Slashes in State, Commerce and Justice Department Funds Recommended

Estimate Cut 13 Percent by Pending Bill

WASHINGTON — (AP) — Demanding elimination of what it called a "deeply entrenched x x x spending psychology" among federal officials, the house appropriations committee today recommended deep slashes in state, commerce and justice department funds.

It sent to the house floor a $358,825,758 bill to finance the three departments and the federal judiciary for the fiscal year starting next July 1. The total represents a 13 percent cut from budget estimates but a $40,510,759 boost over current year funds.

MONEY EARMARKED

By agency's money was earmarked: $14,024,160 for commerce; $164,783,408 for state; $95,163,250 for justice; and $15,839,190 for the judiciary.

All but a small part of the increase went to the commerce and state departments, whose foreign work has been augmented by war's end.

The committee allowed no funds at all for the state department's separate intelligence unit, chopped its estimate for expanded cultural relations activities, almost in half, and sharply pared commerce department requests for the census bureau and the civil aeronautics administration.

HEARNS BYRNES

The committee approved a state department budget almost five times as large as the last pre-war budget after hearing Secretary of State Byrnes behind closed doors.

Briefly, Byrnes told the committee in this part of his testimony made public, "we are still concerned with the prevention of future wars and with measures which will improve the social and economic well-being of the peoples of the world to the end that the conditions which

First Japanese Free Election Is Slated Tomorrow

TOKYO — Japanese will elect an occupation government tomorrow in their first free election in generations.

Cruising teams of American and British military observers will visit polling places throughout the country to prevent a repetition of past election malpractices. This is the allies' final gesture to help the common man and his newly enfranchised wife and daughters enter the polling booth free from coercion.

Over the balloting however is the allies' warning that if an "unsuitable" majority is selected, another election may be called.

Japanese government officials said they expected little violence despite a brief fight at the prime minister's residence Sunday, when left wing demonstrators clashed with police while demanding resignation of Premier Shidehara's cabinet.

Japanese political observers predicted a substantial conservative victory as the voters elect 488 members of the house of representatives from among more than 2,800 candidates. Most candidates are political neophytes who entered the campaign after the majority of old line politicians are disqualified by General MacArthur's January purge order.

Two major parties, both conservative—the liberals and progressives—together may win a majority in the house but no single party is expected to dominate. The social democrats generally are ranked third in strength. The communists a fourth major party are conceded only a few seats.

The newspaper Asahi said only nine of the 81 women candidates appeared probable winners. Observers say that bewilderment and preoccupation with other matters may keep three-fourths of the 21,000,000 women from the polls.

The day will be a holiday to encourage voting. Polls will be open from 7 a. m. to 6 p. m., and first returns are not expected before Thursday in the cities and Friday in rural areas.

New Layoffs Reported in Steel Plants

By The Associated Press
There was a flurry of activity on the nation's labor front today, but the country's major dispute, the work stoppage in the soft coal mines, persisted. Also continuing to slow the reconstruction program were prolonged strikes by more than 100,000 electrical and farm equipment workers.

As the 400,000 AFL soft coal miners remained away from their jobs, new layoffs were reported in steel plants. Meanwhile, as negotiators planned to meet in Washington a top labor official who asked anonymous said he believed the government would do something this week.

In addition to the miners, about 400,000 other workers were idle because of labor disputes.

On the credit side of the industrial strife was the agreement by CIO transport workers to end an eight day transit strike in Akron; the averting of a threatened strike of 1,400 AFL electrical workers which would have affected power, light and transportation for a million persons in the Cincinnati area; and a labor-management agreement ending a six months old strike by 700 CIO workers at the American Tobacco company in Philadelphia.

The strikers at the American tobacco plants in Philadelphia were to vote today on ratification of the terms which provided a general wage increase of 12 to 15 cents an hour, maintenance of membership, and dues checks.

Nazi Defense Is Charged by U.S.

NUERNBERG — Justice Robert H. Jackson, chief United States prosecutor, charged before the international military tribunal today that the defense was attempting to "disseminate anti-Semitic propaganda" through the witness trial and had committed a "flagrant case of contempt of court."

Jackson based his charges on an exhibit of documentary evidence which the tribunal's press had printed for defendant Alfred Rosenberg. Jackson contended the material, which he described as "viciously anti-Semitic and irrelevant rubbish" had been submitted to the printers or Rosenberg's counsel after it had been rejected by the tribunal.

Jackson's charges brought an immediate and sharp reaction from defense counsel, whose spokesman, tall, white-haired Dr. Radolf Dix replied with a suggestion that Jackson retract.

"I stand on the facts," Jackson rejoined, and exhibited to the tribunal stenographed copies of the rejected material.

Jackson turned to the tribunal excerpts from Rosenberg's book of documentary evidence which characterized Jews as a "bastard population x x x arrogant, shrewd and crooked."

"The United States cannot print and disseminate to the press this vicious anti-Semitism," Jackson declared. "The defense believes we are here to try the issue of the cause of anti-Semitism with this tribunal as the sounding board. That is wrong. The issue is not Rosenberg's philosophy, but we are charging the murder of four to five million Jews."

The U. S. prosecutor proposed shutting off printing facilities to the defense.

Rosenberg's counsel contended that the anti-Semitic passages read by Jackson were quotations from a French philosopher and were included in the printing order "by mistake."

Proposed Bill Is Made Public By New Action

WASHINGTON — (AP) — A three-member subcommittee today recommended legislation to the senate military committee to abolish the present war and navy departments and create a single new "department of common defense."

The action served to make public the proposed bill. The measure is intended to carry out President Truman's request for unification of the armed forces.

CLOSED-DOOR SESSIONS

Drafted after months of closed-door sessions, the bill would raise the air forces to equal rank with the army and navy and place all three under a single new cabinet member, to be known as the "secretary of common defense."

Although a complete new plan for organization of the armed forces is presented, actual date for abolition of the present war and navy departments would be determined by the President.

