Restraining Order Issued Squatters

LONDON—(AP)—The British government, acting in the face of threatened opposition by organized labor, obtained an interim injunction today against the invasion of government-vacated buildings in the spreading squatter movement.

In four cases testing rights of the squatters, the government obtained court writs restraining them from entering, remaining in or otherwise trespassing on premises occupied in a communist-sponsored invasion last week.

Voicing the opinion that "everybody else concerned in this invasion has committed trespass and continues to commit trespass," the court added:

"If ever there was a case in which the court should intervene at the earliest possible stage in an action by granting an injunction, this is the case."

Britons shop stewards—factory spokesmen for organized labor—look issue with the government today, calling for nationwide union support for the fast-spreading, communist-inspired squatter movement.

"We warn the government," said a statement issued by the national acting council of the engineering and Allied trades shop stewards' national union, "that they cannot expect engineering workers to back the production drive if attempts are made to throw their workmates on the street to make room for rich idlers who can afford to pay."

The shop stewards' declaration said "empty houses are a provocation to homeless workers."

Anouin Bevin, minister of health, who has termed the squatter movement "violence and lawlessness," refused today to meet a deputation representing 10,000 aircraft workers, who had called to ask that gas, water and other utilities be provided to squatters in the government buildings.

"We never realized danger until we stepped out of the plane. We thought the plane was landing on a poorly lighted field. When we stepped out into a sorghum field we realized what had happened," one of the men said in describing the landing.

About a mile west of where the plane landed in this West Texas country the land changes from flat tillable stretches to low rocky hills covered with scrub cedar, mesquite and cactus. It is criss-crossed with deep gullies.

Captain Kreig and Co-pilots R. J. Reuschler, Burbank, Calif., and Judd Reed, Glendale, Calif., and some of the passengers walked to Sweetwater from where they sent taxis to pick up the rest of the men.

The plane left San Diego at 3 p.m. yesterday and was due in Chicago early today. It had stopped last night for an hour at El Paso, Texas, about 400 miles from here.

Panhandle Chapter of API Meetings Slated

A special meeting of the Panhandle chapter, American Petroleum Institute will be held at 8 p.m., Sept. 26 in the Palm room of the city hall, according to an announcement today by J. N. Perkins, chairman of the Panhandle chapter, A.P.I.

Subject of the meeting will be Remedial Operations and will follow along lines of a panel discussion, he said. The public has been invited to attend the conference.

Prior to the Sept. 26 meeting another meeting of the oil men will be held at 6 p.m. Sept. 20 at the Schneider hotel.

CIO Members Allowing AFL Across Lines

By The Associated Press
The strike stranglehold clamped on America's maritime fleets for 13 days was broken today by a voluntary shortening of CIO seamen's picket lines so AFL sailors and longshoremen could return to work. Within a few hours after Joseph Curran, president of the National Maritime Union (N.M.U.), announced his decision to restrict picket lines to CIO-contraband vessels, thousands of AFL maritime workers reported for duty in New York, Boston, Baltimore, Portland, Me., and other ports.

Ships flying foreign flags also were released from CIO picket lines in Curran's order.

In Boston, six ships including cargoes of raw sugar, wood pulp, phosphate and goods from India were being unloaded. AFL waterfront crews went back to work at Baltimore without interference from CIO pickets.

In New York about 500 longshoremen were at six piers and hundreds more longshoremen were expected back on the job later today. At Portland CIO pickets quit three AFL-manned liberty ships.

N.M.U. members had refused to pass the picket lines, resumed delayed repairs to two of the vessels at the former New England shipbuilding Corp. east yard.

AFL seamen began the strike Sept. 4 in protest against a wage stabilization board decision limiting negotiated wage increase.

Curran's order did not mention the future action to be taken by N.M.U. members regarding ships manned by the AFL Sailors Union of the Pacific.

The N.M.U. head said the union's action would free about 40 S.U. ships in the port of New York, per See MARITIME, Page 5

Nation's Bumper Corn Crop To Be History's Largest

CHICAGO—(AP)—Tall corn in the midwestern prairie lands, the base upon which much of the nation's future food supplies will be built, is turning from green to brown in these late summer months, evidence that the crop is maturing.

With the tang of autumn already in the air, the bumper corn crop, largest in the nation's history, is again in a race with time. This year it is late in maturing, said grain experts.

A visible evidence of this process of nature was provided in the brown fields of the corn belt, from Ohio on the east across the prairies to Nebraska on the west.

It is upon corn, crop analysts pointed out, that much of America's food economy rests. The grain is used for farm animals and poultry to produce meat and dairy products.

Ed Boerner of Harris, Upham and company said that about two weeks more of good weather, without frost, were needed if the crop was to mature in best condition.

Boyer said that the following average date of first killing frosts in major corn belt states: Wisconsin and Minnesota Sept. 28; Nebraska Sept. 30; Iowa Oct. 5; Illinois and Kansas Oct. 12; Indiana Oct. 13; Ohio Oct. 14; Missouri Oct. 15.

Britain-Argentina Agreement Signed

LONDON—(AP)—Britain and Argentina signed a trade and financial agreement today settling their differences on sterling payments, meat purchases and British-owned Argentine railways and agreeing to continue an expired trade treaty until a new one can be negotiated, the British government announced.

The agreement, signed in Buenos Aires, was published simultaneously in London by the British central office of information. The agreement came after weeks-long conferences which several times were near a breakdown.

