad musician, Spike Jones, has three new numbers coming up: "I've Got a Girl in North and South Dakota," "Benzedrine Beguine" and "Green Danube." Looks like Hoagy Carmichael's "Ginger and Spice" will be his biggest selling record. He wrote the number while sitting in a Hollywood cafe.

Back in 1914 and thereabouts, a typist was not called a "typist," but a typewriter. So through most of the script of "The Shocking Miss Pilgrim," in which she plays America's first feminine office worker, Betty Grable is called "a female typewriter."

STORY SPECIALIST
Robert Essler, the 20th Century-Fox producer, has made so many excellent psychological and animal films, such as "Hangover Square" and "Smoky," that he has acquired quite a reputation in those fields. Writers keep sending him scripts to read along those two lines. Recently, however, one of them outdid all the others. He attached a note to his yarn which said: "I know you'll like this story because it will give you a chance to combine your talents. It's about a psychopathic horse."

Facts FOR THE VETERAN

NSL INSURANCE
(Lloyd S. is now hospitalized in a Veterans Administration facility. He is being treated for a mental disorder. He may remain in the hospital for a long time.

Lloyd seemed to be normal when he entered service. His induction examination showed no disorder. When he entered the service he applied for $10,000 National Service Life Insurance.

He served in Iceland for eight months where he was hospitalized for a nervous disability. After being transferred to his country and following further hospitalization in a general hospital, he finally was discharged to a Veterans Administration hospital.

His mother now is inquiring about his insurance and pension). This veteran was discharged from service for a disability. The military authorities have a letter "next friend," which is acceptable to the Veterans Administration in view of the veteran's ability to sign for himself.

On transfer to a Veterans Administration hospital, the manager will delegate someone to assist in the preparation of these forms providing they have not already been prepared.

In this case, the mother can contact the local Red Cross home service chairman who will inform the Red Cross field director in the Veterans Administration. The field director is prepared to obtain the veteran's file. If he finds necessary forms are not already prepared, he will take steps to have them completed. He will follow through by representing the veteran and will then contact the local chapter officials whose duty it is to counsel with the veteran's mother.

The Pampa Red Cross office, located on the top floor of City hall, is prepared to give you counsel and assistance with reference to benefits available to veterans and their dependents.

An opulent stall, his choice in foods and a couple of standing Now he's glad to get bit work. You'll see him, briefly, when he sticks his nose out of a barn door to watch June Haver dancing in "Three Little Girls in Blue." He's just an extra now.

American automobile ownership was so widespread in 1941 that the average owner had an income of less than $20 a week.

entire battle for Myitkina. Only by air supply was the Burma campaign at all possible. The jungle covered ridges between India and Burma have effectively resisted the advance of civilizations. They are inhabited by mountain tribes of Kachins, Chins, and the headhunting Nagas. Before United States Engineers accomplished the Herculean job of driving the Ledo Road, now known as the Stilwell Road, across the mountains and through the jungles, a road from the Brahmaputra to the Irrawaddy Valley was considered an impossibility.

Stilwell's Job One of War's Hardest
The mission that the Joint Chiefs of Staff had given General Stilwell in Asia was one of the most difficult of the war. He was out at the end of the thinnest supply line of all; the demand for him in Europe and the Pacific meager's Eastern Air Command, Night and day troop carrier C-45's and 47's shuttled from numerous bases and air strips in the Brahmaputra Valley to points of rendezvous with the Allied ground columns in the Burma jungles. Each trip had to be flown over one or more of the steep spines which the Himalayas shove southward along the India-Burma frontier to establish one of the most formidable barriers to military operations in the world. The troop carrier squadrons at the height of the campaign averaged 230 hours of flying time for each serviceable plane a month for three months. The normal average monthly flying time is 120 hours.

At two critical stages of the campaign the troop carrier squadrons, assisted by Air Transport Command planes made major troop movements in a matter of hours and days that would have required weeks and months by surface transport.

The first was the movement of British and Indian troops to meet the threat of the Bengal-Assam Railroad at Dimapur. The second was the movement of two Chinese divisions, the 14th and 50th, from Yunnan, China, across the Hump to the troop carrier base at Sookerating, in Assam, India. This operation was accomplished in just eight days. The Chinese troops were picked up by Air Transport Command planes in China and landed at the troop carrier field where they were entirely refitted, armed, and flown to a staging area in the Hukawng from where they India was separated into the India-Burma and the China theaters. Lt. Gen. Daniel I. Sultan, who had been General Stilwell's deputy, was given command of the India-Burma theater. Maj. Gen. Albert C. Wedemeyer, formerly Chief of the War Department Strategic Planning staff, and a member of Admiral Mountbatten's staff, was appointed commander of our forces in China, succeeding General Stilwell as the Generalissimo's Chief of Staff.

