CONTROL COMMISSION IS PROPOSED

British Troops Engaged in Fighting on Two Fronts

Indonesians, Jews Are Big Problems

JERUSALEM, Nov. 15—(AP)—J. V. W. Shaw, British acting high commissioner for Palestine, issued a "punishment by death" warning today to rioters in the all-Jewish city of Tel Aviv, where street demonstrations broke out for the second day.

TWO JEWS KILLED

At least one person was killed and 50 were reported injured today as thousands of persons milled in the streets defying a curfew order imposed after last night's outbreaks which resulted in the death of two Jews and the injury of 27 persons.

Urruly crowds again attacked government property, stoned barricades and stormed against several British buildings.

DEFY CURFEW ORDER

The general disobedience of the curfew order appeared to be a part of the policy of resistance ordered by the secret Jewish resistance movement against continuance of the British policy of restricted Jewish immigration into Palestine. But most Jewish citizens did not appear to approve direct attacks against British soldiers and activities by the torch gangs.

The first casualties developed last night when troops of the British Sixth paratrooper (Red Devil) division fired to break up crowds.

CROWDS STONE POLICE

The troops were withdrawn temporarily, but were rushed back into the city today when crowds stoned police trucks this morning and the police opened fire. Gunfire was continuing.

An appeal for discipline and observance of curfew orders by Dr. Israel Rokach, mayor of Tel Aviv, was read during the same broadcast. The appeal was addressed principally to the youth of Tel Aviv.

Furniture presumably looted from the light industries building was being burned in the streets. Thousands of persons were said to be milling through the streets in defiance of rigid new curfew restrictions.

PARATROOPS ON DUTY

Many shops also reopened in violation of the curfew, the announcement said.

Paratroopers of the veteran British 6th airborne division were on duty today.

Hearings Opened On Pearl Harbor

WASHINGTON, Nov. 15—(AP)—Curiously drawn spectators filled seats and pressed for standing room today as a joint senate-house committee opened public hearings on the Pearl Harbor disaster.

Rear Admiral Husband E. Kimmel, the naval commander at Pearl Harbor when the Japanese attacked, arrived early to claim a front row seat. At a table near the witness chair, Maj. Gen. Walter C. Short, the Hawaiian army commander of 1941, found a vantage point.

William D. Mitchell, committee counsel, opened the hearings by printing in the records a 250-page printed copy of intercepted Japanese diplomatic messages covering the period between July 1 and December 8, 1941.

He thus made their first official disclosure that American armed forces had broken the Japanese diplomatic code and were reading Japanese messages to Washington and other capitals long before fighting began.

Shortly after the call to order, an electric fuse blew out and plunged the jam-packed room into gloom.

BATAVIA, Nov. 15—(AP)—British Indian troops hammered steadily at native strongpoints in the heart of Soerabaja today, but with the pitched battle in its sixth day there was "slacking in Indonesian resistance" anywhere in the naval base, a British announcement said.

BUILDINGS ENTERED

The 123rd Indian infantry brigade battled into the justice and government buildings, formerly identified as major headquarters for 15,000 Indonesian nationalist troops. They occupied the buildings after a bitter fight against nationalist defenders who used light automatic weapons, medium machineguns and some supporting armored vehicles.

FIGHTING UNCHECKED

While the fighting continued unchecked in Soerabaja, Sultan Sjahrir, youthful new premier who is pledged to attempt to end the hostilities, issued a 15-page pamphlet in Batavia, outlining his principles for the future of the Indonesians.

Sjahrir deplored the Japanese propaganda which he said taught his people to hate all foreigners, and asserted:

"All the unrest in the community is directed to an aversion to foreign peoples present in our country, to marching with lances, that has now already grown into murder and robbery and other tendencies that, seen from the viewpoint of the struggle for social reform, signifies nothing and is reactionary, as every fascist deed will always be reactionary."

The British, using a minimum of force to prevent heavy casualties, pressed the attack slowly in Soerabaja.

Japanese Assets Found Far Below Occupation Costs

TOKYO, Nov. 15—(AP)—Japanese assets, "ridiculously small by comparison with the actual cost of the war," will not even meet costs of occupation, let alone pay for necessary imports or reparations, Edwin S. Pauley said today.

President Truman's representative on the Allied reparations commission told a news conference U. S. policy will be the same here as in Germany—re-move everything in Japan not needed for a useful minimum Japanese economy no higher than that in countries which Japan occupied and remove or destroy every piece of machinery or equipment that specializes in war production.

If possible, everything removed from Japan will be employed gainfully by nations which are entitled to reparations. Schools and colleges wantonly destroyed by Japanese armies will receive such technical non-war-making equipment as Japanese armies have in their possession.

Pauley said he had examined the vault of the bank of Japan and found "amazing similarity" between the "book" there and that in the reichsbank in Frankfurt, Germany, where the United States found gold and other treasure.

The value of the bank contents was not as great as that in Germany, he said, but he would give no overall estimate of the value of gold, silver, coins, jewels and other treasures he saw here.

He disclosed that his commission has requested of Russia permission to enter northern Korea and Manchuria and expects to go there "either while the Russians are still occupying Manchuria or after they have left." He said he anticipated the Russians would vacate northern Korea soon but did not elaborate.

Russians Give Up Controls In Manchuria

CHUNGKING, Nov. 15—(AP)—Russian, scheduled to withdraw soon from Manchuria, already have handed over postal and telegraphic services of Changchun, Manchurian capital, to Chinese authorities, an official dispatch reported today.

The transfer of control was made under an agreement permitting Russian use of the facilities until their withdrawal, the dispatch said.

The Chinese government some time ago was notified that Russians would be out of Manchuria by Dec. 1.

At Tsingtao, meanwhile, Chinese communists were reported moving to block a nationalist relief force headed for violence-dotted Shantung province, and far to the south street fighting flared as communists attacked the highway center of Tsaooyang, 145 miles northwest of Hankow.

Associated Press Correspondent Richard Bergholz said communist forces driving to keep nationalists from Shantung had struck less than 12 hours after the Chinese nationalist Eighth army began landing from U. S. transports at the marine-guarded port of Tsingtao.

RAILROAD IS HIT
The Reds' Shantung liberation army knifed through to Liu-Ting airfield 12 miles north of Tsingtao and made a divers onary thrust at the field while destroying two main sections of the Tsingtao-Tsinan railroad, Bergholz reported.

Additional thousands of nationalist troops of the Eighth army continued to pour ashore at Tsingtao, he said, but no major movement has been started.

TSINAN BESIEGED
Tsinan, a city of 800,000, and capital of the rich Shantung province, already is virtually besieged by communists and is dangerously short of food and medicine, he said.

Labor Conference Is at Standstill

WASHINGTON, Nov. 15—(AP)—The labor-management conference today awaited a promised industry statement on issues facing the delegates as two related developments attracted attention. They are:

1. An assertion by a reconversion official that the government "can't possibly" grant at this time the full price increase demand of the United States Steel corporation. Wage negotiations in the steel industry are stalemated over the price situation.

2. A suggestion from Senator Knowland (R-Calif.) for a new approach to the entire wage issue—based on industry's earnings and lower prices to consumers.

The amateur exhibit was sponsored through a contest, students being asked to illustrate a book in such a manner as to make others want to read the book. Other than being judged on the application of psychology, entries were also judged on originality.

Pony Destroyed In Barn Blaze

A fire at the Lightfoot grocery in the flats this morning destroyed a pony stalled in a barn at the rear of the store. Fire Chief Ben White reported.

White said that the blaze was evidently caused by a gas stove in the barn, in which several bales of hay were stored. A high wind fanned the breeze and damaged a small chicken house near the barn.

The fire chief warned Pampa residents to be careful of outside fires because of the danger of blazes spreading.

PAMPA JUNIOR HIGH: BOOK WEEK EXHIBIT IS PREPARED BY STUDENTS

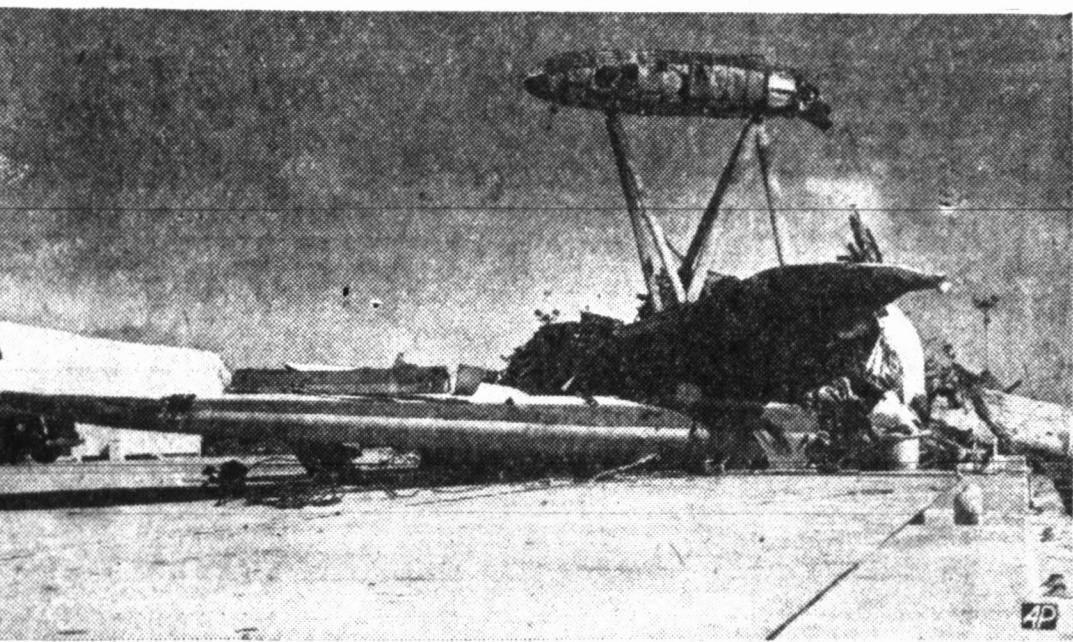

Students of Junior high school have for the first time prepared a Book Week exhibit in their library. Formerly the exhibit was prepared by the librarian, although this year is the first during the last four years that an exhibit has been displayed.