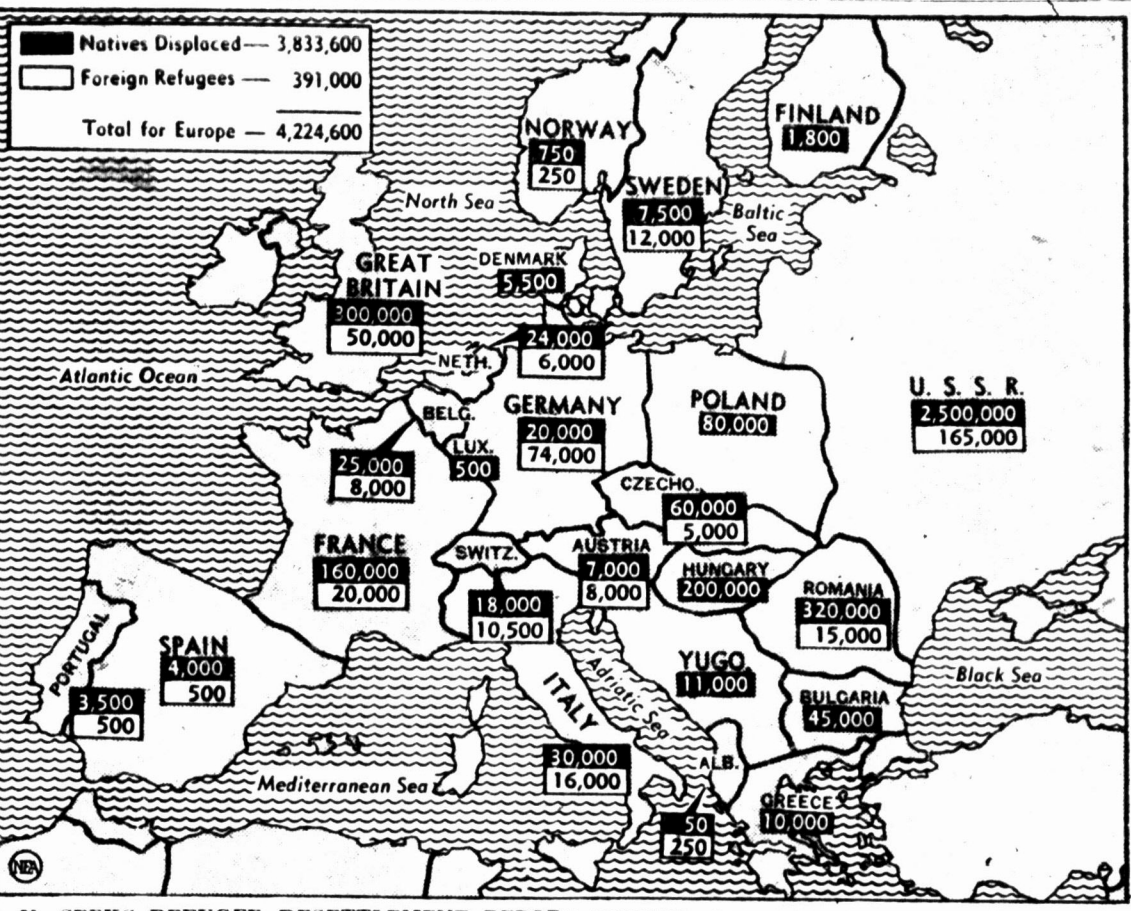

The negotiators agreed that "discussions should be initiated immediately to prepare modifications to the Anglo-Argentine trade treaty recently expired."

Organization of Teachers Planned

DALLAS—(AP)—George L. Googe of Atlanta, chairman of the American Federation of Labor southern branch policy board, told a southern AFL labor conference here yesterday that "one of the major activities in the southern district is the organizing of school teachers."

Googe said Atlanta has had practically a closed shop in teacher employees since 1917.

New Accusation Is Made Against British by Slavs

PARIS—(AP)—Yugoslav spokesman Ales Bebler accused the western powers today of seeking to establish a bridgehead in the free city of Trieste for future military action against Yugoslavia.

Opening the Slavic bloc's attack upon the proposed boundaries of a free Trieste, Bebler told a peace conference commission the only reason these were expanded beyond the Trieste city limits was to "allow space for the deployment of armed forces."

Bebler referred to the government's powers in the free state as envisaged by western nations, and said they could be explained only by conspiracy of world powers.

"He can even call in foreign troops," said Bebler. "But against whom? The object of their action is never named but is always in the line of a military advance."

Bebler spoke as statements lined up once again in the Italian political and territorial commission on opposing sides of the Trieste city limits. A proposal, paralleled by a White Russian amendment and contested by South African and Australian amendments which would extend the free state south in Trieste to include Pola and other Italian coastal communities.

The military committee, meanwhile, upheld the foreign ministers' counter-proposal of a demilitarized Trieste in the Italian treaty after rejecting 16 to four, a South African amendment which would have held Italy to military and naval restrictions at least five years regardless of the military commission's decision.

Only Australia, New Zealand and the Netherlands supported South Africa in this move, French army officials said in the military clause until the United Nations security council makes some agreement with Rome for peace enforcement.

Military Leader Of First War Dies

PARIS—(AP)—Gen. Henri Gouraud, 78, one of the outstanding military figures of World War I and commander of the fourth French army which helped smash the great German offensive in July, 1918, died yesterday at his Paris apartment. He had been in poor health for several months.

The one-armed "Lion of Champagne" assumed command of the fourth French division early in World War I while he was operating east of the Artois. He later commanded the French expeditionary forces at Gallipoli and lost an arm as the result of a mine explosion during the night of June 30, 1915.

Born in Paris, Gouraud was the son of a doctor. He graduated from St. Cyr military school as a second lieutenant and was ordered off to Africa in 1894.

During the latter stages of the first world war he gained the peak of his fame, as commander of the redoubtable French army.

His command included three famous American divisions; the second, 36th and 42nd (Rainbow).

Probe Asked For 'Political' Reasons

BERLIN—(AP)—Senator Elmer Thomas (D-Okla.) today denounced as "just politics and publicity" demands made by certain U. S. senators for a senatorial investigation of the conduct of American occupational forces in Germany.

