Olds gets prison time for injury to elderly

DAVID BOWSER
 dbowser@thepampanews.com

Lawrence Scott Olds was in the Gray County jail today awaiting transfer to the Texas Department of Corrections after being convicted of beating his mother.

Olds, 48, was convicted Monday night of injury to an elderly person in Judge Phil Vanderpool's 223rd District Court and sentenced to 42 months in the state's prison system.

His mother, Geraldine Quandt, 68, testified Monday afternoon that her son had moved in with her in her small home on Siroco

Olds

3:30 p.m. He returned home after dark while Quandt was on the telephone with one of her daughters.

Under questioning by Assistant District Attorney Jason Ferguson, in May, 2009, in an effort to straighten out his life.

He had lost his job and his family.

On Feb. 19, 2010, Quandt testified, Olds had left the house about she said that her son had gone in his bedroom, changed into his pajamas and then gone into the kitchen.

Quandt said she heard him moving things around in the kitchen cabinet.

She said she went into the kitchen and asked him if he wanted something to eat. He replied no, that he was fine.

When she asked him what was wrong, Quandt said, her son replied that everything was okay, and then added that it was none of her business.

"It is my business," Quandt said she replied. "You're living in my house." She testified that he pushed her against the sink, and when she went to pick up the phone, he grabbed it out of her hand and pushed her into the cabinet.

"He slapped me," Quandt told the court.

She said he shoved her around the kitchen and pushed her down twice, calling her a terrible person.

Crying on the witness stand, she said she asked him if he was trying to kill her, and he replied yes.

Quandt testified that fearing for her life, she ran out the front door to a neighbor's house and called

State of the Union tonight

BEN FELLER
 Associated Press

WASHINGTON (AP) — Addressing a demand for economic answers, President Barack Obama will try to convince the American people and a divided Congress that he has a vision for speeding up job creation, promoting spending on the core of his agenda but promising to rein in a growing, staggering debt. His State of the Union address will reflect reality: The economy trumps all.

To a nationwide television audience Tuesday night, Obama will home in on jobs, the issue of most importance to the public and to his hopes for a second term.

Specifically, he will focus on improving the education, innovation and infrastructure of the United States as the way to provide a sounder economic base. He will pair that with calls to reduce the government's debt — now topping $14 trillion — and reform government. Those five areas will frame the speech, with sprinklings of fresh proposals.

Yet no matter how ambitious Obama's rhetorical reach, his speech at the halfway point of his term will be viewed in the context of his new political reality.

The midterm elections gave Republicans control of the House and a stronger minority vote in the Senate, meaning he hasn't the option of pushing through changes over GOP objections. The contrast between the two parties' visions remains stark, and where to slash spending, and by how much, will drive much of the debate for the rest of 2011.

AFTERNOON RUSH

Texas House adopts new rules

AUSTIN (AP) — The Republican-led Texas House unanimously adopted new operating rules Monday, including a provision that could further minimize the ability of Democrats to influence legislation.

The rules, which are adopted after the start of each biennial legislative session, will guide procedures in the chamber for the next two years.

This year's rules expand the number of House committees to include two new ones — the Government Efficiency and Reform Committee and the Economic and Small Business Development and Workforce Committee.

The proposal also would put limits on a maneuver known as chubbing, the House equivalent of a filibuster that Democrats used in 2009 to kill a Republican effort to require voters to provide photo identification at polls. Democrats' influence this session is already limited after Republicans gained a 101-49 supermajority.

After a contentious speakers race earlier this month, the House also rejected a proposal to eliminate the longstanding practice of speakers seeking re-election to collect pledge cards from members at the end of legislative sessions.

The House also rejected a proposal that would allow the chamber to skip the committee process to immediately take up voter identification legislation, an issue that Gov. Rick Perry has declared an emergency. Like all House legislation, the measure must now wait for Speaker Joe Straus to make committee assignments before it can start its slog through the process.

