 A Department of Public Safety investigation is still ongoing after a man was airlifted to Amarillo due to a one-vehicle accident outside Pampa on Wednesday evening.
 According to the DPS report, 28-year-old Robert Leger of Pampa was traveling westbound when his red 1999 Ford Ranger veered off the roadway on County Road E just west of County Road 4.
 Leger, according to the DPS, basically lost control of the vehicle and crashed into a fence on the south side of the roadway. The truck rolled over, coming to rest on its roof. The report states that Leger was not wearing his seatbelt.
 Leger was cited for operating a vehicle with a suspended driver's license.

City officials are warning joggers around the lake at Recreation Park of increased sightings of snakes in the area.
 Shane Stokes, assistant city manager, said that over the past week or so there have been reports of rattlesnake around the lake.
 "They are apparently coming out for water," Stokes said.
 Ed Turner of the city's Street and Parks Superintendent's office said there have been three incidents involving snakes at the park. In one of the incidents, people reported three rattlesnakes.
 He said all the reports have dealt with the walking trail around the lake at Recreation Park during the evening hours.
 "The snakes are on the move at night," Turner said. He said they apparently lay up in the shade or their dens during the heat of the day.
 The Relay for Life was held at Recreation Park overnight on Friday and no incidents were reported, according to Christy Robinson of the American Cancer Society.

Crews battling grass fires in Oklahoma

CEMENT, Okla. (AP) — Officials ordered the evacuation of homes in a southwest Oklahoma town as crews worked into the night Thursday to put out a large grass fire that damaged several homes and burned thousands of acres.

Oklahoma Department of Emergency Management spokeswoman Keli Cain said she didn't know how many homes were affected by the blaze approaching Medicine Park, but said many residents were asked to leave. There were no immediate reports of injuries, she said.

Several homes have been damaged in the fire, which began in Fort Sill Army Post's west range and spread, Comanche County spokesman Christopher Killmer said. About 5,000 acres in the area had been burned.

That blaze was one of several that burned Thursday in drought-plagued western Oklahoma.

In nearby Caddo County, a fire burned about 200 acres near Cement before crews extinguished the blaze.

Fire departments from neighboring communities tackled the flames on the ground and an Oklahoma National Guard helicopter equipped with a large bucket dropped water on the fire from the air, Caddo County Emergency Management Director Larry McDuffey said.

No one was hurt and no structures were lost, McDuffey said.

Sidney "Marie" Griesman, 57

Sidney "Marie" Griesman, 57, of Grand Island, Neb., died Wednesday, June 22, 2011, at The Ambassador in Omaha, Neb., surrounded by her family after a long struggle with Muscular Dystrophy.

Service will be 10:30 a.m. Tuesday, at St. Leo's Catholic Church in Grand Island, Neb. Father Charles Torpey and Father Jim Murphy will officiate. Burial will be in Westlawn Memorial Park Cemetery.

Visitation will be from 5-7 p.m. with a Vigil Service at 7 at St. Leo's. All Faiths Funeral Home of Grand Island, Neb. is serving the family.

Marie was born on October 7, 1953, at Douglas, Ariz., the daughter of Joel and Alta (Seitz) Morris.

Those left cherish her memory include her husband, Dick Griesman of Grand Island, Neb.; daughter and son-in-law, Venus and Doug Klingenberg of Grand Island, Neb.; son and daughter-in-law, Chris and Erin Griesman of Omaha, Neb.; brother and sister-in-law, Noel and Sue Morris of Elfrida, Ariz.; and sister and brother-in-law, Barbara and Rusty Wiseman of Arcadia, Fla. She is also survived by a granddaughter,

Griesman

Amelia Marie Griesman; brother-in-law, Charles Butcher of Pampa; sisters-in-law, Marena "Rene" Morris of Elfrida and Marie Morris of Tuscan, Ariz., and many nieces and nephews.

She is preceded in death by her parents; two sisters, Era Morris and Annette Butcher; and two brothers, Alvie Morris and Zelden Morris.

Marie grew up and received her education in Elfrida, Ariz., and Lefors, graduating with the class of 1971. She received her LPN license through Highlands General Hospital in Pampa.