City Trucks To Begin Collecting Trash Thursday

All city garbage trucks will be used in the Junior chamber of commerce clean-up drive beginning Thursday but no special routes will be laid out as in the past.

City Manager Garland Frank, in making the announcement today, said much confusion can be eliminated by having trucks cover their respective zones in the city instead of specified routes.

Reason for the change is that trucks are sometimes unable to cover a specified route in the allotted time, causing confusion among residents who have their trash ready for removal.

"The trucks will cover every bit of the city," Frank said. "We will continue working until the job is entirely finished even though the drive may run over into the early part of next week."

Pampanians are asked to cooperate with city workers in every way so as to make the drive a success in both results and convenience.

Among the most important points stressed by city officials is that trash should not be burned as it causes much of the pollution to break out inside the garbage trucks.

If garbage and other waste materials are deposited in an orderly fashion at the place of collection the drive will proceed much faster and will be much more complete, it was said.

If it is possible, wet garbage should be securely wrapped in order to preserve cleanliness and to lessen the unpleasantness of its removal.

Erwin Thompson, chairman of the Junior Chamber of Commerce, urged Pampanians again to enter in the spirit of the drive whole-heartedly and make it a success.

In the past, Pampa has won a recognition award from the state organization for the manner in which the drive was conducted and the results that were obtained and Thompson added he hoped the current drive would be as much of a success.

Draft Holiday Gets Buildup On House Side

WASHINGTON — A draft holiday on an energetic buildup on the house side of the bill today, in initial Senate sentiment seemed to favor continuing selective service without any such expansion.

Both Senate and house military committees were striving to reach decisions today if possible on what recommendations to make about extending the draft law, now due to expire May 15. The "political" nature of an election year made the decisions touchy ones.

Senators Austin (R-Vt.) was optimistic that the senate group would approve his proposal for a straight-way one-year extension with the service of inductees limited to 18 months. This is the program the armed forces have been urging.

Across the Capitol, however, influential house military committee members reported that the war department was willing to agree to a four or six months holiday of inductees of new eligibles after May 15 provided congress would vote a full year's extension of selective service. The war department did not comment.

Under this plan, President Truman would be authorized to order inductees to report after the four or six months' suspension, if emergency residents failed to meet any military needs.

To encourage those adjustments, Rep. Vernon (D-Ga.) introduced legislation yesterday for a $3,000,000 recruiting campaign. This measure carried provisions for raising the pay of all enlisted personnel with a 10 percent boost for privates, and for a six-month ban of draft inductees while the effectiveness of the campaign was being tested.

Plans Formulated For College Here

Plans for two proposed colleges in Pampa are progressing with action regarding both the Pampa Junior College and the Junior Business College still in the formative stage, reported E. O. Wedgeworth, manager of the chamber of commerce, yesterday.

A petition for the establishment of a Junior college in Pampa has been approved by the state board of education. Next step in the plans for the establishment of a college would be to have the issue approved by Pampanians in a city election. A petition for such an election has not yet been circulated.

Within a few months it is expected that definite steps in regard to both colleges will be taken, said Wedgeworth.

The proposed Junior Business College, being sought in Pampa by an Enid, Okla., concern, will be established as soon as accommodations are arranged.

Representatives have been in Pampa during the past week seeking a building in which to house the business college negotiations for a building are now underway, said Wedgeworth.

Equalization Board Is Now Advocated

A joint board of equalization selected by the city commission and the school board was advocated by City Commissioner Harold Wright in commission meeting this morning.

The board, which evaluates property for taxation, would be selected at a joint meeting of the commission and school board. Arrangements will be made for such a meeting.

Wright, in advocating the plan, said this would eliminate any differences on the valuation of property by the school equalization board and a similar city group.

He added that it would simplify matters on the valuation of common property.

Today Is Anniversary Of Bataan Surrender

BATAAN PENINSULA
A battle that has been called the "Greatest American Defeat" will be remembered today as the anniversary of the Bataan Peninsula's surrender to the Japanese on April 9, 1942.

The words "Bataan" and "Surrender" were put up on the main entrance of the Bataan Peninsula National Shrine in Bataan, P. I., today.

For what sustained them? It was a force more than physical. It was the force of an unbreakable faith.

Pick Ax Slayer Declared Insane
LIFE MOINES, Ia. — William C. Iwan, 41 year old printer, was held in jail on a first degree murder charge today in connection with the pick ax slaying yesterday of his mother, his wife and two young sons.

He was ordered held without bond.

The charge was placed against him by Chief of Detectives Paul Castellino, who said Iwan hacked to death his mother, Mrs. Mary Alice Iwan, 65, as he worked alone in a garden, his wife, Edith, 38, and his two sons, John 8, and Harry 5.

After his arraignment Dr. A. S. Price, chairman of the P. O. C. Insanity Commission, examined Iwan at the request of Vernon Schaefer, Des Moines county attorney. Schaefer said Dr. Price described Iwan as obviously insane.

County Commissioners Discuss New Hospital
County commissioners met yesterday in an all day session, mainly discussing probabilities of plans connected with the construction of the Gray county hospital and the Alameda-Lefors highway.

No definite action was taken on the selling of bonds for the hospital. It was announced that several bids have been received.

Persons owning land concerned with the right-of-way for the proposed Alameda-Lefors highway met with the court in connection with the turning over of deeds for the highway.

Stark Knew Nothing of War Meeting

WASHINGTON — (AP) — Adm. Harold F. Stark said today he would have acted immediately if he had known that President Roosevelt felt a Japanese diplomatic message received the night of Dec. 6, 1941, meant war.

If there was a war conference in the White House that night — the eve of the Japanese attack on Pearl Harbor — Stark told a senate-house inquiry committee that he knew nothing about it.

Stark, former chief of naval operations, was the first witness as the committee resumed hearings it recessed about a month ago.

Stark testified, Seth Richardson, committee counsel, put into the record several documents. These included that Winston Churchill addressed Mr. Roosevelt as early as February, 1941 to "instill a Japan fever" that a move toward Suez would mean war with the United States.