Republicans are making stronger voter ID laws a top priority as a way to prevent fraud. Democrats say it's a partisan bill designed to increase GOP margins at the ballot box.

During the rules debate, lawmakers also rejected an effort to eliminate the requirement that men wear ties during the summer months.

Lubbock searchers find body

LUBBOCK (AP) — Police say they've found a body while searching for a missing 15-year-old Lubbock girl listed for weeks as a runaway.

Lubbock police Capt. Greg Stevens would not comment to reporters whether the body resembled that of Lubbock Monterey High School student Elizabeth Ennen. He said there would be no comment until the Lubbock County medical examiner establishes its identity.

Police found the body on a remote county road near Shallowater, about 10 miles northwest of Lubbock.

Police say Ennen apparently was abducted during a Jan. 4 baby-sitting job at a southeastern Lubbock motel. Meanwhile, 45-year-old Humberto Maldonado Salinas Jr. remains in Lubbock County Jail charged with aggravated kidnapping in Ennen's disappearance.

US agents find rifles, grenades

RIO GRANDE CITY (AP) — The U.S. Border Patrol reports its agents found a cache of weapons concealed in the brush near the Rio Grande in far South Texas.

A Border Patrol statement issued Monday says agents working a remote area about 55 miles up the river from McAllen found the cache of weapons and paramilitary-style gear.

Among the items found Friday were four assault-style rifles, two hand grenades, body armor, two-way radios, military-style uniforms and 16 fully loaded 30-round ammunition clips.

No arrests were reported relating to the find.

Live fish, chicks tossed at rally

FORT WORTH (AP) — A fish and chicks incident at a Fort Worth school has led to cancellation of future assemblies.

Live fish in bags and baby chicks were tossed during a pep rally last week at North Side High School.

The Fort Worth Star-Telegram reports the school was celebrating its mariachi group advancing to state competition and the beginning of soccer and baseball seasons.

School district spokesman Clint Bond says three fish and one chick died. Administrators are working to identify the students blamed for the incident.

Administrators have suspended off-campus lunch privileges for seniors for two days.

Superintendent Melody Johnson says animal cruelty won't be tolerated.

Fine amnesty through April 17

AUSTIN (AP) — Texas is offering a discounted amnesty program for drivers whose licenses have been suspended and who owe fines and other surcharges, the Department of Public Safety said Tuesday.

If payment is not received by April 17, the amnesty reduction is voided, all surcharge balances revert to the original owed amounts and suspensions are put back on a driver's record, according to the Texas Department of Public Safety.

The goal of the amnesty period is to bring drivers into compliance with the surcharge law and allow them to become licensed and insured drivers, DPS said Tuesday.

About 650,000 Texans who owe traffic fines could be eligible for the 90 percent break on payment, as part of the DPS Driver Responsibility Program. The program, which assesses fees for a variety of driving-related offenses, was passed by the 2003 Legislature.

Anyone with an unpaid surcharge that was assessed between Sept. 20, 2004, and Dec. 31, 2008, are eligible to take part. Other restrictions apply. DPS say service fees will still apply to the reduced amount being paid.

Falling plaster halts meeting

SAN ANTONIO (AP) — Falling chunks of ceiling put a halt to a San Antonio City Council meeting during a discussion about dangerous building conditions.

Small pieces of plaster fell Monday from the high, decorative ceiling during a meeting of the city's Dangerous Structure Review Board. The chunks landed with a thud near city inspectors who were discussing a collapsed stairway at an apartment complex earlier this month.

The San Antonio Express-News reported that no one was injured by the falling plaster.

Audience members were told to evacuate the historic room after city employees went to the second floor to take a closer look at the ceiling.

Understanding target-date funds

TERRY SAVAGE
Creator's Syndicate

Do you own a target-date mutual fund in your 401(k) plan or Individual Retirement Account? If you do, you should understand how target-date funds work. And if you don't own one now, you might want to consider adding one of these popular funds, which let the investment pros decide on the appropriate investment allocations based on your hoped-for retirement date.

