Washington Sky Filled With Flying Objects

'Saucer' Experts To Study Sightings

WASHINGTON (AP) — Radar showed the air over the Nation's Capital was full of flying objects, but an airliner directed to one of the radar sightings could not find a thing.

The Civil Aeronautics Administration radar at Washington National Airport, which reported scores of sightings from 1:30 to 5 a. m., refrained from transmitting its findings to the Air Force at nearby Andrews Field because "no visual sightings were made."

The Air Force said its Andrews Field radar showed nothing, and its 24-plane jet-interceptor patrol remained on the ground because it was not notified of the National Airport sightings.

Meanwhile, the Air Force announced it had brought some of its "flying saucer" experts from Wright-Patterson Field, Dayton, O., for a news conference at 3 p. m.

It indicated they had nothing new to report but would answer questions.

Use New Camera

At the same time, the Air Research and Development Command is continuing its upper air research studies with a new type camera used in determining the source of light from luminous bodies. Designed to be particularly useful in solving the saucer mystery, the camera breaks light into the spectrum to indicate the chemical composition of the light source. It is similar to photographic devices which chemists use for similar purposes.

A CAA spokesman said the latest sightings showed as many as 12 unidentified objects on the radar screen at one time.

They appeared to be traveling from 90 to 120 miles an hour in a 15-mile-long area between Andrews Field and Herndon, Va. Crew News Nothing

They were moving from the northwest to the southeast, roughly at an angle of 60 degrees from the prevailing wind.

About 3 a. m., an Eastern Airlines southbound flight was directed into the area but its crew saw nothing in the sky.

The attitude of the sightings was not determined because the radar screen at National does not give an altitude indication.

Second Quake Series Shakes Up California

BAKERSFIELD, Calif. (AP)

Two sharp earthquake jolts hit Bakersfield early today, starting two fires and sending frightened residents into the streets as windows broke and bricks fell from previously damaged buildings.

The new jolts at 12:05 a. m. (PDT) and 1:32 a. m., were felt throughout Southern California, including the Los Angeles area, but were strongest in Bakersfield.

A number of patients were evacuated from the county hospital here. One six-room house was badly damaged when a gas line to a water heater was broken by the tremor, the county fire department reported. A portion of the roof of a machine shop collapsed.

Sheriff's Sgt. Carl L. Weber said he believed the shock was as intense but shorter in duration as the July 21st earthquake that left a toll of 13 dead, 12 of them in Kern County.

Shortly after the first tremor residents reported they heard a loud explosion. However, sheriff's men believe the explosion of a house probably was from the use of earthquake rather than an explosion.

In downtown Bakersfield some windows were broken and bricks Brown, chairman, C.F. Buckler, vice chairman, and E. O. (Red) Weigert, secretary.

A contract for a control switch-box at the high school football field was awarded to Electric Supply Co., 319 W. Foster. Its bid was $625.

Today's quakes were not as widespread as the original tremor. Although felt in the Los Angeles area there were no reports of tremors in the San Francisco area to the north or San Diego at the southern end of the state. The July 21st tremor was felt from San Francisco to the Mexican border.

Iranians Level Bitter Attacks On Americans

TEHRAN, Iran (AP) — Bitter attacks on the United States highlighted a debate today in which the Iranian Parliament overwhelmingly approved Premier Mohammed Mossadegh's program for economic and social reforms to head off national bankruptcy.

The seriousness of the anti-American demonstration was underscored when Deputy Speaker Ghanat-Abadi demanded the ouster of all Americans from the country. Ghanat-Abadi is the right-hand man of Ayatullah Seyyed Kashan, Iran's leading religious figure and a close supporter of Mossadegh.

Anti-U.S. feeling has been rife here since the July 21 riots which ousted ex-Premier Ahmed Qavam, but this was the first such outburst in parliament.

The demonstration began when a deputy, interrupting his speech on the new government program, said:

"We don't need the American military missions. They only bring us headaches. I demand that they be kicked out starting tomorrow."

"They must go," shouted another deputy. "They must go."

Then Ghanat-Abadi leaped to his feet, screaming: "Not only them but every American in every office must go."

Contracts for the American Military Missions expire in October and it is an open secret that American officials are worried that they will not be extended if the current wave of anti-American feeling retains its strength.

School Board Is Petitioned

Three groups of interested citizens today were considering action taken at a meeting Monday of the Pampa School Board.

A teachers' group, led by Miss Melbie Byrd Kichey, discussed the possibility of a change in the teacher hospitalization plan. It was taken under advisement by the board.

A delegation of a dozen Pampans from the vicinity of the site of the new school came to ask about the possibility of extending the corporate limits of the city near the school. It will be discussed further at the board's next meeting, Aug. 11.

A group from the committee for the 50th anniversary celebration of Gray County, Oct. 12-14, made a request for the use of school facilities during the occasion, particularly the field house and football stands at the Pampa High School. Present were M.K. Brown, chairman, C.F. Buckler, vice chairman, and E. O. (Red) Weigert, secretary.

B. R. Cantrell, architect of a new school, talked over with board members some of the problems facing construction.

A contract for a control switch-box at the high school football field was awarded to Electric Supply Co., 319 W. Foster. Its bid was $625.

Rites Slated For Father Of Pampans

Funeral services for Cole Johnson, father of Mrs. A. C. Troop, 923 Rham, are to be held Wednesday at 2 p. m. in the First Methodist Church, Admore, Okla.

Mr. Johnson, a pioneer rancher and stockman of Oklahoma, died Monday at the age of 78 after a long illness. He is survived by his wife, three daughters, five sons, grandchildren and great-grandchildren.

Mr. and Mrs. Troop are in Ardmore for the funeral. Mr. and Mrs. Bob Troop, grandson and granddaughter-in-law of Mr. Johnson, are also to be there, in service in Guam.

First Signs Of Rodeo Going Up

Last-minute preparations for the Top of Texas Rodeo in Pampa August 5-9 include a display of rodeo decorations going up on main street, the continuance of reserved seat ticket sales and a steady flow of rodeo entries.

Reserved seats, on sale daily at rodeo headquarters in the city hall, are going well, according to John Pitts, ticket chairman, but plenty are still available.

Seats may be reserved for any one or all nights of the regular rodeo performances, Wednesday through Saturday, at 50 cents each. General admission tickets are sold in addition to this.

Eight Injured... Tension Eases On Picket Line

TERRE HAUTE, Ind. (AP) — Tension eased a little on the Allis-Chalmers picket line today as two rival unions backed their forces and conferred with the state labor commissioner.

Eight men were injured, one critically, as AFL men broke a cracked CIO picket line at the strikebound plant Monday.

Rivals Confer
Commissioner Thomas R. Hutson conferred separately with the rival union leaders Monday night and said the AFL men had agreed not to try to go through today. He said the conferences would continue.

John Martin of Paris, Ill., an AFL member, remained in strike condition with a lump puncture.

The jurisdictional dispute involves the A.F. of Laborers and the CIO - United Auto Workers. The UAW has been on strike for higher wages and a union shop since May 7.

After police quelled the fighting, Mayor Ralph Tucker asked Allis-Chalmers officials to close the plant. Martin L. Carson, general superintendent, said the plant is making important defense materials and public officials should protect the rights of workers who want to work.

Carson said public officials had "ample opportunity" to prevent disorder because the AFL group last week had announced its plans to go through the CIO picket line.

Services Today For Drowning Victim

McLEAN (Special) — Funeral services for Mrs. James Thorman, 22, who drowned Saturday in a lake near Fort Worth, was to be held at 4 p. m. today in the First Baptist Church, McLean.

Rev. Buel Wells, pastor, was to officiate.

Burial in Hillcrest Cemetery, McLean, was to follow the services.

Mrs. Thorman's body was found in the lake Monday about noon. She had been swept from a small fishing boat by the backwash wave of a large sea boat.

Mrs. Thorman is the former Miss Faith Hancock of McLean. She would have been 23 her next birthday. She had been married since 1949 and lived in Fort Worth at the time of her death.

Palbearers for the funeral will be Jack Brooks and Bob McManis; Phillip Lissman, Berger, Leslie Darsey, Pampa; Gilbert Nolan, Shamrock, and J.T. Carlin, Glendendon.

Politics Not Over For Gray County

Politics isn't over yet for Gray County voters although it is over for many of the candidates.

Two important dates remain for Democrats — the county convention Saturday and the second primary — runoff — to be held in August.

For Pampa there will be two run-off elections, county judge and county commissioner. The same is true for McLean, but not for Precinct 3 where there will be only the county judge race to vote on.

Precinct 1 will have judge's race and a run-off for justice of the peace.

While it was the end of the trail for most of the candidates, Saturday's balloting made Judge Bruce Parker and Atty. Gen. Maguire work another month at trying to influence voters. Maguire is out in front so far as since the conservatives grabbed control of the precincts.

There, the delegates to the state convention on Sept. 9, in Amarillo will be chosen and other resolutions pertaining to party County Commissioner J. W. (Bill) Graham eased by his near-

Waters Is Proved Strongest Vote-Getter In County Races

Unofficial returns of Saturdays Democratic primary stood practically the same through today's official canvass of the vote as County Atty. Bill Waters proved to be the strongest vote-getter of them all.

Waters, unopposed, polled 4,001 to top the list.

An additional runoff election developed out of a write-in vote for Democratic precinct chairman in Precinct 3 where five names were written in. The runoff will be between Jim McCracken, who polled three write-ins and F.D. Ledwick, who polled two. The other three write-in candidates, E. G. Nelson, B. F. Fields, and Benton Morrison, each polled one vote.

The races for county judge and county commissioner from Precincts 2 and 4 remained the same, J. B. Maguire high with 1,745 and Judge Bruce Parker trailing by 125 votes with 1,610.

County Commissioner Bill Graham led the pack of commissioner hopefuls by five votes over his nearest appointment, W. E. Jarvis. The vote stood at 964 for Graham to 959 for Jarvis.

Glenn Jolly and O. L. Tibbetts will be in the runoff for commissioner from Precinct 4, McLean. Tibbetts was high man with 287 to Jolly's 260.

