Lewis: County's early voting numbers steady

DAVID BOWSER
dbowser@thepampanews.com

As of 1:30 p.m. Friday, Gray County Election Administrator Linda Lewis said almost 2,000 people had voted early in the November general election.

She said 1,978 voters, 1,803 in person and 175 by mail, had cast their ballots in early voting for next Tuesday's general election ended its 10-day run.

Lewis said that she expected over 2,000 voters to have cast their votes by the time early voting closed Friday afternoon.

She said that typically 10 percent of the population votes in off year elections.

While that number may vary in other parts of the country, Lewis said that in Gray County, it has stayed fairly steady over the years.

The one exception, she said, was when there were only amendments on the ballot. Then there is a noticeable drop in voting turnout.

Earlier this fall, Lewis said, there was a rumor of a number of propositions on the fall ballot, but the Texas Secretary of State finally issued a statement saying there were no propositions on this fall's ballot.

Lewis said that Gray County voters should be commended on their diligence in making sure that their voices were heard.

She said that she even had an 80-year-old couple, who had never voted before, register 30 days ago and show up to vote.

"It was their first time to vote," Lewis said.

The man told her he had been a truck driver

PD: A safety reminder for kids, parents

DAVID BOWSER
dbowser@thepampanews.com

It may be an old message, but it's one that Crime Prevention Officer Stormy McCullar is determined to impress this Halloween season.

"Kids, it's better safe to be than sorry," said McCullar, herself a mother of three.

"You can never be too safe during Halloween. Have fun, but be safe, too."

McCullar issued some last minute advice for kids who will be actively trick-or-treating this weekend.

"Trick-or-treat during the daylight hours," McCullar advised. "That's the best thing."

She reiterated that if trick-or-treaters decide to go after dark, they should take a flashlight.

"Some of the costumes are just black," McCullar said. "They should wear something else."

Trick or Treaters can be difficult for motorists to see at night. She suggested wearing reflective or brightly colored clothing so motorists can see them.

McCullar said parents should accompany young children.

Renowned illustrator Wimmer to visit schools

DAVID BOWSER
dbowser@thepampanews.com

An Okie from Muskogee will be in town next week to talk with elementary students about art.

Illustrator Mike Wimmer, now of Oklahoma City, has worked for such corporations as American Airlines, Procter and Gamble, Disney, Kimberly Clark, Southwestern Bell and AT&T, but he said his greatest artist pleasure is creating images for children's book and fine art prints.

"They allow me to have the final say so in the creative process," Wimmer said. "It is still veyr much like being that little boy lying on the floor with an empty drawing pad and a full box of crayons."

Wimmer will be at Wilson Elementary School from 8:30 a.m. to 10:30 a.m., Monday; Lamar Elementary School from 1:30 p.m. to 3:15 p.m. on Monday; Austin Elementary School from 8:30 a.m. to 10:30, Tuesday; Travis from 1 p.m. to 2:40 p.m., Tuesday.

Judy Hansen with the Pampa Independent School District said she regularly researches illustrators and authors and thought Wimmer would make an interesting speaker for the students.

Buster Ray (Buck) Barrow, 70

SKELLYTOWN—Buster Ray (Buck) Barrow, 70, died October 29, 2010, in Skellytown.

The family will be holding a private memorial service for immediate and extended family on Monday, followed by an open reception for all who wish to pay respects from 4-6 p.m., at the First Baptist Church fellowship hall in Skellytown. Cremation and arrangements are under the direction of Carmichael-Whatley Funeral Directors of Pampa. Mr. Barrow was born November 27, 1939, in Petrolia, to Finis Leon and Goffa Lee Huddleston Barrow. He grew up in Stinnett and also attended Cal Farley's Boy's Ranch. Buck enjoyed cowboying and ranch work a large portion of his life before joining the oil and gas industry, retiring after 18 years with Texaco in 1998. He loved having his family around him, was an avid reader and greatly enjoyed western history and the western lifestyle. Buck married Barbara Jean Price on June 6, 1959, in Clayton, N.M. Together they raised six boys in and around Skellytown. He was loved dearly by friends and family alike and will be sorely missed.

Survivors include his wife, Barbara Barrow of the home; six sons, Kelly Barrow and wife Terri of Borger, Kevin Barrow, Kane Barrow, Rainey Barrow and wife Sherry, and Sam Barrow, all of Skellytown, and Joe Barrow and wife Tricia of Odessa; 11 grandchildren and four great-grandchildren. He was preceded in death by his parents.

Ray "Papa" Shults, 85

Ray "Papa" Shults, 85, died October 28, 2010, in Pampa.

Services will be at 2 p.m. Saturday, October 30, 2010, at Hobart Baptist Church, with Rev. Mike Watson, pastor, and David McCoy, son-in-law, officiating.

Burial will be at Fairview Cemetery under the direction of Carmichael-Whatley Funeral Directors.

Mr. Shults was born May 26, 1925, in Vernon. He moved to Sundown at the age of 4, where he attended Sundown schools. He was a veteran of the U. S. Army, serving during World War II. He married Wilma Lee on December 21, 1946, in Wellington. He lived in Wellington where he attended auto body school. He then lived in Childress for a time, and moved to Pampa in 1951. Ray worked in the body shops of Tom Rose Motors, Harold Barrett Ford, Culbertson-Stowers Chevrolet and Ford's Body Shop. He started Ray's Body Shop in 1969, retiring in 1994. He loved trap shooting, bowling, the Houston Astros, and especially team roping. He was a member of the Team Roping Association and the U. S. Team Roping Association. Ray was a loving husband and father, and especially loved spending time with his grandchildren and great-grandchildren.

Shults

Survivors include his wife, Wilma Shults of the home; a daughter, Lee Ann Conner of Pampa; a son, Wendell Ray Shults and wife Charla of Pampa; five granddaughters, Amy Acosta of Mustang, Okla., Caryn Parker, Robyn McLaughlin, Madi Shults and Jana Shults, all of Pampa; a grandson, Jerrod Drinnon of Lubbock; three great-grandchildren, Chase McLaughlin and Carter McLaughlin, both of Pampa, and Taylor Elaine Acosta of Mustang, Okla.; son-in-law, David McCoy of Childress; and a very special friend, Ralph Day of Pampa. Ray was preceded in death by a son, Willie Ray Shults, Jr., on January 7, 1960; and a daughter, Janice McCoy on August 18, 2008. He was preceded in death by two brothers and three sisters.

The family will be at 1046 S. Farley in Pampa. Memorials may be made to Hobart Baptist Church, 1100 W. Crawford, Pampa, TX 79065.

The Federal Bureau of Investigation's Uniform Crime reports a motor vehicle is stolen in the United States every 33 seconds, with Texas being the second-leading state for auto thefts. The Pampa Police Department would like to inform you about a new program called the H.E.A.T. program: Help End Auto Theft. How the program works is, if your vehicle is being driven between 1 a.m. and 5 a.m. in Texas, an officer may pull the vehicle over without any probable cause. This will help you if the vehicle that is being driven is stolen between the hours of 1 a.m. and 5 a.m.. The program also allows Border Patrol to pull the vehicle over at the border between the same hours. If you would like more information about this program please call the Pampa Police Department and ask to speak with Officer Stormy McCullar. Thank you,

AFTERNOONRUSH Thousands drawn to D.C. for 'Sanity' rally

US rig count increases by 3

HOUSTON (AP) — The number of rigs actively exploring for oil and natural gas in the U.S. increased by 3 this week to 1,672.

Houston-based Baker Hughes Inc. said Friday that 967 rigs were exploring for natural gas and 696 for oil. Nine were listed as miscellaneous. A year ago this week, the rig count stood at 1,069.

Of the major oil- and gas-producing states, Texas gained five rigs, Alaska gained two and California and Louisiana each gained one. Arkansas, New Mexico, Oklahoma and Wyoming each lost one, while Colorado lost two rigs. North Dakota, Pennsylvania and West Virginia remained unchanged.

The rig count tally peaked at 4,530 in 1981, during the height of the oil boom. The industry posted a record low of 488 in 1999.

Contract offers protection

Analysts say Halliburton Co. should be protected from most damages related to the Gulf spill under its contract with BP.

The analysts said Friday Halliburton's contract has indemnity clauses from liability for spill damages. It doesn't offer protection if gross negligence is determined.

Halliburton acknowledges it skipped a critical test on the final formula of a cement mixture used to seal BP's well before it ruptured.

The cementing process is part of an investigation into the April 20 well explosion that killed 11 workers and caused an environmental disaster.

Shares of Halliburton rose 18 cents to close at $31.86 after plunging 8 percent a day earlier.

Super Bowl ads sell out early

NEW YORK (AP) — Super Bowl television commercials already are a sellout this year.

Fox Sports says it has sold out all of the commercial airtime available for Super Bowl XLV. The game takes place on Feb. 6 in Arlington, Texas.

This is months earlier than commercial time sold out last year.

Fox spokesman Lou D'Ermilio says the improving economy spurred sales and some companies are returning after sitting out in recent years.

PepsiCo is putting its Pepsi brand back into the game after sitting out last year. Automaker General Motors also returns after sitting out the last two years.

Fox declined to say how much ads cost. Last year's ads ranged from $2.5 million to $3 million per 30-second slot.

The news was first reported by trade publication Broadcasting & Cable.

Texas teen accused in death

FORT COLLINS, Colo. (AP) — A teen accused of kicking a rock off a cliff that ended up killing a girl in Colorado has been identified.

The Coloradoan reported Friday that newly released court records show that he's 16-year-old Freddie Henderson Bailey III of Katy, Texas.

Bailey has been charged with manslaughter as a juvenile and prosecutors had refused to release his name.

The Coloradoan challenged that and on Thursday Chief Larimer District Court Judge Stephen Schapanski agreed that state law requires that the name of juveniles accused of felonies be released.

Seventeen-year-old Audra Brownell of Sparta, Mich. died in June after being hit by the rock. The coroner said it was an accidental death.

The newspaper said a message left at Bailey's home wasn't returned.

Higher ed funding could change

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) — The Texas Higher Education Coordinating Board has endorsed a revised method of funding public universities and community colleges in a money-saving move.

Board members, during a meeting Thursday in Austin, also approved plans for putting a greater emphasis on merit for certain financial aid.

The cost-saving proposals go to Gov. Rick Perry and the 2011 Legislature.

A preliminary count found statewide enrollment this fall is up 7.2 percent from a year ago, to 1.5 million students. The figures include all postsecondary institutions except private, for-profit colleges, according to the board.

The recommendations on cost-cutting were developed for the coordinating board by a 20-member advisory panel of higher education leaders and business executives, the Austin American-Statesman reported.

The board wants 10 percent of the base funding for universities to be indexed to so-called "student outcomes," such as graduation rates, total degrees awarded, degrees awarded to students from low-income families or those otherwise deemed at-risk, plus degrees in science, technology, engineering and math.

