BACK TO THE FUTURE

Harvester alumni who played during the Coach McNeely era stood together again at center court during halftime of Friday's PHS boys basketball game against rival Borger.

PHS welcomes back McNeely era teams

ANDREW GLOVER

In the 1950s, the Pampa Harvesters were the most dominating team of the Texas Panhandle under head coach Clifton McNeely. That era saw five state championships, a 72-game and 53 game winning streaks, numerous All-Americans and Division I college players.

On Friday night, those players returned to the arena they wowed so many fans in, converging on center court in a halftime ceremony during the boys basketball game against Borger at McNeely Fieldhouse.

PEDC, city look toward beautification

 editor@thepampanews.com

The Pampa Economic Development Corporation is studying a proposal by the City of Pampa aimed at making Pampa more beautiful.

Donny Hooper, Pampa's public works director, made a presentation at the PEDC's meeting Thursday concerning vacant buildings in the city that need to be demolished.

The city is requesting $75,000 from the PEDC to help pay for demolition of old structures in town.

"Over the last five years," Hooper said, "we have demolished 157 structures, mostly residential structures."

He said that while that is a substantial number, the city has identified another 299 residential buildings to be torn down.

"We have a lot more to do," Hooper said.

He said that there are a lot of residential structures that still need to be razed.

"We want to continue with our voluntary program where property owners who have a dilapidated structure on their property," Hooper said. "We will go in and tear that structure down as long as they've signed all the releases for it and rid the city of the blight, problems with crime and all the other things that are associated with that."

He said that the PEDC is checking the legal aspects of the project.

"If we do get the funding from the EDC, that money will go PEDC cont. on page 7

Medical personnel tour site for soon-to-be clinic

The Pampa Police Department would like to inform the community of some tips YOU can do if you suspect suspicious drug activity in your neighborhood. A few things the Pampa Police department considers suspicious drug activity is if there are lots of cars that show up at a residence and stay for a few minutes then leave, a strong chemical smell such as an either or ammonia could be suspicious.

1. Collect all the license plates, color of vehicles, types of vehicles that you can.
2. If you have a video camera, try to record the activity.
3. If you have surveillance cameras use them.
4. If you know the individuals write their names down.
5. Collect times and dates of the activity.
6. At any time you smell a strong chemical odor contact the Police Department.
7. Notify the Police Department (806) 669-5700 or if you want to remain anonymous you can contact Pampa/Gray County Crime Stoppers at (806) 669-2222.
8. NEVER approach the individuals or do anything that might put you in harms way!!

If you have any questions please contact Officer McCullar at the Pampa Police Department (806) 669-5700 ext 259.

School board Derrell DeLoach (center, with microphone) presents the school board's proclamation honoring the late Clifton McNeely and his players to Peggy McNeely, the coach's widow, and Mike McNeely, one of the coach's sons.

the 1953 and 1954 championship teams, said it was a lot of fun coming back and has lots of memories.

"My wife (Charlotte) was the basketball queen in 1954 and we won the state title," Lewis said.

Ken Hinkle said he can remember coming out on the court for warm-ups.

"I can still hear the 50s playing," Hinkle said.

Before the game, the players honored Warren Hasse, who broadcasted their games. Former Harvesters Gary Griffin and E.J. McIlvin spoke about highlights and accomplishments from Hasse's career and presented him a plaque. Hasse said he was surprised and honored by the recognition.

"I'm very honored that these kids feel that way about it," Hasse said. "That's the most important thing in sports. Most people think the outcome of the game is the most important. It's not. It's the people."

Hasse said that though he was certainly looking forward to the game, he was more looking forward to the get-together Saturday.

"We're going to sit and tell stories for hours," Hasse said. "There's five players who had 40-point games."

The McNeely family was also honored. The late coach's wife Peggy, sons Phil and Mike, and daughter Sheryl Shaw were in attendance. School board president Derrell DeLoach presented the McNeelys with the resolution the board passed at Thursday's meeting. Shaw said the players her dad coached are like extended family.

"They call Mom and check on her," Shaw said. "It's great to come back and see everyone."

Warren Hasse (center) is honored by E.J. McIlvin (left) and Gary Griffin for his years of service as the team's broadcaster and his induction into the Panhandle Sports Hall of Fame.

Phil McNeely said it's pretty special to return to the court named after his dad.

"I remember my brother and I being in the first and second grade and shooting on this court," McNeely said.

McNeely added that it's fun to see some of the players his dad coached again.

"You hear stories that my dad wouldn't tell me," McNeely said.

The current Harvesters paid tribute to the McNeely crew by wearing warm-up tops similar to what they wore and wore striped tube socks. Mert Cooper thought the warm-ups were "super looking."

"They showed a lot of class," Cooper said.

At halftime, the players were recognized by team, starting with the first McNeely-coached team in 1947-48 to the last one in 1960-61. Hasse talked about each team's record and had people who were on each roster step forward. The Harvesters were 321-43 under McNeely, with a 72-game winning streak in the early 50s and another 53-game win streak later in the decade, at the end of McNeely's tenure.

Hinkle said it was a great night.

"It was a good turnout and a great time," Hinkle said. "The players played a good game. It was a special time."

Cooper said it was an honor to be on those teams.

"It was an honor to be a part of history and tradition," Cooper said. "One that will be tough to equal or beat."

Texas' oldest worker dies at 102

WEATHERFORD (AP) - A North Texas attorney honored for being America's oldest worker has died at age 102.

Up until his death, Jack Borden had worked daily at his Weatherford law practice, handling real estate and probate cases.

Borden died Wednesday. His law partner and nephew, John Westhoff, says he insisted that Borden go to a hospital for treatment of fluid on his lungs after Borden arrived at work Monday.

He was named America's Outstanding Oldest Worker for 2009 by Experience Works, the nation's largest non-profit training center for older workers.

Borden told The Associated Press in 2009 that he had no plans to retire.

He was known recalling with vivid details his childhood during the Great Depression and chasing draft dodgers when he was an FBI agent in the 1940s.

Union membership declines

WASHINGTON (AP) - The nation's labor unions saw another sharp decline in membership last year even as the economic recovery began and job losses slowed.

The Bureau of Labor Statistics says unions lost 612,000 members in 2010. That drops the unionized share of the work force to 11.9 percent from 12.3 percent in 2009.

Union membership in the private sector fell from 7.2 percent to 6.9 percent, a low point not seen since the infancy of the labor movement in the 1930s. The steepest decline was among construction workers.

Public employment unions saw a 1.2 percent decline, as state and local governments cut jobs. Those unions could see further declines this year as states eliminate more government jobs in an effort to balance budgets.

Charges dropped against teen

FORT COLLINS, Colo. (AP) — The prosecutor has dropped criminal charges against a 16-year-old Texas boy accused of kicking a rock off a cliff that killed a Michigan girl vacationing in northern Colorado.

The Larimer County district attorney's office said Thursday that it asked the court to withdraw the manslaughter charge against Freddie Henderson Bailey of Katy, Texas, in the death of 17-year-old Audra Brownell of Sparta, Mich. The trial was scheduled to start Feb. 1.

Prosecutors say some witness accounts of last June's incident had changed. Parents were also concerned about the effects on their children of testifying.

Prosecutors say there's no evidence Bailey meant to hurt anyone. He and Brownell were in Estes Park on separate church trips.

Man locked daughter in closet

BROWNSVILLE (AP) — A Brownsville woman accused of keeping her 12-year-old daughter locked in a closet, except for school or using the bathroom, is accused of failing to appear in court.

Leticia Ines was in the Cameron County Jail on Friday on charges of injury to a child, unlawful restraint and revoked bond.

Her underdeveloped and malnourished daughter was placed in foster care a year ago after a relative reported the alleged abuse.

Judge Leonel Alejandro on Thursday ordered the 41-year-old mother arrested when she failed to appear at a court hearing.

The Brownsville Herald reports defense attorney Alfredo Padilla on Wednesday told the judge that he had tried to contact Ines by telephone, but her line was disconnected.

Michelle Obama to be on Oprah

WASHINGTON (AP) — Michelle Obama is going on "The Oprah Winfrey Show."

The White House says the first lady is returning to her Chicago hometown Friday to tape one of the last original episodes of Winfrey's nationally syndicated talk show.

Mrs. Obama will discuss plans to launch a nationwide campaign to support families with someone in the military.

The first lady has become an advocate for military families. She has traveled to military installations to talk with service members about their needs and concerns and has urged Americans to volunteer time to help them.

