Panhandle Town Is Rocked By Explosion

WOUNDED AND DEAD COMMUNISTS — Bodies of dead Communist prisoners of war lie amid the wreckage inside the POW Compound 76 on Koje Island as other prisoners, some of them wounded, walk with hands behind their heads toward the compound gate. One American and 31 Communists were killed in a planned battle between the prisoners and battle-hardened American paratroopers. The paratroopers were ordered into the compound when the prisoners defied an order of Brig. Gen. Haxton Boatner, camp commander, to move to a new camp. (AP Wirephoto via radio from Tokyo)

One Said Dead In Fire, Blast Early Today

DAWN — (P) — A tremendous gas explosion shook this small Panhandle town shortly after 8 a. m. today and set off a blistering fire visible for 50 miles.

The explosion occurred at the El Paso Natural Gas Co. pipeline four miles south and four miles east of Dawn.

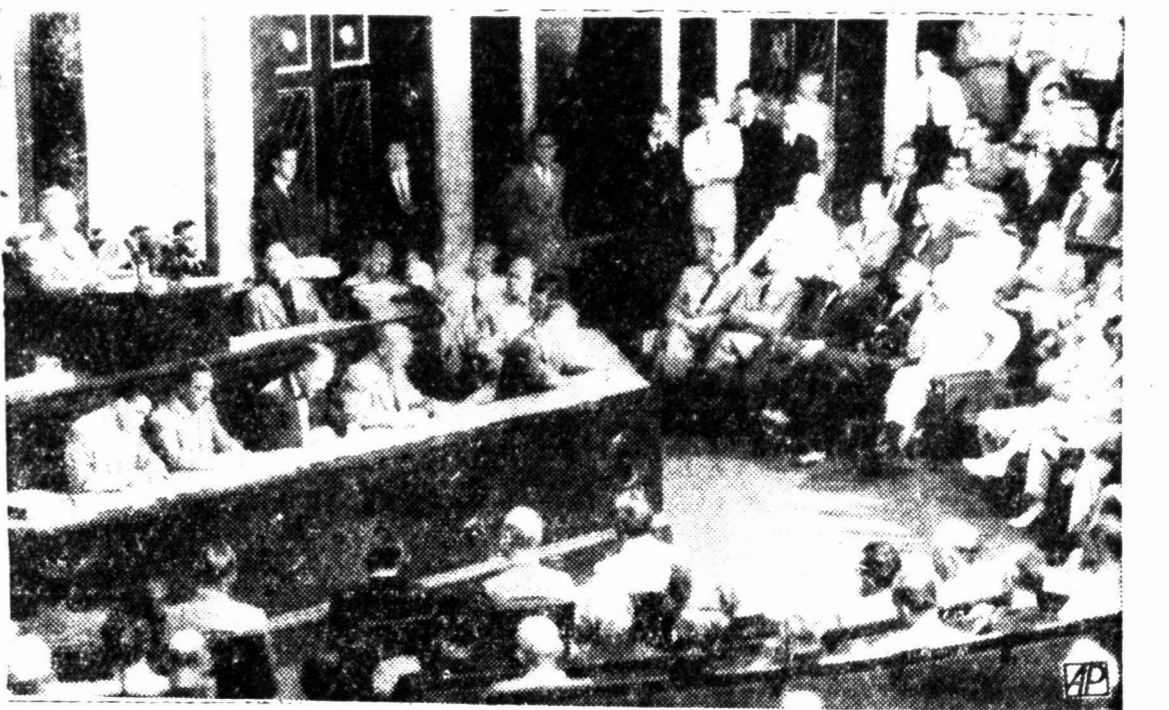

It was not immediately known whether anyone was injured. Intense heat kept investigators from the area, but some observers said they believed they could see the wreckage of a small plane and the body of one person in the fire.

However, the pilot of an observation plane from Amarillo Air Force Base dismounted the wrecked plane report. He flew over the area as low as 500 feet and said he could not see any sign of the wreckage.

The plane was first sent to investigate when Shannon Kirby and J. L. Allen, employees of the Amarillo Air terminal, reported a tower saw a huge cloud of dirt and dust mushroom into the sky. Dawn is about 30 miles southwest of Amarillo.

Mrs. George Parker of Dawn told the Amarillo Globe-Times that she summoned ambulances and fire trucks to the scene of the blast at the request of county officials who went there.

Mrs. Parker quoted her daughter, Mrs. Noble Willard, also of Dawn, as saying that she could see the wreckage of a plane near the point of the blast.

President Expected To Turn To T-H Law For Strike Ending

First Land Suit Filed From Gulf Strike

The first suit, claiming $250,000 damages, over land near the Haggard wells was filed this week in 31st District court here.

Described as a trespass-to-try title suit, the action was brought by A. B. Kitchens and H. R. Kitchens, both of Gray county; Clara Addington and husband, T. C. Addington, of Roberts county; Minnie Lutz and husband, H. E. Lutz, Tarrant county, and Joe W. Kitchens, Tarrant county, against Lee M. Kitchens of Roberts county.

The land, lying two and one-half miles south of the Haggard developments, was once owned by the late W. B. Kitchens, father of the principals in the case. The plaintiffs are asking a part 2 in Roberts County. The plaintiffs are represented by Atty. John Studer and the defendant by Atty. Curtis Douglas.

WASHINGTON — (P) —

Top government officials said today President Truman probably will turn now to the Taft-Hartley law, which he loathes, in an effort to get the steel mills back into production.

The Senate, unmoved by Truman's personal appeal for special executive powers, held firmly against any alternative other than Taft-Hartley.

"The issue for peace or war hangs in the balance and steel is a vital element in the outcome," Truman told a hastily arranged joint meeting of Senate and House yesterday after the sudden collapse of industry-union negotiations.

After hearing him, late Republican and Southern Democratic senators joined forces to write into the anti-inflation Defense Production Act an official "request" that Truman invoke at once the labor relations law he had just denounced as "unfair, harmful and futile."

Sen. Robert A. Taft of Ohio, co-author of the law, and an opponent for the Republican presidential nomination, helped lead a succession of rebuffs to the White House on the seizure issue. At day's end, Taft told a reporter:

"This was a direct answer to the President's request for Congress to act. It is a direct answer."

Government officials seemed to be generally agreed that Truman personally delivered a request to Congress for a special seizure law some time ago. Committee members, however, asked what Congress would do if the President's speech, so far, was not to comply with the wishes of Congress, despite his statement that he would do "the worst of the worst."

To use the Taft-Hartley act, a strike prohibition provision, Truman would have to be in the steel with the companies and against the workers.

Plans to bring the Clyde Beach Club to life next fall as a scheduled activities for 1953 were made at a meeting of the Shrine Club Monday night, winding up activities for the past year.

Committee chairman were named by Aubrey Jones, president, as follows:

The formation of a new Shrine Club at Dumas was announced by the president and it was decided to send a representation from Pampa to the new club's next meeting June 30.

Kenneth Kollier, Okmulgee Guide from the Khyva Temple at Amarillo, was introduced as a special guest.

The Shriners will resume activities in September to include stag nights, dances, and family nights with meetings scheduled on the second Monday of each month at the Elks' Hall.

Ike Schedules Denison Visit

DENISON — (P) — Gen. Dwight D. Eisenhower comes back to his birthplace here June 21 as a guest of the Gold Star mothers of Denison.

The General's supporters announced yesterday that he'll also meet with Texas and Louisiana Eisenhower delegations to the Republican national convention in Chicago.

The GOP conventions of both states split over whether to back Eisenhower or Sen. Robert A. Taft of Ohio for the presidential nomination.

The Texas convention, dominated by Taft supporters, named 30 delegates to the Chicago convention in favor of the senator, four for Eisenhower and four for Gen. Douglas MacArthur.

A rump session elected 33 delegates for Eisenhower and 5 for Taft. The Eisenhower faction charges that the Texas party went against majority rule.

The 29 Gold Star mothers of Denison plan for a motorcade to meet the general and escort him to his birthplace for a reception. They hope he'll make a public address.

Mrs. Monte Bales Jones, president of the Gold Star mothers chapter, was notified of the general's visit by Jack Porter, Houston, chairman of Texas Eisenhower forces.

Porter said the general probably will fly to Denison from Denver. Porter will accompany him to Dallas later that day for a private dinner where Eisenhower will meet the Texas and Louisiana delegations.

Mrs. Jones said she wrote Eisenhower inviting him to Denison. Porter said the visit was in response to her invitation.

"I just got to thinking that it would be nice if he came back, thought maybe if he were going to be in Texas, he could come back to the place where he was born," she said.

Mrs. Jones talked with some other Gold Star mothers and they thought "it would be nice."

Checks Amounting To $3,477 Stolen

Twenty checks with a total valuation of $3,477.01 were stolen between 5:30 and 6 p. m. yesterday from Carl H. Lutten, 1216 W. Wilks.

The checks had been signed, sealed and were ready to be mailed at the Pampa postoffice. Of the twenty, seventeen were payroll checks and three were regular. All but two of the payroll checks were to be sent to New Mexico.

The Sheriff's office and the First National Bank were notified of the theft this morning.

Sheriff R. H. Jordan has had no report from the man he was investigating the case. Unofficially, he thinks that a youth pulled the job.

Area Wheat Harvest Expected To Get Underway Next Week

Wheat harvest is expected to get underway in the area next week with an average yield of 12 bushels per acre predicted by the Agriculture Department.

Gray County is to start harvest on its 85,000 remaining acres about June 15; Roberts and Wheeler Counties each have 20,000 acres to harvest and Hemphill is due to start harvest on its 60,000 acres around June 20. An average yield is expected in Gray and Wheeler with average and better yields in Roberts and Hemphill.

Workers Migrating Equipment and workers are migrating from North Central Texas to Hart, Floyd, Lamb and Castro Counties and are ready to begin harvest there today. No shortage of equipment for this year's harvest is indicated.

Throughout the state, the 1952 winter wheat crop has been predicted by the Agriculture Department to produce 41,532,000 bushels.

Last month the department had estimated the Texas crop would run 38,071,000 bushels. The major increase was believed the result of good rains in the North Texas and Plains wheat country.

This estimate was based on June 1 conditions. The department said 3,461,000 acres are planted to wheat and that yield-per-acre should run 12 bushels. May estimate was 11 bushels per acre.

In 1951, Texas produced 17,307,000 bushels from 1,923,000 acres, an average of nine bushels per acre.

Both the 1951 and 1952 crops are below the 1940-1949 average of 63,486,000 bushels. Recurrent droughts, hail storms and insect infestations, especially green bugs, have beset recent Texas wheat crops.

Hardened Reds Murder 15 In Koje POW Pen

KOJE ISLAND, Korea — (P) — Communist prisoners of war in Compound 77 murdered 15 fellow POWs in a night of terror, then meekly surrendered to United Nations troops today for dispersal to smaller stockades.

American guards seized seven of the compound's leaders after the group had been shifted. The Red leaders were put in isolation cells. Other Red prisoners in a central exercise ground of the new enclosure, then refused to return to their compound but sullenly complied when a company of American troops rushed up.

A leader of tough prison Pen 68 — holding 2,700 North Korean officers and 650 enlisted men — was shown the shambles of Compound 76 where the Reds resisted dispersal. But American guards said throughout the day they heard considerable hammering in 66, a stockade where POWs were shaping crude weapons.

American paratroopers found eight POW bodies still oozing blood in a well in Compound 77. Later a ninth body doubled up in an oil drum was discovered in the same well.

Five bodies were found in trenches and another in an abandoned well.

One victim's hands were tied behind his back. Others had been beaten and ropes were taut around the necks.

Twenty anti-Red prisoners scaled barbed wire fences during the night. They said they had planned to kill them.