You can find target-date funds at all the major mutual fund companies, including Vanguard, Fidelity, T. Rowe Price, American Century — and very likely in your company retirement plan.

The concept of target-date (sometimes called "lifecycle") funds is to create different funds for different targeted retirement dates, such as 2020, 2025, 2030 or beyond. You pick the fund that most closely matches the date you hope you'll retire. Then you stick with the fund — and keep adding to it on a regular basis — over the years.

Each target-date fund gives the investor a different mix of various stock categories, along with bonds, and even more conservative money markets. Recognizing that unsophisticated investors get nervous about changing their allocations, these funds are managed to become more conservative in their allocations to stock as they approach the target date, the date you've set for retirement.

Even at the actual target date, these funds maintain some exposure to stocks — because they are designed for you to take withdrawals over your period of retirement. So you still need some — although a smaller amount — of the growth that stocks provide.

Target-date funds have become one of the fastest growing categories of mutual funds, since they were introduced about a decade ago. There is now more than $250 billion invested in them, with about 80 percent of those dollars invested through employer-sponsored retirement plans.

The big growth in target date funds came after the Labor Department ruled that companies could, and in fact should, default new employee contributions into these diversified mutual funds. They became a "safe harbor" option because these plans are designed to give investors managed exposure to the stock market.

Before target date funds received this "seal of approval," many employees were defaulted into safer money market funds or the equivalent. While those funds guarded against loss of principal, they failed to give the employees a chance to grow their money over the long run for retirement.

After the huge market decline in 2008, many retirement plan investors were shocked that their target-date funds showed huge losses. They shouldn't have been — if they had read the information that described how the funds work. After all, when the market has that kind of huge decline, all stocks will fall to some degree.

The entire idea of a target-date fund is that you'll ride it out — not only to the targeted date, such as 2020, or 2025, or 2030 — but even beyond during your retirement years as you take withdrawals stretched out over your lifetime.

Sadly, those who mistakenly thought that target-date funds "guaranteed" a certain level of annual performance rushed to the exits at just the wrong time. Many sold out in shock just as the market reached its bottom in 2009. They missed the huge rebound.

So the big question has been: Do target-date fund investors really understand how these products work?

The Labor Department, which governs employee retirement plans, has proposed new disclosure rules and new education retirements so that unsophisticated investors would understand the risk of loss.

Now a new Vanguard study gives convincing evidence that these proposals may be unnecessary. (Vanguard-administered retirement plans are a leader in providing target-date funds for 401(k) and 403(b) plans.)

Their new survey reveals that people who actually choose a target-date fund for their own IRA have a better understanding of how these funds work than those employees who are just defaulted into a target-date plan. That's not surprising, because investors who are responsible for their own decisions tend to do more homework.

Vanguard estimates that half of the participants in target-date funds in 2009 were simply defaulted into them as part of their employee benefits program. Even so, according to this survey, the vast majority were aware that these investments are not guaranteed and do involve risk.

Nearly two-thirds understood the benefits of diversification — but that it does not guarantee against loss. And only 8 percent of participants had the incorrect belief that target-date funds were designed to provide a guaranteed income. Even fewer were so misinformed as to believe these funds become "risk free" at the target date.

Investing is always easy in hindsight. One thing is sure: If you don't take some appropriate risk in your investments, over the long run, you will barely break even with inflation — and may come out behind, after taxes.

There are three ways to minimize risk in the stock market: The first is to diversify your investments. The second is to continue to contribute to those diversified investments, through the ups and downs of the markets. And the third is to take a long-term perspective.

Target-date funds are designed to do just that — grow your money in a diversified way, using the discipline of professional money management — over the long run. As an employee, all you have to do is keep your eye — and your money — on target! And that's The Savage Truth.