The program is scheduled to air Thursday. Winfrey is ending her successful talk show at the end of the season after 25 years.

Post card mailed in 1958

MACON, Ga. (AP) - Wilmer Bragg Jr. sent his family in Macon a post card from New Mexico in 1958. He beat it home by more than half a century.

The 5-cent card, displaying a picture from inside Carlsbad Caverns, was postmarked Nov. 10, 1958 from Whites City, N.M. and was addressed to Bragg's wife, Sarah, and daughter, Beverly.

Bragg, then a 30-year-old Marine on leave, sent the card to let his family know he had spent the night at a motel in Snyder, Texas, and was sending a package from a souvenir store near the caverns.

A U.S. Postal Service spokeswoman says the card may have spent years stuck in equipment thought to be empty, but there's no way to be sure.

The couple will celebrate their 57th wedding anniversary in March.

Man jailed for posing as officer

KILLEEN (AP) — A Killeen man who police say flashed a fake badge and threatened prostitutes to get free sex is going to jail.

Paul Carroll Cathey was convicted of impersonating a public servant by pretending to be a Killeen police officer.

A judge on Thursday sentenced Cathey to 10 years of probation and ordered him to serve six months in the Bell County Jail.

Cathey was arrested in September. An alleged prostitute told police she was pressured into having sex with a man, and not charge him, because he said he was an officer and threatened to have her arrested.

The Killeen Daily Herald reports that the 45-year-old Cathey, during police interrogation, said he used a badge with a circle and star emblem that reads "security officer."

BISMARCK, N.D. (AP) - TransCanada Corp. said Thursday that it has secured enough contracts to ship 65,000 barrels of oil daily from Montana and North Dakota on its proposed oil pipeline from Canada to the Gulf of Mexico.

The Calgary-based company said it signed five-year contracts with producers tapping the rich Bakken formation in North Dakota and Montana to transport crude on the proposed 1,980-mile-long Keystone XL pipeline, which is designed to move crude from Alberta's oil sands to refineries in Oklahoma and Texas.

The five-mile long Bakken Marketlink pipeline would meet with the Keystone XL pipeline in Baker, Mont., said Paul Miller, TransCanada's senior vice president of oil pipelines. The $140 million project would rely on so-called feeder pipelines proposed by other companies to move North Dakota and Montana crude to the facility in Baker, he said.

"There are numerous proposals out there for feeder pipelines to the Baker hub," he said.

Miller said oil from North Dakota and Montana would be segregated from Canadian crude and then sent to storage facilities in Cushing, Okla., which typically store about 10 percent of the nation's oil.

TransCanada had faced political pressure to let U.S. oil companies tap into the Keystone XL pipeline that would cross Montana, South Dakota, Nebraska, Kansas, Oklahoma and Texas. The project would pass through or near oil fields along the Montana-North Dakota border.

Oil companies and officials from North Dakota and Montana had complained that development of the states' oil patches had been hampered by a lack of refineries, pipelines and rail facilities.

Montana Gov. Brian Schweitzer had threatened to hold up Keystone XL's 280-mile route through his state if it did not agree to an "onramp." Sen. John Hoeven, R-N.D., also has pushed for U.S. access to the pipeline.

Schweitzer said Thursday the Bakken Marketlink would encourage more drilling in Montana and North Dakota by increasing potential profit margins for companies.

Hoeven said the project "means significantly more transport capacity for North Dakota producers in the Williston Basin, and reduced reliance on foreign oil imports."

The Bakken Marketlink is slated to come online in early 2013, Miller said.

The Keystone XL pipeline needs a permit from the State Department because it would cross the U.S.-Canada border in carrying Canadian oil to the U.S. Gulf Coast.

Environmental groups have pushed the State Department to reject TransCanada's application. They say the pipeline would speed the expansion of oil sands extraction to a rate that could exacerbate global warming.

Miller said the company expects to get approval for the Keystone XL by mid-year.

Giffords' transfer to Houston 'flawless'

HOUSTON (AP) — Rep. Gabrielle Giffords smiled inside an ambulance as she heard applause during a dramatic send-off from her hometown Friday, and doctors say her transfer by jet and helicopter to a hospital in Houston went flawlessly.

Thronges of sign-carrying well-wishers lined the streets in Tucson to wave and cheer.

"She responded very well to that — smiling and even tearing a little bit," said Dr. Randall Friese, a surgeon at the University Medical Center trauma center in Tucson. "It was very emotional and very special."

Friese and Giffords' doctors in Houston spoke Friday afternoon at a news conference at Texas Medical Center. Doctors say Giffords has a drain in her brain because of a fluid buildup, so she will stay for now in the ICU. She will be moved later to the center's TIRR Memorial Hermann rehabilitation hospital.

Doctors say she'll have her first rehab session in the ICU Friday afternoon.

She has "great rehabilitation potential," said Dr. Gerardo Francisco, chief medical officer at TIRR Memorial Hermann.

A gunman shot Giffords and 18 other people Jan. 8 as she met with constituents outside a grocery store in Tucson. Six people died; all other survivors have been released from the hospital. The suspect in the attack, Jared Loughner, 22, of Tucson, is being held in federal custody.

Giffords has been making progress nearly every day at University Medical Center in Tucson. Her husband, Houston-based astronaut Mark Kelly, tweeted Friday: "GG going to next phase of her recover today. Very grateful to the docs and nurses at UMC, Tucson PD, Sheriff's Dept....Back in Tucson ASAP!"

Kelly traveled with Giffords, along with her mother, a doctor and other medical workers. A specially outfitted jet took her to Houston, then a helicopter took her from the Houston airport to the ICU at Texas Medical Center, where she'll be evaluated before going to the center's rehabilitation hospital, TIRR Memorial Hermann. U.S. Capitol police arrived Thursday afternoon to set up extra security measures at the 119-bed facility.

Despite the steady progress, doctors warn Giffords has a long road to recovery. Doctors are not sure what, if any, disability she will have.

She moves her lips, but it's not clear whether she is mouthing words, nor how much she is able to see.

"Not everyone always gets 100 percent restoration, but we help them to get to a new normal," said Carl Josehart, chief executive of the rehab hospital that will be Giffords' home for the next month or two.

Dr. Gerard Francisco, the hospital's chief medical officer, will coordinate her care.

"It's going to be a very big team that will address different impairments, but they will have to work together," he said.

First, they'll check her vital signs — make sure her blood pressure and heart rate are good. Then specialists ranging from physical and occupational therapists to speech therapists and psychologists will give a slew of tests to see what she can and cannot do.

They'll determine the strength of her legs and her ability to stand and walk; the strength of her arms, and whether she can brush her teeth or comb her hair; whether she can safely swallow on her own; how well she thinks and communicates — not just her ability to speak but also to understand and comprehend.

While she is moving both arms and legs, it's uncertain how much strength she has on her right side; the bullet passed through the left side of her brain, which controls the right side of the body.

Giffords will stay at Memorial Hermann until she no longer needs 24-hour medical care — the average is one to two months. Then she can get up to five hours a day of physical and other rehab therapies on an outpatient basis, Josehart said.

Death penalty drug ceased by U.S. firm

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — The only U.S. manufacturer of a key lethal injection drug is discontinuing the drug's production because Italian authorities wanted a guarantee that it wouldn't be used to put inmates to death — a decision that could disrupt executions in states already struggling with a shortage of the drug.

Hospira Inc., of Lake Forest, Ill., said Friday that it had decided to switch manufacture of the anesthetic from its North Carolina plant to a Hospira plant in Lisiate, outside of Milan, in Italy. But Italian authorities insisted the company control the product's distribution all the way to the end user to guarantee it wouldn't be used in executions.

Today in History

Today is Saturday, Jan. 22, the 22nd day of 2011. There are 343 days left in the year.

Today's Highlight in History:

On Jan. 22, 1973, the U.S. Supreme Court, in its Roe v. Wade decision, legalized abortions using a trimester approach.

On this date:

In 1498, during his third voyage to the Western Hemisphere, explorer Christopher Columbus arrived at the present-day Caribbean island of St. Vincent.

In 1901, Britain's Queen Victoria died at age 81.

In 1907, the Richard Strauss opera "Salome" made its American debut at the Metropolitan Opera in New York; its racy content sparked outrage and forced cancellation of additional performances.

In 1917, President Woodrow Wilson pleaded for an end to war in Europe, calling for "peace without victory." (By April, however, America also was at war.)

