Officials: 'No major problems' from snow

DAVID BOWSER dbowser@thepampanews.com

Pampa remains stuck in a deep freeze today with this morning's low temperatures dropping below zero, but officials across the panhandle say that roads are open. and what little snow has fallen has not slowed city or county services.

Donny Hooper with the City of, Pampa said today that city crews are busy, but there have been few emergencies because of the weath-

"We haven't had any major problems so far, Hooper said. The streets have been cleared as much as we can."

He said city crews haven't had to do much with regard to keeping the streets clear of what dry, powdery snow Pampa received.

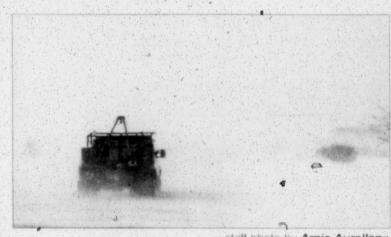

The wind really helped us out there," Hooper said.

Gray County Judge Richard Peet said the cold hasn't slowed the county workforce.

"Everything is fine here." Peet said. "It's minus four degrees."

Lt. Joe B. Hoard with the Gray County Sheriff's Office reported a wind chill of 26 degrees below zero, but he said that the roads were open across the county this morning and that there had been no reports of any weather-related problems.

Pampa didn't quite get the three to four inches predicted by the weather service, although parts of the area were still affected by low visibility due to blowing snow.

It may have been freezing outside, but there was plenty of fire on the court when Pampa and Borger clashed Tuesday. Borger's Tyrell Haynes won the tip from Pampa's Reid Miller, but the Harvesters took the game, 70-55. Full coverage in SPORTS, page 6.

County's CREZ discussion postponed due to weather

DAVID BOWSER dbowser@thepampanews.com

The Gray County Commissioners' Court convened on a brutally cold morning this week, with the weather playing a part in their meeting. A scheduled discussion of the CREZ (Competitive Renewable Energy Zone) power lines proposed to cross Gray County was postponed with Kathy Boyston of the Texas Parks and Wildlife.

Gray County Judge Richard Peet said that he had talked with Boyston and because of the weather had suggested they postpone their meeting with her until Feb. 15, the next regularly scheduled county commission meeting.

The temperature was one degree Fahrenheit when the county commission meeting began at 9 a.m. Tuesday, Peet said. By the end of their meeting just before noon, the temperature had warmed to two degrees.

In other business:

· The commission also rescheduled a discussion concerning the funding of the McLean Ambulance Service until Feb. 15.

'We wanted to talk with McLean Ambulance Service and the mayor," Peet said.

Last year, during the commissioners' budget discussions, they increased the budget for the ambulance service to $20,000, but Peet said they have dropped back on their level of service because of the lack of a paramedic:

"We need to talk about that," he said

"There's no need to be paying them that additional money if they're not at that level." · Commissioners also postponed action on land for a new Johnson Ranch Road until they could get more details on the proposal.

Ultimately, the county hopes to eliminate a bridge. The rancher there is giving the county some land to allow the county to simplify the road configuration.

The road itself right now goes between a house and a barn," Peet explained.

The discussion had to be postponed, Peet said, because there are certain procedures that have to be followed to do that.

· The commission also deferred action on property at the McLean Airport until the person COUNTY cont. on page 5

WASHINGTON (AP) - President Barack Obama pushed a key foreign policy goal a step closer to completion Wednesday with the signing of documents for a nuclear arms treaty with Russia.

The treaty is a cornerstone of Obama's efforts to 'reset" U.S. relations with Russia.

The New START treaty, negotiated last year, limits each side to 1,550 strategic warheads, down from 2,200. The pact also re-establishes a monitoring system that ended in December 2009 with the expiration of an earlier

Although Obama, Secretary of State Hillary Rodham Clinton and other administration officials had argued strongly and repeatedly that the treaty was a key foreign policy goal of the president's, he signed the documents in the Oval Office in the presence of news photographers

Obama also did not issue a statement afterward.

He was joined by Clinton, Defense Secretary Robert Gates, Senate Foreign Relations Committee Chairman John Kerry, D-Mass., Sen. Richard Lugar, R-Ind., the committee's top Republican, among others.