Restaurant Prices Pushed Back Notch

WASHINGTON—(AP)—An OPA edict sent restaurant price ceilings on meat meals back to June 30 levels today, but the cost of cotton clothing inched up another notch.

Also on the price front: OPA studied a petition for higher prices on General Motors automobiles after granting an average six percent increase in retail ceilings for Ford-built cars.

The price decrease board, which meets tomorrow to decide whether to restore ceilings on dairy products, reported opposition to revival of controls in nine of the first dozen written statements received.

The OPA order restoring June 30 restaurant ceilings immediately applies to all meals and individual restaurant meals had been the major ingredient.

In issuing the order last night the agency said the cost of dining out was being "rolled back" but it did not estimate how much.

An OPA official told a reporter, however, that "most of the increases we have heard about have been about 10 percent."

Yesterday's ceilings on meat-based restaurant meals had been "frozen" temporarily at prices in effect August 31, just prior to restoration of ceilings on live animals.

OPA said that while the restaurant industry had "pressed" for price ceilings higher than the June 30 level, an industry committee had been unable to present sufficient evidence to show that restaurants could not absorb the prevailing admittedly higher costs for meat.

At retail, ceilings restored on meat early this month averaged about 30 cents a pound more than those of June 30.

While meat was not under price control restaurants were permitted to base their ceilings on the actual cost of raw meat. They continue under this principle in the case of other items which still are ceiling-free, such as fish, poultry and dairy products.

OPA's restaurant order came as the agency announced that retail prices for about half of all cotton clothing produced are going up another one percent.

The new boost is necessary, the agency said, to offset a price hike averaging two percent in ceiling prices for cotton textile made by mills paying a wage increase of five cents hourly approved last week by the wage stabilization board.

These mills, OPA said, turn out "more than half" of the total volume of cotton production.

On bed sheets and pillow cases, towels, table cloths and napkins, the retail increase will amount to about 2 1/2 percent, OPA estimated.

The textile increase on top of an 18 1/2 percent average price hike authorized last month, is effective tomorrow. The new increase for clothing, which consumers will begin seeing in four to eight weeks, is in addition to a climb of seven to ten percent which resulted from the earlier jump in textile ceilings.

Top-of-World Flight Postponed Again

HONOLULU—(AP)—The top-of-the-world flight of the Superfortress Pacusan Dreamboat to Cairo, tentatively set to begin today, was postponed again last night by its commander, Col. C. S. Irvine, with this explanation that "we're not quite ready."

Weather reports from the Arctic had been more favorable yesterday and the test plane's navigator, Maj. N. O. Hays, had announced a 50-50 chance for a takeoff early this morning.

The big plane carries sufficient gasoline for 43 hours, but there is virtually no margin for headwinds.

GOP Capitalizes On Wallace Speech

WASHINGTON—(AP)—Henry A. Wallace, whose speech on Russia last week charned up an uproar, is going to the White House tomorrow to talk things over with President Truman.

Wallace's oratory has presented the Chief Executive with the problem of permitting him to continue to speak up on a ticklish situation, as he has said he will do, or possibly asking him to resign as secretary of commerce.

Presidential Secretary Charles G. Ross told reporters today that Wallace has an appointment with Mr. Truman for tomorrow afternoon. Asked if it was made at Wallace's request, Ross replied:

"I don't know just how the appointment was made. He will be in sometime tomorrow afternoon."

A newsman told Ross that Wallace is reported to have written the President a letter "pointing out the dangers of war between the United States and Russia" and that copies of it have reached outsiders.

The presidential secretary said no when asked whether Mr. Truman had heard from Secretary of State Byrnes or had talked with him this morning.

Wallace declared his intention yesterday of keeping up his fight for changes in the conduct of this country's international affairs that was before his appointment with the President was made.

High among the considerations obviously involved in that across-the-desk meeting will be the fact that the congressional elections are only seven weeks off.

Republicans already are making political capital of Wallace's speech in New York last Thursday and the resulting controversy over it, while Democrats acknowledge privately that they consider the incident their toughest "break" this year.

Democrat National Chairman Robert E. Hannegan discussed the situation with Mr. Truman at some length late yesterday.

As for Wallace, friends represented him as pleased over the results of his initial efforts to make a national issue of the state of American relations with Russia.

In Paris, Secretary of State Byrnes said WALLACE, Page 5

Canada, U. S. Join Fight to Create Refugee Program

LAKE SUCCESS, N. Y.—(AP)—Canada, joining the United States in the fight to create an international refugee organization, warned the United Nations economic and social council today that the peacetime recovery of Europe may be hindered and delayed indefinitely if a million non-German refugees are abandoned to a "scattered relief."

Meanwhile, the U. N. security council with Soviet delegate Andre Gromyko sitting for the first time as chairman, passed a vote on the long-dormant Ukrainian question, the Soviet Union's demand for a referendum in Ukraine, which Britain is threatening peace in the Balkans.

As additional position from the Latin American countries to the proposed refugee organization developed, Canadian delegate Paul Martin declared that the condition of a million people who have been left homeless in Europe is "as great as the pressing problem of relief as any" that has emerged since victory.

Martin told the council that his government was prepared to examine any proposals for arrangements of these refugees. He added that Canada already is preparing to receive 4,000 members of the former Polish army in Western Europe who refuse to return to their homeland.

Earlier, Dr. Guillermo Bolt of Cuba added his voice to the Latin Americans who are opposing the proposed "IRO" because of high costs and of appropriations.

First speaker scheduled to be heard on the Greek case today is Vassili Dedeianis, Greek representative to the United Nations, who is leading his country's fight against the Ukrainian charges.

Before the council were several proposals, including an Australian motion to bypass the Ukrainian charges and to give complete data, as of Aug. 1, about the troops' strength and deployment.