The amateur exhibit was sponsored through a contest, students being asked to illustrate a book in such a manner as to make others want to read the book. Other than being judged on the application of psychology, entries were also judged on originality.

The library walls are covered with colorful and varied posters, many displays are on tables and book shelves. Mystery and adventure books are the primary subjects although Miss Ella Pool, librarian, states that of the average daily library circulation of books, 251, the majority are mystery and stories of dogs. Miss Pool showed evidence that substantiated her statement, the card catalogs being much more well-worn in those departments.

Winners in the amateur exhibit were announced today. First prize was awarded Estrella Johnson, seventh grade, room 114, for a crayon book. See BOOK WEEK, Page 2

Administration of Germany Studied By U.S., France

WASHINGTON, Nov. 15—(AP)—The United States and France have begun talks here on the most critical issue now blocking effective Allied administration of Germany.

France's proposal for non-German control of the Ruhr and Rhineland.

This became known today amid strong indications that President Truman and Secretary of State Byrnes are about ready to undertake a sweeping review of American administration in Germany.

Their objective will be to try to work out some means of preventing explosive conditions in the Reich from getting worse as winter sets in.

Mr. Truman scheduled a conference today with Byron Price, a special presidential emissary who is just back from a study of the broad question of relations between the battered German people and the American occupation forces.

Similarly the return of Gen. Dwight D. Eisenhower has afforded the war and state departments, as well as the White House, an opportunity for a further check on critical German conditions already outlined during the recent conferences here of Lt. Gen. Lucius Clay, Eisenhower's deputy, and Ambassador Robert Murphy, his chief political advisor.

Additional Water Lines Are Planned

Laying of additional water lines in the Talley addition will be started as soon as materials are available, according to City Manager Garland Franks.

The city manager made the statement in answer to queries from residents of the addition.

Franks added that the city has received some six-inch pipe and a very small amount of two-inch but the quantity is not nearly sufficient to start laying the lines.

A possibility that the lines might not be laid until spring was indicated by Franks. He pointed out that even though the materials and labor might be available before spring, weather conditions would probably delay operations.

Talley addition, with a population of about 900, was taken into the city some time ago and it was promised that additional water and sewer lines would be provided as soon as possible.

Giles Speaks on Value of Public Lands in Texas

Emphasizing the value of public lands in Texas, Bascom Giles, Commissioner of the state general land office and grand master of the Masonic lodge of Texas, speaker at a joint meeting of the Rotary and Lion clubs yesterday noon, climaxed his Texas-styled speech with the fact of the federal government making public an intention of filing a claim against the three league coastal limit area of Texas.

The speech, Texas styled because of the hugeness of land office sums and individuality of the Lone Star state included a brief historical background of the land of Texas.

From the time Texas was first settled by 300 families in 1821 according to a grant extended to Moses Austin by Spanish authorities.

Giles outlined the formation of the Republic of Texas, the struggle of the republic to be included in the Union, stressing the fact that the colonial land office was closed after the Texas Revolution and a general land office installed.

When Texas was finally admitted to the Union in 1845 it was through a recommendation of President John Tyler because of federal concern over the Republic's growing influence with other nations, said Giles.

Former attempts to join the Union had been harassed because the Union considered the lands of Texas worthless, would be a deficit to the Union. One congressman advocated

Latham Named to Oil Commission

AUSTIN, Nov. 15—(AP)—Sidney Latham, Dallas attorney, today was appointed Texas representative on the interstate oil compact commission in succession to the late J. C. Hunter of Abilene.

The appointment was announced by Gov. Coke R. Stevenson.

Latham is a former secretary of state and a former member of the state house of representatives. In his practice of law he has specialized in oil matters. He formerly resided in Longview.

World Would Have Atom Information

WASHINGTON, Nov. 15—(AP)—Creation of a United Nations commission to control the threat of atomic destruction in the world was proposed today by the United States, Great Britain and Canada as the best way to tackle the atomic energy problem.

President Truman and Prime Ministers Attlee and MacKenzie King made this known in a joint communique on their three-power talks.

DUTIES OF COMMISSION
At the same time, they declared that the three nations, which now hold atomic energy secrets, would not share that knowledge until "it is possible to devise effective, reciprocal and enforceable safeguards acceptable to all nations."

The commission which the three leaders proposed at the conclusion of their six-day conference on atomic problems would be charged with the duty to make specific proposals to these four points:

1. For extending between all nations the exchange of basic scientific information (on all subjects) for peaceful ends.

2. For control of atomic energy to the extent necessary to ensure its use only for peaceful purposes.

3. For the elimination from national armaments of atomic weapons and of all other major weapons adaptable to mass destruction.

4. For effective safeguards by way of inspection and other means to protect complying states against the hazards of violations and invasions.

JOINT STATEMENT
In a 1,000-word statement setting forth the results of their discussions, the three chiefs of state prefaced their proposals by saying flatly:

"We are aware that the only complete protection for the civilized world from the destructive use of scientific knowledge lies in the prevention of war."

NEW WEAPONS DISCUSSED
No system of safeguards that can be devised will of itself provide an effective guarantee against production of present weapons.

"Nor can we ignore the possibility of the development of other weapons, or of new methods of warfare, which may constitute as great a threat to civilization as the military use of atomic energy." The statement made a distinction between

Auto Price Fight Is Before House

WASHINGTON, Nov. 15—(AP)—Auto dealers declared today that when Price Chief Chester Bowles figured price tags for new cars he apparently disregarded the possibility that production may be curtailed by strikes.

W. L. Mallon, president of the national automobile dealers association, presented to a congressional committee telegrams from all major car manufacturers except Ford.

He said these clearly showed "it is utterly impossible in any event to accurately estimate 1946 new car production."

"These telegrams," Mallon said, "furnish an unanswerable reply to Mr. Bowles' definite but fantastic statement that dealers may be assured of greatly increased new car production next year."

Mallon appeared before the house small business committee to answer Bowles' arguments for passing a part and possibly all cost increases granted manufacturers on to dealers—without a corresponding increase in retail prices.

Mallon claimed OPA arrived at new car prices—not yet announced—by guesswork.

Texas Law Students Given Scholarships

AUSTIN, Nov. 15—(AP)—Five university of Texas law students have been awarded scholarships for the winter and spring semesters. Dean C. T. McCormick announced.

The recipients were Don Brown of Austin, Joseph M. Nuesale of San Antonio, R. L. Templeton of Wellington, C. M. Hudspeth of Houston and Charles T. Hyass, Jr. of Lubbock.

Nuesale and Templeton were awarded the W. J. McKie scholarship fund in law. Hudspeth and Hyass received the Ewell Strong scholarship.

Gen. Eisenhower Pleas for Military Training Program

WASHINGTON, Nov. 15—(AP)—Gen. Dwight D. Eisenhower today made a personal plea to congress for the adoption of a postwar universal military training program.

"The greatest single motivating force for world peace today is the organized military potential of the United States," Eisenhower declared.

U. S. MUST BE PREPARED
In testimony prepared for an appearance before the house military committee, Eisenhower cautioned that the development of war techniques would give the United States no time to prepare if it were attacked again.

"With the introduction of atomic and electronic warfare and the astounding advances being made almost hourly in aerial warfare, the tempo is increasing in geometric progression," Eisenhower asserted.

DEFIAT OR VICTORY
"If war comes to us again the fact seems inescapable that we will not have time to train units before we are faced with the final issue of defeat or victory."

"Certainly it would be inconscionable to gamble on a fortuitous recurrence of the time to prepare bought by the blood of our Allies in 1917 and in 1942."

"We must be prepared on M-day—the day the enemy strikes—or we may never be prepared to avert defeat at the hands of any aggressor who uses against us the weapons of the future."

Eisenhower contended trained manpower and technological advancement are "our greatest assurance of keeping the peace for which we fought."

TECHNOLOGY OF WARFARE
Upon expiration of selective service, the general said, the nation should be prepared to start training young men who have had no military experience.

Although veterans of this war constitute a trained reserve, he said, "we must keep it constantly and currently reinforced by younger increments trained in all the most advanced techniques which research

Civic Orchestra Is Being Organized Here

Pampans who play musical instruments are invited to join the Civic orchestra which was organized Sunday afternoon when the group, composed of local musicians, Senior and Junior high school band and orchestra students met for the first time.

The orchestra will meet Sunday at 4:30 p. m. in the red brick building at Junior high school for practice, under the direction of Miss Evelyn Thoma, school music instructor.

HOT PROGRAM

JOLIET, Ill., Nov. 15—(AP)—Firemen who responded to an alarm from a hotel grill room performed their duties with musical accompaniment.

As they dashed into the room, the firemen saw sparks coming from a short circuited light fixture. They studied the situation as musicians played, "Dear, Dear, What Can the Matter Be?"

Then they broke into "The Daring Young Man on the Flying Trapeze" as two firemen climbed a ladder to investigate. And when an electrician sauntered in to give aid, he was greeted with "I Don't Want to Set the World on Fire."

and development in the technology of warfare" are bringing forth.

"We must train them to avert world war III, not re-fight world II," Eisenhower said. Added the general:

"I feel sure that no true American would be willing to take on his own shoulders the awful responsibility for actively prohibiting all training and thus leaving our country defenseless and naked before a future enemy armed with the weapons of that day."

Eisenhower said that in his position overseas he was intimately familiar with the attitude of other United Nations leaders toward the armed forces of the United States.

"This familiarity, he said, 'assures me that in their minds there exists no fear of our motives in keeping ourselves strong.'"

The readiness of the United States to meet any threat of aggression, said Eisenhower, is "essential to the success" of the United Nations organization.

duty in the city after quelling riots which cost two lives and left 40 injured last night.

There were unconfirmed reports circulating that a series of explosions had been heard in Tel Aviv.

FIRING IN TEL AVIV

Today's reported fatality was said to have taken place when police used firearms against demonstrators in the Petah Tikva quarter, which is near the railway line.

An official British announcement said that 10 rounds were fired by British troops in Tel Aviv last night. According to the statement, the troops were ordered to fire when Palestine police armed with batons failed to break up a crowd in colony square in a series of six charges.