Votes polled by unopposed county-wide and district-wide candidates stood at:

representative in Congress, Walter Rogers, 3,830; District Attorney, Tom Braly, 3,914 (with one write-in vote for Ross Buzzard and one for J. E. Thompson); representative in the State

South Still In Doubt On Stevenson

ATLANTA (AP) — Southern Democrats who refused to pledge loyalty to the party at the Chicago convention, claimed today there was still considerable uncertainty in the South about Gov. Adlai Stevenson of Illinois, the Democratic nominee.

South Carolina, Virginia and Louisiana delegations declined to sign the loyalty pledge.

South Carolina Democrats will decide next month whether they will go along with the party in the November election. The Democratic state convention will be reconvened Aug. 6 at the urging of Gov. James E. Byrnes.

Byrnes has declined comment on the national convention's presidential ticket. He said it still is his opinion that it is up to the convention to decide whether South Carolina Democrats should support the nominees.

William M. Tuck, Virginia Democratic chairman, took the position the Virginia delegation's refusal to sign the loyalty pledge at Chicago, released the state convention from any commitment to support either platform or ticket. The Virginia convention of July 17 can be reconvened by the state committee, if leaders so desire.

Results as carried by The Pampa Daily News on Sunday in all of the state races remained virtually the same as reported with the only changes being one or two votes difference for several candidates.

Governor Shivers, Lt. Gov. Ben Ramsey sailed back into office with flying colors; Atty. Gen. Price Daniel walked away with the senatorial race while Martin Dies held a slim lead over John Lee Smith in the seven-man congressman-at-large race. Dies polled 1,696 to Smith's 1,550.

So far as Gray County is concerned the runoff election ballot will carry three state and district races — congressman-at-large, Dies vs. Smith; associate justice of Supreme Court, Spurgen Bell vs. Frank Culver, associate justice, court of civil appeals, E. O. Northcutt vs. Joe Moss. Only one county race will go into the runoff — county judge with Parker running against Maguire, the two commissioner races and one justice of the peace race in Precinct 1 record of 1,205,257 cast in the 1948 primary.

Returns Give Dies Hope For Majority

By The Associated Press
New vote figures Tuesday still kept alive Martin Dies' hopes of returning to Congress without a runoff campaign.

They also definitely established that the vote in last Saturday's Texas Democratic primary election set a record.

The 12:30 p. m. report of the Texas Election Bureau showed Dies lacked only 1,609 votes of a majority in the seven-man field for congressman-at-large.

This was on the basis of vote figures from 235 of the state's 254 counties. The unofficial count was complete in 200 counties.

Gunman Tricks Banker In Holdup; Makes Escape By Bus

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — Bank manager Walter Blomberg said yesterday he handed over $200,000 in small bills to a gunman and accompanied him in his escape in a public bus because the robber had convinced him his wife was held as a hostage.

Blomberg, 48, manager of the American Trust Company branch at 16th and Valencia, did not sound an alarm until a half hour after the banail left him in downtown San Francisco.

Mrs. Blomberg was found safe at home.

Hands A Note
The robber appeared at Blomberg's desk at 3 p. m. He handed the bank manager a note and showed a gun beneath his coat. The note said two confederates were in the bank and a third would suffer harm if he did not hand over $200,000.

The bank manager handed over the money. The robber ordered him to accompany him out of the bank and then said loudly: "Come on, I'll buy you a cup of coffee."

Majority rule is right, Congressman Walter Rogers told the Pampa Junior Chamber of Commerce today, but without regulations, rules and laws it is "mob rule."

Rogers was quoting a North Carolina delegate at the recent Democratic National Convention. And Rogers had agreed when the Southerner went on to say that the South does not argue about majority rule as such, unless it feels that it results in violating the U. S. Constitution.

"The days of bombastic political oratory are over," Rogers continued, as a result of the "gray matter created by God for use by the people, especially in the United States of America."

The congressman, an ex-member of the Jaycees, maintained that the convention from which he has just returned was one of "individual delegates," as evidenced by the continual scraps within delegations.

Rogers Says Majority Without Laws, Regulations Is Mob Rule

Prior to Rogers' remarks, the meeting handled several matters of routine business.

Two members of the Top of Texas Rodeo Association were guests at the luncheon and discussed some of the attractions at this year's jamboree. They were H.L. Ledrick, vice president, and E. O. (Red) Wedgworth, secretary.

Also guests of the Jaycees were Tommy Cox and Buster Carter, two lads who are being sponsored by the club at the Texas Junior Golf Tournament, Denton, Aug. 1-2.

Opening the meeting were some color movies taken during the running of the Pampa Soap Box Derby, July 13.

State Gets No Relief Saving Time From Polio Threat And Material Lowers Cost

By The Associated Press
Houston had its darkest day of the ravaging polio epidemic Monday.

Other Texas cities found no encouragement in their bitter fight against the dread disease.

A total of 27 new polio cases from the City of Houston, Harris County and from out of the county set a new daily record for Houston hospitals. The 15 cases from the city alone was another daily record. A third record was the combined total of 21 new cases and three deaths during the week end.

The Monday figures made a total of 298 cases of polio treated in Houston this year compared to only 80 cases for the same time last year.

Restricts Admissions
In Dallas, Parkland Hospital no longer is accepting a patient accepting polio patients from outside of Dallas County.

"We do not want to alarm the public," said Al Scheidt, Parkland administrator. "But we believe that we must get out an appeal based on the facts."

The facts cited included:

1. Admissions during the past seven days 25 cases were higher than predicted.
2. Admissions for the year equal the corresponding period in 1950, the previous high.
3. The percentage of bulbar and other difficult polio cases is higher than the previous three years.

Scheidt also said that the hospital was faced with a shortage of professionally trained nurses and nursing assistants.

Six new polio cases were reported in Dallas Monday, two from inside the city.

Footballer Dies
In Abilene, Don Windsor, 36, a football player for Stanton High School last year, died of polio Sunday. He entered the polio ward July 15.

Funeral services for Windsor were scheduled Tuesday at 2 p. m. in Stanton. Burial will be in Big Spring.

Two new cases were hospitalized in Waco.

Four new cases were reported in Wichita Falls, one of them died Sunday. Mrs. W. L. Jones, who was hospitalized for polio Sunday, was hospitalized for polio Sunday.

Other three cases were children.

If You Think It's Hot Here, Steer Clear Of Cow Creek

By The Associated Press
If this summer's steam-bath weather station 12 feet below sea level, here's a variation travel tip.

Steer clear of Cow Creek, in Death Valley, Calif. It's the nation's hottest spot.

Nobody lives at Cow Creek, a weather station 12 feet below sea level. But at Greenland Ranch in the heart of Death Valley, only 20 miles away, a nine-man crew of Pacific Coast Borax Company employees work the year round.

Charles A. Schell, crew superintendent recalls that last summer's high was only 126 degrees. He remembers it hit 122 in 1931.

Cow Creek's average daytime high in July was 117 degrees. It cooled off to an average of 89 at night and the overall average for the month was 103.5. The readings are taken by National Park rangers who come down weekly from the Coast Range. The course gets little, if any, rain, between May 1 and Oct. 15.

Low Humidity
Low humidity, usually less than 10 per cent, makes the heat bearable on the California-Nevada-Arizona desert. Virtually every business building, store, home and house trailer has an air conditioning system or unit of some sort. Some thoughtful persons even install small units for their dogs, cats and chickens.

White Kitchen Is Out Of Date

The all-white kitchen is as out-of-date today as the foot-long hotdog. Like the rest of the house, the kitchen must be bright, gay and colorful. Manufacturers anticipated the trend and cabinets, stoves, sinks and other new equipment are being shown in a rainbow of colors.

The fact that this equipment in color usually costs more than the stark white should be no deterrent to the home-maker who wants to keep her house from being "dated." A can or two of paint will make an entirely new room of the kitchen. The transformation can be completed within a few hours, now that any one of 1,322 shades is obtainable in Colorizer paints. With this enormous range of colors it is possible to match any color exactly; or find the exact tint needed to best contrast or harmonize with other colors, such as woodwork, wallpaper or curtain fabrics.

If the kitchen is sunny, use pastel tones of green or blue on the walls, cabinets and woodwork. The ceiling may be white. To break the solid color on cabinet doors, paint panels, molding or doorpulls in a bright contrasting color.

Italy Touches Off Hydrogen Explosion

ROME (AP)—The Italian Defense Ministry announced last night that an explosion designed to test a hydrogen bomb had failed in the reaction which could have touched off in this country.

The announcement made it clear, however, that the experiment involved only a "very small amount of hydrogen."

Atomic scientists in New York said the Italian explosion obviously was aimed at achieving the "breakthrough" but the value of the experiment apparently is not known yet even in Italy.

Defense Minister Rinaldo Ossola said results of the experiment could not be determined until a scientific examination had been made.

Dollar Going Down On Mexico's Market

MEXICO CITY (AP)—For the second time within a week the government has reduced its buying price for dollars.

Yesterday the Banco de Mexico cut the price it will pay for dollar checks from 8.63 to 8.50 pesos. Last week the price was cut from 8.64 to 8.63.

There was no official statement on the change. The first cut in the buying rate was supposedly to convince Mexicans their peso would not be devalued. It also caused a rush by Mexicans to convert dollar holdings into pesos.

Mexico is short of dollars now for spending abroad. There have been reports that Mexico cancelled some purchases of railroad equipment because of lack of dollars.

Three Are Fined In Justice Court

Three cases have been disposed of in justice of the peace court two others are on the docket.

D. L. Lester, Wheeler, was assessed a fine of $19 on a charge of speeding. He had been picked up Feb. 9, but he had been in California since that time.

J. L. Kaminair, Berger, was fined $19 on a charge of vagrancy. He had been picked up by the sheriff's office in The Flats.

Willie Walker, 27, of Berger, paid a fine of $14 for driving a truck not equipped with a stop-light.

Filed today were two cases in which each person was charged with driving a motor vehicle without a Texas operator's license. They are Paul Edward Gercken, 32, of the Gilking Apts., and Homer E. Deck, 28, of 1340 Garland.

Louisiana Committee To Decide On Ticket

BATON ROUGE, La. (AP)—Gov. Robert Kennon said the Democratic State Central Committee will decide whether Louisiana will support the Stevenson-Sparkman presidential ticket.

