Clarendon wind program gets boost with grant

Money will buy equipment for new facility

ARNIE AURELLANO
editor@thepampanews.com

Thanks to Texas Comptroller Susan Combs, Clarendon College's wind energy program is about to land a major windfall.

Clarendon's case, the college will be receiving $300,000 toward the development of its wind turbine technician program.

About half of that money, according to Clarendon College Pampa Center Vice President Raymond Jaramillo, will go to the Pampa campus. Jaramillo is projecting that the money will be used to buy wind turbine simulators that will help Clarendon students get turbine maintenance training without leaving the college.

Clarendon College is one of 22 community colleges across Texas that are receiving grants from the comptroller's office. The money, according to a release from the comptroller, is to be used "toward equipment purchases for new career and technical education programs that support fast-growing industries."

"They look like the top part of the wind turbines, but without the blades," said Jaramillo of the simulators. "Having them in house is going to help us give our students another

A HAIRY SITUATION

Local groomer contributes to Gulf efforts

editor@thepampanews.com

The Gulf of Mexico may be hundreds of miles away, but the continuing efforts to stop the burgeoning oil spill disaster isn't far from the hearts of many in Pampa.

Case in point: Lynn Ledford. A dog groomer who works from her small office on the west side of Pampa, Ledford has spent the past few weeks helping out with the cleanup effort with something she's quite familiar with: Dog hair.

As she combed the shampoo out of little customer Doogie's coat, Ledford described how the canine's hair could potentially help mitigate the spill.

"The dog hair will pick up oil," Ledford said as the small black and white dog licked playfully at her hand. Next to the table where Doogie stood was a large wastebasket, about half full of hair from Doogie and Ledford's other customers.

Ledford has been saving and sending dog hair from her grooming jobs to send down to the Gulf. Cleanup crews there have been using the dog hair, as well as other oil-absorbent fibers such as hair and wool, to make booms by stuffing it into casings made of nylon pantyhose.

Many such booms have been deployed out onto the ocean surface, where the fibers would absorb the oil from the water and keep it from spreading.

The booms were the brainchild of Phil McCrory, a hair stylist from Alabama, who invented them after watching television coverage of the 1989

USDA seeking energy program applications

USDA Rural Development has announced it is seeking applications from eligible intermediaries to help rural small businesses and agricultural producers reduce energy costs and consumption. Funding is provided to conduct energy audits and provide renewable energy development assistance.

"We're pleased to offer this program to those who want to save money and conserve energy, but are unable to do so without financial assistance," said Paco Valentin, Texas State Director of USDA Rural Development. "As we continue to find ways to make America more energy independent, the projects this program supports will become more and more important."

USDA Rural Development has made available $2.4 million for fiscal year 2010 for energy audits. The funds are provided through the Rural Energy for America Program (REAP) and authorized by the Food, Conservation, and Energy Act of 2008 (the Farm Bill).

The Farm Bill allows agricultural producers or rural small business to recover up to three-quarters of the cost of an energy audit. Audit funds are not provided directly to an eligible producer but are allocated instead to an intermediary. The intermediary provides funds to the audit recipient. Eligible intermediaries for energy audit grants include state, tribal, or local government entities; land-grant colleges and universities and other institutions of higher education, including 1994 Land Grant Colleges (Tribal Colleges), 1890 Land Grant Colleges and Historically Black Universities; rural electric cooperatives; and public power entities.

Rural Development is accepting applications for this program until July 26. For more information on how to apply, please see the May 27, 2010 Federal Register. To learn more about USDA's REAP and other renewable energy programs, please visit www.rurdev.usda.gov/BCP\_ReapEaReda.html.

USDA, through its Rural Development mission area, administers and manages more than 40 housing, business and community infrastructure and facility programs through a national network of 6,100 employees located in the nation's capital and 500 state and local offices. These programs are designed to improve the economic stability of rural communities, businesses, residents, farmers and ranchers and improve the quality of life in rural America. Rural Development has an existing portfolio of more than $138 billion in loans and loan guarantees.