"Coincident with this incident a crowd of approximately 5,000 was cleared from the square by British troops," the British military communiqué said.

The communiqué also said that Tuesday evening British troops were stoned heavily on Petah Tikva road. When the crowd ignored warnings to disperse, four rounds were fired, the official statement said.

Troops were called out after a meeting protesting the statement on Palestine which British Foreign Secretary Ernest Bevin made in the house of commons Tuesday exploded into wild disorder.

After the meeting a crowd of Jewish civilians estimated at between 400 and 500 by British officers marched through the heart of Tel Aviv and repulsed police efforts to disperse them.

During the demonstration the district commissioner's office was set ablaze with torches, and the central postoffice and two other government buildings were attacked. Police were stoned in stiff fighting around colony square in the main business district.

The British paratroopers appeared just in time to frustrate a mob effort to touch off gasoline which had been poured into the postoffice.

"The Red Devils" wearing camouflage suits and armed with tommy guns and rifles—hoisted banners which said, in Hebrew, Arabic and English, "disperse or we fire."

colored poster portraying "Treasure Island." The large poster shows the thoughts of a young boy, of pirates finding a chest of treasure.

Second prize was awarded Bob Hulsey, eighth grade, room 114 for a display vividly portraying "Hidden Wings Mystery" with a small camouflaged plane used by a group of men to break up a smuggling gang in hills on the Texas-Mexican border. Bob also set up a display showing a model automobile overturned off the side of a highway in the hills. The entire display is in a box-like set-up, with effective lighting giving good perspective to the display.

Third prize was awarded room 104 of the sixth grade, instructor, Miss Verdine Denton, for a weird display of delivish yellow clay models seated around a collection of bright cut glass and trinkets, illustrating the "Treasure of Carassonne." The four models have long horns, one has horns of teal-blue, all have blue facial features. One of the small models has feet split like a sheep's. Models are now flowing in construction than in detailed musculature, giving a more imaginative picture. Postures of the four devils are marvelous—they would be sure to get a cramp somewhere.

Honorable mentions were given to the entries of C. E. Pipes, seventh grade, room 211, for a wood model of the fort in "Remember the Alamo," and to a trio for a colonial display portraying "Blithe McBride," arranged by Jean Hendricks and Ina Joe Hawthorne, both of room 102, and June Smith, room 103, all of the sixth grade. The display shows colonial costumes, dolls, she's carrying an "Armistice Day" poppy, with clover intertwined in a small white trellis, flowers growing along side a white picket fence, with colonial home in the background.

Judges were on the spot in judging the exhibit, entries being particularly good and numerous. Judges were Mrs. Evelyn Todd, city librarian; Mrs. Ray Miller and Mrs. Osa Mae Wilson, senior high school instructors.

Many posters were made by seventh and eighth grade students during class—exhibit entries were made outside of class. Eighth grade posters are not titled, letting the observer guess the name of the book.

Miss Pool, pointed out a display which has been popular with students, one of four doll models around a fireplace, illustrating "Little Women," by Barbara Anderson of the Seventh. A miniature piano and china are also included.

Don Spencer's, "House on the Hill," a crayon drawing, is among those showing the greatest amount of imagination and has quality all its own. An off-balanced shack is located on the top of a high peak, a narrow road twining around the mountain. Don is in the seventh grade.

Emma Mae Sings' eighth grade poster of the books "Huckleberry Finn" and "Pinocchio" gives detail and action. Betty Sue Frite's pencil sketch of "Robinson Crusoe" would rate among the highest in quality of illustration, her man Friday looking with mild curiosity at Robinson Crusoe as the latter tries to show him trying to understand Friday everything that was proper and useful. Patience, hope and determination are shown by the posture and expression of Crusoe.

Several exhibit entries will be on display at the public library Friday afternoon when the public is invited to attend a tea to be given by the library board at the library from 4 to 6 o'clock.

Giles' Speech

the worthlessness of the land by saying it was nothing but an area of marches, tad-pole beds and swamps. Giles reminded Rotarians and Lions.

Admittance to the Union was also denied in 1844 because of a Union vote on a bill by which the Union would have to assume a 13 million dollar debt of Texas, although the Union would gain control of all the land in the Republic. Land in Texas was not considered worth 13 million.

Annexation was finally made on the unique terms of Texas retaining all of her public domain as well as her 13 million dollar debt. Texas is the only state in the Union which holds statehood on such terms, all other states giving up their land to the federal government on admittance to the Union.

Texas has benefited by the terms, said Giles, even though much of her territory as specifically described when admitted to the Union, including the 3 league coastal limit which is expected to be in question soon, was returned to the federal government according to a compromise in 1850 by which Texas received 10 million for the outlying territory. Six years before, Giles pointedly stated, admittance to the Union had been turned down for 13 million, and that Texas has always abided by treaties and compromises made.

All public land values are included in the Public Free School Fund of Texas, with 25 million acres of the total 172,687,000 Texas acreage being owned or controlled by the state, which has built up a sum of $125,000,000 in the Public School Fund, Giles said.

Questioned by a luncheon member on why the education system of Texas is not more highly rated if the school fund is so great, Giles said that the federal government does not contribute to the school fund as in other states, and that as yet the state could not support an over-all change in school programs. If the federal government were to contribute to the fund, then it would have authority to help manage the schools of Texas.

The School Fund has been built by land transactions, Giles explained, including oil well leases, receipts from royalties alone gives $600,000 to the fund a month. Public land has been given or sold to promote citizenship and immigration in the early period, to veterans of all wars (as yet, not the veterans of World War II), to pay public debts of the Republic (some of which are not yet paid by individuals purchasing lands at 50 cents an acre as late as 1887), to railroads for the acquisition of transportation facilities, and for education.

An interesting side-light of the above was given by Giles, was that land sold at 50 cents an acre in 1887 now brings at least $25 to $50 an acre. In 1900-05 land was still being sold for $1 an acre, Giles later said in an interim.

Also, that Texas A. & M. college is a branch of the Texas university, when speaking of land grants, but not when of football. The two schools have a total grant of 2,329,169 acres.

Although many statistics were given by Giles comparisons were quickly made, mainly that policies of the federal government in the past have been to ignore lands when not of value even though it had the opportunity to acquire them, and that Texas would continue to profit if she retained all her land as of today.

If the federal government were to claim additional Texas land, meaning the 3 league coastal limit, "it would put the federal government in the position of a title cloudier in court," said Giles following the meeting, "because we have helped peaceful possession of and exclusive jurisdiction over (by leasing and selling) the land for 100 years."

Threat of the claim to the land was made by U. S. Attorney General Thomas C. Clark. Giles stated that a claim has already been filed against land in California.

Proceeding the talk at the luncheon meeting held in the basement of the Methodist church, grace was said by the Rev. E. B. Bowen, pastor of the church. Rotary President DeLea Vicars presided at the meeting; C. P. Buckler was in charge of the program.

Lion guests were Ken Bennett, former Lion recently returned from service; George Thompson, new city engineer; L. J. C. McFarlin of Detroit; Leslie Hart, Fred Svyroch, Reno Stinson and W. E. Weathered.

Rotary guests other than the speaker were C. B. Ausmus, H. B. Hill, Shamrock; H. W. Luper, Fort Worth; G. K. Little, Amarillo, and Woodie Myers, Oklahoma City.

Entertainment was provided by the Lions quartet, composed of Virgil Mott, E. O. Wedgeworth, Chick Hickman and Dud Balthrope, which sang "Highways Are Happy Ways" and "I Want a Girl Just Like the Girl That Married Dear Old Dad."

'Women in Congress' Is Program Topic When Business Women Meet

November program and business meeting of the Business and Professional Women's club was held in the City club rooms Tuesday evening. During a short business session, plans were made for a Thanksgiving dinner to be held at the Country club Tuesday, Nov. 27, honoring the new members.

Reservations will be taken by Mrs. Frances Craver Appleby, phone 561-W and Mrs. Mildred Pickett, phone 1954-J.

The program was directed by Bertha Chisum, acting for Ruth Johnson, legislation chairman. Mrs. Chisum's subject was "Women in Congress."

She stated that there are nine women in congress now. Hattie Caraway is the only woman who has served in senate. Those now serving in the house of representatives are: Mary T. Norton, Edith Nourse Rogers, Jessie Sumner, Frances P. Bolton, Margaret Chase Smith, Clare Boothe Luce, Emily Taft Douglas, Chase G. Woodhouse, and Helen Gahagan Douglas.

Yvonne Jones discussed the subject "Have Women Lost the War?"

Madge Rusk told of "Jury Service for Women." She stated that there are 20 states that do not permit women jurors. Texas is one of these states.

Those attending were: Mildred Pickett, Eloise Lane, Lucille Foster, Evara Crawford, Magge Hollis, Bertha Chisum, Madge Rusk, Inez French, Tommie Stone, Frances Appleby, Vicki Williams, Yvonne Jones, Irma Money, Jessie Stroup, Clara Lee Sheppard, Maurine Jones, Audrey Fowler, Muriel Kitchens, Elsie Gee, Lillian McNitt, Margaret Dial, Mary Wilson, Ella LaCasse, and Ruth Gillespie.

PIN-WORM ITCH MAY THREATEN YOUR CHILD'S HEALTH

Don't let your child suffer a needless minute of distress with Pin-Worms! Recent medical reports reveal that an amazing number of children (and grown-ups too) may be victims of Pin-Worms—often without suspecting what is wrong. So watch out for the warning signs—especially the tormenting, embarrassing rectal itch. Because now you can and should do something about it!

A highly effective way to deal with this ugly infection has now been made possible. It is based on the medically recognized drug known as mebendazole. This special drug is the vital ingredient in F-W, the Pin-Worm Tablets developed in the laboratories of Dr. D. Jayne & Son.

F-W tablets are small and easy to take, and they act in a special way to remove Pin-Worms. So, if you suspect Pin-Worms in your child or yourself, get a box of JAYNE'S F-W right away, and follow the directions.

Ask your druggist: F-W for Pin-Worms!