Stark and Gen. George C. Marshall, former army chief of staff and now envoy to China, were recalled in an effort to learn their whereabouts the night before the attack on Pearl Harbor.

Thursday Is Day For Processing 'No Work' Claims

Thursday unemployment compensation claims will again be processed for the second consecutive week.

This method of filing claims is a deviation from the usual method of every other week as is effective this Thursday only. After April 11 claims will next be reported April 25.

Representatives of the Texas Unemployment Compensation Commission last Thursday told all persons filing claims to return Tuesday, April 16.

Due to the heavy amount of business processed Thursday and Friday TCUU men Friday modified their plans of having claims file April 16, changing the date to Thursday, April 11.

Veterans farming who have not yet filed this month as well as veterans desiring to place their claims for the first time may do so Thursday.

Unemployed veterans who placed claims last Thursday or Friday need not file again until April 25.

Half of Last Year's Squadmen Are Expected Out This Spring

Nearly 75 candidates opened practice yesterday in preparation for 30 days of rigorous spring football training under way at Pampa high school under the direction of Coach Otis Coffey.

Four regulars from last year signed up for spring practice, although three are undecided as to whether they will play this fall.

The four who have or will sign up are Randall Clay, Virgil Fish, Stanley Simpson and Maurice Lockhart. Lockhart is the only one of the four who is certain to be back next year.

Also signing up was Leon Gooch, reserve end last year, who may be slated for a starting backfield post if he returns this fall.

Two other regulars, Jimmie Terrell and Jack Dunham, did not report yesterday but may within the next few days.

The turnout yesterday would have been larger but about 50 boys who would have trained with the high school group this spring will train with the Junior High Reapers, coached by Jack Davis and Hack Fulsom.

Coaches Coffey, Jiggs Whittington and D. V. Biggers, divided the Harvesters squad up into backs and linemen yesterday, although the arrangement is temporary for many players.

Listed among the backs were these 1945 squadmen: Calvin MacAdams, Randall Clay, Clayton Fike, Phillip Anderson, Carl Mayes, Sam Wampler, Paul Simpson, Vernon Holler, Leon Gooch and Jim Wilson.

Owen Heads for Brooklyn After Jumping Threat

SAN ANTONIO—(AP)—Mickey Owen, roving Dodger catcher, was headed back toward Brooklyn today after a short flirtation with the Mexican baseball league.

Saying he expected to rejoin the Dodgers in 10 days, Owen and his wife left San Antonio by automobile yesterday following his announcement that he had turned down an offer to join the south-of-the-border league.

The catcher's quest for greener pastures wound up in a conference here with Alfonso Pasquel, one of five brothers who operate the Mexican league over an offer to become player-manager for the Torreon club.

Owen said he had talked by telephone with Branch Rickey, Brooklyn president. The player is still under contract to the Dodgers for half a season.

Owen said he had talked by telephone with Branch Rickey, Brooklyn president. The player is still under contract to the Dodgers for half a season.

At Nashville, Tenn., Harold Parrott, traveling secretary for the Dodgers, announced last night that Mickey hasn't changed his mind about Owen and still plans to sell or trade him.

The day after the catcher said he was going with the Mexican league, Rickey said: "Owen will never play with the Brooklyn club again. If he doesn't decide to go to Mexico he will either be sold or traded. He will not be signed for a nickel more than his contract called for when he entered service."

Owen is reported to have received $12,500 a year from the Dodgers. "The nearer I got to Mexico, the more I decided I was making a mistake," Owen said.

He added that he and Pasquel parted on friendly terms and that he would return the money advanced him by the Mexican brothers to show "good faith" in the contract offer. Owen never returned the signed contract to the Mexican league officials he stated.

By HAROLD V. RATLIFF AP Sports Editor

AUSTIN—(AP)—When Texas interscholastic league delegates gathered around the breakfast table here May 3 during the annual state meet there will be something to eat besides eat. In fact, with the agenda that's now apparent, eating will take only a small part of the time.

Among the things due to be considered:

1. A Triple A division of school-boy football to take in schools with 1,000 enrollment or more. At present all above 500 are in Class AA and schools barely able to make 500 are kicking about having to compete against schools with twice that many.

2. A state football championship for Class A schools. Opposition to this, principally from the league officials themselves, is based on the contention that these schools are too small to support the travel and expense involved in a state-wide race.

3. Allowing the Class AA schools to conduct their own state basketball race. However, league officials do not think this feasible unless it can be carried on during the summer months—after school is out—in order to give sufficient time, without hindrance to school work, for such a campaign to be conducted.

4. A state high school girls basketball race. Physical training instructors have been opposing such a program with the contention that girls should not participate in such strenuous sports, but this opposition appears to be dying down. The Interscholastic League also would probably get competition from the present Texas high school girls league which has its headquarters at Hillsboro and boasts more than 200 teams.

5. A request that the State School for the Deaf be admitted to the league. Chairman Weaver Baker of the state board of control, which handles appropriations for the league, is asking this, declaring that the physically handicapped children should have the same advantages in athletics as the others. The league now has rules against admittance of such a school and the institution has fewer than 50 in the high school division and could enter only six-man football or Class B if voted in by a district. It would require a referendum of the league membership to allow state school for the deaf to become a member.

6. A state high school baseball race. However, league officials do not think this feasible unless it can be carried on during the summer months—after school is out—in order to give sufficient time, without hindrance to school work, for such a campaign to be conducted.

5. A request that the State School for the Deaf be admitted to the league. Chairman Weaver Baker of the state board of control, which handles appropriations for the league, is asking this, declaring that the physically handicapped children should have the same advantages in athletics as the others. The league now has rules against admittance of such a school and the institution has fewer than 50 in the high school division and could enter only six-man football or Class B if voted in by a district. It would require a referendum of the league membership to allow state school for the deaf to become a member.