AFTERNOONRUSH

Death penalty under scrutiny

HOUSTON (AP) — State District Judge Kevin Fine on Friday scheduled a hearing to listen to evidence on whether there's a substantial risk that the Texas death penalty law allows for the possible execution of an innocent person.

The Nov. 8 hearing was set as part of a pretrial motion in which two defense attorneys for a Houston man facing a possible death sentence asked that Texas' death penalty statute be declared unconstitutional.

Fine initially granted the motion in March, declaring the law unconstitutional because he believed it is safe to assume innocent people have been executed.

Fine, a Democrat, is a judge in Harris County, which sends more inmates to death row than any other county in the nation. Texas has carried out more executions than any other U.S. state.

More troubles for nuke waste site

LUBBOCK (AP) — A troubled site for disposing some of the nation's low-level radioactive waste has more problems to deal with.

Officials with the Texas Commission on Environmental Quality said the agency will issue a Notice of Violation within two weeks because the company that operates the site has stored a concrete canister filled with the hottest low-level radioactivity material beyond the 365 days allowed under a waste processing license.

The commission is drafting what it will require of Waste Control Specialists to deal with the violation, but because of "potential issues related to repackaging and transportation, the TCEQ will allow the waste to remain on site as long as WCS complies with TCEQ's corrective action requirements," agency spokeswoman Andrea Morrow wrote in an e-mail.

No fines will be issued, she said.

White looks to rally Texas Dems

CORPUS CHRISTI, Texas (AP) — After traveling for months courting all types of Texas voters, Democrat Bill White is trying to ignite excitement among party loyalists at the Democratic Party's state convention.

Throughout the day, Democratic delegates met in caucuses representing interest groups like the Mexican American Democrats, veterans, small businesses and gun owners.

"The face of the party looks much like the face of the state," said White, a former mayor of Houston and the Democrats' best hope in years at winning the governorship. "So this is an opportunity for people in different parts of the state to get to know each other and to resolve we want an election that will put Texas first."

Brewer links illegals to drugs

PHOENIX (AP) — Arizona Gov. Jan Brewer said Friday most illegal immigrants entering Arizona are being used to transport drugs across the border.

Brewer said the motivation of "a lot" of the illegal immigrants is to enter the United States to look for work, but that drug rings press them into duty as drug "mules."

"I believe today, under the circumstances that we're facing, that the majority of the illegal trespassers that are coming into the state of Arizona are under the direction and control of organized drug cartels and they are bringing drugs in," Brewer said.

Ledford

Knowing that hair was oil-absorbent, McCrory experimented to find out if it could be used to suck oil from ocean water.

McRory found out that human hair worked best, but hair from pets such as dogs and cats was also effective. With animal groomers producing more castoff hair than salons, collecting pet hair became a viable alternative after the spill.

"They started out with beauty shops," Ledford said, "but then it became more apparent that dog groomers had a lot more hair than beauty shops."

With the onset of the summer heat, Ledford said, dogs are getting shorter cuts and groomers are producing more hair. As Friday's temperature soared close to the century mark, Doogie seemed more than happy with her new haircut and barked in agreement.

Ledford said that she became involved when a company, Excess Access, was soliciting hair on a dog grooming website.

She said she had come across the request on the internet and sent two shipments of hair from her dog grooming business to a warehouse in Alabama.

The Excess Access website explained that it connects those with one item to others who need that item. They said that donations are tax-deductible.

There are several different organizations currently collecting dog hair for the booms, Ledford said, though the project has lately seemed to hit a stumbling block.

The hair-filled pantyhose, Ledford explained, has been getting waterlogged and sinking of late.

"I guess they didn't think about putting buoys on the pantyhose," Ledford said. "They're rethinking their plan a little bit."

Still, Ledford said that the hair does continue to contain the oil effectively. The question, then, appears how best to use the dog hair.

"I think probably closer to shore," Ledford said, "it will work real well."