She was united in marriage to Richard "Dick" Griesman on October 14, 1972, in Pampa. Following their marriage the couple lived in Hereford, moving to Grand Island, Neb., in 1975.

Marie was employed at the Grand Island VA Medical Center, Saint Francis Medical Center, Lakeview and Parkplace. She was a member of St. Leo's Catholic Church. Marie's enjoyments included fishing, reading and watching old cowboy movies. She especially loved spending time with her family.

Memorials are suggested to the family. Condolences may be left at www.giall-faiths.com.

Young ex-chief speaks out

EL PASO (AP) — A young woman who says she left her post as police chief in her Mexican hometown because of death threats plans to speak out against drug-related violence in her country as she seeks U.S. asylum.

Twenty-year-old Marisol Valles was to speak at a news conference Friday, four months after fleeing from Praxedis G. Guerrero. She had been police chief in the small border town since October.

Valles' predecessor was beheaded, and she alleged that drug cartels threatened her life before she came to the U.S.

Attorney Carlos Spector says Valles has "a well-founded fear of persecution" because a police officer from her hometown was wounded Wednesday. Mexican officials say the officer and her husband and child were stabbed in their home during a robbery, not an assassination attempt.

Two dead in ultralight crash

RANGER (AP) — Two men have been killed in the crash of an ultralight aircraft at an airport in West Texas. Ranger Municipal Airport spokesman Jared Calvert identified the victims as Richard Reeb of Ranger and Lynnwood Weiss of Goliad.

Calvert says Reeb, who was a city commissioner, and Weiss had gone for a test flight Wednesday afternoon. Weiss was considering a purchase of the aircraft.

Calvert says the aircraft apparently stalled, then crashed. Federal investigators will help determine the cause of the accident.

Ranger City Secretary Mary Wells says Reeb was in a city commission runoff election last weekend against Connie Hovey. Wells told The Associated Press that results were canvassed Friday and that Reeb was defeated.

Ranger is about 80 miles southwest of Fort Worth.

No quorum for GOP-led House

AUSTIN (AP) — When Republicans grabbed a supermajority in the Texas House, the joke was that Democrats wouldn't even have to show up for bills to pass.

But now it's Republicans not showing up for the special session called by Gov. Rick Perry. It happened again Friday when the House appeared to be well short of the 100 members needed to have a quorum and quickly adjourned without doing any business. Republicans hold a 101-49 majority.

The session expires next Wednesday. Lawmakers have yet to pass critical budget and hurricane insurance coverage bills and Perry's pet projects on immigration enforcement and criminalizing invasive airport security pat-downs.

If those fail because of a lack of time or interest, it could be seen as a major embarrassment to a governor considering a run for president.

Lawmakers to mull pat-down ban

AUSTIN (AP) — The Texas House has adjourned without debating a statewide ban of so-called "intrusive" airport security pat-downs.

The measure was revived by Gov. Rick Perry, who is still deliberating whether to seek the Republican presidential nomination. He added it to the Legislature's special session agenda under pressure from tea party supporters. But with time running out, the bill may not pass by Wednesday's deadline.

Lt. Gov. David Dewhurst said he is trying to change the bill to avoid a confrontation with federal authorities.

The bill would punish public servants who perform pat-downs considered excessive, making performing them a misdemeanor. The House approved the measure during the Legislature's regular session, but it died in the Senate after federal officials threatened to ground flights in Texas.

Homes destroyed by Okla. fire

MEDICINE PARK, Okla. (AP) — A massive wildfire that has destroyed 13 homes and burned about 5,500 acres of land is about 40 percent contained.

Comanche County spokesman Chris Killmer says high winds re-fueled the blaze around noon Friday, pushing it farther northeast across Oklahoma Highway 58 south of Lake Lawtonka. Killmer says additional homes were evacuated before crews contained the flare-up about an hour later.

The fire erupted on Fort Sill Army Post's West Range about 5 p.m. Thursday and spread into nearby Medicine Park.

About 1,500 people were told to leave the area while more than 100 firefighters battle the blaze. Officials say two Oklahoma National Guard helicopters equipped with 600-gallon buckets are dropping water on the fire.

The only injury reported is a firefighter who sustained a minor injury to his foot.