The 6,288 North Koreans in the compounds were the third such group to be dispersed to 500-man compounds in Brig. General Haydon L. Boatner's campaign for uncontested control over the POWs.

By Associated Press Sen. Robert Taft's forces today held the controls, throttle and brakes of the Republican convention machinery in an open, possibly bitter-end fight over disputed delegations.

Here was the lineup, adopted by the convention arrangement committee at its final meeting in Chicago yesterday:

Keynote speaker — Gen. Douglas MacArthur, a supporter of Taft and a critic of Taft's chief rival for the GOP presidential nomination, Gen. Dwight Eisenhower.

Temporary chairman — Walter S. Hallinan of West Virginia, another Taft booster.

The fourth key post, permanent chairman, went to Rep. Joseph W. Martin Jr. of Massa-

Area Lion Governor Wins 100 Percent Honor During Term

Boyd Menard, governor of this district of the Lions International, has received a letter from R. Roy Keaton, director general, to the effect that this district has been awarded the One Hundred Per Cent District Governor Award.

This is the first time in the history of the district that such an achievement has been accomplished.

There are three requirements to reach this achievement. The district governor must make an official visit to every club in the district at least once during the year. Every club must meet its financial obligations to the international and district office. Every club secretary must have his monthly report in the Chicago office no later than the 10th of the following month.

This district runs from Higgins on the northeast to Brownsfield on the southwest.

Fort Worth Man Hurt In Accident

A Fort Worth man suffered a serious injury in an accident involving a truck and a car on Highway 70 about 1:20 p. m.

Injured was C. F. Moore of Fort Worth whose 1947 model sedan overturned at least two times after a blowout punctured one tire about a mile south of town.

The car was considered a total loss. According to officers, the car took off the highway and rolled through a barbed wire fence and came to rest on its wheels in a field adjoining the highway.

Ex-Major Charged With Burglaries

FORT WORTH — (P) — A former Army major was in jail today after admitting a series of burglaries at Fort Worth and Dallas during a four-month period.

William S. Clark, 29, of Lubbock is under one charge and several others will be filed. His bond was set at $5,000 in the first case. Clark contacted a contractor supply firm in Lubbock.

Clark told a Star-Telegram reporter and detectives that he doesn't know what started him off as a burglar "except that there was a family quarrel and I started drinking."

He was arrested inside a tavern Sunday. He admitted hoodlum life here and in Dallas.

Pennsylvania's Governor Fine Uncommitted, Unimpressed

By CHARLES WELSH HARRISBURG, Pa. — (P) — Pennsylvania's Gov. John S. Fine, a young Republican leader, says he will be an uncommitted, undecided and unimpressed by the excitement his stand has created.

He is uncommitted as to how he will vote at Chicago next month. Fine says he and not even his most intimate friends or political associates profess to know where the governor stands.

But Fine is confident that a big majority of Pennsylvania's 70 convention votes will be lined up with him when the presidential candidate is nominated.

Sermeant's Letter To Clark Brings Army Prosecution

MONTEBENE, Colo. — (P) — The Army is going to prosecute a veteran sergeant who wrote Gen. Mark Clark that he had had a Koje war prison camp inmate who "repugnant and disgraceful."

Sgt. C. Dean Chase, 24, Salt Lake City, was charged yesterday with disrespect to a superior officer and ordered court-martialed. Maximum penalty if convicted is six months in prison and a bad conduct discharge.

Chase commented "I knew exactly what I was doing" but expected only a reprimand from Clark.

The general instead sent Chase's letter to Sixth Army Headquarters, San Francisco, for "appropriate action."

Specifically, Chase criticized Clark for repudiating promises made by Brig. Gen. (now Col.) Charles Colson, then Koje commander, to win the release of Brig. Gen. (now Col.) Francis Dodd, held hostage 78 hours by Communist prisoners of war on Koje Island, Korea. Clark, Far East commander, labeled Colson's promises "blackmail" extorted by the Reds.

Chase made his letter public. He wrote in part:

"Now what do we do? The state's psychiatrist says the defendant's psychiatrist is crazy!"

House May Revoke President's Power To Seize Railroads

WASHINGTON — (AP) — In no apparent mood to grant President Truman any new property seizure powers, the House was set today to revoke his existing authority to seize the railroads.

Main business on the day's docket was a bill to extend until June 30, 1953, an estimated 50 emergency war powers given by Congress to the President over a period of years. Unless extended, all the powers cease next Sunday.

Most of them are non-controversial, dealing with such matters as uniform allowances for reserve officers.

The President recently asked Congress to continue 60 of his war powers, but the House Judiciary Committee knocked out 11 on the ground they are no longer needed.

One of the powers that would be eliminated is the pending bill is authority to seize the national transportation system in time of war or emergency. The committee said settlement of the railroad strike made continuance of such authority unnecessary.

Convict Rights Due Debate In Warden's Case

DENVER — (AP) — Do convicted criminals lose their civil rights and the protection of the law when they enter prison?

The legal answer likely will come from an unprecedented trial opening next Monday (June 16) in U. S. District Court in Denver.

Roy Best, 52, suspended state prison warden, and eight other penitentiary officers are charged with violating and conspiring to violate civil rights of six convicts.

A federal grand jury charged the convicts were tortured and abused July 16, 1951, at the Canon City prison after a riot in which two guards were wounded. Best admitted the men were whipped with a leather strap but claimed the "torture of convicts has never been allowed" in the 22 years he was warden.

Pre-trial debate by defense and federal attorneys brought these opposing arguments:

A defense attorney declared: "A convict is civilly dead. He has no civil rights. The law with respect to convicts is entirely different than it is for others."

The government prosecutor replied: "The U. S. Constitution does not fail to operate for persons behind prison walls. A prisoner never loses his constitutional rights, as contrasted with his rights to vote or hold office."

The Department of Justice in Washington assigned Ben Brooks, a civil rights expert, as special prosecutor. Brooks said there never had been a federal case in which a penitentiary warden was charged with violating the civil liberties of convicts.

Indictments against Best, president of the Prison Wardens' Association of America, and his co-defendants are based on the 14th Amendment to the U. S. Constitution, ratified in 1868, and Section 242 of the U. S. Code.

The part of the Constitution at issue reads: "...nor shall any state deprive any person of life, liberty or property without due process of law, nor deny to any person within its jurisdiction the equal protection of the laws."

Defense attorneys at a pre-trial hearing last month made unsuccessful motion to quash the indictment. One of their arguments was that the Constitution did not protect convicted criminals. Prosecutor Brooks placed particular emphasis in his arguments on the words "any person" in the constitutional amendment. He argued the guarantee of liberty and protection of the law applies to "any person."

Section 242 of the U. S. Code, which the suspended warden and his co-defendants are accused of violating, says:

"Whoever, under color of any law, statute, ordinance, regulation or custom, willfully subjects any inhabitant of any state, territory or district to the deprivation of any rights, privileges or immunities secured or protected by the Constitution or laws of the United States or to different punishments, pains or penalties, on account of such inhabitant being an alien, or by reason of his color, or race,

VILLAIN OF THE HCL—Just like in your household budget, the word "Miscellaneous" covers a multitude of sins that keep the cost of living index going up and up, declare Federal economists. They point to "Miscellaneous" (along with food prices) as the villain that, as of April 15, put the Consumer Price Index up 86.7 per cent higher than the 1935-39 average. It's the little-noticed and uncontrolled items like recreation, transportation and medical care, that do the dirty work, say the government economists sharks. Their figures indicate that food and "Miscellaneous" eat up about two-thirds of your cost-of-living dollar, as shown above.

Prehistoric Whale Sows Up Excavation

LOS ANGELES — (AP) — A whale that swam the seas 20 million years ago brought work to an abrupt halt at an excavation site in the nearby Palos Verdes hills.

When workmen pick-axed into the monster's fossilized bones yesterday they sent for Dr. Hildegarde Howard, chief curator of science at the Los Angeles County Museum.

She identified the bones as belonging to a prehistoric whale—probably between 25 and 40 feet long. The find is interesting, she said, but not unusual for this area. A piece of the skeleton—the tympanic bulla, or inner ear—was sent to the Smithsonian Institution in Washington for study.

White Says Texas Farmers Must Rely On Mexican Help

AUSTIN — (AP) — Texas farmers must rely on help from "South of the border," state Agriculture Commissioner John C. White says in advocating a more practical federal policy on the use of Mexican labor.

Just back from a 2,000-mile, two-week tour of the state to study the 1952 crop outlook, White said immediate prospects for a bumper season look as favorable as during the record year of 1948.

"We just don't have any hand labor except what the farmer has in his own family," said White. "The farm labor situation in this state grows just a little more critical every year, and it isn't being helped any by the confused and impractical policies set up by the federal government."

"I don't believe officials in Washington have any idea as to the conditions in Texas this year. And I know the Texas farmer is wondering how he can stay within the law and still get an adequate supply of labor during the coming harvest."

White said the farmer will need every available hand if a bumper crop matures, as present conditions indicate.

"Mexican laborers have always been a big factor in the economic scheme and will be even more so this year," he continued.

"It is foolish to condemn Mexican workers as a threat to U. S. laborers. An adequate farm labor pool simply doesn't exist in Texas, and the farmer must rely on help from south of the border unless his crops are to rot in the fields."

"I strongly recommended that we be allowed to take advantage of the plentiful supply of braceros. I certainly do not advocate exploitation of Latin-Americans, but I believe a good working agreement with an adequate pay scale can be formulated that will be advantageous to the laborers and the farmers. Both parties are entitled to a fair deal in a new bracero policy."

White said he found corn and cotton prospects the best since 1948 and the grain sorghum outstay within the law and still get an adequate supply of labor during the coming harvest.

White said the farmer will need every available hand if a bumper

Reserves Due Promotions

AUSTIN — Army reserve officers who have served on active duty since June 25, 1950, in grades higher than the commission they hold in the Officers Reserve Corps may now be promoted regardless of vacancies and without appearing before the usual board of officers, Col. C.M. Culp, chief of the Texas Military District, announced today.

Separation center commanders are now authorized to effect such promotions when officers are proceeding on leave from active duty. However, many officers were returned to civilian life before this policy was adopted and did not receive the promotions that are now authorized.

Personnel files of the district headquarters are being screened to determine which officers are eligible for promotion under this new policy. However, many officers have changed their addresses or moved from one state to another since being separated and locating them will be difficult and take considerable time.

In order to complete the program and assure that they receive their higher commissions in the reserve corps at the earliest possible date, Army Reserve officers who have served on active duty in a temporary rank higher than their current reserve commission since June 25, 1950, are urged to contact their nearest Organized Reserve Unit instructors immediately. Those officers in communities that do not have an instructor office may write direct to the Chief, Texas Military District, Austin, Texas, for detailed information and procedure for applying for the promotion.

Eligible officers receiving these promotions will be tendered a new reserve appointment in the higher grade for a period of five years or for the duration of the emergency plus six months, whichever is later.

During 1951, the American Bible Society sent 941,241 Bibles to the American armed services.

Children Superior To Grownups

By HAL BOYLE

NEW YORK — (AP) — Children are superior to grownups because they have a greater sense of wonder.

Adults are always fretting about such dull topics as whether there will be another world war soon and who will be the next president.

Such prosaic cares never disturb the curly hair of my godchild, Nina. She is still a month away from her fifth birthday, and her world is such an exciting one I wish I could share it completely with her.

Nina looks like an exclamation point and she is a living question mark.

What does a young lady "going on five" want to know? Well, her mother scotch-taped a piece of paper on the kitchen wall and scribbled down the questions Nina asked.

Here are a few from a two-day total:

"Why is it o'clock when the fire goes out?"