About 10 percent of community college funding would be on the basis of degrees awarded, certificates completed, college-level math course completions and other performance measures, according to the proposal.

Clinton's comments criticized

WASHINGTON (AP) — More senators are criticizing Secretary of State Hillary Rodham Clinton for remarks she made earlier this month that suggest support for a proposed $7 billion pipeline to carry Canadian oil to Gulf Coast refineries.

A group of 11 mostly Democratic senators sent a letter to Clinton Friday urging her to make sure the State Department conducts a thorough review of TransCanada's Keystone XL proposal before deciding whether to grant it a permit.

None of the senators who signed onto the latest letter represents states along the pipeline's path, which would cross Montana, South Dakota, Nebraska, Kansas, Oklahoma and Texas.

Several other senators criticized Clinton last week after her Oct. 15 remarks were publicized.

WASHINGTON (AP) — A "sanity" rally blending laughs and political activism drew thousands to the National Mall on Saturday, with comedians Jon Stewart and Stephen Colbert casting themselves as the unlikely maestros of moderation and civility in polarized times.

Organizers insisted the Rally to Restore Sanity and/or Fear, just days before the congressional elections Tuesday, wasn't about politics. Still, supporters and left-leaning advocacy groups hoped it would rekindle some of the voter enthusiasm for Democrats seen in 2008, particularly among young adults.

Festive crowds swarmed on to the mall hours in advance, stickers and signs reflecting the call for people to chill out. "Vote sanity," stickers said. Slogans urged "relax."

But also: "Righties, don't stomp on my head," a reference to a Republican rally in Kentucky at which a liberal activist was pulled to the ground and stepped on.

Stewart, host of Comedy Central's "Daily Show," is popular especially with Democrats and independents, a Pew Research Center poll found. Colbert of "The Colbert Report" poses as an ultraconservative, and the stage Saturday was stacked with entertainers associated with Democratic causes or President Barack Obama's 2008 campaign.

Even so, Stewart said the day was about toning down anger and partisan division. "Shouting is annoying, counterproductive and terrible for your throat," he said on his website.

The list of entertainers included musicians Sheryl Crow and The Roots. Actor Sam Waterston and Don Novello, who years ago played Father Guido Sarducci on "Saturday Night Live," were also expected to appear.

The rally generated extensive buzz on the Internet, with more than 226,000 people on a Facebook page created for the event saying they would attend. The liberal Huffington Post was sending a caravan of 10,000 people on 200 buses from New York, while Oprah Winfrey expressed her support by providing travel expenses to a "Daily Show" studio audience of about 200 members so that they could attend.

Comedy Central's park permit puts the crowd estimate at 60,000. There were plans for satellite rallies in cities including Los Angeles, Chicago, Denver and Honolulu.

Stewart and Colbert encouraged attendees to bring signs with slogans such as "Real patriots can handle a difference in opinion," "It could be worse but let's not make it that way," and "Death to Nobody."

Organizing for America, Obama's political operation based at Democratic National Committee headquarters, was setting up a "Phone Bank for Sanity" after the rally to urge people to vote on Tuesday.

Groups planning to enlist supporters at the event include Naral Pro-Choice America; D.C. Vote, which aims to give D.C. a voting representative in the House; and backers of California's Proposition 19 to legalize marijuana.

"The vitriol and hatred toward our president and Democrats, it has become so extreme that it kind of scares me," said Margaret Espailat, 49, of Orlando, Fla., who's hoping the rally will improve the political tone and galvanize Democrats. She planned to attend with her three sons who are in college and her husband, an Army colonel.

Saturday's event mirrors the "Restoring Honor" rally held in August by Glenn Beck, the Fox News commentator popular among conservatives and tea party supporters. Beck, too, played down his event as a political rally; Stewart has described his simply as an alternative format for the mock-news humor seen by millions of Comedy Central viewers each night on "The Daily Show" and "The Colbert Report."

On his radio show this week, conservative commentator Rush Limbaugh mocked the Saturday event. He says it will give the tea party and other conservatives a chance to build voter turnout for Tuesday while Democrats go to Washington to "smoke some doobies" and listen to a "couple of half-baked comedians."

The rally is promoting charitable causes. Stewart is asking attendees to help restore the National Mall, which has a $400 million backlog of deferred maintenance. Colbert is asking people to contribute to Donors Choose, which raises money for school supplies; proceeds from sales of rally merchandise also will go to the Yellow Ribbon Fund to help injured soldiers.

Plane with Yemeni cargo searched in NY

NEW YORK (AP) — A commercial passenger jet carrying cargo from Yemen landed in New York under military fighter jet escort and its cargo was searched Friday, as parcels in transit across the globe were scrutinized after authorities overseas found two explosive packages from Yemen bound for Chicago.

No explosives were found aboard Emirates Airlines Flight 201 after a search, FBI spokesman Richard Kolko said. He said the plane flew in to John F. Kennedy Airport under escort as a precaution.

President Barack Obama called the coordinated attacks a "credible terrorist threat." Packages were found aboard cargo planes in Dubai and England and U.S. officials said they were increasingly confident that al-Qaida's Yemen branch was responsible.

The Emirates Airlines plane, a Boeing 777, landed shortly after 3:30 p.m. Passengers walked off the jet on two covered stairways and onto the tarmac, dragging their luggage behind them. Several police cars surrounded the airliner.

The flight crew didn't mention any issue with cargo, passengers said. They were told there was a heightened security concern and that their bags would be searched but weren't told why. They also didn't know about the interest in their aircraft until they saw it on TV screens in the airport and glimpsed the mob of waiting reporters.

"We saw a lot of police and they instructed us that we would be getting on a bus. And that all our luggage would again be screened," said Nick Chan, 32, who was returning to Manhattan from a business trip.

"They should go up to the door with them," she said, "and not just follow along."

McCullar said it can be fun for the parents.

"The parents can dress up," she said.

The officer said Trick or Treaters should go only to houses of people they know and not stop at houses that don't have a porch light on.

"Never take candy from someone you do not know," McCullar said.

She said parents should inspect the candy their children get, and the parents should notify police of any suspicious treats.

McCullar also said Trick or Treaters should travel in groups and never go into houses.

Groups should stay on the sidewalks and out of the streets, she said.

McCullar also advised against wearing masks that block vision and costumes that might cause a Trick or Treater to trip.

Today in History

Today is Saturday, Oct. 30, the 303rd day of 2010. There are 62 days left in the year.

Today's Highlight in History:
On Oct. 30, 1938, the radio play "The War of the Worlds," starring Orson Welles, aired on CBS. (The live drama, which employed fake breaking news reports, panicked some listeners who thought the portrayal of a Martian invasion was real.)

On this date:
In 1893, the U.S. Senate gave final congressional approval to repealing the Sherman Silver Purchase Act of 1890.

In 1944, the Martha Graham ballet "Appalachian Spring," with music by Aaron Copland, premiered at the Library of Congress in Washington, D.C., with Graham in a leading role.

In 1961, the Soviet Union tested a hydrogen bomb, the "Tsar Bomba," with a force estimated at about 50 megatons. The Soviet Party Congress unanimously approved a resolution ordering the removal of Josef Stalin's body from Lenin's tomb.

In 1974, Muhammad Ali knocked out George Foreman in the eighth round of a 15-round bout in Kinshasa, Zaire, known as the "Rumble in the Jungle" to regain his world heavyweight title.

In 1984, police in Poland found the body of kidnapped pro-Solidarity priest Father Jerzy Popieluszko, whose death was blamed on security officers.

In 1985, schoolteacher-astronaut Christa McAuliffe witnessed the launch of the space shuttle Challenger, the same craft that carried her and six other crew members to their deaths in Jan. 1986.

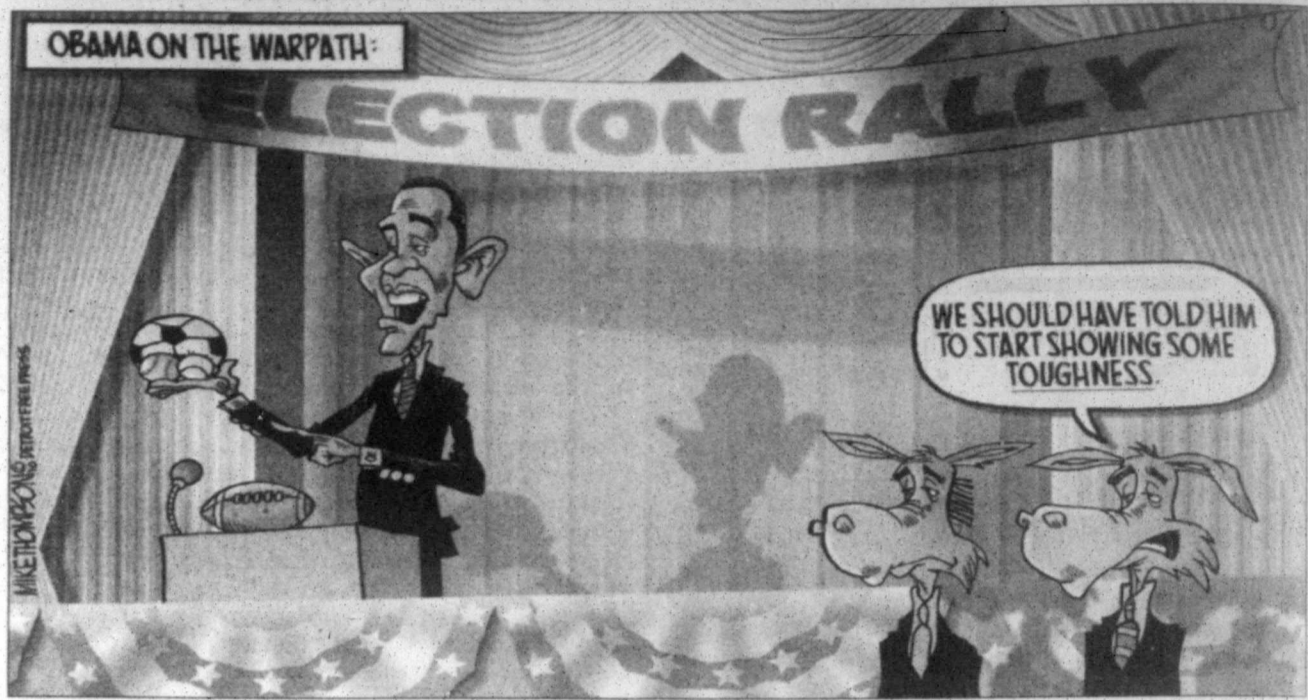

Ten years ago: Comedian, television host, author and composer Steve Allen died in Encino, Calif. at age 78.

Five years ago: The body of Rosa Parks arrived at the U.S. Capitol, where the civil rights pioneer became the first woman to lie in honor in the Rotunda; President George W. Bush and congressional leaders prepared to lay wreaths by her casket.

One year ago: A Coast Guard C-130 plane and a Marine Cobra helicopter collided off the Southern California coast, killing seven Coast Guard members and two Marines.

