King case gag order ruling delayed

BY DAVID BOWSER dbowser@thepampanews.com

AMARILLO - The district attorney who requested an expedited decision in a Gray County capital murder case now wants until July to answer a motion concerning a gag order in the case.

Levi Alexas King, 26, is expected to go to trial the end of this month on charges of murdering Brian Conrad, 31; his pregnant wife, Michell Conrad, 35 and her son Zach Doan, 14, at their farm home south of Pampa in the predawn hours of Sept. 30, 2005.

In March, 31st District Judge Steven Emmert imposed a gag order in the case, prohibiting those connected with the case from speaking publicly about it.

Judge Emmert, citing pre-trial publicity in the case and King's Constitutional right to a fair trial, prohibited those connected with the trial from talking about it. Only the information from evidence and argument in open court, he said, may be disseminated.

The judge also designated the third floor of the Gray County Courthouse as a security area and banned weapons, cameras and electronic equipment except as allowed by the court.

In April, Judge Emmert rejected the defense team's objections to the gag order.

On May 20, King's attorneys, Joe Marr Wilson and Maxwell Peck III, filed a petition with the Seventh Court of Appeals in Amarillo, asking that Judge Emmert's order be vacated.

In their petition, Wilson and Peck questioned whether the order complied with the Texas and U.S. Constitution and that the order did not make specific findings that the gag order was the least restrictive means available to the court.

They asked for oral arguments before a panel of the appeals court judges.

The court of appeals requested that responses to King's petition be filed by June 1, but 31st District KING cont. on page 3

After 13 years .. Museum director gets job description

Anne Davidson finally has a job description.

The director of the White Deer Land Museum officially got a job description Monday when the Gray County Commissioners Court approved a description that have been drawn up, but never adopted, more than a decade ago.

"It will make her office a much more smooth running operation in her relationship with individuals and agencies," said Gray County Judge Richard Peet.

Davidson said when the document was first drawn up, it outlined the commissioners court The approved a request Monday, June 1, by the three Gray County Justices of the Peace for a contract with South Plains Forensic Pathology for autopsies.

Justice of the Peace Joe Martinez told commissioners that the fees were similar to the ones that had been charged by Texas Tech, which is getting out of the autopsy business.

Appearing before the Gray County Commissioners Court during their meeting Monday, Justice of the Peace Joe Martinez said that since the Justices of the Peace don't have the medical expertise to perform autopsies, the county needs someone with that knowledge and certification.

In the State of Texas, Justices of the Peace generally act as coroners in determining the cause of deaths, and they have the power to require autopsies.

"We have been using the Texas Tech Health Science Center for autopsy reports for a majority of autopsies for the last several years," Martinez said. "There was a period of time when they were having difficulty maintaining staff. We had to consider going to Tarrant County."

He said they had gotten reasonable services from Tech.

"They conducted them very well," Martinez said of the autopsies, "but as time went by they just had staffing issues. There were delays and there were some autopsies that took quite sometime."

Martinez said that Texas Tech was getting out of the autopsy business, although they will continue to perform autopsies for COUNTY cont. on page 3

Oil prices drop as demand falls

SIOUX FALLS, S.D. (AP) A weeklong rally in energy prices appeared to stumble Wednesday, with more evidence of anemic demand.

Oil prices fell toward $67 after the government reported that the level of unused crude in storage rose sharply. That could suggest that a price rally that began in May was premature.

Benchmark crude for July delivery dropped $1.31 to $67.24 a barrel on the New York Mercantile Exchange. The contract on Tuesday slipped 3 cents to settle at $68.55.

It is typical for energy prices to

Crude inventories rose by 2.9 million barrel, which is 20.3 percent above year-ago levels, the Energy Department's Energy Information Administration said in its weekly report Wednesday. Analysts had expected a fourth straight week of decline.