New Assignment for Stilwell
No American officer had demonstrated more clearly his knowledge of the strengths and weaknesses of the Japanese forces than General Stilwell and the steps necessary to defeat them in Asia. He was brought back to the United States to reorient the training of the Army Ground Forces for the war against Japan. Then after the death of General Buckner on Okinawa he was returned to the field to command the U. S. Tenth Army.

The Burma campaign continued with intensity during the monsoon season of 1944. Chinese, American, and British troops were then disposed along the Chinwin River north of Kalewa and from the upper Irrawaddy to Lungting. It was planned to drive southward through Central Burma to Mandalay, and Admiral Mountbatten prepared for operation DRACULA to seize Rangoon amphibiously from the south. At the close of the monsoon, Chinese, American, and British troops under the immediate command of General Sultan advanced southward astride the Irrawaddy, captured Shwegu in early November, and by December had cleared the projected trace of the supply road to Bhamo.

The Japanese in Burma had never recovered from General Stilwell's thrusts and from the losses inflicted by British and Indian forces on their 15th, 31st, and 33d Divisions. In their abortive effort to sever the Bengal-Assam Railroad, as fast as the combat forces moved ahead, United States Engineers, commanded by Brig. Gen. Lewis A. Pick, shored the road forward behind them, operating their bulldozers so far forward that they were frequently under fire. On 28 January 1945 a convoy of American trucks and materiel from India crossed the Burma-China frontier. The Stilwell Road was open.

tour on an unconverted Braniff C-47 cargo ship. It's a former army plane which still has paratrooper accommodations, including bucket seats and little lights that somehow told when paratroopers leaped.

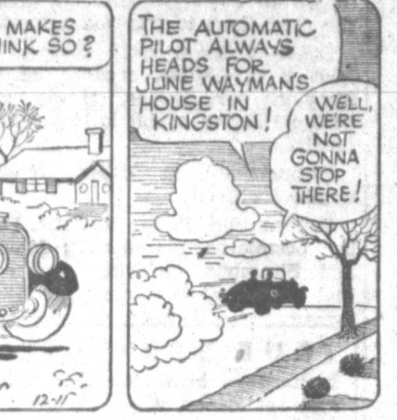

Then we took off for Oklahoma City. We inspected the Macklamb-Duncan company plant first. A very interesting plant which makes 300 items these days, mainly of plastic and steel. Major items is weather stripping which they've made for 25 years. They're recon-verted so successfully their current personnel is greater than it was during the war.

Then we took in the Boardman company. It's a tremendous project, making things of sheet metal and plate fabrications of intricate design. That means anything from huge tank cars to whatever you want to make of steel.

Gracie Reports By GRACIE ALLEN Consolidated News Features Well, I see that Peggy Joyce has taken a fifth husband and Tommy Manville an eighth wife. I guess it's lucky for them that the OPA overlooked marriages when it went around putting restrictions on things.

But goodness, girls, Miss Joyce should be a lesson to us. While we've been lamenting that there aren't enough men to go around, she calmly comes up with the fifth. And I remember reading a while ago that girls wanting to get married were advised to go west. That's fine advice when Mr. Manville is west. Gracious, if he and Miss Joyce keep up their matrimonial race the time is bound to come when they'll meet and marry each other. And that ceremony will probably be staged in the Rose Bowl.

Training Plan

cur? At a receiving station to which he would be ordered by his local board to report. There he would be given a special oath and examinations and offered a choice of services. The physical standards for acceptance would be lower than those which prevailed during the war.

What kind of training would a youth receive? An initial recruit training period of about eight weeks to teach him the fundamentals of life as a soldier; this would be followed by a period of technical training, the length of which would vary, depending on the assignment; then would be unit training, and finally combined training.

Who would do the training? A selected training organization composed of national guard officers, reserve officers, and enlisted men on temporary active duty. Would the one year be devoted entirely to military training? Initially, yes, but there would be holiday furloughs and short vacation periods; there would be educational and recreational facilities.