Today's Birthdays: Actor Dick Gautier is 73. Movie director Claude Lelouch is 73. Rock singer Grace Slick is 71. Songwriter Eddie Holland is 71. Actor Ed Lauter is 70. Rhythm-and-blues singer Otis Williams (The Temptations) is 69. Actor Henry Winkler is 65. Rock musician Chris Slade (Asia) is 64. Country/rock musician Timothy B. Schmit (The Eagles) is 63. Actor Leon Rippey is 61. Actor Harry Hamlin is 59. Actor Charles Martin Smith is 57. Country singer T. Graham Brown is 56. Actor Kevin Pollak is 53. Actor Michael Beach is 47. Rock singer-musician Gavin Rossdale (Bush) is 43. Actor Jack Plotnick is 42. Comedian Ben Bailey is 40. Actress Nia Long is 40. Actor Gael Garcia Bernal is 32. Actor Matthew Morrison is 32. Actor Shaun Sipos (SEEs) is 29. Actor Tequan Richmond ("Everybody Hates Chris") is 18.

Every little bit helps, especially with MDA

October's a good month. There's, of course, Halloween, which is always fun. The Northerner in me is enjoying the cooler breezes. And we sure can't forget World Series baseball, especially this year (sorry, everybody, but I'm rooting for the Giants).

It's a good month for causes, too. We've all seen the city peppered with pink for weeks now, and though it's not my color, it's still refreshing to see. The first half of October is also the last half of Hispanic Heritage Month, which should never be overlooked, especially in a community such as ours. And not too many people know that October is National Arts and Humanities Month — I'm a writer, so I try to push it when I can.

There was, though, one particular benefit that caught my fancy this month. Thursday's Muscular Dystrophy Association Lock-Up wasn't any more news-making than anything else on face value — it was one-day event, and most of the "jailbirds" were out in an hour or so.

It's the beneficiaries of that hour or so that make the whole thing so big.

Part of the money raised through the Lock-Up, you see, goes towards sending children afflicted with MD and other motor neuron diseases to MDA camps. Daily life can be difficult for these kids, many of whom are confined to wheelchairs due to muscle loss. But the camps are weeklong getaways for them, with accommodations catered to their special needs and activities tailored to underplay their disabilities.

These camps are unique opportunity for these kids; there, they can socialize, relate and interact with each other in ways that aren't often possible in their everyday lives. It's a chance to play, relax and let loose in ways that, if even just for a week, broadens their independence to horizons defined by their imaginations, not their wheelchairs.

Shortly before he was "arrested" for the MDA Lock-Up on Thursday, Chamber of Commerce President Pat Montoya stopped by the news office to show me a letter. It was from the mother of a seven-year-old girl named Elvira who is suffering from spinal muscular atrophy.

Elvira, the letter said, had earlier this year contracted pneumonia, a common ailment that could have been fatal due to Elvira's condition.

"Her health was so bad in January that I thought I was going to lose her," wrote Elvira's mother. "Luckily she made it. After two long months of fighting the pneumonia, she beat it."

"All Elvira could think about was going to MDA camp," the letter continued. "She knew that if she was still sick she wouldn't be able to attend camp."

"She attended MDA camp for the first time last year and loved it. Today, my daughter is counting down the days and is very excited... (Your) donations are what put a smile on her face every year when she knows it's time to go to camp."

The whole thing reminded me of a kid I met when in Indiana two years ago, one of the first stories I ever covered as a reporter. His name was Glen Brant Jr., a 13-year-old who was in a motorized wheelchair due to Duchenne's muscular dystrophy.

Of the nine known types of MD, Duchenne's is the most prevalent. It was a disease that robbed Glen of the use of his legs early in his life and one that will, in all likelihood, take him from this world many years before it should.

Not that you'd have been able to tell by talking to Glen himself. An affable young man with a wide, toothy smile, he's the kind of kid you could talk to forever.

He likes baseball. He likes superheroes. His favorites are Superman and Wolverine. He has a little brother who can be annoying sometimes, he told me, but he loves him anyway.

I met Glen and his family at a Lock-Up event similar to Thursday's, with the money going in part to finance Glen's week at MDA camp that year.

I remember asking Glen if he was looking forward to the camp. He just nodded yes and grinned.

"It's bigger than the Super Bowl for him, even," said his dad, Glen Sr.

There's a different theme to each camp, Glen explained, with the cabins named after that year's theme. The camp before, the theme was "Superheroes," which of course made Glen's year.

"My cabin was Superman," he told me, that big, toothy smile washing back across his face.

I sat with the Brants for over an hour that day, listening to stories from camps past: Zip lines and squirt gun fights, Harley rides and temporary tattoos. Glen told me about the day they let a pig loose inside one of the girls' cabins, almost laughing himself out of his chair.

It was an eye-opening day, for sure, but I think the thing that I'll remember most about it was what Glen Sr. said to me just as I was about to leave.

I asked him if there was anything he'd like to say to the community that helped raise the money to send Glen to camp. He looked pensively at me for a second before giving his reply.

"Thank you," he said, half-stammering his words as he held back tears. "Just... thank you. I'm speechless. Seeing people do this, it's something that words can't describe."

"It just really brings back your faith in humanity to know that everybody is so willing to help."

I shook his hand and turned to leave, and even now, I still remember the gratitude in that father's eyes. I've lost touch with the Brants now, unfortunately, but every so often I go back to that conversation, like every time I drive by folks at an intersection with a boot or a hat. I think, in some small, maybe stupid way, it's one of the reasons I always keep change in my car.

So to everyone who participated in Thursday's Lock-Up, here's to you. It's often a struggle for nonprofits like the MDA to continue to raise funds in such a volatile economic time, but its your generosity that can truly make a lifetime for children like Elvira and Glen.

And as Ashley McGee of the Muscular Dystrophy Association told me on Thursday, there are plenty of opportunities to contribute to the MDA throughout the year.

"Whether it's the Lock-Up or Fill The Boot program or the Shamrocks, Pampa has always been a good place for us," McGee said. "We have benefits all year round. Even if it's just a dollar, every dollar goes a long way."

For helping kids like those feel like Superman for a week — yessir, I'd have to agree that's well worth the extra dollar.

Sunday in History

Sunday is Oct. 31, the 304th day of 2010. There are 61 days left in the year. This is Halloween.

Today's Highlight in History:

On Oct. 31, 1517, Martin Luther posted the 95 Theses on the door of the Wittenberg Palace church, marking the start of the Protestant Reformation in Germany.

On this date:

In 1864, Nevada became the 36th state.

In 1941, the Navy destroyer USS Reuben James was torpedoed by a German U-boat off Iceland with the loss of some 100 lives, even though the United States had not yet entered World War II.

In 1967, Nguyen Van Thieu took the oath of office as the first president of South Vietnam's second republic.

In 1968, President Lyndon B. Johnson ordered a halt to all U.S. bombing of North Vietnam, saying he hoped for fruitful peace negotiations.

In 1984, Indian Prime Minister Indira Gandhi was assassinated by two Sikh security guards.

In 1999, EgyptAir Flight 990, bound from New York to Cairo, crashed off the Massachusetts coast, killing all 217 people aboard.

Ten years ago: A Los Angeles-bound Singapore Airlines jumbo jet sped down the wrong runway in Taipei, Taiwan, slamming into construction equipment and bursting into flames, killing 83 people.

Five years ago: President George W. Bush nominated Judge Samuel Alito to the Supreme Court. Civil rights icon Rosa Parks was honored during a memorial service in Washington, D.C.

One year ago: The New York Yankees won Game 3 of the World Series, defeating the Philadelphia Phillies 8-5 to give New York a 2-1 Series lead.

Today's Birthdays: Former Cambodian King Norodom Sihanouk is 88. Actress Lee Grant is 83. Movie critic Andrew Sarris is 82. Former astronaut Michael Collins is 80. Hail, heavy rains hammer South plains COLLEGE STATION — Hail and heavy rains struck some South Plains cotton on Oct. 22, but it's too early to get a handle on the extent of the damage, said a Texas AgriLife Extension Service expert.

"The bottom line is that we had quite a bit of rain in some places, perhaps 4 inches or greater depending upon where you go," said Dr. Randy Boman, AgriLife Extension cotton agronomist based in Lubbock.

There were also heavy hail storms mixed with rain, he said.

Boman said the hardest hit areas started near Plains and followed State Highway 380 to Brownfield, and stretching as far south as the small town of Loop, a strip about 50 miles long and 15-20 miles wide.

The hail followed this path as well, but "skipped out," according to reports he had heard, Boman said.

That doesn't mean all cotton fields in the band of storms were damaged, Boman said. First, the hail wasn't constant throughout that strip, and second, quite a bit of cotton had already been harvested in those areas, about 15-20 percent.

"It was bad, of course, if you were under it, and had cotton still out," he said. "A lot of fields were completely stripped by the hail. Other fields still had leaves because they hadn't had harvest aids applied, and those might not have been as badly damaged."

The rest of the South Plains received from 1 inch to 3 inches but no hail, as did the Rolling Plains area, according to regional reports.

AgriLife Extension district reporters

compiled the following summaries:

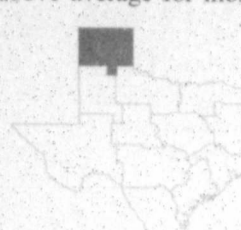

PANHANDLE: Temperatures were near to above average for most of the week.

THUNDERSTORMS brought from 0.25 inch to 2.5 inches of rain with few isolated reports of hail. One hailstorm in Collingsworth County severely damaged cotton crops. Soil moisture varied very short to surplus with most reporting short to adequate. The corn and sorghum harvests were wrapping up, while rain halted the cotton harvest. Winter wheat was suffering from the lack of moisture, but the rains should help. Rangeland was in fair to good condition. Cattle were in good condition.

ROLLING PLAINS: Severe storms swept across the region, but damages were minimal. Rainfall totals ranged from 1.5 inches to 3 inches. Producers where happy they did not receive the hail that the Panhandle did. Although cotton farmers weren't too pleased with the moisture, it was expected to help wheat growers whose crops stalled out. The moisture also helped alleviate the danger of wildfires. Armyworms continued to be a problem in Baylor County, especially in newly emerged wheat. Producers were spraying young wheat stands, hoping to give them a chance to outgrow the worms. Many producers were hoping for a hard frost to kill armyworms. Livestock were in good condition, and producers expected the recent rains to encourage enough forage growth to maintain livestock sustained through the fall.

SOUTH PLAINS: Thunderstorms brought 1 inch to 4 inches of rain along with some hail. Soil moisture was short to adequate. The corn harvest was mostly completed. The rain halted cotton harvesting, and significant losses were expected in fields that were open and ready to harvest. Though the rains did not come at a good time for cotton producers, they were timely for small grain growers. Also, the extra moisture was expected to boost rangeland forages and cool-season grasses. Winter wheat planting was ongoing. Livestock were mostly in good condition with producers providing light supplemental feed.

