AFTERNOONRUSH

No Capitol scans for gun toters

AUSTIN (AP) — With security concerns on the rise, metal detectors finally are finally being installed and turned on at the Texas Capitol.

But there's one way citizens, lobbyists and other visitors can escape the lines: Carry a concealed handgun.

In the building where the conceal-and-carry law was written, Texans are not only allowed to pack heat. Under the new security procedures, there's now practically an incentive to be armed — or at least to hold the license for it.

Officials are creating one line for the masses, one line for lawmakers and their staffs and then a totally separate procedure for concealed handgun license holders. The general public has to get scanned at the entrances. State officials — and gun-toting citizenry — do not.

U.S. rig count up 12

HOUSTON (AP) — The number of rigs actively exploring for oil and natural gas in the U.S. increased by 12 this week to 1,518.

Houston-based Baker Hughes Inc. said Friday that 969 rigs were exploring for natural gas and 538 for oil. Eleven were listed as miscellaneous. A year ago this week, the rig count stood at 900.

Of the major oil- and gas-producing states, Texas gained 11 rigs, Oklahoma gained five, New Mexico gained two and Colorado gained one. Louisiana lost two rigs and Alaska, Arkansas and West Virginia each lost one. California, North Dakota, Pennsylvania and Wyoming were unchanged.

The rig count tally peaked at 4,530 in 1981, during the height of the oil boom. The industry posted a record low of 488 in 1999.

Suspects sneakers foil escape

EL PASO, Texas (AP) — He might have gotten away with it, but for those darn sneakers.

An El Paso man running from the law at a carnival was captured when police say they spotted David Caro's sneakers poking out beneath a pile of stuffed teddy bears.

Authorities say Caro was trying to hide after ditching his car during a traffic stop Thursday. Police say Caro had swerved into the path of a motorcycle officer to avoid being pulled over.

Once inside the carnival, police saw Caro's shoes in the stuffed teddy bear pile and arrested him. He was charged with evading arrest and aggravated assault against a public servant.

Today in History

Today is Saturday, May 22, the 142nd day of 2010. There are 223 days left in the year.

Today's Highlight in History:

On May 22, 1960, an earthquake of magnitude 9.5, the strongest on record, struck southern Chile. According to the U.S. Geological Survey website, the quake claimed approximately 1,655 lives, injured 3,000 people, left 2 million homeless and caused $550 million worth of damage.

On this date:

In 1860, the United States and Japan exchanged ratifications of the Treaty of Amity and Commerce during a ceremony in Washington.

In 1939, the foreign ministers of Germany and Italy, Joachim von Ribbentrop and Galeazzo Ciano, signed a "Pact of Steel" committing the two countries to a military alliance.

In 1947, the Truman Doctrine was enacted as Congress appropriated military and economic aid for Greece and Turkey.

In 1968, the nuclear-powered submarine USS Scorpion, with 99 men aboard, sank in the Atlantic Ocean. (The remains of the sub were later found on the ocean floor 400 miles southwest of the Azores.)

In 1969, the lunar module of Apollo 10, with Thomas P. Stafford and Eugene Cernan aboard, flew to within nine miles of the moon's surface in a dress rehearsal for the first lunar landing.

In 1972, President Richard Nixon began a visit to the Soviet Union, during which he and Kremlin leaders signed the Anti-Ballistic Missile Treaty. The island nation of Ceylon became the republic of Sri Lanka.

In 1990, after years of conflict, pro-Western North Yemen and pro-Soviet South Yemen merged to form a single nation, the Republic of Yemen.

Ten years ago: The Supreme Court struck down, 5-4, a federal law that shielded children from sex-oriented cable TV channels.

Five years ago: First lady Laura Bush was heckled by protesters — Israelis as well as Palestinians — during a visit to holy sites in Jerusalem. Three Romanian journalists and their Iraqi-American guide were freed after nearly two months in captivity in Iraq.