No shadow for groundhog

PUNXSUTAWNEY, Pa. (AP) - The country's most famous groundhog predicted an early spring Wednesday but wasn't willing to go out on a limb to forecast whether his state's Pittsburgh Steelers will win the Super Bowl

Punxsutawney Phil emerged just after dawn on Groundhog Day to make his 125th annual weather forecast in front of a smaller-than-usual crowd in rural Pennsylvania who braved muddy, icy conditions to hear his handlers reveal that he had not seen his shadow.

Including Wednesday's forecast, Phil has seen his shadow 98 times and hasn't seen it just 16 times since 1887, according to the Punxsutawney Groundhog Club's Inner Circle, which runs the event. There are no records for the remaining years, though the group has never failed to issue a forecast.

The Groundhog Day celebration is rooted in a German superstition that says if a hibernating animal casts a shadow on Feb. 2, the Christian holiday of Candlemas, winter will last another six weeks. If no shadow was seen, legend said spring would come early.

NASA finds planets aplenty

WASHINGTON (AP) - NASA's planet-hunting telescope is finding whole new worlds of possibilities in the search for alien life. An early report from a cosmic census indicates that relatively small planets and stable multi-planet systems are far more plentiful than previous searches showed.

NASA released new data Wednesday from its Kepler telescope on more than 1,000 possible new planets outside our solar system - more than doubling the count of what astronomers call exoplanets. They haven't been confirmed as planets yet, but some astronomers estimate that 90 percent of what Kepler has found will eventually Kepler, launched in 2009, has been orbiting the sunbetween Earth and Mars, conducting a planet census and. searching for Earth-like planets since last year. It has found there are more planets that are much smaller than Jupiter — the biggest planet in our solar system — than there are giant planets.

Some of these even approach Earth's size. That means they are better potential candidates for life than the behemoths that are more easily spotted, astronomers say.

Farrah's swimsuit in Smithsonian

WASHINGTON (AP) — The red swimsuit that helped make "Charlie's Angels" actress Farrah Fawcett a 1970s icon is going to the Smithsonian in Washington:

Fawcett's longtime companion Ryan O'Neal donated the swimsuit and other items to the Smithsonian's National Museum of American History on Wednesday. A 1976 poster of Fawcett in the dampened one-piece swimsuit sold millions of copies.

Also donated to the Smithsonian were Fawcett's copies of scripts for the first season of "Charlie's Angels" and a 1977 Farrah Fawcett doll.

The items will be part of the museum's popular culture history collection.

Fawcett died in 2009 at the age of 62 after battling

Metro unemployment drops

WASHINGTON (AP) — The unemployment rate fell or stayed the same in December in two-thirds of the nation's largest metro areas, fresh evidence that employers are slowly adding jobs.

The Labor Department says the unemployment rate dropped in 207 of the 372 largest metro areas, the most to report a decline since September. The unemployment rate rose in 122 areas and was the same in 43.

Nationwide, the unemployment rate dropped sharply in December to 9.4 percent from 9.8 percent. About half that decline was because more unemployed workers gave up on their job searches. The government doesn't count people as unemployed when they stop looking for work.

Even with high unemployment nationwide, five metropolitan areas reported large job gains last year, including: Washington, D.C.; Dallas-Fort Worth; Boston; Phoenix, Ariz.; and Minneapolis-St. Paul.

How do you solve a problem like Mooch?

MATTHEW "UNCLE MATTY" MARGOLIS Creator's Syndicate

Mooch, a 10-year-old brindle mixed breed, has spent the past eight years living large on the Sierra View golf course in Roseville, Calif. She trees squirrels, rolls in the sand traps, chases geese, naps in the grass and avails herself of goodies from the clubhouse kitchen and the on-course snack shack, where she's always

In fact, she's more than welcome. Over the years, Mooch made herself a fixture at Sierra View, her presence on the fairways as expected as the sun rising in the east

But that all changed last summer, when Mooch sunk her teeth into the pants of a 13-year-old boy. The Sacramento Bee reported that it was 'her first overtly aggressive act since her 2003 arrival.

The key word being "overt."

Mooch lived her first two years on the course avoiding all human interaction. Eventually, the everpresent offering of treats lured her closer, but never with the carefree, tail-wagging approach of a well-socialized dog. Rather, by all accounts, Mooch's behavior is typical of a feral dog - mistrustful, aloof, with a clear indifference to humans But

play ing "hard to get"

worked. Mooch has a fan in just about every member of Sierra View, including John Relja, who told the Bee, "Just because she's not all licky and tailwaggy doesn't mean she isn't lovable." And the incident last summer has done little to change hearts or minds when it comes to Mooch - with nine exceptions.

