Officials predicting high election turnout

DAVID BOWSER
dbowser@thepampanews.com

Election officials are predicting a high turnout for an off year election this year. Gray County Election Administrator Linda Lewis said she had received about 200 mail in ballots and early voting appears strong. She said early voting will probably top 2,000.

"There's been marked interest in this year's election," she said.

Lewis said that on election day, the seven polling places in Gray County will open at 7 a.m. Tuesday, Nov. 2, and close at 7 p.m. Early voting closes at 5 p.m., today.

Voters will need their voter identification or driver's license to vote, Lewis said.

She said the new scanning process will work with driver's licenses. Voters need to have registered to vote in Gray County at least 30 days before the election.

"The results will begin coming in about 8 p.m. Tuesday night," Lewis said. "The polls close at 7 p.m."

Precinct One will vote at the Lefors Community Center, 103 N. Court, Lefors. Precinct Two will vote at Lovett Memorial Library, 111 N. Houston, Pampa. Precinct Three will vote at Grandview Hopkins School, 11605 FM 293. Precinct Four will vote at Lovett Library, 302 N. Main, McLean. Precinct Five will vote at the First Christian Church, 1633 N. Nelson, Pampa.

RANGERS FEVER

With team in first Series ever, Pampa shows its full support

ANDREW GLOVER
aglover@thepampanews.com

With the Texas Rangers reaching the World Series for the first time since their inception in 1961, Rangers fever has gripped Pampa. Red, white and blue flags can be seen waving up and down Hobart Street in support of the Arlington team. Pampans are walking around decked out in their best Rangers gear. Local Facebook pages are lighting up with "Go Rangers" messages, immediately followed by long lists of encouraging comments and likes.

Some local fans are even going the extra mile — or in this case, 343 miles — to see the team's first series berth. That list includes two Pampa High School coaches who have never been shy in following their favorite teams: Assistant football and basketball coach Matt Embry, who will be seeing Game 3 Saturday in Arlington, and baseball coach Kaleb Snelgrooves, who is going to Game 4 the following day.

Embry said he and his wife got tickets through a website called StubHub.

"There were tickets going for a thousand dollars a piece," Embry said. "We were able to find two of them for that price. It will be fun and I'm super excited."

Saturday won't be the first time Embry has seen the Rangers in the postseason. He went in 1999, when the team lost to the Yankees in the Division Series.

"I've been waiting for this for a long time as a fan," Embry said. "It's exciting. I know anyone who has stuck by them that long is excited."

Hole found in plane

MIAMI (AP) — A 1-foot-by-2-foot hole was found in the fuselage of a commercial airliner that suddenly lost cabin pressure shortly after taking off from Miami, authorities said.

Passengers aboard American Airlines Flight 1640 were hysterical when the Boston-bound flight lost cabin pressure Tuesday night, a passenger said.

"All of a sudden it was just this decline in the plane. It was descending really fast, really loud. Lights were going on and off. Noises were going on and off. People were hysterical around us. They were crying," Edward Croce told Miami television station WSVN.

Oxygen masks were deployed, Federal Aviation Administration spokeswoman Kathleen Bergen said.

The Boeing 757 was carrying 154 passengers and six crew members.

Gas leak delays shuttle launch

CAPE CANAVERAL, Fla. (AP) — A pair of gas leaks has delayed next week's launch of space shuttle Discovery.

NASA ordered a minimum one-day postponement on Friday after failing to plug a small helium gas leak aboard Discovery. A nitrogen gas leak also was detected. The problems are unrelated to a fuel leak that cropped up a few weeks ago.

Discovery's launch to the International Space Station is now scheduled for Tuesday afternoon — Election Day.

NASA test director Jeff Spaulding said if the latest repairs go well, the agency will press ahead with a Tuesday launch, even though it's Election Day. Considerably more launch spectators than usual are anticipated, since this will be Discovery's 39th and final liftoff as the shuttle program winds down. Coupled with Election Day traffic, the roads almost certainly will be jammed.

Bushes to throw out first pitches

ARLINGTON (AP) — Former Presidents George H.W. Bush and George W. Bush will throw out ceremonial first pitches before Game 4 of the World Series on Sunday night.

The San Francisco Giants lead the Texas Rangers 2-0 in the best-of-seven series.

George W. Bush was managing general partner of the Rangers from 1989-94 and maintained partial ownership of the club until 1998, two years before he was elected the 43rd president.

Hall of Fame pitcher Nolan Ryan will throw out the first pitch for Game 3 on Saturday night, when the series shifts from San Francisco to Texas. Ryan is part of the ownership group that recently purchased the franchise from Tom Hicks.

Game 3 is scheduled to start at 6:57 p.m. EDT, the earliest start for a World Series game in more than 20 years.

Police warn of plastic bottles

BRYAN (AP) — Bryan police are warning the public to use caution around plastic bottles that could contain dangerous chemicals.

Police on Friday issued a statement about "dangerous plastic bottles" and suspicious activity after officers Thursday night received calls about possible gunfire.

Police who responded located small plastic bottles that had been exploded.

Further investigation revealed that the bottles, similar to a 20 ounce beverage containers, had caustic chemicals.

No injuries were reported as police warned about so-called "makeshift bombs" that can be made with household items.

Barge incident knocks out power

GALVESTON (AP) — About 16,000 businesses and homes in Galveston lost electricity after strong winds were blamed for pushing a crane on a barge into some power lines.

The Coast Guard says nobody was injured Thursday. The accident forced temporary closure of the Intercoastal Waterway at the causeway.

CenterPoint Energy spokesman Keith Gray says crews were able to roll service over to another transmission line. Power was restored within about three hours.

The Galveston County Daily News reports the Coast Guard set up a safety perimeter for vessels around the railroad bridge spanning Galveston Bay. The Intercoastal Waterway was reopened by early Thursday afternoon.

The National Weather Service recorded gusts of up to 30 mph Thursday morning.

Freer boy dead after turkey hunt

FREER (AP) — Freer police say a 14-year-old boy had been turkey hunting with a buddy before being fatally shot as the rifles were being stored.

Police Chief Roy Salazar said Thursday that the death of Eden Gonzalez is being treated as an accident.

Gonzalez, who attended Freer Junior High School, was shot Wednesday afternoon and transported to Christus Spohn Hospital Alice, where he was pronounced dead.

Salazar says Gonzalez was shot with a .222 caliber rifle. The boy who was with the victim is also 14.

Salazar told the Corpus Christi Caller-Times that the two boys were packing up after hunting when one of their rifles went off. Police did not immediately say which boy's rifle fired.

A service was planned Saturday for Gonzalez. Freer is 70 miles west of Corpus Christi.

Taxes sent to wrong state

McKINNEY (AP) — Human error is blamed for a printing company switch that led some Collin County property owners to mail their tax payments to New Mexico.

Tax assessor Kenneth Maun says his staff this week rushed to get the printing company to send new return envelopes so the payments will get to Collin County.

About 2,500 residents of Collin County, located just north of Dallas County, this month received return envelopes wrongly addressed to the Dona Ana County, N.M., treasurer.

The Dallas Morning News reported Friday that the same printing company makes items for both counties.

