Stanford receiver working "as fast as he can"

HOUSTON (AP) — A court-appointed receiver says he is working as fast as he can to sort through the financial mess that has resulted from the alleged $8 billion fraud by Texan R. Allen Stanford.

Since he was appointed by a federal judge in February, Dallas attorney Ralph Janvey, 58, has not been a favorite of investors who had money in Stanford's various financial institutions. Some investors have bounced checks for mortgages and other personal expenses as they have waited for Janvey to release their money, which was frozen right after the financial scandal broke.

"We want them to know that we are aware of their hardship. We know that in many cases their needs are urgent, and we are trying to address them as quickly and completely as we can," Janvey wrote in response to a series of written questions from the Houston Chronicle.

Some investors are still upset with Janvey.

"My family and I have suffered the pain, stress, and hardship only you have caused. I have had bounced checks for my mortgage, semiannual car insurance, heating bill, and various medical bills while you have been protecting me," North Carolina investor William Allen wrote in an e-mail.

Janvey also fired 1,000 workers — 85 percent of Stanford's U.S. work force — with no severance or grace period for benefits.

U.S. District Judge David Godbey, of Dallas, appointed Janvey and froze Stanford's assets on Feb. 17. At the same time, the Securities and Exchange Commission filed a civil complaint alleging fraud, mostly involving certificates of deposit at Stanford International Bank on the Caribbean island of Antigua.

The SEC has accused Stanford and his finance chief James M. Davis of conducting a "massive Ponzi scheme" through companies they controlled, including the Antigua-based bank. In a Ponzi scheme, early investors are paid returns from money put in by later investors.

At Janvey's request more than 85 percent of the 32,000 Stanford client accounts that were frozen have been released.

But accounts containing CDs, or those held by investors who also held CDs, remain frozen as Janvey's team works to find what's left.

They've only found a fraction of more than $7 billion purportedly in Stanford CDs, Janvey said.

"We are still looking for money. The defendants worked long and hard to hide it, and we are having to work long and hard to find it," he said.

As receiver, Janvey controls all of Stanford Financial's assets, including all documents, computers, yachts and six corporate jets.

Janvey has conducted four other receiverships in Dallas, though none as large as Stanford Financial.

Eventually, Janvey will distribute whatever assets he can recover to investors and others with claims.

New Hoagies location open

lowed them to their new location.

"They are back," he said.

In addition to their old customers, Tanner said they're also beginning to see new customers and with the new retail stores opening up at Western Crossing, he said there's a lot more opportunity to grow.

"A big part of our business," Shane said, "is going to be Tascosa High School."

It's only a couple of blocks away.

"Everyday we've been open," Tanner said, "our sales have increased exponentially."

Shane said Amarillo has always been an excellent market for Hoagies.

As the next fourth generation makes their mark in the family business, Tanner is taking over the sandwich business, and the Dyers' oldest son, Jason, is working on a new hamburger concept.

"The first store will be in Pampa," Shane said.

It's expected to open this summer.

Shane said that when he and Tanner sat down and started planning the Amarillo store, they wanted something new and different, but it had to be based on what they knew would work.

"Our deli's have always been the more traditional type," Shane said. "What we tried to do is make the concept much younger. It has a much younger look, a much younger feel."

The menu is much younger, but it's been thoroughly tested. It's evolved more than changed since the first Hoagies opened in Pampa, but the changes were first tried in Pampa before being exported to the Amarillo restaurant.

"We've been making changes slowly," Tanner said.

"We've got 22 new items," Shane said. "We've added these five new Panini sandwiches to the menu."

"They've really taken off," Tanner said.

There are a couple of new potatoes on the menu. "Another thing that we're doing," Tanner said, "is coffee."

Of course, gourmet coffee wouldn't be special without the pastries.

"We have cinnamon rolls and turnovers," Tanner said.

The Philly cheese steak, however, is still their number one seller, Shane said.

