Hearing Scheduled On Circulation Of Anti-Ike Gag Cards

WASHINGTON, Nov. 24 —UP— Chief post office lawyer Ross Riz-ley Tuesday extended the hospitality of the wide open spaces to a fellow Oklahoman in trouble with postal authorities for mailing anti-Eisenhower cards.

Rizley said "Cowboy" Pink Williams of Caddo, Okla., is welcome to bunk at his place when he comes here for a hearing next month "if he can put up with what I put up with." He said Williams would have to share his one - bedroom said "we cowboys quit eating when Truman went out." Williams is coming here to contest a post office order holding up his mail. A hearing has been set for Dec. 3 to determine if the 62year-old cattleman violated postal laws by mailing cards inviting other cattlemen who voted for President Eisenhower to a "gag" picnic to eat crow and have their kicked free."

Mail is Impounded In the meantime, the department has impounded mail addressed to "Cowboy" at Williams' post office box in Caddo.

Williams' attorney, James O. Braly of Durant, Okla., said postal officials questioned the use of a fictitious name "Cowboy" on the picnic cards. But he said no objections were raised to another.

Subcommittee Chairman William E. Jenner (R-Ind.) once denounced Marshall in a Senate speech as a "front man for traitors." More recently, when a witness at a subcommittee hearing referred to Glasser as having been an adviser to the secretary of state, Jenner interrupted to make sure the record showed that the secretary concerned was Marshall. But Jenner so far has said nothing about calling the retired general for questioning about the Glasser case, subcommittee's spy hearings have been recessed until Dec.

Jet Crashes Into Bridge

GREENVILLE, Miss., Nov. 24-UP A jet training plane tore through a section of the Missisisp. pi River bridge near here early Tuesday, exploding natural gas pipe lines and closing the bridge to traffic

Managing Editor Tom Karsell of the Greenville Delta Democrat-Times said the plane ripped through the steel super-structure of the $4,470,000 bridge minutes after midnight, and apparently plunged into the river.

The plane, which was not found immediately, was identified by Col. Vincent Howard, commander of the Greenville Air Force Base, He said a student pilot, whom he did not identify pending notification of kin, was missing on a night training flight.

Exchange Medium

Ever since the days men showed their tender affections by dragging their girl friends around by the hair (ah, those were the days!), the problem of a "medium of exchange" has presented itself to the human race.

Very early in the existence of man, it become apparent that some fellows had oranges and some had bananas and some had animal skins suitable for making mittens.

And the fellows with the oranges couldn't keep their hands warm unless they struck a bargain with the animalskinners; and the boys with the bananas discovered it was good sense to trade off their wealth with the orange

And so a very elementary form of exchange was created and wealth began to change hands and build up what we call "demand." As the demand increased, so did the supply, until rather a complicated economy had developed not long after the human animal learned to

The business of exchanging commodities, or exchanging services for commodities, or services for services, paved the way for the "medium of exchange" which became at the same time the key to progress and the weapon of the tyrant. The Squire of Hyde Park used the medium of exchange like an Irishman uses his shillelash; and finally he said it wasn't even the stuff we thought it was all these years and by royal fiat he amended the multiplication tables of commerce.

Well, you can spend a frantic lifetime studying the theory of money, and get poorer all the while.

Mankind has experimented with all kinds of money; pretty glass beads, gold, silver, base metals, livestock and worthless pieces of paper with fancy printing on the face and nothing in reserve.

But there's an ancient form of "medium of exchange" that is the last resort of every tyrant, and it hasn't changed much since the covemen. It's the medium of exchange known as force and violence, or compulsion, or

Men will deal with each other freely or under threat of violence. One or the other. When freedom is suspended, the vacuum is filled by compulsion which becomes the medium of exchange and measure of all value.

Ninety days in jail, the seizure of property or the payment of a tax, is a realistic medium of exchange in any language. It has nothing to do with the real value

The dismal fact is that an ever-greater percentage of the money-price of everything we buy represents force and compulsion. In the price of every dollar item we buy is figured the extortion of tariffs, immigration quotas, parities, subsidies, unionism and even the International WPA we used to call the Marshall Plan.