He added there was considerable uncertainty in the South about Gov. Adlai Stevenson of Illinois, the Democratic nominee, and his running mate, Sen. John Sparkman of Alabama.

Said Kennon, who led the fight of his 24-member delegation against "loyalty pledges" at the Democratic convention last week: "The decision should be decided by the party as a whole. The people will make their wishes known to the 100-member central committee. I feel it is a matter for the committee to decide."

Damage $125

City police reported today a $125 automobile accident in the back of S. Cuyler, just north of Atchison.

A car driven by J. C. Ray Jones, 28, of 124 Garland and one operated by Wheeler Vernon Urban, 35, of Berger, were both going south on Cuyler about 12:45 p. m. Monday when the mishap occurred, investigators said.

Jones had stopped at a red light according to police, when the cars collided. There were no casualties and no arrests.

Police Seek Bicycle

City police today are looking for a stolen blue-and-green bicycle, some stolen fender parts and a stolen license plate.

All have been taken in the past several days.

Young Pampans Fined

Two young Pampans, Bobby Rogers and C. L. Farmer, have been fined $50 and costs in county court on charges of reckless driving.

Both pleaded guilty.

One In Hospital... 12 Involved In Accidents

Twelve persons were involved in three automobile accidents over the week end in the Pampa area, but only one of them was hospitalized.

Suffering today from multiple contusions and abrasions and a fractured collar bone is Isaac L. Stephenson, 64 of Darrouzett, Tex., whose pickup flipped over into a ditch Sunday at 1:25 p.m. on Hwy. 79, 7.2 miles south of Pampa.

Breaks Loose

The pickup, which was towing an Army surplus truck, was traveling north toward Pampa. When it started to go down the hill near Red River bridge, it broke loose from the truck which was being steered by John W. McGee, 19, of Darrouzett. The two vehicles skidded across the east shoulder of the highway and both turned over about one and a half times, ending up facing south, about 28 yards from the pavement. Asleep in the pickup was Tom McGee, 13.

Damages have been estimated by Highway Patrol at $700-$800 for the pickup and $50 for the towed truck. The elder McGee was given first aid at the hospital. Stephenson is expected to be released from the hospital in a few days.

Inside the Pampa city limits, a small $50 accident was reported. Thomas Eugene Hudgins, 20, of the Amarillo Air Force Base, was driving north on S. Hobart about 10:15 Saturday, when he was involved in a collision with Thomas John Burns, 23, of Phillips, who had stopped and was backing into a parking space.

No injuries

The right front fender of Hudgins' car and the left fender and door of Burns' car were damaged. But there were no injuries.

Third car accident of the week end happened at Williston and Andrew, White Deer.

A car driven by Mrs. Nathan Edwards, 27, was going east on Andrew when it was involved in a collision with an automobile

IT'S YOUR DEAL Know When To Take Discards

By OSWALD JACOBY

"Are you ever allowed to count the cards in the discard pile?" asks a Cincinnati fan. "If not, how do you keep track of the number of cards in that pile. It seems to me that there are times when your best play depends on how many discards you can pick up."

The answer is that you are allowed to count the cards in the discard pile, but this doesn't seem to bother most Canasta players.

Strip-Tease Theater Manager Finds Audience Is Too Fickle

By FRED SALTO

TOKYO (AP) — "They're as fickle as feathers in a high wind," the strip show director sighed.

He wasn't talking about his lovely ladies, but about the unpredictable Japanese who made the strip teases a national fad after the American occupation deserted it for a thing called "swords - woman dramas" and now are swinging back to a modified strip show.

Something New

Ken Murali, 25-year-old director of the "France Za" is Japanese for theater, says the old form of the American strip tease, hit its peak in 1948. It was something new in kimono-clad Japan.

Japanese men and plenty of women, too flocked to the huge burlesque houses throughout Japan to watch in deadpan fascination as the girls "look it off."

But, Murali said, the show lost its popularity after reaching a logical conclusion and losing its power to shock.

Then came the rise of the swordswoman drama. This was a Japanese development that flattered Japanese martial spirit.

A beautiful feudal maiden, beset by thugs and bullies, would bear incredible mistortunes with the patience of Gautama Buddha.

Finally, when pushed too far, she would snatch up a razor sharp samurai sword and cut down her tormentors like a field of ripe rye.

In the later years of the occupation, this probably flattered Japanese pride, Murali said. When Japan became independent April 28, audiences suddenly lost interest.

Four months ago five theaters in Asakusa — Tokyo's combination Coney Island, Broadway and Harlem — were showing swordswomen. Now they've all gone back to the strip show — the new form, that is.

Instead of acres of sun-tanned Japanese skin, the shows now are more like farces played by girls wearing the least law allows. The law around here, while liberal, does insist that the girls wear SOMETHING.

He said one of his competitors tried to appeal to what he called "the Peeping Tom" instinct. He ripped out clusters of seats here and there in the theater and installed tiled Japanese bathtub — each tub complete with a pretty, g-stringed Japanese girl already in hot water.

A customer was urged to volunteer to scrub the lady's back.

"One of the cleanest shows that place ever had," Murali declared.

"But the audience got tired of it just the same and pretty soon the director had empty seats again. He got desperate and had the girls take off the G-strings just before they hopped into the tub."

That brought the customers, all right, but it also brought the police.

Despite the seemingly light work, it's a hard life for the striptease girl in Japan. Instead of presenting a single star, the management features bare beauty by the dozen.

One theater advertises a full 100 stars — an impressive sight, but a condition spreading the wages thinner than a teaser's veil. The average stripper gets 15,000 yen a month. That's about $40.

That isn't enough to keep a single woman in Tokyo. Many single strippers trudge off to work afterwards at extra jobs in cabarets and photo studios.

Out-Of-Town Cars Involved In Accident

One man has been fined on a charge of driving while under the influence of intoxicating liquor as the result of an automobile accident involving two out-of-town cars.

Paul Phillips Pierce, 42, of Holdenville, Okla., has pleaded guilty in county court to the charge and has been fined $100 and costs.

Driving a '41 coupe, Pierce was involved in an accident with a 52 sedan operated by Bobby Frank Berry, 18, of Estelino, Texas. It happened about 10:30 p.m. Friday at S. Cuyler and Tyn.

According to city police, both cars were headed north on S. Cuyler. Berry had stopped at a red light when Pierce plowed into him from behind. Pierce is understood to have left the scene of the accident and run down by Berry in the 200 - block of E. Kingsmill.

Calamity Pallbearer Strictly By Accident

RAPID CITY, S.D. (AP) — Black Hills historians for years have differed on basic facts in the life of "Calamity Jane," frontier gun - moll and close friend of "Wild Bill" Hickock.

At least one disputed point appeared to be cleared up recently. A Deadwood, S. D. citizen, George Leeman, claimed to be the sixth pallbearer at "Calamity Jane's" funeral.

"I was standing in front of the church," Leeman recalled.

"and the boys were taking 'Calamity' out and there were only five of them. One pallbearer, I think it was F. X. Smith, was sick."

"George Hopkins, he was one of the pallbearers, he said. 'Well, there's George, he's an old-timer and he knew Calamity,' so they asked me to step in. And that way, sort of by accident, I was a pallbearer at 'Calamity Jane's' funeral."

"But I never got my name in the newspaper."

South Of The Border— Hank Reports Mexicans Utter The Word 'Pronto' With Yawn

By HENRY McLEMORE
NUEVA LAREDO, Mexico — A few minutes ago it was hustle, bustle, scurry and hurry. Now it's siesta, fiesta, and still more siesta.

Nueva Laredo is so close to plain, old Laredo that even a Sally league outfielder with a sore arm could throw a ball across the Rio Grande and hit the mayor's house.

You don't have to be a particularly sensitive fellow to feel the slowing down of the tempo once you are half-way across the International Bridge. On the United States side of the boundary line moves with the speed of a frisky pogo stick.

Restaurants and cafes serve you food so fast your tomato juice becomes blurred with your desert. Drive into a filling station and energetic young men pounce upon your car as if their lives depended upon servicing it in nothing flat. One takes the windshield, another assumes the responsibility of filling the tank, and others dart about like swallows doing something or other.

I doubt if there are seven pouncing young men in Mexico. Drive into a filling station here and you are lucky if you don't have to wake up the proprietor.

I never have understood why the Mexicans have the word "pronto" in their language. It must be purely for show. Even so, they always say "pronto" with a yawn.

Mexicans seem to work on the philosophy (and who knows but what it's a wise one) that today may be their very last one on earth and how foolish it would be to rush it along.

Thank goodness I'm adaptable. Accustomed as I am to working feverishly every second of the day, and although my family crest is emblazoned with two jet planes, three Olympic sprinters, a ring-tailed deer in full flight, a fall-

No Age Limit For Fliers, Says Korean Ace

By WILLIAM G. SMOCK
OHIO CITY, Pa. (AP)—"There's no age limit for pilots," says graying Frank Gabreski, who at 33 is America's leading active air ace.

On the rolls of the Air Force he's Col. Francis S. Gabreski. But when he walks downtown here in his home town he's hailed everywhere as Frank or "Gabby."

Hero Welcome
Gabreski shot down 28 German planes over Europe and destroyed three more on the ground. In Korea he shot down six MIGs and shared credit for another.

Rotated home after 100 combat missions in Korea, Gabreski waded through the town's big hero welcoming festivities with habitual easy grace. Then he settled back to relax.

"I never thought too much of that World War II belief that youngsters of 19 or so make the best fliers because of better coordination and so on," he said in an interview, adding:

"It's true they can take more physically but the older man has a better backlog of experience which more than offsets the young pilot's advantages.

No Age Limit
"I think age limitations exist only in the mind. If you have a strong desire to fly and aren't handicapped—say, by failing eyesight—I don't believe there is any age limit."

Gabreski just wagged his head when asked if he thought Russians are piloting the MIGs over Korea.

"There's just no way to tell," he said. "We've never captured one of 'em and we never saw a dead one."

He expressed surprise at reports the MIG is superior to the U. S. Sabre jet.

"The MIG is not especially superior," he declared. "It is very good at its specific job—intercepting bombers—but I wouldn't say it is better than our ships. Ours should have cannons like theirs, though."