Turns out Bush was right about Petraeus

A brief smile of satisfaction may have crossed George W. Bush's face when President Barack Obama said "Get me Petraeus" to take command of the war in Afghanistan. Bush picked Gen. David Petraeus to implement and successfully carry out the troop surge in Iraq at a time when it seemed all was lost and the former president was under fire from his many critics to pull out — including Obama who incorrectly predicted his effort would fail.

Bush's name was strangely absent from nightly news reports on Obama's decision to turn to the man his predecessor had chosen to tackle an almost impossible assignment. But there were lessons in how Bush made his decision that Obama never really understood or accepted.

In sharp contrast to the agonizingly long, three-month war strategy review, when Obama was struggling to figure out how he wanted to approach the war in Afghanistan, Bush took a more direct route. He said his decisions were drawn from the advice of his generals on the ground. Petraeus is the godfather of counterinsurgent warfare and had written a thick, detailed strategic book on how it should be fought — militarily, diplomatically, economically and directly by working with local leaders. Equally important, he is as much a highly skilled diplomat as he is a military strategist. He maintained close relations with Afghan and Iraqi leaders, as well as political and diplomatic leaders throughout the Middle East. He is respected on both sides of the political aisle on Capitol Hill.

"Petraeus is more of a diplomat, as opposed to a war fighter," a senior civilian adviser to the U.S. military in Afghanistan told the Washington Post. He is, in other words, the complete package. Bush chose wisely in picking him, and Obama is finally taking his advice on this one.

DONALD LAMBRO

But Obama and his team of national security advisers were not always rah-rah for Petraeus or what he accomplished in Iraq and often belittled his success there. When they sought out his advice during their search for a plan for Afghanistan last year in a series of White House strategy sessions, Vice President Joe Biden was coldly dismissive of what led to the success of the Iraq surge. A harsh critic of the Iraq war who wanted to partition the country into three sectors, Biden "implied that U.S. forces had 'bought off the Sunnis, and got lucky' in reconciling sectarian differences," according to one account in the Post from officials who were in the meetings. Petraeus responded diplomatically but firmly, saying that every decision and action he made in Iraq was based on a highly complex "intellectual construct," and that the surge's success "didn't drop in our lap." At one point in these review sessions, as his advisers grew tired of hearing Petraeus repeatedly make comparisons to Iraq, Obama demonstrated that he never really fully understood how Petraeus achieved success in Iraq — asking him how he did it and whether his counteroffensive strategy could prove successful in Iraq. Now, here was the president who campaigned against Bush's war in Iraq asking whether Petraeus' Iraq strategy could help him win the war in Afghanistan.

The next day, Petraeus delivered a paper to the White House that set forth the lessons learned in Iraq and how they could be applied in Afghanistan — with modifications to fit differing circumstances. It would be the supreme irony indeed if Petraeus were to pull off the same level of success that occurred in Iraq, a country that went on to hold elections, though remains threatened by a stepped-up al Qaeda-in-Iraq offensive. To be sure, Iraq is still a work in progress but one now far better suited to fight for its survival.

Petraeus is under no illusions about Afghanistan and the immense challenges posed by the Taliban insurgency, widespread corruption in the Afghan government, and its mercurial president, Hamid Karzai, who only recently was renewing overtures to give the Taliban some concessions. It also remains to be seen how Petraeus negotiates his way in and around Obama's declaration, when he announced the results of his review last December, that "after 18 months, our troops will begin to come home." Petraeus thinks that is a stretch at best but has skillfully managed to avoid any hint of conflict with administration policy and its timeline.

"It is important that July 2011 be seen for what it is: the date when a process begins, based on conditions, not the date when the U.S. heads for the exits," he testified before the House and Senate Armed Services Committee last week. That is the kind of skillful, wordsmith diplomacy that has earned him a well-deserved reputation for knowing how to placate one side, even as he reaches out to the other.

There are many who think that the war in Afghanistan cannot be won and that, even if it can, we have no business being there. But not David Petraeus, who got into this believing it can be won, though maybe not in the way his adversaries think.

Donald Lambro is chief political correspondent for The Washington Times. His twice-weekly column, which he has written since 1980, appears in newspapers nationwide.