In 1922, Pope Benedict XV died; he was succeeded by Pius XI.

In 1944, during World War II, Allied forces began landing at Anzio, Italy.

In 1959, 12 workers were killed in the Knox Mine Disaster in Pennsylvania.

In 1973, former President Lyndon B. Johnson died at age 64.

In 1995, Rose Fitzgerald Kennedy died at the Kennedy compound at Hyannis Port, Mass., at age 104.

In 2008, actor Heath Ledger was found dead of an accidental prescription overdose in New York City; he was 28.

Ten years ago: On the anniversary of the Supreme Court decision legalizing abortion, President George W. Bush signed a memorandum reinstating full abortion restrictions on U.S. overseas aid.

Five years ago: Evo Morales, Bolivia's first Indian president, took office with a promise to lift his nation's struggling indigenous majority out of centuries of poverty and discrimination.

One year ago: President Barack Obama tried to revive his battered agenda and rally Democrats with a renewed emphasis on jobs during a town hall meeting in Elyria, Ohio. The "Hope for Haiti Now" telethon raised over $66 million. Conan O'Brien ended his brief tenure on "The Tonight Show" after accepting a $45 million buyout from NBC to leave the show he'd long dreamed of hosting after only seven months. Actress Jean Simmons, 80, died in Santa Monica, Calif. Actor James Mitchell, 89, died in Los Angeles.

Poll: Obama popular but doubts on progress

Liz Sidoti
Associated Press

WASHINGTON (AP) — Thumbs up for President Barack Obama's personality. Thumbs down for his progress.

An overwhelming majority of Americans like Obama, but most say he hasn't accomplished much on two top goals — fixing the sluggish economy and changing how Washington works, according to a new Associated Press-GfK poll midway through the first term of his presidency.

Half of those surveyed say he deserves a second term, and independents, whose support will be critical in 2012, are evenly divided on that question. Obama is getting the benefit of the doubt despite concerns about his policies, a reflection based in large part on his likability.

"He's doing a pretty good job," says Alan Bliven, 54, of Tucson, Ariz. "I'm not all sold on him," but the president's performance is good enough that he should be re-elected.

Joanne Abbott, 46, of Sebring, Fla., disagrees.

"I don't dislike Obama. I like him as a person," she says, but adds, "I don't think he's accomplished much. ... I wish the economy would come back."

The AP-GfK poll is a snapshot in time, and plenty could happen between now and November 2012, including an economic upturn that could cut the 9.4 percent unemployment rate. But, in a polarized nation, the findings portend a competitive presidential race no matter who the GOP candidate is.

Although beating an incumbent is tough,

Republicans sense an opening, given the sluggish economic recovery and Obama's acknowledged failure to fulfill his promise of doing business differently in a partisan Washington.

Overall, 53 percent of Americans approve of how Obama is governing, putting him roughly in the middle when compared with his modern-day predecessors halfway through their first terms.

Almost as many people rate Obama's presidency below average (34 percent) as call it above average (38 percent). Forty-one percent overall — and 30 percent among independents — say he understands the important issues the nation will face the next two years. Only 26 percent say he's kept most of his campaign promises.

Americans diverge over whether Obama's prescriptions are best.

"He's too much of a socialist, he wants too big of a government, and he shouldn't get re-elected," said 72-year-old Tom Wilkinson of Sparland, Ill. "I'm sick and tired of Chicago politics, and I think that's where he comes out of."

Art Winstanley, 58, of Key West, Fla., says Obama deserves more time. "Some things he's done are taking time to kick in with the public. He's got two years before people go 'Ho, ho, smoke, this guy did a lot of good stuff!'"

Despite his lukewarm policy marks, Obama has an enormous advantage because of how people see him personally; a whopping 83 percent call him likable, and 59 percent view him favorably. Majorities also consider him empathetic (63 percent), a strong leader (62 percent), and in-touch with ordinary Americans (61 percent).

The numbers are similar to the ones President Ronald Reagan faced before winning a second term in 1984.

Still, the AP-GfK poll shows areas of vulnerability as Obama governs and campaigns:

•More than half disapprove of how he's handled the economy. Just 35 percent say it's improved on his watch; 40 percent said that a year ago. It's driven largely by lower-income people as well as those in the Northeast and the West who are losing faith in Obama's ability to orchestrate a turnaround. Three-quarters do say it's unrealistic to expect noticeable improvements after two years; they say it will take longer.

•Roughly a third — 34 percent — say Obama hasn't lived up to his promise of change, an increase from 27 percent last January. More Democrats argue he's kept that pledge, while more Republicans say he's broken it. Overall, 50 percent say it's too soon to tell. People are split over his pace of change: 36 percent say too much, too quickly, 32 percent say it's about right, 31 percent say he's not moving fast enough. More independents want to see Obama move quicker than not.

•Fifty-one percent of independents approve of his job performance, an uptick since November as Obama reached out to Republicans (70 and compromised with them on taxes (70 in a new era of divided government. But just 30 percent score his presidency above average or better, a slippage from 37 percent a year ago. And independents divide about evenly on whether he deserves to be re-elected: 46 percent say yes, 43 percent no. He still has trouble with support among men and whites; they are more apt than women and nonwhites to want him fired.

•Despite vocal complaints from the left, the poll shows evidence that Obama's base isn't nearly as fractured as it has seemed. Democrats overwhelmingly give him high marks. Liberal Democrats are more likely to call Obama's presidency outstanding or above average than even moderate Democrats. And there's no difference between the two groups over whether Obama should face a primary challenge; majorities of both groups say no. It's largely a moot point as no serious challenger has emerged.

The AP-GfK Poll was conducted Jan. 5-10 by GfK Roper Public Affairs and Corporate Communications. It involved landline and cell-phone interviews with 1,001 adults nationwide, and has a margin of sampling error of plus or minus 4.2 percentage points.

Forecast: Gas prices to continue rise

WASHINGTON (AP) — Gas pump prices that are around $3 a gallon now may seem like a bargain by the time your kids are on Easter egg hunts.

Pump prices have risen nearly 9 percent since Dec. 1 and topped $3.10 a gallon this week. That's the highest level since October 2008. The price may rise or fall a little over the next few months, but analysts expect it to range between $3.20 and $3.75 gallon by March and April ahead of the summer driving season.

The national average for regular gasoline about $3.12 a gallon on Friday, according to AAA, Wright Express and Oil Price Information Service. That's nearly 12 cents more than a month ago and 38 cents above a year ago.

Average pump prices range from $2.81 to $3.70 in major cities. For example, the average in Salt Lake City is $2.74 a gallon and in New Orleans it's $2.97 a gallon. Drivers in San Francisco pay $3.44 a gallon, and in Honolulu gas is $3.58 a gallon.

Americans typically drive less in the winter. Demand is about 1 percentage point higher than a year ago but remains weaker than the historical average, said energy analyst Jim Ritterbusch. The nation's gasoline supplies remain above the five-year average.

Over the next couple of months, refineries will conduct regular maintenance to prepare for the change-over to summer driving mixes. That could affect supplies, but gas prices should remain steady to a few cents more, according to oil analyst Tom Kloza of Oil Price Information Service.

Sunday in History

Tomorrow is Sunday, Jan. 23, the 23rd day of 2011. There are 342 days left in the year.

Today's Highlight in History:

On Jan. 23, 1961, word reached the world that the Portuguese ocean liner Santa Maria, with some 600 passengers aboard, had been seized in the Caribbean by two dozen hijackers led by Henrique Galvao, an opponent of Portugal's leader, Antonio de Oliveira Salazar. (The drama ended on Feb. 2 with the surrender of the hijackers off Brazil.)

On this date:

In 1789, Georgetown University was established in present-day Washington, D.C.

In 1845, Congress decided all national elections would be held on the first Tuesday after the first Monday in November.

In 1932, New York Gov. Franklin D. Roosevelt announced his candidacy for the Democratic presidential nomination.

In 1943, critic Alexander Woollcott suffered a fatal heart attack during a live broadcast of the CBS radio program "People's Platform."

In 1950, the Israeli Knesset approved a resolution affirming Jerusalem as the capital of Israel.

In 1960, the U.S. Navy-operated bathyscaphe Trieste carried two men to the deepest known point in the Pacific Ocean, reaching a depth of more than 35,000 feet.

In 1964, the 24th amendment to the Constitution, eliminating the poll tax in federal elections, was ratified.