REFUELING BY "PROBE AND DROQUE"—In this artist's conception of in-flight refueling, two Navy jet fighters are about to make contact with a flying-boat tanker. The probe—or nose point—of the fighter enters the drogue—or fuel cup—of the tanker, which drags the two lightweight hose lines from its wing-tips. A fuel-tight connection is made and the tanker crew services the fighters by remote control.

When I work up I saw a sign nearly a month old, welcoming the Lions bound for the International Convention in Mexico City, and urging them to ask for a free Coke on the house. I was told by an attendant that the convention had been over long ago. I explained that I was a late Lion. With the courtesy and friendliness that is as much apart of this country as its scenery and chili peppers, the attendant smilingly gave me a free soft drink.

I'll bet you those "Welcome Lions" signs will be up when their next convention is held in Mexico. And why not? With their gay colors they are very decorative and to make them down would interrupt a peaceful day for someone.

Going through Mexican customs is restful and simple. The officers do not suspect tourists of being brigands, as so many customs officers do. Yawn word is about all they want—before they show you the quickest way to the Pan American Highway and wish you a happy time.

The Regulars Are Confused

By DAVE CHEAVENS
AUSTIN (AP)—Some Texas "Regulars" Democrats seem confused at this point on how far they should go — if at all — in boosting the national party's ticket of Adlai Stevenson and John Sparkman.

This uncertainty was evident in reports received from precinct conventions over the state Saturday.

Clear Up Saturday
It ought to be cleared up considerably before next Saturday, when the county conventions will be held. By then, Shivers has no doubt will have passed the word along on what he wants done.

A coolness approaching the cold shoulder toward the national ticket was expressed by many members of the Shivers delegation returning from Chicago. Final selection of Stevenson and Sparkman came so late in the week that many local Shivers leaders either hadn't figured out or been tipped off on what to do.

Shivers himself was non-committal. He said he thought the Illinois governor would make a strong candidate. Shivers also said he would abide by his promise to see to it the Stevenson-Sparkman combination would get no ticket in November.

Report Expected
All along the Texas governor has said he would come back from Chicago and report to the homefolks. That report is expected about midweek. It should clarify things considerably before the county conventions.

The anti-Shivers "Loyalist" organization was already at work beating the drums for Stevenson and Sparkman. Maury Maverick started the ball rolling when the first Stevenson for President Clubs at San Antonio. Plans were to extend this all over the state.

Some Praise Party
Some Shivers precinct conventions adopted resolutions praising the national party's ticket, others laid such resolutions on the table. Precincts controlled by Loyalists approved pro-Stevenson statements.

Shivers headquarters here was sure of one thing: The governor controlled in the majority of precincts Saturday and will have majorities in most county conventions. That should give the regulars a firm hand on the wheel at the state convention in September.

The ultra-conservative wing of the Shivers organization and of the delegation at Chicago was most unhappy over Stevenson's nomination. They look on him as just another new dealer.

Sticks To Russell
The delegation itself stuck with Richard Russell on all three ballots, also indicating outright displeasure with Stevenson.

Shivers stopped here briefly Saturday without saying anything to clarify his view of Stevenson. He said he would be back in his office about midweek, and it was expected a statement would be forthcoming.

Where Communists have suffered damaging blows recently from Allied fleets of planes is shown on map above. Until June 23, when 500 UN planes kayod five power plants, the Allies had spared Red hydroelectric plants from air assaults in an effort to show the Chinese no invasion of their territory was threatened.

One other thing was sure: over Ralph Yarborough. The Loyalists element had gone all-out in support of Yarborough. Unity Has Goal Yarborough, in conceding Shivers' victory, issued a statement saying he belonged to no faction or clique of Texas Democrats. He said his goal was to unite all factions, and that he hoped to see the day when all factionalism would be laid aside. Shivers had called Yarborough the candidate of his Loyalist opponents. While Shivers received a decisive majority in defeating Yarborough, the strong party-line Democrats who are fighting him haven't given up. The outlook continues to be for more Democratic turbulence in Texas.

OUR TOWN

by Wanda Crispbell

A Panhandle tornado doesn't seem such a fearful thing anymore to Wayne Mullins and Charles Babcock—they've been through a California earthquake. The two Pampans were in California last week on business for the Cabot Co., and had stopped in the little town of Tehachapi on the edge of the desert when the quake hit. The earthquake was second only to the San Francisco disaster of 1906, and the whole thing centered in Tehachapi, a town of 1600—Babcock says the tremor was not like he had imagined it would be. Instead of shaking, the ground just seemed to be crawling—it lasted only five minutes, and hit a little after 4:30 a.m.—Someone hit to wake Babcock up to tell him of the quake—since his family has been kidding him about sleeping through an earthquake—but it was not a joking matter during the two days following the earthquake—All communications were down and Mrs. Babcock went through a hectic time trying to contact her husband—Each of the town's 15 major buildings was damaged and 11 were killed—Long after the quake was over and rescue work started, buildings trembled and shifted position—in California, they were calling the little town a "broken city of death and terror," and the two Pampans were glad to start back to Texas—Babcock still believes if he sees a tornado coming, he can outrun it in a car. But an earthquake is something you can't see coming, and you don't know which way to run when you are aware of it—it's a terrifying fury of nature from which there seems no escape—We know the Pampans men feel lucky to be back home.

New Help Now For Child's Poor Hearing

By DAVID TAYLOR MARKE AP Newsfeatures Writer

Between the time a parent learns that Junior has as hearing loss and the time he gains awareness of the resources available to help combat it, life is a valley of shadows. It is a valley of shadows, that is, says Rose V. Feilbach, hearing conservation specialist in the Arlington County Schools, Virginia. Lucky because he's the parent of a child with a hearing loss today, says she:

"Twenty-five years ago the picture was a lot different. We didn't have parents' groups, classes for pre-school youngsters, powerful hearing aids, and the many special education programs in the public schools that we have today. We didn't know as much about deafness and what made children hard of hearing."

Writing in "Hearing News," a publication of the American Hearing Society, Miss Feilbach, hard of hearing herself, points out that today, we didn't know as much about deafness and what made children hard of hearing. "Writing in 'Hearing News,' a publication of the American Hearing Society, Miss Feilbach, hard of hearing herself, points out that today, we didn't know as much about deafness and what made children hard of hearing."

RUTH MILLETT

That's a man for you. He'll manage to persuade you that he positively can't get away from the office early enough to go on a family picnic and a few minutes later tell a hunting or fishing story. "I planned to work—I guess can wait. What time do you want to get started?" He'll tell you that he is bringing someone home to dinner and not to go to a lot of trouble and then after you've cleaned the house from front to back and planned a special meal he'll telephone at the last minute to say: "By the way, after I talked to you Jim found out he couldn't make it tonight. Why didn't I call sooner? Well, I didn't think it would make any difference. I told you not to go to a lot of trouble."

He'll read the paper all through breakfast—even though you follow all the rules about coming to the breakfast table looking your best.

He'll brag about how smart Junior is when he's talking to his lunch cronies. But to you he'll wonder if the kid will ever amount to anything at all.

He'll start a home repair job and then yell for you to bring him every tool he needs.

He'll grumble because he has to go to a party and then you'll have a harder time getting him to leave than you had getting him to go.

He'll tell you that you've got that he wants to lose weight, to stop feeding him so well, and then when you give him a light, sensible dinner he'll be raiding the icebox two hours later.

That's a man for you.

Selection Of Ike, Stevenson Something New For Politicians

By JAMES MARLOW WASHINGTON (AP)—The selection of Gen. Eisenhower and Gov. Stevenson as presidential candidates will go down as one of the most extraordinary events in American political history for more reasons than one.

Both were reluctant candidates. Great support had been built up for both before either man actually said he would accept a nomination.

Eisenhower didn't say so until last January although the campaign among his supporters to get him nominated had begun long before that.

Stevenson never publicly said he would accept until Friday before the third and final balloting began.

Stevenson never said one word in behalf of himself through all the months when Sen. Kefauver, Sen. Kerr, Sen. Russell and Averell Harriman were making speeches and looking for votes.

Both men are newcomers to politics. Eisenhower even more than Stevenson. The general had never been in politics before.

An Unknown Stevenson had taken no part in politics until 1947 when he agreed, after weeks of hesitation and soul searching, to be a Democratic candidate for governor of Illinois.

But perhaps more extraordinary than all this is the fact that the country as a whole knew practically nothing at all about the thinking of either man on domestic affairs until shortly before the conventions.

Everyone knew Eisenhower's views on international life. He was a firm supporter of Truman administration's policy of standing united with Europe and helping rearm it.

But, except for some scattered statements he made while he was president of Columbia University—statements which revealed very little of his knowledge of domestic affairs—the general public

Cook's Nook

For delightful and novel outdoor meals this summer try the Quick-Chick barbecue. It's a simple backyard recipe that you can make quickly and easily, and it costs nothing. But does it barbecue chicken to a red and brown spicy goodness!

The Quick-Chick is nothing more than a steel rack, borrowed from the family oven, and set up on four bricks turned up the long way or on four forked green sticks stuck into the ground. But it will hold four to six halves of plump broiler-fryer chickens that will barbecue perfectly when basted with your favorite sauce over glowing coals.

Beat a quart of portable fire place can be set up in a jiffy in the backyard, at a roadside park, in the woods, at the seashore or lakeside—or just anywhere. A bed of not-too-hot glowing coals made from wood or charcoal provides even heat.

Tender young chickens are plentiful these days, says the Poultry and Egg National Board, which adds that a half of a 2 to 2 1/2 pound bird will give a taste treat to the lushest appetite. A whole bird, for a child, brush halves well with sauce, lay on grill and baste every 5 to 10 minutes until done—about 50 to 60 minutes. Turn frequently so chicken barbecue evenly. It is done when knife thrust into thickest part of drumstick shows no pink meat.

For basting, wrap clean white cloth around a stick.

Make this snappy and spicy sauce at home if you wish and carry it in a quart jar: one onion, 1/2 cup oil, one teaspoon sugar, two teaspoons dry mustard, two teaspoons salt, 1/2 teaspoon pepper, 1/4 teaspoon tarragon, 3/4 cup vinegar or lemon juice, 1/8 pound butter or margarine. Combine ingredients and simmer for 10 minutes, or until slightly thickened.

