HOLLYWOOD, Calif. (Special) — Prince Aly Khan hurried to a five-hour visit with Rita Hayworth at her home at 2:38 p.m. with his estranged wife on Friday, August 15, 1952. He arrived by plane last night and a few hours later, shortly before midnight, went to visit Rita in her Beverly Hills home. The prince had hurried questions of when he was going to meet the shapely actress, apparently to throw newspaper and photographers off the trail. "Of course I'm going to see her," he told reporters at the airport. But he wouldn't say when. Then he drove off with Charles Vinler, movie director. Baggage weighing 175 pounds followed the prince off the plane. Included were five big packages of toys for Yashmin who has been with Rita since the actress left the prince in Europe several months ago. Aly will return to New York after five days via Kentucky, where he will visit friends and "look at some horses." Rita established legal residence in Nevada but has not filed suit for divorce.

Pampa Prepares Brief For Pioneer CAB Application

An 11-page mimeographed brief of the Pampa segment upholding Pioneer Airline's application to start air service here was sent this week by the Chamber of Commerce to the Civil Aeronautics Board. The brief followed by three months the hearing by CAIB in Dallas on May 15 and 16 of the airline's proposed new route providing direct flying service from Pampa to Wichita Falls, Fort Worth, Dallas, Houston, Austin, Midland and Odessa. Directed to the CAB examiner, the brief summarized Pampa's reasons for upholding Pioneer's request. It included the estimated population figure of 20,000 plus for the city and 188,075 trade area population; the $7,500,000 Pampa retail trade volume and the $47,396,800 trade area retail volume. The brief also included the 61 wholesale establishments in Pampa doing an annual business of $6,112,000 and the more than doubled building permits issued in 1951 over those issued in 1950. It told, too, of the 5,300-plus natural gas wells, 18 carbon black plants, refineries and 38 gasoline plants in the Panhandle Oil Field.

DRAGNET

(Continued From Page One) Young Jelke was one of the founders of the Bachelors Club of America, whose membership includes a number of New York playboys. He was considered one of society's most eligible bachelors. Taken to a police station, Jelke described himself to the desk sergeant as single, said he had attended college two years, and in reply to a question whether he used narcotics, replied, "No, sir." The tousle-haired, slightly-built youth wore a gray tweed sports jacket, blue gabardine slacks, a white shirt and black knitted tie. Arrested also in the roundup at another address, was Erica Steel, 28, a red-haired television actress. Police took her into custody at her $200-a-month apartment. Blondes' Husband Held Miss Steel was charged with keeping and maintaining premises for the purpose of prostitution, procuring women for that purpose, possessing marijuana and conspiracy to commit the charged crimes. Raymond Russell Davison, 34, husband of a blonde seized in the roundup, was arrested on charges of compulsory prostitution, living off the proceeds and conspiracy. The others taken in the dragnet were undergoing questioning and were not placed under arrest immediately. Others seized were Nancy Hawkins, 23, blonde model and occupant of a $150-a-month penthouse apartment; Joan Douglas, 20, a model and roommate of Miss Hawkins; Gloria Sinclair, 24; Ray Russell, 34, husband of Miss Sinclair. Liebler said the raids were the culmination of seven months work. The group seized, he said, was not a part of any ring.

Little Boredom Is Expected From This Year's Candidates

By JAMES MARLOW
WASHINGTON (AP) — This year the voters can be grateful to two presidential candidates for saving them from the boredom of previous elections.

Everyone is looking forward to hearing Gen. Eisenhower and Gov. Stevenson when the campaign starts since practically nobody knows much about the views of either of them.

This reverses the usual condition of voters who in past years not only knew the views of the candidates but had heard them so often anything they said during the campaign was repetition.

And this year there's a chance for surprise. At the time of the conventions Eisenhower was supposed to be to the right of Stevenson who was supposed to be to the right of President Truman.

But the practical necessity of trying to win votes may push both men into some shifts in their position. Both men and their advisers knew that in a close election the vote of Southern Whites and Northern Negroes may tip the scales.

After the nomination of Eisenhower, who is going to campaign in the South, it was thought he might be able to win some of that usually Democratic area away from the Democrats.

On one of the sorest points in the civil rights dispute—a compulsory FEPC—Eisenhower indicated he opposed it by expressing the opinion states should handle the problem. This was a welcome viewpoint in the South.

Nevertheless, after Stevenson's nomination, Southern Democratic leaders have been lining up behind him while Negroes who have since talked with Eisenhower have come away pleased.

Negroes have enough votes in a number of key Northern states to swing them Republican or Democratic if they vote as a bloc. Eisenhower and Stevenson have to keep that in mind.