In 1968, North Korea seized the Navy intelligence ship USS Pueblo, charging its crew with being on a spying mission. (The crew was released 11 months later.)

In 1973, President Richard M. Nixon announced an accord had been reached to end the Vietnam War.

In 1981, American composer Samuel Barber died in New York at age 70.

Ten years ago: California energy officials eked sufficient power out of tight West Coast electricity supplies to avoid rush hour blackouts as lawmakers scrambled to make longer-term deals to buy power. Five people identified by Chinese authorities as Falun Gong followers set themselves on fire in Beijing's Tiananmen Square; two died.

Five years ago: Ford Motor Co. said it would cut up to 30,000 jobs and idle 14 facilities in North America by 2012. A U.S. military jury at Fort Carson, Colo., ordered a reprimand, but no jail time, for Chief Warrant Officer Lewis Welshofer Jr., an Army interrogator convicted of killing an Iraqi general. Stephen Harper and his Conservative Party won Canada's national elections, ending 13 years of Liberal rule.

One year ago: Abby Sunderland, 16, left Marina del Rey, Calif. on her first attempt to become the youngest person to sail solo around the world. (The voyage ended a week and a-half later because the boat experienced power problems; Sunderland then made a second attempt, but that too fell short.) Rachael Flatt won her first title at the U.S. Figure Skating Championships in Spokane, Wash., finishing more than 10 points ahead of Mirai Nagasu.

Rain, snow come, but many areas remain moisture-short

ROBERT BURNS
Special to The Pampa News

COLLEGE STATION Since New Year's, some Texas counties had received from 2 to 6 inches of moisture, but much of the state remains behind as far as long-term accumulations go, said Texas AgriLife Extension Service personnel.

From the Panhandle to South Texas, the lack of moisture affected winter wheat and other crops and caused concern about the future success of spring plantings, according to county reports from AgriLife Extension agents.

"Producers have had a productive week in the field this week with above average temperatures but no moisture in the area," reported Rick Auckerman, AgriLife Extension agent for Deaf Smith County, west of Amarillo. "Winter wheat continues to deteriorate with the lack of moisture and extreme drying conditions in our area."

"Soil moisture is very short with no measurable rainfall since late October," said Jay Kingston, AgriLife Extension agent for Kent County, east of Lubbock. "Wheat is in poor to very poor condition along with native pastures."

"Pecos County has gone 120 days without any measurable precipitation," said Norman Fryar, AgriLife Extension agent for Pecos County, south of Odessa. "Continued winds and diverse temperature ranges are impacting the overall agricultural industry of the county."

"Conditions remain dry in Foard County. Producers are debating on whether to top-dress wheat," said Seth Mantey, AgriLife Extension agent for Foard County, west of Wichita Falls. "Many would like to contract wheat, but are reluctant with this weather pattern."

"It has been very cold this week, we still have not received any rain," reported Greg Gruben, AgriLife Extension agent for Scurry County, west of Abilene. "Rangeland and wheat were really struggling due to the lack of rainfall. We certainly do not have any underground moisture to start next season's crop."

"We had from 0.5-1.5 inches of snow Sunday and Monday with some scattered rainfall late Monday," said Rick Hirsch, AgriLife Extension agent for Henderson County, west of Tyler. "Hay supplies are rapidly depleting with increasing cold weather. Soil-moisture conditions were helped by snow and rain but it was not enough to sustain production."

"We went from a 100-percent topsoil moisture shortage to a 100-percent, adequate topsoil moisture," said Larry Perez, AgriLife Extension agent for Jim Hogg County, east of Laredo. "A 1- to 2- inch rainfall event will do that in this area. Very cool temps with significant moisture and lots of clouds means no evaporation and moisture retention; lots of smiling faces in the county."

AgriLife Extension district reporters compiled the following summaries:

PANHANDLE: The region remained very dry. Soil moisture was short to very short, which adversely affected all winter wheat but particularly that grown without irrigation. Field activities across most of the area were at a standstill due to weather. In a few counties, producers were preparing fields for spring plantings. A large increase in acreage destined for cotton planting was anticipated. Supplemental feeding of cattle was the norm for most livestock producers. Some had to routinely break ice in tanks and ponds due to the severe cold.

ROLLING PLAINS: Cold and dry conditions continued, and wild-fire danger was high. Some wheat fields under center-pivot irrigation made good progress. Other fields were in severe need of moisture. The farmers nearly had the cotton harvest finished with only a few modules of cotton needing to get picked up. All things considered, 2010 was a very good year for cotton farmers. Many were shredding and plowing the last remaining of their fields. Eventually, they plan to prepare beds for spring planting, but currently, soils were rock hard due to the lack of moisture. Livestock were in fair condition with supplemental feeding. Feral hog movement and destruction increased.

SOUTH PLAINS: The region was bitterly cold with a low of 8 degrees and a high of 27 degrees, and wind gusts up to 23 mph. Soil moisture was very short to short. The cotton-ginning season continued to wind down with only a few gins still running. Winter wheat was in poor to fair condition and in need of moisture. Pastures and rangeland were in poor to fair condition with rainfall needed for cool-season grasses.

toward the roll-off containers that we have to use for this demolition project," Hooper said.

He said the city does not own any of its own roll-off containers.

"We don't own those," he said. "We have to contract those out because they're very large containers."

Hooper said the city spends about $1,500 per structure for the containers and delivery to the landfill.

"Our part on it, which includes equipment and labor and what it costs to process it at the landfill, administrative fees, is about $3,200," he said. "We're just asking the EDC to assist us with that

$1,500 fee that we have to pay for the roll-off containers."

Hooper said the $75,000 will take care of demolishing about 50 residential structures this year.

That number, according to PEDC Executive Director Clay Rice, is "based on an average size of 1500 square feet per structure; under those evaluations, a 3,000-square-foot structure would count as two buildings.

Those numbers do not include commercial property, Hooper said. Commercial property, he added, is currently a big issue in Pampa.

"Commercial property can be very expensive," Hooper said. "If we do decide to go in and do a demolition, it can be very costly."

If there is asbestos in the building, he said, the city could spend from $50,000 to $75,000 on one commercial property alone.

Hooper said there are several commercial buildings in Pampa that need to be torn down.

"We're going to have some issues with them," he said.

Hooper said that the big concerns are the entrances to town — the highways coming in and leaving Pampa.

"A lot of those properties are located in the county," he said. "They're not located within the city limits."

Hooper said the city doesn't have the jurisdiction to do anything about those buildings.

"A part of our clean-up campaign that we've got is to take some of the dangerous residential structures that are in our community and rid the community of some crime spots and dangerous properties and improve the appearance of our community," Hooper said.

PEDC Executive Director Clay Rice reiterated that, while the city has made the request for funding, no money has yet changed hands.

"Our attorney is doing some additional research and we don't have an answer back on that yet," Rice said. "We won't know until the research is done and she gets back with us, which I believe will probably be next month. Nothing has been approved yet."

Dear Abby...

By Pauline & Jeanne Phillips

DEAR ABBY: I have a father who's always mean to me. He finds reasons to yell at me — for example, the trash isn't taken out or the dishes aren't washed. He isn't involved in my educational life at all. When my teachers request a conference with my parents, he almost never shows up. When I graduated from elementary school and middle school, he didn't come to either of the ceremonies.

I'll talk to my dad about these things sometimes, and he says he's sorry and the next day he'll buy me something to try and make it up to me. He can be really nice when he wants to be, but most of the time he's a mean person. He is always putting me down, calling me an idiot and saying I'm worthless and a good-for-nothing son. I really want to become friends with my father, but it seems he doesn't. What can I do? — WANTS A FATHER IN SOUTH CAROLINA

DEAR WANTS A FATHER: You may not be the perfect son, but you are NOT good-for-nothing, worthless or an idiot. What you have described is sad, because this may be a "parenting technique" your dad learned from his own father. I don't know whether he's an alcoholic, a workaholic or what other reasons there may be for his absence and his guilt. But "Father of the Year" he's not, and if you want a male you can look up to, you will have to find one elsewhere. Talk to your mother about this if you haven't, and ask her to guide you. You have my sympathy.

DEAR ABBY: My son and his girlfriend of 13 years, "Liza," broke up, and my son has moved out of the house they bought together. They still have a lot to settle, but so far, they remain on reasonably good terms.