Potato chips, rolls, pickles or olives, cold drinks, slaw or green salad round out a hearty and flavorful Quick-Chick barbecue meal.

Didn't Bother Voters This didn't seem to bother the people who voted in the state primaries where they picked him, as in New Hampshire, over Sen. Taft who had spent years making his views known.

It wasn't until he came back to this country last June that Eisenhower began to express opinions on domestic problems. Except for some vague knowledge about Stevenson—that he had been a good governor in Illinois and had some experience in the foreign field while working for the State Department—the general public didn't know much about him.

This was the year the conventions turned their backs on the professional politicians to pick newcomers more on faith than knowledge.

know almost nothing of Eisenhower's thinking on affairs at home.

Didn't Bother Voters This didn't seem to bother the people who voted in the state primaries where they picked him, as in New Hampshire, over Sen. Taft who had spent years making his views known.

It wasn't until he came back to this country last June that Eisenhower began to express opinions on domestic problems. Except for some vague knowledge about Stevenson—that he had been a good governor in Illinois and had some experience in the foreign field while working for the State Department—the general public didn't know much about him.

This was the year the conventions turned their backs on the professional politicians to pick newcomers more on faith than knowledge.

Grace Friend:

Dear Grace Friend: I enjoy your column and feel you help many people. Perhaps one of your readers could help me. I need a sewing machine badly and would be glad to do some sewing in exchange for the use of the machine.

I would appreciate hearing from any of your readers if they can help me. E.S.
I will be glad to forward you any letters.

CHURCH WEDDING

Dear Grace Friend: I am from a very poor family. There is a large family and I am the oldest girl.

I am going to be married soon and I want as pretty a wedding as any other girl can have. I know that my family can't help me financially but I have worked for two years and have saved a nice nest egg and I want to spend part of it for my wedding.

I want to have a wedding gown and veil and I want to have several bridesmaids. I want the church decorated and a reception afterwards. The reception would have to be at the church as our house would never do.

My problem is this. Do you think I should have to pay for my sister's wedding? It seems to me that if I pay for everything else they should provide their own dresses. They think that I should include new dresses for them in my expenses for the wedding. Worried

Dear Worried: There is no reason why they should all have new dresses in the first place. Of course it is fun to have a new dress for a wedding in the family but if it cannot be afforded, then it is perfectly proper to wear the prettiest dress already in the closet.

As you have taken on all other expenses of your wedding, I feel that you can be excused from buying their sisters new dresses. However if they are going to be brides-

A new type of curtain heading simplifies the making of cafe-style or brise-bise curtains. Loop attachments are sewed right into the decorative curtain tape. Once decided on the trimming it is sewed to the curtain and it is ready to slip on a rod, eliminating the necessity of attaching metal rings.

Ballerina Suggests You Take Steps To Keep Figure In Perfect Proportion

By ALICIA HART NEA Beauty Editor

Ballerina Irene Hawthorne has no illusions about her lovely figure. She knows that the only way she can keep it perfectly proportioned is to exercise every single day.

"I don't like to exercise any more than most people," she confides, "but because of the demands of my dancing career, I realize it is absolutely essential."

Being a fresh-air enthusiast, Miss Hawthorne makes her exercise period pleasant by spending it on the roof of her apartment house. To allow for complete mobility, she always wears shorts and a blouse.

"The keynote of making exercise effective," says Irene Hawthorne, "is to execute it slowly and with the precision of a military maneuver. It's harder at a slow pace, but it shows results."

One effective way of dealing with a protruding hip line is to employ "bumping." Sit on the floor with your legs stretched out straight and stiff before you. Point your toes. Lean back to rest your weight on your hands, palms down, about 18 inches behind you.

Using your arms as a lever, stiff and unbent at the elbows, raise your body, twist to the right and vigorously bump the hip against the floor five times. Return to the original position. Repeat on the other hip.

Waterproof Eye Make-Up Adds Beach Glamor

By ALICIA HART NEA Beauty Editor

The most glamorous adds to beach beauty are waterproof eye cosmetics. They accent your glowing tan, and add just the right amount of color to your skin.

As far as the rest of your make-up is concerned, forget foundation and powder. A tanning oil or lotion is all the cover-up you need. Add a streak of vivid coral or russet-hued lipstick; then concentrate on your eyes.

Wear a vivid, colorful mascara for the beach. At home you may think yourself too conservative for brilliant green, blue-green, or royal blue lashes, but less vivid shades fade to nothingness in the blazing sun.

To be sure your waterproof mascara will stay on when you swim, one leading eye make-up manufacturer recommends that you apply it very thickly, using a little water as possible. A water proof eyebrow pencil, used in short, firm strokes, will accentuate the line of your brows.

Eye shadow is not for the beach. Instead, protect your sensitive eyelids from sunburn and dryness with a rich, emollient eye cream.

To keep your eyes looking and feeling fine, devote a few minutes to them each day, after you leave the blinding sun. First, apply soothing, medically approved eye-drops that relieve redness caused by wind and glare.

Then spend a few minutes resting (feet up for complete relaxation) with your eyes covered by cooling, herb-filled eye pads. Follow this with an application of cotton pads, wrung out in ice water. This special care will leave your eyes sparkling bright.

Exploded Fiction

The Republican and Democratic conventions in Chicago this year have just about killed that ancient fiction that the political parties were the voices of the people.

The fact that they are the tools of the professional politicians and the party bosses should now be clear to even the most obtuse.

Here in Texas we have had a chance to see the workings and philosophy of both political party machines with especial clarity. For here, as in much of the South, party affairs are carried on under the pretense that the individual members of the Republican and Democrat parties gather in precinct conventions, express their views on state and national questions, elect delegates to county conventions and so have a say in party affairs.

These county conventions in turn elect delegates to state conventions. The state conventions then send delegates to the national conventions which express the will of the party in a platform and by selecting nominees who, if elected, will carry out the will of the majority of those who met in the precinct gatherings.

In other states the procedure may differ, but the theory is the same.

Actually the results are far different, and it is immaterial what system is used. The party bosses rule the party machinery and dictate the policies, the principles and the candidates.

In Texas a majority of the Republican precinct conventions-elected delegates instructed for General Eisenhower. Some of these were overruled by a few of the boss controlled county conventions, but the majority showed up at Mineral Wells for the general.

The party machinery, however, was controlled by bosses who wanted Senator Taft as the nominee. Which side had the more suitable candidate is not important. We are talking about the theory now of representative government.

The Eisenhower delegates were elected according to the accepted principles. But convention rulers refused to recognize this. They accepted delegates who, in very many cases, were not picked by anybody except the local party hacks.

Exactly the same thing happened in the Texas Democratic party. A majority of the delegates from the county conventions were instructed to vote for the Shivers plan of uninstructed delegation to Chicago.

The "Loyalists" didn't like that. They held a separate convention attended in some instances by men and women who had not even been elected delegates by the regularly constituted county conventions.

Actually many of the "delegates" at the rump convention represented nobody but themselves.

But both factions of both parties appeared at Chicago and laid claim to representing the voters of Texas who had taken the trouble to go to the precinct conventions.

At the national conventions this year the real truth about party government was brought out into the open.

The Republican convention machinery was in the hands of the Taft faction. The credentials committee, in the face of detailed testimony, recognized the delegates named by the party bosses, rather than those who had a valid claim to representing the voters.

This decision was overruled by the convention only after it was realized that the attention of the entire country was focused on the transaction and that the party would lose more in other states by slipping down the majority of Texas Republican voters than it would by appearing to yield to the will of the majority.

The Democratic convention's problem was a little simpler, the fact that the Shivers delegates had been elected by the regular Texas convention made it difficult for the bosses to throw them out.

So then they brought up the "loyalty pledge."

Loyalty to what? A great deal has been said and written about party loyalty. In this case the pledge meant that the delegates to the Democratic national convention agree in advance to support a platform that had not been written and vote for candidates not selected.

And they knew full well that the platform and the candidates beyond a doubt, would be the will of the bosses and not of the people the delegates were supposed to represent.

This is not democracy, not a representative government, but with the party machinery in the hands of the professional politicians, the theory that the representatives represent the people is an exploded fiction.

The Supreme Issue

Some people may think that the drive to socialize the electric industry is important only to the companies under attack. No attitude could be more wrong. In this issue, the interests of the power companies themselves are strictly secondary. For socialized electricity is just one element in a struggle whose outcome will determine whether we will remain a free people — or whether we will become the pawns of an all-powerful state.

The late Carl D. Thompson was a leading socialist spokesman. Many years ago he wrote: "The movement for public super-power becomes the most vital phase of the public ownership movement. The control of electric power . . . will obviously carry with it the control of transportation, of mining and agriculture . . . it will also dominate and determine very largely the domestic life of the people . . . The struggle, therefore, to secure the public ownership and control of this strategic resource . . . may yet become the supreme issue . . . of America and the world."

Electric power directly touches every facet of our life, from the home to farm and the factory. A political monopoly of electricity would give those in control of the government dictatorial powers on an almost unbelievable scale. Every town and region would be at their mercy. States rights and tax resources would be destroyed. Decisions on local questions would be made in Washington — and we would have no choice but to obey.

That is the issue that underlies the electric power controversy.

Senator Byrd's Nomination Encouraging

The nomination of Senator Byrd in Virginia on the Democratic ticket by nearly two to one should act as a guidepost for the Republican candidates in the Presidential and Congressional elections.

Virginia, of course, the nomination of the Democratic ticket is practically synonymous with election.

It will be remembered that Senator Byrd is the senator who opposed Truman's socialism and wastefulness as persistently and as strongly as any other senator. It will also be remembered that Truman contended that we had "too many Byrds in Congress."

Yet the senator who renominated in Virginia where a great many people who work in Washington live. That, however, did not seem to prevent him from piling up a majority of nearly 90,000 votes out of a total of around 340,000 votes.

And if the people of Virginia are willing to vote for a Senator who stands for economy and a rather limited government that respects human initiative, it would seem that the voters throughout the nation would appreciate a candidate for President who was for economy and human liberty.