Under cross-examination by defense lawyer Jeff Jones, Quandt said her son had an addiction to alcohol.

She said she encouraged him to join Alcoholics Anonymous, but to the best of her knowledge he never did.

Quandt testified that Olds was in the Army for 10 years and had served in Germany and Korea before his life began to fall apart.

Olds testified that he pushed his mother down, but he denied hitting her.

Pampa Police Officer Craig Merritt testified that he had been called to the neighbor's house by Quandt.

Merritt said that Quandt told him she had spoken to Olds about his drinking and that he had thrown her into the cabinet.

"Her hands were very swollen," Merritt said.

A check indicated that there was a theft warrant out for Olds arrest, so Merritt went across the street to Quandt's home.

There he confronted Olds, who resisted arrest.

"The house was a mess," Merritt said.

The jury of eight men and four women took slightly more than 15 minutes to find Olds guilty. They took another 10 minutes to decide on a sentence of 42 months in prison.

Today in History

Today is Tuesday, Jan. 25, the 25th day of 2011. There are 340 days left in the year.

Today's Highlight in History:

On Jan. 25, 1961, President John F. Kennedy held the first presidential news conference to be carried live on radio and television.

On this date:

In 1787, Shays's Rebellion suffered a setback when debt-ridden farmers led by Capt. Daniel Shays failed to capture an arsenal at Springfield, Mass.

In 1890, The United Mine Workers of America was founded in Columbus, Ohio.

In 1909, the opera "Elektra" by Richard Strauss premiered in Dresden, Germany.

In 1915, Alexander Graham Bell inaugurated U.S. transcontinental telephone service between New York and San Francisco.

In 1936, former Gov. Al Smith, D-N.Y., delivered a radio address in Washington, titled "Betrayal of the Democratic Party," in which he fiercely criticized the New Deal policies of President Franklin D. Roosevelt.

In 1947, American gangster Al Capone died in Miami Beach, Fla., at age 48.

In 1959, American Airlines began Boeing 707 jet flights between New York and Los Angeles.

In 1971, Charles Manson and three women followers were convicted in Los Angeles of murder and conspiracy in the 1969 slayings of seven people, including actress Sharon Tate. Idi Amin seized power in Uganda by ousting President Milton Obote in a military coup.

In 1981, the 52 Americans held hostage by Iran for 444 days arrived in the United States.

Ten years ago: A jury in Fort Lauderdale, Fla., found 13-year-old Lionel Tate guilty of first-degree murder in the death of a six-year-old family friend, Tiffany Eunick. An appeals court overturned the first-degree murder conviction in 2004. Tate was freed from prison under a deal in which he pleaded guilty to second-degree murder and was sentenced to 10 years' probation, however, Tate is back behind bars for violating that probation.

Five years ago: In his first encyclical, "God is Love," Pope Benedict XVI said the Roman Catholic Church had a duty through its charitable work to influence political leaders to ease suffering and promote justice.

One year ago: Iraq hanged Ali Hassan al-Majid, known as "Chemical Ali" for his role in gassing 500 people in a Kurdish village.

Letter to the Editor

Community should consider hospital district

Dear Editor:

What's getting to be an ad nauseum occurrence, Pampa once again finds itself facing the sale of our community hospital. Recently, we read where Pampa Regional Medical Center laid off two score or more "nonessential employees" and learned the hospital is indeed doing some bottom-line trimming with hopes of finding a buyer.

With its intended sale occurring smack dab in the brouhaha created by Obamacare, I aver to Signature Hospital Corporation, the dysfunctional for-profit parent of Pampa Regional Medical Center, good luck!

I cannot recall how many owners Pampa Regional Medical Center has had since Highland General Hospital went into the annals of Pampa history, but in attempting to do so, I got to scratching my down-sloping wind dried scalp and wondering how hospital business here would be if there were there a public-supported hospital district.

Aside from Amarillo hospitals, every other major community in the Panhandle (Dumas, Canadian, Perryton, and the latest, Borger) support what is called a not-for-profit hospital district.