"How do you get hungry?"

"Why does everybody in the whole world have to go to church and Sunday school?"

"Why is there a moon in the morning?"

"How does your nose get dirty?"

"Why do we have two ears and not just one?"

"How do you get measles?"

"How do you forget?"

The mother gave me the slip of paper and suggested that, if I wanted to carry out my duty as godfather, I might start supplying Nina with the answers.

But after studying the questions I put the paper in my pocket and decided to drop the project. What that child needs is five or six encyclopedias.

We went for a walk and Nina said:

"Hal, who turns off the fire-flies after I go to bed?"

Before I could stutter out an explanation, she wanted to know if clouds ever fell on people and hurt them.

"No, they —" I began.

"But they must fall down sometimes," she said positively.

We strolled on in silence. I had an uneasy feeling that Nina thought her godfather was pretty dumb, considering his size.

Anybody ought to know a cloud has to fall down sometime. It just can't stay up there in the sky all the time, can it?

MANIAC Solves AEC Problems

LOS ALAMOS, N.M. — (AP) — The MANIAC at this atomic center solves problems that would drive a scientist crazy.

MANIAC is the nickname for the latest thing in electronic brains designed by scientists to work out the intricate problems involved in atomic research.

The letters stand for "mathematical analyzer, numerical integrator and computer." That means it's a sort of distant cousin to an adding machine.

It works along the same general lines—but much more complicated—as your radio or television set. Its designers, staff members of the University of California scientific laboratory, make these claims for it:

Feed a number into its memory in eight-millionths of a second—fastest yet for such a machine.

Take the number out at a later time for use in the same split second.

Work about 100,000 times as fast as a trained computer using a desk calculating machine.

MANIAC uses the binary arithmetic system instead of the standard decimal system. But it can take problems in the decimal system, transpose them and solve them in the binary system, and give the answer in the decimal system. The binary system uses only two digits, zero and one.

The machine took more than three years to build and cost about $330,000. With it, scientists will be able to solve their problems here instead of sending them to other parts of the country where such machines are available.

Wonder what the MANIAC could do with an income tax return?

Domestic Crude Production Down

TULSA, Okla. — (AP) — Domestic crude oil and lease condensate production for the week ended June 7 averaged 6,106,400 barrels daily, a drop of 218,525 barrels from the last reported totals May 3, the Oil and Gas Journal reports.

It was the first weekly report by the journal since May 3 because of the oil workers strike.

The journal gave these states as losers in production, comparing the weeks ended June 7 and May 3.

Texas, down 141,475 barrels to 2,698,650 barrels; Arkansas, off 200 barrels to 80,600; Colorado, down 8,200 to 77,900; the Eastern fields, 400 to 68,500; Kansas, 69,500 to 248,700; Kentucky, 1,200 to 33,900; Mississippi, 2,150 to 97,250; Nebraska, 600 to 6,000; Oklahoma, 5,000 to 526,300; and Utah, 100 to 4,000.

Australian Newsmag Tours United States

WICHITA, Kan. — (AP) — A 39-year-old Australian newspaper editor is back at his Wichita typewriter after a four-month lecture tour in ten states—Minnesota, North Dakota, Montana, Utah, Missouri, Texas, Mississippi, California and Colorado, as well as Kansas.

Ralph Wilson Field showed motion pictures of Australia—in black-and-white and in color—exhibited native Australian weapons, and tossed boomerangs all over the map.

Field and his family flew to Wichita from Australia in September, 1948. They came here for special training for their oldest boy, John, now 10. Encephalitis, following measles, had left John physically active but retarded, unable to speak or understand.

Red Terror Continues

KUALA LUMPUR — (AP) — The leading British rubber planting body in Malaya declares that despite countrywide resettlement of squatters in areas free of Communist terrorists, there is no improvement in the situation.

The United Planting Association of Malaya, in its report for 1951, said planters still lived in continual danger and could not relax security precautions.

Without the "steadfastness and courage" of the planters, said the report, "the situation in the rural areas would have rapidly deteriorated to a state of savagery and chaos."

Chambers' Story

We're not ready to throw in with the gloomy prophets who think the human race is going to hell in a hand-bask, but we do take some straining to be optimistic without being glib.

Take, for example, the matter of Whitaker Chambers' new book "Witness".
Whittaker is the little darling who operated a one-way messenger service between our State Department and the Russian intelligence agency. At one end of the line was the Communist spy named Alger Hiss, and at the other "good old Joe" Stalin, as the President of the United States once called him.

Whittaker foiled in the Soviet vineyard for a good spell, picking up the secret documents Alger had riched from the State Department files and delivering them to the cloak & dagger boys of the Russian secret police.

These tidy transactions extended over a period of years. Part of the time Whitaker was knocking down a piddling $20,000 a year as an editor of Time magazine, a pidgin English fiction magazine published weekly by Chinoboy Luce. Apparently neither of Whitaker's jobs conflicted with the other. At least he never was fired from either.

There should be no attempt to discredit Whitaker Chambers' voluntary break with the Communist spy work by pointing to several occasions to "confess". Once, the President of the United States brushed him off with an airy wave of the hand. That was Emperor Franklin. The next President dismissed it with the phrase "red herring." And the secretary of state said he would not "turn my back" on Alger Hiss even if the little jerk was a spy and a perjurer.

For nine years Chambers begged the government to investigate the Soviet spy ring in the United States, offering himself as a prime witness. Only the FBI showed any interest.

If Elizabeth Bentley hadn't cracked the headlines with a story that even the President of the United States couldn't kiss off, Chambers might still be playing his sorry tune on a one-stringed violin in the stocks.

But the Bentley story hit the front pages, and there was no stopping public demand for an airing of the close connections between high government officials and the Soviet spy apparatus.

Chambers had his day in court. He accused Hiss of delivering to him State Department secret files for the Soviets. Hiss denied it. And a federal court found Hiss guilty of perjury.

That, briefly, is the story of Whitaker Chambers. Enter, now, the book called "Witness."
For 799 pages, Whitaker Chambers (a professional writer) tells how and why he came to be a Soviet spy courier and how and why he turned informer.

The contents of two leading newspapers, the columns, Whitney Bolton and George Sokolsky, regarding "Witness" have proven interesting.

Bolton thought the book was something of a religious experience, and Sokolsky, who does not enjoy the advantage of being a preacher's son (like Bolton), sees in the book how an American was lured into a great adventure.

Bolton's conclusions are somewhat beyond our range. He never writes about a "naked soul" as Bolton did in connection with Chambers' confessions.

But we can understand, if not agree, with George Sokolsky.

Sokolsky harps on the old "lost generation" theme which John Dos Passos exploited with remarkable success until he jumped himself to death. The theory is that the World War I generation was "lost"—without moral anchoring, without guideposts, adrift and confused. These unhappy youngsters of the 1920s were set for the "great adventure." And, as Sokolsky points out, what is a greater adventure than the Bolshevik revolution "to change the whole world?"

A printer in our backshop was talking about the Whitaker Chambers book the other night.
"All I can say," he told us, "is a lot of kids who got killed in World War II might not be very sympathetic with Chambers. He was a spy, and spies get shot. At least they used to."

Neither Bolton nor Sokolsky mentioned a very important item.

Whittaker Chambers is an "intellectual." Intellectuals never have moral anchors. They're always confused. They always crave the "big adventure." They always holler the loudest when they're hurt. They always die a thousand deaths before they're planted in the soil for good.

Whittaker Chambers is not representative of a generation of Americans. He's not representative of any trade, profession, economic condition, system or environment. He is representative of every intellectual from the dawn of history.

The city is these intellectuals have risen to an improper station in life. Emperor Franklin installed them as the Brain Trust, and he made the seediest of the lot the "assistant President"—Harry Hopkins.

Whittaker Chambers' agonized tussle with his "soul" isn't worth 799 pages of type, even if the guy does write such high-flown gibberish a lot of people swear they understand and love it.

What makes the book valuable is Chambers' detailed revelation of the refusal of two administrations to throw the Soviet spies out of our government.

And—much more important—it is an unintentional warning of who to expect when a nation permits the intellectuals to hold sway, supplanting common sense with "naked souls" and metaphysics; trading the laws of mathematics and human nature for good intentions and high adventure.

Better Jobs

By R. C. WOLFE

A Character Weakening "Must" Textbook

I have been commenting for several days on "You and Your Government," which is a "must" textbook that is to be used in the 7th and 8th grades in the state of California. The penalty for not using it is that the state can fine the superintendent, the principal and the board of education. It costs $100 for each day they do not use it. The state can also withhold 25% of the money that the state pays to the district.

It is a purely paternalistic textbook. If Henry Wallace has written the textbook, there would be very little difference in its content. It is full of errors, does not explain liberty or the American way of life. It advocates an unlimited government. It is not very much different between it and the ideas of government which were the heart of the Declaration of Independence was written.

The book repeatedly contends that the government is something for the public. It never points out that the government is not a thing, but a collection of men from some individual who has created the wealth that made it possible for the government to do anything.

On the other hand, it never points out that the government does not exist. On page 613 under the "Unemployment Problem" it is stated that in 1932 it was believed that every man could get a job if they wanted it. Then it says:

"Almost overnight men were thrown out of work through no fault of their own. It was not just whose fault it is that we have unemployment? Unemployment is a definite fact. It is due to bad government laws. And since the workers undoubtedly have a vote and valid reasons why they were laid off, it is the workers' fault that they lost their jobs."

Public schools teach the very things that cause unemployment. They teach planning and control by the government. And it is the government's attempt to regulate the economy that has caused unemployment. It is the government's attempt to regulate the economy that has caused unemployment. It is the government's attempt to regulate the economy that has caused unemployment.

These tidy transactions extended over a period of years. Part of the time Whitaker was knocking down a piddling $20,000 a year as an editor of Time magazine, a pidgin English fiction magazine published weekly by Chinoboy Luce. Acheson Was Only Technically Correct On Secret Agreements

By RAY TUCKER

WASHINGTON—Dean Acheson was only technically correct when he assured workers in the House of Representatives that the secret agreements made by Roosevelt and Truman in connection with the recent pact-making the former enemy nation member of the European defense community.

It is not too much to say that, as a result of this unpublicized agreement, the United States has made a major revision of foreign policy. Acheson's failure to explain its significance on Capitol Hill is puzzling, for it would undoubtedly command the support of the majority of the legislators in both House and Senate.

LESSONS—Based on bitter lessons learned when Washington effected the immediate establishment of Israel and Indonesia as free nations, the United States has begun to substitute fact for fancy in foreign policy.

Our secretary of state, for instance, informed Paris that the United States would support the UN's plan for the settlement of the Palestine problem. With a population that is more than 80 percent illiterate, and with no experience in government, Tunisia is obviously not ready to go it alone.

Moreover, we have air bases there for the purpose of attacking the Mediterranean sector of a future global war.

Washington has now made the belated realistic discovery that success cannot be gained by the role of a globe trotting diplomat. It has begun to substitute fact for fancy in foreign policy.

Moreover, we have air bases there for the purpose of attacking the Mediterranean sector of a future global war.

Washington has now made the belated realistic discovery that success cannot be gained by the role of a globe trotting diplomat. It has begun to substitute fact for fancy in foreign policy.

Our secretary of state, for instance, informed Paris that the United States would support the UN's plan for the settlement of the Palestine problem. With a population that is more than 80 percent illiterate, and with no experience in government, Tunisia is obviously not ready to go it alone.

Is There A Subversive Movement In Public Schools?

By WESTBROOK PEGLER

It is the twenty-second installment of the talk given June 21, by Rep. Paul W. Shaffer of Michigan in the House of Representatives.

clear mandate covering the details of the talk given June 21, by Rep. Paul W. Shaffer of Michigan in the House of Representatives.