So far, he said, they're selling over 100 a day at their new location in Amarillo.

Tanner said that the Philly cheese steak sandwich is by far their most popular item. He said that is pretty well the story in Pampa as well.

Tanner said their soups have done well on cold days. Based on sales in Pampa, he expects their salad sales to increase with the warmer weather.

"We have four new salads," Shane said.

"Salads are little more seasonal," Tanner said.

He said they're offering potatoes with different toppings and as part of a spud and soup combo.

"Our soup sales have really picked up because of that," Tanner said.

Shane said that one of the new items they've started offering, the pita pizza sandwiches on the kids menu, have proven to be very popular.

"We have been surprised at the response to that item," he said. "It's done very, very well."

The core menu is the same, Shane said.

"The core items that we've made our living on all these years are the same," Shane said, "but we really came in and tried to reinvent the whole concept."

It's not quite as traditional as in the past, he said.

Shane laughed and said the Hoagies in Coronado Center is his wife's baby. Shelley Dyer likes Pampa and the Pampa deli.

"I tried to get her to move into here, but she didn't want to do it," Shane said.

Depending upon the success of this location in Amarillo, Tanner said he might open another Amarillo location and perhaps one in Plainview or Lubbock.

"We're just waiting for the next great opportunity," Tanner grinned.

Bill would make postpartum disorder legal defense

DALLAS (AP) — Postpartum mental disorder could be used as a legal defense for women who kill their children under a bill introduced in the Texas Legislature.

The bill was filed this month by Rep. Jessica Farrar, D-Houston, and it applies to women who commit the crime within a year of giving birth. The Dallas Morning News reported in Sunday editions. If jurors find a mother guilty of murder, they could take testimony about postpartum issues into consideration during the trial's punishment phase.

If jurors find that the woman's judgment was impaired because of child-birth or lactation, they could judge her guilty of infanticide, a state jail felony that would carry a maximum punishment of two years in jail.

If lawmakers approve the measure, Texas would become the first state to have an infanticide law, said George Parnham, the Houston attorney who defended Andrea Yates.

"It's something every civilized country has on its books," said Parnham, who supports the legislation. "The only thing that will change public attitude is education about postpartum issues."

McKinney attorney David Haynes, who defended Dena Schlosser, said Farrar's bill "recognizes the great stress that some mothers are under when they suffer from postpartum depression."

Yates drowned her five children — ranging in age from 7 years to 6 months — in June 2001 at her family's home in Houston. She was convicted of capital murder and sentenced to life in prison in 2002.

An appeals court in 2005 overturned her conviction because of some erroneous testimony. Yates was found innocent by reason of insanity in July 2006 and sent to a state mental hospital.

Schlosser, who killed her 10-month-old daughter in 2004 by cutting off her arms with a kitchen knife, was recently released from the state mental hospital where she'd been sent after being found not guilty by reason of insanity.

Schlosser was released into outpatient treatment because her doctors believe she's mentally stable, a Collin County prosecutor has said. She is required to see a psychiatrist once a week, take medication, be on a physician-approved birth control and not have any unsupervised contact with children.

Shannon Edmonds, legislative liaison for the Texas District & County Attorneys Association, said the legislative proposal would have to be thoroughly reviewed.

"Anytime something novel like this is proposed," he said, "it needs to be fully vetted so that legislators can make informed decisions and be sure there are no unintended consequences."

Postpartum depression is recognized as a legal defense in at least 29 nations, including Britain, which has had an infanticide law since 1922.

"These countries have accepted the reality of postpartum mood disorders," said Susan Dowd Stone, chair of the President's Advisory Council for Postpartum Support International, a California-based advocacy group.

Postpartum psychosis is a rare condition that generally affects women with extreme sensitivity to hormonal fluctuations and a history of mental illness, Stone said.

"We do not want women who abuse children to use this defense," Stone said. "There are very clear guidelines for postpartum psychosis."