Yep! I bet some of you are doing the proverbial over-taxed two step at the mention of a hospital district; but when you look at the previous and current lack of success of Pampa's hospitals, what other choice do we have?

Sorry, for the majority of us, I don't see traipsing to and fro Amarillo's hospitals a prudent option, though that is exactly what we may have to do if Pampa Regional Medical Center Signature cannot find a buyer.

How long will Signature's investors be willing to wait, due to the most evident of facts - they expect a return on their investment.

The benefit to the community of a hospital district simple as an investor's worry - all sales of services go directly back into the hospital district! For those of you thinking doing the over-taxed two-step, income from property tax levies is a relatively small component of a public hospital district's total revenue stream. Hospital districts are subject to numerous statutory provisions governing how they conduct their business. State laws impose strict limitations on use of public hospital district funds. Hospital districts must adhere to the Public Records Act and Open Public Meetings Act due to the fact they are managed by elected officials. The financial benefits of a hospital district is access to tax revenues, low cost bonds, and they are excused from payment of certain taxes (ie. corporate, as the best example).

What'll it be, Pampaville? Look to Amarillo and other communities for our hospital care needs (much can happen to one's health when you consider mileage), or do we close the chapter on years of worrying about the bottom line when it comes to our healthcare?

Capitol Almanac: Monday highlights from around the Capitol

AUSTIN (AP) — The Texas Senate's draft budget proposal calls for 10.1 percent reduction in general revenue spending.

Lt. Gov. David Dewhurst unveiled the plan Monday. It largely mirrors what was introduced by the state House last week.

Senate Bill 1 is the companion to the House budget proposal. Both chambers of the Texas legislature will debate and amend the baseline budget, then meet later in conference committee to pass a final budget.

The Senate bill calls for $73.8 billion in expenditures, exactly what the state comptroller says Texas will earn in revenues over the next two years. The total is $27 billion less than what experts say is needed to maintain current state services.

Voter ID

Texas voters would need to show photo identification before casting ballots under a Republican-backed bill being fast-tracked for passage.

Gov. Rick Perry, a Republican, declared the legislation an emergency priority last week and it is expected to pass the Senate this week. The Senate is scheduled to begin taking testimony on the bill on Tuesday.

Republicans are making stronger voter ID laws a top priority because they say it will prevent fraud. Democrats say it's a partisan bill designed to increase GOP margins at the ballot box.

Democrats blocked a similar bill in 2009.

Wounded Warriors

It was Wounded Warrior

Day Monday at the Texas Capitol.

The House and Senate honored wounded veterans, several of whom came to the Capitol from Brooke Army Medical Center in San Antonio, where they are still receiving treatment for their wounds in Iraq and Afghanistan, including loss of limbs.

The resolution honored those wounded while serving in all branches of the military. They were each presented with Texas flags that have flown over the Capitol.

Quote of the Day

"My constituents want to know: Do we also have to wear shoes?" - Rep. Mark Strama, D-Austin, questioning a failed proposal that would eliminate for the summer the House dress code requiring men to wear ties.

Dear Abby...

By Pauline & Jeanne Phillips

DEAR ABBY: So often I read about troubled marriages in your column. May I share with you something that my husband and I started doing that has transformed what I thought was a good marriage into a blissful one?

One day, after complaining that we had no quality time together — we rarely talked, much less made love — my husband suggested we turn off the television and offered to give me a massage.

Ever since, four or five times a week, once the children are in bed, we go into our bedroom, take off our clothes and give each other long massages. Sometimes we spend the entire time in conversation, other times we savor the peace and quiet. Sometimes we make passionate love; other times we fall asleep naked in each other's arms, completely content.

It doesn't matter how it turns out; it's wonderful and it has made the rest of our lives less stressful and more enjoyable. Our sex life is better than before the children came, and we sleep in the nude more often.