Sierra View's nine-member board voted to relocate Mooch a few months ago, with one member saying, "It's not in the best interest of the club to have a dog with a little bit of history running loose on the property

And so Mooch went to live with a Sierra View member who offered to take her after rescue organizations hesitated because of her history. But about a month ago, after vanishing from the member's home. Mooch reappeared at Sierra View, where she immediately relaxed into her old routine and where she remains at least for now:

by most of the club's members, the Sierra View board is still searching for a solution to the problem parked last summer.

People weighing in on this story have strong opinions, mostly in favor of letting Mooch be Mooch and banning the 13-year-old from the club. The board will likely stick to its guns and insist on relocation. And perhaps there is a rescue group or sanctuary out there that will take Mooch in and give her a good home

One suggestion I haven't seen, though, is training. A professional board-and-train facility could do wonders for Mooch. This environment would afford her the opportunity to be handled by many different people and to be exposed to many other dogs, thus improving her social skills, as well as receiving professional obedience and behavior training.

It's not a guarantee, but it's certainly worth pursuing it Mooch, by popular demand, is back to stay

Chaos continues with clashes in Cairo

CAIRO (AP) — Thousands of supporters and opponents of President Hosni Mubarak battled in Cairo's main square Wednesday, raining stones, bottles and firebombs on each other in scenes of uncontrolled violence as soldiers stood by without intervening. Government backers galloped in on horses and camels, only to be dragged to the ground and beaten bloody

At the battle's front line, next to the famed Egyptian Museum at the edge of Tahrir Square, pro-government rioters blanketing the rooftops of nearby buildings dumped bricks and firebombs onto the crowd below in the process setting a tree ablaze inside the museum grounds.

On the street, the two sides crouched behind abandoned trucks and pummeled each other with hurled chunks of concrete and bottles, and some among the more than 3,000 government supporters waved machetes

Bloodied anti-government protesters were taken to makeshift clinics in mosques and alleyways, and several hundred were reported injured. Some wept and prayed in the square where around 10,000 protesters had massed Wednesday morning and where only a day before they had held a joyous, peaceful rally of a quarter-million, the largest yet in more than a week of demonstrations demanding Mubarak leave power.

Some pleaded for protection from soldiers stationed at the square, who refused. Soldiers did nothing to stop the violence beyond firing an occasional shot in the air and no uniformed police were in sight. Many protesters accused the regime of paying its supporters to assault them — a tactic that security forces have used in the past - and the military of letting them do it.

"After the revolution, they want to send people here to ruin it for us," said Ahmed Abdullah, a 47-year-old lawyer in the square. "Why do they want us to be at each other's throats, with the whole world watching us."

Another man shrieked through a loudspeaker, "Hosni has opened the door for these thugs to attack us.