One year ago: Vice President Joe Biden arrived in Lebanon to reinforce U.S. support for the government ahead of key parliamentary elections.

Today's Birthdays: Singer Charles Aznavour is 86. Actor-director Richard Benjamin is 72. Actor Frank Converse is 72. Actor Michael Sarrazin is 70. Former CNN anchor Bernard Shaw is 70. Singer Morrissey is 51. Actress Ann Cusack is 49. Rhythm-and-blues singer Johnny Gill (New Edition) is 44. Rock musician Dan Roberts (Crash Test Dummies) is 43. Actress Brooke Smith is 43. Model Naomi Campbell is 40. Actress Anna Belknap is 38. Actress Alison Eastwood is 38. Singer Donnell Jones is 37. Actress A.J. Langer is 36. Olympic gold-medal speed skater Apolo Anton Ohno is 28.

Thought for Today:

"Tact is, after all, a kind of mind-reading." — Sarah Orne Jewett, American author (1849-1909).

Pampa's EMS workers deserve thanks

You may never give it a second thought, but we're here for you.

When the unthinkable happens, Emergency medical professionals are standing ready to swoop in and help you and your loved ones.

Whether it's a serious medical condition or accident, EMTs and paramedics are quietly and heroically performing lifesaving tasks in our communities every day.

EMS Week 2010 is being celebrated this week, from May 16 to May 21. It is a national awareness week highlighting the vital services provided every day by the Emergency Medical Services professionals throughout every community in the United States.

For everything they have done for this community, we would like to take the time to thank our hardworking EMS professionals.

Thank you for your time. Thank you for your caring, your compassion, and your devotion to patient care. Thank you for working long shifts and for holding over to cover late calls. Thank you for taking time away from your families to keep our trucks on the streets for our communities 24/7. Thank you for thinking on your feet to solve new problems for our patients. Thank you for comforting families. Thank you for comforting the community. Thank you for risking your safety. Thank you for your bravery. Thank you for your commitment. Thank you for more than we have space to thank you for. Thank you for more than we know how to thank you for.

Here in Pampa and Gray County, we are lucky to be served by dedicated EMTs and Paramedics who give submitted photos

Pampa EMS and Emergency Services Foundation of Texas took time at Monday's regular training session to recognize our employees. Each employee was presented a special vest to thank everyone for their dedication to providing medical care to the Pampa community.

of themselves in many capacities to ensure that our lives are protected.

Pampa EMS is the 911 ambulance provider for the City of Pampa; we provide paramedic services for Pampa and the surrounding area. In addition, the EMS provides non-emergency transportation services for local medical facilities.

We would like to thank the citizens of Pampa and Gray County for all of the support that they have given us in the past seven months and would like to take this opportunity to express our continued passion for health in our community. We pledge to continue providing the highest quality Emergency Medical Services and to continuously find new and innovative ways to improve our quality and service to our community.

In order to do this, however, we are calling on our citizens to support us by taking a few steps of their own.

First, everyone should learn CPR. It is a simple and easy way to make a big impact in the lives of your neighbors and loved ones. With the odds of surviving sudden cardiac arrest decreasing roughly 10 percent per minute without adequate CPR and defibrillation, good early CPR saves lives. If everyone knew this lifesaving skill, just think of what we could do and who we could save. Please contact our office or your local hospital to find out about upcoming classes.

Second, everyone should learn the warning signs for heart attack and stroke. Studies have shown that 60 percent of people call a friend or family member when they realize that they may be having a serious medical problem. You should know that approximately 1 percent of cardiac tissue dies per minute in an untreated heart attack. Paramedic ambulances provide lifesaving medications that can stop or slow down this damage, and can be at your side within minutes of a call to 911. This treatment is not only lifesaving, it also can greatly improve your quality of life after the attack.

With your help, we can continue to keep Pampa a safe community.

Peggie Coleman is the director of Pampa EMS.