Jobs at issue in Cherokee election

CLAREMORE, Okla. (AP) — How many jobs are being produced by the Cherokee Nation and who holds those positions has become a central issue in the campaign to see who will lead Oklahoma's largest American Indian tribe for the next four years.

The contentious campaign will end Saturday, when voters decide whether to keep 12-year incumbent Chad Smith as the tribe's principal chief or elevate longtime tribal councilman and Tahlequah businessman Bill John Baker to that position.

Smith touts the creation of more than 5,000 "stable jobs" during his tenure and says almost 60 percent of those have gone to Cherokees and about 10 percent have gone to members of other tribes.

ROBERT BURNS
Texas Agri-Life Extension Service

COLLEGE STATION — While drought is bad for practically everything else that grows, it does often promote a good crop of grasshoppers, according to Texas AgriLife Extension Service experts.

"Grasshopper populations are normally maintained at lower levels by natural controls, including diseases," said Dr. Chris Sansone, AgriLife Extension entomologist, San Angelo. "The main disease is a fungus, and most fungi do better during cool wet conditions. Since we didn't have cool, wet conditions in the spring, the fungus isn't thriving, and since the fungus isn't thriving, we're having higher populations of grasshoppers."

There are also some effects with bare ground warming up faster in the spring that favors grasshopper outbreaks, he said.

Despite the drought, grasshopper reports from AgriLife Extension agents were sketchy across the state, but seemed to be more common in East Texas and South Texas around San Antonio.

The hit-and-miss outbreaks are most likely due to there being other factors involved, Sansone said.

"This year has been interesting because the drought has been so severe," he said. "If people haven't had any showers at all — even those late afternoon showers of a tenth or two-tenths of an inch — we're not seeing any grasshopper outbreaks."

Sansone said this is probably because there's not enough food in pastures and rangeland to sustain even a grasshopper population.

"These areas that have been catching afternoon showers are seeing the worse outbreaks."

More information on grasshoppers can be found at in the AgriLife Extension publication "Grasshoppers and Their Control," available at <http://insects.tamu.edu/extension/publications/epubs/e-209.cfm>.

More information on the current Texas drought and wildfire

Texas hosts about 150 grasshopper species, according to Texas AgriLife Extension Service entomologists. Both of these are of the 'Boopedon gracile' species, a grass feeder. Both were found in the same Nacogdoches County pasture. The one on the left is a male, and the one on the right is a last instar nymph female.

alerts can be found on the AgriLife Extension Agricultural Drought Task Force website at <http://agrilife.tamu.edu/drought/>.

AgriLife Extension district reporters compiled the following summaries:

PANHANDLE: The region remained extremely hot, dry and windy with wildfire danger high. Soil moisture was very short in most counties. Corn and cotton continued to struggle under high winds and 100-plus degree heat. Most counties reported corn to be in poor condition. Cotton was in fair to very poor condition, with most reporting poor. Producers were actively irrigating all summer crops. Rangeland and pasture conditions were mostly very poor. Ranchers continued supplemental feeding of cattle.

ROLLING PLAINS: The region remained hot, dry and windy with no relief in sight. The first 18 days of June, 100-plus degree temperatures devastated soil-moisture levels. Dryland cotton planting was finished, but very little of the crop was expected to emerge. Irrigated cotton producers were watering, hoping to establish stands. Some ranchers were culling herds. One Motley County producer stated that without rain soon he would be weaning calves as early as the first week of July. Ranchers have culled off cattle and cut numbers to such an extent that if it does rain, it will be a long time before they can rebuild herds. Hay supplies were running low also. Producers were reporting yields of about one-third of normal. Hay was often sold before it was baled. Stock-water tanks were also drying up. The threat of wildfire remained high, and most counties remained under burn bans.

SOUTH PLAINS: The district continued to have record-breaking heat, with highs in the triple digits, and burn bans still in effect. There were some very limited, localized showers. Irrigated cotton growers were struggling to keep up with water demands just to keep plants alive. Dryland plantings were not emerging, and insurance adjusters were inspecting fields. Cattle producers were running out of hay and began to cull herds. Some ranchers had to haul water.