CHINA—Military observers theorized that the Central government was preparing a total offensive against the communists at the government chief-of-state conferred with Generalissimo Chiang Kai-shek and left for Mukden.

GERMANY—The U. S. military government announced the American occupation zone was being plagued with a rising crime wave among Germans and displaced persons.

Texas Production Of Oil Decreases

TULSA, Okla.—(AP)—Daily average crude oil production in the nation totaled 4,775,928 barrels for the week ending September 14, a decrease of 25,100 barrels from the previous week, the Oil and Gas Journal reported today.

Oklahoma more than accounted for the drop with a decrease of 32,050 barrels to 2,525,000 barrels to a drop in production at the west Edmond field following a sharp cut in allowable for that area.

Other states showing a decrease were Texas, down 4,300 barrels to 2,688,400; Kansas, down 8,500 barrels to 271,000; Illinois, down 5,750 barrels to 292,850; and the eastern area, 500 barrels to 64,000.

California showed an increase of 11,600 barrels to 868,100; Louisiana, up 300 barrels to 398,500; and the Rocky Mountain area of Colorado, Montana and Wyoming up 8,870 to 173,240.

Mississippi production was 73,100 barrels compared with 72,850 last week.

Longhorn-Tiger Gets Top Billing

Among SWC Tilts

By MAX R. SKELTON

Starring lineups are the number one problem for at least five of the seven Southwest conference football coaches as the 1946 campaign heads, lined as the roughest and toughest in history, near its bellringer opening next Saturday.

With every school promising a record breaking surplus of players, the coaches have been hard at work in selecting their starting elevens, and with five games only four days away definite starting combinations still are conspicuous by their absence.

Four of the schools, Texas A. & M., Texas, Arkansas and T. C. U., also have injury problems.

Top ranking game of the week for the Southwest, and billed as one of the best in the nation, is the Austin clash Saturday afternoon between the Universities of Texas and Missouri. Cotton Bowl opponents last January 1.

Other openers find Texas A. & M. meeting North Texas State college at College Station, T. C. U. taking on the University of Kansas Jayhawks at Kansas City, Ark. Arkansas entertaining Northwestern Louisiana State college at Fayetteville, and Baylor university playing the University of Oklahoma at Waco.

The T. C. U. and Baylor games will be played Saturday night.

The Longhorn-Tiger clash may be a repeat performance of January 1, 1945, when the Longhorns came out on top. Both schools are loaded with stars and most of their players from last season are back in uniform.

University officials expect a crowd of approximately 35,000, a record for Austin openers.

Although not considered breathers, as has been the case in former years, the Austin and Baylor games are not expected to have too much difficulty in disposing of the Eagles and Pirates.

T. C. U., however, is expecting plenty of trouble in their Kansas invasion. The Jayhawks, a team that has had rough sledding in recent years, reportedly is on the upward swing with a wealth of material on hand.

The Arkansas Pikers, popularly picked for the conference cellar spot, should get by the Louisiana team with ease but will have double trouble on their hands a week later when they go to Stillwater, Okla., to clash with Oklahoma A. & M.

Southern Methodist and Rice will remain idle, opening up next week, taking on the University of Philadelphia and L. S. U. at Houston.

The Mustangs will see some action tonight when, in Dallas, they meet an intrasquad scrimmage for the benefit of a memorial dormitory for the S. M. U. campus.

Jess Neely, the Rice coach, continues to cloak his Owls in secrecy. Yesterday they took a day off to pose for pictures.

After a planned public appearance was rained out on Saturday, Bible yesterday followed Neely's plan of secrecy and took his Longhorns behind closed gates with scrimmage as the call of the day. Another session will be held tomorrow to complete the pre-game roughage.

Big Don Werden, who left Bible in the hands of AAF pilot, is the only prospective first stringer on the injury list but he is expected to be in shape by Saturday.

Longhorn starters look like all-America Hubert Bechtel and Max Bumgarner at ends; Ed Kelly and Kemp Harris, tackles; Weegen and Spot Collins, guards; Dick Harris, center; Ralph Ellsworth, fullback; Bobby Lavin, tailback; Walter Hoag, blocking back, and Jim Canaday, wingback.

Taut Pad Helps Home Ironer

By ALICIA HART

That professionally-pressed look of freshly pressed clothes, which puts a girl's good grooming accent, can be duplicated by the home amateur who works on an ironing board that's carefully and properly padded.

The right kind? A smooth, cushioned pad held tight by a taut cover. That's the best equipment for pressing anything, with the exception of sleeves.

These need a board of their own. If you don't have one, you can make it equivalent—a pressing roll—by rolling up a big, fat magazine. Coil it tight. Pad by wrapping with several layers of soft cloth. For this purpose, an old cotton blanket serves nicely. Cover the padded roll with muslin, secure it at the ends with needle and thread, and there you are, equipped with a sleeve "board" that defies dead ends.

WALL STREET
NEW YORK—(AP)—For the first Monday since July 29, the stock market today negotiated a modest advance although buying was on the cautious side and many sellers failed to do anything in particular.

The recovery of Friday carried over at an active opening but dealings soon slowed appreciably. A few "thin" issues added several points on a handful of sales. Gains generally ranging from fractions to a point or so, were indicated in most cases at the close. There also was a smattering of minus signs. Transfers were in the vicinity of 50,000,000 shares, smallest turnover of the month to date.

without argument provisions for division of surplus Italian fleet units among the United States, Britain, France and Russia.

The vessels include the battleships Cesare, Italia and Vittorio Veneto, five cruisers, seven destroyers, one sloop, six torpedo boats, eight submarines and a host of minor craft and auxiliaries.

This same commission approved clauses ordering Italy to demilitarize her frontier with France and Yugoslavia, as well as Sicily, Calabria, Pantelleria and smaller islands in the Mediterranean and Adriatic.