Jill Johnson, who is Dona Ana County's chief deputy treasurer, says the Texas payments that started arriving Tuesday will be returned to the proper tax offices in McKinney.

TYLER (AP) — Jutta Schreiner's childhood was filled with brainwashing, war and faith in the Nazi Party.

As a 9-year-old German girl, she survived the Royal Air Force's first attack on a German city, her hometown, Lubeck.

About that time, she enrolled early in Hitler Youth and three years later, as the war was ending, she helped her mother destroy the last traces of her father's existence and ties with the Nazi Party.

Ms. Schreiner, now 77 with her white wispy hair and frail stature, says it was for safety — an effort to protect the family from association with the Nazis if her father ever came home from the war.

Her book, The Signature Call, shares short snippets of surviving the war — stealing coal, hiding from airstrikes, joining Hitler Youth, and the day her father returned from the war.

She clasps her fragile hands under her chin and peacefully reenacts her stories' introduction. "These are war stories that happened in the Second World War that I lived through."

A few years ago, she started sharing her war stories at the dinner table among talks of politics, religion or her grandchildren's day at school. Her friends and family encouraged her to write her story.

"I started telling about my war stories and my son-in-law always said, 'You have to write those down; they'll forget and so you have to write those down,'" she said.

She claims the stories as memories rather than "total facts."

Ms. Schreiner was born in 1933 in Lubeck, the first German city to be attacked in substantial numbers by the Royal Air Force.

Her mother was a housewife and her father, a car salesman, she remembers, "was a 1,000 percent Hitler guy."

In 1936, membership in Hitler Youth became compulsory for 10-year-old children.

The program intended to keep children busy and combat juvenile delinquency.

Ms. Schreiner walked with her older sister, Christa, to Hitler Youth meetings.

Because Ms. Schreiner was a fast runner, she said she joined Hitler Youth early, when she was 8 or 9 years old, just after World War II started.

While Ms. Schreiner wrote in her book that children were "oblivious to the horrors being committed by some members of the Nazi party, and part of its goal was to 'brainwash' children, she said it was not all negative.

"Though it is humiliating to many that these beliefs were instilled in us as children, many of the young Germans were honest, empathetic and caring human beings who lived their lives on the principles of morality that were instilled in them at home," she wrote in her book.

The Hitler Youth Troops had mandatory meetings on Wednesdays and Saturdays, kept daily logs and did one good deed a day, be it helping someone cross the street or babysitting an hour for a busy mother.

"It kept kids busy," Ms. Schreiner said.

She said children's basic education and morals still came from the family.

Decades later, she said the organization's lessons have helped her survive not only the war, but a divorce and cancer.

"We went to the ALDS," Snelgrooes said. "My brother said, 'Hey, let's go.' So I went on and bought tickets. We're going to be in the upper home run port. We're excited."

Sunday won't be Snelgrooes first time at the Fall Classic. Snelgrooes went to Game 4 in Colorado when the Red Sox swept the Rockies. The head baseball coach said he was hoping to see the Rangers sweep, but hopes they'll move a win closer to clinching the series.

"Hopefully, I will get to see the Rangers beat (the Giants) in Game 4 before they beat them in Game 5," Snelgrooes said.

"The urge to survive is a strong one," she said. "And we survived it."

She was diagnosed with stage four colon cancer in 2002.

She said cancer gave her "more time."

"I cannot sit quietly, not to do anything," she said. "With cancer, I was restricted in walking and doing things, so I wrote my war stories."

She said she owes the book's completion to Sue Deakins and Jenny Molberg — "the wind beneath my wings," Ms. Schreiner said.

Mrs. Deakins remains humble about her involvement.

"I realized she was never going to get it published if somebody didn't help her with it — so much of the time she was in the hospital," Mrs. Deakins said.

When Ms. Schreiner was tired of writing, Mrs. Deakins and Ms. Molberg encouraged her to keep at it.

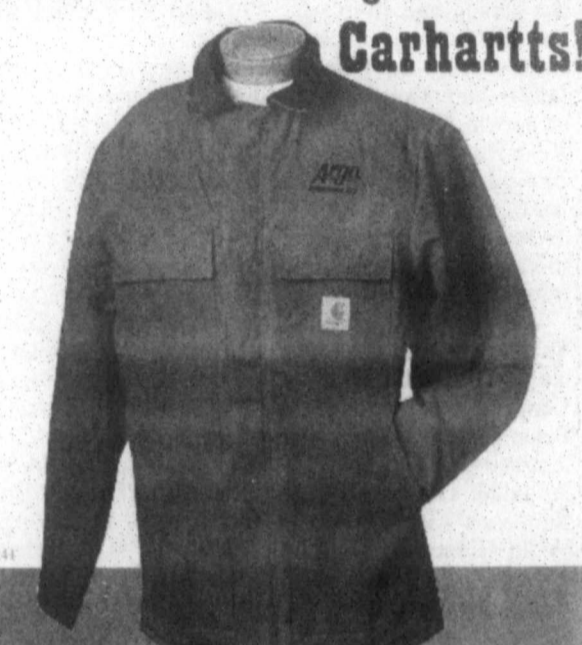

They would say, "Come on Oma, you have to write it, you have to write more," Ms. Schreiner said. "That's how it came about."

One reason for her book is to remind others that people are kind, she said.

Another is to remind people of what happened during the war "and not let it happen again," she said.

"Not make the same mistake, not just believe everything people tell you," she said. "You should think about it and make your own decision: 'Could this be possible?' We were pretty little, 8, 9 years, 10. We could think, but I don't know how much it takes to see political implications."

Today in History

Today is Friday, Oct. 29, the 302nd day of 2010. There are 63 days left in the year.

Today's Highlight in History:

On Oct. 29, 1929, Wall Street crashed on "Black Tuesday," heralding the beginning of America's Great Depression.

On this date:

In 1618, Sir Walter Raleigh, the English courtier, military adventurer and poet, was executed in London.

In 1901, President William McKinley's assassin, Leon Czolgosz, was electrocuted.

In 1923, the Republic of Turkey was proclaimed.

In 1940, Secretary of War Henry L. Stimson drew the first number — 158 — in America's first peacetime military draft.

In 1956, during the Suez Canal crisis, Israel invaded Egypt's Sinai Peninsula.

In 1967, Expo 67 in Montreal, Quebec, Canada, closed after six months.

In 1998, Sen. John Glenn, at age 77, roared back into space aboard the shuttle Discovery, retracing the trail he'd blazed for America's astronauts 36 years earlier.

Ten years ago: The wounded destroyer USS Cole departed Aden, Yemen, towed by tugboats to a Norwegian heavy-lift ship to be taken home to repair the gaping hole in its side; 17 sailors were killed in a suicide bombing attack on Oct. 12.

Five years ago: Three blasts ripped through markets in New Delhi, India, killing 62 people. Hundreds of people slowly filed past the body of civil rights icon Rosa Parks in Montgomery, Ala., just miles from the downtown street where she'd made history by refusing to give up her seat on a city bus to a white man.

One year ago: President Barack Obama paid a post-midnight visit to Dover Air Force Base in Delaware to honor the return of 18 soldiers killed in Afghanistan.