Even though Stone believes that women who suffer from postpartum disorder need treatment, not imprisonment, she recognizes that "infanticide with no jail time would not fly. Our country is not ready for that."

Today in History

Today is Monday, March 23, the 82nd day of 2009. There are 283 days left in the year.

Today's Highlight in History:
On March 23, 1775, Patrick Henry addressed the Virginia Provincial Convention; according to biographer William Wirt, it was during this speech that Henry declared, "Give me liberty, or give me death!"

On this date:
In 1743, George Frideric Handel's oratorio "Messiah" had its London premiere. (During the "Hallelujah Chorus," Britain's King George II, who was in attendance, stood. Ai followed by the entire audience.)

In 1792, Joseph Haydn's Symphony No. 94 in G Major (the "Surprise" symphony) was performed publicly for the first time, in London.

In 1806, explorers Lewis and Clark, having reached the Pacific Coast, began their journey back east.

In 1919, Benito Mussolini founded his Fascist political movement in Milan.

In 1933, the German Reichstag adopted the Enabling Act, which effectively granted Adolf Hitler dictatorial powers.

In 1956, Pakistan became an Islamic republic.

In 1965, America's first two-person space flight began as Gemini 3 blasted off from Cape Kennedy with astronauts Virgil

I. Grissom and John W. Young aboard for a nearly five-hour flight.

In 1983, President Ronald Reagan first proposed developing technology to intercept incoming enemy missiles, a proposal that came to be known as the Strategic Defense Initiative. Dr. Barney Clark, recipient of a Jarvik permanent artificial heart, died at the University of Utah Medical Center after 112 days with the device.

In 1994, Luis Donaldo Colosio, Mexico's leading presidential candidate, was assassinated in Tijuana.

In 2001, Russia's orbiting Mir space station ended its 15-year odyssey with a planned fiery plunge into the South Pacific.

Ten years ago: NATO Secretary-General Javier Solana gave the go-ahead for airstrikes against Serbian targets following the failure of Kosovo peace talks.

Five years ago: A federal commission said Clinton and Bush administration officials had engaged in lengthy, ultimately fruitless diplomatic efforts instead of military action to try to get Osama bin Laden before the Sept. 11 attacks; top Bush officials countered that the terror attacks would have occurred even if the United States had killed the al-Qaida leader. A report by Medicare trustees said that without changes, the federal health care program would go broke by 2019, seven years earlier than expected.

Man killed in parking spot argument

DALLAS (AP)—Police are looking for the man who shot and killed an Irving man after an argument over a parking spot at a North Dallas park.

Wilmar Alexander Chavez, of Irving, died Saturday night after he got into an argument over a parking space at Anderson-Bonner Park in north Dallas, where he had gone to play soccer.

Chavez arrived at the park with his three nephews about 5 p.m. After he parked, he got out of his car and walked toward four men in a white sport utility vehicle who were angry at him for taking their space, police said. As he approached, someone fired a gun from inside at close range, striking Chavez. He was taken to nearby Medical City

Dallas Hospital, where he died. Officers were looking for a gunman and three others who left the crime scene in the SUV. Officers found the vehicle abandoned late Saturday near the intersection of Arapaho and Coit roads in far north Dallas, a few miles north of the shooting.

Dallas homicide Lt. Craig Miller told The Dallas Morning News on Sunday that witnesses gave detectives enough details to help locate the vehicle and identify a person of interest who had not yet been found.

"Right now, we know who we are looking for," Miller said.

Family members said Chavez worked nearly every day on cars and wanted to start his own body shop. He hoped to get a start in America, then move his wife, Karina, and their 3-year-old daughter, also named Karina, from El Salvador to North Texas.

"His dream was to bring them here at the end of this year," said Walter Rivas, Chavez' uncle. "He had good plans for the rest of his life."