Flapper's Bobs Are Revived

By ALICIA HART
NEA Staff Writer

The bobs, bangs and ear puffs of the 1920's—remember?—are back in style. But with a difference. What today's short bobs have that their "It-Girl" antecedents lacked are good foundations put in with better permanents, artistic shaping and skillful setting.

Pictured above are three 1946 revivals of the flapper's favorite bobs.

If you don't believe these are an improvement, just ask your Mom. The flat-topped "wing" coiffure, left, is 1920's shingled bob brought up to date with scissors that taper and trim the back into a point. The "ear puffs" are deeply furrowed waves set into lace up in sides and pulled forward to lie flat.

Typical of the 1920's Joan of Arc bob with squared-off bangs is the 1946 revival, short center. What spells the difference, says the stylist, who improved this one is skillful shaping and setting to curve hair at the sides like up-side-down question marks.

The "cap" with the French look, right, is the fringed hair-do of the 20's. But replacing the frizz are soft all-around scallops which hairdresser achieves by barely turning under the ends.

STUDY CLUB TO MEET

Bright Wide Girdle Accents Small Waist

Be sure your waistline is small enough to take an accent, before you span it with a bright belt, wide girdle or any one of this spring's new-styled stomachers.

Even a narrow string belt will make your waistline look larger. A wide girdle will increase the horizontal line. A tight belt, girded in at the expense of comfort, may squeeze in a waistline a fraction of an inch, but it will give you a nailed-in look which fools no one.

But if you ARE we-waisted, by all means use any one of the gay girthing bands which will point like an arrowed marker on a road to this coveted attribute.

You can use such belts to advantage also if you need to bring a small waist into better scale with ample hips. After all, a good figure is a matter of proportions. Hips will be belittled by belting the middle with big cow-hide stonchiers, fabric corsets, or crushed shashes that add bulk at the waistline.

Advanced Students Will Give Recital

The public is invited to attend.

Milk is used in a wide variety of industrial products such as plastics, textiles, paper coating, paint, glue, films, pharmaceuticals, insulation, fertilizer, insecticides, penicillin, plaster, dyes, animal feed, preservatives, explosives and electroplates.

NERVOUS PARENTS

Those parents in Omaha who decided to get rid of their three children because the kids "made them nervous" may have started a discussion that will be heard round the world. It is certainly a live issue, with many a pro and con. You can almost hear right now, with an imaginative mind, millions of people arguing the matter. Most people, naturally, hope the side of the kids will win.

Such a hope, however, seems necessarily to imply some kind of change in the attitude of the parents themselves. It is natural for children to be noisy and active and more or less in people's way and under their feet, cluttering up the house and tracking in dirt, and so on. That is the way normal children are. And fortunately Father and Mother usually come around to that point of view sooner or later, and even pride themselves on the racket those terrible kids make, when they tell the neighbors about it.

And why, not? The racket and its accompanying features are generally evidences of health and normality, rather than proof of original and everlasting sin. All too soon, in the immense majority of cases, the children grow up and pass away into their own sober and mature lives. Happy are the parents who can "take it" from first to last, and never lose the beauties and deep satisfaction of childhood, youth and age which make a complete life.

A READING PROGRAM

President Truman has taken to going on his week-end cruises on the Presidential yacht, the Williamsburg, without any guests to share the quiet waters of the Potomac. This is so he can catch up in his reading. Certainly it's a comfort to know somebody has hit on a device for keeping up with reading matter.

America is flooded today with the printed word; newspapers, magazines, house organs, publications from all sorts of organizations, including explanations of the atom bomb and the latest reports on feeding Europe. And books. Never have there been so many alluring volumes reviewed and advertised. Some of the reading-matter isn't worth the eye strain required, but the discouraging thing is that so much of it is material a person longs to read. Oh! for a week-end yacht out of reach of the screens that should be put up, away from the garden that needs spading and the socks that should be darned! Shall we all have to run for President?

To Life and Liberty

Yesterday I quoted from a speech made by Associate Justice Edward S. Dore of the appellate division of the New York Supreme Court at the Association of the Bar of New York City. I quote further from Justice Dore's address which is reproduced from an editorial in the Wall Street Journal summarizing this speech entitled, "To Life and Liberty."

"The fifth act of Goethe's 'Faust' shows the palace in deep night. Faust, by the sale of his soul for power, has reached the pinnacle of world dominion, but is fretted by the little dwelling of the poor old peasants, Baucis and Philemon, and their few linen trees. Faust summons Mephistopheles and says:

"These old people will have to disappear; I want those linen trees for my estate. Those few trees which do not belong to me spoil for me the possession of the world!"

"My mighty and unbounded will

"Is broken on your sandy hill."

"The diabolical force which operates—Mephistopheles and his three mighty comrades soon report their work of annihilation."

"Faust has dominion of the world, but cannot enjoy it. The poor weak and inoffensive little persons and their few linen trees, by law, divorced from reason and natural right, begets an insatiable appetite for revenge. The world is no longer the ordered cosmos of the created universe subject to law under God; but chaos, the subject of the demonic, unfettered will of men. The state is merged with its own day, and not in one place only, this living will of aggression, never satisfied with dominion or territory.

"No statutory, legal or constitutional limits to power are recognized. An independent judiciary and courts are supplanted by mere administrative boards that become weapons for implementing state policy. The sphere of liberty outside the direct control of government becomes less and less. Man must not own; the state will own for him. Man must not be free to select his vocation in life; the state will ordain our lives. Man must not worship God; the state is sole absolute. The last and worst consequences reveal themselves inevitably where the idea had its origin, namely, in the intellectual and spiritual life of men. The final end is mass consciousness; a mechanical, inhuman, servile mass organization destitute of human liberty and personal responsibility.