The report Wednesday suggests that despite recent upticks in manufacturing in Europe, the LIBERTY, Texas (AP) Federal and local authorities are trying to find the source of a "strange object" the pilot of a Continental Express plane reported flying about 150 feet beneath > his plane in southeast Texas. Liberty County Sheriff's Department Cpl. Hugh Bishop said deputies looked for a possible launch or landing site for the item but had not found anything yet.

> "We are going to try and come up with a more definite track of this object and its path," sheriff's chief deputy Ken DeFoor said in a story for the Houston Chronicle. 'We are trying to find out where it came from, where it went, and who may be responsible for it."

A spokeswoman for ExpressJet Airlines, which operates Continental Express, told The Associated Press on Tuesday that the pilot followed standard operating procedures.

Kristy Nicholas says the pilot of the Embraer 145 told flight controllers that the "strange object" he saw never showed up on his radar Friday night. The pilot reported a "missile or rocket" flying near his airplane on Friday.

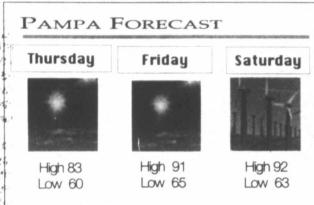

Nicholas says the plane, with 23 passengers and three crewmembers, had just passed 11,000 feet, going to 16,000 feet.

Davidson noted that her advisory board, unlike other advisory boards in the county, is a legally recognized entity, a 501.c3 nonprofit corporation with it's own bylaws and structure, but Peet said that is immaterial to the commissioners court.

The director of the museum, according to the job description adopted by the

The director is responsible for professional practices such acquisitions, preservation and presentation, the document said. All museum positions will report directly or indirectly to the director.

"The director has the ability to implement policy established by the museum's governing body and encourage the active participation of staff and public in realizing the objectives of the museum," the document said.

Peet said the advisory board can raise funds for various projects, but the 11-member board is an advisory board.

He noted that the county commission also appoints the members of the board. "I've never heard one negative thought on how

Short on funds, districts declare fiscal emergency tion of the museum," Peet said, "is under her author-

MONTICELLO, Fla. (AP) — These days, Superintendent Bill Brumfield finds himself frequently turning to passages in the brown leather Bible resting on his desk. His school district is losing students. Utility and transportation costs are rising. And he's expecting to lay off staff - even, perhaps, his own son. "If he has to go, he has to go," the ashen-haired Brumfield said on a recent afternoon. "I can't hold back."

The rural Jefferson County School District in Florida's Panhandle declared a financial emergency in April, the second in the state since the recession began. Its reserves have dried up, and the district expects to have a deficit of $500,000 by the end of the fiscal year. In a state where many districts are grappling with sinking property values and budget cuts, Jefferson's situation is considered the most severe.

Districts that have declared fiscal crises in the last year range from those in smaller cities, such as Pocatello, Idaho, to one in a major metropolis such as Dallas. Typically it means the district is running a deficit and will struggle to finish the fiscal year. In these cases, the designation can be a precaution and give the school board authority to renegotiate contracts to reduce pay or eliminate staff. In others, the state declares the district in crisis after it falls out of financial compliance and requires intervention.

The designations are rare, even in a poor economy, said Mike Griffith, senior finance analyst with the Education Commission of the States in Denver.

"It's not just bad economy," Griffith said. "It's bad economy and the finance staff wasn't paying attention. Or finance staff was ership wasn't making the cuts they should have. In a good economy,

Griffith estimated that a half-dozen districts file for some form of financial emergency each year. In an economic downturn, that number rises to as many as two dozen of the more than 15,000 districts nationwide. A variety of circumstances have led to crisis declarations: The Fort Worth, Texas, school district declared an emergency as a precaution in light of frozen revenue levels, rising expenses, and a $43 million deficit. In southeast Idaho, the Pocatello school board took the same step after the Legislature reduced funding to public education for the first time in the state's history.