Fire near UT displaces students

AUSTIN, Texas (AP)—Investigators were trying to find out what caused a fire at a condominium complex that temporarily displaced about 60 University of Texas students.

The blaze caused about $500,000 in damage but no residents were injured at the Heritage Condominiums, which is located near the university and has many students living in it, Austin Fire Department spokesman Don Smith said Sunday.

The blaze, which started around 11 p.m. Friday, damaged seven of the complex's 33 units.

Smith said temporary living arrangements were found for the 60 displaced students.

The fire started on a second-floor balcony and spread to the third floor and attic area.

Dear Abby...

By Pauline & Jeanne Phillips

DEAR ABBY: Some risks are worth taking. Ignoring signs of diabetes isn't one of them. Several years ago, you played a critical role on American Diabetes Alert Day by informing your readers about the importance of type 2 diabetes prevention and detection.

Diabetes is a "silent" killer that slowly takes away people's health, their money, their time and their dreams. It's called a silent killer because people can have it for years and not know it. This disease affects many of your readers -- nearly 24 million children and adults in the U.S. are diabetic, and another 57 million Americans have pre-diabetes. (Their blood glucose levels are higher than normal, but not yet high enough to be diagnosed with the disease.)

Diabetes affects more than just the person who has it -- it also affects the parent who is caring for a diabetic child, the spouse who plays the role of caretaker, and the adult whose parent is struggling with this illness. Unfortunately, the number of people developing diabetes continues to grow at an alarming rate.

Tuesday, March 24, 2009, is the 21st annual American Diabetes Alert Day -- a one-day call to action, encouraging all Americans to find out if they are at risk for developing type 2 diabetes. Fortunately, there is a great deal your readers can do once they know their risk.

With your help, Abby, we can motivate millions to start taking the necessary steps to protect themselves and their families from this life-threatening disease. Thanks for lending a hand. -- R. PAUL ROBERTSON, M.D.,

PRESIDENT, AMERICAN DIABETES ASSOCIATION

DEAR DR. ROBERTSON: I'm pleased to help because once diagnosed, type 2 diabetes is an illness that can be successfully managed. However, if it is ignored, it can eventually destroy the organs of the body.

Readers, please help yourselves and your families by taking the diabetes risk test at www.diabetes.org/alert or by calling (800) 342-2383 tomorrow. Don't put it off -- I care about you.

DEAR ABBY: My husband "John" and I are in our 60s. We were friends with a couple we loved being with -- sharing many dinners and vacations together. A few years ago they said we could no longer socialize together because they couldn't stand John, and they dumped us. I was hurt and blamed my husband.

They recently showed up at our doorstep and invited us to go out with them. I thought everything was going great, but it seems that everything my husband does is wrong in their eyes. They have dumped us -- again.

This couple certainly wasn't perfect, but my husband and I overlooked a lot because we were friends. John may have his faults, but what they did is wrong. What do you think we should do? -- FAIR WEATHER FRIENDS IN NEW YORK

DEAR F.W.F.: Allow me to be direct. I think it's time you and John crossed this couple off your list once and for all, don't you? What they did to your husband was insulting the first time and should not have been allowed to happen twice.

DAILY HOROSCOPE

HAPPY BIRTHDAY for Tuesday, March 24, 2009:
This year, you'll make waves if you listen to your inner voice. Sometimes you find the routine tiring, going nowhere. Look within for answers. You might opt to change your direction or field. You could spend a lot of time alone, studying, reading and thinking. Some of you might decide to do more volunteer work. Others might experiment with some spiritual studies. If you are single, check out anyone you meet with care. Someone might not be what he or she seems. Take at least a year to get to know this person before committing. If you are attached, the two of you benefit from weekends away together. Add more romance. PISCES reads you cold.