White trying to drum up faithful in Democrat strongholds

JAY ROOT
Associated Press

SAN ANTONIO, Texas (AP) — Republican Gov. Rick Perry and his Democratic challenger, Bill White, marked the last day of early voting Friday with swings through their party strongholds with just four days left before Election Day.

A cadre of popular Democratic local elected officials joined White for a boisterous rally at Don Pedro Mexican Restaurant in deep south San Antonio, where White told the crowd not to worry about polls showing him trailing Perry by as many as 12 percentage points.

"The results of this election have not been written. They will be written based on what Texans do in the next four days," he told the crowd.

White, the former Houston mayor, reminded supporters that he grew up in San Antonio, that his parents were teachers and that his San Antonio relatives worked at a local Air Force base and in the construction business.

Rodolfo Perez, 73, a retired electronics worker, didn't have to be convinced to vote for White. He'd already cast his vote for White and all other Democrats on the ballot.

"First day," Perez said. "Straight ticket."

He said his family members are worried about rising college tuition and think that White will help curb the increase.

"The newspaper is saying that he's behind, but I doubt it because I've been talking to a lot of people," Perez said, adding that he knows some Republicans who are voting for White.

Perry, meanwhile, stumped in his home turf of West Texas, confidently urging supporters to drive up turnout so they can send a message to the target of his populist ire: President Barack Obama and the Democrats in Washington.

At Roasters Coffee & Tea Company in Amarillo, Perry never mentioned his opponent or that he even had one.

"Are we gonna keep Texas on the track its been on?" Perry said. "Or are we gonna make the decision to go more in the Obama direction?" Predictable boos and shouts of "No!" rose from the crowd.

Afterward, Perry told reporters he would let White talk about White.

"I'll let him do that. I'm all about me and Texas," he said.

Perry supporter Trey Russell, 59, was wearing a "Texas Secede" T-shirt at the Amarillo event. He said Perry was one of the few U.S. governors who are "standing up to Obama."

"You've got to get radical with radicals," Russell said. "We don't need the federal government. They need us."

During his speech, Perry repeatedly referred to Obama, saying he was tired of the White House "telling us how to run our state." He also urged his supporters to call on their friends and relatives in neighboring states to go vote for Republican candidates.

Later, at an event in Lubbock, supporters were raising money off Perry's pro-gun swagger. Those buying $20 raffle tickets, benefiting the local GOP, had a chance to win payment for two concealed handgun licenses and two "coyote special" handguns.

Gunmaker Ruger issued the special edition .380 caliber handgun a few months ago. It was the same model Perry used to shoot a coyote while jogging earlier this year.

A poll released Friday for major Texas newspapers showed Perry, who's seeking a third full term, leading White among likely voters, 49 percent to 37 percent. Green Party candidate Deb Shafto has 3 percent and Libertarian Kathie Glass has 2 percent in the poll. The rest were undecided or declined to answer.

The poll was done for The Dallas Morning News, the Houston Chronicle, the San Antonio Express-News, the Austin American-Statesman and the Fort Worth Star-Telegram. It was conducted by Blum & Weprin Associates Inc. of New York and has a margin of error of plus or minus 3.8 percentage points. Pollsters conducted the survey Oct. 22-27 and questioned 673 likely voters.

White, dismissing those results, said the poll assumed far more

Republican voters would be turning out that what he says appears to be happening in early voting.

"We keep track of who's early voted, and we do it daily and we add it up nightly," White told volunteers who were running phone banks for him in Austin. He said the poll was "way, way off" from reality.

White and his 21-year-old daughter, Elena White, made calls to voters themselves, urging them to cast a ballot while they still could during early voting, which was ending Friday.

"Thank you for your commitment. Have you voted yet?" White said to one voter he called who apparently hadn't cast a ballot. "Do it. The weather is great."

Survey: Texas ignoring new greenhouse gas rules

HOUSTON (AP) — Texas has refused to meet new federal greenhouse gas emission rules that go into effect in January, the latest anti-Washington move in an ongoing battle that could halt new construction at the nation's largest refineries and other industry in Texas.

The refusal to join 49 other states in agreeing to the new rules is the latest salvo from Texas in its fight with the U.S. Environmental Protection Agency, which Gov. Rick Perry has used on the campaign trail as an example of meddling by the federal government.

"Texas has neither the authority nor the intention of interpreting, ignoring or amending its laws in order to compel the permitting of greenhouse gas emissions," said a letter to the EPA from the Texas Commission on Environment Quality and state Attorney General Greg Abbott.

The new greenhouse gas rules go into effect Jan. 2, 2011. They require the nation's largest industries to meet more stringent greenhouse gas emissions standards in new or significantly modified structures, rules that came on the heels of a U.S. Supreme Court ruling in 2007 that greenhouse gases are pollutants that can be regulated under the Clean Air Act and a 2009 EPA finding that the gases can pose a danger to human health.

"States who don't have greenhouse gas permit programs in place by Jan. 2 — either administered by themselves or EPA — are unnecessarily subjecting their energy industry and manufacturing base to a construction ban in the state," said Bill Becker, executive director of the National Association of Clean Air Act Agencies.

"The sad news is that this totally avoidable." The EPA said in a statement the agency is focused on ensuring "businesses get the permits they need and people get the protection they deserve."

"Texas seems to have different priorities right now, but we have not yet given up on our efforts to work with them," the statement said.

The Washington-based nonprofit that acts as go-between to the EPA for nearly every state environmental regulatory agency, surveyed the states on whether they would be ready to comply with the new rules by the deadline. In a report released Thursday, the association said 49 states have either changed their laws to allow regulation of greenhouse gases or will allow the EPA to issue permits.

Texas is doing neither. Texas, home to some of the nation's largest refineries, and 16 other states have challenged in court the EPA's that greenhouse gas emissions can be dangerous. No court has ruled on the issue.

Texas has asked the courts to delay implementation of the new standards until there is a ruling, however that has not happened yet. The TCEQ believes the EPA does not have the authority to regulate greenhouse gases and calls the new rules "illegal."

TCEQ Chairman Bryan Shaw said industry would like clarity on this issue, but he's not convinced that turning the program over to the EPA would smooth things over.

"The EPA has put businesses in the situation that we're in," Shaw said, adding that the state decided to "stand with our principles."

Howard Feldman, director of regulatory and scientific affairs at the American Petroleum Industry, the gas and oil industry's lobbying arm in Washington, laid the blame with the EPA, saying they were coercing states to allow the federal agency to regulate the new rules — which are still unclear. Allowing the federal agency permitting authority is "unprecedented," he added.

"They're just trying to do too much in a too short a time," Feldman said. "EPA ... is jeopardizing industrial expansion and putting people back to work in this country."

Becker said other states are moving ahead because if they don't, "the facilities in the end are harmed as a result of a state's unwillingness or inability to meet the Jan. 2 deadline."

Companies that go ahead with construction without permits that comply with the federal Clean Air Act could face lawsuits and fines of up to $25,000 per day, Becker said.

Big Oil sets sights back on Gulf

CHRIS KAHN
AP Energy Writer

NEW YORK (AP) — Big Oil is ready to go back to work in the Gulf of Mexico, even with the U.S. government promising to rule the waters with a heavier hand.

New regulations imposed following the BP oil spill will make drilling in the Gulf more expensive. But the region is simply too attractive for the big oil companies to ignore.

Oil and gas companies like BP, Shell, Exxon and Chevron that increasingly depend on oil from offshore wells to expand their reserves know the geology of the Gulf much better than other parts of the world. Taxes and royalties for projects in U.S. waters are considered to be much lower than foreign operations, and it's much easier and cheaper to deliver the oil to the consumer.

"It's one-stop shopping," said Fadel Gheit, an analyst with Oppenheimer & Co. "When you're working in the Gulf, you're sitting in the belly of the largest energy-consuming economy in the world."

Chevron Corp. said

Friday it already has submitted one permit application to the government to drill again in the deep water, and expects to file several more in the next few months.

Exxon Mobil Corp. said earlier in the week that it's preparing to develop its Hadrian project in the Gulf, while Royal Dutch Shell said it filed a number of requests for offshore projects shortly after the moratorium was lifted earlier this month.

The industry tabled projects like those after the April 20 rig explosion that killed 11 people and spewed nearly five million barrels of oil into the Gulf. The government shut down deepwater exploration, and some oil companies started to reassess their commitment to the Gulf as Congress considered ways to increase liabilities for future disasters.

Offshore oil wells in the Gulf typically make money with oil prices above $50 to $60 per barrel. Oil is currently trading near $82 per barrel.

BP hasn't yet disclosed its plans. The company's costs soared as it struggled to contain its spill. The company has devoted more than $30 billion so far towards containment, cleanup and damages. Analysts expect that government fines, legal settlements and other costs will add billions more to the tab.

The statements on the Gulf came as the major oil companies reported earnings for the third quarter.

Higher oil and gas prices helped most oil companies report higher profits than a year ago.

Exxon's net income rose 55 percent while ConocoPhillips profit doubled. Higher prices helped Royal Dutch Shell increase earnings even though it booked more than $1 billion in asset write-downs. Chevron lagged its peers, however, reporting earnings of $3.77 billion, or $1.87 per share, for the three months ended Sept. 30. That compares with $3.83 billion, or $1.92 per share, in the year-ago period. Revenue increased 7 percent to $49.7 billion.

BP reports results on Tuesday.

Twentieth Century Club meets, talks books

The Twentieth Century Club met in the movie room of the First Presbyterian Church on October 26 at 1:30 p.m.

President, Mrs. Pat Terry called the meeting to order, the Club Collect was recited and the American's Creed read by all members.

The minutes were read and approved with corrections made by secretary, Mrs. Sue Pribble and roll was taken with members present being: Louise Bailey, Edna Hickman, Mary McDaniel, Myrna Orr, Sue Pribble, Ruth Riehart, Dot Stowers, Pat Terry and Barbara Vanderpool and excused members: Nancy Coffee, Fay Harvey, Phyllis White and Cleo Worley.

Mrs. Myrna Orr gave the treasurer's report and the business meeting was concluded.

The program was given by Mrs. Stowers. She spoke about two books she had been reading, If I Should Die Before I Wake, One Marine's Experience on Iwo Jima and in more detail, The War, An Intimate History, 1941-1945 which followed four cities and how the war changed them.

She focused on one particular story in The War that detailed the experiences of an American family that owned a plantation near the city of Manila in the Philippines, and their struggles in a Japanese internment camp.

The next meeting will be Tuesday, November 9th in the First United Methodist Church parlor with a Christmas gift exchange and paper product collection for Tralee Crisis Center.

Pampa Art Club meets

The Pampa Art Club met on Sept. 21 at the Red River Steak House in McLean.

The meeting was a kick-off meeting for the 2010-2011 year.

Club members voted to have a Spring Art Exhibit at the White Deer Land Museum.