Crews see progress in Ariz. fires

PHOENIX (AP) — Crews battling wildfires across Arizona continued to make progress Friday, taking advantage of milder weather and robbing blazes of vegetation.

Firefighters on the 45-square-mile Monument Fire near Sierra Vista in southeastern Arizona conducted a controlled burn overnight to strengthen containment lines on the blaze. The burn took place in areas west of some evacuated neighborhoods to strengthen control lines in front of homes.

The fire is now 59 percent contained. The blaze has destroyed 57 homes, more than any other in the state this year. It also forced the evacuation of thousands of people before crews took advantage of better weather this week to get a handle on it.

"It's going pretty good," said Katy Hooper, a spokeswoman for the crews fighting the fire. "The active part of the fire is not widespread like it has been earlier in the week."

She said weather over the weekend is expected to be hot, but lower winds will be favorable for crews working to control the blaze and build up containment even more.

Time for a bit of a personal look back

June marks my 25th month in Pampa as the Executive Director of the Chamber of Commerce—time for a little reflection.

I didn't know what to expect when I came for my primary interview. I had been down US 60, Hobart, Foster, Baker School (when the library was there during renovation) and a few other places, but I really didn't know the town. I remembered my grandmother talking about Browning, Cuyler, Frost, Starkweather (which I thought was a hilarious name) but I do not recall her ever mentioning Ballard or Duncan. We must have driven down it, but I don't recall the name at all.

I took a cruise around town—liked what I saw—and the rest is history. So what are my observations of Pampa after two years?

I like it. It's not perfect, but I like it. Recently a friend from Lubbock came through and took my wife and me out to eat. He asked her what was the favorite place she had lived. Her answer, unequivocally, was "Here." Note that this was not a local person she felt had to give the "right" answer to. And my wife, unlike me, would not be required to give the "right" answer. It's truly how she feels—and I concur.

The diversity—particularly of business. Pampa was founded as a water stop on the railroad and soon grew to a small market town where agricultural goods could be shipped. When oil was discovered in the 1920s, it changed the complexion of the town completely, eventually resulting in the county seat. Today, not only do we have agriculture and fossil fuels, but retail, service, and manufacturing. Big guys like Cabot, NOV and Titan, as well as small ones.

I like to eat at Mejia's Bakery on Foster. If I meet someone there, I almost always take them across the street to Great Plains Traditional Bow Company. Did you know they ship bows—hunting bows—to Belgium? Open Range Engineering has projects all over the world, and many other small manufacturers ship nationally and internationally.

The history—the 20th century history of the area is fascinating enough, but the fossil record goes back thousands of years. I have long been intrigued by the Red River War, and now I live in the "center of the action" so to speak. And I can always count on folks like Ken Fields or Jimmy Northcutt to set me straight if I get it wrong.

Other places I have lived have a museum—a "pioneer" museum with butter churns and saddles. But Pampa's historical White Deer Land Museum has that and much more—including the building itself. Last year Joe Rogers, a steward with the Texas Historical Commission, came to Pampa to interview James Baird at the Freedom Museum USA. Several times since, Joe has commented how awesome that facility is. And to know that the man who wrote one of America's best loved and most often sung songs started his musical career right here (more or less) is pretty incredible. And the folks who jam at the Woody Guthrie Folk Music Center are top notch.

But that's not surprising, because the people of Pampa in general are top-notch. I recently visited with Andy Gomez, who moved here to be sales manager at Culberson-Stowers. He commented on how friendly people are. Not my words, but high recommendation from a newcomer.

I've done it again—started singing the praises of Pampa and run out of space way before I ran out of things to say.

Does Pampa have some negatives? Sure it does. But every place does and I'm out of room and I see no point in pointing them out anyway. Have a great summer—in spite of the recent "stark weather!"

Joe Weaver is the Executive Director of the Pampa Chamber of Commerce.

Herman Cain's presidential amateur hour

America is a free country, and radio talk-show host Herman Cain is free to run for president. Even with low-name recognition, the former Godfather's Pizza CEO polls well. Veteran pollster Scott Rasmussen ranks him third, with 10 percent of the GOP primary vote, behind former Massachusetts Gov. Mitt Romney and Minnesota Congresswoman Michele Bachmann. His supporters seem enthusiastic. But they should understand one thing: Herman Cain cannot win because when it comes to politics, he is an amateur.