Larkin

Her answer?
"The increased accountability," Larkin said, listing the challenges Pampa High now faces. "The high stakes testing. Our demographic trend changes."
There is increased poverty in the school system, Larkin explained, and more students are coming in and having to learn a new language.
"The campus looks different," she said.
Larkin is finishing her second year as principal at Pampa High.
"I've been a principal for five years," she said, "and an administrator for eight."
She spent four years teaching high school English in her hometown of Shamrock. She also coached debate and was the theater director at the school.
"I came to teach in Pampa High School in 1998," Larkin said.
She was an English and Speech teacher at PHS for two years before transferring to the Pampa Learning Center where she taught for two years.
"It was a great experience," Larkin said. "I learned a lot there."
Then, she was named director for curriculum and federal programs and the Pampa Independent School District central office where she served for three years.

"Then I became principal for Wilson Elementary," she said. "I was there for three years."
She then returned to the high school, this time as principal.
"I've had a lot of big picture experience," Larkin said. "It's been very valuable to me."
That experience has been both at the teaching level and administratively and from kindergarten through high school.
Larkin has also served as an adjunct teacher at Clarendon College.
"I was able to get a big vertical picture on instruction and human dynamics in general," she said.
Larkin graduated from Shamrock High School in 1990 and went on to West Texas A&M University where she earned her Bachelor of Arts degree in English and Speech Communication.
She went on to earn a Master of Arts degree in Communication.
More recently, Larkin earned her Master of Education and Administration degree from West Texas A&M University.
Now, she can add Harvard to her educational experience.

The trade show is expected to have almost 1,400 exhibitors.
"They're looking to have about 25,000 to 30,000 people come through," Cota said. "We will have a booth there. We will be one of the exhibitors."
During Thursday's PEDC meeting, Pampa EMS reported that they would hold off on their plans to purchase their mobile intensive care ambulance for about a year, Cota said.

Rice also reported to the PEDC board on the High Ground Spring Conference earlier this month in Amarillo. Rice had attended the regional economic development organization's meeting.
The PEDC also voted to spend $5,000 and apply for certified retirement community status with the state.
The GoTexan program is a statewide marketing initiative. The program markets communities across the state.

"Once we get certified," said Kathy Cota, administrative assistant at the PEDC, "that $5,000 will go toward marketing our community."
The certification for the program has to be renewed every five years, she said.
Cota said Pampa would be marketed to retirees 55 and older. GoTexan will handle a lot of the advertising for the community, she said.

Foreman, Holts awarded scholarship

Eugene Anderson, President of the Eugene and Daniela Anderson Scholarship Foundation (ASF), has announced that graduating Pampa High School (PHS) Seniors Myles Till Foreman, Jacqueline Paige Holt and James Pierce Holt are this year's Anderson Scholars and have each won an Anderson Foundation Scholarship.
Myles Foreman has been awarded a four year scholarship of $12,000. He is the son of Scott and Synda Foreman of Pampa.
He will attend Texas A&M University at College Station and study Electrical Engineering. Academically, Myles is ranked second of 226 students in the PHS Class of 2010. He achieved a perfect score on the Scholastic Aptitude Test for Mathematics. He has successfully completed the High School Aerospace Scholars Program at NASA's Johnson Space Center, received Magna Cum Laude in the National Latin Exam and is the treasurer of the National Honor Society. He has also played varsity tennis throughout his high school career, and has participated in the Show Choir, the Varsity Choir, and three Choir Musical Productions.
James Holt has been awarded a four year scholarship of $20,000. He is the son of Tina Holt of Pampa. He will attend Embry-Riddle Aeronautical University at Daytona Beach, Florida and study Aerospace Engineering. Academically, James is ranked sixteenth of 226 students in the Pampa High School Class of 2010. He is obtaining his high school diploma in only three years. He is a NASA High School Aerospace Scholar, a member of the National Honor Society and the Drama Club and the German Club and is a staff writer on the school newspaper.