The Stars Show the Kind of Day You'll Have: 5-Dynamic; 4-Positive; 3-Average; 2-So-so; 1-Difficult

ARIES (March 21-April 19)
★★★ Take your time working through an important decision. Internalizing anger and frustration is not good. Change your MO, and do things differently. Don't internalize another's judgment. Tonight: Try a walk to relax, and get a good night's sleep.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20)
★★★★ What is going on with a circle of friends or an agreement? Certainly, different opinions are being tossed into the limelight. Just which idea is the right one? Make this decision, but don't expect universal popularity. Tonight: Where the action is.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20)
★★★ Many survey your opinion before they make a decision. On the other hand, you could be racing around so much that you are unstoppable. Be careful with a family member whose feelings are easily hurt. Tonight: A must appearance.

CANCER (June 21-July 22)
★★★★ Read between the lines when dealing with others. To be most effective, you will need to detach and gain a new understanding. When you come to a conclusion, you will need to carefully determine how to express your opinion. Tonight: Put on a favorite piece of music.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22)
★★★★ Honor a partner by going along with his or her thinking. Financial matters could be tipping precariously in one direction. Listen to news with a touch of cynicism, though you might not want others to know your perspective. The less said the better. Tonight: Into the thick of things.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22)
★★★★ Defer to others. Just don't worry so much, as you are not in control. Others will gain understanding if given the space to lead. In the long run, understanding can be achieved more easily. Go off and do what you want for a change. Tonight: Avoid negativity.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 22)
★★★★ Easy works if you don't get too frantic trying to cover your bases. Listen to what is going on with an associate or a co-worker. You can be insightful and energetic, but if you're not careful, also accident-prone. Don't lose your focus. Tonight: Put your feet up.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23-Nov. 21)
★★★★ You keep getting distracted. Know that perhaps today will not be business as usual. Let your creativity flow; add that energy to different life aspects. You might not have all the answers yet. Tonight: Ever playful.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21)
★★★★ How you handle a changing personal situation could be reflected in everything you do. On some level, you might feel pulled between two different goals. Think positively about what you can accomplish. Tonight: Dealing with a boss or older family member.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19)
★★★★ Keep communication flowing. The end result could be very positive and upbeat. Gather information; schedule meetings. Don't be upset if you feel as if you are not getting the whole picture. You will soon enough. Tonight: Catch up on a pal's news.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18)
★★★★ Finances play a larger role in what goes down than you might like. You could see a situation very differently if money wasn't a factor. Listen to another person's offer knowing your limits and potential, and then decide. Tonight: Kiss negativity goodbye.

PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20)
★★★★ You are all smiles and have a very different way of handling problems than many others. In fact, a partner or loved one could be extremely negative at the same set of facts. You can only role-model. Criticism will get you nowhere. Tonight: Out and about.

Chamber

From the director

Speaking for all of our Chamber members, congratulations again to Jeanne Willingham for being selected as our Citizen of the Year for 2008. It has been wonderful for us to hear from so many former students and families that have been influenced by Jeanne over the past 40 years. We heard positive comments from former students located as far away as Dallas, Fort Worth, Oklahoma City, and many, many other smaller cities and towns.

If you missed the U. S. Navy's Sea Chanters program at M. K. Brown auditorium, you missed one of the best and most entertaining concerts seen here in many years. It was a real variety show, with patriotic, religious, maritime, and funny songs. Everything seemed so perfect—including the sound system and the lighting. After the show I visited with several of the performers and each one told me that our auditorium was an unexpected delight and that we should really be proud to have such a facility in Pampa.

It was also great to see the estimated crowd of at least 1,000 people enjoying the show.