Cain's website opens with the slogan "Let's Get Real."

Not the Herman-ator's strong suit. Cain can boast of a great American success story. A black man who grew up in the Jim Crow South, Cain is the son of a chauffeur and domestic worker who were determined that he graduate college. He did. Then he earned a master's degree. He applied himself. He rose through corporate America and became chief executive of Godfather's Pizza. Cain should be proud of his achievements.

In the political world, Cain has not fared as well. Larry Sabato, director of the University of Virginia's Center for Politics, summed up Cain's political experience as "losing badly in a Republican primary in his own state" — when Cain ran for a U.S. Senate seat in Georgia in 2004. It's not a plus for a presidential candidate when Republicans in his own state nominated someone else.

Cain became an Atlanta talk radio host, a commentator for Fox Business and an author. He knows how to speak provocatively. Witness his remarks about President Obama's Kenyan roots and his admission that he would not appoint qualified Muslims unless they could prove they are loyal Americans. In short, he made a name for himself by alienating people — the one thing you don't do if you want to win an election.

But the main reason Cain won't win is that most Republicans understand that a man who has never won an election or a battlefield has no business running for president. He was a great businessman, but that does not mean he can squeeze what he wants out of hostile lawmakers, outmaneuver treacherous allies or juggle the thousand parts of foreign policy.

Like many Republicans, I am a strong believer in citizen politicians.

When civilians enter the arena, they can bring outside-the-Capitol-dome common sense to a realm made overcomplicated by careerists who know how to cut deals but not how to get things done.

Sen. Tom Coburn, R-Okla., is a great example. An obstetrician who entered politics in his 40s, Coburn declared war on earmarks and ethanol subsidies — and he has succeeded where career Republicans once dared not tread.

Ronald Reagan went from actor to politician. Please note: Reagan could not have been President Reagan without being California Gov. Reagan first.

Sabato noted that in 1980, when Democrats were painting Reagan as an extremist, "the most reassuring qualification that Reagan had was having run the nation's largest state (population-wise) for eight years — and it was still there."

Cain has a poor sense of timing. Obama did not have a thick political resume when he won the White House. If American voters are so dissatisfied with Obama in 2012 that they want to replace him, they are not going to choose a rookie — who never has won a showdown with other lawmakers, sat across the table from a foreign despot or withstood the pressure of a hardball election and triumphed — whose claim to fame is that he is a good talker.

In its early stages before voters have begun to focus seriously on the election, the 2012 GOP primary has shined the spotlight on vanity candidates (Newt Gingrich), vanity non-candidates (Sarah Palin) and vanity personified (Donald Trump).

Like Cain, Palin and Trump have a talent for saying glib things that suggest that there are easy fixes for entrenched messes. Take Cain's premise that not being a politician is a plus in a presidential election.

Texas wildfires reaching unlikely places amidst drought

FORT WORTH (AP) — Hurricane season has reached the Gulf Coast, but electronic signs along Houston's freeways have been warning of extreme wildfire danger.

This is among the latest oddities in what has become the state's worst wildfire season, where out-of-control blazes have charred nearly 5,100 square miles from arid West Texas to the thick East Texas woods near the Louisiana border. But fires also have surprised residents in some southeastern towns where rainfall and humidity usually dilute such threats by spring.

Now, with bone-dry conditions extending into the summer and a severe drought plaguing nearly all of Texas, authorities face the challenge of educating even the least fire-prone communities about how easily the blazes can start.

The U.S. Bureau of Alcohol, Tobacco and Firearms unwittingly caused a 150-acre blaze in May while detonating explosives in a Panhandle dirt field, even though a fire truck was nearby because agents knew about Motley County's burn ban. No homes were damaged.

But dozens of homes in Austin and in several towns an hour's drive from Houston have been destroyed in wildfires sparked by a homeless man's campfire, a barbecue pit or bullets from hunters' target practice, despite widespread and well-publicized burn bans now affecting all but a couple dozen of the state's 254 counties.