The military commission voted 19 to one for article 49 of the Italian treaty, with Brazil absent, providing that Italy must dispose of submarines and non-operational ships within time limits and under conditions specified by the Big Four treaty draft.

Gen. Frank Theron of South Africa called for allowing Italy to salvage electrical equipment that could aid Italy's civil economy and in the ensuing argument suggested that even the steel from hulls could be cut up for Italy's industry.

"There was no question of what to do with German and Japanese submarines we take them out and sink them. I oppose giving Italy all this equipment peculiar only to submarines, an offensive weapon, and sinking only hulls. We can't let all that equipment go on the loose in an ex-enemy country," said Capt. Donald F. Pryce the U. S. navy.

our present foreign policy and what Wallace suggested:

1. We have a "get tough with Russia" policy, although he state department doesn't like that kind of language. Wallace suggested we cut out the tough stuff.

2. We've been standing shoulder to shoulder with Britain in bucking Russia's policy, although the state ought to have a foreign policy independent of Britain and not let Britain lead us into trouble.

3. We agreed on record against "spheres of influence." That is: domination by big nations of smaller nations around them. Wallace speaks of Russian and American spheres of influence as if they were now operating.

And Wallace says further: Let's keep our nose out of the political doings of nations close to Russia and let Russia do the same for us.

The storm became furious Friday after Wallace's Thursday night talk. Republicans jumped on Wallace for making the speech and on Mr. Truman for approving it. And state department officials threw up their hands in dismay.

Pretty quickly it became clear Mr. Truman was going to have to say this was the new policy of the United States, or else in some way, make it clear that it wasn't.

He called a special news conference Saturday and read a statement which said:

He didn't mean, when he said he had approved the whole speech, that he had approved the speech as constituting a statement of this country's foreign policy.

Mr. Truman said further he only meant that he had approved Mr. Wallace's right to deliver the speech.

In this way Mr. Truman took himself and Mr. Byrnes off the hook and all that Mr. Wallace had said, then, was simply what Mr. Wallace thought and not what Mr. Truman thought. This seemed to cool things off a bit.

But yesterday Wallace, not finished at all said: "I intend to continue my efforts for a just and lasting peace and I shall, within the near future, speak on this subject again."

So it seems Mr. Truman soon again will have to approve—or disapprove—Wallace's right to speak on foreign affairs. If he disapproves, then Wallace seems to be faced with this:

Either keeping quiet, so long as he remains in Mr. Truman's cabinet as secretary of commerce, or quitting his job and saying what he pleases as a private citizen.

nes maintained complete personal silence on the whole question of Wallace's demands for a softer policy toward Russia. But there was ample evidence that state department officials here were considerably disturbed by what they regarded as an appearance of American disunity to the rest of the world.

It was understood from top officials that state department leaders are considering a recommendation to Mr. Truman that any further speeches by Wallace on foreign policy should at least be subject to state department clearance.

Pressure to keep Wallace as a member of the government was reported fairly strong because of what many of Mr. Truman's advisers consider to be the commerce secretary's considerable political following.

Yet among lawmakers of both parties there were increasing demands for what Senator Kilgore (D-Wa.) called "a unified front" in the handling of foreign affairs. Kilgore told reporters that "Americans must present a unified front behind the administration in dealing with foreign affairs."

Senator Byrd (D-Va) cabled Byrnes in Paris that "You have the overwhelming support and confidence of the American people in your valiant efforts to establish enduring world peace. Wallace and Pepper speak for a small minority."

HOW BIG A FOOHOLD DOES 'PINK FRINGE' HAVE?

If by the time this goes to press, Henry Wallace is still secretary of commerce, it will be but another in the number of mistakes which can be accredited to the administration.

If he is still in the office, to which he was appointed to placate the pink fringe as well as the rabid reds, then it will be more indisputable proof of the fact that things are just about as snafu as any chaos conceived by John Milton. Infact, "Paradise Lost" would probably look like Paradise Re-Discovered, by contrast.

When Wallace spoke at a New York mass meeting last week, he did not confuse the people, we hope, when he seemed now and then to cast obloquy at the Russians. The summary of that speech is that we should cease being "tough" with Moscow in her westward diplomatic thrust.

The foreign policy of the U. S., as advocated through Secretary of State Byrnes at Paris, was literally split asunder when Wallace, the last of the old-line new dealers, spoke. Yesterday, he said he would speak again on that controversial subject, which is embarrassing the government abroad and creating confusion at home.

When first approached, Pres. Truman said he had sanctioned the speech, but when it became a "hot potato," he explained he said Wallace had the right to make the speech. There was no change, he fumbled to newsmen, in the U. S. foreign policy.

When Mr. Truman says things like that, we are certain he is fooling no one—not even himself. His palsied attempt at rationalization seems to be getting him nowhere—except into further and more serious disclaimer with the American people.

Wallace's speech was sponsored by the National Citizens Political Action committee and the Independent Committee of the Arts, Sciences and Professions. Everyone knows their inspiration emanates from Moscow. This new deal doctrine, Wallace, is a bed-fellow of no mean magnitude.

If Wallace still has his job, as we said before, it does not only show Wallace's stripe in a more pronounced color—but seems to indicate who does and who doesn't have influence in our administration.

It's beginning to look as if the American people, en masse, DO NOT have any say-so.

MACKENZIE'S Column

By DEWITT MACKENZIE
AP Foreign Affairs Analyst

Communism has been rejected by an avalanche of moderate and conservative German votes in the British and French zones of occupation, just as was the case in the American zone a few weeks ago; in the Russian occupied provinces of Brandenburg and Mecklenburg the communist-dominated socialist party won by a big margin.