"We have over a hundred wind majors now, and this is going to mean a lot to them," Jaramillo added.

The money, Jaramillo said, was secured in large part through the work of Debra Kuhl, Clarendon College's Dean of Instruction.

It's also just the latest boost to the progress of Clarendon's wind program. Construction is going smoothly on the new facilities adjacent to the current Clarendon Pampa campus, with one of the new buildings set to be the wind department's new home. Jaramillo said that, weather permitting, the buildings will be done by January, meaning they will be ready for use as early as the second semester of the upcoming school year.

Also, Jaramillo said, the new simulators will combine with wind turbine testing and training equipment purchased through an earlier EDC grant to give Clarendon College a premier array of machinery to educate local aspiring wind technicians.

"This is going to help us stay on the cutting edge of wind energy education, Jaramillo said. "Technology is everything now, so this is big."

Dear Abby...

By Pauline & Jeanne Phillips

DEAR ABBY: "Todd" and I have been close friends since eighth grade. We're now in our mid-20s, and over the years I have gotten to know his family. His mother, "Cindy," is a kind and darling woman and I like her a lot.

The problem is, she has it in her head that I am perfect for Todd. On more than one occasion she has gone so far as to ask me why I don't marry him. Todd and I have always been close, but I have never had any interest in him beyond friendship. In fact, I am involved in a serious relationship right now with a man I love dearly.

Is there a way to stop Cindy from making suggestive comments without hurting her feelings? — HOLDING MY TONGUE FOR NOW IN MINNESOTA

DEAR HOLDING YOUR TONGUE: Todd's mother's attempts at matchmaking may be annoying, but they're the greatest compliment a mother can pay a young woman. The next time she does it, smile and tell her that if you could clone yourself you would because you think she'd be the best mother-in-law in the world, but you're seeing someone and the relationship is serious.

DEAR ABBY: I am a 48-year-old man about to be married for the second time. My bride, "Jennifer," is significantly younger than I, but aside from that, we're alike on most issues. We have lived together for five years and have two beautiful daughters, ages 3 and 7.

We are now involved in making wedding plans. I know it's a woman's special day, but when I ask the normal question of "How much does it cost?" Jennifer becomes unglued. She says she's aware that we don't have an unlimited budget, and she's sick and tired of my always asking about the costs and saying things are too expensive.

Today she went off again when I said that the diamond-encrusted wedding band she wants me to wear was too expensive, and a simple gold band is fine for me. I told Jennifer to cut out the Bridezilla attitude. Money is a factor in a wedding, and since I'm part of it, my opinion should matter as much as hers.

Now she's stomping around in a huff, and I'm at the end of my rope. If this is how she acts now, what about after the wedding? Am I being an idiot to worry about the money, or is Jennifer being unrealistic by ignoring it and stifling my concerns? — GROOM (?) IN MICHIGAN
 DEAR GROOM (?): You're not an idiot. You are asking some very intelligent questions. One of the most frequent causes of divorce is arguments over money. So before you go any further, stop the music and insist that the two of you get premarital counseling to ensure that you really are on the same page. It could save you a bundle — of heartache and money.

HAPPY BIRTHDAY for Sunday, June 27, 2010:

This year, you often put your best foot forward when attempting to get past restrictions. You will learn how to skip over hassles, control games and other boomerangs. This skill will help you live your life well. If you are single, you could meet someone quite special. You might feel as if a romantic haze surrounds you. If you are attached, your mate displays a very intriguing newfound charisma, drawing you in. Do manage your own finances.

The Stars Show the Kind of Day You'll Have: 5-Dynamic; 4-Positive; 3-Average; 2-So-so; 1-Difficult
ARIES (March 21-April 19)
 ★★★ Pressure builds to do the right thing. You have to take a stand. Honor who you are. A conversation with a family member or roommate points to a new direction. Think positively about an important event. Tonight: Could be late.

This Week: Use a newfound energy to zero in on a goal. Know that you have supporters.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20)
 ★★★★★ Make calls to friends and loved ones. Relax and catch up on news. A close associate or friend lets you know that he or she cares. Respond to this person's energy. Question a project if it would result in making your daily life more difficult. Tonight: Let your mind roam.