So, if he finds he can't take the South, Eisenhower may have to shift his ground to attract the Northern Negro vote. A week ago 16 Republican leaders said election of Eisenhower would split an FEPC with adequate enforcement powers.

Stevenson himself seems to be shifting ground a bit. Before any civil rights legislation can be passed, there must be a change in the Senate rules to make it easier to break a Southern filibuster.

After his nomination and before the Southern states had begun to line up behind him, Stevenson took the position that any change in the Senate rules should be left up to the Senate.

Now, with the South getting more solidly behind him but some Northern Negro leaders angry, he's begun to talk of using his influence, if elected, to get the Senate rules changed.

Even if he was president, he couldn't change the rules. The most he could ever do would be suggest a change. The Senate, which made its rules and seems satisfied with them, could ignore him.

Stevenson has to attract and hold two other kinds of voters the New Deal and Fair Dealers and the conservatives. Stevenson has taken pains to show his independence of President Truman who is a little too far left to suit some voters. At the same time he can't turn his back on the New Deal and Fair Deal measures which draw the votes of others. He seems to be trying to suit both groups by sticking to the middle of the road.

Since the campaign doesn't start until around Sept. 1 and lasts until election day in November, the two candidates have plenty of time to provide surprises.

"Dad's joking all the time—how did you know he was in earnest when he proposed to you?"

Boyle's Column . . . Returned Vacationist A Real Peril In American Office Life

By HAL BOYLE
NEW YORK (AP) — One of the perils of American office life these summer days is the returned vacationist.

He insists that you hear about his vacation—but he closes his big ears like a car door when you want to tell him about your vacation.

How can you deal with him? You can't get away. He will even trail you into the men's room to relate the strange things that happened to him. You would think no one else had taken a vacation before in the history of the human race.

The only sure way to halt him is to try to borrow money from him, or else stop him by interrupting. "Oh, by the way, Joe, while you were gone I saw a flying saucer."

What the average office needs from June until Labor Day is a "vacation hour" each morning. For the first 60 minutes of each work day, the office staff could assemble and listen en masse to the returning pilgrims tell the sad and wonderful story of what befell them. Anybody who even mentioned the word vacation the rest of the day would be automatically fired.

Returns on Crutches
The office vacationists fall into pretty standard types. Here are a few you may recognize:

1. The postcard fiend — he writes you a postcard as he leaves his home and stops off at every other filling station along the way to mail more. Two weeks after he is back at work, you are still getting postcards about what a swell time he is having.
2. The calamity kid—bee-stung and covered with poison ivy, he returns on crutches. "Just stopped by on my way to the hospital," he mumbles.
3. The sultry stenographer — she looks the color of a hand-rubbed walnut bookcase from days of beach sunning and there are wedding bells in her eyes. But the new boy friend she met at the shore quits calling her up after three days.
4. The camera nut—he has to be forcibly restrained from pulling down the office window blinds and trying to show everybody the interesting new movies he made in Niagara Falls.
5. Some Are HomeBodies
The statistician—this boy not only has the figures of gas and oil at every stop—he also wants to tell you the air pressure in each tire the day he drove up Pike's Peak.
6. The over-loving homebody — "vacations are more fun at home," he begins. And for the next three hours he bores you with the details of how much money he saved and what a grand time he had repainting his little grey nest in the suburbs.
7. The funny fellow—everything comical happens to him. "I threw my mother-in-law to the bears in Yellowstone Park," he says, "and guess what—they arrested me. How did I know you aren't allowed to feed the animals?"
8. The boss fellow—"aren't they cute?" he says, pulling out some snapshots of his children wearing striped bathing suits. And how can you tell him they look like baby saber-toothed tigers?

Well, there they are—the office Marco Polo. The odd thing is how dull their tales are.

I just got back from a vacation myself, and had a really unusual experience. I was just . . . when . . . Editor's Note: Enough of this. Boyle is a No. 7 vacationist himself.

Doctors Told Cancer Varies

By FRANK CAREY
AP Science Reporter
WASHINGTON (AP) — The prevalence of cancer varies in different countries and under different conditions, the 17th International Geographical Congress has been told.

For example, the delegates were told, cancer of the lung does not exist in Iceland or Korea, stomach cancer is not as common in England as on the continent of Europe; primary cancer of the liver is relatively more common in Africa, Indochina, India, Malaya, Indonesia and the Philippine Islands than elsewhere in the world; and cancer of the base of the tongue is relatively frequent in certain communities in India.