"Now, if law is based ultimately on general will instead of reason, there never can be an unjust law if the lawyer has the power to carry out his will. This is equally true whether the lawyer is an individual tyrant, a group or a majority. If there be no standard of right and wrong, no law, no rule, and no limitation on the power of the

WASHINGTON A NATURAL

WASHINGTON A NATURAL (Memphis Commercial-Appeal)

No surprise at all is felt over the selection of the permanent site of the World Bank and Fund. The capital is a natural. The decision was just as common sense as locating the water tank near the well, or building the station by the railroad. There is absolutely nothing like being located conveniently near the main source of supply. Assumably it will be a quick and inexpensive job to build a pipe line and install a pneumatic tube connecting the bank with the United States Treasury.

No, sir! We reckon the Washington Chamber of Commerce didn't have to put out much effort if any, to get this new industry to settle within its borders. We did notice, though, that Great Britain and Canada were campaigning for New York as the home of the World Bank. They were thinking in terms of World War I when all these loans were being floated through concerns like J. P. Morgan & Co., and Gotham was the money center. Since then the New Deal has dug outflows and things that funnel big money into Washington in such quantities that the boys around here Federal agency must have an application for a billion dollars for Russia and forget all about it for six months. So many bigger things to worry about, you know.

Washington is unquestionably the place for the world to bank in and on.

state itself over the community live ultimately becomes a matter of physical force. The end desired by the ruler then has value if he has the means, i.e., the force, to put it into effect. This is the meaning of modern instrumentalism. This is the practice of modern tyranny.

"If you recall, as you do, from accounts of that time of our legal violence of our time, it is only because, in spite of all that legal 'realism' has said to the contrary, you still accept in the inner recesses of your mind the concept of natural law as the basis of human rights and justice. On that concept we have a rational basis for the distinction between lawful political authority and mere tyranny. On the basis of juridical instrumentalism we can make no such distinction.

"Deny natural law and God as its author and in principle the rulers do not essentially differ from the animals in the state experimental farm. If the juridical difference between them is solely that of state competence, the state that created the distinction may also abolish it. Experimentally and historically the more a government recedes from reason and natural law, the closer it approaches to the idea of men as mere things. Witness, for example, the number by the Nazi government of its own people. I.e., those Germans whom the bureaucracy determined to kill because of alleged incurable disease. Where do you stop?

"The idea that man is made for the state can find judgment in the attitudes of the minds of American lawyers and judges and in public opinion of a philosophy of law that denies our American origins, and puts no limit to state power, but makes the ultimate end of man the service of the state. Those who support the idea are, indeed, they are almost fanatically selfless. Unless those who accept the American idea of law exert themselves in defense of its intellectual foundations, that idea, indeed, will be attacked from without, may fail for lack of a defense from within."

WASHINGTON BY RAY TUCKER

COMMITMENT

The current May bill for continuing the current May 15 expiration date is an "absolute phony" in so far as maintaining the military might of the United States is concerned, according to army-navy and selective service officials.

The provision banning the use of our armed forces overseas "except in time of war" collides with the previous congressional commitment for United Nations employment of American army, navy and air units in the event of an international crisis.

Under the pledge, which was passed by overwhelming majorities in both chambers, the U. S. delegate to the U. N. Edward R. Stettinius Jr. can authorize the dispatch of troops to the danger area.

LAW—These inconsistencies and shortcomings explain why President Truman has been unable to proclaim the official ending of World War II, although it is almost eight months since Japan surrendered. For various reasons he would like to liquidate the late unpleasantness, but his hands are tied.

Under the existing law men are inducted only for the "duration" and for six months thereafter. By failing to declare the conclusion of hostilities, the White House permits the various services to hold men longer than they could otherwise.

Similarly, the fact that the U. S. is technically at war enables the local forces overseas and, if necessary, to rush troops to controversial centers like Iran, Indonesia, Manchuria and elsewhere.

ACTION—Selective Service Director Lewis B. Hershey surprised even members of the House military affairs committee when he exposed the awkwardness in sharp testimony at an executive session. In a confidential letter to Chairman Andrew Jackson May of Kentucky, he also pointed out that the age provisions of the pending proposal are so faulty as to be laughable. General Hershey emphasized that congressional action will define the scope and nature of future foreign policy as well as decide the size of our national defense establishment. "We cannot be weak and ineffectual," he wrote. "We cannot be rich and weak. If we are rich but weak, we will be a menace to world peace. Unless we remain strong, we cannot be of aid to our friends or a deterrent to possible enemies." RECOMMENDATIONS—General Hershey offered several recommendations which seem to have made a

WAG KENZIE'S Column

AP Foreign Affairs Analyst

Russia has made it clear that she expects the United Nations security council to drop consideration on the Soviet-Iranian (Persian) affair on the basis that the matter already has been adjusted by Moscow and Teheran.

We still have to learn whether the council will comply with this demand or will pursue its original idea of "wait and see," that is, of keeping the question on the books until all Russian troops are out of Persia.

In an event where the adjustment of the current situation DEWITT MACKENZIE is accepted as satisfactory, it would take a most active imagination indeed to reach the conclusion that Persia has ceased to be a focal point of our armed forces overseas "except in time of war" and that zones of influence which is proceeding in Europe and Asia.

The status of Persia is of vital concern to both Moscow and London through for different reasons. Naturally when Persia is mentioned you think of oil, but of far greater importance is her geographical position which makes her of strategic importance.

Persia has figured heavily in the long-term policies of Britain and Russia for more than a century. This situation will continue so long as the British empire and the Soviet Union exist. (The present forms of Communist Russia and England first clashed in a big way over Persia in the last century when St. Petersburg established a sphere of influence in Persia and Afghanistan, both of which lie up against India. Ostensibly Russia's purpose in this thrusting southward was to reach warm water ports on the Persian gulf, but it had the effect of creating a potential threat against Britain's great Indian possession.)

This explosive situation continued until 1907 when an Anglo-Russian convention divided Persia into zones of influence. Russia took the north, Britain the south around the gulf, and the central part was left neutral.

At the end of world war one Britain was given the mandates over Iraq, Transjordan and Palestine and her French ally got Syria. So when then they dominated the land route to the Persian gulf and India.