Mrs. H. H. Heiskell of this city, who was with Mrs. Lard at the time of her death, has returned to Pampa. She was accompanied by the husband, John Lard, and infant daughter, Annie Kay, and the nurse, Mae Kelso.

Russia Accused of Violating Declaration Made at Yalta

84th Broke Bulge In Underwear!

By NEA Service
The 84th infantry division called themselves the Rallsplitters. But the Germans, who had felt the sharp edge of their attack too often for their taste, called them "The Hatchet Men."

The 84th first struck on Nov. 18, 1944, at the Siegfried Line. In two months of savage fighting, the 84th took 112 German pillboxes and bunkers in the Siegfried Line, and helped crush the Ardennes counter-offensive.

Setting its sights on the transportation and mining center of Gellenskirchen, the doughboys pushed on despite the fact that its armor had bogged down in the heavy mud. Gellenskirchen fell, and it was followed by a succession of other important German towns and cities.

Shifted to the north side of the German bulge, the Rallsplitters counter-attacked clad in suits of long white underwear as camouflage against the snow. The doughboys rolled into Houffalize, and on the same day one of its units joined up with the 11th armored division, signaling the linking of the First and third armies, closing the gap which had separated them in the Ardennes salient.

On Feb. 23, after having been moved secretly to an assembly area north Holland, the Rallsplitters surged across the Roer river, and set off on a dash that carried them to the Rhine, sweeping everything before them.

Crossing the Rhine, the 84th rushed on over the Weser, took Erbeck, and drove into Hanover, where it was stationed after V-E Day.

MEN! GET PEP...

Do you want to feel young again? Why feel old at 40, 60 or more? Enjoy youthful pleasures again. If added years have slowed down your vim and vitality, just go to your druggist and ask for Casella tablets. Many men are obtaining remarkable results with this amazing formula.

U. S. Doughboys Are 'Seeing the World'

Thousands of young Americans who might never have traveled beyond the border of their native states are "seeing the world" as members of the regular army.

The desire to see distant countries and the natural lure of adventure have led many young men to enlist in the regular army in the current recruitment campaign, according to Brigadier General Harold N. Gilbert, USA, director of the military personnel procurement service.

Qualified civilians 18 to 34 years of age, inclusive, now can enlist in the regular army and choose the branch of service in which they prefer service as well as the theater in which they desire duty. Thus, a recruit can ask for assignment to the European theater or the Asiatic-Pacific theater.

Soldiers who enlist or reenlist in the regular army retain their present ratings, received enlistment furlooms and allowances, and also have the privilege of choosing the theater in which they prefer duty.

The modern, mechanized U. S. army offers many other opportunities in addition to the lures of travel and adventure. A soldier in the regular army receives invaluable vocational training. He may become a radio operator, a mechanic, an electrician, or a radar specialist.

The security offered by an army career also has brought in many recruits. A soldier receives good pay, free quarters, food and medical care, and can look forward to retirement.

Russia is said to have broken up the London council of foreign ministers because she could not get Britain and the United States to join her—without any outside interference—in making the peace, just as the three of them—the Big Three—joined in defeating the Axis powers.

Russia fears that she cannot gain security "from a United Nations organization," Matthews says, "in which the other nations always vote against Russia, but from her own power allied to other members of the Big Three if they're willing to go along with Russian ideas."

Russia is trying to attain the security she wants, as Matthews sees it, by:

—guarding her armed strength, building a cordon sanitaire against the rest of the world, controlling strategic bases as far from the Soviet Union as possible, fostering communist parties in other countries, building up agricultural and industrial self-sufficiency, maintaining a totalitarian dictatorship within the USSR and ruling the world with the aid of other members of the Big Three, helped by docile and friendly smaller powers.

Matthews points out that the Soviet Union is distrustful of the United States because of our failure to share the atom bomb secret, even though Russia wouldn't share it if she had it, and that she still keeps her land as a "grimly guarded fortress, a region blacked out in almost impenetrable darkness."

In referring to the breakup of the London council, Matthews declares that "there will never be peace in this world until Russia realizes that when other people feel that she is wrong and say so it isn't from a perverse desire to frustrate and destroy the Soviet Union. It is because her policy is leading, at best, to mutually exclusive blocs and hence at worst, another war."

Matthews reports that "the burdensome Russian occupation is leading to reactions against communist parties and even against Russians" all throughout eastern Europe, and that "there is reason to hope that firmness on our part" (in disputes with her) "will lead to adjustments on hers."

Texans Will Hunt Both Deer, Bears

AUSTIN, Nov. 15.—(AP)—If any of you deer hunters encounter a bear tomorrow, it's okay to kill one. But if you encounter two bears, run.

That's the law. It says you may kill just one bear for season which is open Nov. 16 to Dec. 31, both days inclusive, except west of the Pecos. There bear and deer season open Nov. 19 and last through Nov. 24 only.

While most sportsmen consider the Nov. 16 date as the opening of deer season, actually it is the beginning of the hunting season on virtually every type of big game indigenous to Texas.

Exceptions are antelope, on which the season has already opened and closed, and wild sheep and elk. There is no open season on bear in the woods of Hardin and Liberty counties; in fact, there may not be any bear.

The bag limit on deer east of the Pecos is two bucks per season; west of the Pecos it is one white-tail deer and one black tail or mule per season.

Along with the opening of the hunting season on deer tomorrow, it also becomes legal to hunt turkey (gobblers only), with a bag limit of three per season; and Peccary or Javelina, on which the limit is also two per season. Those who know declare that two Javelina per season is all any sane hunter would care to have anything to do with; they are little but mean.

Hunters who are not sure they are familiar with Texas' numerous special game laws should ask the local warden. Otherwise, they are liable to be telling it to a judge.

1946 Oldsmobile On Display Today

The new 1946 Oldsmobile was placed on display yesterday at the Reeves Olds company, temporarily located in the Culberson Chevrolet building.

Many new features are incorporated into the new model and it presents an altogether different styling.

Jess Reeves, local Oldsmobile dealer, has announced the appointment of J. M. Neely, who has been associated with General Motors for 15 years, as manager of the firm.

Neely, a former resident of Pampa, has been in Memphis, Tenn., for the past three years where he was associated with General Motors in a war plant there.

Neely's wife and two children will move to Pampa about the first of 1946.

Labor Meet

Manufacturers, have told reporters management's delegates might have their views ready today. They've been busy framing them at night caucus sessions after conference meetings.

Secretary of Labor Schwelienbach told newsmen the conference was "making definite progress." However, conference Secretary George W. Taylor said the group's executive committee is seeking to spur action on various issues.

None of the conference committees, Taylor said at a news conference, has started to work yet on three important problems. He listed these as (1) recommendations for machinery to handle disputes where collective bargaining has failed; (2) definition of collective bargaining, and (3) consideration of legislation needed to back up conference decisions.

A definition of collective bargaining is deemed necessary because of recent complaints of both labor and management that one or the other fails really to talk out the difficulties involved.

Communists

the reported outbreak of fighting in Tsaoiang, northwest of Hankow, probably signalled a red drive aimed at cutting the Yangtze river route west of Hankow, thus preventing any downward movement of nationalist troops.

First step in such a drive likely would be occupation of the Han river towns of Fancheng and Slangyang, southwest of Tsaoiang, around which the communists have been active.

U. S. "INTERVENTION"

Another official Chinese report said that communist attacks have been rendering repairs to the southern section of the Tientsin-Pukow (Tientsin-Nanking) railroad extremely difficult, and that the work might have to be suspended.

The communist new China Daily News renewed its blasts against American "intervention" today with the accusation that a recent statement of U. S. policy by Secretary of State Robert Patterson was "not truthful." Patterson had announced that U. S. forces would protect American lives and property in China, and that there was no danger of their becoming involved in civil strife unless they were attacked—in which case they would "react with vigor and success."

"His assertion that American forces won't be involved unless they are attacked is the height of ridiculousness," the red newspaper said. It termed "even more ridiculous" Patterson's statement that U. S. forces would be used to protect American lives and property in China.

"If the (American) forces withdraw, there'll be no American lives in North China to protect," it asserted.

The newspaper listed these other unconfirmable charges of American "intervention" today:

America is sending 1,000 tanks to Chiang's armies and is planning to train 10,000 Chinese airmen.

Two American ships loaded with arms and soldiers (presumably Chinese, although the news did not say) recently landed at Tangku near Tientsin, proceeding immediately to Tientsin.

One hundred American-manned tanks are heading for Shanhaiwan, the great wall's coastal gate, en route to the inner Mongolian province of Chahar.

American planes based at Tsingtao are carrying out extensive reconnaissance.

An American plane strafed the north gate of Lini, in southeastern Shantung province, Nov. 2, killing a child.

In the main, these followed ideas which British sources had attributed to Prime Minister Attlee when he first arrived here but they obviously included suggestions which had not come from him.

Throughout the statement, considerable emphasis was placed on the role which the United Nations should play if control of atomic energy is to succeed.

Attlee and MacKenzie King have been in Washington since last Saturday. They are scheduled to leave tomorrow for Canada.

Atom Energy

what was called the "fundamental scientific information" about atomic developments and "the specialized information regarding the practical application of atomic energy."

The three leaders noted that actually the scientific information "has already been made available to the world," and they added that "it is our intention that all further information of this character that may become available from time to time shall be similarly treated."

Obviously with Soviet Russia primarily in mind, then they said that "we trust that other nations will adopt the same policy, thereby creating an atmosphere of reciprocal confidence in which political agreement and cooperation will flourish."

But as for the detailed knowledge of practical application of atomic energy the three asserted that should be kept secret until the world is better organized, through the United Nations, to receive it with strong assurances that it would not be used for destructive purposes.

The statement was issued by President Truman, Attlee and MacKenzie King at a White House press conference held about 10:10 a.m. CST. The three completed their deliberations last midnight.

Shortly before scores of newsmen crowded into the President's office, several senators—including Chairman McMahon (D-Conn.), of the senate's atomic committee—filed in to witness the signing of the joint statement.

Present also were Secretary of State Byrnes, Admiral William D. Leahy, the President's chief of staff, and other officials.