This Week: Unexpected developments and insights might slow you down a bit. By Friday, no one will know the difference.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20)
 ★★★★★ Avoid a power play at any cost. Understand what is happening with someone. Allow for a discussion, and let both parties air their views. Detach and let your imagination roam. Solutions will appear quite suddenly. Tonight: Visit over dinner.

This Week: Tune in to a quirky friend who adds much to your life. Ideas pop in his or her company.
CANCER (June 21-July 22)
 ★★★ By now, you should be experienced with power plays of all sorts. The only way to win in a power play is not to play. Some people draw others through disagreements; they also keep you engaged with that same energy. Don't react, but do distance yourself. Tonight: Have a difficult conversation.

This Week: Work with a partner directly, and obtain the best results possible.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22)
 ★★★ Trust your inner voice. Say "no" to plans if you feel like doing something else. Use care with your finances. A partner could have a great idea, but is it affordable? Tonight: Chill.

This Week: Others want what they want. What is new about that? Make choices for you.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22)
 ★★★★★ Zero in on your priorities. Friends put up a great argument as to why you should hang with them. Float and don't structure your life as sternly as in the past. But do understand your limits. Tonight: Follow the fun.

This Week: Expect to put your nose to the grindstone. If you're fortunate, you might get everything done.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 22)
 ★★★★★ Stay tuned in to a personal or domestic situation, which could blow at any given time. You cannot be in two places at once. Make decisions that support your life and ability to do what you want. Tonight: A serious talk with a loved one.

This Week: Ideas come in from out of left field. Some actually are quite brilliant.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23-Nov. 21)
 ★★★★★ Keep conversations moving and don't lock on to an undecided point. You also might not be seeing the whole situation. Understanding helps you make a strong judgment. Get out of yourself and choose a relaxing pastime. Go for a drive or see a movie. Tonight: Catch up on a friend's news.

This Week: Lie low in a personal matter. Don't bring it to work.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21)

★★★★ Use special care with monetary dealings. You could be pushed to the max by a situation. Check in on a parent, older relative or friend. Don't worry about an uncomfortable moment or two. Tonight: Slow down.

This Week: Make calls, schedule meetings and communicate. Your strong suit is your words.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19)

★★★★ Juggle different concerns as efficiently as possible. Someone at a distance needs to hear from you, even if he or she is frequently uptight. If you have a hunch, follow it. Tonight: Do what you want.

This Week: Expenses could go over the top if you're not careful. Practice using the word "no."

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18)

★★ Know that perhaps you are best off distancing yourself and trying to do something in a different way. Make it OK to curl up with a good book or go for a walk. You'll see life from a different perspective from those around you once you detach. Tonight: Screen calls.

This Week: Use your unusually high energy to get what you want. Others say "yes" with ease.

PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20)

★★★★ A key associate could be difficult. Join your friends for a day at the beach, or visit another favorite summer spot. Listen to your instincts with a friend or close loved one. You might not have the whole story but a good part of it. Tonight: Where the crowds are.

This Week: You could be a little off until Thursday. Use that knowledge with work and interpersonal relating.

HAPPY BIRTHDAY for Monday, June 28, 2010:

This year, the unexpected marks your professional and personal lives. You could feel quite pushed by authority figures. As a result, you might decide to go in a new direction. Many of you could decide to start your own business. Parents and older relatives seem to lighten up with a newfound freedom. If you are single, you could meet someone quite suddenly through your work or your daily life. Don't consider this as a long-term relationship until it is. If you are attached, the two of you could feel a lot more spontaneous together than in many years.

ARIES (March 21-April 19)

★★★★ You switch gears, focusing on drawing like minds together in a project. Some people might be commenting that you have a new spring in your step. Your vibrancy helps give life to your ideas. Others respond to your energy. Tonight: Where people are.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20)

★★★ Examine a boss's idea, but use care when challenging him or her. Unexpected insights help you not only right now but also in the long run. Tune in to your inner voice more frequently if you want good results. Tonight: Touch base with an older friend.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20)

★★★★ Reach out for experts and new ideas. Never fear saying that you are not sure or that you need more information. A new friend could prove to be unpredictable, taking you down a new path. Tonight: Relax your mind. You don't need to do yoga. A good movie will work, too.