Now this question has been opened up again.

Russia not only is interested in Persia but is bent on taking her place as one of the Mediterranean powers.

The readjustment is one of the great pages of history. It will not be achieved without heartburnings and difficulties, and yet it would appear to be one of the inevitabilities.

Certainly this epochal shift in world relationships provided the United Nations with perhaps its greatest opportunity for service to mankind.

SIGN BELIEVER

MILWAUKEE, Wis.—(AP)—Kenny Kipeh, 6, who had gone to play with his friend, Scotty Kuesel, came running back because "there was a sign on the door."

"Did it say m-e-a-s-l-e-s?" his mother asked Kenny, who is learning his letters but can't read.

Kenny couldn't remember so he hurried over to Scotty's house again. "I feel beauty," she greeted him. "Do I or do I not have a vague memory of your giving me some dope last night?"

"It seemed like a good idea at the time," Colin admitted.

Breakfast was a rather silent meal. Colin didn't want to be the one to bring up the subject of the previous night's alarms and excursions, and he didn't know if Ann remembered it. The morning air was chilly, and he had built a fire in the library fireplace, so they went in there for their post-breakfast cigarettes. Ann finally said, "What did Nina say last night, Colin?"

"She said that Jack had been in a smash-up—that he was drunk—and that the girl with him had been killed."

"Poor Jack," Ann said softly.

"Poor girl," Colin corrected her, rather sharply. Then he remembered his decision. "Ann—last night—Ann—how did you know something had happened to Jack? Was it a dream, or what?"

"A shock her head. 'It wasn't a dream. It was—rather awful. I know how I knew, but I was in a dreadful trouble, and this is the G. O. P.'s operation crossroads."

In Hollywood

By ERSKINE JOHNSON
HOLLYWOOD (NEA)—England wants Jeanette MacDonald so badly for concert appearances that a British good-will emissary has arrived in Hollywood to discuss the plan personally with her. . . Radiotele Bob Burns and his multiple hobbies will be discussed in a Paramount short subject, "Unusual Occupations."

Observations by Evelyn Ankers on being signed by PRO for the lead in "Queen of Burlesque": "I've been taking bumps for years in pictures. Now I can give some. . . That much discussed sequence in "The Outlaw," in which Jane Russell nurses Jack Beutel through a chill, has prompted navy medical personnel at Great Lakes to christen her "Miss Sulfaamide of 1946."

The Ritz brothers will be starred on Broadway this fall in a musical titled "Till We Meet Again." There's an ironic twist to the casting of Lionel Barrymore as FDR in M-G-M's "The Beginning or the End. Lionel was a steadfast opponent of the Roosevelt policies and administration."

Judy Garland will go dramatic again for her first picture since the death of her daughter, Liza. The film will be "Forever. . . Promised and hoped for: Betty Hutton's punching a lion in the nose in "The Perils of Pauline."

ALL FORGIVEN AT LAST?

The feud must be over. A national magazine is doing a twin layout on Betty Davis and Joan Crawford. Joan, by the way, is on a protein weight-maintaining diet, and she brings her own steaks and salad dressing to the studio commissary.

The funniest blow-ups heard on Hollywood sets are those of Fred MacMurray, who suffers from a penicillin allergy, and Mitch Leisen, who worries about hotel accommodations in New York. He has a solid gold key guaranteed to open the front door of the St. Regis "forever." Well, he can sleep in the lobby, can't he?

Nominated as possessing the sweetest smile on the screen—Joan Caulfield. . . Since Perry Como came in second to the Groner on the Billboard poll, 20th Century-Fox is planning to break out in a rash of Como musicals.

Acad Famous Sayings: "A beautiful chaise is a handicap in Hollywood." Lynn Bari. Add sights: Lucille Ball and Desi Arnaz hypnotizing Ciro revotees with a sizzling rumba.

DON'T RUSTLE THE RUSTLE

For a scene in "Inside Job," Ann Rittenberg wears an evening gown of heavy ivory satin, with a bustle of fabric flowers. Set cranksters Preston Foster and Alan Crankster to the prop department for a sign which they hung on the bustle. It read "Please don't pick the flowers."

Marilyn Maxwell and Peter Lawford have discovered each other. . . Ray Milland has nothing to do with the new Irving Berlin tune just recorded by Dinah Shore, "I Go, Lost."

Maureen O'Hara asked Douglas Fairbanks, Jr. for an autographed picture of himself to hang in her dressing room on the set of "Sinbad the Sailor." Doug gifted her with a full-page colored magazine advertisement, framed, of a Virginia ham.

Pat O'Brien, recalling the time he enlisted in the navy with his pal, Spencer Tracy, at the ripe age of 17, tossed off this line—"We sailed the seven seas."

Leaves From a Correspondent's Life Notebook

(Hal Boyles's column today is in the form of a letter to his wife, Frances.)

ROME—(AP)—Dear Frances: Well, here I am in this place where you are supposed to do as the Romans do.

I don't know whether to build a statue or try to sell something on the black market. That's what the Romans seem to be doing mostly.

What a wonderful place this would be to start a scrap metal drive! I never saw so many statues and monuments in my life. They certainly must have a strong sculptors union to get so many contractors.

The clothing shortage is reflected in the statues. All over town you see lovely nude bronze and cast iron ladies riotously squirting water through their teeth, wrestling with fishes and holding up stone porches. After walking around among these undressed nymphs you get the slightly insane feeling you ought to step up and help shoulder a porch.

There is no end or beginning to the black market here. It affects all classes and there is little moral feeling about it. We ran into it as soon as we arrived by air from Athens. Before we left the airfield several shady characters sidled up to ask "anything you want to sell, Joe?" or "want some money changed, Joe?"

These curstome characters crawl out at you wherever you stroll. Some are nearly dressed, but certainly appear to be small sidekick operators—young men who just need to be put to work.