Elaborating this view, the editorial continues: "The explanation of functions and delegation of responsibility are of the essence of industrial civilization. Increasingly, so-called 'public schools' are being set up to do the work of the industrial plant. The industrial plant is a complex of interlocking parts. The public school is a complex of interlocking parts. The industrial plant is a complex of interlocking parts. The public school is a complex of interlocking parts."

Conversely, "honest appraisal of the present condition of the educational system is a prerequisite of any program of socialization that are others. If, as this movement of education, the professional—gathers momentum, he finds that class cleavages in groups, including directors, will not thereby be deterred from continuing his war of political and social control."

In Dr. Child's view, far from being a neutral, detached observer, the teacher should be an active participant in the social reconstruction that is to be undertaken by the advocates of that goal, and, in turn, capture the imagination of the youth.

The editorial goes on to deplore the tragedy that the teachers of the Nation are being subjected to, in other knowledge, disposition, or organization, to discharge intelligently and effectively the responsibilities which events have placed on their shoulders. And it notes that the strength of the movement of education, the professional—gathers momentum, he finds that class cleavages in groups, including directors, will not thereby be deterred from continuing his war of political and social control."

One of the most remarkable statements with respect to the potential power of the teaching profession and of the strategic employment of that power is contained in an editorial bearing the statistical title "105,921"—published in the January 1935 Social Frontier, pages 5-6. The title represents the number of persons teaching in the schools and colleges of the Nation in 1930 as disclosed by the Fifteenth Federal Census. The fact that one of every 45 persons gainfully employed was engaged in teaching was described in the editorial as "a fact of far-reaching social significance."

Chambers' Story

We're not ready to throw in with the gloomy prophets who think the human race is going to hell in a hand-basket, but it does take some straining to be optimistic without being goofy.

Take, for example, the matter of Whittaker Chambers' new book "Witness."

Whittaker is the little darling who operated a one-way messenger service between our State Department and the Russian intelligence agency. At one end of the line was a sarcastic simpleton named Alger Hiss, and at the other "good old Joe" Stalin, as the President of the United States once called him.

Whittaker toiled in the Soviet vineyard for a good spell, picking up the secret documents Alger had pilched from the State Department files and delivering them to the cloak & dagger boys of the Russian secret police.

These tidy transactions extended over a period of years. Part of the time Whittaker was knocking down a piddling $20,000 a year as an editor of Time magazine, a piggy English fiction magazine published weekly by Chinaboy Luce. Apparently neither of Whittaker's jobs conflicted with the other. At least he never was fired from either.

There should be no attempt to discredit Whittaker Chambers' voluntary break with the Communist spy network. He tried on several occasions to "confess." Once, the President of the United States brushed him off with an airy wave of the hand. That was Emperor Franklin. The next President dismissed it with the phrase "red herring." And the secretary of state said he would not "turn my back" on Alger Hiss even if the little jerk was a spy and a perjurer.

For nine years Chambers begged the government to investigate the Soviet spy ring in the United States, offering himself as a prime witness. Only the FBI showed any interest.

If Elizabeth Bentley hadn't cracked the headlines with a story that even the President of the United States couldn't kiss off, Chambers might still be playing his sorry tune on a one-stringed violin in the sticks.

But the Bentley story hit the front pages; and there was no stopping public demand for an airing of the close connections between high government officials and the Soviet spy apparatus.

Chambers had his day in court. He accused Hiss of delivering to him State Department secret files for the Soviets. Hiss denied it. And a federal court found Hiss guilty of perjury.

That, briefly, is the story of Whittaker Chambers.

Enter, now, the book called "Witness."

For 799 pages, Whittaker Chambers (a professional writer) tells how and why he came to be a Soviet spy courier and how and why he turned informer.

The comments of two leading newspaper columnists, Whitney Bolton and George Sokolsky, regarding "Witness" have proven interesting.

Bolton thought the book was something of a religious experience; and Sokolsky, who does not enjoy the advantage of being a preacher's son (like Bolton), sees in the book how an American was lured into a great adventure.

Bolton's conclusions are somewhat beyond our range of metaphysics; we never quite get the drift when someone writes about a "naked soul" as Bolton did in connection with Chambers' confessions.

But we can understand, if not agree, with George Sokolsky.

Sokolsky harps on the old "lost generation" theme which John Dos Passos exploited with remarkable success until he lashed himself to death. The theory is that the World War I generation was "lost" — without moral anchoring, without guideposts, adrift and confused. These unhappy youngsters of the 1920s were set for the "great adventure." And, as Sokolsky points out, what is a greater adventure than the Bolshevik revolution "to change the whole world?"

A printer in our backshop was talking about the Whittaker Chambers book the other night.

"All I can say," he told us, "is a lot of kids who got killed in World War II might not be very sympathetic with Chambers. He was a spy; and spies get shot. At least they used to."

Neither Bolton nor Sokolsky mentioned a very important item.

Whittaker Chambers is an "intellectual." Intellectuals never have moral anchors. They're always confused. They always crave the "big adventure." They always holler the loudest when they're hurt. They always die a thousand deaths before they're planted in the soil for good.

Whittaker Chambers is not representative of a generation of Americans. He's not representative of any trade, profession, economic condition, system or environment. He is representative of every intellectual from the dawn of history.

The pity is these intellectuals have risen to an improper station in life. Emperor Franklin installed them as the Brain Trust; and he made the seediest of the lot the "assistant President" — Harry Hopkins.

Whittaker Chambers' agonized tussle with his "soul" isn't worth 799 pages of type, even if the guy does write such high-flown gibberish a lot of people swear they understand and love it.

What makes the book valuable is Chambers' detailed revelation of the refusal of two administrations to throw the Soviet spies out of our government.

And — much more important — it is an unintentional warning of what to expect when a nation permits the intellectuals to hold sway, supplanting common sense with "naked souls" and metaphysics; trading the laws of mathematics and human nature for good intentions and high adventure.

Better Jobs

By R. C. HOLLES

A Character Weakening "Must" Textbook

I have been commenting for several days on "You and Your Government," which is a "must" textbook that has to be used in the 7th and 8th grades in the state of California. The penalty for not using it is that the state can fine the superintendent, the principal and the board of education each $100 for each day they do not use it. The state can also withhold 25% of the money that the state returns to the district.

It is a purely paternalistic textbook. If Henry Wallace had written the textbook, there would be very little difference in its contents. It is full of errors. It does not explain liberty or the American way of life. It advocates an unlimited government. It is hard to see very much difference between it and the ideas of government bank credit and the Declaration of Independence was written.

The book repeatedly contends that the government is doing something for the public. It never points out that the government has nothing that it does not take from some individual who has created the wealth that made it possible for the government to do something.

On the other hand, it never points out the great harm that government does. On page 613 under the "Unemployment Problem" it contends that for many years it was believed that people could get a job if they wanted it. "Almost overnight men were thrown out of work through no fault of their own."

Now just whose fault is it that we have unemployment? Unemployment has increased since it is due to bad government laws. And since the workers undoubtedly had a vote and voted for officeholders who made laws that caused unemployment then it is the workers' fault that they lost their jobs.

Public schools teach the very things that cause unemployment. They teach a planned economy by the government. And it was the government's attempt to regulate bank credit and to protect them from competition by tariffs and discriminatory laws that permitted labor monopolies and subsidies of one kind or another. Tax supported schools by miseducating the people have caused long periods of unemployment.

Under an unhampered market where all people have a right to help establish values there would be no long periods of unemployment — only employment and unemployment due to changes in methods of production.

Yet we are teaching the youth of the land to believe that unemployment just happens. That there is no cause for it. That nobody is to blame for it. As I said, when the blind lead the blind, they will both fall in the ditch. And it is when people vote for lawmakers who do not believe in a definite limited government and that the only purpose of government is to be negative instead of positive that we are bound to have long periods of unemployment and a much lower standard of living than we would have under a laissez-faire economy.

No place in this book does it explain the harmony that results when government doesn't meddle in business and try to plan the lives of individuals, as it tries to plan the education of the youth of the land. If the government monopolizes education and makes one monopoly after another, which cause unemployment.

The book would leave the impression that the government has established social security for the aged, the unemployed, the sick and helpless, and in fact, for most all of man's troubles. But it never explains that the money the government collects is not invested in actual wealth, as is the case with insurance companies, in order to pay the claims when promised. All the money paid into "social security" is spent and all they have to show for it is government bonds that the government has spent. And when the claims become due a few years later, if the government is able to pay at all, it must tax the producers in order to make good its claims.

There is no place in history where a government had a "social security" program that worked. What good did "social security" do the German people when the mark became so little value that it would not buy a toothpick? Yet we are fooling the youth into believing that the government is actually trying to protect them from any trouble. All the government is trying to do is to get more money to keep the bureaucrats in control. It is just a form of tax called by another pleasant name. It makes no difference whether they call themselves Republicans or Democrats, they are both trying to do the same thing. Of course, in years to come when the government taxes the young to take care of the old who did not take care of themselves, then it will be tougher for the young people to raise a family because every dollar they take from the man raising a family, that family has that much less to buy food, clothing and shelter and education. It is a delusion to delude the youth that "social security" means what it says.

The real serious danger about this textbook is that most parents have been so indoctrinated by most supported miseducation that they would not even realize how this book is weakening the character of their children.

We are following the exact policy of every totalitarian state — having the state get control of the minds of the youth and indoctrinating them to supinely acquiesce to gradually losing their liberty. And tax supported schools are the primary agency of causing us to so rapidly discard the American way of life and adopting a collective form of government.

Yes, the textbook "You and Your Government" is truly a character weakening, degrading, corrupting influence on the character of the youth of the land.

Is There A Subversive Movement In Public Schools?

(This is the twenty-second installment of the talk given March 21 by Rev. Paul W. Schuler of Michigan in the House of Representatives.)

Dr. John I. Childs, exponent of the class approach in the effort to achieve a collectivist society, insisted that "the present conflict of classes presents not only a problem, it also presents a resource." Social Frontier, June 1936, pages 274-278.

The educators' "struggle for academic freedom and adequate support for the public school" is, in Dr. Childs' judgment, "related to the deepening conflict of class interests in American society." This is obviously so, he believes, because the educators' "experience indicates that not all classes in the economic class of owners is already taking active measures to forestall it."

Conversely, "honest appraisal of conditions convinces him" — the experimentalist educator — "that certain elements of the population are much more likely to respond to this program of socialization than are others. If, as this movement of workers — farm, factory, office, and professional — gathers momentum, he finds that class cleavages in American life grow sharper, he will not thereby be deterred from continuing his work of political and economic organization."

In Dr. Childs' view, far from being interested, the teachers should welcome the conflict. "To entertain this end of drastic social reconstruction but to be unwilling to cooperate in developing the means necessary to achieve it, is a failure of the most fundamental nature of behavior."

"In my opinion, the orderly transformation of our economy will be increased, not lessened, by an open alliance of professional groups, including educators, with the working class (ibid, pp. 274-8). In an earlier article, Dr. Childs expressed the belief that —

"The fact that one out of every 45 persons gainfully employed was engaged in teaching was described in the editorial as 'a fact of far-reaching social significance — a fact whose meaning has been fully grasped neither by society at large nor by the teaching profession.'"

Elaborating on this significance, the editorial emphasizes the role of teachers as professional specialists. "The responsibility of educational workers for shaping the program of the school has become perpetual and inescapable. They could not be more instruments if they tried. This is due chiefly to the fact that in the course of the past several generations organized education has developed to a point where it requires in its conduct an enormous amount of professional knowledge and experience. In large part, therefore, the actual administration of the school must be left to those who are technically competent — the teachers of the country. The only alternative is chaos and cultural regression."