The price of a package of chewing gum reflects our domestic socialism and our dedicated effort to support socialism abroad. The five cents buys very little gum, but it pays for a lot of compulsion.

We hear a lot of talk about "revaluing" the currency and inflation and deflation; and some fellows even make a living by compounding the confusion.

We're not much on theoretical economics and we venture the idea that the difference between "sound" money and "unsound" money is the amount of force and compulsion represented by each dollar, peso, franc or florin. The soundest money is that which is the most free of dilution and adulteration by compulsion.

The dollar that buy 100 cents' worth of a commodity and service is a real dollar, a sound dollar. At the moment, according to the economists, we're getting about 50 cents' worth of merchandise or service for every dollar.

The rest of the bill goes for the compulsion to which we subject ourselves and each other and which we underwrite in countries across the seas.

Freedom Pays

A spokesman for chain retailing recently recalled the time when anti-chain legislation was a big national issue. Advocates of punitive special taxes and other such restrictions against the chains said that they were necessary if independent merchandising was to survive.

With few exceptions, however, the proposed measures were defeated. But the independents didn't die. As the spokesman said, "Instead of going out of business, the independents and wholesolers modernized their operations, which led to more competition, more efficiency, and the public benefitted."

In the long run all concerned benefit most when enterprise enjoys the highest possible degree of freedom. The government controls, under OPS and OPA, are another good case in point. They inevitably tended to destroy competition and create shortages. They placed a heavy financial burden on producer and retailer alike — at the ultimate expense of the consumer. It is undeniable that had they been continued much longer, the normal workings of our complex economy would have been dangerous-

In short, freedom and progress go hand in hand.

Bargaining

INSTALLMENT III The Right of Refusal

One of the important features of truly competitive bargaining is that a person has the right of refusal. He doesn't have to trade at another person's price. A man may keep what he has if he isn't satisfied with the other fellow's best offer. Such a refusal to trade is quite a common thing in any market place. It is typical of the competitive system. It is a vital part of the bargaining procedure. It is as fair and just as the day is long. But a refusal to buy or to accept the terms offered certainly is no excuse for violent retaliation against the rightful owner or against any other person who might be willing to accept the owner's terms of trade.

A person may choose to quit a job if the wage or other conditions of employment are not satisfactory, just as a shopper returns a can of peaches to the shelf if the price is too high for her. Yet the housewife, by that act, does not pretend to have acquired a claim of ownership to the peaches. The next shopper who wants them may claim them at the price agreeable to the seller. An unhampered market will function in exactly that same fashion with respect to opportunities for employment.

Competitive bargaining has brought many benefits to the creative and highly productive men and and women of American, just as all men and women can gain if they are willing to assume the responsibility of being free. But freedom to bargain is being forfeited by Americans who do not perceive that such freedom is based upon respect for the rights of others. The advantages of bargaining and trade are not to be found in the kind of collective action which calls for the suppression of individual freedom of choice. The only alternaern. In the final analysis, the alternative to competitive bargaining is government control - the government in command of all property and all lives - individuality surrendered to the state compulsory collectivism. The Right to Life

A man must have control of his own life before he can bargain. Patrick Henry said his life wasn't worth living without liberty. And other men of that day wanted to be free. Each, of course, wanted the freedom to produce for his own use. But they also recognized that hargaining with one another might help each of them fulfill a wider range of needs or desires.

These men wanted a chance to ciety by the peaceful means of bargaining. They thought that ment could freely trade goods and services to their mutual satisfaction

I just wish I could enjoy all these things, but Jim and the sail fish have me trapped. and progress; that it was not necthere was something basically wrong with the old concept that control of his own life.