Paige Holt has been awarded a four year scholarship of $20,000. She is the daughter of Tina Holt and the twin sister of James Holt, who is also being awarded an Anderson Foundation Scholarship. She will attend Texas Tech University at Lubbock and study Psychology. Academically, Paige is ranked third of the 226 students in the PHS Class of 2010. She is also completing her high school studies in three years. She is a member of the National Honor Society, the Drama Club, the Art Club and for fun, the Juggling Club. She is the President and Founder of the German Club and on the staff of the Yearbook. She has been a UIL competitor in drama, literary criticism, poetry and editorial writing. She has received awards in English, drama, geometry, world history and computer applications.

YOU SHOULD'VE SEEN BELLE SMILE.

Belle's only granddaughter, Cecelia, was having her first baby. Naturally, Belle wanted to be there for the shower. But because of her health, she couldn't. And that disappointed her, her granddaughter and the whole family.

When a loved one moves into a care community, family matters even more. At the Bivins Foundations, we've been caring for senior adults for decades — so we know. In fact, to put everything we've got into caring for people like Belle and her family — and to make your hard decision about someone you love a little easier — we created Bivins' Childers Place for skilled nursing and memory support — and rededicated ourselves to living up to your idea of care.

CHILDERS PLACE

So, if she can't go to their party, her family will bring the party to Belle: They had that baby shower right here in our café, with everybody crowded happily together around the gifts table — grandmother, granddaughter, a host of family and an as-yet-unborn child, who'll grow up to treasure her Great-Grandma Belle.

Need a little help for someone you love? Add our care to yours. Call 806.350.2200, and let's begin to talk.

Texas may get nuclear waste from dozens of states

ANDREWS (AP) — Texas was all set to be part of an agreement with Vermont to dump nuclear waste in a remote region of the Lone Star state, and for the most part people living near the site were OK with it.

Now, though, that compact could mushroom to include waste from 36 other states, reinvigorating those who oppose the project to fight harder.

Environmentalists, geologists, the Texas League of Women Voters and others say the huge dumping ground will pollute groundwater and otherwise wreak havoc with the environment. The company that runs the site contends it'll be safe and many local residents applaud any expansion as a way to bring more jobs and prosperity to the West Texas scrubland.

"They got to put it somewhere," said Kathy Trevino, a retired nurses' aide who lives in Andrews, the closest town to the site. "As long as they're safe and don't intentionally cause harm, I don't have a problem with it."

Opponents of the compact have an uphill climb in trying to stop the expansion. But they recently flooded the commission with thousands of comments critical of the rules that outline how the compact will handle other states' applications to dispose of the waste in Texas. That forced the panel to delay voting on those rules.

Also, more than a dozen state lawmakers have joined the opposition, saying the commission needs to slow down the approval process.

The 1,340-acre site owned by Waste Control Specialists is one of the nation's only dumps licensed to take all three categories of low-level waste.

The commission is proposing rules to regulate waste that would come in from other states. If approved, the facility would take the low-level waste which includes workers' clothing, glass, metal and other materials used at nuclear power plants, hospitals, universities and research labs. Currently those facilities store the waste at their own sites.

In the early '80s, the federal government began urging states to build low-level nuclear waste landfills, either on their own or in cooperation with other states in compact systems. Since then, South Carolina entered into a compact with New Jersey and Connecticut, agreeing to dispose of nuclear waste at a landfill that later accepted waste from dozens of other states.

Ten years ago, South Carolina lawmakers said they no longer wanted to be the nation's dumping grounds and in 2008 the facility began accepting waste from only its compact partners, leading other states to look to Texas to store their waste.

And there could be more nuclear waste in need of a home if President Barack Obama moves ahead with his plan to build dozens of new nuclear facilities.

Environmentalists are largely worried about toxins from the site leaking into groundwater beneath the scrub brush land that's brought oil prosperity to arid West Texas for nearly a century.