Efforts To Discuss Flynn's Rise To Power Prove Failure

By WESTBROOK PEGLER (Copyright, 1952, King Features)

In order that you may better appreciate the shining virtue of that handwashing old hypocrite, Philip Murray the president of the CIO, I present further information on the character of the inveterate jailbird, house - breaker and wife-beater, Timothy Flynn, who is, by Murray's personal appointment, director of the CIO for the Pacific Coast.

Over a period of five days, I made conscientious efforts to reach Brother Flynn by phone with a view to eliciting some discussion of his glorious rise from his first recorded crime, a sincere but clumsy effort, to the highly aced which we now occupy with arbitrary powers over millions of Americans in and out of his union. I was unsuccessful. After the first essay in which my identity was mentioned to a lady in the CIO headquarters and she replied that he would be busy for two days, the best I could get was a "do not answer." The glib CIO mimeographs, which, by turns, have canonized and damned Harry Bridges, thus far have stood mute. Nor have I heard from James J. McElroy, secretary and treasurer of the New York Association of Catholic Trade Unionists, who reproved me on a broadcast for my heresy in doubting Murray's nobility. I had rather looked for a few phrases from Brother McElroy, but he has ignored a subject not beneath his notice but, too big for it.

The power of the boss union leaders are vast beyond the utmost aspirations of their servant in the White House. Murray can appoint and remove at will as he pleases, impose boycotts and kick up riots amounting, as the sainted Roosevelt said in the Ingledwood case, to "violent insurrection." Bridges was one such. Notwithstanding Murray's passionate abuse of better Americans who exposed Bridges, he was shown to the violent destruction of the American government.

In Bridges' place, with exquisite delicacy, Murray named a habitual crook and police character. This was such a raw affront that one wondered if this could be the same Tim Flynn. The doubt was not stilled until an official fingerprint test gave positive results. The Tim Flynn who runs the West Coast region of the CIO is the same poolroom hum and ex - convict whose frightened, unfortunate wife, in a statement in preparation for a successful divorce action in 1939, complained that he had tried to push her in front of an automobile so as to collect money from an insurance company: That on Oct. 8, 1938, after a wedding day, he hit her a poke in the eye; that he never had supported her and that it had been necessary for her to work as a waitress ever since their daughter was three months old. They lived with her family because Mr. Murray's fine brother of a boy didn't provide a home for them and she had, of course, bought all the baby's clothes.

Another lady, a friend of Mrs. Flynn, identified herself with the names of the people and refused longer to make obeisance to the badges of wealth and rank. All they lack is organization, vision and courage. Perhaps these will come. TOMORROW, STEPS TO POWER (CONT.)

National Whirligig. Acheson Was Only Technically Correct On Secret Agreements

By RAY TUCKER

WASHINGTON — Dean Acheson was only technically correct when he assured worried Congressional inquirers that he had given no secret or unrecorded pledges to Britain, France and Germany in connection with the recent pact making the former enemy nations member of the European defense community.

The fact is that he entered into commitments at Bonn which virtually scrap the "four freedoms" promises incorporated in the Atlantic Charter by Roosevelt and Churchill. The Truman Administration has finally beaten a retreat from the distant democratic frontiers staked out by those two international surveyors.

It is not too much to say that, as a result of this unpublicized action, the United States has made a major revision of foreign policy. Acheson's failure to explain its significance on Capitol Hill is puzzling, for it would undoubtedly command the support of a majority of the legislators in both House and Senate.

LESSONS — Based on bitter lessons learned when Washington effected the immediate establishment of Israel and Indonesia as free states, this country will no longer brook its strongest European allies into dismembering and weakening their overseas empires for ideological reasons.

UNREK — Roosevelt - Truman intervention on behalf of Indonesian independence forced The Netherlands to cast off those islands which were not prepared for it. It helped to light the fires of communist rebellion in the Far East, especially in China.

DISCOVERY — What Acheson has done is to abandon or modify the crusading "make the world safe for democracy" spirit which, despite its noble and high - principled purpose, has worked out well in practice.

Washington has now made the belated but realistic discovery that politicians cannot afford to play the role of a globe - encircling deity. It has begun to substitute fact for fancy in foreign policy.

Our secretary of state, for instance, informed Paris that the United States would support the insistence of the British and French stand against Tunisia's insistence on more self - rule. With a population that is more than 80 percent illiterate, and with no experience in government, Tunisia is obviously not ready to go it alone.

Moreover, we have air bases there that may be essential in the Mediterranean sector of a future global war.

ANOTHER — Acheson likewise told the British that we would pursue a hands - off policy in England's dispute with Egypt over future control of the Sudan. Washington will also continue to pressure American oil companies into providing no markets for Arabian petroleum, hoping that this economic boycott will force a prompt settlement on London's terms. In short, we will continue to support the British.

French and British statesmen submitted an almost unanswerable argument in advocating a change in our gregarious championship of the Roosevelt - Churchill charter and Woodrow Wilson's theory of the "self - determination" of peoples.

They simply asked how Washington expected them to support us in Korea and in the "cold war," while we demanded that they divert themselves of overseas outposts of democracy.

Even Acheson had to smile and surrender at that thrust!

GUARANTEES — The expansion of an American proprietary diplomatic powers resulting from our membership in the United Nations enabled Acheson to make his no - secret - pledges in support of the international body.

He also agreed to line up the so-called American bloc in London and Paris. In that way, say serious discussion or examination of the colonial claims can be pigeonholed more or less permanently.

AUTHORITY — Not even the Bricker resolution, which has the backing of 56 other senators, can negate or prevent this kind of diplomatic operations. The Obama's proposed constitutional amendment simply provides that "no agreement or treaty entered into by the president shall override federal or state laws."

As this incident shows, American influence in the U. N. gives the president authority to make world - wide commitments without seeking prior authorization from Congress. New realization of this fact lies behind the demand to define and limit the body's power as it affects domestic and foreign affairs.

We will not continue to insist at independent be granted to colonies and protectorates when we desire for freedom is not buttressed by the basic qualifications for self - government — political, economic, cultural, etc.

TRUMAN — Roosevelt - Truman intervention on behalf of Indonesian independence forced The Netherlands to cast off those islands which were not prepared for it. It helped to light the fires of communist rebellion in the Far East, especially in China.

DISCOVERY — What Acheson has done is to abandon or modify the crusading "make the world safe for democracy" spirit which, despite its noble and high - principled purpose, has worked out well in practice.

Washington has now made the belated but realistic discovery that politicians cannot afford to play the role of a globe - encircling deity. It has begun to substitute fact for fancy in foreign policy.

Our secretary of state, for instance, informed Paris that the United States would support the insistence of the British and French stand against Tunisia's insistence on more self - rule. With a population that is more than 80 percent illiterate, and with no experience in government, Tunisia is obviously not ready to go it alone.

Moreover, we have air bases there that may be essential in the Mediterranean sector of a future global war.

The fever is high from the beginning. A curious rash, which has given the disease its name, "spotted fever," appears between the second and sixth day. The skin is often swollen and bleeding may occur into or under the skin and mucous membranes. Laboratory tests are important in the diagnosis.

VACCINE ADVISABLE — A preventive vaccine has been found useful in human beings as well as in animals. It probably is not practical or advisable for everyone to receive this vaccine, but those who are likely to be exposed in areas where ticks and the disease are common should probably receive it.

Until recently treatment has been rather unsatisfactory. However, two relatives of penicillin — chloramphenicol and aureomycin — have been found of the greatest value. If diagnosis is made early and one of these antibiotics is employed, recovery will be rapid and recovery is still worthwhile.

Original Manuscript Gone With The Wind
ATLANTA — (AP) — Only a few of the many thousands of pages that made up the manuscript for the record-breaking novel "Gone With The Wind" remain in existence. Stephen Mitchell, brother of the author, Margaret Mitchell, disclosed recently that after Miss Mitchell's death her husband, John R. Marsh, burned most of the manuscript in accordance with her wishes.

The few remaining pages were stored in a vault to be used in the event of any legal questions arising as to the authenticity of authorship. The original manuscript had been sought by many libraries but Miss Mitchell didn't want to leave any personal belongings in existence after her death.

OUR TOWN

by Wanda Campbell

This is the story of a guy and a house. It's not a spectacular house. Just one of many built years ago on a stretch of land near our town. Passersby don't notice the house from the highway. There's nothing different about it even after you turn off Highway 60 and head up the lane to it.

But inside a sort of miracle took place. Inside lives Mickey Ledrick. About two years ago Mickey bought the house, a two-bedroom, high-ceilinged place that had definitely seen its day. Then Mickey went to work. Carpenters came, the paperhangers, the painters and the decorators. Bit by bit, the house was restored. Strong, shiny beams broke the high ceilings. Splashes of provincial paper brightened the walls and accented the gay fabrics of the chairs and couches. Mickey planned every inch of the house.

the re-modeling and re-decorating ideas are all his. What he wanted in his bachelor's home is what every lover of Early American decor wants. He planned the kitchen so as to have work space and storage space. For cabinet hardware, he used miniature black iron trivets.

His bath defies the theory that some baths are too small for built-ins. He put louvered shutters at the windows and made a dutch door. He hung a collection of plates across one wall. All accessories, from lamps to ashtrays, carry out the Early American theme.

The effect spells home. Mickey has built and decorated a number of houses since he started rejuvenating the old farm house. And he'll probably do a lot more. Still, there's something special about this one house because he saw beauty in it when it was ugly, and saw it as a home when it was just another farm abandoned on the plains.

Ruth Millett

She was one of several older women at the party. The younger women were courteously attentive to all the older women, but one by one they finally drifted to this particular woman's side. Something about her drew them to her. And when she left the party early there were appreciative comments about her charm.

What did she have that drew those younger women to her? What did she offer that made her outstanding in their minds? Well, first of all, she was frankly her age. Not by clothes or too much make-up did she indicate that she was pretending to be any age but what she was.

The older woman who tries to compete with younger women on their own terms is rarely liked by younger women. She may just seem slightly ridiculous, or a little sad, or she may give the impression that she is really deeply critical of the younger women because she is actually envious of them.

Then, too, this older woman seemed vitally interested in those she met, interested in them, as people, not in who they were and who they knew. There were no pointed, searching questions to indicate that kind of social snobbery.

Also, she wasn't seeking an audience to talk about herself. She WAS skillful about drawing others out and giving them a chance to express their ideas and opinions.

But the nicest thing about her, perhaps, was that all the lines of age were soft, pleasant lines—not hard ones. And her eyes were as bright and eager as a girl's, her laugh as ready.

This kind of older woman always appeals to younger women. They sense the warmth and friendliness of such a person. They respect the woman for unselfishly being her age. They may even think wistfully, "I hope I am like that when I am her age."

The question that should follow that kind of wistful thinking is: "Am I on the road to being that kind of person now?"

When it was ugly, and saw it as a home when it was just another farm abandoned on the plains.

Know Foe And Improve Game

By OSWALD JACOBY
Written for NEA Service

In my last column I took up the problem of knowing when to meld out. I wandered off into a discussion of reading the minds of the enemy, but perhaps I can get back to the original problem today.

Sometimes you can tell that the opponents are nearly ready to meld out even before either of them has made a single meld. Suppose, for example, that the cards are dealt and the opponents need 90 points for their initial meld. In the first six rounds of play they each discard two kings, two queens, one ten, and one nine.

This is a very ominous sign. It doesn't take long for two matching hands to meld out. Sooner or later one of the players makes his initial meld (not too difficult when 90 points is the required count), and his partner may be able to make a canasta and meld out at his very next play.