Today's Birthdays: Bluegrass singer-musician Sonny Osborne (The Osborne Brothers) is 73. Country singer Lee Clayton is 68. Rock musician Denny Laine is 66. Singer Melba Moore is 65. Musician Peter Green is 64. Actor Richard Dreyfuss is 63. Actress Kate Jackson is 62. The president of Turkey, Abdullah Gul, is 60. Actor Dan Castellana ("The Simpsons") is 53. Country musician Steve Kellough (Wild Horses) is 53. Comic strip artist Tom Wilson ("Ziggy") is 53. Actress Finola Hughes is 51. Singer Randy Jackson is 49. ## Of new offices, glass houses and movies

Looking for an ambulance to chase? Or an office to rent?

Emergency Foundation Services of Texas—more familiarly known as Pampa EMS—has new digs a block north of the Chamber on Ballard. That means we have an office to rent—non-profit organizations only.

What about people who WORK in glass houses?

Don't miss the Grand Opening of Rasco Construction and Pampa Glass at 1432 N Banks. That's the original location of Pampa Glass, but Kevin and Alissha Jeffris of Rasco have acquired the business and will combine sales operation at that location. It's a great arrangement, and they feature so much more that the names indicate—garage doors, sun rooms, window treatments, liquid siding, framing... the list goes on. Drop by between 10 and 2 on Saturday to see it all. Hot dogs served beginning at 11.

I was NOT arrested...

...for MDA, that is, as reported. I had planned to, but I had to weasel out at the last minute. Thankfully, Board Chair Pat Montoya did his part and raised funds for the worthy project.

No business like show business

I see where The Pampa News is now offering movie reviews with Arnie Aurellano and Travis Tidmore.

It started with lists of their own top ten favorites. It got to thinking about what my top ten favorite movies would be. (It kept me awake one Sunday during church, but the Methodists sure don't provide much white space on the bulletin to write on!) Arnie's and Travis's suggestions are OK if you want the "whippersnapper" viewpoint, but if you want something more mature, here are some of mine. (Though my wife says I didn't mature, I just grew old. Some of my movie choices may back that theory up.)

I'm going to take a different tack than the young turks, who I DO have a few selections in common with—which surprised me. They might not make my top ten list, but I enjoyed Travis's "Braveheart", "Rear Window", and "The Shawshank Redemption", and Arnie's "True Lies" and "Airplane".

"Casablanca" is one of my all time favorites, too. (It made Arnie's list.) I don't really know why—I'm not a Bogart or Kelly fan, but that movie has everything—romance, suspense, intrigue, war, murder, and even a little light humor: "Round up the usual suspects."

So what does all this movie stuff have to do with Pampa business? Nothing, mostly—except you can now rent DVDs at United for a buck!

Not Karl, probably

Julius became Groucho because he was moody; Leonard became Chico (pronounced Chick-o) because he chased girls; and Harpo—well, that's obvious. Gummo and Zeppo? Who cares? Nobody remembers them anyway. If you were a Marx Brother, what would your name be?

Joe Weaver is the Executive Director of the Pampa Chamber of Commerce.

'Glee and gentlemen? Whose idea was that?

No doubt about it, Fox's "Glee" is a pop-culture juggernaut. In 2009, the "Glee" cast landed 25 singles on the Billboard Hot 100, the most by any artist since the Beatles. The show is syndicated all over the world. Its second season debut scored more than 12 million viewers. Clearly, Fox knows that this show about a high-school glee club is a hot ticket for high-schoolers, and its appeal trickles down through the lower grades. They're the ones who are downloading all the "Glee" singles for their iPods.

So who is the marketing genius who decided that female "Glee" stars should pose in their bras and underwear in the badly named "Gentleman's Quarterly" magazine? And with a fully clothed male star putting his hand on their rear ends on the cover? Surely, a lot more children watch the TV show than check out GQ magazine, but the photo shoot was news all over the entertainment world. Sleazy marketing is the best marketing.

This decision was almost uniformly condemned. One standout example was CBS anchor Katie Couric, who denounced it in an online commentary. "These very adult photos of young women who perform in a family show just seem so un-'Glee'-like. The program is already edgy in the right ways, these images don't really -- in my humble opinion -- fit the 'Glee' gestalt."

But "Glee," a "family show"? Not even Fox would agree. It's overtly sexual (in Couric-speak, that's "edgy") and absolutely no one in the show is a role model. A recent episode featured two (clothed) cheerleaders making out in bed. Fox might argue the women in the photo shoot are in their 20s, not actual high schoolers, but that's beside the point. GQ clearly designed this photo shoot to appeal to men (the GQ readership's median age is 33.4) and their fantasies about underaged girls in high school.

Despite all this, "Glee" does have some defenders, and they are lashing out in stupid ways. On MSNBC's "Last Word with Lawrence O'Donnell," the host spoke out against, and blamed the scandal on, the Parents Television Council, which he defined as "a cult that was invented to complain about TV and pretend that the TV remotes don't have channel selectors or buttons that turn the infernal machines off."

I've been called many things, but I've never been accused of starting a "cult."

O'Donnell's brain cramp didn't end there. He found it odd that the PTC opposes sex on family TV shows, when "without sex, there would be no families." O'Donnell continued upending common sense by congratulating the sleazy "Glee" actresses as responsible sex educators. They "should be very proud of the lessons they are teaching teenage girls about the complexities of decisions involving sex," he pronounced -- at the very moment the screen next to him was showing the two cheerleaders kissing in bed.

He was not alone. Entertainment Weekly writer Jennifer Armstrong also protested the PTC's objections. She was "morally outraged by your moral outrage." Really. Armstrong complained that she opposed the "Glee" shoot, too, as "misogynist trash," but her eminently sensible feminist outrage was "derailed" by the PTC focusing on the shoot's effect on children (and dirty old men). But Armstrong derailed herself by trying to argue that parents shouldn't attack shows like Fox's "Family Guy" because they are "aimed at adults," even though they are also watched by millions of children.

Armstrong actually claimed that a March 2009 "Family Guy" episode loaded with an outrageous plot about homosexuality, bestiality and a horse trampling disabled children was somehow beyond criticism because Fox was baiting its critics. By this fractured illogic, the more outrageous the show, the more it should be ignored.

Hollywood's defenders are forever insisting that their critics should just throw in the towel. "These are difficult days for the decency police," reported The New York Times. On MSNBC, O'Donnell asserted the game was over: we're all "going to have to realize that the censorship battle is lost." The defeat is so complete we're supposed to thank the outrage-makers for raising awareness that they cannot be trusted.

But these same critics would never say the Better Business Bureau should pack it in, or that Mothers Against Drunk Driving is becoming irrelevant. There is nothing more these cultural bohemians would like than for all the walls of traditional decency to come crashing down. Then they'll have what they really want: moral anarchy.

Build a wooden bench for your deck

Dear Pat: I have a fairly large deck, but it does not have enough seating when we have large parties. I think a bench or two would be nice. How can I build some comfortable benches inexpensively? -- Kathleen K.