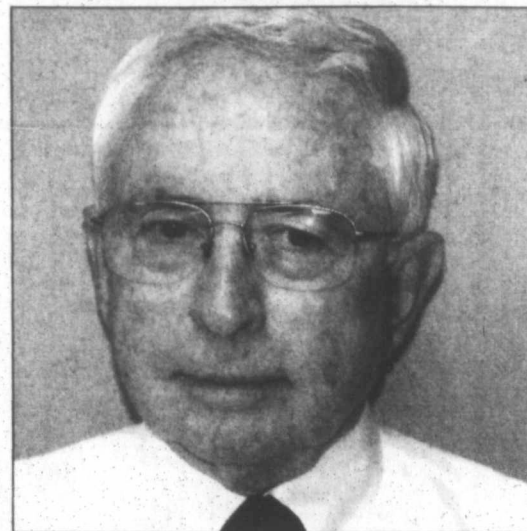

As a community we need to look for more entertainment like this. Our thanks go to Randy and Sue Pribble at The Pampa News for their help in scheduling and sponsoring the event.

Looking ahead to April, Pampa has several upcoming events that should be mentioned.

On April 2 thru the 5, the annual Friends of the Library book fair takes place at the Lovett Memorial Library. Then, your children will want to attend the annual Easter Egg Hunt scheduled for April 4. Then on April 18, the White Deer Land Museum will be having an open house 2 to 5 p.m. The Red River Wars Reenactors will be there wearing their period attire. Also on April 18, the fourth annual Hunting Heritage Super Fund Banquet hosted by Pampa's Top of Texas Longbeard Chapter of the National Wild Turkey Federation will be held at the Chamber building. April 24th thru April 26, we will have many out-of-town visitors from far away as California attending the Desk & Derrick Region V annual meeting being held in Pampa this year. Get your walking shoes out in preparation for the "Walk for Life" event beginning at 2 p.m., April 26. And, for a little competitive fun, a Bowl & Golf event begins on April 28. Contact Pat Montoya at the Hidden Hills Golf Course for more information and to sign up for this event which will be held at Harvester Lanes and at the Hidden Hills Golf Course. For more information about these or other upcoming events in Pampa go to our website at PampaChamber.com and then click on our Calendar.

For those who are inquiring and waiting for the Chamber to provide affordable, basic medical insurance, we must now wait for the Texas Legislature to provide new legislation to correct the bill recently passed. Senator Duncan has been notified of the problem and hopefully the corrective legislation will be passed during the current session. Under this plan insurance cooperatives may be formed and chambers of commerce may join the cooperatives in order to qualify their individual members as well as their small businesses for the lower rates enjoyed by large employers. These health plans cover only the basic needs, including emergency room care, and will be sold by participating insurance agents to chamber members at relatively low cost. The chambers do not sell the insurance or collect premiums, but chamber membership is required. We will keep you posted as the program develops.

Ladies leash the Bulldogs 7-5

by David Bowser
dbowser@thepampanews.com
PLAINVIEW — In a tight finish, the Lady Harvesters won over the Plainview Lady Bulldogs 7-5.

The Lady Harvesters took an early lead beneath a blue sky with light clouds Saturday afternoon in Plainview as gusty winds kicked up the dust in the infield.

Lead off batter Kelby Doughty took a base on balls, stole second and advanced on a hit by Libby Dyson before being brought home by Sammie

Pearson for the first run of the game.

The second inning was scoreless.

Doughty scored again in the third inning, as did Callie Preston to bring the score to 3-0.

The fourth inning was scoreless.

Doughty scored once more in the fifth inning, but Plainview exploded in the fifth, driving home five runs to take the lead 5-4.

Although they threatened several times, Plainview couldn't get another player around the bases. Pampa went scoreless in the sixth inning, but Ashley Facio, Carlyn Teichmann and Shelbie Watson scored with two away in the seventh to take the game.

Earlier in the day, the junior varsity defeated Plainview's junior varsity 10-5.

The Lady Harvesters are at home Friday to take on Dumas at 5 p.m. The junior varsity will play the Dumas junior varsity at 6:30 p.m.

At left, Lady Harvester Ashley Facio, 7, pops one up in the fifth inning of Saturday's game against the Lady Bulldogs of Plainview in Plainview. Unfortunately, a Plainview short stop was on the receiving end.