These petty chiselers will buy and sell anything from a derby hat to a leaky fountain pen, but most of the business seems to be in food and cigarettes. American troops can dispose of extra cigarettes at better than a dollar per pack.

Luxury goods are plentiful and food stores look well stocked, at least in the better neighborhoods. But high prices bear heavily on the low income classes.

One little smudged girl in a tattered dress slipped a typewritten note in my hand reading, "Gentle Sir, I am in want and have no father or mother. Will you not succor a helpless orphan?"

I started to give her some money but just then a big blonde woman rushed out from her shop and belted my career "orphan" on her ear.

My phony little friend made a very ugly face at the lady and then slipped a helpless looking "another Gentle Sir."

Your loving husband,
Harold Vereingitorex Boyle.

Peter Edson's Column: REPUBLICAN OPERATION CROSSROADS

By PETER EDSON
WASHINGTON—The republican national committee and the American Retail Federation held meetings in adjoining rooms at Washington at Washington Hotel, Stetler Monday, April 1. In the third, smaller room, the Gridiron club was holding a rehearsal for its next show. But this couldn't be any more satirical than the acts put on by the republicans and retailers. It wasn't conspiracy, but both the republicans and the retailers came to the same conclusion on OPA. That's right. They were both against it. To retailers were a little more broadminded, however. Because they invited Chester Bowles to come in and give his side of the story before criticizing his program. But when Bowles asked the retailers to keep their shirts on, a voice from the audience sang out "We haven't got any." That was the payoff.

The republicans also elected a new national chairman, Congressman B. (for Brazil) Carroll Reeb of Tennessee, to succeed Herbert Brownell, Jr. But if the choice had been up to the retailers, it probably wouldn't have been any different and couldn't have been more satisfactory. Either of the other two candidates, ex-Sen. John Danaher of Connecticut and John H. Hanes of New York, would have been equally okay. It was a field day for conservatism.

NORTH CAROLINA NATIVE ADOPTS G. O. P.

years later he switched to Harding. He lives in New York now, is registered as a republican and the G. O. P. claim him as one of its own.

Among the seconding speeches, Kentucky's young committeeman, Joseph Ross Todd made an impassioned plea that the republicans "should get the democratic conservatives like Hanes in here—the people who feel the way we do in the national committee." That was probably the keynote of the whole meeting. A bid for conservative support.

Hanes might have had a chance if at this point Harrison Spangler of Iowa had not asked innocently if Hanes wasn't the man Roosevelt had once appointed to the S. E. C. and an assistant-secretaryship of the treasury, and if Charles A. Jones of North Carolina had not risen to remark that Hanes had never been known as anything but a democrat in North Carolina.

Then it was that Mrs. Bertha D. Baur of Illinois, in a gorgeous big red flower-covered picture hat, got up and said, "Let's open the windows. The temperature in here is about 80 degrees."

But it was when the republicans got into their platform consideration that they really showed how conservative they were going to be in the coming campaign. Last December the republicans met in Chicago and adopted an interim platform which was a masterpiece of generalities. They also appointed a seven-man committee, chaired by E. R. T. Mattingly of Missouri, to fix it up good.

Mattingly made his report at the Washington meeting. Nobody paid much attention while it was being

IT was a long and very bitter night for Colin. He had reached his decision by the time the first grey streaks of dawn appeared in the gray sky. He bathed then, and as he looked in the mirror while shaving, he saw that those long hours of mental turmoil had taken their toll. He observed with something of a shock that there were gray hairs at the temples. Of course they hadn't arrived overnight; but he had never noticed them before. "I look three years older than God," was his candid opinion.

Colin fixed breakfast, and then looked in on Ann. She was awake, and she made a face at him. "I feel beauty," she greeted him. "Do I or do I not have a vague memory of your giving me some dope last night?"

"It seemed like a good idea at the time," Colin admitted.

Breakfast was a rather silent meal. Colin didn't want to be the one to bring up the subject of the previous night's alarms and excursions, and he didn't know if Ann remembered it. practically knew it by heart. But why did you do it, Colin? Why?"

"LOOK, Ann," Colin said urgently, "would you mind if we get things straightened out one at a time?"

"No, I wouldn't mind."

"First—when I offered you your freedom, it was an offer born of a sleepless night and the conviction that it was what you wanted. Do you?"

"I've answered that. No."

Colin swallowed hard, and was silent for a few moments, lest his voice betray his emotion. It was steady by the time he continued, "Do you really want a baby now?"

"Of course, Colin. I made up my mind to that months ago—when I was in the hospital. One of my first conscious thoughts."

"Was the reason you were so nasty to me yesterday that you thought I'd been seeing and consulting Millicent about my book behind your back?"

Ann nodded, and looked a little ashamed.

"Ann, Ann, and I thought you trusted me! Of course I haven't—yesterday, while I was away, Millicent called. Mrs. Larsen was here cleaning, and she knew Millicent, of course—she showed her into the library to wait for me. Millicent—well, I guess she was looking for something in the desk, and she found the carbon copy of my book manuscript, and had read it before I returned." There was a little silence, and then Colin went on, with a chuckle, "Millicent is honest, anyway. She told me that you must be a much better wife than she had been—because at long last I seemed to have learned about women, as witness the book."

"Colin," Ann said softly.

"Will you come and get the kid I didn't give you last night?"

"My dear," said Colin, as he took her in his arms.

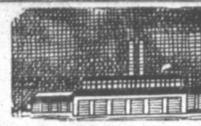

Later, Colin said, "I say, Ann—I promised Nina I'd drive in today. Do you want to come along and see Jack?"

Ann was silent for a moment, considering it. Then she said, "I'll stay here, Colin."

League of Nations

Within a few months of the league's opening, Iran protested that Soviet troops were occupying Iranian territory.

Within a few months of the U. N.'s opening, Iran protested that Soviet troops were occupying Iranian territory.

The Iranian case in 1920 was settled peacefully and now in 1946, the Iranian case probably will be settled peacefully.