Dear Kathleen: Benches for a deck are relatively easy to build yourself, and they use only a moderate amount of materials, which keeps the cost down. Adding just two benches should provide a substantial amount of additional seating without taking up too much of the floor space of your deck.

It costs only slightly more for the materials for a movable bench because a movable bench must be self-supporting and stronger. A fixed bench can use some of the existing railing for support. A movable bench also allows for more deck floor space when additional seating capacity is not needed.

Even if you build movable benches, plan on locating them along the edge of the deck near the rail. If your guests sometimes bring small children with them, the benches can be an extra barrier, in addition to the railing, to keep the little ones from falling off the edge of the deck.

It should not take more than a couple of hours to build two identical deck benches. First, decide on the type of wood to use for the benches. Standard pressure-treated lumber is the most durable material, and it will likely match the rest of your deck. Next time you clean and treat your deck with sealer, use a tinted sealer so the new and old wood match better.

Another material option for the benches is wood of a contrasting color. The most common woods for this would be cedar or redwood. Both are rot and insect resistant and easy to work with. Redwood is particularly attractive, and it often has a smoother surface than does cedar.

In general, benches and seats are from about 16 to 18 inches high and the seats 16 or more inches deep. Even though you have a large deck and the movable benches can be removed when extra space is needed, do not make the seats too deep. It can be uncomfortable on people's backs when they have to lean backward to rest against the rail.

Make the base frames using 2-by-4 lumber. Cut the ends with a miter saw so they are truly square. Some people prefer using 4-by-4 posts instead, but this can become heavy for a long movable bench. Counter-bore the pieces and assemble them with lag bolts. You should use a base frame for every 3 feet of bench length.

With the base frames completed, the next step is to attach the seat boards. Using 2-by-4s is quicker to install, but 2-by-2 boards look nicer and are cooler to sit on because there are more open gaps between them. Leave about a one-quarter-inch gap between them. Before you start screwing them to the base frames, space them all out to get even gaps.

Countersink the holes for the seat screws so the heads are slightly below the surface. For a more finished appearance, nail a 1-by-4-inch trim board to each side of the bench to cover the ends of the seat boards. Smooth all the edges, which will be in contact with someone's skin, with sandpaper and stain or treat the bench.

Would-be bomber appealing sentence

DALLAS (AP) — A Jordanian man who pleaded guilty to trying to blow up a Dallas skyscraper and received 24 years in federal prison has appealed his sentence even though he could have faced an additional six years behind bars.

Hosam Smadi, who faced up to 30 years as part of his plea bargain, filed his appeal Thursday. He was sentenced last week.

Smadi, 20, pleaded guilty in May to attempted use of a weapon of mass destruction, a charge that without a plea bargain carries a maximum sentence of life in prison.

Smadi acted as his own attorney in filing the one-page appeal, which is signed in slanted print and does not provide reasoning for the move.

Neither of the federal public defenders who represented Smadi during his plea bargain and sentencing immediately returned messages Friday. The FBI declined comment.

Kathy Colvin, a spokeswoman for the U.S. attorney's office in Dallas, said prosecutors are aware of the appeal.

"It is not unusual for defendants to file a notice of appeal, even after they have waived the great majority of their appellate rights, as Smadi did in this case," Colvin said in an e-mail. "The Department will respond when and if Smadi files a merits brief with the Fifth Circuit Court of Appeals."

The appeal likely is a long shot because Smadi pleaded guilty and could have received an even longer sentence.

Smadi was arrested in September 2009 after leaving what he thought was a truck bomb in a garage beneath the 60-story building. He instead had been provided a fake bomb by an undercover FBI employee posing as a terrorist. The FBI had been monitoring the then-teenager for months after finding him on an extremist website seeking a backer to help him kill Americans.

In his plea agreement, Smadi said he parked the truck, started a timer connected to the decoy and then rode away to watch the building fall. When Smadi dialed a cell phone number from the roof of a nearby parking garage, he thought he was setting off his truck bomb. Instead, the call alerted tactical agents hiding in a stairwell, who swarmed the rooftop and arrested him.

Judge Barbara Lynn could have sentenced Smadi to 30 years under the plea agreement. She instead chose 24 years, saying she believed he was remorseful and acknowledging sympathy for the young man's tragic life.

During sentencing testimony, Smadi's father explained how he regularly beat his son and then abandoned him in the United States when he was 16. The elder Smadi and a neighbor in Jordan also testified about Smadi's extreme grief when his mother died of cancer in 2006. The boy tried to revive her with a defibrillator after hospital personnel declared her dead, and he later spent nights sleeping at her grave site.

Lynn, however, said at the sentencing hearing that Smadi wasn't "the only person who had been dealt a bad hand" and sternly told him, "You made these choices."

Lynn also recommended drug abuse treatment and mental health treatment for Smadi.

Local tax raises successful across U.S.

SACRAMENTO, Calif. (AP) — Forget all the talk about voters being fed up with high taxes. In hundreds of cities and counties across the country, they are raising them.

An Associated Press review of local election results found they boosted taxes to help pay for schools, public safety and other services they believe are vital to their communities.

In an election year dominated by angry anti-government and anti-tax rhetoric, the results may seem counterintuitive. Throughout the country, raucous tea party rallies have been blanketed with signs reading "Taxed Enough Already," "Cut Taxes, Cut Government" and "We Make Our Own Way - No Socialism."

But with states facing huge budget deficits, local and state communities are leaving them with a difficult choice: Go deeper into their own pockets or cut the services that most impact their lives.

"We're talking about funding services that are not negotiable to voters, and what happens in these elections is more to do with local realities than anything that's happening on the national level," said Michael Cohen, a fiscal policy adviser to the League of California Cities.

No single entity tracks local revenue measures at a national level, and the vast majority of states do not have a centralized public database of city and county election results.

In addition, some states allow bonds and tax increases only on the general election ballot, meaning voters must wait until this Tuesday to decide many additional proposals.

The AP was able to provide a snapshot of local elections in several states where they have been embraced by voters at the local level. The analysis looked at 39 states, representing a cross-section of the country.

The review found 2,387 revenue measures in 19 states where they appeared on local primary and special election ballots this year. Voters in 19 states — or 49 percent of those holding such elections — passed 50 percent or more of the local tax initiatives that came before them.

The types of taxes run the gamut. School districts in 22 states in New York. Utility rate hikes in California. Sales tax increases in North Carolina. School levies in Nevada and Nebraska.

In many states, the pro-tax vote was overwhelming. Ohio voters approved 72 percent of 435 local tax measures. In Louisiana, voters passed 83 percent of 17 local tax questions. Voters in recession-ravaged and fiscally conservative Arizona approved 66 percent of the 34 local tax measures.

Kansas, Nebraska and Washington were among the states with high percentages of local tax measures approved. Not every state has been so accommodating.

In New Jersey, where a cost-cutting governor campaigned against local tax measures, voters in April rejected 59 percent of 537 revenue-generating school budget proposals. It was the first time in 34 years that a majority of the state's school budget proposals were defeated.

In Illinois and Massachusetts, roughly 60 percent of local tax measures failed.