That's a highly significant development. The significance lies in the reasons why the vote in the American-British-French areas eschewed the Redism. The easiest way to get at our analysis is first to state the problems which the voters had to face:

1. From the moment Hitler came to power in 1933 until he died he had hammered hate and fear of communism into his people. Anti-communism was one of his major policies. To the average German, communism was the last word in evil.
2. Before the war Germany was the economic keystone of the continent, and the consensus of experts is that the reich's legitimate economic life—must be restored if Europe as a whole is to be rehabilitated. You can't have a sick Germany and a well Europe, any more than a man can have an ailing heart and a sound body.
3. History may record that the greatest long-term disaster which befell Germany and numerous other parts of Europe wasn't material but was spiritual and moral destruction. Hitler himself was chiefly responsible for this because—he deliberately debased his own people and those of other countries which came under his control. He did this so that they would be willing to assist in carrying out his evil program.

Well, now, the majority of Germans find no answer to any one of these three problems in adopting communism.

Problem number 1 speaks for itself. Even those Germans who abhorred Hitlerism—still are fearful of the Redism in the east.

Concerning the economic ills of problem 2, I found during my recent visit to Germany that there were few in the zones occupied by the three Western Allies who saw any remedy in communistic doctrines.

The third issue—that of spiritual and moral rehabilitation—looms large in the calculations of the many who believe that these elements are essential for the stability of a nation in the long run. You will see recognition of this in the fact that the heaviest vote appears to have been polled in all three western zones by religious combinations.

Here again the answer is that communism—which holds that religion is the opiate of the masses—obviously doesn't fill the bill for anyone who has religious leanings. Hitler robbed many of his young folk of their religions but my observation is that the great majority of Germans still subscribe to religion in some form.

Killsnook, Alaska, is one of the smallest villages in the world. It had a population of three in the 1930 census.

Peter Edson's Column

THE FURNITURE IS MOVED WITH CARE

By DOUGLAS LARSEN
NEA Washington Correspondent
Peter Edson is on Vacation
WASHINGTON—(NEA)—There have been so many reports in the last few months concerning the government's reckless and wasteful handling of its surplus property that the average person probably has the notion the government is just as careless with everything it owns.

To allay that fear, here is a report of the careful job it does when office furniture is hauled among bureaus, offices, and buildings. It should be a source of great comfort to every taxpayer to discover that the minute stake he has in each federal chair, conference table, chart, file cabinet, and outer-office davenport is protected with the tenderest care and attention when moved.

This is important, too, because moving federal furniture is a sizable operation in the capital. It's the mark of a live bureau to shift various offices, equipment, and personnel around as much as possible. It's a sign they're on their toes.

And then, each time a lesser government official gets an in-grade promotion it's an unwritten civil service regulation that he shift to new quarters. If he doesn't, it means he doesn't draw much water in the shop.

The same thing goes for every time a new section head is appointed, too. There must be a complete switch of all furniture to suit his particular aesthetic notion of how the typewriters and cupboards should be lined up.

It would be a green new section head, indeed, who failed to do this. He'd immediately lose the respect of his underlings and start out with an attitude against his subordinates.

As short, moving the furniture is just about as significant an operation of the federal government as is collecting the taxes. That is why no effort is made to ensure that it is done properly.

If there is nothing more comfortable around, such as when you're moving filing cabinets, and malignant fatigue should threaten, why just curl up on the floor until the threat passes. But above all, the movers are told, don't hurry. Speed only means confusion, tired backs, and unrest among the workers.

Yes, Mr. Taxpayer, you can indeed be proud of your government's system of moving.

A New Dealer Can Prove Anything

Did you ever notice that a New Dealer or a socialist can prove anything? The reason that they can prove anything is that they always use themselves as a norm to determine whether or not a thing is right or wrong.

Did you ever notice that they always say, "I do not agree with you," when they oppose a course of action? They never say that this or that is out of harmony with a certain eternal law of God or nature.

Of course, we cannot reason without a fixed starting point, without principles any more than we can measure things without having some fixed unit by which to measure or compare. And when a man uses his own changeable will as a standard of right and wrong he can always be right.

Yes, a socialist can prove anything, because he always uses his changeable will as the norm or standard of right and wrong.

Not Complimentary To Roosevelt

In William C. Bullitt's book "The Great Globe Itself," former Ambassador Bullitt makes a statement that is not very complimentary to Roosevelt. He says:

"Few errors more disastrous have ever been made by a President of the United States, and those citizens of the United States who bamboozled the President into acting as if Stalin were a cross between Abraham Lincoln and Woodrow Wilson deserve a high place on an American roll of dishonor."

Remember, Ambassador Bullitt was appointed by President Roosevelt.

Those who read Bullitt's book, which shows the violations of international law of which Russia is guilty, can hardly help but think that Bullitt is right in his statement. Only a super-conceited man, such as Roosevelt was, could believe that he could deal with such a man as Stalin. The after-results show that Stalin was only using Roosevelt to gain strength for himself and Russia.

"We Owe It To Ourselves"

A friend of mine leaves this on my desk:

"Two people were arguing about our huge indebtedness. One of them says, 'Well, one thing about this debt; we owe it to ourselves.'"

The other answers by saying, "All right, the next time you pay your income tax, just make the check out to yourself."

The same thing would apply to "social security" deductions. If we owe this debt to ourselves, let's have our employer cease and desist deducting for our withholding tax or our "social security." If we owe it to ourselves, there is no use turning the money over to the government.

OVERSIGHT

DANVILLE, Ill.—(AP)—Bob Ingram was happy when his lost billfold was returned, although $28 had been taken from it.

Whoever found the wallet and took the $28 overlooked $250 in a hidden compartment. Dropped into a mail box, the purse was returned by a postal employee.

So Ingram contributed $10 toward the postmen's picnic fund.