When the opponents match their discards too perfectly, therefore, you watch your step. Don't hold too much in your hand, or you'll get caught.

Let's take another situation. The pack is born frozen, and opponents need 90 points for their initial meld. Suddenly one of the opponents melds six cards from his hand and makes an obviously unsafe discard. What has happened?

That opponent has decided to play off instead of for the pile. You may be sure that his remaining five cards give him a good play for out. He may need a little help from his partner in completing a canasta, or perhaps a favorable draw will be enough. If your opponent has good judgment, he is very close to out, and it is time for you to begin unloading.

Q — How many canastas do you need to meld out in three-handed Canasta?

A — The game is played in several ways. Most people play the game in which only one canasta is needed. Incidentally,

Sandpaper Aids In Treatment Of Facial Disfigurements

CHICAGO — (AP) — Sandpaper offers an aid in treating various facial disfigurements, the American Medical Association has been told.

Dr. Claire L. Straith and several plastic surgery colleagues of Detroit said sandpapering of the skin—usually as a follow-up to surgery—offered help towards erasing pimple pits, pock marks, tattoos, cindermarks or carbon marks from explosions.

The doctors told about the technique in a scientific exhibit at the AMA's annual meeting.

The meeting constitutes organized medicine's "Big Show," with side lights ranging from coast-to-coast telecasts of medical ad-

Lives With Another Woman For 11 Years

GLASGOW, Scotland — (AP) — A trusting Glasgow wife said her husband slept away from home for 11 years "but I never suspected the truth."

The truth turned out to be that 57-year-old mailman Peter Miller had set himself up a second home — complete with second wife — and kept up the two on the equivalent of $20 a week.

At first he used to tell his legal wife he was staying with friends for the week end, then it was every night of the week. "But every morning at about 10 o'clock, he would arrive home and make breakfast," his legal wife said when Miller was charged with theft and bigamy in Glasgow sheriff's court.

San Quentin Convicts Replanting Forest

SACRAMENTO (AP) — Honor inmates from San Quentin and Soledad State Prisons are playing a big role in replanting California forest land charred by fires last year.

Crews from San Quentin planted 200,000 Ponderosa and Jeffrey pine trees in the Plumas National Forest.

Honor inmates have been moved to camps in the forest areas in the Plumas, Modoc, Stanislaus and Sierra National Forests.

Twice-A-Year X-Ray Exams Suggested For Heavy Smokers

CHICAGO — (AP) — Twice-a-year X-ray examinations for middle-aged men who are heavy smokers were recommended today by a Washington, D. C., doctor as a means of improving the attack on lung cancer.

Declaring that there is a higher proportion of lung cancer among heavy smokers than among non-smokers, Dr. J. Winthrop Peabody said he believed such an X-ray procedure would assure spotting any such cancers early enough to allow successful surgical operation.

Mortality High

"Until this is done," the Georgetown University doctor told the annual meeting of the American Medical Association, "mortality (from lung cancer) will continue to be high."

He said that a definite diagnosis of lung cancer is now possible in 85 per cent of people who have it. He declared the diagnosis may be made early in the disease, even while in the "silent stage" or when cough is the only apparent symptom.

In another report to the meeting, two Chicago doctors said allergic diseases are apt to develop in children of parents who themselves are sufferers from al-

Buried Room In Vatican

NEW YORK — (AP) — The Rev. Joseph Lynch, Fordham University seismologist, says at least one room has been located beneath the marble floor of the Basilica of St. Peter's in Vatican City.

Lynch, who returned here from Rome, said he made tests — by artificial miniature earthquakes — in attempts to locate Nero's Circus, where St. Peter was crucified, and the tomb of Palestrina, an early musician.

He said no positive evidence was obtained of Nero's Circus under the Belgian cobbles and concrete surface outside the Basilica.

But in a try to locate Palestrina's tomb, he said, it was

A Crisis Rears Its Head In Hank's Hat - Buying Spree

By HENRY McLEMORE
Whenever I set out to buy a straw hat, which I am to do tomorrow now that summer is here and the lawn sprinkler has replaced the iron deer in the front yard, I invariably remember something that happened to me in Honolulu.

It was my first trip to that tropical paradise. I walked into a department store, purchased a hat, and then told the clerk that I would like to have a feather band for the hat, instead of the usual ribbon. I had become feather-band conscious only two weeks before when I played golf with Crosby who wore a hat with a feather band.

Up until the time I saw Bing's band (feathers not sax, piano and drum) I had no idea people went around wearing feathers on their hats. Bing's was so pretty. It was red, green, yellow, blue, black, orange, purple, chartreuse, cerise, magenta, mauve, terra cotta, sun-tan and dust.

When I saw a similar band in this Honolulu department store I went into raptures. I told the clerk that this was exactly what I wanted; that I would not be satisfied with anything else. I held it in my hands and rubbed the soft silkiness of the feathers from the throats of heaven knows how many birds.

"I told the clerk to put that on my hat and put it on my head. I just wanted to look at myself in it. I preened and strutted before the mirror. I whirled around like a dervish in that three-mirror arrangement. I gave the clerk my old hat and said I'd wear the new one with the feather band. I told him to send the old hat to my hotel.

With my new hat and feathers on my head, I jauntily asked the clerk what I owed him. He said, "Just a moment," and started figuring. "It will be $432.20," the clerk said. "The hat is $12.20 and the band, probably the nicest one we have in the store, is $42.00. You may not know this, but only last year Bing Crosby bought a band almost exactly like this. I am sure you will never regret your choice."

Now came a crisis that comes to most of us at one time or another. How was I to get rid of that band without publicly admitting I didn't have $432.20 to spend for even a balloonful of feathers, much less fewer feathers than you could pull out of a duck's tail if you were in a hurry.

McGranery Wants Old Criminal Cases

WASHINGTON (AP) — Atty. Gen. James P. McGranery has told the nation's U. S. district attorneys today to give him an immediate report on the criminal cases which have been pending longest in their offices.

McGranery said he wanted information on cases where no prosecution has been undertaken.

It was the first major step taken by McGranery since he was sworn in as head of the Justice Department May 27.

McGranery issued his instructions to some 94 federal prosecutors assembled here to get acquainted with their new boss.

Betty Grable Working After Year-Long Tiff With Studio

By BOB THOMAS
HOLLYWOOD — (AP) — The box office queen is working again after a year-long squabble with her studio, so it's time to pay a call and survey how things are shaping up with her.

The gal, of course, is Betty Grable, still rated the No. 1 female attraction of the nation's theater owners. When I found her, I discovered things are shaping up as admirably as usual.

In "The Farmer Takes A Wife," she plays a maid in the early days of the Erie Canal and thus wears long skirts. However, the script writers know better than to keep such obvious assets hidden. They have arranged for scenes in which Miss Grable gets in and out of bed, bathtubs, etc.

Not Bitter — Hurt
I asked Betty about her suspension, which kept her out of pictures and off salary for almost a year.

"I wasn't bitter about it," she remarked, "just a little hurt. I didn't like the way it was done. I had been working for 18 months steadily and I was mentally and physically exhausted. They wanted me to start work again right away, and I said I had to have two months to rest up in. So they put me on suspension. I didn't miss working at all. I didn't take any trips or anything. I just spent the time with my family and my horses. I was never stage-struck, so I didn't miss picture work. I'm like that — happy with that I'm doing. When I'm in a picture, I'm happy because it's usually fun. But I can be just as happy at home doing nothing."

Betty also seemed hurt because the studio didn't urge her to come back. When she returned, it was on her own free will.

"I talked it over with Harry (James, her husband)," she said, "and we decided I might as well come back. The layoff was just extending the time I would be at the studio, since I have seven more pictures to do in any case. So I sent them a very formal telegram telling them I was ready, willing and Grable." (All right, so she said "able," but it make a good gag, doesn't it?)

She added that the studio didn't have a script ready for her and didn't return her to the payroll until the last minute of a six-weeks waiting period. Then they handed her "The Farmer," which she said was intended for Mitzi Gaynor.

I mentioned that the Internal Revenue Department will no doubt be mad at the Jameeses, since both were largely idle last year.

Not Too Mad
"They are," she said. "But not too mad. Harry and I expected to be paying hardly any income tax. So what happens? One of our horses, Big Noise, ended up earning $100,000 last year."

Because she has been suspended, Betty will get only a straight salary for her present film; salary for her present film.

Deadline Set On Price Support Loans

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Agriculture Department has given farmers until August 1 to pay off price - support loans and redeem their cotton.

Cotton not redeemed by that date will be pooled and sold in an "orderly manner" by the department.

On final liquidation of cotton pool, the net proceeds, if any, would be distributed among farmers whose cotton was placed in the pool.

As of May 29, about 436,000 bales of 1951 - crop cotton were still under price support loans. Growers had previously redeemed 675,000 bales.

The department said the market price at the present time is high enough to permit growers to redeem most of the loan cotton and sell in the market and make a legal profit.

Satchel Paige Bids Again For All-Star Job With Relief Art

By JOE REICHLER
Associated Press Sports Writer
Tip to Casey Stengel, who will manage the American League's 1952 all-star team in the inter-league classic in Philadelphia next month:
Want to know how to snap the National's two-game winning streak? Just select Leroy (Satchel) Paige as one of your eight pitchers.

Except for Philadelphia's Bobby Shantz and New York's Allie Reynolds, there hasn't been a more effective hurler in the league than Paige during the past two weeks. And for three innings, the maximum distance in an all-star game, the ancient Negro is as good a clutch pitcher as anybody in the game today.

Murphy-LaMotta Tonight To Draw Jam-Packed Crowd

DETROIT — (AP) — If they pack Olympia Stadium for tonight's Irish Bob Murphy-Jake LaMotta fight it will be for one reason only: to see a slam-bang bar-room type brawl between two guys who like to mix it.

The International Boxing Club says the winner will get a shot at the light-heavyweight title, which may or may not pan out. That prospect may lure a few additional fans into the indoor sports palace on a warm night.

Exhibition Grid Tickets On Sale

Tickets for the professional exhibition football game between the Chicago Cardinals and the Detroit Lions were scheduled to go on sale at Matome and Keel Pharmacy this week, probably Friday. The game is to be played in Amarillo Stadium on Aug. 18, and will be the second pro exhibition tilt played in Amarillo. Last year the Washington Redskins upset the Lions, 10-7.

But the prospect of a real return to the sport of the past, Detroit's adopted son, and the man who shredded his face in their only previous meeting is much more alluring to Detroit fans blacked out from a nation-wide telecast. "No doubt about it, the bout is an important one to both pugilists. LaMotta, dethroned middleweight king, has outgrown that weight class and needs to get by Murphy to go very far in the light-heavy division. Irish Bob, beaten handsly by Champion Joey Maxim after he TKO'd LaMotta almost a year ago, would drop way back down the comeback trail on a reversal by Jake.

Area Women Meet Tomorrow

The Pampa Women's Golf Association will try to hold onto their scant 13-stroke lead in the Panhandle Women's Golf Association tournament tomorrow at the Phillips Country Club.

The Pampa ladies took the lead last month in the opening meeting held at the Pampa Country Club. The standings at the present time show Pampa with a 440 stroke total; Phillips with 453; Amarillo Country Club with 481; Ross Rogers with 493; and Huber of Borger, 498.

The Phillips ladies are the defending champions and are figured to pick up several strokes, or perhaps the lead, on their home course.

Ted Ray of England was 43 years old when he won the U.S. Open in 1920. Only a stroke behind was 50-year old Harry Vardon, also of England.