"This is kind of uncharted territory for Idaho," said state Rep. Bob Nonini, who sponsored a bill that amended the financial emergency requirements, setting up a process for districts to renegotiate pay with employees. He said about eight districts in the state have declared an emergency, and he expects more to follow.

The National Education Association, a teacher's union, said it's concerned about districts targeting teacher salaries to balance their books.

"Declaring a state of emergency in order to reopen existing teacher contracts isn't the answer," Bill Raabe, director of collective bargaining and member advocacy, said in a written statement.

Federal stimulus funds are expected to provide some relief.

Jefferson County's finances were in peril long before Brumfield was elected last November. But few in this county of sprawling fields and not a single traffic light were aware of how dire things were.

The superintendent "Son, y'all in trouble,' Brumfield remembers Bil Montford, chief executive officer of the Florida Association of Distric School Superintendents telling him at a meeting las winter. "You're broke."

Jefferson County has about 1,200 students, ar annual budget of $8.9 million and just one elementary, middle and high school They are all located ir Monticello, a small towr with historic homes, welcoming porches and greer lawns. It's the kind of place where strangers wave hello to passing cars, family-owned restaurants and businesses still dominate downtown, and a watermelon festival takes place each year.

For years, the district's revenues climbec and spending increased Administrators go Blackberrys. It bought a $12,000 pole vault pit i never used and paid more than $30,000 to provide maintenance staff and bus drivers with uniforms and laundry service.

From the outside, the district seemed to be doins fine. It constructed a new high school and increased teacher and principal salaries. But the general func balance was rapidly dwindling.

School enrollment was declining, bringing the district a smaller share of state funding. A relaxed attitude toward spending prevailed and officials missed other opportunities to generate revenue, leasing unused school buildings to the county and community organizations for $1 a year

"The biggest problem is we didn't have a vision, said school board member Marianne Arbulu, who was elected last fall. "We didn' have a long range plan o: where this district needed to go to be successful."

Attorney Lynn Switzer, noted the nearness of the who is prosecuting the case, entered a motion on May 27, to extend the time

Appeals Court Judge James T. Campbell issued a decision a week after oral arguments on May 20, denying the defense's motion to drop capitol murder charges against King because of the delay in trial, saying the time limit did not apply under the extradition procedures used in the case.

Pampa boxer becomes pro and comes home a winner

Cristoval Larrazolo out of the Pampa Texas Boxing Club has become a professional boxer this year at the age of 22. Larrazolo had his first professional fight on Saturday, May 23rd at the Lagrave Field in Fort Worth, Texas. Fighting in the 118 lb division, Larrazolo went up against Jose Manual Garcia of Dallas, Texas.

Garcia has had six professional fights. In the opening bout, Garcia took on Larrazolo in a fight that livened up the event title, Texas Slugfest. Larrazolo began by landing a left hook and from then on it was back and forth as both fighters traded punches. The second round saw Larrazolo take control as he jabbed Garcia, who seemed to tire after the high work rate in the first round.

Cristoval Larrazolo, in the dark trunks, won his first professional fight on Saturday, May 23rd at the Lagrave Field in Fort Worth, Texas

A power jab followed by an overhand right won Larrazolo the third round, however Garcia started the fourth and final round determined not to go down without a fight as he slugged it out until the final bell.

Larrazolo was able to withstand the onslaught by doubling up his punches when he was inside. Larrazolo was able to outwork the gutsy Garcia and earn a decision win. The judge's scores were: 38-38,39-37, and 39-37.

Cade Engle staked Rotary to a 1-0 lead in the top of the first inning. He beat out an infield single, stole two bases and scored on a wild pitch.

Glo-Valve answered in the bottom of the first. Aaron Allen walked and stole two bases. Brody Gaines made an infield struck out the last batter in third. Gaines stole second. A sacrifice by Casey Martindale plated Allen and moved Gaines to third. Gaines scored the ultimate winning run on a wild pitch. Glo-Valve led 2-1.