Would that the Republican Party would recognize this trend and give the American people a real choice in selecting a President rather than forcing a President campaign as has been followed in the last four campaigns. The political campaign should educate the voters as to what laws would promote better jobs and more happiness. The Republicans should remember that it is better to go down with honor than to go down with dishonor, attempting to out-politico the Democrats.

Senator Byrd's opponent Col. Francis Pickens Miller opposed Byrd on the grounds that he opposed Truman policies and that he voted against the first "loan to Britain" bill in 1946 of approximately three billion that was supported by the majority of senators. Byrd without a word, however, stood like a rock for America first.

Col. Miller ran under the Pennington colors and boasted of his services in Eisenhower's military in World War II and championed One World, Union Now, Marshall plan and bi-partisan foreign policy.

Senator Byrd comes from a good background. His father, Speaker of the House in 1909 when Congress was preparing for the 16th Amendment to permit a graduated income tax. Senator Byrd's father was a man of vision, his son is, and it is hoped he will realize how it would be a disaster to see how it would impoverish the country and cause the states to lose their liberty and right to self-control.

It is indeed encouraging that a real American conservative like Senator Byrd can be elected against candidates that make all kinds of political promises of something for nothing.

EVERY CANDIDATE MUST BE FRANK

(The Dallas Morning News)

Georgia's Richard Russell may or may not have corrected his Chicago error Thursday. He had been quoted as favoring repeal of the Taft-Hartley act, a law supported by most of the conservative wing of the Democratic party. Thursday he assured Governor Allan Shivers' group that he was not for repeal but for amendment.

Actually there is little question that the law can be improved. But it is now up to Senator Russell to explain how he could better it. He has given a good deal of thought to the subject by his own statement. So he is surely in a position to make clear the constructive character of what he has in mind.

Politically in error, the Senator is morally right, if he really believes in repeal, in a pre-convention statement. What this country needs is the president-elect's more than anything else are open policies openly reached. Roosevelt dared not run on his real platform in 1932. It is doubtful if many candidates have been entirely frank in the past half-century. We need frankness now.

Certainly the Democratic party wants to know where it is headed. Its intraparty fight between right and left interests is the many traditions of Democrats who would vote for a Democratic candidate even if it has to be on a third-party basis. They certainly want to know the political and economic thinking of anyone to whom they turn.

While Russell has been assumed to be the standard-bearer of the Conservatives, it would not be surprising to find a possible development in cross-partyism. A left winger or dyed-in-the-wool Truman heret is the nominee, Russell has been the potential leader of bolters. But if Russell is equivocal on his own position, there is always the possibility that Eisenhower might be adopted as a recourse. In most of the Southern States crossing in his favor is now possible.

Maurice Maverick makes the possibility a basis for his attack on the legitimacy of the Shivers' delegation at Chicago. Oddly enough he cites Shivers' endorsement of Eisenhower at a time when Harry Truman was fighting the same way. The Maverick group are all for Truman but not to Shivers, how come?

The fact remains that the only hope of the Democrats for a November victory is a candidate for whom the South, or most of it, will cast its electoral votes. The Queer Dealers don't want a Conservative and the Conservatives do not want a Queer Dealer. And neither left nor right wants a mugwump. From this angle the cleavage in the Democratic party is more heavily marked than in the nomination of GOP.

The Doctor Says

By EDWIN J. JORJAN, M.D.

Last year I joined the ranks of those who have had a child stricken with polio. Probably no one who has not gone through this harrowing experience can fully realize the mental anguish which is involved.

Even so, the blind fear which afflicts so many parents during the early months of the disease is not so common as it should be avoided, since it does no good.

Although polio can and does cause death and severe crippling, the chances that it will not are pretty good. It is now regarded as a disease in which only one in 100 — in some cases even less — of those infected become paralyzed. In many of these, the illness is so slight that a diagnosis of polio is not even made.

Another bright side of the picture is that only half of those in whom the diagnosis can be made suffer any permanent paralysis, and even in many of those who do, the paralysis is of a minor nature, and recovery can go a long way.

But it is a terrible disease. What then can be done to prevent it?

Polio is now known to be caused by a virus, of which there are several known varieties or strains. This virus is present in the discharges from the nose and throat, and in the intestinal waste of those who have the disease, and of others who are so slightly sick that the spread of the virus can not even be made.

These and other known facts bring polio into the class of contagious diseases, or diseases which are spread from person to person.

It is felt that close association with infected persons accounts for the great majority of cases, but since many of these do not have active signs of disease, prevention of the spread of the virus is still exceedingly difficult.

At present, the most important measures in the control of polio are to make early diagnosis of the disease and to hospitalize those who are so affected.

In the presence of excessive polio in a community, children should be protected so far as possible against unnecessary contact with other than their usual associates. Keeping them away from crowded places is advisable.

With some exceptions it does not seem to be of much value to close schools, nor to delay their opening.

Until methods of immunizing have been developed (and development of a preventive vaccine may not be far off), generally sensible methods are about all that can be used.

However, as pointed out in the beginning of this column, the chances of escaping the crippling effects of polio are good.

'Peace And Prosperity' Will Be Emphasized By Democrats

By RAY TUCKER

CHICAGO — Brushing aside Eisenhower-Nixon charges of corruption and Communism at Washington, the Democrats will emphasize two broad issues in the campaign — peace and prosperity. At post-convention conferences here, this strategy was agreed upon by the party's new bosses, and endorsed by President Truman.

It is hoped that this policy will enable the "ins" to divert the voters' minds from such things as labor's new domination, the Hays-Lattimore-Service episodes, Internal Revenue and other scandals, peak expenditures and taxes, and the "police action" in Korea.

It is an old and elementary dodge, reducing the party's request for another four years of rule to three, simple words: "Peace and prosperity." It is reminiscent of Wilson's "He kept us out of war." "Keep cool with Coolidge; Hoover's a "New and permanent peak of prosperity," and Franklin D. Roosevelt's four-time campaign question "Are you better off now than you were before 1932?"

PLANS — The Democrats' convention will be chafing sharply by the GOP, in view of high prices and taxes, Korean casualties and loss of China to the Communists.

But the Chicago board of works, who would have planned an entirely different kind of strategy if Senator Taft had been named, figure that it will be difficult and embarrassing for General Eisenhower to counterattack.

As they preview the battle, Ike headed the European defense system that had helped to prevent a World War III. He himself so assessed the role and value of the Marshall Plan, NATO and the embryonic continental army. And he has generally endorsed the Pentagon's demand for huge preparedness budgets.

It is not suggested here that Ike is vulnerable on these two points. I am merely reporting his political opponent's plans and viewpoint.

MFENCE — It must be kept in mind, too, that he is no longer the country's great military hero, the commander Truman was willing to help toward a presidential nomination, provided he turned out to be a Democrat. Eisenhower is now an avowed political foe, and a real menace to Democratic control at Washington — the first in 20 years perhaps.

It is in this light that the "ins" view him and they are scrapping his military career, including all public or private statements for campaign material.

If this seems poor reward to such a gallant soldier, it must be remembered that Truman warned him of the perils and participating actively in American politics.

The President might have added a peculiarly appropriate word of caution: "Remember MacArthur."

How Will Change Character Of Demo, GOP Conventions

By WESTBROOK PEGLER (Copyright, 1952, King Features Syndicate, Inc.)

CHICAGO — They got away with it this year. But by 1956, if the United States has not rotted off into presently inconceivable thinning, the process of picking nominees for President surely will be revised if only for reasons of showmanship. If farcical nature of convention system, so long belabored by plaintive bleeding hearts of the Fourth Estate without response, suddenly achieved full recognition per television in the double-header of 1952.

Not that quality, however, but the tedious long-windedness, the gaseous bombast of the old-style orator and the imposition on public patience were the important defects recognized by practical men as the democratic version of an American depravity came to a finish.

Hundreds of political bacteria squirming in this corruption had insisted on the polling of their delegations for no reason but a hope that their meaningless faces would be shown for a few seconds on the television. Time and again, after the chairman of a delegation had brayed the vote from the floor, some vague figure rose to demand a roll call on the ground that he suspected foul play. And almost as often, after the clerk had pronounced the names and the weary tellers had toted up the votes and fractions of votes, the total tallied exactly with the original version of the chairman.

There was less of this in the Democratic and the reason may be that there was firmer discipline in the hopefuls of the Hungry Party while the Democrats had no confidence in or respect for anyone.

Truman, however, his arm around Alben Barkley, his old accomplice in many a dark deed, and wound up with his fingers dug into the poor fellow's rustling wattle. Then he had given Adlai Stevenson a hearty back-handed endorsement delivered by a walk-on figure named Gavin, which night as well have been delivered by a Western Union boy. He had neatly cut the liver out of Averell Harriman, confirming a common suspicion that it was white, with his snarling observation that only a Wall Street man could be dumb enough to think a Wall Street man could get elected. And, a few months ago, he and Jimmy Byrnes, a stagey old Deep South county seat statesman with a knife in his boot had got a ribald gutting in a cheap magazine, calling each other "liar."

These are only a sketchy summary of the dirty tricks and hatreds which took the heart out of this convention after a bold, confident beginning. For two days it seems as though they would have to draft Truman as the only man qualified to slap General Eisenhower silly with the beautiful abandon of a back-room fighter leaning down a formal, book-taught boxer. Toward the finale, they would have been willing to take Taft.

Oratory is, of course, the most insincere form of expression ever invented. The tremolos and burbles, the nickers and bellows all are affectations which in private conversation would get a man committed. The distasteful version is, if anything, worse, and the gristliest note of all was struck when one big female bewled a demand for respectful attention and then boasted that she had been widowed in one war and bereft of her son by the next.

Both of these slaughters were waged exclusively by Democratic administrations, so the sentiment of these remarks create some wonder as to the whole effect of women on our politics, whether for better or for worse.

For television these foibles run of their plan, for fear of inviting 1952 defeat.

However, they will try again in 1956 with the aid of CIO-AFL allies, assuming that they have not disappeared from the political scene four years hence. That will depend on what happens in November.