Marion To Stay In Lineup As New Boss Of Veeck's Club

By BILL KING
BOSTON — (AP) — With such a loquacious boss as Bill Veeck, it is not surprising that the St. Louis Browns' new manager, Marty Marion, has had but little opportunity to outline his plans as veteran Rogers Hornsby's successor as manager of the St. Louis Browns.

But Marty who served one term as the St. Louis Cardinals' pilot, did manage to get in a few words between Veeck's long explanations of yesterday's Hornsby firing.

"I don't say we have a great club, or even a good one," Veeck conceded, "but I'm sure our players will get along much better under Marion than with Hornsby."

After the seventh-inning Browns' colorful president assumed full responsibility for engaging Hornsby and listed some of the latter's managerial failings in several thousand well-chosen words, Marty was given an opportunity to get in a few in his own behalf.

"I don't plan any drastic changes in personnel," Marion explained. "I'm going to try to pick my nine best players and use them every game. There'll not be any two platoon system for me."

And as for his own competitive plans, "I'm still hoping to play 109 games at shortstop this season and then take up bench managing the Browns next year and the one after," Marion continued.

Veeck, naturally, is enthusiastic about his Marion appointment. And so are most of the Browns' players.

"I made up my mind to get rid of Hornsby about 10 days ago and just waited for an opportunity to do so," Veeck explained. "It seems that he, as an employer, forgot that employees are people, too."

As soon as the out-spoken Hornsby had made his speedy departure, the St. Louis players began to chorus their complaints about his exacting methods.

When Veeck entered their Fenway Park dressing room before last night's 7-4 win over the Red Sox, he was presented with a handsome two-foot silver cup.

surmounted by a golden batter of his now happy teammates.

It bore the inscription — "To Bill Veeck for the greatest play during the emancipation proclamation, June 10, 1952. From the players of the St. Louis Browns."

CHICAGO — (AP) — Young Chuck Comiskey has reentered the door that his mother said would always be left open for him to return as vice president of the Chicago White Sox.

The strapping, 28-year-old executive yesterday rejoined the Comiskey baseball clan from which he bolted in a juff over salary differences and tenure of office Jan. 18.

Mrs. Grace Comiskey, as president of the White Sox, had told Chuck that "the door will always be open when you want to return."

Last March Chuck, namesake of the White Sox founder, Charles A. Comiskey (the old Roman), was made vice president in charge of sports coverage for the Liberty Broadcasting System. Two months later he was thrown out of work when Liberty folded.

Mrs. Comiskey said her son was returning to the presidency "under the same circumstances and conditions as existed at the time of his resignation."

Hubs Beat Oilers In Finale

LUBBOCK — (AP) — A late-inning attack produced 10 runs for the Lubbock Hubbers and a 10-4 victory over the Pampa Oilers here last night after Morris Shipman had pitched no-hit ball for four and two thirds innings.

But with two out in the fifth, Choo Choo Rejon singled and Shipman went to pines. Before Juan Montero could put out the fire, three runs had crossed the plate and the score was tied. Lubbock went on to hammer Montero for the loss, while southpaw Ted Gardner racked up his third victory.

Shipman, backed up by two double plays, had faced only 10 men in the first four innings. He was wild, but just enough to be effective. He walked four and fanned two in the first four frames.

Meanwhile, the Oilers used two walks sandwiched around a probable single by Bobby Brown to load the sacks in the third, one run scoring on Ed Sudol's fly to right.

First Hit
Pampa came back in the top of the fifth for two unearned runs. With two out, Sudol walked and scored when Bob Pugatch dropped Stan Bartkowski's fly in left center, Bartkowski took a king second. He scored on Jake Phillips' lone hit of the game, a single to center.

Shipman opened the Lubbock half of the fifth by getting Jim Schindler and Pugatch on routine groundouts started by him. Then Rejon slammed a single past Brown and Shipman, apparently upset, went to pines.

Before Phillips could get a pitcher warmed up, Gardner, Jess Jacinto and Bill Metzger walked to force in a run. Shipman ran the count to 3-1 on Ed Kenna and Montero was waved in. He finished walking Kenna to force in the second run. Montero gave Lubbock its third run when he took I. B. Palmer's topper down the first base line and hobbled it while Jacinto scored. Metzger was caught rounding third to far and was caught for the third out.

Pugatch put the Hubbers ahead for good in the sixth when, after Eddie Bucx had walked, he poled his third homer of the year over the leftfield fence.

Pampa got its final run in the seventh when Bartkowski homered, but Lubbock wasn't through yet. The Hubbers blasted Montero for four consecutive hits for three runs and finished off against Bill Bohne in the eighth with a pair of runs on two singles and Palmer's second double.

Bartkowski's second double, baseman, wasn't in the lineup last night because of pre-game injury. A thrown bat hit Temes in the right ankle during batting practice and he was taken to a local hospital. X-rays

The power-punching 24-year-old Negro will have to give up at least one of his British titles because the rules say he can't be champion in two weight divisions at the same time. But he's in no hurry.

"I'll keep whichever one will get me a world title fight," he said. "And I reckon that all depends on how Robinson and Maxim come out."

Sugar Ray Robinson, the world middleweight king, meets Joey Maxim, the light heavyweight champion for the latter's title in New York June 23. The British boxing board announced that it would give Turpin at least that long to decide about his titles.

Jack Solomons, who promoted last night's six-hour show which drew 50,000 fans into White City Stadium, hopes to line up the Max Baucus contender for a London bout with Turpin.

Lamesa Rallies To Beat Abilene

ABILENE — (AP) — Lamesa came from behind in the third and fourth innings here Tuesday night to defeat Abilene, 11-8, and salvage the third game of the series after dropping the first two.

The Lobos worked on two of Abilene's new pitchers, Dick Hanna obtained from Wichita Falls, and young George Locher from the Chicago White Sox system. Hanna started fast, was effective for two innings while the Blue Sox gave him a four-run lead. Sauer Leads Poll

CHICAGO — (AP) — The Chicago Cubs' Hank Sauer, National League batting leader, topped the all-star baseball poll in first tabulations today as the most popular vote-getter.

Fans throughout the nation began voting for their starting line-up selections in the National and American Leagues for the All Star Game at Philadelphia July 8.

The Hubbers, who released lefthander Earl Mac Donald outright this week, received a new pitcher last night, righthander Lennie Cosgrove. He is on option from Galveston. Cosgrove is 5-8 and weighs 175.

Pampa goes into Abilene Wednesday while the Hubbers open a six-game road trip at Lamesa. Max Moberg will throw tonight for the Oilers.

Pioneers Blast Albuquerque, 17-4

CLOVIS — (AP) — Clovis' Pioneers exploded with five runs in the fifth and eight runs in the sixth to surge from behind and crush the Albuquerque Dukes, 17-4, for a clean sweep of the three game series.

While the Pioneers rapped lefty Joe Hinchman and Bill Roemer for 16 hits, including homers by Fran Rice and Jim Matthews, righthander Bill Hair hurled no-hit shutout ball over the last five frames to easily wrap up his eighth victory.

Hair surrendered only seven hits four of which came in the third when the Dukes pushed over a cluster of three runs.

NEW YORK — (AP) — It would be a matter of fact, have been plain remarkable and against all odds laws of probability if the New York Giants had not gone into at least a temporary decline after losing Willie Mays to the Army. The National League champions will be lucky if they prove only temporary.

Some things about baseball are difficult to explain, and the tremendous role this joyous Negro played with the high-pitched play in the day-by-day fortunes of the Giants is one of them. It transcended by a great deal the importance of his batting and fielding, good as they were.

Almost from the day he stepped into the lineup just over a year ago, fresh from Minneapolis Willie became a sort of symbol to Leo Durocher's team. Here was a kid so gifted that no one could even guess at the heights he might scale, and yet so completely guileless and unaffected and plain that the wonder of playing big league ball that he scarcely seemed real.

Well Liked
The Giants adopted Willie, and Willie adopted the Giants. The Alabamian kid became a sort of mascot, a winning symbol. The veterans of the club laughed when he ran out from under his cap on the bases and ribbed him like a bumpkin in the locker room, but when Willie wasn't around they told you he was making catches out in centerfield and throwing to the plate probably never excelled, if matched, in the history of the game.

Willie's infectious spirit and the circus support he gave Giants pitchers were more important than the books will ever show in the club's sensational drive to the flag in the final month. His batting fell off badly toward the end, but there likely would have been a team insurrection if Durocher had benched him. In the final tense days Willie mourned to one of his heroes, Eddie Stanky. "I ought to be hitting more," and Eddie told him, "Willie, you just do the catching and we'll do the hitting."

And the past spring at Phoenix the Giants were a carefree, confident team, and the "holier kid" was the star of their training sessions. The crowds and the other players watched delightedly as Durocher worked him unmercifully and conspired to beat Willie out of his turns in the batting cage. But Willie loved it, and many mornings was out for the man with the mustache from Nikes. He won the Open in 1946 and tied for it in 1947 when Hogan made his dramatic comeback after being out a year because of accident injuries. Hogan won the playoff from Mangrum and George Fazio. Joe Dey, executive secretary of the United States Golf Association, came up with some figures to show that Hogan is best in the big ones. Ben has played all the way through eight National Opens, plus one playoff, and in 23 rounds has averaged 72.12 strokes, Dey revealed. "This is a terrific average when you consider that the Open is played on the toughest courses," commented the USGA official.

Ben was surprised to hear it. He didn't know that, he said, and found it quite interesting. Hogan just never had checked up on it.

But he still didn't think he should be the favorite for the championship again. "You're under more pressure this time than ever before," a sports writer commented. "Especially since you'd like to become the only man to win four Opens in four tries."

Texas professional baseball appears to be about as solid as one could hope for — the season has gone a month and a half and there isn't even a rumor that any club might fold.

For once, nobody is speculating that certain leagues might out because of waning attendance. It is the first time in years for such a healthy state of affairs.

The minor leagues have said all along that if major league broadcasts were cut out they could stay on an even keel at the gate. Well, the major league broadcasts are cut out this season and the leagues all are doing much better.

The Gulf Coast and Big State Leagues average over 4,000 each night for four games. The Longhorn League and the Texas League are drawing better than last year, at the moment.

Texas leads the nation in the number of professional clubs with 33. And it appears the state will finish out the season still No. 1. Here's a sample of one night in the Class B Leagues:

Class B Leagues:
Lone Star — Lake Charles, 1,084; Port Arthur, 1,655; Harlingen, 888; Brownsville, 1,096; Big State League — Longview, 614; Austin, 1,087; Temple, 1,082; Texarkana, 1,236.

The clubs can pay expenses with attendance like that. Actually Longview and Harlingen usually do better.

Schoolboy Baseball
The Texas American League in Dallas this year. Dallas has baseball tournament will be held in Dallas this year. Dallas always has drawn well for high school baseball and the American Legion teams are made up of high school players.

With high school baseball on the decline in Texas, it's the American Legion ball that will have to take its place in producing players.

Texas Interscholastic League officials are convinced that spring football is the reason for the fall-off in high school baseball teams. There probably will be a referendum in the league next year on whether spring football is to be continued or banned.

Coaches say the cost is a major obstacle. High school baseball draws little revenue and can't be afforded. But perhaps if there was no interference with the sport and it could be built up in interest there might be enough revenue to pay its own way.

Spring football, it appears com-

Rawls Wins Eastern

READING, Pa. — (AP) — Betty Rawls, women's National Open golf champion, won her third tournament yesterday by copping the 1952 Eastern Open at the Berkshire Country Club. Her 54-hole total was 226.

The Austin, Tex., pro finished two strokes ahead of Louise Surges of Carrollton, Ga. third was Patty Berg, of Minneapolis with 229.

The coaches think if high school baseball could be conducted during the summer, when school is out, it would be all right. The season is too short as it now stands and there is the handicap of bad weather which prevents baseball being played until deep into the spring.