The cancer facts were a highlight of the first report of the "Commission on Medical Geography" of the International Geographical Union—a commission which is making a world-wide systematic study of the possible relationships between the distribution of diseases and the environments in which they develop.

Dr. Jacques May of New York, director of medical studies of the American Geographical Society, and also chairman of the International "Medical Geographical" Commission, said commission's first aim is to "map" the distribution of all diseases throughout the world.

Declaring there is a need to know "who has what and where," he said that once such information is pinned down on a world-wide basis, it may be possible to determine why one person becomes afflicted and another does not.

He asserted that "geographical factors" may be paramount in the distribution of disease.

Mike Velasquez, the ninth presentation of Pampa Daily News carriers, is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Pedro Velasquez, 332 S. Gray and the younger brother of Raymond who has already been introduced to you as a "little merchant."

Mike begins his daily route at the Tng Street Apartments and goes from there to the Volley Shop on Tng, on to Craven, and then to the 409 block of S. Somerville, S. Gray and on W. Brown between the south streets on his route.

Mike has been with The News only a month. He has lived in Pampa for four years and is a 8th grader at Holy Souls School. He likes school "pretty good," he says, and his favorites are spelling and geography.

Like his older brother, Mike is fond of baseball and plays left field, center field, or third base all the time when he isn't eating, sleeping or delivering papers.

Mike would like to be a professional ball player, just as his brother intends to be, but says he'll probably work on the railroad when he finishes his schooling.

He likes potatoes—just any way they are fixed—in the food line and is a Western book fan. His favorite movies are about war and Army heroes. If he ever has to be in service, he wants to be in the Air Force.

IT'S YOUR DEAL Control Discard Pile To Win

By OSWALD JACOBY
Written for NEA Service

When you are playing for a big score it is not enough to win the first substantial discard pile. That is only the first discard in a campaign. The rest of the campaign consists in getting more cards into your partner's hand and then keeping control of the discard pile until somebody melds out.

There is a regular style to follow in getting additional cards into your partner's hand. The first principle is: Don't meld any more than you have to when picking up the pack.

This principle can be modified a bit if you pick up a really large pile—say, more than 30 cards. In such a case you would meld any natural canastas that happened to be in the pile, and you would meld three of any five of a kind or four of any six of a kind. That is, you could still anything provided you could still keep a natural pair in your hand.

Your reason for holding a pair in your hand is that this prevents the opponents from freezing the pack if you melded, the opponents could freeze and then discard their remaining cards in that meld.

Even this tactic isn't completely safe. Sometimes you get a large pack at a time when the opponents are threatening to meld out quickly. In such a case you must meld six of a kind rather than keep a pair of them in your hand.

This gives your partner a chance to complete the canasta, if he has pack he must not meld anything three-card melds. These will help—not even to complete a natural meld. Instead, he must simply hold on to all of his cards except for the safest possible discard. When your own turn comes again, you must put down a few cards into his hand, the partner can control the discard pile until the hand comes to an end.

"Take my hand"

"Take My Hand!" Thus has spoken our true Leader. As He Journeys in the service of God, He calls women and men and children to walk with Him. He has led youth and age to peace and victory. He has been the 'Christ of the Indian Road.' He is the Christ of every road where God's children must walk.

What a privilege! Ordinary people may have high company. What a blessed invitation. As they enter upon the serious tasks of life, they may have royal fellowship. Especially to those who leave the home fireside, to face a lonely way, He calls. "Take My Hand." Not one of us is equal to meeting the world in our own strength. But we can be conquerors, if divine strength and wisdom flows in upon our souls.

To every one of us, He is repeating the gracious invitation of the centuries, "Take My Hand." Wonderful things have been done by those who hearkened to the call! We do not need to walk alone. We must not walk alone. He will be our Teacher, our Friend, our Comforter, our Lord, our divine Comrade. Attend His Church! Take His Hand!

He's Not A Pretty Sight Hank Admits He Wears Red Ear Muffs And A Long Nightshirt

By HENRY McLEMORE
CUERNAVACA, Mexico — If you have a fondness for noisy nightwatchman you should come and visit me.

One of the attractions that goes with my house in Cuernavaca is a night watchman. I have found him much more interesting than the views of snow-capped mountains, which I see from my patio, the almost unreal sunsets, or my garden, which, with its profusion of flowers looks like the palette of a mad artist.

It is the night watchman's responsibility to keep an eye on some ten or twelve houses in the neighborhood, all of which are enclosed by high stone walls. It is his duty to admonish anyone he finds climbing over a wall. He is a dutiful man. He makes his rounds as regularly as the sweep-hand of a clock.