The meeting was led by President Kar Sutherland. Secretary Dee Gill received dues. Vice President Sara Crim distributed the new yearbook and held the drawing for Christmas gift-giving.

The club met at again on Oct. 5 at the Miami home of Dee Gill.

Members began working on individual art projects that will be on display in May 2011 at the clubs annual art exhibit. Members were encouraged to begin to submit names for prospective members. This is a year for growth.

The club met again on Oct. 19 at the Nona Payne Room at Chamber of Commerce Building. The hostess was Sarah Crim.

Names were submitted as new member prospects. Sam Sidders, watercolor artist and teacher will be willing to offer classes in Pampa in the fall of 2011. Park Place, a retirement and assisted living facility in Amarillo, has invited the club to exhibit its members' work. Kay Crouch will get more information a decision is made.

The Pampa Art Club members will be exhibiting art work at the Dumas Art Center in Dumas next fall (2011).

Halloween Safety

Costumes:

Make sure your costume is short and snug.

Baggy sleeves or billowy capes and skirts can trip you up and catch fire if they brush against jack-o-lanterns or candle flames.

Make sure your shoes fit.

Big, floppy shoes (clown shoes, adult shoes) that are hard to walk in may make you fall.

Make sure your costume props are flexible.

Costume props can hurt you badly if you fall. Make sure swords, knives, etc. are made of flexible plastic or rubber.

Make sure the eye holes in your mask are wide enough. Make sure your mask fits properly and the eye holes allow you to see fully.

Don't wear a mask that is too loose; it can slip and block your vision. Even better, paint your face instead of wearing a mask.

Streets:

Make sure drivers can see your costume in the dark. Be original with a glow-in-the-dark costume; jazz up your costume by attaching some retro-reflective tape and stickers.

Make sure you are trick-or-treating in a group.

Don't go it alone while trick-or-treating. Kids, if you're under age 13, make sure you go with an adult. Older kids should always go with buddies.

Make sure you cross streets at crosswalks or intersections.

Stop at street corners.

Look left, right and left again before crossing and don't cross between parked cars! Remember, never step into the street without looking to see if a vehicle is coming.

Treats:

Make sure your parents check your treats before you eat them.

Pick only wrapped candy when you trick-or-treat. Ask your parents to check your treats to make sure they are safe.

"He's done some great books," she said, "and he's fairly local."

Wimmer released two books this year that he illustrated. They are "One Giant Leap" with author Robert Burleigh and "The Pilgrim's Progress" written by John Bunyan and reedited by C.J. Lovik.

Wimmer said "One Giant Leap" is a 40th anniversary celebration of man's trip to the moon.

"It's really a statement of man's ability to dream and then make those dreams come true," Wimmer said.

"One of the things I like to talk to kids about is the importance of having a vision and a goal and then creating the opportunities in your life to make those dreams come true."

"The Pilgrim's Progress," Wimmer said, is one of the most published book in the English language, second only to the Bible.

Wimmer has also illustrated books on Jackie Robinson and Will Rogers.

He has also illustrated "Flight: The Journey of Charles Lindbergh," "All the Places to Love," "Homerun: The Story of Babe Ruth" and "Summertime."

Wimmer has illustrated two books by former Oklahoma Gov. Frank Keating: "Theodore" and "Will Rogers."

40 Days of Prayer for our Nation!

Central Baptist Church

invites you to join in

"40 Days of Prayer for our Nation!"

Our nation was founded upon God and His Word and He remains our foundation. It is time for God's people to pray and surrender to His Lordship over our lives and our nation. Many significant events in scripture were based on the number 40 and our coming election is significant in turning our nation back to God.

Beginning Friday, September 24, and continuing through November 2, Central's sanctuary will be open from 6 a.m. to 6 p.m. for anyone who would like to pray for our nation.

You may come by before work, on your lunch break, or any other time during the day.

"Nevertheless I have this against you, that you have left your first love. Remember, therefore from where you have fallen; repent and do the first works, or else I will come to you quickly and remove your lampstand from its place unless you repent."

DAILY HOROSCOPE

HAPPY BIRTHDAY for Monday, Nov. 1, 2010.

This year, you will get what you want. The key to your success will be a strong group of supporters who help you back up when you are down. You have unusual allure and magnetism. If you are single, you will have to work to maintain this status. So many admirers! If you are attached, your sweetie finds you unusually appealing and often goes along with your way of thinking. Honor his or her needs, and don't trample on his or her feelings. VIRGO remains a loyal friend.

The Stars Show the Kind of Day You'll Have: 5-Dynamic; 4-Positive; 3-Average; 2-So-so; 1-Difficult

ARIES (March 21-April 19)

 Sometimes tossing yourself into a project is nothing less than pure pleasure. Such is the case today. You efficiently integrate startling new concepts and an overload of new information. Processing everything that is tossed on your plate is never easy, but you do it magnificently. Tonight: Now, off for some fun!

TAURUS (April 20-May 20)

 Dealing with a partner or a sequence of associates will take dipping into your storehouse of interpersonal relating techniques. Not everyone is easygoing, nor would you want them to be. You admire fire and conviction. Tonight: So what if it is Monday night?

GEMINI (May 21-June 20)

 Getting yourself untangled from a difficult situation could take a lot. Some of you might simply decide to wage verbal warfare. The immediate results might be effective, but what are the damages? Tonight: Screen your calls.

Take some much-needed personal time.

CANCER (June 21-July 22)

 How you deal with another person and the decisions you make could be colored by a personal matter. You want active communication. Thus you might start a fight or a very animated discussion. Consider taking a class in communicating instead. Tonight: Flow with the moment.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22)

 Where others fuss and do all they can to maintain or trim their budget, you tap into your ingenuity. Others will be thrilled by the even better idea that pops out of creative brainstorming. Honor your financial needs. Tonight: Acting as if it is still the weekend.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22)

 You can be overly concerned about details, losing sight of the concept you are working with. It is part of the liability of Virgo's penchant for details. Today, you could choose to do both simultaneously. Why not give it a shot? Tonight: Whatever makes you smile.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 22)

 You feel an uneasiness that might be difficult to identify. You are unlikely to say anything as you attempt to work through certain issues. The wise Libra will go within and identify the problem before taking any action. Tonight: You might want to chat with a dear friend.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23-Nov. 21)

 Zero in on what you feel is significant in a meeting. Perhaps shifting others to your type of thinking could be a powerful tool. Others might express much more of what they are thinking when they can walk in your shoes. Tonight: A meeting could evolve into a happening.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21)

 You are proud of your leadership abilities. When you take a stand, many respond. They often could be very challenging — not so much in disagreement, but challenging your commitment. Good will start to flow back and forth. Tonight: In the limelight.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19)

 Walk away from conventional thinking. At the same time, dump restrictions you place on your thought process. You want to open up all doors. A friend might be very powerful, identifying many of your preconceived and restrictive thoughts. Tonight: Go where you can relax.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18)

 You value friendship, but what happens when a loved one becomes demanding? Your commitment is tested. For some of you, this situation could be intolerable. Relax and think of this person as a friend in need. Suddenly, relating becomes easier. Tonight: A close encounter.

PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20)

 You have some very strong ideas that often isolate you from others. Right now, let boundaries melt as you walk with others through their fields of life. You will gain a new respect and understanding for the people you do this exercise with. Tonight: Go with another person's plans.

Dear Abby...

By Pauline & Jeanne Phillips

DEAR ABBY: I am a 12-year-old girl who is not happy with who I am. When I was younger I always imagined what I'd be like when I was older — and this is not who I want to be.

I am the girl everyone wants to date. I have lost people close to me lately and made mistakes I wish I could take back. I love God and the fact that He gave me life, but I don't like myself. People treat me like I have no feelings sometimes, and I'm tired of drama that isn't worth my time. I want to change who I am to who I really want to be.

Do you have any tips on how to make myself the person I want to be, and not the person everyone else wants? — WHO AM I? VALRICO, FLA.

DEAR WHO AM I?: You are an intelligent young lady who has recognized that she must make changes if she wants to achieve her goals. Good for you.

At 12, you're not frozen into any role. There is time to change your image. While it may be flattering to be someone "everyone wants to date," you are not obligated to date anyone. Concentrate on improving your grades, becoming active in sports, developing your interests and a stronger relationship with your church. If you do, you will form different kinds of relationships that will enable you to become the person you want to be. I have no doubt that you'll accomplish whatever you set your mind to because you have already started.

DEAR ABBY: I am a friendly, 23-year-old woman who likes to make new friends all the time. Recently, though, I have had a few "bumps" and I'm not sure if I may be doing something wrong.

I tried to befriend one girl who was an acquaintance from high school. I found her on Facebook and sent her a message. She replied that she was glad for the surprise e-mail. I sent her a reply, but she never returned one. I also tried to add her as a friend, but she declined. Then there's the girl who is the sister of one of my male friends. I found her on Facebook, too, and sent her an e-mail. It was the same story. I got a friendly reply — then nothing.

I met the third girl online at a different friend-type site. She said she was "so glad I messaged her" and the same scenario repeated. I'm confused. Am I making some mistake or just picking the wrong people to befriend? — EVERYONE'S PAL, EUGENE, ORE.

DEAR PAL: What matters in life isn't the number of friends one has, but the quality of the friendship. Friendship does not usually happen spontaneously, it takes time and common interests among acquaintances to build.

Instead of trying to make friends all the time, concentrate on trying to nurture relationships more slowly on common interest sites. The approach you have chosen may strike others as a little too aggressive. Also, stop depending on online sites and venture into the real world, too.

DEAR ABBY: My husband and I have a minor disagreement about the definition of a bachelor. The dictionary defines a bachelor as "an unmarried man." My husband thinks the definition should include "men who have never been married, widowed or divorced."

I think a bachelor is an unmarried man, regardless of the reason he's currently unmarried. He could be divorced or widowed and be a bachelor, as long as his current status is without a companion. What do you say? — AN INQUIRING COUPLE IN GEORGIA

DEAR COUPLE: I'm inclined to side with your husband on this one. A man who has been divorced is a divorced man; a man who has lost his wife is a widower; and a man who has never been to the altar by the age of 50 is not only a bachelor — but a confirmed bachelor.

I WANT TO SEE HOW FAR I CAN GO. SO DOES HALLIBURTON

Halliburton, one of the world's largest and most safety-conscious providers of oil field services, is seeking an Operator Assistant - Frac Acid. In this position, you will learn basic safety and repair procedures on PSL equipment. You will be performing pre/post job equipment inspections, performing and completing preventative maintenance procedures and maintaining support equipment (i.e., pumps, treating lines, etc.). This is the entry level position into the Service Operator job family. Qualifications: High School diploma or equivalent, a valid Driver's License, no experience necessary.

AXYDLBAAXR is LONGFELLOW

One letter stands for another. In this sample, A is used for the three L's, X for the two O's, etc. Single letters, apostrophes, the length and formation of the words are all hints. Each day the code letters are different.