I hope you'll print this. More marriages would take a turn for the better if couples made time for each other and discovered the wonders of massage. — HAPPIER THAN EVER

DEAR HAPPIER: That's a terrific suggestion, and one that should be taken to heart. I hope it doesn't rub anyone the wrong way.

DEAR ABBY: I am in a bit of a dilemma, and I would appreciate some advice.

I divorced my husband six years ago because he was physically and mentally abusive to me. We had two children together. They are now being raised by me and my new husband.

Abby, my ex-husband never told his family the truth about why we divorced. He told them I was unfaithful and other things which you can't print in a newspaper.

My question: What should I do when the kids graduate or they get married?

I have tried to make peace with several members of his family. All they did was rip into me and give me their opinion about what I supposedly did to their brother. I don't want to put my family in the position of being berated and attacked when the children have a special occasion. On the other hand, I don't want to cut them off from their other family at important occasions in their lives.

What should I do? — UNDECIDED IN BELLEVUE, WASH.

DEAR UNDECIDED: When the time comes, ask your husband and the children how they feel about including these relatives. My advice would be to invite them, and place the burden of whether to attend the events or not on them.

DEAR ABBY: How do you tell someone how well you can do something without sounding like you're bragging? — STELLA IN DALLAS

DEAR STELLA: It's not bragging to mention that you excel at something. It only becomes obnoxious if you dwell on it to the point that you forget to show an interest in the accomplishments of others.

HAPPY BIRTHDAY for Wednesday, Jan. 26, 2011:

This year, you take a stronger stand within the community and/or in your professional life. Often, challenges arise out of the blue. Your conventional style of detaching could be more difficult. Perhaps staying in the here and now is more important. Travel and foreigners play a strong role in 2011. If you are single, opt for a new type, and you are likely to experience success in relating. If you are attached, combine your efforts together on a project or goal. Closeness will become a given. SCORPIO thinks of you as a leader.

The Stars Show the Kind of Day You'll Have: 5-Dynamic; 4-Positive; 3-Average; 2-So-so; 1-Difficult

ARIES (March 21-April 19)

Consider the pros and cons of leaping over negativity, misinformation and someone's attitude. Will it be worth the energy? Sometimes letting others sit might be more productive. Take a walk during a break in order to reduce stress. Tonight: Time to visit and share.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20)

Defer to others, as they are likely to throw a hissy fit if you don't. A boss is very assertive. You might not be able to change the state of affairs. Detach, and you will gain yet another perspective. Run with it. Tonight: If any invitation appeals to you, say "yes."

GEMINI (May 21-June 20)

Just when you feel as if you are soaring, someone or some situation pulls you back down to earth. A partner, however, remains supportive. Know that you will have to push others very hard in order to achieve what you want. You also can wait. Tonight: Choose a stress-buster.

CANCER (June 21-July 22)

Your imagination let loose is a delight, not only to you but to everyone. Who says you need to hold back? A partner will revise his or her thinking because of you. Don't push an older family member right now. He or she remains testy. Tonight: Find your favorite person, and share your favorite pastime.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22)

Your desire to eliminate tension and stress could be frustrated. Buck trends; investigate a shortcut. Just don't say "no." Be an investigator. Be willing to root out the real story or problem. Only then can you resolve the issue. Tonight: Willingly reiterate a conversation.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22)

You might opt to put in more overtime and/or get a second job. You might want to review your finances with an eye to the fact that in the past year, you never felt like you had enough. This feeling reminds you to be thrifty. Tonight: Hang out with a friend.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 22)

Pressure builds, as you deem that you might need to do more. Build financial security through real estate investments. Build emotional security through bonding more strongly with family and loved ones. Know who you can count on. Tonight: Treat yourself on the way home.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23-Nov. 21)

Others seek you out. You could be flattered or annoyed. Your perspective determines your reaction. Rethink some of your knee-jerk feelings. You have more control than you realize. Communication needs to be in-depth. Tonight: As you like.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21)