Still, those states appear to be in the minority. In many communities, the reality is that state budget deficits have forced county and city governments to shoulder the burden of maintaining critical services, said Jackie Byers, director of research and outreach for the National Association of Counties in Washington, D.C.

The association surveyed 104 counties in 33 states in June and found that 64 percent of them anticipated a revenue shortfall at the beginning of their current fiscal year, largely due to declining sales tax and property tax receipts.

"They have necessary services they're mandated to perform, and so they have tough decisions about whether to lay off more people or to raise taxes," Byers said.

In California, which faced a $19 billion deficit this year, voters in the June 8 primary passed 73 percent of the 60 local tax and bond measures on the ballot, about half of which were school funding proposals.

Ballot measures that required two-thirds majorities fared well. Of the 25 school parcel taxes that came up for a vote in 19 counties through the primary, 16 passed. Those taxes, which are levied on individual parcels, ranged from $32 to $11 per parcel.

Ballot measures Californians appeared more willing to raise their own taxes on themselves this year than they have in the past, for greater economic stability, even when the state government had to shut off school funding.

"I don't see much about putting this to a vote, the conundrum is that the economy for us is raising our taxes. We need to find a way to support the city because we need to know where our services come from. It's about finding a way to pay the bills," said a local official.

Dear Abby...

By Pauline & Jeanne Phillips

DEAR ABBY: I have been keeping a journal for my son since he was born 22 years ago. I have never missed a single day. I write about him regardless of whether I see him or not. Sometimes I'll jot down a verse I remembered, or something happening in his world or an item of news-worthy information. I have also written my thoughts about his life and decisions.

My dilemma is when I should give these writings to him. I don't want to keep them indefinitely because they are meant for him. He is married and has a son on the way. My inclination is to give him the writings of his life on the occasion of his son's birth. He has no idea I've been doing this, so it will be a complete surprise. I'd appreciate your input. — BLOCKED WRITER IN OKEAHO MA

DEAR BLOCKED WRITER: What an amazing gift those journals will be. However, allow me to caution you against giving them to your son when his child is born. There will be a lot going on at that time, and you do not want to distract from that momentous occasion. My advice is to wait until his next milestone birthday and present them to him when he's 25. And because you enjoy journaling, consider starting one about your own life then.

DEAR ABBY: I have always enjoyed Halloween. I like seeing the children in their costumes and, for most of the little ones, it is a fun and magical time. In our neighborhood, a group of 15 to 20 parents escort their trick-or-treating children from door to door. Sometimes there are 25 to 30 kids. When they approach a house for their treats, the parents remain on the sidewalk, apparently oblivious to what's going on when the door opens. We have a small front porch that rises about 8 inches above the sidewalk. The kids push and shove, jockeying for position to get their "loot." Last year, a 5-year-old fell off our porch. Fortunately, she was not hurt. The parents did not issue any directions to their children to take turns accepting our candy because they were too busy chatting among themselves.

Because of the inherent danger to unsupervised children (and the possibility of a lawsuit if there should be an accident), I will not be turning on my porch light this year — the signal in our area that alerts kids that the home is participating in trick-or-treat.

I hope my letter will remind parents to practice mindfulness and make this Sunday a Happy Halloween! — LIGHTS OUT IN HARRISBURG

DEAR LIGHTS OUT: So do I, and that's why I'm printing your letter, which arrived just in time for me to include it in today's column. Last year your neighbors were lucky the child who fell didn't break a wrist or an ankle. Parents, when escorting your little ghosts, goblins and vampires, please remain vigilant. Common sense must prevail.

DEAR ABBY: I'm in love with my best friend. It seems so simple when I say it, but when it comes to telling him, the words never come out right. I don't know if I should even say anything. What if it ruins the amazing friendship we already have? Is it worth risking it all? — HESITANT IN FLORIDA

DEAR HESITANT: Yes, it is, so tell him how you feel. If he has feelings for you, you'll get what you're angling for. If he doesn't, it does not mean your friendship must end. It will let you know that if you want a romantic relationship you are free to look elsewhere. Better to know it sooner than later.

What makes a curious reader? You do.

Read to your child today and inspire a lifelong love of reading.

Business formulas shaped for faith

When I go into ministry, I'm going to reach people for Jesus by offering the best programs around.

That was my well-intentioned vision in my earlier years. Since then, though, I've learned a few things that challenge this view. In the church world, we find that new formulas for ministry and church growth are offered at every turn. And quite often, these methods come from business models rather than biblical models.

Sharing the Gospel of Jesus Christ should be easy, but most of us have found that communicating the truths of the Kingdom of God within the culture of the kingdom of this world is a challenge, to say the least.

And so we try every new formula that comes down the pike. We are promised that we can effectively share our faith through this new program, or follow this simple formula to minister to our community.

The most popular method in many churches has been to offer the best children's ministry, youth ministry, etc. Don't get me wrong; I love to see thriving, vibrant programs! We are blessed at First United Methodist Church with great children's, youth and music programs, and I hope that your church is blessed with such programs, as well! Praise God for our wonderful staff persons and lay leaders who make these ministries possible! But here's what I've been thinking: a program will never change a life. Only Jesus can do that.

In the church world, we are finding it challenging to disciple people in the way of Jesus because, despite our best efforts, the world around us can offer programs just as entertaining and exciting as any program we have to offer. Forgive me, but this is the truth. Imagine what would happen if we stopped competing...with our world and with other churches, and just focused on offering people the love and presence of Jesus. If our ministries and programs are not offering people a relationship with Jesus, then we have failed. If we are teaching good works without a living faith in our living Lord, we've missed the boat. It's so easy to get wrapped up in the busy-ness of church work! But will we, as Jesus did, go to a secluded place and just seek the face of God? In my own walk with Jesus, I am seeking to learn how to abide in Jesus rather than striving to live by the methods and values of our broken world. And I'm working to rely on my faith in Jesus, rather than the latest formula, to invite others to experience this amazing faith.

John Wesley, the founder of the Methodist movement, simply said, "Offer them Christ". Jesus said, "Make disciples of all nations, baptizing them in the name of the Father and of the Son and of the Holy Spirit, and teaching them to obey everything I have commanded you." And here's the final phrase that rings in my heart and mind: Jesus said, "And surely I am with you always, to the very end of the age." It seems to me that if Jesus is with us, that's really all we need. So, whether you do so through programs, or evangelism, through missions or simply through friendship, offer them Christ.

Renovated Church of Christ hosts evangelist

aglover@thepampanews.com

After months of renovation, the Church of Christ will host their first event at the 500 block of West Somerville with the Gospel Meeting starting at 7:00 p.m. Saturday.

During the renovation, the congregation met at the 400 block of Wells Street for several months. Congregation elder Monty Joiner said they gave the church a facelift.

"We put in a kitchen area and a fellowship hall," Joiner said. "We gave the porch area a facelift."

Joiner said he was pleased with how the renovation turned out. "It turned out nice, very nice," Joiner said.

The meeting will start with Gospel singing 7:00 p.m. Saturday. Joiner said different congregation music leaders will lead the church in singing.

"We have some good singers in our congregation," Joiner said.