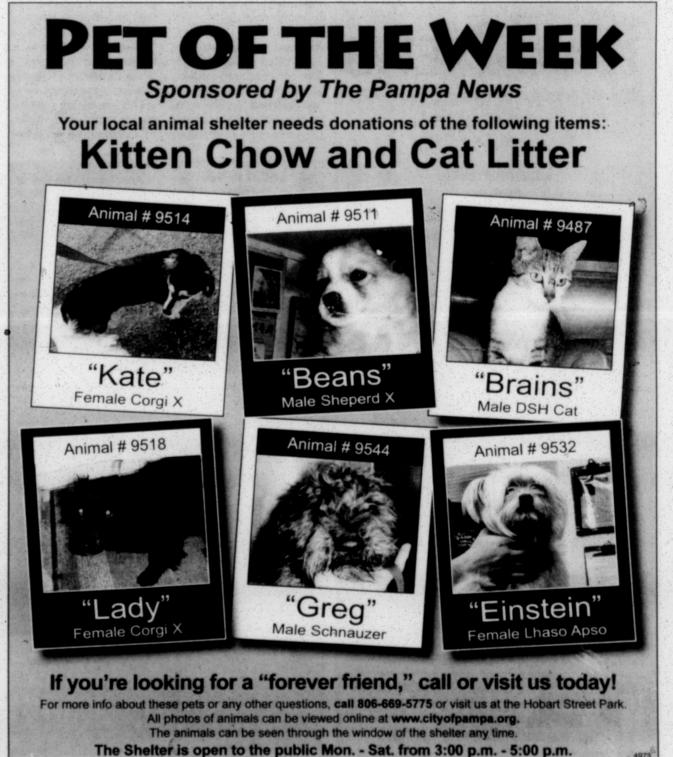

The clashes marked a dangerous new phase in Egypt's 9-day-old upheaval: the first significant violence between supporters of the two camps. Clashes began, first in the port city of Alexandria, just hours after Mubarak — the country's authoritarian ruler for nearly 30 years — went on national television Tuesday night and rejected protesters' demands he step down immediately. He defiantly insisted he would serve out the remaining seven months of his term.

That speech marked an abrupt shift in the deteriorating crisis, A military spokesman appeared on state Ly Wednesday and asked the protesters to disperse so life in Egypt could get back to normal. That was a major turn in the attitude of the army, which for the past few days allowed protests to swell.

Also, the regime for the first time Wednesday began to rally its supporters in significant numbers to demand an end to the unprecedented protest movement.

Some 20,000 pro-government demonstrators held an angry but mostly peaceful rally across the Nile River from Tahrir, saying Mubarak's concessions were enough and demanding protests end now that he has promised not to run for re-election in September, named a new government and appointed a vice president for

Their gathering was shot through with bitterness at the jeers hurled against the 82-year-old Mubarak over the past nine days.

Board Chairman addresses hospital situation

To the Editor:

In reading last Tuesday's The Pampa News, two pieces on page 4 caught my attention

· The letter to the editor on "Community should consider a hospital district."

· The week's poll question: "How concerned are you about the proposed sale of Pampa Regional Medical Center?"

As chairman of the Pampa Regional Medical Center Board of Trustees, both of these issues struck a chord with me and prompted me to put a pen to paper and address the issue of hospital ownership and the rumors floating around the community, like "is the hospital going to close.

I am in my third year as a member of the board and have been privileged to be part of the conversations and reviews that occur at the hospital in our monthly board meetings.

First and foremost, the hospital is just like any other business. It has to constantly evaluate its internal processes and external feedback to improve its major products or services. In addition, the hospital is a volume driven business that needs the community support just like every other business in town. If everyone buys their groceries somewhere besides the grocery store in Pampa the pretty soon the grocery store in Pampa would have no reason to stay open. The same is true of the hospital or the car dealerships or pharmacies.

Supporting the hospital also includes the support of the medical staff or medical community as the medical staff (physicians, physicians Assistants and nurse practitioners) are the only professionals who can admit or independently order services. Physicians depend on the patients to come to them for service and the hospital depends on physicians to use the facility when necessary to treat the patients.

Without the volumes. necessary to financially support the hospital, we address the inevitable issues of matching expenses to revenues and adjusting those two items to reflect a positive bottom line. Pampa Regional has seen a decline in its business as well as in its bottom line; however, it is not in danger of closing now or in the future.

The hospital performance reflects a variety of community economic impacts and the hospital has experienced the same economic decline that the rest of the community has experienced.

General sales within the community went down in 2009, continuing to decline even further as the economy failed to recover in 20 f0. The same is true for the hospital. Its "sales" (admissions and outpatient procedures) have been down but do not show further erosion.

In fact, the hospital should see some increases with the opening of Genesis Clinic.

Signature Hospital Corporation has made a decision to sell all three of its facilities; two in Texas and one in West Virginia. The decision is a business decision based on the current economic climate, the economic indicators for future business opportunities for a company its size. and what is best for the company (and its hospitals) and the communities the hospital serves.

Signature believes that by finding a new owner. the facility and the community both benefit.

Our success is in the quality and volume of business and how we improve our services to encourage all of Pampa and the surrounding area to choose Pampa Regional and its medical staff for its health care needs. The medical community is a partnership: your physicians and the hospital trying to provide high quality services to encourage people to use local medical resources.