They point to South Carolina as an example. Tritium levels have been detected in groundwater beneath South Carolina's nuclear waste landfill that are above the Environmental Protection Agency's standard for safe drinking water. The company that runs the site acknowledged a leak, traced to the late 1970s, when the company says its disposal practices were not as advanced as today.

"I think it's horrible," longtime opponent Peggy Pryor said of the Texas site. "They still haven't proved to me that it won't leak into the aquifers."

Radiation safety experts said they understand opponents' concerns but questioned their validity.

"That does not mean there will be zero leaks," said Andy Karam, a radiation safety expert with 30 years experience. "It just won't hurt anybody. There won't be enough radiation to be harmful."

Company spokesman Chuck McDonald has said the site is safe and state and federal regulators approved it after exhaustive study and analysis.

An increase in volume from the other states' waste would mean more money. The county gets 5 percent quarterly of Waste Control Specialists' gross receipts from the waste disposal operation. Also, residents are backing the site with $75 million in bonds to build it.

Critics say the rules, which address process, don't address safety issues for waste trucked along Texas roadways nor do they make clear how much the state's financial liability goes up once the waste is here.

"Once waste comes into the state of Texas, the state of Texas accepts the economic burden ... through the remainder of time, so I think we need to slow down," said State Rep. Lon Burnam, D-Fort Worth.

The compact commission consists of two Vermont governor appointees and six who were appointed by Gov. Rick Perry.

Pat Bobeck, a geologist for more than two decades, left the state's environmental agency in 2007 when her recommendation against approving the site was ignored.

More waste, Bobeck said, means bigger problems.

"It's just like garbage in your garbage can — if you have more, it stinks more and faster," she said. "When profit becomes more important than safety, safety goes out the window."

Conservative curriculum push in Texas reaching final showdown

AUSTIN (AP) — A push by conservatives to put their ideological stamp on how a host of political events and figures will be taught to school children in Texas and beyond for the next decade was reaching its final showdown Friday.

The State Board of Education was set to vote on a social studies and history curriculum that will be used to teach some 4.8 million Texas students for the next 10 years. The partisan board has amended or watered down the teaching of the civil rights movement, slavery, America's relationship with the U.N. and hundreds of other items.

The standards also will be used by textbook publishers who often develop materials for other states based on those approved in Texas, although teachers in the Lone Star state have latitude in deciding which material to teach.

That wide reach brought national attention to the months of debate leading up to this week's meeting, which featured testimony from educators, civil rights leaders and a former U.S. education secretary. Many argued that the proposal amounted to a move by conservatives to promote their political ideology and, pointing to the board's lack of historical knowledge, urged board members to delay their vote. The attention was so intense that it contributed to the defeat of one of the most conservative members, Chairman Don McLeroy, in the March state Republican primary.

As the debate continued Friday, conservatives rejected language to modernize the classification of historic periods to B.C.E. and C.E. from the traditional B.C. and A.D.

Conservatives say the Texas history curriculum has been unfairly skewed to the left after years of Democrats controlling the board.

Democrats and a moderate Republican accused conservatives on the board of trying to stir up a needless controversy Thursday by using the president's full name, Barack Hussein Obama, saying his middle name was loaded with negative connotation.

Critics had complained that Obama's full name was conspicuously absent in a high school history course that referred only to the "the election of the first black president."

When a Democrat tried to fix the omission, Republican David Bradley said "I think we give him the full honor and privilege of his full name."

Obama's name caused him trouble during the 2008 presidential campaign, when some critics tried to use it to cast doubt on his American origin and faith.

Discussions over his name snarled the board's progress on amendments late Thursday evening.

"The intent behind what you're doing, I think is pretty obvious," said Republican Bob Craig, urging Bradley to withdraw the suggestion.

"Please Mr. Bradley, don't use the middle name," said Democrat Lawrence Allen. "Yes, it's his birth name, but you know the significance it will play in the press. We don't have to deal with it."