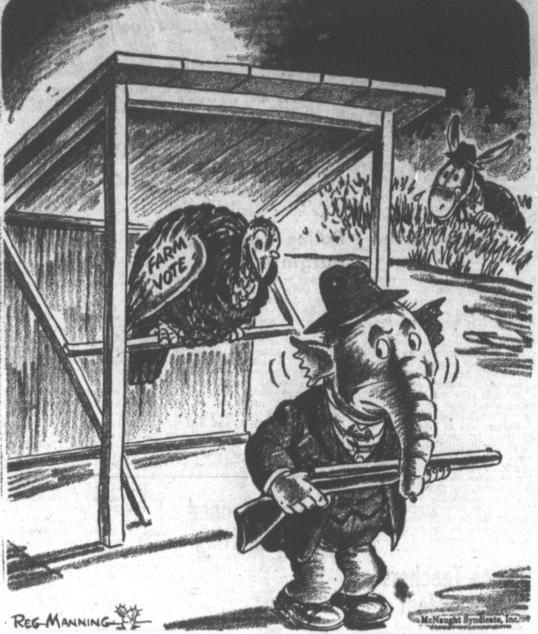

A person who has control of his own life may work for himself if he chooses. This is simply another way of saying that a free man has the right to reject the other fellow's, best wage offer. Not only must the person be free to work for himself, but he must also be free to keep the products of his labor and his bargaining - free to own and control what is properly his own private property. The Right to Property te property may be the of a job done to one's own satistaction, or it may be something acquired through voluntary exchange, or it may be something received as a gift. In any case, the tangible evidence of past production or service - the product of 'yesterday's service now held as property - is as much a part of a man's life as the services he renders today or might render tomorrow. So it is that your own freedom calls upon you to respect the right of every man to own property, for use as he chooses, just as you would respect his right to the life he fashions for himself with his own hands and through a brand new car! his own intellect. Life and the means of livelihood are too closely related for logical separation.

A person must have this exclusive right or claim to a thing, whether it be tomorrow's effort or property saved trom yesterday's efforts, before he can use it for purposes of bargaining. Respect for individual rights to life and property is the basis of private enterprise or capitalism, a respect which does not exist under the various systems of compulsory collectivism. An individual can't bargain in a collectivized country because he is not permitted to claim anything as his own; property is owned in common," which simply means that no man can say with conviction that any part of his livelihood - or even his life - is his own. There is little opportunity for competition or tor bargaining with respect to anything which has been brought into "public ownership" through the compulsory processes of govern-The first requirement for bargaining, then, is the possession of something which has value and which may be offered in exchange. How valuable is it? Well, that's the whole purpose of bargaining to find the answer to that question, peacefully and without using

These are the days when it's | hard to get dinner started on time. With P.T.A. and club meetings, community activities under way again, and everybody's autumn and winter wardrobe to keep in order for work and school, plus the dozens of small activities that housekeeping entails every day, dinner time comes before you know it. But don't be caught napping. List some last-minute menus and turn to one of them on the day that you just can't make the dinner deadline otherwise

Useful aids in pepping up these menus are the wide variety of Chef Boy-ar-dee sauces. The Chef sauce (8 and 15-oz, can) either with mushrooms or meat adds interest to rice, spaghetti and macaroni when these are served as supper mainstays. The Chef sauce mushrooms is extra good with fish. There is a Spanish sauce (11-oz. can) that really turns frankfurters into a special feast. poured over a Spanish omelet. Friedman Behind Baytown Venture HOUSTON, Nov. 23 -UP-Gam-bler Jakie Friedman, now of Las Vegas, Nev., but a former Houston operator, was named Monday as the "big money" behind a new oil venture near Baytown. G. R. Parks, Baytown cafe operator, said that Friedman, now owner of the Sands hotel in Nevada's plush resort center, had bought three-fourths interest in a lease of some 1,400 acres of the old Busch Ranch at Baytown's northwest edge.

The Houston Press here said it was a "$10 million deal" but Parks would neither confirm nor deny Monday a drilling crew moved onto the property and said it would have the Jakie Friedman No. 1 well spudded in by Wednesday. It will be about one mile from the proven Goose Creek field.

Strikers To Get Questionnaires

AUSTIN, Nov. 24 -UP-A list of at least 100 questions from the Texas attorney general's office was to be put Tuesday before leaders of a two-week-old strike in Port Arthur, a capitol source reported. The source said the department's legal staff worked late Monday night on the questionnaire and At-torney General John Ben Sheppard planned to make the answers public if officials of the Distributive, Processing and Office Workers Union meet the request.