Attlee was seated on the President's right and MacKenzie King on his left.

As silence fell, the President arose behind his desk and told the newsmen that he would read a document signed by the prime ministers and himself.

Any questions, he said, would have to come later when reporters were familiar with the statement. He then read rapidly the entire text.

When he finished he held the text up for those in the room to see the signatures, then informed reporters that that was all he had to say.

The proposals described in the statement presumably will be transmitted immediately to Russia and possibly to all other members of the United Nations.

In the main, these followed ideas which British sources had attributed to Prime Minister Attlee when he first arrived here but they obviously included suggestions which had not come from him.

Proved deadly to bugs by our Armed Forces everywhere!

"Blitz" those bugs with the same famous insect "bomb" used by the Armed Forces! 4 seconds does the job for average room. It isn't necessary to hit insects directly... DDT, pyrethrum and freon gas penetrate to all corners of room to mean sure death to flies, mosquitoes, moths, silver fish, bed-bugs, etc. Simple to use... valve turns on and off with twist of fingers. Not injurious when used as directed. Bomb contains enough to spray 5-room house 14 times. Declare open warfare on pesky bugs!

Panhandle Oil Daily Allowable Set for December

AUSTIN, Nov. 15—(AP)—A state-wide production order issued by the railroad commission today is calculated to result in daily production next month of 1,938,369 barrels of crude oil.

Average daily allowable beginning Dec. 1 will be 2,029,706 barrels but estimated under production of 4.5 per cent of allowable will reduce estimated daily flow of crude to 1,938,369 barrels or 1,631 more than the bureau of mines estimate of December crude demand.

Production of 163,000 barrels daily of natural gasoline and distillate will increase the total petroleum liquid production to 2,101,369 barrels daily or 141,369 barrels more than the bureau of mines total estimate of petroleum liquids for December.

Average daily allowable reported by the commission for the week ended Nov. 10 was 2,026,572 barrels.

December's production pattern includes 25 general producing days and 20 for the East Texas field. In November there were 24 general producing days and East Texas had 20. The Panhandle remains exempt from closing days next month.

The commission ordered a state-wide production hearing in Austin five days next month.

Dec. 18 for testimony upon which a January production schedule will be based.

Comparisons, by districts, of average daily crude oil allowances for Nov. 10 and Dec. 1 with net changes are:

- 1. Southwest Texas, 20,899, up 2,267, up 27.
- 2. South West Texas, 131,770, 132,709, up 939.
- 3. Gulf Coast, 449,578, 453,337, up 3,759.
- 4. Southwest Texas, 215,672, 217,299, up 1,627.
- 5. East Central Texas, 37,404, 37,017, up 513.
- 6. East Texas (outside), 99,082, 99,535, up 453.
- 7. East Texas Proper, 318,454, 308,748, down 9,706.
- 8. West Central Texas, 34,725, 34,851, up 126.
- 9. West Central Texas, 25,401, 25,505, up 104.
- 10. West Texas, 461,192, 465,799, up 4,607.
- 11. North Texas, 135,130, 135,813, up 683.
- 12. Panhandle, 97,265, 97,267, up 2.

U. S. Soldiers Make Themselves At Home No Matter Where They Are American soldiers have a way of making themselves at home, no matter where they are stationed, be it Iceland, Japan or Germany.

In their off-duty hours, soldiers participate in sports, visit places of interest, and shop for souvenirs in native shops and bazaars.

A group of soldiers assigned to a base in Iceland, for instance, found they could hire Icelandic ponies for seventy-five cents an hour. Soon most of them became expert horsemen, although they were serving in a highly mechanized army.

The regular army, which offers travel, adventure, vocational training, and security, now is open to enlistments by qualified civilians 18 to 34 years of age, inclusive. Such enlistees can choose their branch of service as well as the theater in which they prefer duty.

Soldiers who enlist or reenlist in the regular army retain their present ratings and allowances. They, too, can choose the theater in which they prefer assignment.

A soldier is provided with good food and clothing and comfortable living quarters by the army, as well with free medical and dental care. He has the benefit of low-cost life insurance and receives a month of

"A REAL THANKSGIVING"

Yes, this year we have real cause to give thanks. With victory won, our fighting men are coming home in increasing numbers. Scarce items are appearing, once more, on shelves and counters. But sugar supplies will not meet demand for a short time longer. In the meantime, always ask your grocer for Imperial sugar. The quick-dissolving, pure cane crystals provide maximum sweetening and help you get the most from your limited sugar supplies.

Demands Made for Larger Allowable In Oil Production

AUSTIN, Nov. 15.—Firm demand for a larger oil production allowable in December was reflected in testimony of operators before the Texas railroad commission yesterday.

Nominations, the gauge upon which the December production pattern will be partly based, increased from the current 2,123,177 barrels daily to 2,220,596 barrels daily, up 97,419.

This was despite a bureau of mines forecast that Texas' December demand would be 1,940,000 barrels daily.

Humble Oil and Refining company, the state's largest producer and purchaser, increased December nominations by 35,000 barrels on a statewide basis. Even with this allowable, a company spokesman said, daily stock withdrawals would total 32,000 barrels. The company said it had firm additional demand for sweet crude from all fields except East Texas and Tom O'Connor.

In southwest Texas Barnsdall, Sun and Pan-American sought larger production in the Pecos, McFadden, Garcia, North Sun and Sun Fields.

Although it operates in the gulf coast area, Eastern States Petroleum company announced it would need 220,000 barrels additional daily of West Texas crudes in December.

The lone request for increased allowable in a West Texas field came from Gulf Refining company which sought 1,000 barrels per day more in the Keystone-Elenberger fields.

In the north Texas area the KMA Pressure Maintenance association proposed that the KMA field allowable be reduced slightly in line with engineering data that indicated less gas, produced concurrently with oil, would be wasted on the basis of a stabilized production schedule somewhat below the present schedule. Gulf concurred in this suggestion.

The commission reported an increase in bottomhole pressure in the East Texas field of 478 pounds per square inch per million barrels of oil produced between Sept. 1 and Nov. 1. The weighted average pressure increase during the period was 9.55 pounds per square inch.

The commission indicated that the December production schedule would be issued this week.

In 1945 about 73,000 persons or 52 1/2 per cent belonged to 256 religious bodies in the United States.

Murphy, N. C., is nearer six other state capitals than it is to its own—Raleigh. They are Atlanta, Montgomery, Nashville, Columbia, Frankfort, Charleston.

Atomic Bombing Jolted Thinking Of All America

WASHINGTON, Nov. 15.—(AP)—A rearer unless he kept score, might be astounded at the mass of comment on atomic energy, piled up in the newspaper files, since the bomb hit Hiroshima last August.

That bomb jolted American thinking. It seems now that everyone has an idea on how atomic energy should be run and atomic energy controlled.

The ideas range like this: Set up a world republic, keep the secret, outlaw the bomb, let the United Nations organization (UNO) handle it, furnish UNO with a task force of atomic bombers, let the international court of justice solve international disputes, its word to be final.

Senator Glen Taylor, Idaho democrat, proposed in a Senate resolution that a world republic be set up. Men have long dreamed of the part of one government. But this would mean the end of national independence as we know it.

Taylor told the senate he's disappointed that his suggestion hasn't received more notice. He added that when he first came here and sang on the Capitol steps he got a lot of attention.

The suggestion that we keep the secret and supply the UNO with a task force of atomic bombers to keep world peace may seem all right to Americans, but other nations are apt to be a little worried.

Both Sides Are Now Scrapping For White Meat

Most discouraging aspect of the labor-management conference is not that both sides are fighting over the white meat, but rather that it's kill a fight over the same old scrawny chicken—instead of a battle for a fuller and richer menu.

In a sense, this is what Mr. Truman meant when he opened the conference with a sound plea for more production. For more goods should mean lower prices—and lower prices should make both labor's and management's dollars go farther. But the President is basically inconsistent. For neither labor nor management can adequately step up production under the Rooseveltian domestic and foreign policies which Mr. Truman continues to pursue.

Production can't soar while people are paid for refusing to take jobs which are available. And production won't soar as high as it should so long as billions of dollars in American tax receipts continue to be recklessly rocketed across the seas to finance foreign production, and sale to America, of things Americans should be permitted to make for themselves.

The wool hasn't been pulled over the eyes of one union member in Southern Illinois, who asked me the other day: "If the administration really thinks inflation is such a threat that I should buy all the Victory Bonds I can stand, why does it favor increasing my wages enough to put more money in circulation than the bonds take out of circulation? Why does it keep loaning or giving billions to foreign countries if its own people don't have enough to meet the cost of living? And, if the administration doesn't want to give those billions to the factory men and women it says deserve a raise, why won't it let management charge enough for the stuff we make to pay us the difference?"

Socialist Britain, of course, will make a handy precedent for a subsequent loan to more-Socialist Russia. It was also on the opening day of the labor-management conference that the Moscow radio blurted forth the ridiculous charge that "American isolationists" (Hoover, Taft and Wheeler, of all people) had been the "originators of the idea of using economic and military might as a means of exerting pressure on other countries."

So the pattern of official "labor" leadership in this country remains as apparent as it was even before Hillman's CIO political action committee launched its first purge attempt—which, you will recall, was more concerned (in the fake name of "labor") with knocking off congressmen who opposed sending our boys to die in war, than it was with rebuking congressmen whose policies it felt to be detrimental to the genuine welfare of working men and women.

The foreign policy of the Roosevelt and Truman administrations, and the damnable Trojan Horse leadership of much of America's decent, deserving labor, are two faces of the same coin. Our foreign policy—from Roosevelt's "quarantine aggressors" speech at the dedication of a Chicago bridge in 1937, down through repeal of the arms embargo in 1939, "lease-lend," repeal of the neutrality law, "shoot-on-sight" and all the rest—took us into a war that turned Britain Socialist and added immeasurably to Communist Russia's size and power, while much of our labor leadership was bringing up strong Marxist artillery to capitalize upon every erg of physical and economic energy which war has cost the United States.

Today's Schedule Of Redeployment

PAMPA'S TEEN-CANTEEN

For several months organizations and groups of citizens have sought a teen-canteen for Pampa's youth. There has been a marked need for such gathering center for teen-age people here, as there has been in all other cities of the country.