Evangelist Marlon Cole from Gunter will be speaking at 10:30 a.m. and 2:30 p.m. Sunday and at 7:00 p.m. Monday through Wednesday. Joiner said they had him a few years ago and is an outstanding speaker.

"He's not going to speak on a particular topic but you want to come out and hear him," Joiner said.

Joiner said anyone can attend the event and it's free.

"People can come out and enjoy some outstanding preaching and congregational singing," Joiner said. "Hopefully people will be uplifted."

Joiner said from now on they will be meeting at the 500 block of West Somerville Street.

The Church of Christ is taught by a group of elders and a different one speaks each Sunday. Joiner said they support evangelists everywhere.

Cougars claw past Pirates with last minute touchdown

ANDREW GLOVER
aglover@thepampanews.com

The Lefors Pirates Thursday night started with a senior day celebration honoring the Fort Elliott seniors, that ran 14 minutes late. The night ended with the Pirates coming up a play short to keep their playoff hopes alive in a 73-68 loss in Briscoe.

The senior ceremony ran late because a Fort Elliott board member hadn't arrived. Senior Reece Warner was proud of how the team played despite losing.

"We tried to capitalize on what we got," Warner said. "I'm proud of every single one of those guys and they are going to have a (expletive) good season next year."

Head coach Joey Czubinski said they gave all they had and didn't have things go their way.

"There were several things that happened that didn't need to happen," Czubinski said. "(McLaughlin) made one more play than we did tonight. That's basically what it comes down to."

In the first quarter, each team scored twice. Brady Williams scored from a yard-out for Fort Elliott. Kory McLaughlin set up the touchdown with a 68-yard run. McLaughlin scored from four yards. The Pirates got on the board with sophomore quarterback Spencer Nicholson throwing touchdowns to junior Dennis Sprouse and senior Zac Williams. Senior Joey Johnson made extra point kicks on both touchdowns and the Pirates led 16-12 after one.

Just like the first both teams exchanged scores. McLaughlin threw a touchdown to Jacob McDowell and rushed for two touchdowns. McLaughlin scored his second rushing touchdown after a fumble by Colten Helfer.

Lefors scored on a four-yard run by Joey Johnson with 9:20 left in the quarter. After a pair of Fort Elliott touchdowns, the Pirates trailed 33-22 with 5:42 left in the quarter. Helfer cut the lead to five with a three-yard touchdown run. On the kickoff, senior Cody Hess recovered an onside kick and gave the Pirate offense the ball back. The Pirates took advantage, about a minute later Warner scored from seven yards and the Pirates took a 35-33 lead into halftime.

Junior Andrew Chambers said they were more into the game.

"This game we looked at them and we didn't want to lose," Chambers said. "When we lost to Miami we sat there and thought about it. This was the game that would keep our season going or end it. Once we lost to Miami it was playoffs right there."

Fort Elliott regained the lead in the third quarter with McLaughlin scoring from five yards out. Ty Ford made the extra point kick to give the Cougars a 41-35 lead. The fourth quarter would be a slugfest between the two teams as they combined for 62 points.

Johnson scored from two yards and tied the game at 41 two seconds into the final quarter. McLaughlin scored from 38 yards and gave the Cougars the lead. Helfer put Lefors back in front with a 19-yard touchdown with six minutes left. Eighteen seconds later McLaughlin scored from 49 yards and gave the Cougars 53-48 lead. Helfer scored from 18 yards and put Lefors up by one.

Unfortunately the fourth quarter would be a slugfest in a different matter. Fort Elliott's McDowell threw two punches at a Pirate and was penalized for a personal foul and ejected from the game. Czubinski said the act was classless and didn't like how it was handled on the opposing sideline.

"One of their players punches ours twice in the face," Czubinski said. "They don't make him leave the stadium. I put that on everyone else and not just the referees. The coach should have had him leave the stadium. That's terrible."

The penalty didn't slow down the Cougars as McLaughlin scored from 24 yards and regained the lead. Helfer responded with a 31-yard touchdown run and put the Pirates ahead 61-59. 16 seconds later, McLaughlin scored from 49 yards and the Cougars were back in front. The Pirates took the lead one more time when Nicholson threw his third touchdown to Williams, who scored his second. The pass was good and Lefors lead 68-65 with 1:32 left in the game.

The Cougars only needed two plays to regain the lead. McLaughlin scored on a 22-yard run and Dustin Hunt converted the extra point kick. Lefors started at their final drive at their own 22. Nicholson completed an 11-yard pass to Williams, but that would be all the Pirates gained. The sophomore quarterback threw two incompletions and completed a pass to Warner for no gain on fourth down.

Czubinski said he was proud of how his team played with class.

"These are a class group of guys," Czubinski said. "I was very proud of them, they showed a lot of class. In the face of all this adversity, they were classy."