The news of their split has left my wife and me feeling bad. We developed a bond with Liza over the years and we are unsure how to proceed from here. We feel she has become a part of our family, especially since she has no real family of her own. We would like to express our sorrow for their breakup, wish her the best in the future and, perhaps, maintain friendly contact. We do not want to upset our son by doing this.

Please advise me on how we should proceed. What is the proper approach for parents and other family members in this situation? — CAUGHT IN THE MIDDLE IN OTTAWA

DEAR CAUGHT IN THE MIDDLE: You're asking the wrong person. The person you should discuss this with is your son. While it is understandable that you feel Liza is a member of the family, the truth is she isn't in the literal sense. The extent to which you keep her in your lives may depend upon the circumstances of the breakup. While the extended family may wish to maintain relationships with her on an individual basis, whether your son would be comfortable having her present during family holidays is yet to be determined.

DEAR ABBY: I am 17. My 15-year-old sister and I know each other's thoughts and feelings almost as well as our own. Unfortunately, we also know when the other's funny bone is "tickly" — and it starts a giggling fit. When we start, we can't stop.

We get these fits at the most inappropriate times. We are at our wit's end. Can you help? — GIGGLE GIRLS IN LANCASTER, PA.

DEAR GIGGLE GIRLS: Yes. When you know something is funny, but it is inappropriate to start giggling, the two of you should not make eye contact. That will solve your problem.

Harvesters rout Borger on McNeely reunion night

aglover@thepampanews.com

To the right of the Pampa Harvesters basket in the first half on Friday night sat the players who played under late Harvester basketball coach Clifton McNeely. This group won five state titles in the 50s and had winning streaks of 72 games and 53 games.

In the house those players built, the Harvesters gave them glimpses of their glory days in a 64-35 rout of the Borger Bulldogs.

Senior starting point guard Zach Murray said they spent a lot of time preparing for the game.

"We watched the films," Murray said. "Coach put in a rivalry film to show us how big of a game it was."

Head coach Dustin Miller said the boys played really hard the whole game.

"I hope they made a lot of people proud," Miller said.

Assistant coach Matt Embry said the team was plenty motivated.

"District games don't require motivation," Embry said. "Borger is its own motivation inside and outside of district... they're going to be up for you. They gave us a good game last year. We had a great gameplan, executed it and came out on top."

Senior forward Jonathan Polasek said they wanted to play well for the large crowd.

"It felt good to relax and play well in front of the crowd," Polasek said. "Borger is longtime rival and we knew if we played our best game we would take care of it."

The Bulldogs (10-8, 0-2) never led in the game and only tied once at two. The Harvesters led by as many as nine. Junior guard Latigo Collins was the leader of the offensive attack with nine points in the first quarter. Pampa led 16-7 after one.

In most of the second quarter, both teams exchanged turnovers. There was only 14 points scored in the quarter. Borger opened scoring the first five points of the quarter and prompted a timeout by Miller. Pampa closed the quarter by scoring the last nine. The Harvesters led 25-12 at halftime.

The Harvesters (12-9, 2-0) were in complete control in the second half. The Bulldogs didn't get closer than 14 points. Pampa outscored Borger 19-9 in the third quarter and started a 15-point run that continued into the fourth. The Harvesters won the fourth quarter 20-14.

Collins led the team in scoring with 13 points. Senior forward Garrett Ericson followed with 12, scoring eight in the fourth quarter. Murray scored 10 including six in the third quarter.

The senior point guard said he was just trying to help get his team out front.

"I was trying to get that big lead we wanted," Murray said. "I was just trying to do my best."

Embry said Murray struck some baskets.

"If we can get him consistently shooting well, we're going to be tough to beat," Embry said.

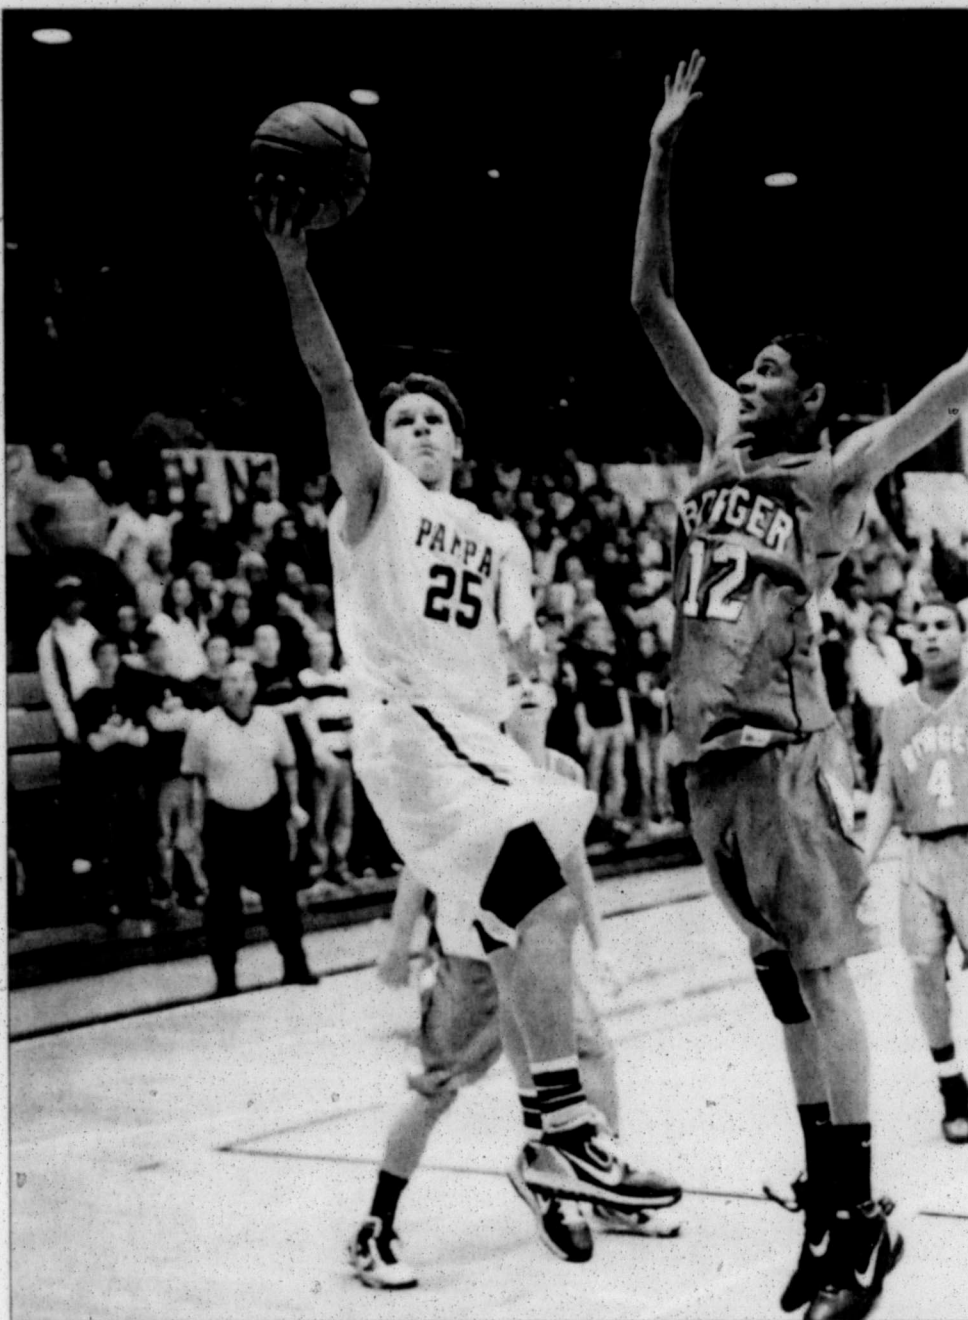

Jamon Hearon led the Bulldogs in scoring with 17.

The junior varsity lost 57-30 and played with only six players because three were out sick, Embry said that affected them.

"We just ran out of gas after halftime," Embry said. "We just didn't execute in the second half. If we did we would have had a chance."

The Harvesters visit Perryton (12-11, 1-1) 7:30 p.m. Tuesday. Polasek said it will be a challenge.

"Perryton is a hard place to play," Polasek said. "The student section is rowdy. (Perryton) plays a tough man defense. We just have to go in and take care of business."

Borger wins as Lady Harvester rally comes up short

aglover@thepampanews.com

The Pampa Lady Harvesters won the first two games with their district rival the Borger Lady Bulldogs and were hoping for a much needed third win. Friday, though, was the Lady Bulldogs' day as they held off a Pampa fourth quarter rally in a 49-46 victory at McNeely Fieldhouse.