The American Legion and the V. F. W. are to be commended for sponsoring a teen-canteen here. It is now in operation in the Legion hall at the corner of Russell and Foster streets. First reports from officials indicate that it is catering to a large majority of the young people.

In commending these organizations, we do not forget the effort by other persons in the past, effort which in some way has resulted in the consummation of this canteen.

The community will watch with interest and sincere satisfaction the growth of this movement here. What will be needed to make it even more successful in offering something beneficial to the youth is the cooperation of all citizens. The organizations have started the movement here; but they cannot be held accountable altogether for its successful operation.

Nation's Press

AN OPA URKASE

(The Wall Street Journal)

The Office of Price Administration has assumed the power to tell a manufacturer of peacetime goods what grade of merchandise he will be permitted to make.

This newspaper seriously doubts that Congress ever intended that OPA should do any such thing. If Congress has so intended, we suggest it immediately change the law to make clear that no such power rests with OPA or any other branch of the government.

Specifically, the OPA set ceiling prices on household washers and irons, allowing a small percentage increase over pre-war prices. But one manufacturer was denied any increase on the grounds that he was not planning to make the same percentage of low priced merchandise that he had previously made.

How does OPA know that the character of consumer demand is the same as it was a few years ago? How does it know that housewives want the lower priced product rather than an improved product at a higher price? Suppose that the maker complies with the OPA order and makes lower priced merchandise which does not sell readily. Who will start the resulting loss? Certainly not the OPA and so we have again an exercise of authority and the attempt to enforce decisions with no responsibility for the result of the decisions.

Desires of consumers change. The Model T Ford was once very popular but automobile buyers came to prefer a different car at a higher price. If OPA had functioning would it have ordered Mr. Ford to continue making the Model T?

Also the OPA has carried out its policy of making distributors of washers and irons absorb part of the increased cost of manufacture, which they can do only by reducing their profit. The natural result will be that small dealers who have managed to stay in business during the war period when they had no goods to sell will now be denied the chance to resume a fully profitable business. The sale of these appliances, however, regardless of the number of people who are freed from participation in the payment.

If Congress really wants to lighten the burden of taxation, let it reduce the volume of national expenditures. Drastic economy will benefit all taxpayers. It will not increase the tax bills of the few in order to remove all the tax burdens of the many. It will reduce the number of years that war time tax levels will have to be retained. That is the only possible way to accomplish a tax reduction which is effective and fair and equitable.

Gracie Reports

Well, some big brave psychology professor has declared war on Santa Claus. He says instead of teaching our children about Santa, we should instruct them in the ways of democracy.

Goodness, I'm not particularly enthusiastic about a congressional committee coming down the chimney, if that's what he means. Although maybe that idea isn't too far off.

There's nothing wrong with Santa's democracy. He stops at every house, not just the ones with the biggest chimneys. And he brings happiness to folks in every walk of life.

Does this psychologist really think we'd have been a stronger nation if Santa Claus had been blacklisted years ago? Why, I'll bet little Harry Truman used to lie awake listening for the reindeer's hoofbeats. And little Ike Eisenhower, back in Kansas, used to hear Santa's laugh on Christmas eve. Believe me, democracy didn't suffer any because they believed in Santa Claus.

Junior had become the proud owner of a pig, and insisted on caring for it himself.

After a few weeks, his father noticed that the animal did not appear to thrive, and remarked:

Father—Junior, you're not feeding your pig enough. It doesn't seem to be fattening at all.

Junior—I don't want to fatten him. I'm waiting until he gets as lean as I want him, then I'll begin to fatten him out.

The National Whirligig

ROWS—A vicious tug of war for position in formulation of the Truman-Snyder program has developed between the liberals and conservatives in his official family. It threatens to become a far more disastrous squabble than the many previous struggles which troubled Franklin D. Roosevelt.

The President's attempts to satisfy both groups and their supporters throughout the country, account for his reluctance to sponsor more definite policies in this field, and for the further fact that so far he has pleased neither faction. Although the dispute is now confined to the rows between labor and management, it threatens to spill over into other areas, including the domination of foreign affairs.

ANTICS—An honor man in the tug of war is Henry A. Wallace, runner-up to Mr. Truman at the Chicago convention, and the President's old-time banking friend from St. Louis. Reconversion Director John W. Snyder, inasmuch as the latter is the protégé of Henry's old-time rival, Jesse H. Jones, the present feud is really round two in the Wallace-Jones struggle in Washington.

The radicals charge that Mr. Snyder, as a conservative financier, wants immediate termination of federal controls on prices of everything from food to homes. They allege that he double-crossed Chester Bowles by removing ceilings on home-building costs at the very moment when the price administrator was insisting that they be retained.

SENSELESS—The Wallsters go so far as to say Mr. Snyder withheld vital data on this subject from his old-time friend in the White House. They point out that the reconversion director's economic staff, under the auspices of President Truman, Wallace is co-chairman with Labor Secretary Lewis B. Schwelbenbach.

The latter agrees with the Truman-Snyder theory that these delicate questions must be worked out through laborious bargaining. He does not believe that they can be solved overnight by the Wallace formula. Quite as liberal in his views as the Secretary of Commerce, he prefers to make things slow.

But the division in Mr. Truman's family plays into the hands of reactionaries on both sides. Labor will cite the Wallace figures, while the Secretary will point to the President's deliberate and unrelenting policy. And the victims of this latest brawl at the Capital will be the workers and the consumers.

CENSORSHIP'S MOST IMPORTANT LAST ACT

By PETER EDSON

NEA WASHINGTON Correspondent
WASHINGTON—A sealed package to be opened only on order of the President, the office of censorship is sending to the National Archives a microfilm copy of more than 1000 "hot" letters, cables intercepted during the war. This is censorship's most important last act before going out of business Nov. 15.

The cache of war secrets communications to be filed in the Archives building represents less than 1 percent of the letters and messages which Censorship intercepted. In all it stopped an average of 1000 suspicious communications a day for nearly four years. Over a million pieces of mail were examined for invisible ink or hidden meanings or clues.

Over 99 percent of the mail intercepted and copied was found to contain nothing of value. The original letters have all been turned in a glorious bonfire to safeguard American traditions of privacy rights of the individual. The one letter out of 1000 that has been considered worth saving has been indexed as to name of sender, addressee and subject matter. The index has also been microfilmed and sent for safe-keeping.

But the chance these secret files will ever be broken is rather remote. It will take a presidential order to

RESPONSE

The Truman-Snyder omission brought an immediate response from the Wallace camp, which implied a criticism of the President and his reconversion director, Mr. Snyder, incidentally, is a Roosevelt appointee.

The secretary of commerce released his own calculations on prospective profits, wages and prices in the automobile industry, although the problems of the heavy manufacturers do not fall within his jurisdiction.

Superficial reports of the Wallace findings said that they proved the contention that if they were carried out, they would raise wages by twenty-five percent in 1946 and 1947, sell cars at the 1942 levels and still make even greater profits than they did in the prewar years. They did nothing of the kind.

But Mr. Wallace's voluntary intervention aggravated the disputes in a way which Mr. Truman and Mr. Snyder had tried to avoid. It threw fuel on the flames.

The C. I. O. seized on the report as proof of the economic justice and soundness of their demands. Industry decided to fight rather than negotiate. The result may be a disastrous strike in an industry which employs more than five million people, directly and indirectly.

HYPOTHESES—The Wallace report, however bristles with unverifiable assumptions and wishful expectations when it is read carefully. It is packed with slide-rule hypotheses of the kind which President Truman carefully avoided in trying to send people back to work in the postwar period.

The key conclusion in the Wallace document rests on four premises which his own language concedes to be questionable. Here is the gist of the hypotheses:

1. A twenty-five percent wage increase and some increase in material costs, profits three times larger than in the 1936-1939 period can be expected on sales two-and-a-half times as large in 1947 and 1948 on the basis of 1942 prices.

THREAT—Secretary Wallace's quixotic tilting in this disturbed arena is a threat to the eventual success of the labor-management negotiations which opened Monday under the auspices of President Truman. Wallace is co-chairman with Labor Secretary Lewis B. Schwelbenbach.

The latter agrees with the Truman-Snyder theory that these delicate questions must be worked out through laborious bargaining. He does not believe that they can be solved overnight by the Wallace formula. Quite as liberal in his views as the Secretary of Commerce, he prefers to make things slow.

But the division in Mr. Truman's family plays into the hands of reactionaries on both sides. Labor will cite the Wallace figures, while the Secretary will point to the President's deliberate and unrelenting policy. And the victims of this latest brawl at the Capital will be the workers and the consumers.

DAY-BY-DAY COUNT ON WASHINGTON'S ACTIVITIES GIVEN

By DAVID LAWRENCE

WASHINGTON—If one were to drop into Washington from a far-off land of communications with the rest of the world, one might get the definite impression that the Allies have just lost a war due to failure to have a single department which handles the defense in the United States, and that there is another war just around the corner.

Something of a panic seems to have seized a large number of our military leaders and staffs in the army, navy and air corps. It's a panic that presents a phenomenon wholly unparalleled in so-called post-war periods of our history.

Having been given billions of dollars of the taxpayers' money to fight the war, and being accustomed to things on a large military scale, they are now being asked to do some of these military folks to let go of their habits of wartime spending and to reconvert themselves to something normal, hitherto called peacetime.

Ever since V-E day there has been a frantic reaching for publicity, with incessant pressure on the public and on congress. The big parades of generals and admirals, for instance, were spontaneous celebrations so far as the observing people were concerned but behind these events were the big publicity machines of the armed services.

The purpose—other than to extend deserved recognition for a job well done—was considered legitimate, too, namely to build up the prestige of the generals and admirals so that the names of the military spokesmen would be big enough to impress congress and the country when they were asked to the legislators and the press.

The army air forces have been most energetic in presenting their case in pamphlets and booklets and reports with four-colored printing and fancy maps and drawings, all calculated to prove perhaps that, while the artillery and artillery or even the navy incidentally had something to do with the war, it was really won by the army air forces in Europe and also in the Pacific.