Short Table
Norris Russell, the Denton amateur golfer, tells this one on Harry Todd, when the Dallas professional was an amateur:

They were playing in tournament at Denver. Russell was preparing to putt when Todd came along, grabbed Russell's putter and said: "I'm going to need it."

"What am I going to do?" Russell asked. "You go to the club house and get another one," Todd replied.

So Todd strode off with the putter, played his match out and won. Russell went to the club house for a putter so he could finish out his match.

The boycott threat was withdrawn after J. Samuel Perlman, publisher of the Racing Form, acting as a volunteer mediator, met with management and representatives of the horse owners. Perlman and Benjamin F. Scores Like Temperature As Golfers Sweat Through Practice Rounds For Open Tourney

By HUGH FULLERTON, JR.
DALLAS — (AP) — The question, "Who's hot?" seems easy to answer since the torrid Texas sun has been sending the temperature into the 90's for the past few days. Yet it became a matter of utmost importance today to the 162 golfers who will start play tomorrow in the 52nd National Open championship.

"It's all good shots," said one of the big question in picking the likely winner is whose game has reached the torrid peak of perfection. "It's all good shots," said one of the big question in picking the likely winner is whose game has reached the torrid peak of perfection. "It's all good shots," said one of the big question in picking the likely winner is whose game has reached the torrid peak of perfection.

The answers today would be divided among Sam Snead, Lloyd Mangrum and Ben Hogan.

Snead Equal Record
Snead equalled the Northwood Course record in practice yesterday with a round of 31-35-64. A couple of hours earlier Mangrum had threatened that record and failed to match it because of a wretched finish after he had played the first 15 holes six strokes under par.

The competitive record of 64 for the par 35 - 35-70 Northwood course is held jointly by Raymond Crawford, the home club pro, and Harry Todd, another Dallas player.

Both Snead and Mangrum were inclined to discount their practice feats. The scores won't count until Thursday, they argued. But they can't discount their consistently good performances leading up to the main event.

In his last six tournaments, Mangrum, the dapper, mustachioed Texan who now registers from Chicago, has won three times, finished second once and said twice. He spread eagled the strong field in the Western Open two weeks ago and was third to Dave Douglas in last week's gaudy Ardmore, Okla., Open.

Snead, since his mid-winter playoff, has been playing some of the most consistent golf of his career, winning the Masters and the Wykagyl Round Robin among others.

The powerful West Virginian's only comment after yesterday's round was, "Law, I might have said tomorrow." But he admitted that a temporary change of putters might have had some effect. He tried a mallet-head putter, borrowed from Jim Ferrer, in place of the familiar brass blade he has been using since 1949. He went back to his old club.

"I was hooking my putts to the left, but practicing with the new putter seems to have helped my stroke," he explained. Mangrum, who needed only to par the last three holes for a 64 yesterday, wound up with a seven on the last hole and a round of 33-35-68. On the final hole he hit the rough, a tree branch and a brook and then three - putted.

Hogan Figures Mangrum As Probable Winner Of Open

By HAROLD V. RATLIFF
DALLAS — (AP) — Ben Hogan, the little man they always worry about down the stretch of any golf tournament, said today he'd like to win the National Open again, but considered himself no better than a 15 to 1 shot to do it.

This despite the fact that he has come up with top money in three of the last four Opens and might have made it four for four had he not sat out one in a hospital.

As the field in the National Open shot final practice rounds, Hogan looked toward tomorrow and the start of the big golf show with a prediction that Lloyd Mangrum, his fellow Texan, was the best bet to take the championship.

"He's playing well, is a good collegian who went to the fifth round of the British Amateur and the final of the French Amateur, flew in from Paris.

United States Golf Association officials also lent a helping hand to the players when they ordered a change in the sixth hole, which had proved bothersome in practice. A tree on the right side of the fairway which interfered with a shot into the bend of the dogleg was ordered removed and the rough cut back a few feet. They also added 18 yards to this hole, making it a 448-yarder and increasing the total length of the course to 6,752 yards.

Ben was surprised to hear it. He didn't know that, he said, and found it quite interesting. Hogan just never had checked up on it.

But he still didn't think he should be the favorite for the championship again. "You're under more pressure this time than ever before," a sports writer commented. "Especially since you'd like to become the only man to win four Opens in four tries."

"Furthermore, we've found that our Dodge 'Job-Rated' truck will haul a full load of sand or gravel out hills that several of our other trucks won't take. Our next truck will be a Dodge."

"Dodge is by far the lowest cost to operate!"

"Dodge is by far the lowest cost to operate!"
"We keep complete individual records of each of our trucks and have found that Dodge is by far the lowest cost to operate. In fact, our Dodge costs us 6 of a cent less per ton-mile to operate than our next closest truck! This difference must be the result of Dodge's many economy features."
"Furthermore, we've found that our Dodge 'Job-Rated' truck will haul a full load of sand or gravel out hills that several of our other trucks won't take. Our next truck will be a Dodge."

A Tribute to Our Merchants

Storekeepers, we think, are entirely too modest. They serve you and your family faithfully every day. Yet how often do you remember their importance in your life? The merchant is a businessman. He must carry a heavy investment. He must own his building or pay rent for it. There are clerks and salespeople to pay. And a constantly-changing display of food or merchandise of some kind. The merchant must always make you think that the customer is always right which isn't always true. So remember the trials and tribulations of your grocer, cleaner, department store merchant, etc. And give them the fairness they deserve! All-Male College Finds Co-Ed Plan A Success, So Far ANNAPOLIS Md. — (AP) — In the easy air of this week's commencement, you'd think womanhood was an established institution around St. John's Colonial campus. But it wasn't always so.

From its founding 235 years ago this Great Books college had been strictly masculine until a year ago. It submitted to various circumstances, and last September the first of 24 feminine voices echoed down its halls.

Despite the fears and mutterings among many beards, both grey and light peach, the college has changed little.

"Admitting women as students is still in the nature of an experiment," explains President Richard D. Weigle, a Yale man. "But it's been so successful this far that there is a frequent tendency to treat them as permanent."

The women have not asked for — nor received — special treatment of any sort. Sarah Covington of Centerville, Md., has for example, a wicked arm and nice drop pitch, so she's the hurler on the class softball team.

"We're no tender violets," says Janet Jenkins of Bethesda, Md. "Boys and girls together, we're all — to cop a term from Aristotle — simple featherless bipeds."

The girls generally agree that with their studies, there isn't much time for romance. Three of them were married before they enrolled, and one is a widow in her 40s. All are stepping from freshman to sophomore class, for St. John's accepts only beginning women students.

During the school year a controversy arose over dormitory regulations. The college had required a two o'clock curfew of all freshmen and did not permit visiting back and forth in dormitory rooms.

The women, made at home above the college dining hall, objected to this as much as the men. The result was a relaxing of the curfew and permitting visiting, as long as at least three persons were in the room.

Academically, the college won't be pinned down on how the women stack up.

"It's hard to tell yet," says Dean Jascha Klein. "This may be a better — than — average group. In any case, some are bright, some are dumb, just like all human beings."

The gals themselves wouldn't have it any other way.

"At least a third of us had worked or gone to another college first," adds Miss Jenkins, a former Swarthmore girl. "We certainly prefer this approach. Formerly the classroom emphasis was all on memory and competition. You took in, parrot — fashion, what the professor said. You fed it back to him in the exam."

"I simply think cooperation works out better. When other people share ideas with you, you get more ideas of your own."

The St. John's curriculum is based on the study of what it considers the great books of all time. They deal mainly with language, mathematics and science, with a dash of the arts. Discussion plays a major part in the system.

Government Ends Exports Of Steel

WASHINGTON — (AP) — The government has cut off all exports of steel by dealers for civilian use abroad.

The embargo affects even steel shipments for which export licenses have been issued, if the metal is destined for consumer goods use. The action was taken by the Commerce Department.

The order does not apply to exports to Canada, for which export licenses are not required.

Red USO: All Heroes—But There Is No Betty Grable

By NEA Foreign Service

SEOUL, Korea — (NEA) — Do the Chinese Communists ever take a break in Korea to relax and enjoy some entertainment the way the UN forces do?

Most certainly, according to a story in the Communist-controlled Peiping newspaper, "Ta Kung Pao," a copy of which turned up in Seoul. Judging by the description of the "entertainment," however, it's unlikely that the Chinese Reds feel the same way about it as our own GIs feel about USO-Camp Shows.

The idea behind the USO shows, which have been back in operation for more than a year in Korea and other bases throughout the world where Allied troops are stationed, is to try to give our fighting men a reminder of "back home." Singers, dancers and comedians put on the same kind of performances they do on American stages.

But for the Reds, it's strictly propaganda. Their entertainers (who actually are attached to military groups) dramatize heroic deeds. And the same entertainer who's ready with a song or story that has a "message" must be ready to shoulder a gun or carry ammo during battle.

"If a man is on duty and cannot get away, an entertainer may crawl to his position, crouch behind him and softly sing or tell a story," the Peiping newspaper reports. You can figure out for yourself how an American GI, sweating it out in his foxhole in Korea, would react to a performance of line-dance heroics.

Movies are shown to the Chinese Red armies in rear areas. Most of the films glorify Communist heroism; particularly in guerrilla warfare.

Love stories are taboo. And there isn't a Betty Grable in the lot.

Sisters Post Signs Protesting Pipeline

PITTSBURGH — (AP) — Two sisters are relying on roadside advertising to tell the world they don't want a Tuscarora Oil Co. pipeline on their family farm.

The sisters, Mrs. Mary H. Gerken and Miss Margaret L. Hunter of nearby Hampton township, posted 22 signs along the highway giving their opinion of Tuscarora and its parent firm, Standard Oil of New Jersey.

Samples: "I regret that I have but one farm to give to the Standard Oil Company of New Jersey." "Sing a song of Standard, pocketful of dough, 'Tuscarora pipelines don't care where they go.'"

Last month the sisters climbed in a jeep and barred the road to construction workers seeking to lay the pipeline. The women gave up after Tuscarora posted an unlimited bond in common pleas court guaranteeing a future settlement.

Independent Leases Million Acres In Washington, Oregon

MIDLAND — (AP) — A Midland independent oil operator says he has leased more than a million acres in Southeastern Washington state and Eastern Oregon for oil and gas exploration.

J. D. Bodkins said he made the leases on his own account and that no oil companies are involved. He said he has completed his leasing program and now is in the process of checking titles on the approximately 1,000 separate leases involved.

The Texan said he took ten-year commercial oil and gas leases at ten cents per acre annual rental. The leases are scattered in the Washington Counties of Douglas, Grant, Lincoln, Adams, Franklin, Whitman and Walla Walla and Oregon counties of Baker, Wheeler, Gilliam, Harney, Lake, Crook and Deschutes.

Bodkins said he acquired the leases mainly because the areas are in geologic sedimentary basins, and also on the basis of aerial magneto-meter surveys. "I am basin conscious, I guess," declared Bodkins, referring to the rich Permian and Midland Basins of West Texas.

He said he has no immediate plans for drilling wildcat tests on the leases but that seismic surveys will be made when title checking is complete and exploration will depend on results of those surveys.

Jordan's Queen Flees Mentally Ailing King
LAUSANNE, Switzerland — (AP) — Queen Zeline of Jordan and her son 17-year-old Crown Prince Hussein, were reported today in hiding somewhere in Switzerland from her husband, mentally ailing King Talal.

A senior Lausanne police official said the Queen left her hotel in haste Friday, just a day before arrival of her husband from Paris.

"We know where she has gone," the official added, "but it would be against Switzerland's national interest to say any more."