I know this to be true because with every fifteen or twenty steps he takes he blows a loud, mournful whistle. The sound is something like I imagine an owl would give off when an owl dentist hurt him, yet it is amazingly penetrating in this high altitude. No matter how sound asleep you are the whistle's moan enters your ears and bounces around.

Why the night watchman blows this whistle is a question I don't think I'll ever be able to answer. I know he's not in cahoots with burglars, because he is known as an honest man, but he might just as well be in cahoots with burglars. Every toot reveals his presence. Certainly if I were a burglar and heard him toot four blocks away that would be the time I'd scale a wall, knowing I'd be up and over before he arrived.

The night watchman's whistle is not the only sound I am attempting to become accustomed to here. The noises one hears in New York once the sun goes down are entirely different from those in Cuernavaca. In New York I got so that the screech of bus brakes, the underground mutter of the subway, and the raucous clatter of the riveting machines, were a lullaby that lulled me into slumber.

Here in Cuernavaca the night noises are all made by Nature's little fellows and I'm having trouble getting used to them. You would think that a man who didn't mind the back fire of a bus certainly wouldn't mind the chirp of crickets, the peep-peep of whatever it is that peeps right outside my window, or the sigh of wind through jacaranda trees. But to the New York ear, they are as noisy as the Tower of Babel on the Fourth of July, or New Year's Eve in a boiler factory.

There is one little night creature that I am looking for. I have no idea what he looks like, or whether he lives in a tree or dwells on the ground, but pound for pound he must be the loudest thing since the invention of the dynamite. His range of noises is almost unlimited. When chirping bores him, he barks; when he's barked enough to suit him, he snarls; when he finishes snarling he makes a sound like a stick being drawn across a picket fence. As a finale he chirps, barks, snarls, and picket-fences altogether.

I don't make a pretty sight in bed these nights. Because I'm wearing red velvet ear muffs. Mama dug them out of an old trunk in the attic and sent them to me at my request. In my long nightshirt and my ear muffs I believe I look like something Charles Dickens would have liked to have thought up. I don't know, of course, because I haven't dared look in the mirror.

"But this is ridiculous, pet! Why should we quarrel over anything so trivial as your mother?"

Business Highlights

Bishop A. Ricketts, Pampa, became the fourth salesman in State Reserve Life Insurance Company history to receive the "Man - of - the - Month" award during his first year with the company.

Mr. Ricketts earned the July award for having written more life insurance during the month than any other State Reserve Life salesman. He has been with the company since February.

"The Hustler," the company magazine says, "By virtue of a prodigious July push, Bishop became the fourth Hustler. To make 'Man - of - the Month' during his first year. . ."

A member of the Panhandle Agency of State Reserve Life, Mr. Ricketts is very active in church work in Pampa.

State Reserve Life Insurance Company is a Texas institution and has been serving the people of this state for 28 years. Home offices are in Fort Worth.

Great National Life Insurance Co. of Dallas has acquired the Western Reserve Life Insurance Co. of Austin through purchase of its capital stock, according to an announcement by S. J. Hay, Great National president.

This announcement was received in Pampa by John A. Wells, representative for the Dallas company, along with a report of the company's present standing.

"In acquiring the assets and able personnel of Western Reserve Life, Great National Life strengthens its position as one of the leading life insurance companies in the Southwest with approximately $135,000,000 insurance in force," Hay said.

Great National was organized Feb. 4, 1928, in Dallas by S.J. Hay and Carl C. Wetzel and has continued under the same management since that time. It has assets of approximately $15,000,000 capital and surplus in excess of $3,000,000 with $75,000,000 insurance in force.

Western Reserve of which A. F. Ashford is president, was organized in San Angelo in 1927 and moved its home offices to Austin in 1941. It has more than $9,000,000 in assets, capital and surplus in excess of $1,000,000 and insurance in force of approximately $60,000,000.

Ashford will join Great National in an advisory capacity and as director when Western Reserve closes its office. The home office of the company will continue in Dallas on Main Street.

'Desperate' Burglar Get A Surprise

LONDON (AP) — "I am a desperate criminal," said the burglar, surprised as Kenneth Munro entered his dining room.

"You don't look like one," said Munro. "What do you want?"

"I want money," was the reply.

Then followed this colloquy: "If you can find any here you are welcome to it. But he quiet about it. I can't have you talking my wife."

"Oh, I wouldn't dream of doing so."

"You are a fool to break into people's houses."

"You won't tell anyone, will you?"

Youngsters Must Pay For Stolen Melons

Between six and eight McLean youngsters aged 14 and 16, had a whale of a time swiping 50-75 watermelons a while back — but now they've had to pay for part of them.