If one looks through these supposedly impartial surveys of how we won the war, he finds perhaps a few sentences devoted to the other arms. As for the boys still in the Pacific and in Europe, they want to come home to a peaceful America. Is the slowness of demobilization due to the preoccupation of some of our military leaders with programs for defense to fight imminent wars, or is the military machine so set up that it must get congress to continue appropriating billions so as to have the country from the horrors of another war in which America may be caught unprepared. They pay lip service to the United Nations charter because that's tactful. They speak contemptuously of the atomic bomb as not having won the war. If the air forces had been allowed to do it, says Major De Sevsky—one of their spokesmen sent abroad by Secretary Patterson to conduct surveys on what air bombing did while the army air force of course could have won the Japanese war without the atomic bomb.

All this licks the navy men, who think they really had something to do with winning the big bases from which the army air forces flew their planes, including the two planes with the atomic bombs in them. There are some similarities with white crosses on Tarawa, Saipan, Guam, Iwo Jima, Guadalcanal, New Guinea and the Philippines where the ground troops of the army and the marine corps who paid with their lives to capture objectives needed by the army air forces.

Today the publicity drive is being continued on the idea of a single department of national defense. The army and the army air forces want it. The navy does not. As a matter of fact, there is merit in some phases of the proposal but this has been obscured to a large extent by a suspicion voiced in national defense circles that the proposal is just a scheme to give the

World Today

Danger signals fly high over shattered Germany as winter closes in with its stark hunger and other privations which hold their threat of revolt.

This crisis finds Allied administration falling short of full efficiency due largely to France's inability to agree with numerous measures until assured that her Allies will support her proposal for international control of the Ruhr and French occupation of the Rhine-land. This divergence is now under discussion between America and France in Washington.

Aprons of this critical situation I have a letter from an old friend—a trained observer—now in Germany. He writes largely of the all-important relationship between conquerors and conquered, and here's what he says in part:

"It is a strange feeling to move unarmored among the world's conquerors of the world. A few months ago they would have attacked you as an enemy. Now some look away, some are curious, many have a cold impersonal look in their eyes—partly wounded pride at defeat, partly preoccupation with the pressing cares of food and fuel for the winter."

"From many of the young element you get a hard look behind which seems to lurk a steely hatred, as though you had robbed them of their future. These fellows feel that you have knocked the bottom out of their lives and taken away the inspiration of a great cause to live for without replacing it with a comparable challenge. To be toppled from would-be conquerors of the world to unemployed citizens of

De Sevsky school of thought complete control of strategy and planning and that it means the scrapping of battleships, cruisers, destroyers and aircraft carriers and the reliance of the United States on the army air forces to dominate the single department of defense.

Anybody who goes to the navy department and talks five minutes on this subject with officers here and there can feel the hostility and suspicion, and also hear expressed a sincere fear that far from improving our defense set-up we shall wreck it by disunity and disregard for the specialization of the navy and marine corps.

But the innocent observer will wonder: What's the hurry, is an other war imminent? The war department spokesmen insist on immediate action and accuse the navy forces of wanting to delay decision. It's hurry, hurry, as if the danger were next week or next year. Surely Secretary Byrnes of the department of state hasn't indicated that we are on the verge of another world conflict. As for the boys still in the Pacific and in Europe, they want to come home to a peaceful America.

Is the slowness of demobilization due to the preoccupation of some of our military leaders with programs for defense to fight imminent wars, or is the military machine so set up that it must get congress to continue appropriating billions so as to have the country from the horrors of another war in which America may be caught unprepared. IV

THE ATOMIC ERA

ON 6 August the entire world learned from President Truman's announcement that man had entered into a new era—that atomic power had been harnessed.

This discovery of American scientists can be man's greatest benefit. And it can destroy him. It is against the latter terrible possibility that this nation must prepare or perish. Atomic power will affect the peaceful life of every individual on earth. And it will at the same time affect every instrument and technique of destruction. But the atomic bomb is not alone among the scientific advances that make the possibilities of the future so terrifying. The development of aircraft and rockets and electronics has become equally incredible. In order to prevent any possible misconception of the terrible potentialities of the future, I asked the Commanding General of the Army-Air Forces to prepare an estimate of the capabilities of other modern weapons. His report is confined to the certainties but, as is obvious from the atomic bomb, the developments of the war have been so incredible that wildest imagination will not project us far from the target in estimating the future. Much of the information has until now properly been classified highly secret in our development research laboratories, or in our testing establishments, or in the communications of the American and United States realize the possibilities of the future, that I here quote from General Arnold's report:

"At the start of this war we had bombers capable of 200 miles per hour with a combat radius of 900 miles, effective operational ceilings of 24,000 feet, and bomb load capacity of 6,000 pounds. Today our development of this type aircraft has given us bombers capable of carrying 20,000 pounds of bombs to targets 1,600 miles away at speeds of 350 miles an hour and altitudes of over 35,000 feet. Radar has improved our bombing technique so that we can now attack a target effectively even though it be obscured by weather

Oldtime ranch re-live many occasions by studying these old photographs. The photos include the La Laurel Leaf camp opposite the mouth of Rush Creek, made in 1886; the sheds on the old Springer ranch, made in 1888; the first frame Hemphill county courthouse, 1887; the "Canadian" band, the first local election; the old Springer ranch, founded in November of 1875 by A. G. Springer; a familiar street scene in Canadian in 1912, showing a freight outfit of 30 mules and three wagons which freighted between Canadian and Cehemyre, Okla.; pictures of R. Dick Russell, onetime buffalo hunter, and many other pioneers; picture of IOOP rodeo, made about 1895; first building in Canadian, erected about 1887; oldtime chuck wagon scene; a posse of men searching for bank robbers near Medicine Lodge, Kans., 1883; two scenes of the hanging of a bank robber at Clayton, N. M.; four scenes of early Mobeetie; and many others.

The pictures originally belonged to J. A. Chambers, father of Frank Chambers.

Report on the War
General George C. Marshall
Biennial Report of the Chief of Staff of the U. S. Army 1943 to 1945, to the Secretary of War
Published by NEA Service, Inc. in co-operation with the War Department or darkness. We will produce within the next few years jet-propelled bombers capable of flying 500 to 600 miles an hour to targets 1,500 miles away at altitudes of over 40,000 feet. Development of even greater bombers capable of operating at stratospheric altitudes and speeds faster than sound are being planned. Today our conventional fighters have speeds of 500 miles an hour, combat ranges of 1,300 miles, and effective ceilings of 35,000 feet. Improvement of our jet fighters may well produce within the next five years an aircraft capable of reaching targets 2,000 miles away at altitudes of above 50,000 feet. When the barrier of compressibility has been hurdled, as it surely will be, there is no practical limit to the speed of piloted aircraft.

This is the fourth of 42 installments of material selected from General Marshall's report on the winning of World War II.

At the onset of this war demobilization bombs ranged in size from 20 to 2,000 pounds with a few light case 4,000 pound blast bombs. The explosive filling of these bombs was standard TNT. During the war, new bombs have been developed, the entire range from small 4-pound antipersonnel missiles to 22,000 pound deep penetration city smashers. At this very moment we are making a single bomb weighing 45,000 pounds to keep pace with the developments of our modern construction, which will carry such a load. Air ordnance engineers have blueprinted a bomb weighing 100,000 pounds.

"When World War II began we had no rockets. So far the most spectacular rocket of the war has been the V-2. This weapon has extended artillery range to 200 miles with little sacrifice in accuracy. Defense against such weapons requires piloted and pilotless aircraft capable of fantastic speeds, or powered missiles capable of finding, intercepting, and destroying the attacker in the air and at his launching sites or by methods and devices as yet undeveloped. We can direct rockets to targets by electronic devices and new instruments which give them accurately to sources of heat, light, and magnetism. Drawn by their own fuses such rockets will streak unerringly to the heart of big factories, attracted by the heat of the furnaces. They are so sensitive that in the space of a large room they aim themselves toward a man who enters, in reaction to the heat of his body.

American Cities May Be Bombed
"All of these weapons and their possible combinations make the air approaches of a country the points of extreme danger. Many Americans do not yet understand the full implication of the formless rubble of Berlin and of the cities of Japan. With the continued development and technical progress now known to us, the cities of New York, Pittsburgh, Detroit, Chicago, or San Francisco may be subject to annihilation from other continents in a matter of hours.

"The Navy, now the strongest in the world, will protect our shores against attack from the most vicious enemy who might challenge through the sea approaches, but we must also now be prepared to oppose stratospheric environment with the techniques and weapons discussed above. It is clear that the only defense against the new warfare is the ability to attack. We must secure our Nation by ourselves developing and maintaining these weapons, troops, and techniques required to warn aggressors and deter them from launching modern devastating war against us."

Nothing will contribute more to an understanding of the needs of future security than a clear understanding of what has occurred in this war, the strategic decisions, the reasons for them, and the operations by which they were executed. The press and radio have given the American people a thorough day-by-day account of the progress of the war within the limitations of necessary security; never before have the details of military campaigns been so quickly, so accurately, and so completely reported. Yet because of the very bulk of the information plus the blank spots of essential secrecy it has been difficult for the public to place the developments in their proper perspective. It now becomes possible to examine them in retrospect with an emphasis more nearly approaching that which history is likely to give them.

Navy Offers New Program For Volunteer Enlistment

H. F. Longbach, officer in charge of the Amarillo U. S. navy recruiting station, announced today that men now volunteering for service in the regular navy will have the option of electing either two, three, four or six year terms of enlistment. Regular navy term of service previously has been four years.

Men volunteering for a first enlistment or reenlistment in the regular navy are now given an option of the length of time they wish to serve. Applicants 17 years of age may now be enlisted for two years, three years, or not to exceed minority. Men enlisting for minority are automatically discharged when they reach the age of 21.

Applicants in the age group of 18 to 30 inclusive may now be enlisted for either two, three, four or six years. The navy also announced that men over 30 will be eligible for enlistment in the regular navy if their total previous military or naval service or active service in the naval reserve deducted from their present age place them in the 18-30 group.