CANCER (June 21-July 22)

★★★★ Deal with a personal matter directly. The person(s) involved gives you intense feedback. You just might decide to set sail in an unexplored direction. Opportunities might overwhelm you. Tonight: Out late.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22)

★★★★ Others want a say in the final product. Is there any reason why they shouldn't have this? Surprising news heads in your direction. Though at first you might have a strong reaction, you'll discover many pluses soon enough. Tonight: Accept an invitation.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22)

★★★ A partner or associate appears to have totally changed his or her MO, surprising you. Learn to work with this rapidly transforming person more often. Tonight: Squeeze in some exercise.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 22)

★★★★ Your playfulness marks plans, conversations and interactions in general. Someone could have a very strong reaction, like it or not. In fact, people in general will need time to understand your new projection.

Tonight: Having fun wherever you are.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23-Nov. 21)

★★★ If you can work from home, by all means, do. You will accomplish a lot more, and ideas will flow more easily. A family member appreciates your efforts toward him or her. Tonight: Order in.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21)

★★★★ Make the effort to connect with those around you. Standing on ceremony at this point won't work and is totally unnecessary. You could be delightfully surprised by someone's news. Tonight: Hanging out.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19)

★★★★ Curb a need to be possessive or to have matters play out in a certain way. Being controlling could cause more problems than you are ready to deal with. Others behave in ways that could surprise you. Tonight: Get into the groove.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18)

★★★★ All eyes turn to you, whether in a meeting or on the street. You wonder about others who are acting in a most unpredictable manner. Free yourself up and allow for more spontaneity. It is as if you are blazing a new path. Tonight: Whatever makes you happy.

PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20)

★★★ Know when to pull back and say less. Understanding grows the more you listen. How you deal with a personal matter could change. Use your instincts with finances. If you feel lucky, buy a lottery ticket. Tonight: Get some extra R and R.

Former Lady Harvester experiences college postseason

aglover@thepampanews.com

After playing in the high school postseason with the Pampa Lady Harvesters, Jasmine Moore experienced the college postseason in her first two seasons at Angelo State.

Moore said college softball is different than high school and she was nervous in her first season.

"I didn't know what to expect," Moore said. "We went to the World Series. I really didn't get to play much."

Moore said it was difficult not getting to play much after she was an everyday outfielder in high school. The moment Moore enjoyed was when she first moved in at San Angelo State.

"I met the team at the lake house and got advice from the returning players," Moore said.

Last season, Angelo

State finished 50-15 and reached the semifinals of the NCAA Division II Championship before falling to Valdosta State. Angelo State is led by head coach Travis Scott. Moore said she had to get used to playing for a male coach, but things went well.

"It was different than Coach Gill since he (Scott) is male," Moore said. "He's a really great coach. He's like a dad and loves us like daughters."

On Moore's profile on the Angelo State Web site, Scott said Moore's speed is vital to the team's success.

"She is continually working on a variety of slapping techniques with success," Scott said. "She is a great person who other players can look up to."

In high school, Moore was no stranger to the postseason as Pampa won district in her sophomore, junior year and senior seasons. In her senior year, she Lady Harvesters reached the regional semifinals. Pampa head coach Bobbi Gill said Moore was a very good player for her team.

"She worked extremely hard," Gill said. "She didn't play on varsity until her second year. She was a smart baserunner and a skilled outfielder. You never questioned her going full speed. She was very dependable."

Moore said Coach Gill helped her in preparing for college.

"If I had a question, I could ask how the other girls were doing things," Moore said. "I still talk to her and tell her how I am doing. She keeps telling me to keep working hard."

Moore said she is going to work harder for her junior season at Angelo State.

"I'm going to work on my slapping and be more aggressive in right and left (field)," Moore said.