According to H. A. Doggett, county juvenile officer, they have paid back $16.50 to the owner of the watermelon patch.

The boys had driven around on the road by the patch, had sneaked in and helped themselves, Doggett said. None of the melons were salvaged.

No further action is contemplated.

New Polish Constitution Puts Rights Of State Before People

By J. M. ROBERTS JR.
A new Constitution for Communist Poland has been drawn. It does not have the "new look," since it is taken strictly from the Soviet copy book.

The Constitution of the United States spends a great deal of effort to protect first the rights of individuals, then the rights of states, against federal encroachment. In particular it sets up a system by which minorities can live and prosper.

One of the first items of the Polish Constitution states the duty of the government to limit, oust and abolish those classes of society which live by exploiting the workers and farmers. That means the capitalist, whether he is a stockholder, storekeeper, bank landowner, or anyone who does not produce through personal sweat. Some exceptions will be made, of course, for "cultural" workers, who will be turned into tools of state propaganda.

But the point is not the regulation of non-laboring classes, but their abolition. Abolition, like liquidation, is a tough word in Communist jargon.

Where the U. S. Constitution outlines restrictions on the government in its relations with the people, and its dues to them, the thirteenth paragraph of the new Polish Constitution says: "Strict adherence to the laws of the Polish People's Republic is the fundamental duty of every organ of the state and of every citizen." Well, of course. But there is something significant about the approach.

Contrary to widespread public belief, communism does not abolish property rights. Both the Soviet and Polish Constitutions contain guarantees of ownership and the right to inherit. But there is a hitch. Everything that is part of the economic life of the state, from the shoemaker's awl to the potato field, comes under the special care of the state. The state promises to care for "individual farms of working farmers," but to give "special support" to collective farms.

"The main forms of state support and help for co-operative farms are the state machine centers, which make possible the application of modern technique, and state credits on easy terms." In practice that means the state owns the machinery of farming, cultivators, tractors and reapers, and if the individual farmer who opposes collectives can get along without them, and deliver without fail the state assessment against his product before he feeds his family, in drought or in plenty, he will not be dispossessed.

So, the Constitution says, "The Polish People's Republic guarantees to citizens full protection of personal property and the right to inherit it," adding a little later on, "property may be confiscated only in cases determined by law, by virtue of a final judgment of the court."

AUTOMOTIVE HINT
There is a tendency on the part of many motorists to use a heavier oil than is recommended for their cars. Any small saving it may effect in consumption is more than offset by greater starting difficulties and waste of gasoline, due to higher friction loss in the engine.

Czechs Moving Middle Class

VIENNA, Austria (AP)—Communist Czechoslovakia reportedly is joining fellow satellites Hungary and Romania in moving the middle class "bourgeois" out of key cities.

Usually reliable sources reported the Czech deportations and said, as in the other two Red countries, they apparently have a two-fold aim — to break up concentrations of the business and professional class and to make housing available for favored workers.

The reports said that at least 10,000 persons were forced to leave Prague and Bratislava in the first week of the deportations which began in mid-July.

Since then, trainloads of deportees have been leaving both these cities as well as other key centers two or three times a week. The reports said lawyers, architects, former factory owners and other persons who held similar jobs before the Communists squeezed them out were the principal victims.

Most of those expelled from the cities were said to have been dumped off trains in rural areas.

Geographer Says Food Supply Good

WASHINGTON (AP)—A prominent geographer says he believes the world's "food potential" to be adequate for all the people likely to inhabit the earth during the present century. He thinks the best prospects lie in increasing farm areas rather than trying to tap new land.

Dr. George B. Cressey, Syracuse University, president of the International Geographical Union, said estimates are that the world's population, now at 2,400,000,000, may approach four billion by the dawn of the next century.

One of the pastimes spread throughout the world by U. S. troops during World War II was the game of horseshoes.

KEEP COSTS DOWN, PERFORMANCE UP... WITH A DODGE!

"My Dodge trucks save a lot of money on gas!"
... says H. A. ROBINSON, Contract Hauler, Mobile, Ala.

"On a 200-mile run I save 1 1/2 to 2 gallons of gas. I get this saving seven days a week, and on my two trucks that means I save over $300.00 a year on gas alone. That's good, because each of my trucks makes an average of 50 stops per day hauling mail.

"My first Dodge truck cost me only $54.00 of repair expense in two years. I ran my second Dodge over 103,000 miles in two years and spent only $15.50 on it for repairs.

"If I'd known what I know now about Dodge trucks, I'd have switched to them long ago and saved myself a lot of money."