As we go forward into the New Year, our focus will be on what we do taking care of the Pampa community. We will continue to improve our level of services as & well as our customer service. The sale will not impact the services on a local basis:

Board of Trustee members include Darville Orr, Glenette Goode, Andrews, . Kevin Sieck MD, Laxmichand Kamnani, MD, Renee Grabato, MD,

Dan Powell, MD, chief I would encourage any citizen wishing to know more about the hospital to make contact with a board member or with the CEO, Bill Buck. The board believes the facility has a strong future in front of it and through our combined efforts we can make some very good things happen within our medical community.

"We haven't had any road closures," Hoard said.

Miami officials also reported cold temperatures but clear roads north of

"We're doing good," said Roberts County Judge Vernon Cook today.

He reported that all county services were open. "They haven't even delayed school," he said. Perryton and Wellington school systems delayed opening until 10. a.m. today, but few other schools in the Eastern Panhandle reported delays.

C.E. Williams of the Panhandle Groundwater Conservation District, headquartered in White Deer, said streets were clear in that community today.

Cook said the county's getting low on fly ash that they put out on the roads, but he expects to replenish their supply before another cold front moves through at the beginning of next week.

"The main thing that we're hearing," Hooper said today, "is that there are a lot of people experiencing frozen water pipes in their homes.

He said he heard of several accounts of Trozen water pipes yesterday and two more this morning.

Hooper said he had one report of a hot water heater going out overnight and flooding a Pampa home.

"You need to keep a facet dripping," Hooper said, "and try to keep the water moving through the system so it doesn't freeze

Outside faucets should be covered and protected from the cold, he said.

The high temperature today was forecast at 10 degrees with the temperature dropping below zero again tonight.

Yesterday's high was nine degrees.

Things should start to warm up Thursday with a forecast high of 24 degrees.

The National Weather Service is predicting a high Saturday in the mid-50 degree range, before another cold front arrives as the week begins, bringing more snow wanting to lease the property decides what he'd like to do with it.

Pampa officially received a tenth of an inch of moisture from two inches of recorded snowfall.

"It's property the county owns that was in CRP (the U.S. Department of Agriculture's Conservation Reserve Program) grass," Peet said, "which is no longer.

He said there is a man who wants to lease the land.

"We don't want him to plow it," Peet said. "If he wants to graze it or something like that, it's different."

· Commissioners passed a resolution to eliminate unfunded mandates. "We did this before," Peet said. "We're going to try it again."

He said Gray and other counties in the state are opposed to unfunded mandates, mandates that the state is imposing but not allocating money for. The cost of the projects falls to the counties and communities to pay

"We had one in November," Peet said of Gray County, "when we had to hire four new people in our jail.'

The state agency - in this case the Commission on Jail Standards - dictated to the county the employment levels that had to be maintained, but the state didn't provide the funds for the employees.

· The commission removed the Genesis House from the jury donation list. The organization closed down last year.

 Commissioners declared February GrayCares Month.

Peet explained that a local nondenominational organization of volunteers that started last year in February go around and do odd jobs for the elderly. The said it could be building a ramp for a wheel chair or mowing a yard

"They have volunteers and they do a lot of this work voluntarily for the elderly." Peet said · Commissioners also approved a request by the White Deer Land Museum to install a gate in a short wall to keep visitors from having to walk around storage areas to enter the new south building.

· The commission eliminated some names from the sheriff's checking account and adding others due to a change in personnel

· It also approved Sheriff Don Copeland's request to purchase two new vehicles and trade three old vehicles in on them.

· The commission also reviewed Precinct 2 Constable Chris Lockridge 2010 Racial Profile Report.

Lockridge gave 20 citations last year. Most were to Caucasians, one was to an African-American and two were to Hispanics. · The commission approved the sale of two tax delinquent properties in McLean to Robert Tanner. One was for $270, and one was for $275.

· Commissioners also agreed to continue their Hazard Mitigation Plan with the Panhandle Regional Planning Commission.

· They also agreed to refund one of the two payments that had been made to Atmos Energy.

Atmos had two different individuals pay the same tax bill on some property, Peet explained.

· The commission also recognized Gray County Clerk Susan Winborne and retired District Clerk Gaye Honderich for their continuing education hours, and it approved the bond for Joint Election Administrator Linda

ANDREW GLOVER aglover@thepampanews.com

Pampa High School junior Delaney Clendening was at the free throw line with less than a minute in the fourth and her team up by one, needing to hit them not only for the game but for the season. The junior was clutch and swished both shots, keeping the Lady Harvesters' playoff hopes alive in a 47-44 victory over the Borger Lady Bulldogs Tuesday in Clendening said she was scared when she was at the line.