Head coach Gene Valentine said Borger recently called someone up and weren't prepared for her.

"We had an idea of what she could do but weren't really sure," Valentine said. "First half she couldn't miss in the second half she didn't score because we made some adjustments.

Nellie Embers scored 15 points in the first half including nine in the second quarter.

Junior post player Kailyn Troxell said the team wasn't able to convert at key times.

"We missed free throws and shots when we needed them.

Pampa held the lead during most of the first quarter, playing in front by as many as three. Borger took control the rest of the quarter outscoring the Lady Harvesters 7-1. Madison Argo hit a three-pointer that put the Lady Bulldogs ahead 13-9. Borger led 15-10 after the first.

The second quarter was fairly even. Junior guard Kirsten Kuhn made a three and Troxell followed with a layup and tied the game at 15. Kuhn hit her second three of the quarter to give Pampa an 18-17 lead. The Lady Harvesters built their largest lead of the game at 23-19; but only to see Borger come back. The Lady Bulldogs ended the quarter on a 10-2 run. Embers tied the game at 23 and was fouled and converted the free throw to put Borger back on top. The first half had five lead changes and two ties. The Lady Bulldogs led 29-25 at halftime.

In the third quarter, Borger (9-15, 1-3) scored the first five points and held their largest lead of the game 34-25. Pampa didn't get closer than five and only made three baskets. The Lady Bulldogs outscored the Lady Harvesters 10-7 and led 39-32 after three.

Pampa stormed back in the fourth quarter scoring the first seven points to tie the game at 39. The Lady Harvesters and Lady Bulldogs exchanged the next two baskets. Borger took a three-point lead on a three-point play. Kuhn nailed her fourth three of the game to tie the game at 46. Brittany Thomas put the Lady Bulldogs ahead for good with a jumper. The Lady Harvesters had a chance to tie the game but Kuhn couldn't get a shot off before the buzzer.

The junior guard led the Lady Harvesters in scoring with 16 points and Troxell followed with 10. Embers led the Lady Bulldogs in scoring with 15 and Thomas followed with nine.

The junior varsity (7-14, 2-2) won 50-45. Coach Braydon Barker said it was one of the best games they've played this season.

"We made some shots," Barker said. "The offense looked better and defensively we caused more turnovers."

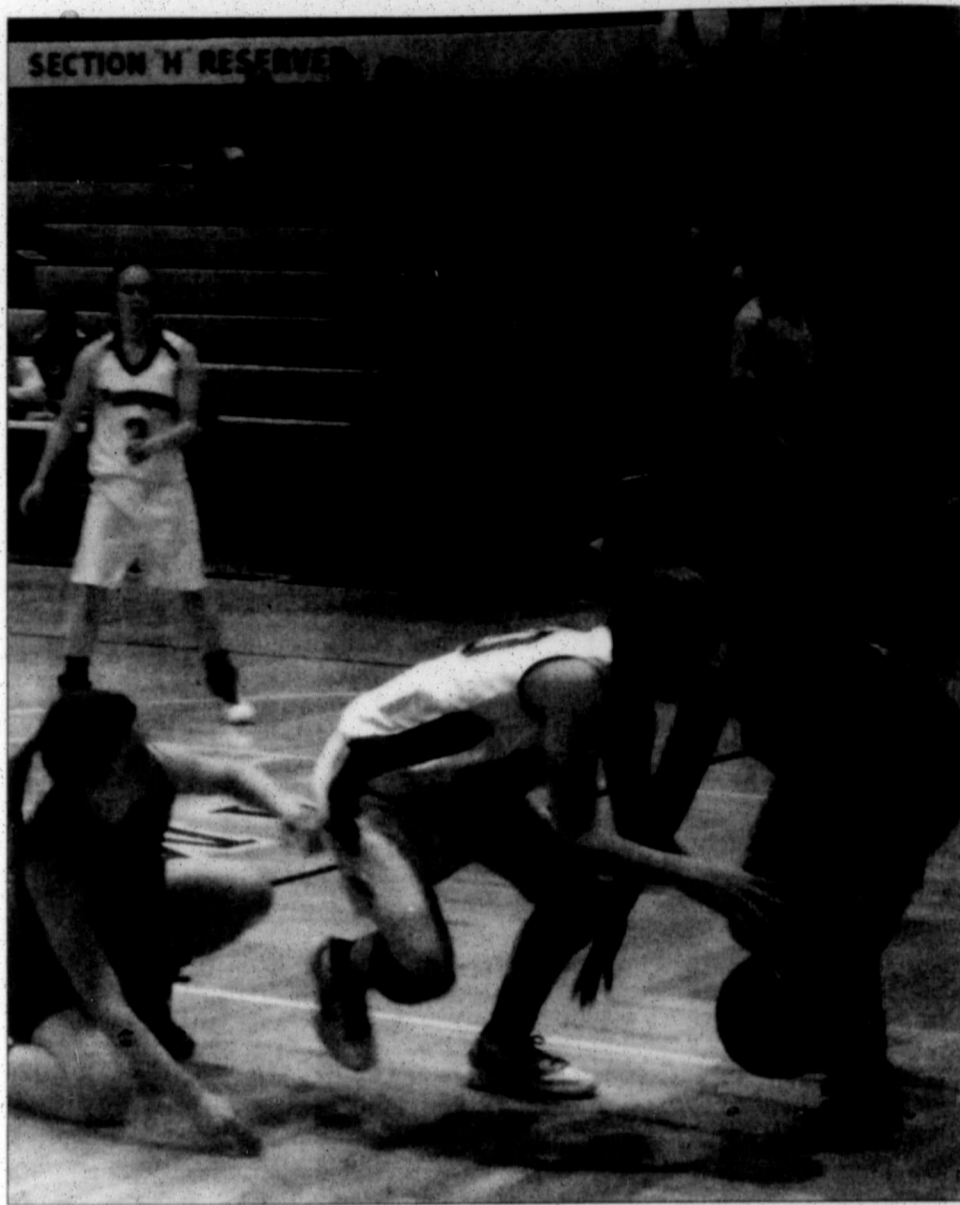

The Lady Harvesters (5-17, 1-3), with the loss, are now tied with Borger for third. They meet for a final time February 1 in Borger. Troxell said the team needs to come together again.

"We just need to rely on each other.

Valentine said that the team has to regroup, but reminded his players they still have time.

"Initially at the beginning of the game they need to be ready to go," Valentine said. "Don't go into the game and figure out what's going on, attack from the beginning... We've got Perryton and Dalhart next week and we no what they have and they won't be changing. We got to keep fighting. There's a lot of games left."

Pampa visits Perryton (17-8, 4-0) 6 p.m. Tuesday.

NFL CHAMPIONSHIP GAMES

Roethlisberger the veteran of championship game QBs

PITTSBURGH (AP) — The quarterback saga for Sunday's conference championship games goes far beyond Benny and the Jets.

Sure, Ben Roethlisberger towers over the AFC landscape with his overpowering arm, improvisational skills, outsized personality and a strong-willed comeback from off-field trouble. And, oh yeah, don't forget his two Super Bowl rings — with a third within grasp in just his seventh NFL season.

"I know I probably never will win the league MVP or passing title," he says. "That is not why I play the game. I try to win football games and championships."

Also trying to win a championship, their first, are Green Bay's Aaron Rodgers, Chicago's Jay Cutler and the New York Jets' Mark Sanchez. To dismiss any of the other quarterbacks in the final four would be foolhardy.

No one is playing better than Rodgers, who has not only stepped out of Brett Favre's shadow, he's beginning to cast one of his own over Cheeseheads everywhere.

Cutler has toned down his wild wings act, morphing into the dependable quarterback the Bears need to complement their fierce defense. Cutler even equaled a record set by the great Otto Graham more than 50 years ago when he had two TDs passing and two more rushing against Seattle in the divisional round.

Sanchez? He's already won twice as many postseason games as Joe Namath — all on the road.

Quite an eclectic group, although Sanchez questions if he belongs, even though a win Sunday gives him more road playoff victories than any quarterback Ever.

"That kind of stuff is maybe something you'll tell your grandkids about," he says. "But for now, these wins are for us. It's for the Jets. We all beat them."

By far, Roethlisberger is the most accomplished of the remaining QBs. He also has the biggest black mark on his resume: Commissioner Roger Goodell suspended Roethlisberger for four games to start the 2010 season for violating the league's personal conduct policy. He was accused in March of the sexual assault of a 20-year-old college student, but a prosecutor in Georgia declined to bring charges.