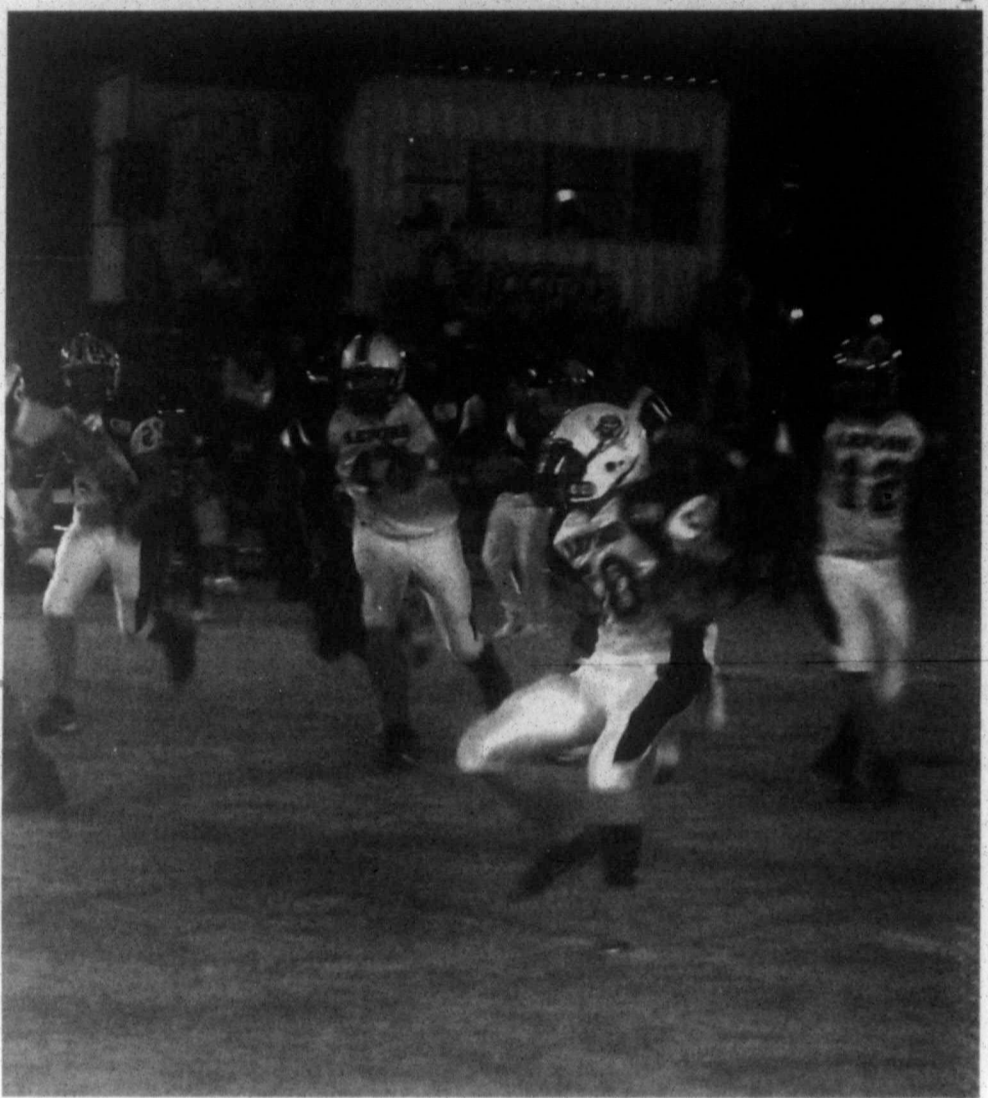

Warner said he is looking forward to next year's team.

"They got Spencer (Nicholson)," Warner said. "He should have played last year but he's getting the reps he needs. I just can't wait to watch them next year."

With the victory, the Cougars (5-4, 2-0) clinched a playoff spot and will play at Miami (7-1, 1-0) Nov. 5 for the district title. The Pirates' (4-5, 0-2) playoff streak ended at four consecutive seasons and host Darrouzett (1-5, 0-1) Nov. 5. Czubinski and Warner said they are not going about the game differently.

"We're going to practice like we always do," Czubinski said. "We're going to work hard. Hopefully we put out a better showing."

"We're going to finish strong," Warner said. "We are going to go in fired up. It's my senior year and I got five seniors with me. I got the team behind me that doesn't want that game to go down. We're going to put on a show."

Sr. LB Horst's strong leadership earns team captain

aglover@thepampanews.com

It was the first quarter of the opening game Aug. 27 against Iowa Park when senior linebacker Trent Carter went down with an injury. Senior outside linebacker Kendon Horst moved to take his spot at middle and started at middle the next five games. Horst said he it scared him when Carter went down and had to adjust to being the leader of the defense.

"(Carter) is a big leader on the defense," Horst said. "I didn't think we could push through."

Horst said he got the hang of the position after a couple of games.

"It was a lot of pressure on me but I got comfortable as the game went on," Horst said. "After a couple of games I got used to it."

Horst's teammates noticed that to as they voted him as a team captain for district.

Carter said they prepared for scenarios if one of them was to go down and Horst did well leading the defense.

"We worked on scenarios in two-a-days that if one of us went down, who we would be replacing," Carter said. "I had confidence in him and he did a good job."

Head football coach Heath Parker said Horst is an athlete that you can't help but root for.

"He was the heart and soul leader of our defense in non-district," Parker said. "He was selected by his teammates as a district captain."

Horst said he has come a long ways since being on the seventh grade B team.

"I loved the game of football," Horst said. "I tried my hardest and showed (coaches) what I had."

The senior linebacker started playing football when he was in third grade in the Optimist League. Horst said he got interested in the sport because of his brother.

"I moved here from Midland and my brother started playing," Horst said. "I got interested and wanted to be like him."

Horst said he doesn't have a favorite linebacker that he follows but likes Zach Thomas.

"I just watch the game and don't have a favorite," Horst said. "I like Zach Thomas because he's from our school and made it to the pros."

One of Horst's big plays came in his last home game when he forced and returned a fumble for a 50-yard touchdown.

Kendon Horst gets a rare carry in a Sept. 10 game at Randall. Horst played middle linebacker almost all of non-district replacing a then injured Trent Carter. The senior's play earned him a team captain spot.

PHS freshmen rush past Dalhart, gain district title

aglover@thepampanews.com

The Pampa Harvesters freshman team beat the Dalhart Golden Wolves 37-14 to win the district title with their seventh straight victory Thursday at Harvester Field.

Coach Kaleb Snelgrooves said he reminded the team that a victory would guarantee them a spot in the district playoffs.

"I said if they win this game they are district champs," Snelgrooves said. "2010 is taken care of. 11, 12 and 13 are coming up. They have set the bar pretty high. The fans have seen it and will expect this year after year."

The Harvesters used dominating defense and a running game to take the lead. Junior Walker scored on a nine-yard run, his first of three touchdowns. The Harvesters ran for 70 yards on six plays on their opening possession. Pampa held Dalhart to six yards in the first quarter. The Golden Wolves first drive ended when the snap went over their quarterback's head resulting in a 17-yard loss. Pampa led 8-0 after one.

The score remained the same through most of the second quarter. Freddy Jackson scored from 10 yards to cap off a 15-play 58-yard drive. The Golden Wolves punted and were picked off on their two second quarter possessions. The Harvesters led 16-0.