Powell retired Rotary in order in the second, third and fourth innings. Glo-Valve threatened in the third inning. They had two runners on base with two outs when Gaines unloaded a booming double to left field. However, a runner missed third and was called out on appeal nullifying the two runs.

Hunt led off the top of the fifth inning for Rotary with a single. He went to second when Aaron McKinney reached base on a Glo-Valve error.

Both runners moved up on a ground out but were left on base as Powell

In Glo-Valve's half of the fifth, Colton Thompson drew a full count walk. He stole second and third. Attempts to sacrifice him home resulted in two strikeouts, but Thompson scored an unearned run when Jason Velasquez was safe on a Rotary error.

Powell struck out the side in the top of the sixth to send Glo-Valve to 12-0 for the season and a one-game lead over Rotary with two league games to play.

Dear Abby...

By Pauline & Jeanne Phillips

DEAR ABBY: After my wife had our sixth child, our love life fizzled out. But at age 80, we have suddenly discovered that we aren't THAT old!

How do we tactfully deflect kids and grandkids who enter without ringing the bell? I realize that lots of people would love to have this problem, but it's a problem all the same. --BACK IN THE SADDLE AGAIN

DEAR BACK IN THE SADDLE: Your letter made me smile. I'm pleased to hear there's still plenty of "hi-ho" in the old Silver.

If you haven't told your children and grandchildren that you would prefer they not enter your home without ringing the bell, my first suggestion is to speak up now. If you have, and your request is being ignored, then I have two more suggestions.

The first is to put a chain or double lock on the doors to your house; the second is to hang a "Please Do Not Disturb, the Old Folks Are Napping" sign on your doors when you're feeling amorous. I'll bet you $20 that because of entrenched misconceptions about sexuality in the over-70 generation, none of your children or grandchildren will question it.

need your opinion. My 1 wife's youngest daughter has moved in with us, along with her three children: ages 3, 4 and 5. We are having a disagreement about allowing the kids up on the countertops.

My wife and her daughter think it's fine for them to pull a chair over and hop up on the counter. I have seen them on both sides of a stove full of pots filled with hot food. Because this has been allowed, the kids constantly crawl up to the cabinets to help themselves to treats and other things.

I have told them both countless times that this is the worst habit I have ever seen taught to children. I feel it's extremely dangerous and a bad idea. Please help me win this battle, or if you think it's fine, shut me up for good. -- GRANDPA DENNIS

DEAR GRANDPA DENNIS: I'm on your side. Allowing a child to climb up on a counter is inviting an accident -- and to allow a child to do so when the counter is adjacent to a hot stove is child endangerment.

Your wife and her not married!" daughter are being far too permissive. Children that young should ask for treats, not be allowed to forage. Rules have to be set and enforced. What is

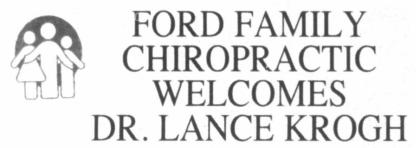

DEAR ABBY: Boy, do to stop those children from dragging a chair up to a bathroom medicine cabinet and helping themselves to the pills?

> DEAR ABBY: I am a single, independent, educated 26-year-old female. I recently bought my first house and enjoy living alone. My problem is, whenever I run into someone I haven't seen in a while and they learn where I am living, often the first thing he or she asks is, "Oh, you got married?"

CI H

I find it offensive that people automatically assume that because I bought a house I am married. How do I deal with a question like that and not hurt feelings in the process? -- CONTENT IN VIRGINIA

DEAR CONTENT: You deal with it by not becoming defensive. Keep your sense of humor. The next time you are asked if you got married, smile at the person and say, "Did you get an invitation to the wedding?" When the person tells you no, end the discussion by saying, "Well, then, I guess I'm