Any analysis of Moody's disturbing activities must be faced against the fact that he faces reelection this year, in a hard taste. Ike is popular in Michigan. The former Washington newspaperman will need the large CIO-AFL vote in the automobile state.

It is expected that Walter Reuther, head of the auto workers union and Barkley's executioner, will deliver the "Veep" casts doubt on his possession of a sense of gratitude.

PREFERENCES — The Roosevelt family's variety of preferences does not suggest well for the permanence of ADA, which is devoted to their famous father's principles, and slightly suspicious of "Trumanism."

Elliot backs Ike, F. D. R. Jr. was a Harriman manager. James supported Kefauver, the "first lady of the world" was unlisted, but supposed to be for Stevenson.

James A. Farley, F. D. R.'s organizing genius, thought that any ticket involving two of four men, Stevenson or Douglas or Illinois Barkley or Kentucky or Russell of Georgia, could trim the Eisenhower-Nixon ticket.

much too long. And the television public being thousands to one over the attending audience in the roomful hall, the taste of television's millions must prevail over the habits of the wine-bags who take an hour, as Barkley did the other night, to say a great deal less than nothing, or sneak in capsule orations by announcing that Arizona, the junior state, a state which never has backed a loser, takes profound pride and pleasure in casting 12 votes for this or that stalling-horse.

The chair tried repeatedly, as years, to restrain the vanity of microbes in these temptations, but they still snuck in their recitations. Now it will have to be done, perhaps by a rule giving the clerk sole authority to sound off.

There are many other portions of the process that can be trimmed away. Debates and roll-calls on resolutions and the reading of platforms, which are invariably thrown away the day after election at the latest are a tempting field for the producer.

If television gave the nation a ghastly impression of its political system, nevertheless performed one pleasant adjustment. The little fire in an aisle alone at the feet of Governor Byrne on Thursday night was a terrible, dangerous emergency in which the burly young firemen in white shirts and blue dress caps of the Chicago Fire Prevention Bureau were causing in the act with glorious effect.

Andy Frain, the chief usher and leader of a superb corps of incorruptible college and high-school students, happened to be within 10 feet of the first burst of flame. Frain said the fire started when a fellow carried a gadget somehow caught fire, perhaps from a dropped cigaret. That would explain why the fire persisted for two minutes or so, with the firemen and Frain and one big unidentified civilian stomping and sprawling all over it.

Frain grabbed a coat off a chair and dropped it over the center of the fire. The flames swarmed in like a football team, but were badly handicapped by the very crowd they were trying to save from fire and stampede. A woman screamed and Frain clapped his hand over her mouth. The fire extinguishers were some distance away, and the only thing the men on the spot could do while others were rushing up the stirrup-pumps was to stamp and slap at the burning paper and beat at them with big cardboard candidates' placards.

The Chicago cops also came out of these two trying experiences and their renown in their reputation. They had dragged along through many bad administrations, from Busse and Thompson and Kelly to the present, not often sold out than selling out, and on the whole, as good as their betters would let them be.

The era was as bad for them as their renown as the L. Guardia and O'Dwyer administrations were for the New York force. In these difficult days, they were on duty long hours, always in numbers where the help will be need of help or force and it is a small compliment to say that they behaved much better than the delegates, a higher politics and left a much more respectable impression.

The police arrangements for President Truman's safety a comfort were so lavish that he had to look back to Hyde Park and the Royal Household Regiment of Foot in World War I to Garmisch-Partenkirchen at the winter Olympics of 1936 or St. Petersburg in the days of the Czars for anything like them.

Balbo street, the southern boundary of the Blackstone Hotel where Truman had a whole foot to himself, was blocked off from Wabash to Michigan, a whole block, with a hundred uniformed traffic men turning back all cars, except those of the police. In the basement of the Conrad Hilton Hotel across the street 40 uniformed cops under a lieutenant and sergeant stood by as a reserve.

The Blackstone lobby was hushed with a strange tension. Truman had brought 12 Secret Service men from Washington and the local regular det were along with many Chicago detectives. Someone plainly was scared stiff, whether the plain beloved, snarling little Man-of-the-People or the men responsible for his safety, or both. This scene was a forthright display of muscle and firepower with big pistols exposed in ammunition belts on the hips of heavy weight cops, and the flicor conspicuous in their elephantine stealth.

Yankees And Bums Want More Pitchers

By JOE REICHLER
Associated Press Sports Writer

Managers Charlie Dressen of the Brooklyn Dodgers and Casey Stengel of the New York Yankees were beseeching their bosses for more pitching help today after watching their once impressive leads shrink like a 10 dollar suit in the rain.

Just six days ago, the Dodgers and Yankees were looking back at the other clubs and laughing their way to pennants. Now things have gone sour and worried frowns have replaced the happy smiles. The road looks longer as the leads grow smaller.

Yesterday's 12-2 Yankee loss to Detroit and the 3-2 Dodger defeat by the St. Louis Cardinals climaxed a sorry six days that saw this happen:

1. The Yankees' American League lead of five games over Boston and seven over Cleveland dwindled to three over the now second-place Indians and 1-2 over the Red Sox.

2. The Tigers' 7-1-2 game edge over the New York Giants dropped to only four. Even the third-place Cardinals, who were 13 games back and apparently out of the race, now trail by only 9-1-2.

3. The Dodgers heaved a sigh of relief as Eddie Stanky's merciless Redbirds headed for Boston, but Lefty Lou Sleater. Paige tired in

Forman's Team Wins Pro-Am

DUMAS — A pro-amateur team captained by Johnny Forman of Pampa captured first place here Monday in the Moore County Golf Course Pro-Amateur tournament. A 16-under par 54 captured the honors.

Playing on Forman's team were Orpha Mitchell of Pampa, A. E. Myers of Guyton, Bob Langhorne, Dalhart and Bob Bradford, San Antonio.

Approximately 80 players participated in the tournament.

Lafayette Franks, home course pro, won professional honors, with Joe Lopes of Memphis second and Joe Houck of Borger third.

Play Gets Started

RUIDOSO, N.M. (AP) — Play in the championship flight of the Texas League's second Negro League's annual Women's Golf Tournament gets underway today with no clear favorite.

Only two entries were able to crack 90 yesterday in medalist play. Ruby Lee Harding of El Paso, who took the honors with an 83, and Mrs. Agatha Lee, also of El Paso, with an 86.

The absence of Mrs. Jo Boswell of Roswell, N.M., who was unable to return for defense of her 1951 title, left the field wide open.

The women's tourney continues through Thursday.

LAMESA (AP) — The Lamesa Lobos split a double-header with the Pampa Oilers here last night losing first game 4 to 3, and coming back with a nightcap victory on the two-hit pitching of Dal Smith.

A three-run seventh inning was all the Oilers needed to take the first game. After Lamesa had lost a three-run lead.

In the second game, Smith kept the Oilers from gushing with a neat two-hit twirling performance. Only run of the game came in the third when the first hit off Mel Nee, a line-single to left. Jackie Wilcox walked and Smith came home after two were out.

League-Leading Clavis required 10 innings to post a 13-10 victory over Amarillo, the fourth straight win over the recently hot Gold Sox, at Amarillo.

Lubbock moved into sole possession of second place on a 10-6 victory over Abilene at Abilene while Albuquerque dropped out of second in a 12-3 setback at Borger.

The teams switch around tonight. Clavis moving on to Abilene, Albuquerque to Pampa, Amarillo to Lubbock and Borger to Lamesa.

Smith almost had a one-hitter at Lamesa. One of the singles he yielded was strictly an infield affair. The only run of the contest came in the third with two out on a pair of singles sandwiched around a walk. The two bloopers were half the hits yielded by loser Mel Nee.

The first game featured a three-run seventh inning when Clavis brought victory after Lamesa had blown a 3-0 lead. The first Pampa tally came in the sixth.

At Abilene, Lubbock rallied in the seventh for three runs and the win over Abilene. Bobby Fernandez sparked the rally with a lead-off homer. Dick Leeder scattered seven hits in winning. Ed Flanagan gave Albuquerque eight hits in recording the win at Borger. His mates collected twice that many off starter and loser who came on in the 10th, Bill Manning and Ab Fleeth, each homered twice for the winners.

The marathon at Amarillo ran three hours and seven minutes before Clavis won on a four-run rally in the top of the 10th. Buddy Yount lasted until two were out in the 10th and was credited with the win. Harry Young retired the last man.

Skelly Captures Softball Tourney

The Skelly Oil Company softball team captured the Skellytown Invitational softball tournament championship last night with a brilliant 1-0 victory over Phillips. The tournament was played at Skellytown.

John Wilde hurled the win for the champions. Shew was the losing pitcher.

Third place in the tournament went to McLean, which took an extra-inning 7-4 victory from Hill Lines, Inc., of Amarillo.

$100 went to the first place team, $50 to second place, and $25 to the third placers.

The Lake Cup Matches, last golfers from the U.S. and Australia in 1954, will be renewed in Australia in October.

Swimmers Are Last American Hope Of Olympic Victory

By BEN PHEGAR
HELSINKI (AP) — America's hopes of retaining the Olympic team championship despite the powerful Russian challenge rested today on the ability of Uncle Sam's swimming and diving stars.

The hopes are in talented hands. The U. S. aquatic stars scored 157 points in London four years ago and, if anything, they are better than ever this time.

In three completed events they have scored 31 points, including a brilliant 1-2-3 sweep in springboard diving yesterday. The Russians have scored a total of two points in these same three events.

The points, as they stand at the end of 106 individual events, show Russia leading with 502 1/2 and the United States second with 425.

In addition to swimming, the major sports left on the Olympic calendar before this gigantic sports carnival closes on Sunday are basketball, cycling, boxing, equestrian, and the remainder.

Neither the U.S. nor the Russians can expect to score in fencing. The Americans will go pointless in cycling while the Russians should pick up something in the road events. Basketball should go the United States way, and the Latin American, and Mediterranean countries probably will dominate the equestrian events.

Boxing is an unknown quantity since the Russians never have been in a world tournament. They just one of their five fights last night while the U.S., which scored only eight points in the sport four years ago, got all four of its first-day fighters into the second round.

This pretty much puts it up to the swimmers. Unless the Russians are not figured to score heavily.