"This didn't have to happen," said Sarah Bustamante, 29, who was evacuated from her Plantersville home last weekend after someone's barbecue pit ignited a large blaze in Grimes County northwest of Houston. "The rules are in place for a reason, and from that one little oversight or whatever, it upset nature and a whole lot of lives."

The Texas Forest Service has been promoting fire prevention efforts across the state through meetings, billboards and posters. Local authorities have done similar efforts, and Austin police officers visited homeless camps to warn about open burning after a homeless man who allegedly left eggs cooking unattended was charged with arson. The 100-acre fire in April destroyed nearly a dozen homes in Austin's outskirts.

"In years like this, it's critical to know what the causes are and to focus on what people can do to prevent fires, and it's important that we leave no leaf unturned," said Justice Jones, a fire prevention manager for the Texas Forest Service.

He said state fire officials meet with residents after determining a county's main cause of wildfires — such as arson in East Texas, debris burning in South Texas and lightning strikes in West Texas.

"We think folks are listening, and that there's a growing awareness," Jones said.

Bustamante has tried to do her part in Grimes County, where burn ban signs are posted in parks, stores and even some stop signs. At a recent birthday party for a friend's 1-year-old at a state park, the group roasted hot dogs on an electric grill and ate chili heated in a crock pot plugged into outlets at a pavilion.

"Some people at the party were from out of town and said, 'Why are we doing this?' We told them there was a burn ban and we couldn't grill," said Bustamante, who has four children and two stepchildren. "Everybody around here knows the drought has been so bad, and they've been taking the burn ban seriously."

This season few areas of Texas have escaped the devastation being blamed in four deaths — including three firefighters battling separate blazes.

An April house fire led to the second-largest wildfire in state history — a nearly 315,000-acre blaze in three West Texas counties that narrowly missed the Fort Davis Historic Site, a frontier Army cavalry fort, and the McDonald Observatory, a top astronomical research facility. In fact, seven of the state's 10 largest wildfires occurred this spring — including the nearly 127,000-acre, three-county blaze that destroyed about 160 homes around Possum Kingdom Lake, a picturesque community 70 miles west of Fort Worth.

The Texas wildfire season that starts in November usually wanes in the spring because of rain, greener vegetation and higher humidity, said Victor Murphy, a climate expert with the National Weather Service in Fort Worth. But the state's wettest months — April through June — were anything but this year because of the lingering La Nina weather condition that causes below-normal rainfall.

Despite recent rains that poured across many of the state's latest wildfires, federal statistics show 71 percent of Texas remains in exceptional drought — the most severe category — and 21 percent is in extreme drought.

The National Interagency Fire Center calls for above-normal wildfire potential through September in the Southwest, including Arizona and New Mexico where blazes have raged in dried-out forests and grasslands.

Texas has not seen such a severe wildfire season since 2006, when blazes charred about 2 million acres, left 12 people dead and destroyed more than 400 homes. The state's largest fire ever started in the Panhandle in March 2006 and grew to more than 907,000 acres.

Unless significant rain falls during the sweltering summer heat, experts predict the state could be in for more destructive blazes.

"Things are tinder dry," Murphy said, "so it doesn't take much to get things started."

Sunday in History

Tomorrow is Sunday, June 26, the 177th day of 2011. There are 188 days left in the year.

Today's Highlights in History:

On June 26, 1911, John J. McDermott became the first American-born golf player to win the U.S. Open, played in Chicago. Track star and golfer Babe Didrikson Zaharias was born in Port Arthur, Texas.

On this date:

In 1870, the first section of Atlantic City, N.J.'s Boardwalk was opened to the public.

In 1919, the New York Daily News was first published.

In 1936, President Franklin D. Roosevelt was nominated for a second term of office by delegates to the Democratic national convention in Philadelphia.

In 1945, the charter of the United Nations was signed by 50 countries in San Francisco.

In 1948, the Berlin Airlift began in earnest after the Soviet Union cut off land and water routes to the isolated western sector of Berlin.

In 1950, President Harry S. Truman authorized the Air Force and Navy to enter the Korean conflict.

In 1963, President John F. Kennedy visited West Berlin, where he famously declared, "Ich bin ein Berliner" (I am a Berliner).

In 1973, former White House counsel John W. Dean told the Senate Watergate Committee about an "enemies list" kept by the Nixon White House.