Just when the fan base in Pittsburgh seemed ready to turn against him, Roethlisberger appears to have turned around his life. He even was given a media cooperation award that is named for Steelers founder Art Rooney Sr., and has been won by Dan Rooney, Rod Woodson, Jerome Bettis and Hines Ward. Roethlisberger called it "an awesome honor."

Eighth grade girls win one, lose one vs. Dalhart Jr. High

aglover@thepampanews.com

The Pampa Junior High eighth grade team lost and the B team won against Dalhart Monday at Pampa Junior High.

The A team lost 33-28 in overtime. Pampa turned the ball over 19 times, grabbed seven rebounds, one assist and six steals. The Lady Reapers shot 33 percent from the free throw line, 41 percent from the field and was 0 for 5 in three-pointers.

Taylor Eubank and Risa Rodriguez led the team in rebounds with two each. Madison Brown, Macie Loggins and Allison Noble each stole one. Ty Johnson recorded the only assist and led the team in steals with three. Eubank, Loggins and Rodriguez each had one. Brown led the team in scoring with 13. Eubank followed with seven, Johnson and Caragan Niccum each scored four.

The B team won 26-24.

Pampa had 35 turnovers, recorded 20 rebounds, three assists and 11 steals. The Lady Reapers shot 35 percent from the free throw line, 32 percent from the field and missed on three pointers.

Keshia Daniels led the team in rebounds with five. Raven Neal and Samara Villanueva followed with three each. Perla Barajas, Kristina Brown and Madelyn Solis each had one. Solis led the team in assists with two and Villanueva had one. Villanueva, Daniels, Kristina Brown, Solis and Karen Duarte led the team in steals with two each. Neal stole one. Kristina Brown led the team in scoring with eight. Daniels followed with five, Villanueva and Barajas followed with four. Solis scored three and Neal scored two.

Sunday Horoscope

for Sunday, Jan. 23, 2011:

This year, others discover your empathy and understanding. Oddly enough, by detaching from your issues and triggers, you can walk in another's footsteps. You quickly learn that there is no right or wrong, but simply an issue as to where one comes from and how this person thinks. Work demands a lot of your attention. If single, you could meet a very exotic stranger. Be open to his or her style. If attached, the two of you gain from special time away together. SCORE! makes demands.

The Stars Show the Kind of Day You'll Have: 5-Dynamic; 4-Positive; 3-Average; 2-So-so; 1-Difficult

ARIES (March 21-April 19)

★★★ Clear out a project, or spend time with a friend or loved one. Play cards, Battleship or another favorite game. Not focusing on daily issues helps you relax. A sudden insight takes you by surprise. Tonight: Dinner with friends.

This Week: Others pull their weight. They want your attention. Let them have it.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20)

★★★★★ Don't curb your innate sense of mirth and playfulness. A child and you have quite a time together. This bonding could be more important than you are aware of. For some, their playfulness will cement and mark a friendship. Tonight: Go with a change of plans.

This Week: Make a strong effort to clear out as much as possible Monday and Tuesday. Others want to draw you into their discussions from late Tuesday on.

GEMINI (May 21-June

★★★ Some of you could spend the day yacking on the phone or reading a book. Others want to listen to some music. Relax your mind, but also your body. A call or plans in the late afternoon could be far more social than anticipated. Tonight: Out again.

This Week: Your creativity surges, but will you be able to funnel it into your work? You are going to have to.

CANCER (June 21-July 22)

★★★★ You speak your mind, and as a result, you could experience an unanticipated reaction. Do sit down and rethink your words. If you put yourself in this person's mind set, you might gain insight and empathy. Tonight: Mellow out at home.

This Week: Make it OK to be out of sorts. Once you feel better, you more than make up for any lost time.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22)

★★★★ Whether you are balancing your checkbook or getting ready to take a stab at your taxes, you are deep in thought about what you offer. You could feel ill at ease with a loved one right now. Use the late afternoon, perhaps, for a long-overdue chat. Tonight: Catching up on a friend's news.

This Week: Clear out messages and schedule meetings on Monday. You are most effective Monday and Tuesday. Use Wednesday on for any activity that needs to be solo.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22)

★★★★★ Make plans that suit you. For once, stop the perpetual giving, and take a little. When was the last time you doted on the last? You do not need to share this indulgent moment, but then, you just might. Indulging a little needs to be a more frequent theme. Tonight: Indulge, but in moderation.

This Week: Curb possessiveness. Ask yourself why you are so insecure. Start working on ironing out this kink. Be aware of how you come off.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 22)

★★★ If you need some time off, use today. You might want to pursue a hobby or go off by yourself. Others might find it difficult to understand that you, the social one, simply need to be alone. Trust your judgment. Tonight: Feeling much better.

This Week: Your assurance calms many people down on Monday and Tuesday. You accomplish a lot, but have to perform 100 percent from Wednesday on.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23-Nov. 21)

★★★★ Join friends. Whether at a game, watching a movie or brunch, the camaraderie means a lot. A loved one surprises you with a declaration. Schedule some time with this person, before there are many more surprises! Tonight: Winding down.

This Week: Hide out or close the door if you want to. This is a phase that will pass by Wednesday. Thank goodness.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21)

★★★ You appear as expected. A discussion proves worthwhile, but the end results might not be what you'd visualized. Join friends or family for a late lunch. You need to unwind. Tonight: Just when you are having fun, you realize that tomorrow is Monday.

This Week: Zero in on what is key on Monday and Tuesday. You will have less clout and energy afterward.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19)

★★★★ Don't just talk about a picnic or a day outing; do it. A change of scenery adds to your sense of detente. Once you detach, your immediate world and issues seem less difficult. Forget schedules for one day. Tonight: Head home, only if you must.

This Week: If you are willing to do the work, you will succeed, and sooner than you think.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18)

★★★★ Think about someone at a distance. Isn't it about time that the two of you got together? What is holding you back? You might be surprised by how fast the issue disappears once the conversation starts. Tonight: Think Monday.

This Week: If a situation makes no sense, walk in this person's shoes. You will get it. Wednesday, move on a key venture or project. You will be the main force.

PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20)

★★★★ Relate directly to a friend. Stop listening to what other people say. When you go to the source, you might find the story very different. Attempt to walk in this person's footsteps. You will understand then. Tonight: Only where there is music and a little time to dream.

This Week: Listen to what a partner shares. Pull back and detach from all the conversation. You will know which way to go.

THE PAMPA NEWS

'No Strings Attached' a fun, funny romantic comedy

Romantic comedies are tricky to review, as they almost always have a variation of the same plot. But when a boy and girl fall in love, there's a contrived plot device that keeps them splitting up, boy or girl. And when they still love the other person, there's a mad dash to get back together. Cue credits, that's a wrap. And the moviegoing public — myself included — continues to flock to these movies in droves, even though most of them get dreary reviews and most are forgettable.

In this variation, Ashton Kutcher and Cameron Diaz play Adam and Emma, a pair of friends who, after a one-night stand, decide they should become a couple "with benefits." (This movie is often confused with the upcoming film "Fifty Shades of Grey," which has a similar plot.) The main difference between most rom-coms is that Portman plays the male role, while Kutcher plays the role of the carefree, carelessly romantic who quickly loses his main role, no feelings. But when feelings get involved, as they do in this one, and from their the movie formula laid out above.

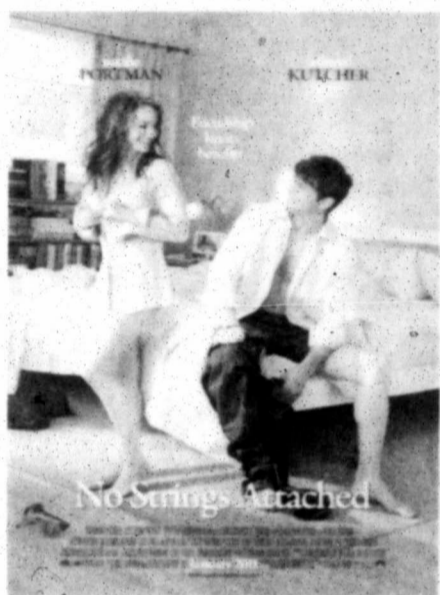

The cast is rounded out with a host of familiar and coming comedic actors such as Jason Segel, Greta Gerwig, Mindy Kaling, and Abby Elliot. But there are also some surprising appearances from a number of veterans, with Kevin Kline as Adam's sleazy dad and the great John Goodman as one of Emma's colleagues. Also stay through the credits for a super quick cameo from Tim Allen.