Bradley relented and withdrew the motion.

Though they lost on the president's name, conservatives scored a string of victories late Thursday, including a requirement that public school students in Texas evaluate efforts by global organizations such as the United Nations to undermine U.S. sovereignty.

McLeroy, one of the board's most outspoken conservatives, offered the amendment requiring students to evaluate efforts by global organizations including the U.N. to undermine U.S. sovereignty, saying they threatened individual liberty and freedom.

Daily Horoscope

HAPPY BIRTHDAY for Monday, May 24, 2010:
This year, you will have many opportunities to change your lifestyle, the quality of your work and your involvement in daily matters. You are full of personality and energy. Often what happens appears to come from out of left field, somewhat surprising you. Sometimes you will need to simply stop and think about events. Through this process, you'll see connections. If you are single, you will meet many people in your daily life. You can afford to be discriminating in your choices. Think about the quality of relationship a potential suitor can provide. Then act. If you are attached, the two of you are deeply bonded. The more you share, the closer you will become. LIBRA understands you.

The Stars Show the Kind of Day You'll Have:
5-Dynamic; 4-Positive; 3-Average; 2-So-so; 1-Difficult

ARIES (March 21-April 19)
* Defer to others, but keep your instincts intact. You cannot change others, or their decisions. A meeting proves to be inspiring and triggers your imagination. The unexpected occurs, though you might not choose to discuss it. Know that everything will work out. Tonight: Defer to others.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20)
 Lie low. Give yourself a chance to understand what is happening in your daily life. You might need to grasp the dynamics of a meeting. This information might be more important than you realize. Tonight: Follow another's suggestion.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20)
 Your ability to get past an issue needs to come into play. You have a unique way of taking an idea then spinning out from that point. Investigate options that surround a situation. A boss could be unpredictable. Let it go.

Tonight: Let your hair down.
CANCER (June 21-July 22)
 Keep up with the basics. Listen to feedback from partners, associates and wise ones. The combination could draw quite a bit of possibilities and options. You are getting only part of the story.
Tonight: Happily head home.
LEO (July 23-Aug. 22)
* You might want to touch base more frequently. Creativity comes from those you contact with greater frequency. Your imagination knows no limits. As a result, you have an unpredictability that delights others. Tonight: Talking up a storm.
VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22)
 Defer to others, at least for the moment. Remember, you aren't signing any papers or making ironclad agreements. At least, you need to delay any agreements. Let others see more of what is going on. Tonight: Say "yes" to an offer.
LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 22)
* Others can only talk about what you feel and think. You alone know. The level of speculation is such that you cannot keep everyone guessing. Be willing to state your case clearly and loudly. What do you really have to lose? Tonight: Add a quality of playfulness.
SCORPIO (Oct. 23-Nov. 21)
 Much is cooking behind the scenes. You might want to rethink a decision involving a family member. You don't have the complete story. Someone is hiding some details. Wait to see if you get more facts. The unexpected occurs.

Tonight: Could be late.
SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21)
 Zero in on what you believe is important and basic. Your sixth sense comes forward and allows for a great deal of unpredictability. You remain calm while others quickly become frazzled.
Tonight: At home.
CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19)
 Listen to a boss, or act like a boss. You understand authority, no matter which end you are on. What appears to be a moneymaking scheme is just that: a scheme. Give yourself the space to check out the details. Tonight: Burning the midnight oil.
AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18)
 Keep reaching out for those at a distance. Your imagination knows no limits — nearly — when you need to deal with a problem. Brainstorm with others. Financial matters have a most unpredictable tone. Tonight: Look past the obvious.
PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20)
 One-on-one relating reveals much more. However, you could find that your instincts are right-on with a partnership matter. The unexpected occurs when dealing with a loved one or a key associate. Don't react or overreact. Tonight: Listen to a suggestion.