Keep your thoughts to yourself. Not only might it be somewhat easier, but also you could change your perspective given time and observation. Fatigue marks your interpersonal reactions. Your instincts guide you with funds. Tonight: Vanish while you can.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19)

Zero in on what you want. Take control of a professional matter, if you can. Otherwise, you might have more problems. You might be holding up a mirror, as on some level you feel out of sync. Be more in touch with your needs. Tonight: Say "no" to more work and "yes" to meeting a friend.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18)

Someone you look up to could be more provocative than you realize. You wonder what you are doing and could become frustrated. Deal with anger through detachment. Many layers of hurt exist under the anger. Resolve them first. Tonight: Working late.

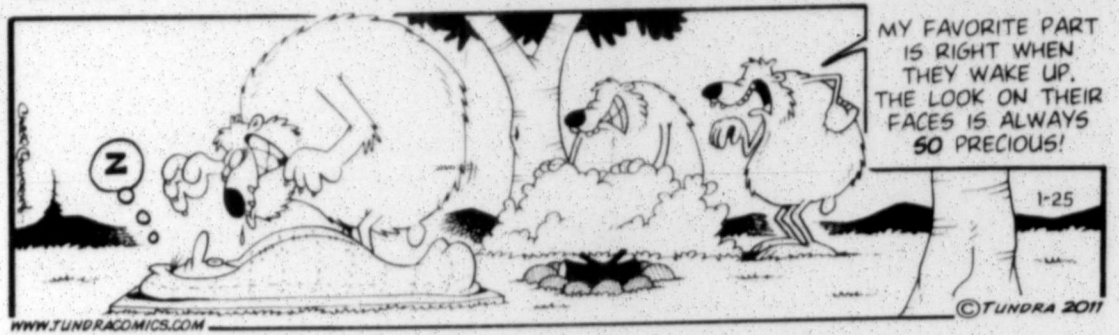

PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20)

Reach out for someone at a distance whom you care about. You might wonder what is going on behind the scenes -- a partner or associate seems a bit withdrawn or frothy. A meeting draws out some hard feelings. Tonight: Let your mind wander.

Penalty kicks power Bulldogs past Harvester soccer

aglover@thepampanews.com

The Borger Bulldogs took advantage of penalty kicks and beat the Pampa Harvesters 3-1 Monday at Harvester Field.

Head coach John True said the team was disappointed about the loss but are preparing themselves for district.

"The kids are upset and don't want to lose," True said. "They are working hard and think they have earned the right to win. They have, but I would rather win in district."

Junior forward Colten Adams said they need to do a better job of finishing on offense.

"We can get it down there, but no one can finish it," Adams said. "Just things we need to work on."

Borger got on the board in the first 10 minutes of the first half on a penalty kick that went right above the goal tender's head. That was the only goal scored in the half. The Harvesters got limited shot opportunities in the first.

The Harvesters (0-2-0) got on the board at the start of the second half. Ryan Stoffle scored from 10-yards out and kicked the ball into the middle of the net. In the second half of the half, Borger took the lead for good on a penalty kick that was just inside the post.

True said the penalty kicks were key to his team's defeat.

"You give up those kinds of restarts inside, if it would have been an inch more it would have been a one-on-one," True said. "We got a little work to do and we got three games this weekend before we start district."

Adams said they played pretty good defense.

"We kept a high line when they played it over as a track meet," Adams said. "But it didn't really matter on this game because they got all their goals on restarts and careless mistakes."

The Harvesters compete in the Wichita Falls Tournament Thursday through Saturday. Pampa plays Amarillo Tascosa, Burkburnett and Copperas Cove.

True said those games will be a challenge.

"We get to play two teams we've already played," True said. "We scrimmaged Burkburnett and already played Tascosa. Our goals for those two games are that we are better than the first time we played them and make adjustments accordingly."