Altrusa hears project report

Altrusa International, Inc. of Pampa met Oct. 26, 2010 at First United Methodist Church with President Allison Watson presiding. Linda Weaver served as greeter. Guests attending were Robin Doan and K'Lyn King.

In observance of the club's 57th birthday, members sang "Happy Birthday" and were served birthday cake. The Pampa Altrusa Club was chartered October 10, 1953 with 21 members.

The Accent was given by Ann Thrasher on the Twelve Principles of Altrusa written in 1921 by Mamie L. Bass.

Brenda Tucker introduced District Governor Kathy Folley of Temple who spoke to the club regarding recent activities at the district and international levels of Altrusa. She also listed suggestions for continuing the strength of the club. Governor Folley an Administrative Assistant at Wilson Art. Inc. in Temple has been an Altrusan since 1993.

ASTRA Students Robin Doan and K'Lyn King reported on the club projects including installation of officers and a Halloween party for the Sheltered Workshop clients.

Travis Reading Project - Julia Sparkman reported the next reading at Travis is set for November 2 at 9:45 a.m. Members were encouraged to volunteer for the project.

Tralee Pantry Drive - Brenda Tucker reported that 209 bags of food and $360.89 were collected at the recent drive.

Breast Cancer Awareness - Members were reminded to volunteer at the booth to be at United on October 30 to distribute materials regarding breast cancer.

Ann Thrasher volunteered to co-chair the Soup with Mrs. Claus project with Kay West.

The following announcements were given:

•Fall Event will be held in San Antonio November 6, 2010.

•Veterans' Day November 11. Sign-up sheets were distributed for duties to assist with the program.

The next meeting will be held November 9 at noon at the First United Methodist Church.

Dalhart 'D', running game too much for Harvesters

ANDREW GLOVER
aglover@thepampanews.com

Like the previous two weeks, the Pampa Harvesters faced a pair of strong running backs Friday in Dalhart. Pampa was unable to stop the Golden Wolves offensive attack and couldn't overcome Dalhart's defense in a 38-6 defeat.

This was the last regular season game for both teams. Head coach Heath Parker said he was disappointed with the result.

"Coming in, we felt like we were getting better and better as well," Parker said. "I certainly thought we would give them a better game than what we gave them."

Dalhart head coach Stephen Young said his team wanted to finish strong and credited Pampa for how they played.

"We just played hard," Young said. "I give Pampa credit, they played hard. We were just a little bit better tonight."

The first quarter was very competitive. The Harvesters opened with a lead when senior linebacker Trent Carter returned a fumble 29-yards for touchdown 32 seconds into the game. That lead stood until 1:55 left in the quarter. Noah Jesko threw an eleven-yard touchdown pass to Harper Scofield. The Golden Wolves led 10-6 after the first quarter.

The Golden Wolves' running backs Adrian Ruiz and Davonte Burks dominated the second quarter. Ruiz rushed for 134 yards and scored on a 76-yard touchdown. Burks rushed for 27 yards and scored on an eight yard run.

Carter said Ruiz and Burks were very good running backs.

"Burks is so shifty," Carter said. "I don't think I played anyone that shifty in a long time. He's quick. They had excellent vision and could read their blocks."

The Harvesters weren't able to muster anything on offense. Three drives ended in punts and one that ended in a turnover on downs at the Golden Wolves 33. Harper Scofield on their defensive line knocked down several passes.

Senior receiver Garrett Ericson said it was tough to get anything going all game.

"(Dalhart) consistently brings five to six players," Ericson said. "It's difficult to get open on that especially when their defensive ends are knocking down balls."

Young said they pride themselves on playing good defense.

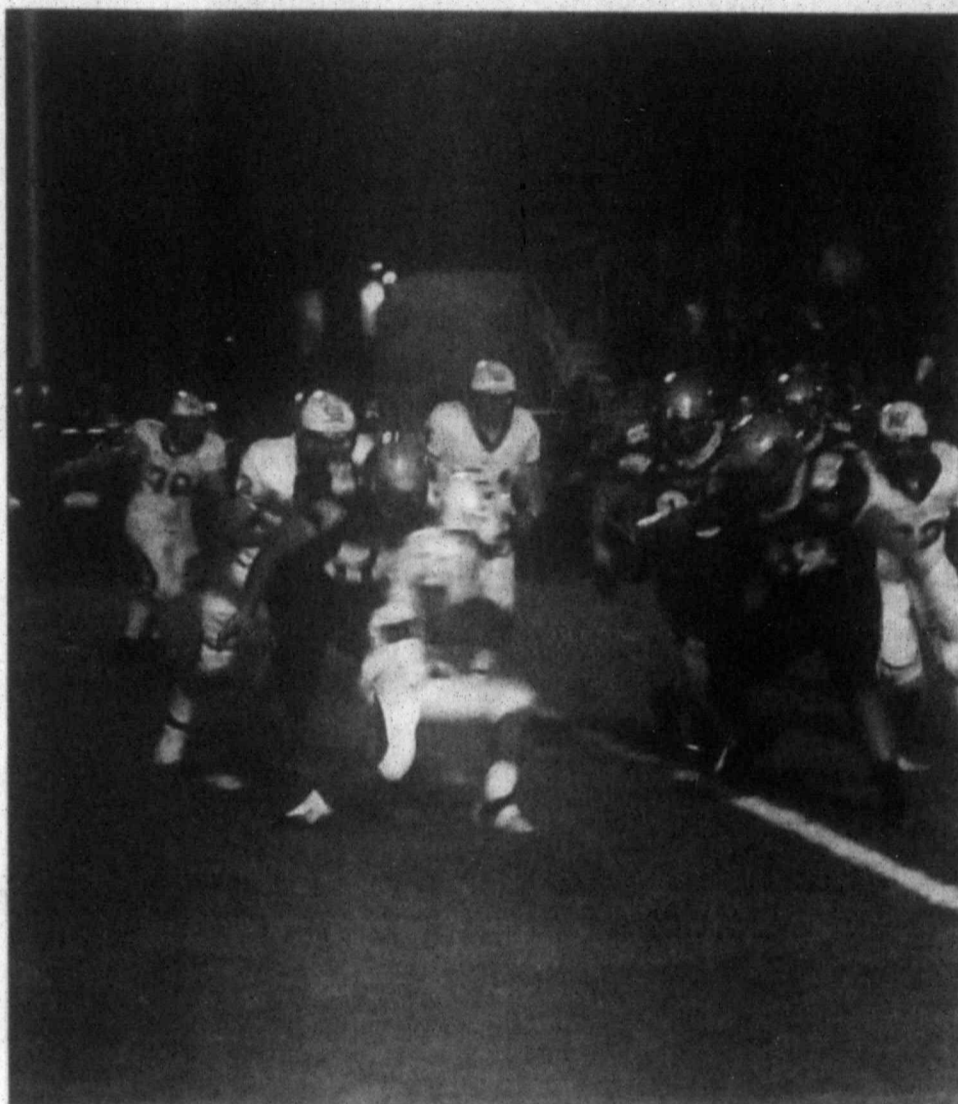

"We just prep to what they do and we executed very well tonight," Young said.

The Golden Wolves (9-1, 2-1) also had a 69-yard touchdown pass and led the Harvesters 31-6 at halftime.

Both teams have byes next week before starting the playoffs. Dalhart will play in the Division II brackets as the district runner-up and will face Lubbock Estacado in two weeks. The Harvesters will play in the Division I bracket against Lubbock Cooper.

Parker said they will spend some of their bye week healing up.

"We know that we are in the playoffs and who are opponent is," Parker said. "Cooper has to play a district championship game this upcoming Thursday. Basically we are going to the ice whirlpool for a couple of days and get started on our gameplan Tuesday."

Francoeur can remind Texas mates about '96 Yanks

ARLINGTON (AP) — Jeff Francoeur might want to remind his Texas Rangers teammates about the 1996 Atlanta Braves.

A kid in Atlanta then, Francoeur saw his heroes — the reigning World Series champs, no less — go up 2-0 on the American League club, just like the San Francisco Giants have done to the Rangers going into Game 3 on Saturday night.

In '96, the New York Yankees roared back and won the next four games, devastating the little boy who would grow up to play for the Braves.

"We all thought it was going to be back-to-back World Series," Francoeur said Friday. "That thing turned around in a hurry. To me, you turn it around by pitching. We have good pitching. Yeah, we had a little meltdown in the eighth inning (of Game 2), but I think if you ask anybody in this locker room we have confidence ... in all those guys to go out there and throw and throw well."

After the Rangers lost Game 2 in San Francisco on Thursday night, Francoeur's wife reminded him that his former Atlanta teammate Brian McCann is partly to blame for the predicament Texas is facing.

In July, McCann hit a three-run double that won the All-Star game for the National League, earning home-field advantage for the NL champions. The Rangers are the first AL champions not to have home-field advantage in the World Series since that became a reward for winning the All-Star game.

Francoeur

"All these years I pulled for the NL to win the All-Star game," Francoeur said. "They finally did and now I'm in the AL."

Francoeur believes it made a difference, too.

"People say home-field advantage doesn't matter, but I think it does in the World Series," he said. "San Francisco is a tough place to play. I mean, it's a huge outfield, the weather is crazy — cold, windy — and with their pitching they know how to play there."

RETURN OF PANDA POWER: The San Francisco Giants are getting another bat in the lineup for Game 3 of the World Series — Pablo Sandoval's.

With the Series shifting to the home of the American League champion Texas Rangers, the Giants get to add a designated hitter. San Francisco manager Bruce Bochy chose Sandoval, the guy whose physique earned him the nickname "Kung Fu Panda."

Sandoval hit .268 with 13 home runs and 63 RBIs this season. He's started four of 12 postseason games and played in a total of five, batting 3 for 14 (.213) with two RBIs.

"I'm just trying to prepare," Sandoval said following a session in the batting cage Friday.

The Giants scored 20 runs in the first two games at home, so having another bat can only help.

"In our situation, it's not really any disadvantage," Bochy said. "We have a couple guys who have experience DHing. ... We could change it every day."

TURN THE PAGE: A college coach helped Texas' Derek Holland grasp the concept that what's done is done, good or bad — whether it's holding down the Yankees to win Game 4 of the ALCS or walking all three batters he faced in his World Series debut.

"Today's a new day, dude," Holland said Friday. "They're going to call me again, so I'm not worried about it."

Holland looked helpless in Game 2 against the Giants. Asked to get the third out in the eighth inning, with the Rangers down 2-0 and a runner on first, he began a historic meltdown by throwing 11 straight balls.

"It's just one of those things that happens," he said. "It was like a freak accident."

Really? Every kid who plays baseball dreams of being in the World Series. He finally got that chance, messed it up and chalks it up as a bad day at the office?

"A one-time thing," he said. "When I get back out, I'll be back to my normal self."