Shocked by the death and destruction of World War I, the allied leaders, including President Woodrow Wilson, decided to make the great attempt.

President Wilson came home and tried to sell the idea to America. He broke his health trying. The senate broke his heart by saying "no." We stayed out.

But league rocked along, starting out with 42 members and getting, eventually, as many as 60.

But the league fumbled along on the big questions and, by fumbling, let World War II burst.

The three powers which became the Axis—Germany, Japan, Italy—out the league and prepared for war.

Germany, which joined in 1926, quit in 1933 because the big powers in the disarmament conference refused her equality of arms.

Japan quit the same year because the league, which didn't do anything to stop it—condemned her invasion of Manchuria.

Italy left in 1937 because the league, which wouldn't use force, used sanctions against Italy for invading Ethiopia.

Germany invaded Poland to start World War II, and the league collapsed.

Members of the league, when aggression occurred, were free to use their own judgment about employing force to stop it. They shied away from that.

The big powers of U. N., however, are pledged to supply armed forces when needed to stop aggression. Time will show whether they will.

Department Funds

lead to war will be removed."

BUREAU OF BUDGET

Although the budget bureau is not directly affected by the bill, the committee rapped the knuckles of that agency with these words in its formal report to the house:

"It is strongly urged that the bureau of the budget devote more time to the over-all coordination of the functions and activities of the various departments and agencies of government generally and less to the issuance of directives governing details of administrative management and planning. There is too much duplication of effort in the government, and the bureau of the budget XXX is the logical and only organization to undertake this reform."

FEDERAL SPENDING

Of federal spending generally, the committee had this to say:

There seems to have developed during the past years what some have termed a spending psychosis, and the committee is fearful that this spending psychosis has become so deeply entrenched in the minds of the officials responsible for the operation of our federal establishments, it must be eliminated."

In chopping $9,284,778 from the state department's request for $19,284,778 to expand its information and cultural program to include Europe as well as the Western hemisphere, the committee said it was "in accord with the philosophy of the program" but "is not in full accord XXX as the approach that should be made to attain greater understanding between the peoples of the world."

In explaining its rejection of the entire $19,284,778 requested for the department's new intelligence program, the committee said all the proposed function "can and should be performed by the established units of the department."

The intelligence unit has been under fire of the House military committee, which has made what is called "strong representations" against asserted "pro-Soviet leanings" of some of the unit's personnel. However, the appropriations committee in eliminating the fund did not mention the military group's action.

In the section of its report dealing with the commerce department, the committee publicly expressed to Secretary Henry Wallace "its disapproval of the practice of some (commerce department) bureaus of soliciting letters from business men urging the congress endorsing or approving requests from appropriations."

Service Merger

Senator Austin (R-Vt), ranking republican member of the committee, Senator Hill (D-Ala), democratic whip, and representatives of the war and navy departments.

President Truman was shown the proposed bill last week by Chairman Thomas.

BILL SUMMARIZED

The three senators, in a report accompanying the legislation, summarized it this way:

"A single department is created. The air force is given autonomy. Integrated strategic plans and a unified military program and budget are provided for. Civilian control is clearly fixed in a single civilian, subject to the direction of the President. An organization structure is set up which will foster coordination between the military and the remainder of the government. A unified system of training for combined operation for land, sea and air is provided for under the direction of an assistant secretary. And lastly, within the broad framework established by the bill, there is ample opportunity for such further organization changes and improvements as experience indicates to be necessary or advisable."

In addition to the proposed new secretary of common defense, who would take over present duties of the secretary of war and navy, the new department would include these civilian leaders:

An undersecretary of common defense.

Secretaries for the army, navy and air forces, all serving under the cabinet member.

Four assistant secretaries who would head up scientific research, intelligence activities, procurement of supplies, and educational and training activities.

The military side would include: A chief of staff to the new secretary, who would replace the present wartime chief of staff to the President.

The joint chiefs of staff representing commanders of the army, navy and air forces.

Commanders of the land, sea and air forces.

A new "council of common defense" would be created, which would include the secretary of state, the secretary of common defense, and the chairman of the national security resources board.

The security resources board would be a permanent organization "to establish policies and programs for use of resources in peace and war for national security."

A new "central intelligence agency" also would be created, reporting to the council of common defense.

Pearl Harbor

tried to locate the chief naval operations that night and had been informed that he was attending a musical comedy at a local theater.

Stark said again he could not remember where he was.

Richardson recalled previous testimony by Comdr. Lester R. Shoultz on duty at the White House that night, that President Roosevelt had exclaimed "this means war" when he read a 13-part Japanese diplomatic message.

LEARNED IN ROUTINE WAY

Stark testified that he knew nothing about receipt of the message until he went to his office in a routine way the next morning.

"To the best of my knowledge and belief, Stark said, "The President did not call me that night."

What would Stark have done if he had known of the President's attitude, Richardson asked.

"I would have taken action," the gray-haired retired admiral replied firmly. "I would have gone to my office that night, seen my advisers and taken action."

The document telling of Churchill's actions in 1941 were obtained by Richardson from White House and state department files.

One document was a message from the then British prime minister to Mr. Roosevelt dated Feb. 15, 1941, expressing concern that "the Japanese seem to be making war on us, or to do something which would compel us to make war on them, during the next few weeks or months."

"There are some," Churchill added, "who consider that in Japan's present mood she would have no hesitation to enter an attempt to make war against both your country and mine. Although it is my personal belief that the odds are definitely against such an event, one cannot tell."

"Whatever you are able to do to instill in Japan anxiety as to a double war may succeed in averting this danger. Nevertheless should we alone be attacked, it would be difficult to overstate the grave character of the consequences."

Five days later another message came from Churchill which said:

"I have received better news concerning Japan. It seems Jap foreign is shortly going to Moscow, Berlin and Rome for the purpose of covering the failure of action against us. The fear of the U. S. appears to have postponed attack which seemed imminent. While completely understanding your situation pending