Ratings for which first enlistments in the regular navy may be made without previous military or naval service are: apprentice seaman, hospital apprentice, second class, stewards mate, third class, and seaman, first class (radio technician) only.

Offering men the option of electing two, four or six year terms of service is expected to accelerate still further the current brisk rate of voluntary enlistments in the regular navy. Out of a total of 32,511 voluntary enlistments in the months of August and September, 17,977 were for the regular navy. This does not include changeovers within the service from the U. S. naval reserve to the regular establishment. Incomplete reports show that more than 9000 of these men have switched to USN in the same period.

The navy's voluntary enlistments for 1945 through September total 252,354, most of which are for the U. S. naval reserve where they are committed to serve on active duty for the duration of the war plus six months, unless sooner discharged. Apart from USNR, the regular navy's need is estimated at 24,000 a month for the next ten months.

Other new and attractive inducements for men considering the regular navy are provided in the voluntary recruitment act of 1945 just passed by congress and signed by President Truman. In a summary of the new recruitment act Chief Longbach mentioned:

Reenlistment gratuity of fifty dollars in all pay grades for each year served in the current term of active duty. Previously the amount was only 25 dollars for men below the first three pay grades.

Immediate payment of mustering-out pay, instead of waiting until final separation from service.

Up to 60 days leave with transportation provided both ways.

Permanent extension of wartime 20 percent extra allowance for sea and overseas duty.

Family allowances extended for full period of enlistments and reenlistments made prior to 1 July 1946.

Option is re-opened for men in first three pay grades to receive either money allowance for quarters for dependents or family allowance.

G. I. Bill of Rights benefits assured at end of new enlistment.

Free postage until 31 December 1947.

"The navy offers training in 50 skilled trades," Longbach continued, "and with the added benefits of this new legislation the advantages of an enlistment in the navy should command the attention of every wide awake young man today."

"The United States now has the most powerful navy the world has ever seen. But, the navy's job did not end with the surrender of Japan. There's still a big job to be done. The navy must police the seas and supply our faraway bases if we expect to win the peace. More and more men are needed to man the peacetime navy and replace men who have seen long war service."

The Amarillo U. S. navy recruiting station is located at 302 Post Office Bldg. Recruiters are in Pampa every other Tuesday at the Post Office. They will next be in Pampa Nov. 27.

Wildcats First To Don Shoulder Patch

By NEA Service
In 1918, when they sailed for France, men of the 81st infantry division wore a cloth patch on their left shoulder featuring the silhouette of a wildcat on an olive drab circle.

The patch was the subject of much discussion by men of other divisions, who questioned the right of the 71st doughs to the distinctive addition to their uniform. The matter was finally brought to the attention of Gen. John J. Pershing, and "Black Jack" not only ruled that the Wildcat division could keep its patch, but suggested all other units likewise adopt a distinctive identifying insignia.

In that war, the Wildcats fought with distinction against the Germans, and in World War II they fought with equal valor against the Japanese.

The 81st began its drive against the Nips in September, 1944, with the capture of Angaur island. After 35 consecutive days of fighting, the last Japanese cave was entered, and the only Japs left on the island were dead ones.

Elements of the 81st fought alongside the First marine division in the bloody and costly conquest of Pelelieu island. On this rocky Pacific pile, the Wildcats had literally to root the Nips out of their deep caves set in the sides of precipitous cliffs. Men of the 81st scaled the slopes, and dug the Japs out with bayonets, grenades and dynamite charges.

Later, the Wildcats mopped up Negesbus, Kongaru and Garakayo island.

Soviet Censorship of News Seems Now To Be Only Formality--Thanks to Gilmore

By REMBERT JAMES

MOSCOW, Nov. 13.—(AP)—Soviet censorship of outgoing news dispatches, recently protested by American and British correspondents in Moscow, appears to have been reduced to a mere formality.

There has been no official announcement of a change in Russian policy and foreign correspondents still are submitting their dispatches for stamping by the censors. But for almost a week all Associated Press dispatches have been passed without any deletions—an experience shared by other correspondents.

The first hint of a possible relaxation of censorship restrictions came the night of Nov 7 during a friendly conversation between Soviet Foreign Commissar Vyacheslav Molotov and Associated Press correspondents Eddy Gilmore, when they clinked glasses in a toast to better Russian-American understanding.

The occasion was a reception given by Molotov during the celebration of the 28th anniversary of the red revolution. Following his usual custom at such events, Molotov began at mid-night to move through the throng of diplomats, military men, journalists and other guests, extending his personal greetings to them.

He was followed by waiters bearing vodka, wine and glasses. After drinking a toast with the Chinese ambassador, Molotov walked up to Gilmore and said:

"I want to drink a toast with American Correspondent Gilmore. 'If you were in my position what sort of toast would you propose?'"

Gilmore replied that he supposed the foreign commissar should propose a toast to a better understanding between the press of the Soviet Union and the United States.

"That is a good toast," said Molotov, "but what is your main issue as a correspondent now?"

"Mine is trying to write an interpretation of your speech last night at the Kremlin, which I thought was the most important in months," Gilmore answered.

"Come, now," said Molotov, "you are not a politician and I will not be one. You know you correspondents do not like Soviet censorship. You want to wipe it out."

Well, sir, you read our letter and got our telegram," said Gilmore, referring to the protest which the Anglo-American Correspondents' association of Moscow had filed with Molotov concerning the continuation of censorship after the end of the war. Molotov had answered the protest by saying he found "without substance" certain points in which the protest was based.

"What would you say if I told you I would agree to reciprocity?" Molotov inquired.

"I think it would be a very fine thing," Gilmore replied.

Molotov beamed and suggested they drink "to a better understanding of both our countries."

After the foreign commissar had moved on a foreign diplomat who had witnessed the proceedings whispered to Gilmore: "I think you have got censorship lifted."

Whether or not this is so, correspondents have come to feel during the past few days that they can be reasonably sure that their stories will go through without deletions or delay for the first time since Germany invaded the Soviet Union.

Timetable Necessary If Santa Claus Has Nylons for Ladies

NEW YORK, Nov. 15.—If Santa Claus is to bring "her" those nylons on Christmas morning, the kind of nylon timetable the hosiery mills will have to meet is revealed in Textile World, McGraw-Hill publication:

"Five weeks from receipt of yarn to knitted fabric in quantity. One week from knitted fabric to gray finished hose. One week from finished hose to boxed and ready-to-ship hose. Two weeks from ready-to-ship to consumer distribution."

This is based on the conversion of five Chadbourne Hosiery Mills, Charlotte, N. C., to nylon. "Wide distribution will result in a thin spread of hose to the consumer, and the speed of distribution depends upon yarn supply and the skill of production executives now engaged in changing from rayon to nylon," the article states, explaining that technical difficulties are as important as distribution factors in determining an early supply of nylon.

WTS Variety Show Proves To Be Popular

CANYON, Nov. 15.—Popularity of West Texas State's current variety show is measured by the number of invitations it is receiving for appearances in various Panhandle cities. These are more numerous than the acceptances possible.

Recent trips include one to Amarillo high school and another to Amarillo army air field. Bookings are being made by Prof. Glenn A. Trux, director, and Boone McClure.

Personnel of the variety show is changed from week to week to spread the work and broaden the experience of the student participants. The entertainers include the Buffalo band, a swing band, vocalists, tap dancers, vocal trio, instrumental duets, readers, vocal duets, tumblers, twirlers, and the chorus composed of the entire cast.

One of the unit's most experienced groups is the college trio, composed of Winnie Fred Ramage of Borger, junior; Mary Evelyn Fox of Borger, junior; and Mary Lee Abbott of McLean, junior.

Magazine Editor Urges Citizens To Write Washington Congressmen

TOPEKA, Kans. — If the people want the government to get its feet back on the ground and practice the rigid economy so necessary now, they should tell their congressmen and senators so, according to Ray Yarnell, editor of Capper's Farmer.

"Good old Uncle Sam is being asked to reduce the taxes his voting relatives have to pay," Yarnell writes in the November issue of the farm magazine. "At the same time Uncle Sam is being asked to put his spending and lending program and to dig up the cash to carry it out.

"It is a cockeyed situation. It doesn't make sense. It looks like a sure way for Sam to go broke or to get pretty badly bent.

"War piled up a debt for this country that soon may total 300 billion dollars. That is about $2,200 for every man, woman and child in the United States.

"That debt is the first thing folks ought to think about when they ask for a reduction in taxes or when they advocate or permit themselves to be influenced in favor of a big new spending program.

"If this nation is to continue to pour out billions that foreign nations are asking as loans or outright donations and to finance all

Black Hawks Busy In Brief Action

By NFA Service

The 86th Infantry (Black Hawk) division holds the unique record of having been the last division in and the first division out of the Western Front.

The Black Hawks fought for only 42 days in Europe. But during that brief spell in action they earned considerable respect for their speed, courage and coolness under fire.

The 86th served under four armies—Fifteenth, First, Seventh and Third—was the first American division to cross the Danube, and fought with distinction in the mop-up of the Ruhr pocket.

The Black Hawk doughboys crossed the Rhine at Bonn, pushing on deep into Germany, taking numerous towns and cities en route. At Echstatt, the Black Hawks liberated a large number of Allied prisoners of war.

By April 26, the 86th had moved to a position just outside the Ingolstadt, closest to the Danube. Defying heavy concentrations of artillery fire, the Black Hawk doughs drove through the city and onto the banks of the Danube, spearheading the advance of the Third army on the river.

In the evening, under cover of a heavy protective barrage, the Black Hawks shoved off for the far side of the Danube. They quickly secured a bridgehead, fought off an enemy counterattack, and pushed steadily inland.

Fighting against desperately resisting German and Hungarian Storm Troopers, the 86th swept everything before them in their steady advance into Austria. At the end of the war they were in Pergau. They had covered ground so quickly that they had left their own kitchens far behind.

BLAZING PROOF SALT LAKE CITY, Nov. 15.—(AP)—Municipal firemen proved that it is possible to save time by walking.

The smoke eaters left their equipment at the station, walked to the scene of a healthy blaze and had it out before an alarm could be turned in.

The fire was in an adjacent building.