Would the trainees be paid? Yes, at the rate of about $30 a month. Army regulars get $50 monthly but are subject to military duty, while a universal trainee could be assigned to actual army duty only by special act of congress. The trainees also would have dependency benefits. Cost of the universal training program is estimated at $1,720,000,000 annually. Provision would be made for disability compensation and hospitalization.

What would happen to a youth when his year of training ended? He would go into a reserve for six years unless he had displayed leadership ability and desired to follow a military career, in which case he could become an officer. While in reserve status he could not be called to active duty except by act of congress and then, normally, through the regular draft procedure.

War Crimes

Others implicated by Dodd in the forced labor program were Reichsmarshal Hermann Goering, Field Marshal Wilhelm Keitel, Arthur Seyss-Inquart, Hans Frank, the governor of conquered Poland, and Albert Speer, ex-munitions minister. The documentary film of Nazi aggression, assembled in Berlin by two naval officers from confiscated German movies, was shown as evidence before the international military tribunal.

Sometimes discomfited and self-conscious as their faces flashed on the screen, the defendants watched intently.

Once or twice they laughed, particularly at a shot of Hermann Goering—looking far younger and harder than he does in the prisoners' box—rubbish his hands gleefully at the humiliation of Britain's Neville Chamberlain and France's Edouard Daladier at Munich, when they signed away the Czech Sudetenland to Hitler.

Rudolf Hess stared as if hypnotized at the image of himself swearing 52,000 young Nazis to loyalty to Hitler. A picture of the Fuehrer fatuously smiling at his massed devotees stirred the Allied spectators to laughter.

Titled "the Nazi plan," the film portrayed the rise of national socialism from political street fighters, led by a frenzied ex-corporal, to a terror that swept over Europe. Its closing scenes showed the trial of Germans who attempted to kill Hitler with a bomb July 20, 1944.

Scenes of a Berlin peoples' court administering Nazi justice to those who sought Hitler's life last year were exhibited only privately to high party members in Germany and, reportedly have not been shown to the public abroad even yet.

A raving bald-headed Nazi judge named Preisler was filmed upbraiding Count Schwerin von Schwabenfeld, one of the men accused of plotting Hitler's death, in this language: "You are filthy rascal. Do you collapse under the stress of this vulgarity? Yes or no?"

"No," answered the count. "No," screamed Preisler. "You could not even be down because you are but a measly little pile of filth which has lost all self-respect."

Union's Plan

also would have the right to review such penalties.

Bugas repeated that the Ford plan to assess the union $5 a day for each member taking part in an authorized work interruption "would accomplish our objective" and withheld comment on the union proposal "until we have had opportunity to study it."

Richard Leonard, UAW-CIO Ford director, said the company had agreed to discuss the union's 30 percent wage increase demand at the next negotiating session Wednesday.

General Motors announced termination of its contract with the union more than four months in advance of its April 28, 1945, expiration date.

Wilson said the cancelled agreement, which dated back to the sit-down strike days of 1937, "obviously" had failed to achieve its purposes.

Observers pointed out that the action would have little effect on settlement of the 21-day old GM strike. Chrysler corporation's bargaining agreement with the union expired a week ago after numerous issues remained unsettled.

First returns indicated local GM unions would turn down President Truman's appeal for an immediate resumption of work.

SMALL TALK
CHICAGO, Dec. 11.—(AP)—Daniel Cercone, attendant at a service station, was being robbed by a man who pointed a .45 caliber automatic at him.

William McNeil, a part-time employee at the station, passed and called to Cercone: "Hi, Dan."

"Hi, Bill," said Cercone. Cercone said the bandit became so flustered he drove away in his car without paying for 10 gallons of gasoline.

Pearl Harbor

June 17, 1940, the adjutant general, acting for Marshall, sent the following message to Herron:

"Immediately alert complete defensive organization to deal with possible trans-Pacific raid, to greatest extent possible without creating public hysteria or provoking undue curiosity of newspapers or alien agents."

Marshall testified last week that the alert was the real thing, not a practice.

The Nov. 27, 1941, message to Lt. Gen. Walter C. Short, the Hawaii commander, told him that "negotiations with Japan appear to be terminated to all practical purposes with only the barest possibilities that the Japanese government will come back and offer to continue."