FOLLS, President Truman's scouts have recently reported that World War II veterans are beginning to turn thumbs down on the administration. His aides have attended almost every national and state convention so far held by the ex-soldiers of both major conflicts, and they are not too happy over the anti-White House demonstrations.

Any defection by this large mass of new voters would constitute a serious political danger, for they voted for F.D.R. in 1944 with sixty or eighty percent majorities. His successor had hoped to hold this group in line, and thus offset defections among other elements of the electorate.

Recent private and public polls, however, show a fairly close division—fifty-one to forty-nine percent—among the voters for the first time since Franklin D. Roosevelt appeared on the national scene. They do not believe that the promises extended to them in the G. I. Bill of Rights have been kept by the executive branches of the government charged with administering it.

COMPLAINTS.

They gripe about the alleged failure of the housing program to obtain living space for themselves and their families. They complain that subsistence allowances for students and apprentices in executing their insurance policies and pensions. In general, they charge that promised benefits have been strangled or held up by army red tape.

These complaints will probably flare to the boiling point when the American Legion stages its annual jamboree in San Francisco late this month, although the administration is shipping all its bigwigs to coast in an effort to placate the boys of 1917 and their soldier sons of 1941.

Jap Prison Official Sentenced to Death

SHANGHAI—(AP)—Capt. Jochi Sheng, chief medical officer of the prison camp in which General Wainwright was held in Mukden, Manchuria, was convicted of war crimes today and sentenced to death by hanging.

The four-man American military tribunal also convicted Col. Genji Matsuda, camp commandant, and sentenced him to seven years' imprisonment at hard labor.

Arkansas is known as the wonder state.

HOLLYWOOD, (NEA)—Raccon, wit, and showman for three decades, off-legendary Benny Rubin is including his best theater stories in a book to be titled, appropriately, "Rubin Rubin, I've Been Thinking."

Benny is a veteran of everything from blackface to Mississippi showboat to Broadway to Hollywood. At the moment he's helping Senator Claghorn (Kenny Delmar) polish up his Southern accent for the movie "It's a Joke, Son."

Anyway, here are some of Benny's favorite yarns:

At the height of Jean Harlow's career, M-G-M previewed one of her movies, "The Girl From Missouri." At the showing the film and sound tracks were separate, being projected on different machines.

The operator got things mixed up, so that when Leo the Lion, M-G-M's famous trade-mark, appeared on the screen and opened his mouth to roar, out came Miss Harlow's voice crying, "You can't do this to me!"

Later the operator was asked how it happened. He replied, neatly defending his professional ability: "Can I help it if the lion ad libs?"

AND THAT'S NOT ALL

One of Rubin's New York pals, Jed Harris, the producer, was known on occasion to walk out:

his home in the nude.

One time George S. Kaufman, the playwright, called on Jed, relates Benny:

"Harris opened the door and stood there in all his original beauty. George took at his nakedness for a moment, and then he said: 'Jed, your collar button is open.'"

Rubin, a close personal friend of Al Jolson, once made a record imitating one of Jolson's numbers.

He later told Jolson that a music-shop clerk had offered him a record of a comedian who did a Jolson impersonation—and that the impersonation was better than Jolson. Jolson hurried to the shop to hear the record.

He listened intently, growing more furious by the moment. When the record appeared to have ended, Jolson whirled on the proprietor to tell him off, when from the record came the final line: "And that's better than you can do—you pot-bellied ham."

Jolson, recognizing Rubin's voice, exploded—but with laughter.

THE TRUTH HURTS

Lionel Barrymore told Rubin of the time he was boxing with the late Hobart Bosworth and Bosworth broke a finger, a fact which Lionel duly related to his father, Maurice Barrymore.

The elder Barrymore later met Bosworth and noticed that he had one hand in a cast. Bosworth told him how it happened.

"This," cried Barrymore, "is awful!"

Winston Churchill was guest of honor at a big party thrown by the stage colony in New York, Rubin recalls. He brought down the house by asserting that he didn't like the theater—because he couldn't smoke in it.

Ford Gets Increase

On All Three Models

WASHINGTON—(AP)—Ford today granted immediate retail ceiling price increase averaging about six percent for Ford, Mercury and Lincoln automobiles.

The increases were authorized under a revised "hardship" pricing formula which also is effective immediately.

The agency said the new formula "is available on application to all passenger car manufacturers who are currently in an overall loss position."

The higher prices on Ford-built cars will remain in effect "only until March 15, 1947, unless extended or modified."

Bosworth laughed it off. "It's not that," moaned the elder Barrymore. "It's the thought that for the first time in his life I've detected my son telling the truth."

The United Nations is one of the greatest conceptions the world has ever seen. It is imperfect, new, untried, idealistic, set off in a vacuum with world events being unmercifully about it.

AT Mark's insistence, I went to my room, though I knew I could not sleep. And as I left I heard Mark say to Ellen, "I was always too harsh with the lad," his voice aching with remorse. And I heard Ellen's voice trying to soothe him, and Colin still wandering through the lanes of childhood.

I closed my eyes and tried to sleep, to lie shivering, instead, convinced that in spite of all I could do Colin would not recover. But he did recover, and the doctor, when he came, was most complimentary about the care I had given him.

"Dragged him back from the dead, Doctor," Ellen told him, sniffling and wiping her eyes. And Mark said, "I'll never forget what you've done, Cecelia. For years you've been the one bright spot in this house and now believe me, I am grateful to you."

Unbelievable, this from Mark Fitzgerald, the austere professor whom I had always feared a little.

With this and the knowledge that Colin was out of danger, my heart was like a living thing once more, not dead way down inside me. I could sing and laugh. And I could sleep when my head touched the pillow.