The Olympic program yesterday looked something like a Finnish hors d'oeuvres tray — a little of everything.

Fencing ended an eight-day run with the United States picking up titles in the six meter and 5.5 meter classes and a second place in the star class. Italy, Norway and Denmark won the other three gold medals. The Russians were unplaced in all five classes.

Finland renewed its private war with Sweden in canoeing and won two of the last five finals. The Swedes won one as did the Czechs and the Danes.

Basketball produced its first clash between the United States and Russia and the Americans won it hands down. The score was 85-58 and after the first 10 minutes the rough and tumble contest never was close.

The officials tooted loud and often as they waved six Americans and four Russians to the sidelines on personal fouls. But neither side let out a peep at the referees.

This was in contrast to the game in which France edged Uruguay, 68-66, on a last second set up.

The Uruguayans mobbed referee Vincent Farrell of Newark, N. J. The crowd joined in, and Farrell was kicked in the groin by a spectator, then clipped on the jaw while he lay in pain on the floor.

Farrell's refereeing partner was a Russian. He managed to escape the wrath of the players and stood at a safe distance when the melee broke loose.

Parlays Homemade Bread Into A Successful Business

By DOROTHY ROE
Associated Press Women's Editor

Mrs. Margaret Rudkin, who in 15 years has parlayed a loaf of home baked bread into a nation-wide business, says women are ideally suited to careers in big business because—

"Business is just like running your own house. You have to count pennies, clean house, stick to a budget and keep the children happy."

Mother Of Three

"You can't spend more money than you earn, and you have to pay back what you borrow."

Mrs. Rudkin is the merry, red-haired mother of three sons, wife of a wall street broker and a founder of Pepperidge Farm, Inc., whose hand-kneaded old-fashioned bread now is distributed in all 48 states and several foreign countries.

This feminine tycoon got into the bread business by accident. Back in 1937 she decided some homemade, old-fashioned bread like her grandmother used to bake might improve the health of her youngest son, Mark. So she ground some wheat in a coffee grinder, added fresh milk, butter, honey and other natural ingredients, kneaded the loaf by hand and watched as her husband and sons devoured it with satisfaction.

Beg For More

Her friends tasted some of her old-fashioned bread, and begged her to make more. A doctor heard about it, and asked her to make enough to supply several of his patients. Soon Mrs. Rudkin had to hire a neighbor girl to help her keep up with the demand. Then she decided if she was going to be in business she might as well do it right.

Mrs. Rudkin and her helper had been turning out the bread in the big kitchen of her home, Pepperidge Farm, an estate of 125 acres in Fairfield, Conn. She decided to expand and build a modern factory in Norwalk where the fragrant loaves now emerge from the ovens by the thousands.

The company now has other factories, but all are run on the same principle, personally supervised by Mrs. Rudkin or one of her sons, two of whom are now in business with her. A third is still in college.

Ten Texas Women Take Tour Of Japan

TOKYO (AP) — Ten Texas women were touring Japan today, and for one of them it was a momentous occasion.

Mrs. Frank Springer, San Antonio, greeted her son, Air Force Lt. Joy V. Springer, who was here on rest leave.

The women plan to remain in Japan until Aug. 5. Then, after visiting Hong Kong, Manila and Honolulu, return to Texas. They will present Japanese students with two scholarships to the University of Texas.

Charles Kettering At 75 Still Active In Scientific Research

DETROIT (AP) — If there is a "grand old man" of the auto industry he's Charles F. Kettering, noted engineer-scientist, whose 75th birthday was observed last year with one of the biggest parties ever held for a man.

Younger in spirit and physical capacity than many persons 20 years younger by the calendar, "Boss Ket," as his friends call him, deserved that "grand old man" designation on several counts.

Is Well Liked

One of the best liked persons associated with the auto industry, no other man living has contributed as much to the industry's development.

Kettering invented the self-starter that did away with hand cranking and many broken arms and jaws; he gave the industry ethyl gasoline and high compression engines; he developed the two-cycle diesel engine that led to diesel electric locomotives, and he blazed the way for many refinements in other fields of scientific research.

There were, for instance, his artificial fever therapy for the treatment of certain blood diseases; his participation in the Sloan-Kettering Institute for cancer research; his development of a new type of refrigerants and many other advances.

Retired In 1947

Long head of General Motors Research Laboratories, Kettering "retired" in 1947 to continue as consultant with GM, but the retirement was more theoretical than real.

He operates pretty much the same today as he did before. He maintains an office in the GM Research Building, continues his intense interest in industrial and botanical research and keeps in close touch with the engineering staff.

"There's been altogether too much predicting and not enough long range thinking and planning," he said in an interview.

"The world has nothing to fear but stupidity and nothing but stupidity can cause trouble. As long as the sun shines we'll be all right."

He is deeply interested in "time and the sun" as two of "our chief resources." The "wonderful age," he says, "will come when man learns to draw, directly upon the sun for power." The use of solar energy as automobile fuel, he adds, still is a distinct possibility.

"Boss Ket" holds there "isn't any mystery in the world; everything is simple provided you have the proper understanding."

Science, he says, "is merely finding out how nature does things — it's just as simple as that."

Gold Returns To News On Two Counts

By SAM DAWSON
NEW YORK (AP) — Gold — and the long controversy over its role as money — is back in the news again on two counts.

1. Republican and Democratic platform discussion of the monetary and fiscal policies of our government.

2. The gold clause bonds by which the Paris government lurked 34 tons of gold from the hidden stores of Frenchmen — they still have at least 2,000 tons of it squirreled away.

Gold convertibility went out the window with the great depression. Convertibility means that before 1934 you could take a $5 paper bill to the treasury and get a $5 gold piece for it.

GOP Takes Up Issue

Congress can restore convertibility anytime with a law ordering the treasury to both buy and sell gold at a fixed price on demand. This would mean coining of gold. U.S. gold stocks are so high that this is entirely feasible, many argue.

Under the present law the treasury buys at the fixed price of $35 an ounce. But it doesn't redeem bills in gold, nor sell gold to American citizens except for commercial use — to fill teeth or make jewelry.

This year the Republican platform pledges the party "to restore a domestic economy and use our influence for a world recovery of such stability as will permit the realization of our aim of a dollar on a fully convertible gold basis."

That would seem to mean: "We can't go back on the gold standard and abroad, but we should as soon as we can."

The Democratic platform doesn't mention gold. Instead, in general terms it pledges "the preservation of the financial strength of the government" and a fiscal policy that will "contribute in a positive way to economic growth of the maintenance" of high level employment.

Advocates of immediate return to the gold standard aren't pleased with the Democrats and far from entirely happy with the Republicans, although their platform is the first to mention the gold standard in many years.

Dr. Walter E. Spahr, executive vice president of the Economists' National Committee on Monetary Policy, says, "The way to resume is to resume." He says the Republican pledge should have read:

"We commit ourselves to provide promptly for the redemption of our currency in gold at

Urgent Call Is Issued For Nurses

An urgent call for registered nurses to serve during the polo season has been made by the American Red Cross. Incidence of the disease so far this year is running 55 per cent above the same period last year, according to statistics released by the National Foundation for Infantile Paralysis.

This call, sent by the midwestern area office, St. Louis, Mo., is particularly urgent in Texas and Iowa. Most of the available nurses will be needed before the epidemic is over, said Kay Fitzpatrick, area director of the Red Cross Nursing Service.

Inactive registered nurses are particularly sought. Nurses recruited are requested to serve for a minimum two-month period and their salaries will be paid by the national foundation.

Foundation figures show a total of 4176 cases of polo in the United States since March. This compares with 2844 last year. Last week 34 nurses were recruited through Red Cross in the midwestern area.

The need is especially acute in Sioux City, Iowa, and Houston where serious epidemics have been reported.

Nurses able to serve during the season should contact their local Red Cross chapter, Miss Fitzpatrick said.

JACOBY ON BRIDGE

Be Sure You Know What Foe Is Doing

By OSWALD JACOBY
Written for NEA Service

In today's hand, played in the national championships last year in Washington, the West player hypnotized himself into believing that he had his opponents on the run.

It was all right for West to double three hearts, since he could obviously do well if South stayed in that contract. But West's double of three no-trump was a clear case of delusions of grandeur.

West opened the queen of hearts and continued the suit until Lee Hazen, playing the South hand, won the third round with the ace.

If declarer had been able to see the cards held by the opponents, he would have had no trouble making his contract, for it would have been a cinch to take successful finesses in diamonds and clubs.

Not being able to see through the backs of the cards, Hazen tried the club finesse, and then cashed the ace and king of spades. West's discard of a low diamond on the second spade was a disappointment.

Hazen next led a low club to dummy's ace, hoping that the king would drop. This time East had to discard a diamond, since a spade discard would clearly help the dummy.

Declarer now knew that West had started the hand with five hearts, four clubs, and only one spade. This left room in the West hand for only three diamonds, of which one already had been discarded.

It was therefore not necessary to risk the diamond finesse in order to make the doubled contract of three no-trump. Declarer cashed the king and ace of diamonds in the hope that the queen would drop. When that hope failed to materialize, a third diamond put East in with the queen.

At this point East and the dummy each held three spades. East returned the jack of spades and was allowed to hold this trick. He then had to lead from the ten-eight to dummy's queen-nine, thus furnishing dummy with the eighth and ninth tricks.

Obstacles Seen

Others, however, argue that a return to the gold standard isn't feasible until the budget is balanced and the Federal Reserve System made entirely free of pressure from the treasury. They say it would also require sweeping away of exchange controls now so wide a spread in the world, and the end of import and export quotas.

Before the depression the gold standard was the great international trade regulator. It meant co-operation among the world's treasuries and banking systems. This broke down completely in the early 30s. Since then economic warfare among the nations has tended to be bitter. And many contend that gold has little place in a modern economy.

France Gets Gold

But many people still regard gold as the only safe money. The French loan featuring a gold clause tying the redemption value of the bonds to the free market price of gold coin is evidence of that.

The French were hoarding gold, have perhaps two billion dollars worth of it hidden. The value of their paper money has been cheapened several times since the war and the French people fear further devaluation.

The French loan brought out 42 million dollars worth of gold. The majority still apparently prefer their hidden cache of gold.