The message that that "hostile action possible at any moment," adding that Short was "directed to undertake such reconnaissance and other measures as you deem necessary but these measures should be carried out so as not to alarm civil population or disclose intent."

Service Merger

Vinson's committee told newsmen the measure could be regarded as "the navy's answer to demands for unification." Both May and Vinson, however, said the identical bills they introduced were the product of their joint efforts.

The bills May and Vinson offered would set up the air forces as an independent department headed by a cabinet officer and with its own school—similar to West Point and Annapolis—for developing officers. Eventually the new department would take over the army air corps and the army air force, although it would not have jurisdiction over the navy's air arm.

Poison Gas

Wuppertal-Eiberfeld developed the deadliest poison gas in the world. This gas, unknown to the military authorities of the Allied nations, could have penetrated any gas mask in existence.

"They were used with full knowledge and acquiescence on the part of Farben to exterminate whole groups in concentration camps."

"Farben's cartel agreements numbered over 2,000 and included agreements with Standard Oil (New Jersey), the Aluminus company of America, E. I. Du Pont de Nemours, Ethyl Corporation, Imperial Chemical Industries (Great Britain), the Dow Chemical company, Rohm and Haas, Establishments Kuhlmann (France) and the Mitsui interests of Japan. x x x"

Bernstein cited a statement he said was prepared by "three of Farben's leading scientists" to the effect that Farben "gained technical information from America far more important to Germany's war effort than Standard Oil was able to obtain for the American war effort from Germany."

Atomic Bomb

Atomic bombing survey covered the effects of the allied bombing on German civilian life. The medical branch of the survey found, among other things, that fire was the great killer in air raids and that an estimated 500,000 persons died in German cities under bombings.

Maj. Cortez F. Enloe of Manhasset, N. Y., one of the survey group, told a news conference that the atomic bomb raid on Nagasaki "was not nearly as bad as the area raid on the city of Hamburg."

There, he said, three attacks in as many days set off fires that burned six weeks and in which 46,000 known dead were counted. An estimated 19,000 more bodies still are in the ruins two and half years after (Japanese authorities estimated that from 40,000 to 45,000 died in the Nagasaki attack.)

Atomic bomb experts, however, rate fire as second in casualty-attaining results. They give the blast effect top position, with radioactivity the third casualty-producing effect.

Patton

from the United States, was scheduled to land at Paris, but was diverted to Marseille because of fog and rain at the French capital.

Patton was injured when his sedan collided with an army truck near Mannheim. He suffered a fracture of the third cervical vertebra of the neck and dislocated the fourth cervical. His condition was described late yesterday as critical, but he was said to have reacted well to the initial shock.

LEVINE'S

TWENTY FIVE YEARS OF DEPENDABLE SERVICE

NYLONS

By Clausner

This past week Levine's received their first allotment of Nylon hosiery. Naturally this allotment was very small, as there is still a critical shortage of this material. As all other merchants throughout the U.S., Levine's were confronted with the problem of how to fairly distribute this small allotment. We feel that if we had placed these hose on sale there would not have been enough to take care of even a very, very few of our thousands of customers.

Therefore, the management has decided that the following method of disposing of these nylon hose would be the fairest way:

FIRST, we will not sell one pair of these hose. In fact, as we feel that we are indebted to our employees, they come first, and we have decided to give them each one pair. These hose will be given to our employees free of charge.

SECONDLY, what few hose we have left, we have decided to give one pair free with the purchase of any ladies' suit, ladies' winter coat or ladies' fur coat.

We hope that our thousands of customers understand our position in this matter. In the very near future as nylons become available in larger quantities, same will be offered to our trade, first come, first served.

1 PAIR CLAUSNER NYLON HOSE WITH THE PURCHASE OF ANY LADIES' SUIT.

1 PAIR CLAUSNER NYLON HOSE WITH THE PURCHASE OF ANY LADIES' COAT.

1 PAIR CLAUSNER NYLON HOSE WITH THE PURCHASE OF ANY FUR COAT OR CHUBBY.

THE COACH SITUATION

The rapid return of America's armed forces from overseas requires that the Burlington relinquish approximately one-half of its main line coaches for military transport exclusively. This takes many cars from regular trains, plus any relief equipment.

No extra cars are available for the holiday season and many regular trains will have fewer cars than normally. Some discomfort, disappointment or delay seem inevitable.

If trains are temporarily overcrowded or do not have the customary equipment, you will understand why it is unavoidable.