My patient was recovering rapidly. And no spoiled brat in the children's ward, no cantankerous oldster on the men's floor nor wealthy neurotic woman in one of the expensive rooms at Saint Gregory's could run me as ragged as Colin Fitzgerald did during this time. He wanted me there beside the bed at all times, there was nothing either Ellen or Mark could do to please him. Sometimes he was content to have me merely sit beside him, but more often I had to wait on him. Some services he demanded, to be sure, were necessary, but a great many more were not.

I HAD to help feed him long after I suspected he was well able to do it himself. He was eternally asking me to fix his pillows, to tuck in blankets already tucked in. He had me read to him, poems for the most part, until my voice was strained to a whisper. And once, when carried away by the exquisite beauty of some line I paused and I looked up to ask if he, too, felt as I did about it, he said, "I love to watch your mouth when you read. You have a lovely mouth, Cecelia."

I threw the book down and marched from the room in a temper. Nor did I go back until that evening when Ellen brought me a scribbled note reading: "My dear Miss Hart: If you come back at once I promise to be the ideal patient. If not, I shall report you to the medical association or the Red Cross or something. I am sure my temperature is below normal. Pathetically, the poor unfortunate man in the red room. P. S. I have smoked three cigarettes already today. One must do something."

I went back at once and stood in the doorway, trying to look severe. He gazed back at me serenely.

"Oh, there you are," he said. "What have you been doing? I missed you."

"I shampooed my hair and had a nice nap—a nice rest from you," I told him. "And I have here a letter from Saint Gregory's telling me that I am to return as soon as possible. There's a flu epidemic in Barrington and the hospital is crowded."

He said nothing, just lay there, his dark eyes fixed on me. But I felt myself reddening under his election of a Mayor and four (4) Commissioners, which election shall be held under the direction of the City Commission, according to the laws of the State of Texas regulating municipal elections. And all provisions of this Charter in conflict herewith are hereby expressly repealed."

And BE IT FURTHER RESOLVED that this resolution be and the same shall constitute notice of the intention of the City Commission, as required under Article 1171 of the Revised Civil Statutes of Texas, and this resolution shall be published in The Pampa News, the official publication of the City of Pampa, Texas, being a newspaper published in the said city, and such publications shall gaze and my heart began aching queerly. I came into the room and sat down beside the bed and took out my knitting, glad to have something to do so that I would not have to meet his eyes again.

"So you're leaving me, little Saint Cecelia," he said quietly after a moment's silence. "They say it's a bad epidemic," I told him. "Every available nurse will be needed. And you're really well on the road to recovery."

"Of course," he said dryly. "All I need now is to take care of myself. You know," he added, "I had an odd fancy while I was delirious, or whatever it is I was doing."

"Yes?" I lifted my eyes then and looked at him.

"Yes," he said. "I thought I kissed you and you—eloped me." And now there was no doubt about the color rushing into my face.

"People imagine all sorts of things when they're ill," I told him, knitting hastily away on the sweater.

"You haven't taken my temperature tonight," he said after another pause.

I laid down my knitting. "I'm sure it's normal," I told him. But I got the thermometer and proceeded to prove it to him.

And then, when I had assured him that it was indeed normal, he reached up suddenly and drew my face down to his and kissed me hard on the lips. And the thermometer fell to the floor and broke into bits.

"That wasn't delirium," he said softly, as he released me. "Don't look like that, Cecelia. I'm not the first man to fall in love with his nurse."

Wordless, I fled, not even stopping to pick up the broken pieces of the thermometer. Fled to my own little room, where I lay across the bed and hid my flaming face. Small difference then between the little 17-year-old girl I remembered and the nurse of 23 I had fancied so mature.

By JOSEPH C. GOODWIN

TEL AVIV, Palestine—(AP)—Babies, crowing, cuddly, curly haired and glowing from parental care, from a new and powerful echelon in the Jewish struggle for predominance in Palestine.

"The birth rate has increased astonishingly in the last two years," said a former Vienna obstetrician in the Tel Aviv municipal health service. "Good healthy children with normal family life give us an 'immigration' route that's completely unchecked."

Jewish agency officials, frankly terming the infant industry "internal immigration," balk the movement with modern hospitals and medical care. Official propaganda encourages motherhood.

Agency statistics for 1943-45 list Jewish births in Palestine at 25 per 1,000 population annually. Official estimates place the 1945-46 figure at "30 or beyond." Baby carriage manufacturers, swamped with business, are even more optimistic.

"This is a city of babies," chuckled an old perambulator maker, putting the final brush strokes on a white rubber-tired two passenger model.

Until recently Palestine government experts attached little importance to the natural increase in Jewish population, pointing out that Moslem babies arrived at the rate of 48 per year per 1,000 population against the Jewish 25. The Arab population was recorded at more than a million, the Jewish at less than 600,000.

Now they are not so sure. "The Jewish birth rate is definitely climbing," said a national health department official. "And Jewish doctors have reduced the infant mortality rate even lower than that in America."

But health officials do not take full credit for the apparent success of operation perambulator. "Many of our people are young and strong and eager to establish a family," explained an agency official. After years of fear, war and flight, they now see hope for homes and a country of their own. All of them are secure in their new feelings of nationalistic unity. The bumper baby crop is a natural result."

BILLINGS, Mont.—(AP)—Mrs. Lydia Rust found a billfold in a street drain with the only clue to the owner's identity a nylon hosiery registration stub from a Billings store. She checked with the manager. He referred to the list of 6,000 registrants, found No. 3856 was in the name of Mrs. Francis Eby and wallet and precious registration slip were returned. Mrs. Eby got her money back, too.

With advice from the state department, Mrs. Levinson, traveler and artist, says she has suggested to the United Nations that "Peace Day" be declared "upon the occasion of the dedication of its permanent site or upon some equally appropriate occasion."

Mrs. Levinson said she had received letters approving her proposal from Mrs. Eleanor Roosevelt and Bernard Baruch.