Overall, though, the movie comes off as a fun, funny romantic comedy. Kutcher and Portman, so your experience may depend on what you think of their feelings are on those actors. While Portman is, as always, great in her role, Kutcher plays the same character he's played for most of his career, the handsome, nice guy. If you have no problem with Kutcher — I personally don't — then you will enjoy the movie much more than someone (read: Arnie) that can't stand Kutcher.

The movie is pretty funny, I laughed out loud quite a few times, but in the end it's still your typical rom-com, nothing more, nothing less. But sometimes that's not such a bad thing; sometimes, all you want is a fun and funny movie that you and your significant other can both enjoy, and on that note it delivers.

Portman takes spotlight in Aronofsky's 'Black Swan'

Any time we get to watch Natalie Portman twice in one week, it's a good week.

Portman displays her acting versatility alongside Mila Kunis in director Darren Aronofsky's "Black Swan," a haunting psychological thriller about a ballet dancer's self-destruction. Proving once again that she's more than just a pretty face, Portman challenges the audience to ride along with her character as she descends from the joy of winning the limelight to the madness caused by its innate pressures.

Portman plays Nina Sayers, a young ballerina with dreams of becoming the lead dancer in her New York City company. She gets the chance to compete for the role when the company stages a production of "Swan Lake." One catch, though — the show requires one dancer to play both the innocent White Swan and the more sensual Black Swan.

Demure ingenue Nina is perfect for the White Swan, but spirited newcomer Lily (Kunis) is more suited for the Black Swan character. As the two compete for the role, Nina finds herself lost in her dark side as she fights off crippling paranoia and vivid hallucinations.

Much of the movie hinges entirely on Portman's performance, and she doesn't disappoint. Gifted with one of the most emotive faces in Hollywood, the internal pressure that Portman's Nina faces is clear from the first moment you see her, and she makes every twist of her downward spiral strike an emotional chord with the audience.

Kunis is likewise impressive, especially in a role that's a big departure from much of the lighter fare she's done so far. An underrated actress, she's come a very long way since her "That 70s Show" days.

Vincent Cassel and Wynona Ryder turn in good performances in support, but the movie truly belongs to Portman. Aronofsky structures the movie directly around her, and she steps up in grand fashion. She carries the movie to great heights, and it wouldn't surprise me to see her as a favorite in the Oscar race.

A word to the wise: Anyone who's ever seen an Aronofsky-helmed film knows that his movies aren't for everyone. Aronofsky — he of the acclaimed "Requiem for a Dream" and "The Wrestler" — lays on the intensity and atmosphere heavy with a trowel, and "Black Swan" is no exception. There's also some heavy sexual content, so leave the kiddies at home.

HAPPY BIRTHDAY Monday, Jan. 24, 2011:

This year, an in-law or a distant associate plays a key role. Your vision becomes broader because of this person. Some of you will be exploring new interests. Thoughts of travel, getting a degree or taking a workshop keep reappearing. If single, you could have unusually high energy. You could become frustrated if a suitor doesn't have the same bounce. People will pop into your life out of the blue. If you are attached, the two of you share a new hobby or interest. Plan a special trip this year. SCORPIO challenges not only you, but also others.

The Stars Show the Kind of Day You'll Have: 5-Dynamic; 4-Positive; 3-Average; 2-So-so; 1-Difficult

ARIES (March 21-April 19)

★★★★ Implementing an idea could test your ability to communicate and move people toward your type of thinking. A partner, could be innately difficult or closed down. You cannot change another's mood. Tonight: Listen to a loved one's possible ranting.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20)

★★★ Your ability to bypass problems could be challenged. Information heads down the pike that indicates your processing could be off. Look at areas you might not be seeing or where you have closed off an issue. Tonight: Don't push yourself. It is only Monday.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20)

★★★★ A partner's difficult yet enlightening attitude forces you to revisit an issue. Ask questions. Be willing to pull in an expert or two. Be willing to open up. Your innate playfulness emerges, despite a hassle or two. Tonight: Ignoring the fact that it is Monday night.

CANCER (June 21-July 22)

★★★★ Handle a personal matter hands-on. You could be overly tired and worn by others. Someone even could toss money into the mix in an attempt at manipulation. The only way to win this is to not play the game. Tonight: Nothing complicated.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22)

★★★★ Pressure builds around your daily life. Someone might be attempting to coerce you into doing what he or she wants. Your charm and ability to demonstrate the benefit of a particular path will turn the tide in your favor, despite this person. Tonight: Visit with a friend.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22)

★★★ Your instincts often serve you well with finances. A wild risk still could become a big problem. Regroup and rethink recent decisions. A child could be difficult. Don't allow someone to coerce you by throwing around his or her weight. Tonight: Balance your checkbook.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 22)

★★★★ Once more, someone reveals his or her inner agenda. You sometimes get tired of having the same conversation. As a result, coldness emanates from you. Stay in touch with your desires. Be willing to state your feelings. Tonight: In your element.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23-Nov. 21)

★★★ If you don't feel up to snuff, take today off. If you are a bit blue, surround yourself with friends. Don't push too hard. You will perk up in a day or so, after giving yourself the space to recharge. Tonight: Screen calls.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21)

★★★★ Zeno in on your priorities. If you do, someone's heavy-duty manipulations will remain ineffective. Meetings point you in a new direction. Don't hesitate to act rather than talk. Avoid thinking about an argument. You need to focus. Tonight: Where people are, not alone.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19)

★★★ You are at a point where you would like to shed some of your responsibility. Your priorities are rapidly changing and, as a result, what you want to do with your time will change. Allow this transformation to emerge. Tonight: Burning the candle at both ends.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18)

★★★★ Reach out for more information and different opinions. Many people would fear this type of diversity, as it would take away or nullify their plan. You welcome knowledge. This increasing information can only make a project or your life better. Tonight: Find an outlet for your high energy.

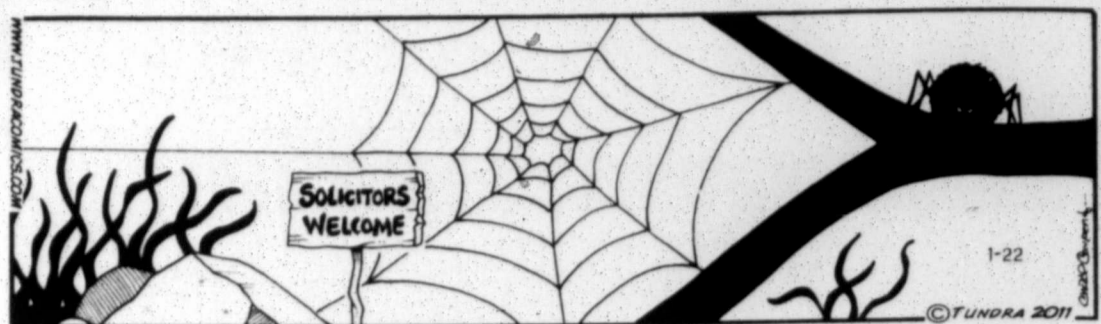

PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20)

★★★★ Work with key people individually, allowing a greater give-and-take of ideas. Resist bigger meetings at the moment. Take some time to sift through different suggestions. How sound are they? Curb a tendency to sit on anger, as you are likely to express it in an inappropriate manner. Tonight: Catch up on a roommate's or loved one's day.

City raises green, cart fees at Hidden Hills
By Beverly Phillips
During the first city meeting of the year, Pampa commissioners adopted two resolutions approving green application and raised the fee of the golf course. The new green and cart fees at Hidden Hills Golf Course are expected to bring in an additional $25,000 to $30,000 per year. Fees have not been raised at the course since 2007. Green fees for adult residents ranged from $15 to $25. Residential and business green fees will range from $10 to $20. Senior citizens 62 years of age and older will pay $10 on weekdays and junior golfers 12 years of age and under and disabled as a full-time applicant will pay $9. Green fees for junior golfers on weekends and holidays are $11. Cart fees will be raised to a single rider for $6.75 if paying alone, or $12.50 for $18 for two riders in a cart. The fee on $12 and $14 respectively. Green Fees remain: Single $10.75, Couple $20.50, Family $40.50, Senior $25.