Rangers' World Series takes over football in Dallas area

ARLINGTON (AP) — With the home team struggling, the crowd began to chant, "Let's go Rangers! Let's go Rangers!"

Down on the field, the Dallas Cowboys weren't inspired. But that rallying cry heard during their game Monday night sent a clear message: the Dallas-Fort Worth area is no longer dominated by football.

Not this fall, at least.

And certainly not this week. The Texas Rangers may not be "America's Team," but they are American League champions, and right now that's more important.

They've brought the World Series to Arlington this weekend, a first in the franchise's 39 years here. Fans are so giddy that not even opening the series with a pair of crushing losses in San Francisco can dampen the mood.

"I think it's fantastic," former Cowboys great Roger Staubach said. "It would be phenomenal if they won it."

How's this for a sign of the times: At a luncheon Thursday marking the 100-day countdown to the upcoming Super Bowl being played in Arlington, former Cowboys greats Troy Aikman, Emmitt Smith, Daryl Johnston and Drew Pearson, plus team owner Jerry Jones, all slapped on red Rangers hats.

"When you've got the World Series in town, this should be a baseball town," Jones said.

It's pretty wild to think the World Series is beating the Super Bowl to town, especially considering the pedigree of both teams and the popularity of both sports in the Lone Star State.

The Rangers moseyed into Arlington in 1972, just a few months after the Cowboys won their first Super Bowl title. While the Cowboys have won four more Super Bowls, the Rangers never even won a postseason series until this month.

They've been so bad for so long that it seemed like there was a secret clause when they moved from Washington — the Rangers were allowed to borrow the sports spotlight from April to August, then had to get out of the way for pro, college and high school football. After all, the joke in Texas is that there are only two seasons: football and spring football.

Now the Rangers are messing with Texas traditions in a big way. They're playing meaningful games later in the calendar than the Cowboys, Longhorns and Aggies.

"If you would have looked at the season and said the Rangers are going to be in the World Series and the Cowboys are 1-5, you would think somebody was smoking something," Staubach said.

Aikman said the Rangers being up while the Cowboys are down has helped the baseball team's rise in prominence.

"And, good for them," Aikman said. "They've embodied, really, what team is all about. It's been a good story. I've certainly been proud to watch them and the way that they've played. I hope they can pull it around and win a World Series."

Aikman has lived in the area for 21 years, so he's not too surprised by the shift in loyalty among local fans.

"I've always said Dallas is a winner's town," he said. "It might be a Mavs town next week."

Give it two weeks, at least.

Rangers merchandise is selling so quickly that stores are replenishing their inventory daily. Interest was rising throughout the playoffs, then became overwhelming the minute the Rangers beat the Yankees for the AL pennant.

"The line was wrapped around the store — in fact, behind the parking lot," said Robert Desimone, promotions coordinator for Academy Sports & Outdoors, who was at his chain's store about 25 miles from the stadium in the Mesquite suburb. "We had fans just going nuts, screaming, doing the wave. People were driving by honking horns. You can tell everybody has Rangers Fever."

Jamey Newberg has been a Rangers fan since 1976, when he went to his first game at age 7. He was one of those kids who sneaked a radio under the covers to follow games that ran past his bedtime. Now he's a lawyer who finds time to maintain a website devoted to the hardcore Rangers fan. His newbergreport.com is no rah-rah chat room, either. It's aimed at the connoisseur fan, crammed with respected analysis and detailed reports on minor leaguers.

"I was going at a rate of 500-800 subscribers every year; this year, I have 3,000 new subscribers," Newberg said. "The site is now getting 1 million hits per week. Those are pretty good indications the casual sports fan in town is jumping on the Rangers' bandwagon."

Another indicator is all the claw and antler displays.

For the uninitiated, that is the team's shtick for celebrating key plays. A powerful hit or throw is acknowledged with a hand held up like a claw. Hustling plays are recognized with fingers splayed alongside the head like antlers, an homage to running like a deer.

Folks are gluing sticks to batting helmets for homemade antlers and holding up mannequin arms (even prosthetics) with the fingers bent into claws. T-shirts featuring claws on front, antlers on back are among the top sellers. That's what the people who started the Rangers chant at the Cowboys game were wearing.

Expect even more Rangers gear at Cowboys Stadium on Sunday.

Dallas plays at noon, then a few hours later the Rangers play Game 4 at their ballpark right next door. Staubach is among those planning to make it a doubleheader and he can't wait. He was a baseball player years before becoming a quarterback and this will be his first World Series game.

As popular as he is, Staubach isn't throwing out the first pitch.

For game 4, it'll be a pair of former U.S. presidents: George W. Bush, whose last job before politics was as managing partner of the Rangers, and his dad, George H.W. Bush.

Nolan Ryan has the honor for Game 3 and hopefully the radar gun will be on. He sure cranked up the ol' Ryan Express before Game 1 of the ALCS.

Ryan has been the club's president since 2008 and a part-owner since the summer. His role in the club's turnaround can't be understated, which also is part of the charm of it all. (Oh, if you hear a roar before the game starts, check the video board. They'll probably be showing his pummeling of Robin Ventura, which remains a wildly popular clip.)

A few nights ago, Ryan was surprised to hear Jay Leno mention the Rangers. Then he realized how often he sees people wearing team merchandise, even in a New York airport or on the streets of San Francisco.

"Our fans didn't even wear it to the ballpark when I came in 2008," he said.

They sure didn't wear it to a football game back then. Probably not even last season.

What a difference a World Series makes.

Rangers don't stir excitement in old home

WASHINGTON (AP) — When the Texas Rangers finally made the World Series, there was only one logical reaction from old-time baseball fans in the nation's capital.

"First Minnesota, and then Texas. My heavens!" Charlie Brotman said. "Everybody but the real thing is there."

Brotman was the public address announcer for the Washington Senators, who are now making their long overdue debut in baseball's biggest show — albeit 39 years and one relocation too late for local supporters.

The Senators left Washington for Texas after the 1971 season, with the final game at RFK Stadium ending in a forfeit when angry fans stormed the field with two outs in the ninth. It was the second blow for D.C. baseball in little over a decade: The original Senators bolted after the 1960 season and became the Minnesota Twins, who won championships in 1987 and 1991.

Tom Grieve made his major league debut with Washington in 1970 and was part of that original team in Texas.

"I lived in Maryland and when I'd drive to the stadium, I'd go past the White House and the monuments. I loved being in D.C. I think most of us loved it there," Grieve said before Game 2 of the Texas-San Francisco matchup.

"When we first heard we were going to Texas, I'd say the reaction was mostly negative. We didn't want to move to Texas. It was a football state and still is," he said.

Grieve played six years for the Rangers, later became their general manager and now announces their games.

"Turned out, Texas became a great place to be," he said.

So now that the Senators-turned-Rangers are playing for the title, are long-dormant feelings coming back to the surface in D.C. to cheer the team on as it faces the Giants?

Uh, no. It's safe to say there's no buzz, not even a ripple, of excitement in Washington about the Rangers.

"The street talk, it's one of those things, if anything, it's almost a downer for the Washington fans," Brotman said. "There's no real honest-to-goodness feeling for the Texas team. It just isn't there."

Brotman said Washington fans felt more of an allegiance to the Twins than they ever did to the Rangers. The original Senators had been around for most of the century and had won American League pennants. The sequel Senators were perpetual losers, led by owner Bob Short.

"When the second Senators team moved to Texas, we disowned them," Brotman said. "Everybody was so mad at Bob Short. The team was so bad. And we felt it would be only a year or two before we had another team."

Didn't happen. The city waited decades for baseball to return, with patience worn beyond thin by the time the Montreal Expos relocated to Washington in 2005.

Now D.C. has its own team — and a new league — to support.

"Since we're National League now, we'll probably be rooting for the Giants," Brotman said. "And we're not crazy about them, either."

SUNDAY HOROSCOPE

HAPPY BIRTHDAY for Sunday, Oct. 31, 2010:

This year, you will become more conscious of what you have to offer as well as what skills and talents you might like to develop. Don't restrict yourself to logic or what works immediately. Be willing to pursue the impossible dream. Expect to stand out in a crowd. If you are single, your allure increases the more relaxed you become. You might enjoy dating more than committing, but, of course, this is your decision. If you are attached, the two of you become much closer than in the past, especially if you decide to take on a public commitment. LEO can be a demanding boss or authority figure.

The Stars Show the Kind of Day You'll Have: 5-Dynamic; 4-Positive; 3-Average; 2-So-so; 1-Difficult

ARIES (March 21-April 19)

 You are full of ideas, no matter which way you go. Investigate what you are feeling. There might be more going on than you realize. A friend could be unusually idealistic. Continue to focus on a project and the details. Tonight: The world is your oyster.

This Week: Easy works better than you think when approaching life. Try that attitude on for size.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20)

 Stay close to home, and don't avoid the obvious. You might need to re-evaluate a situation with great honesty. Friends express a great deal of surprise and unpredictability. A get-together could be very pleasing. Tonight: Beam in what you want.

This Week: Let your imagination rock and roll. Pace yourself.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20)

 Keep communication flowing. You understand a lot more than you realize. You have a way that demands attention. Don't allow someone to make all the decisions. You clearly know what you want. Tonight: Visit with friends.

This Week: Stay centered. Your creativity flourishes.

CANCER (June 21-July 22)

 Be aware of how possessive you can be. Try to identify with the confusion that surrounds you. Detach in order to think of yourself more in terms of neutralizing differences between you and others. Tonight: Your treat.

This Week: Make calls; reach out for others. Stay in touch with family.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22)

 You are full of life and possibilities. Allow greater give-and-take between you and key people in your life. Someone might not intend to be deceptive but is. Both of you need to take a good look at life. Tonight: Togetherness works.

This Week: Curb a possessive streak. Schedule meetings for Wednesday on.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22)

 Understanding will evolve if you say less and listen more. Someone could confuse you without intending to. By the end of the day, you'll have a better grasp on the situation.

Tonight: Stay easygoing.

This Week: You feel empowered. Act that part, too.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 22)

 Stay on topic within a discussion or fun happening. Listen to a group of friends who have a very different opinion from you. Focus on a fun hobby with a loved one. Tonight: Where the gang is.

This Week: Do needed research early on. You will want to take the lead on the project.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23-Nov. 21)

 The family gravitates toward you, no matter what goes on. Responsibilities inevitably drop on you. Make it your pleasure to pitch in and make a situation work. Take time with a child or special friend. Make it a point to have fun and enjoy yourself. Honor your present interests. Tonight: Staying up late.

This Week: Meetings remain key to moving a project forward. Wednesday, delve into new possibilities.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21)

* Keep reaching out for those you care about, even those at a distance. You could discover much more is going on than meets the eye. Go to the movies, an art show or some other enjoyable pastime. Take time to relax and simply enjoy another person more deeply. Tonight: Rather than be reactive, detach.