"I was shooting well early," Clendening said. "I knew I had to make both in case they hit a three.

Head coach Gene Valentine said it was a huge win, especially since they were still without gumor starting point guard Kirsten Kuhn.

"We beat someone on their home court," Valentine said. "We battled and played without Kirsten. She was available if I wanted to use her. She still wasn't very mobile but she suited up and kind of motivated them.

The Lady Harvesters (6-19, 2-5) led most of the first quarter, with their largest lead being three. Clendening scored the first five points of the game. With Pampa up 10-7, the Lady Bulldogs scored the last six points of the quarter and led 13-10 after one. J'Cee Pool led Borger's offense with six points.

The Lady Bulldogs (10-17, 2-5) held the lead the most of the second quarter with five points being their largest. Pampa took over the second half of the quarter. Clendening and senior quard ori Cook hit three pointers. Junior guard aitlin Sieck made two free throws to tie the game at 25.

In the second half, Borger held the lead early. Valentine argued a foul call midway through the third and was given a technical with his team trailing 30-27. Pool couldn't convert the technical free throws and the Lady Harvesters closed the quarter on a run. Rampa outscored Borger. 8-1 the rest of the quarter. Sophomore guard Taylor Morgan made two jumpers to lead the Lady Harvesters' offense. Pampa held Borger to six points in the third and led 35-31,

The Lady Harvesters maintained their lead for the first part of the fourth. The Lady Bulldogs rallied back with a 7-1 run. Jones made a layup and converted a free throw to put Borger ahead 42-40. Sieck gave the lead back to Pampa with a three. Madison Argo tied the game at 43 with a free throw. Pampa gained the lead back for good with two free throws. Hayley Calder missed a last second gametying three to seal the game.

Pool led the Lady Bulldogs in scoring with 11. Brittany Thomas followed with nine Pool, Argo and Thomas led the team in rebounds with six each." Clendening led the Lady Harvesters in scoring with 14. Sieck followed with 11. junior guard Lindsay Brown and Morgan each scored eight. Clendening led the team in rebounds with 13.

Valentine said he had a lot of people step up tonight.

"I told them before the game we need more than one person to step up," Valentine said. "Down the stretch Clendening hit big free throws. Lindsay Brown hit some big shots.

Nellie Embers, who scored 15 points in Borger's January 21 victory over Pampa, was held to three points. Clendening said the team was more prepared for her.

'No way were we going to allow a JV player to be the hero again," Clendening said.

With the victory the Lady Harvesters guaranteed the tiebreaker over Borger. As long as Pampa has the same record or better than Borger they clinch a playoff spot.

Brown said it was a big victory and confidence booster. "I'm excited," Brown said. "It was our goal at the beginning of the season to return to the playoffs. The junior varsity (10-14, 5-2) won their fifth straight 36-24. Coach Braydon.

Neither team led by more than three until the end of the quarto, when Collins hit a three to expand Pampa's lead to 21-17. Junior guard Cole Engle got the Harvesters off to a quick start in the second hitting a three and converting a layup. The Bulldogs had 10 turnovers in the first half to the Harvesters four. The junior varsity (7-11, 2-3) won 45-38. Coach Matt Embry said the defense won the game.

Our offense was stagnant in the first half but our defense held them to 13 for the half," Embry said. "When you hold teams to 13 in a half you're going to win ball games.

The freshman (3-15, 1-4) won 39-37. Cager Osborne led the team in scoring with 14. Coach Forrest Harding said they have shown improvement.

"If we played like we did tonight, we could run the table the rest of district," Harding said.

The Harvesters (14-10, 4-1) hold a half-game lead over Perryton (14-11, 3-1), who they host 7:30 p.m. Friday. Perryton's game with Dalhart was postponed till Thursday.

Miller said it was a big deal for his team to get their game in.

"(Perryton) has to play a physical game with Dalhart Thursday," Miller said. "Then (Perryton) has to get on a bus Friday and come to Pampa with little preparation time. I would ather be in our shoes than theirs."

Reid Miller rises above the defense in the first half to shoot a jumper. Miller scored two points in the Harvesters 70-55 victory over the Borger Bulldogs.