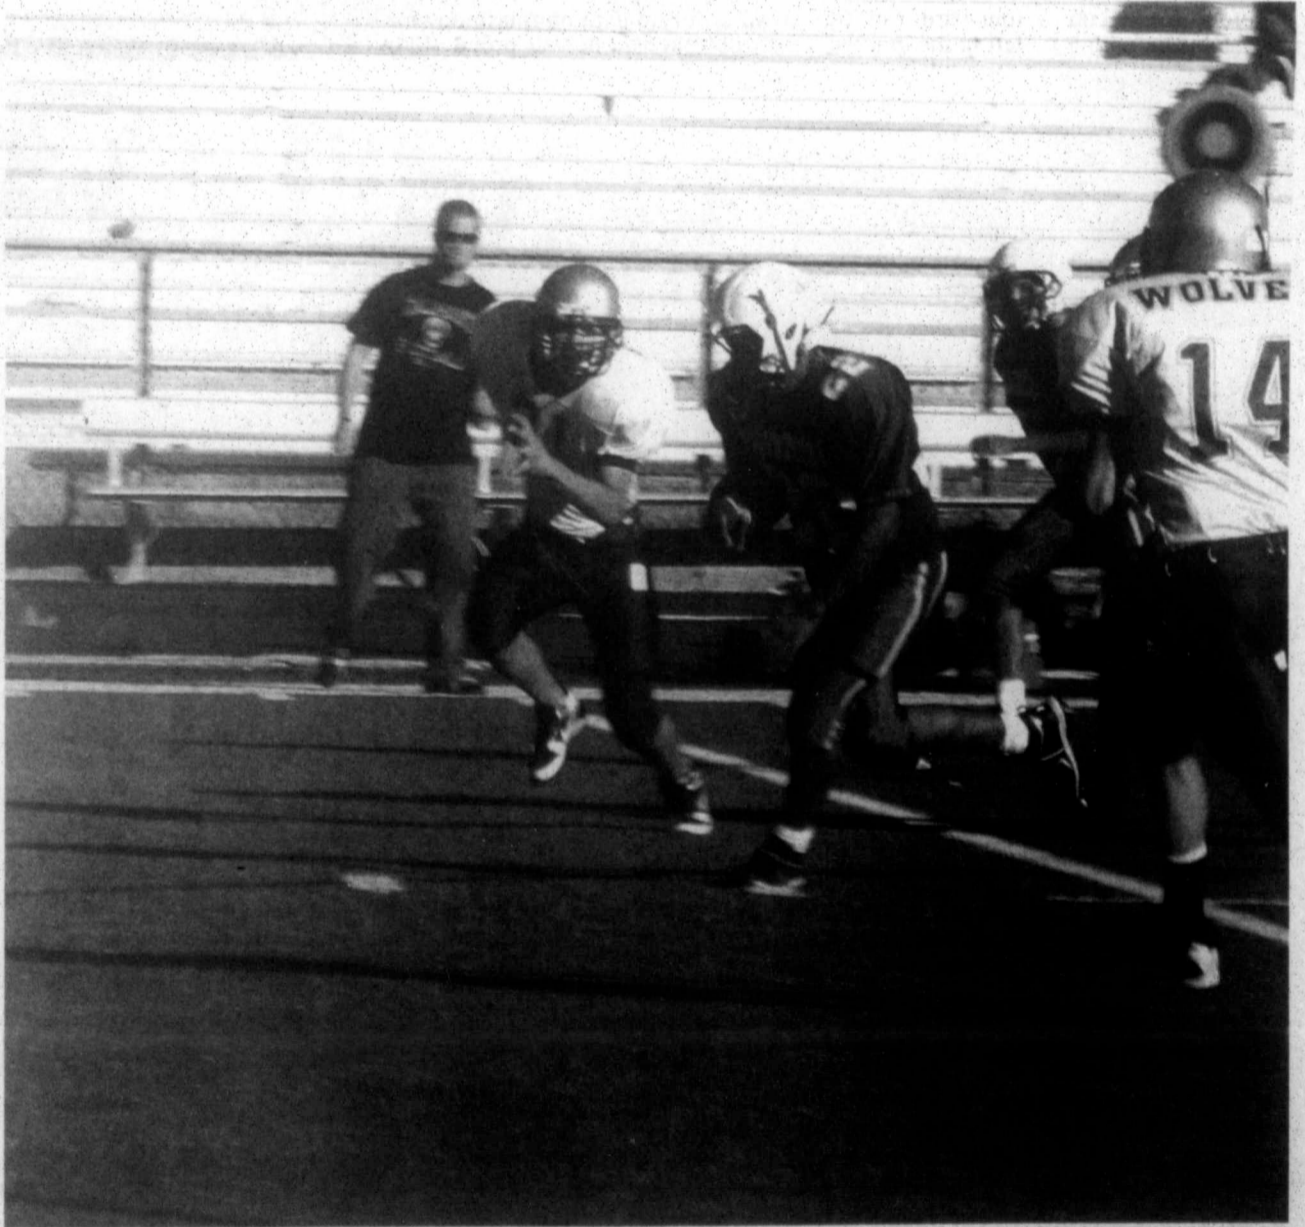

Dalhart got on the board two and a half minutes into the third quarter. Just as quickly as the Golden Wolves got back in the game, Pampa put them right out of it. Tim Smith returned the kickoff 82 yards. The Harvesters (7-3, 3-0) led 22-6 after three.

In the final quarter, Walker scored his second and third touchdowns from 77 yards and 11 yards respectively. Snelgrooves said Walker is a hard worker and steps up.

"This week we said we are going to run counter and run with him," Snelgrooves said. "He rips off three touchdowns."

Snelgrooves said he is thrilled for the team and their success.

"Losing our first three games and win seven in a row, what a treat," Snelgrooves said. "Not many people can say they can do that. These kids have worked their tail off and deserve it every bit."

Daymon Flores runs down the middle Thursday against Dalhart. Pampa won 37-14 and won the freshman District 1-3A title. The freshman ended the season on a seven-game winning streak and 7-3 record.

daily horoscope

HAPPY BIRTHDAY for Saturday, Oct. 30, 2010:

This year, you will be more involved with your image and community. Your work could flourish to unprecedented levels. Spend time by yourself indulging. You often could get depressed or sad when alone. Develop a hobby or interest. If you are single, you probably will meet someone through work. Take your time getting to know each other. If you are attached, the two of you will be seen together much more. Be aware of what you can't accomplish as a couple. LEO often doesn't hesitate to disagree with you. Careful — or it could become the War of the Worlds.

The Stars Show the Kind of Day You'll Have: 5-Dynamic; 4-Positive; 3-Average; 2-So-so; 1-Difficult

ARIES (March 21-April 19)
★★★★ The impossible becomes possible with the aid of a very caring friend or partner. Listen to your inner voice. Build your relationship without offending a very rough partner. Tonight: Make the most of the night. Someone would be happy to help you along.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20)
★★★★ You might need to consider a family member more often and understand what is motivating him or her. Sometimes you are more critical of yourself than anyone else. Confusion surrounds a partnership. Tonight: Entertain from your place.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20)
★★★★ Touch base with others. How can you get what you want if you don't put this desire out into the universe? You could be developing a new hobby or interest. Creativity comes from spending time with a kid or becoming more like one yourself. Tonight: Add life and controversy to the moment.

CANCER (June 21-July 22)
★★★★ Be aware of what you are spending and the choices you are making. Sometimes you go overboard, and today could be a classic example. A family member could be much more demanding than he or she realizes. Tonight: Make it your treat.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22)
★★★★ You know, just know, when you are on top of your game. Speak your mind and understand what is going on. Confusion surrounds a family member or a message. Confirm plans before heading out the door. Tonight: Whatever knocks your socks off.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22)
★★ You could be making mountains out of molehills. Be more easygoing than in the past. Expenses could get out of whack out of the blue. Listen to your sixth sense. Let your imagination play a significant role in making plans and jazzing up an interaction. Tonight: Vanish without letting everyone know what your plans are.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 22)
★★★★ Focus on what is going on with your friends. You simply might have more choices than you would like. Invitations come in left and right. Stop being so hard on yourself and others. Tonight: Wherever you are, the action is.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23-Nov. 21)
★★★★ Understand that others demand an awful lot from you. You could be overwhelmed. Use your instincts with someone you look up to or need to pay attention to. Tonight: Out late. You cannot hide your plans all the time!

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21)
★★★★ Keep reaching out for someone at a distance. Some of you simply might decide to take off. Listen to feedback that heads in your direction. A friend could be nothing less than touchy. Tonight: Opt for something different.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19)
★★★★ Deal with a partner on a one-on-one level. Relate on a one-on-one level with a friend or loved one. You discover how very serious a boss or older relative can be. Don't allow this person's mood to get to you. Tonight: Get together with a favorite person.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18)
★★★★ Listen to feedback from others. You could be forced into a position where you must respond to someone very difficult. Worry less about what is going on. Take off at the last minute if you feel like it. Tonight: Sort through suggestions.

PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20)
★★★★ Take the next few days to rest up. Others seek you out, but it suits you to distance yourself from others and take your time thinking through an issue. Confusion surrounds a partner and plans. Stay centered. Tonight: Relax — whatever you choose.