This Week: Others want you to lead, and for good reason — you will succeed.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19)

 Your ability to relate more fully and clearly emerges. You laugh more easily because of the company you are around. Lightness and detachment can be contagious. Consider developing these traits, allowing them to flow into your daily life. Tonight: An important talk.

This Week: Reach out for others. Get different opinions. Then take action.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18)

 You flow with the moment, though others make it clear exactly what they want and expect. Be especially careful when dealing with your finances. You easily could make a mistake. Caution could be the best preventative. Make time to join family and/or friends. Life becomes cheerful. Tonight: Say "yes" to living.

This Week: Work with another person directly. Be willing to explore other thoughts and ideas.

PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20)

 Completing a project, even if it is as simple as reading the Sunday paper, could take a major effort. Your sense of direction remains critical if you have any important goals to complete. Be open to a late-afternoon visit or joining a friend for dinner. Others are highly responsive. Tonight: Say "yes" to living.

This Week: Others want to run the show. Let them think they are. They will find out otherwise.

Willis' 'RED' gets green light

There's that certain niche in Hollywood occupied by those movies that leave you searching for the right compliment when you're walking out of the theater.

"What did you think?" your friend would ask. And you'd nod and you'd smile, and you'd say, "It was fun."

"Entertaining," maybe. Or "I enjoyed it." Or "I'm glad I saw that."

What you always stop short of saying is that the movie was "good."

We're always so hesitant with that word when it comes to movies. In a medium where everybody defines "good" so differently, it's a label now often reserved for those epic "Godfathers" and "Avatars" and "Bravehearts" of the universe.

The other ones? They're entertaining, and amusing, and fun.

That's where "RED" comes in. Nowhere near the strata of the aforementioned films, "RED" nevertheless gives you exactly what you want when you go in to see it: Solid performances, wicked explosions, some laugh-out-loud moments and Bruce Willis doing some freaking cool stuff.

"RED," based on a comic book miniseries by renowned scribe Warren Ellis, centers on Willis as Frank Moses, a lonely, retired Black Ops man reduced to making up excuses to phone Sarah (Mary Louise Parker), the call center girl who handles his pension checks. When a hit squad comes to knock down Frank's front door, he calls in a few favors from some geriatric, kindred ex-operatives (steady Morgan Freeman, drug-addled John Malkovich and always refined Helen Mirren) to help save his hide and clear his name.

That's pretty much it, really. There's isn't the smartly dressed slickness of an "Ocean's Eleven." There's no mind-bending plot twist like "The Usual Suspects." There's no nonstop popcorn-fueled roller coaster ride a la "Die Hard."

But so what? There's absolutely nothing wrong with what "RED" gives you, and a lot that's right. The action is sound and the fireworks are satisfyingly ridiculous (Helen Mirren shoots off a machine gun in a white evening dress, for crying out loud). The script doesn't take itself too seriously, so much so that "RED" might be more effective as a fast-paced comedy than the actioner the poster suggests. The cast — which also includes Karl Urban, Richard Dreyfuss and Ernest Borgnine — is all on target, with Malkovich and his goofy, psychotic smile as the icing on the ensemble cake.

Plus, you can tell the actors are all having a blast, which just makes the whole experience even more enjoyable.

Sure, it's a cheap thrill, but who cares? It's a good cheap thrill, and it's a thrill you won't want to miss — entertaining, amusing and fun in the best way possible.

'PA2' no original, but still chills

Last fall, Paramount Pictures released "Paranormal Activity," a low-budget haunted house film, into 13 theaters across the country.

Through word of mouth, the movie, made on the fly for less than $15,000, became one of the year's highest grossing horror films.

The movie focused on a young couple, Katie and Micah, as they documented strange sounds and moving objects in their home. What started as something spooky, turned into a deadly game of cat and mouse between homeowners and demon.

Because of the movie's success, it came as no surprise when Paramount announced they were releasing a sequel. Rather than being the rush job that many assumed it would be, though, "Paranormal Activity 2" does something few sequels are able to: It expands our knowledge of the first film in such a way that our enjoyment of both films is increased.

"PA2" follows a new family — father Daniel, new mother Kristi, Kristi's step-daughter Ali, and toddler Hunter — as they are faced with a situation very similar to that of Katie and Micah. At first, the two stories seem unrelated, but we soon learn that Kristi is Katie's sister. Both girls have memories of something that kept them scared during most of their childhoods, but neither of them wants to talk about.

Katie and Micah from the first film both appear in "PA2," as it serves as both a prequel and sequel and covers periods of time both before and after the original movie.

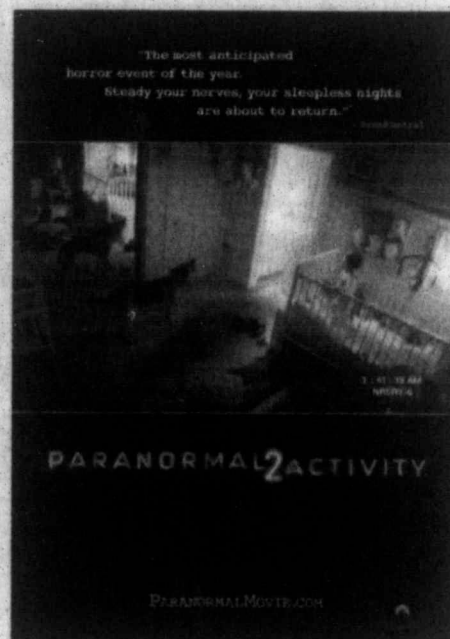

Like the first movie, PA2 is told exclusively through video recorded by the family. The main difference in this film is that the house has security cameras all over it, which allows the movie to cover more ground more quickly. Much like the original, PA2 does a good job of ratcheting up the tension as the film goes on. At first we hear a strange noise or see a door open, but soon there are cabinets flying open and people being dragged down the stairs by unseen forces.

However, the movie was not as frightening or as disturbing as the original, partly because at this point we know what we're dealing with.

While the movie may not pack quite the punch of the first film, it is definitely a much better sequel than most horror sequels, and easily the scariest movie I've seen since the first "Paranormal Activity."

RED ★★★★★
Rated PG-13 for intense sequences of action violence and brief strong language.

Paranormal Activity 2 ★★★★★
Rated R for some language and brief violent material.

Gorillaz finish swing across United States

Many musicians strive for success, artistically and commercially. Damon Albarn is one of the few who places a greater value on failure.

"I think everything I've done is a failure, in the sense that I haven't totally realized what I was setting out to do, and that's what keeps me going," said Albarn, who this week concludes an extensive North American tour with Gorillaz, his eclectic all-star band. "I learn through failure, and I want to learn as much as I possibly can."

That being the case, Albarn qualifies as one of pop's more successful failures.

As the leader of Blur, he helped define Britpop in the early 1990s, when his band helped capture the zeitgeist for millions of young people in the United Kingdom. But Blur never made much impact here.

Not so the multimillion-selling Gorillaz, which Albarn and "Tank Girl" cartoonist Jamie Hewlett launched in 1998 as a purely conceptual project.

Yet, what began as a "virtual band" of cartoon characters -- a sort of post-punk Traveling Wilburys in anime -- gradually morphed into a live band, following an abortive attempt to have Gorillaz "tour" in holographic form. As its April show at the Coachella Valley Music & Arts Festival attested, Gorillaz's music is now on equal footing with its eye-popping visuals.

"Ironically, for something that is/was virtual, it has become very organic," Albarn said, speaking from a tour stop in Houston.

"But it is still the relationship between the cartoons and the band, the musicians, that is very integral to how the audience perceives it."

That band also covers far more musical ground than Albarn ever did with the recently reunited Blur.

Hip-hop, funk, reggae, rock and World Music fuel Gorillaz, whose current touring lineup features two former members of English punk-rock icons The Clash -- guitarist Mick Jones and bassist Paul Simonon -- along with American R&B legend Bobby Womack.

Also on stage at various parts of

each Gorillaz concert is veteran New York hip-hop trio De La Soul, Chicago's Hypnotic Brass Ensemble, Swedish electro group Little Dragon, veteran Pharcyde rapper Bootie Brown, London singer Roses Gabor, British rappers Kano and Bashy, and members of the Middle East-based National Orchestra for Oriental Arabic Music.

"I pinch myself," Albarn said of his heady musical company. "Constantly."

The popular 'virtual band' Gorillaz has just finished a North American tour.

LYNDA HIRSCH on soaps

Two "Days of our Lives" books will be released the first week of November. "Days" is also celebrating its 45th anniversary Nov. 8. According to a press release: "'Days of our Lives 45 Years: A Celebration in Photos' is a rare glimpse of over 500 behind the scenes photographs. With never-before-seen images of cast, crew, sets, and styling, the proverbial '4th wall' is broken for an extraordinary look inside the studio and into the lives of the stars of the longest-running scripted program in NBC's history. This hard cover, full color, coffee table book will escort readers on a journey throughout the production day - from the first cup of coffee in the morning until the director says 'it's a wrap!' Original pages from scripts, archived photos, and some of the earliest set designs are combined with contemporary elements." The second book, "A Secret in Salem," will offer new stories and continuations of old ones. Front and center will be John and Marlena. Although her love for John has never waned, after two years of him being paralyzed, she must find a cure before they drift too far apart as man and wife. But John's illness may not be all that it seems, and the truth could tear them apart. As the press release further explains: "On the winding roads leading to Monaco, a convertible careens off a cliff ... For Charlotte Gaines, daughter of one of the world's richest men and one of the hottest designers, the accident reveals a hidden truth about her family that she never suspected. It sets her on a quest that will uncover long-buried secrets, hidden passions, and dangerous mysteries ... all seeming to lead to a small town named Salem, and a truth that will change all of their lives." Sheri Anderson, who has written the book, has created some of the most memorable storylines and super couples on American daytime television including "General Hospital's" Luke and Laura. On "Days," she was responsible for plots for Bo and Hope, John and Marlena, Patch and Kayla, and Shane and Kimberly.

• Tristan Rogers (ex-Robert Scorpio, "General Hospital") is headed to Genoa City. Rogers joins "Young and Restless" in mid-November. No official word on whom he will be playing. It does not take a psychic to guess he will be involved with Cane and Blake.

• Eighteen years and still going strong, Hillary B. Smith, who started playing "One Life to Live's" Nora in 1992, has just inked another long-term contract. A few years back, Smith was unhappy with Nora's storyline and considered leaving the show. But she is obviously pleased with the direction her character has taken in the past few years.

• Contract changes are coming at "Bold and Beautiful." Ashley Jones (Bridget), who joined the show in 2004, is going on recurring status beginning in December. Kristolyn Lloyd (Dayzee) will be upped to contract status in December. That is what they call budgets. To keep a show in the black, you win some and you have to lose some.

• "All My Children's" Scott, who will be played by Daniel Cosgrove in December, has his new Marissa: Sarah Glendening (ex-Lucy, "As the World Turns") takes over for Brittany Allen. Her first airdate is Dec. 20; Allen's last airdate is Dec. 17.