In 1988, three people were killed when a new Airbus A320 jetliner carrying more than 130 people crashed into a forest during a demonstration at an air show in Mulhouse, France.

In 1990, President George H.W. Bush went back on his "no-new-taxes" campaign pledge, conceding that tax increases would have to be included in any deficit-reduction package worked out with congressional negotiators.

Ten years ago: President George W. Bush urged Ariel Sharon during a White House meeting to take the next step toward Middle East peace talks, but the Israeli prime minister said violence had to end first. George Trofimoff, a retired Army officer, was convicted in Tampa, Fla., of selling Cold War secrets to Moscow over two decades. (Trofimoff, who maintained his innocence, was sentenced to life in prison.)

Five years ago: President George W. Bush said it was "disgraceful" that the news media had disclosed a secret CIA-Treasury program to track millions of financial records in search of terrorist suspects. More than a foot of rain inundated Washington, D.C., toppling a 100-year-old elm tree on the White House lawn and causing flooding that closed major government departments.

One year ago: At odds over how to strengthen the global economic recovery, Group of Eight leaders meeting in Canada did find common ground on foreign policy, condemning North Korea for the alleged sinking of a South Korean warship and endorsing a five-year exit timetable for Afghanistan. Ghana sent the U.S. packing from the World Cup in South Africa, eliminating the Americans in the second round.

sunday horoscope

Note: Bigar's Stars is based on the degree of your sun at birth. The sign name is simply a label astrologers put on a set of degrees for convenience. For best results, readers should refer to the dates following each sign.

A baby born today, June 26, 2011, has a Sun in Cancer and a Moon in Taurus.

HAPPY BIRTHDAY for Sunday, June 26, 2011:

This year, you present a very stable, dynamic attitude and manner. Success seems to follow you in the areas you desire. Your circle of friends and, in business, your network expands. The unexpected plays a role professionally, and ultimately works for you. If you are single, you draw very dynamic people to you. You have many potential suitors. Ask yourself what type of relationship you would like. If you are attached, the two of you develop a tighter connection, if you so choose. Communication flourishes. TAURUS helps you in any way possible.

The Stars Show the Kind of Day You'll Have: 5-Dynamic; 4-Positive; 3-Average; 2-So-so; 1-Difficult

ARIES (March 21-April 19)

★★★ Make it OK to indulge others. You might need to decide what is the best way to express this desire. You want to be nurturing, but you could shock others and yourself with your initial try. Tonight: Let someone know you care.

This Week: Remind yourself why you are where you are. After Tuesday, express the gusto associated with your sign.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20)

★★★★ Your high energy and positive attitude help you see where others are coming from. You have a lot to share and discuss. An unexpected element rides high as you suddenly see a situation open up. Your perspective changes. Tonight: Having fun.

This Week: Step up to the plate Monday. Assuming a high profile defines your success.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20)

★★ You might do best dealing with one person directly. Discussions could be insightful and take you down a new path at a later date. You see a loved one with new eyes. Know that only something better lies ahead. Tonight: Get plenty of R and R.

This Week: Lie back until late Tuesday. Only then will you successfully deal with what is on your plate.

CANCER (June 21-July 22)

★★★★ Do what you want with the person you want to be with. If you are open and honest, you will note that a key person in your life has been transforming in front of your very eyes. Make plans to join friends or be with a loved one. Tonight: Squeezing every moment of fun out of the night.

This Week: Zero in on your priorities. Know what you want, and act as soon as Monday.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22)

★★★ Drop in on an older parent or visit with an older friend. You might need to reorganize your schedule to fit in a request. The unexpected occurs when traveling or touching base with someone at a distance. Tonight: Try to get a head start on tomorrow. Make a list of to-do's.

This Week: Oh, responsible one, success happens naturally.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22)

★★★★ Keep reaching out for someone at a distance. Your approach or way of handling a personal matter could change radically. Catch up on news. You might be delighted with what you wind up with. Tonight: Beam in what you want.

This Week: Let your imagination lead.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 22)

★★★★ Investigate what is going on with a family member. This person might not mean to interfere with a financial agreement or key partnership. Handle each matter clearly and swiftly. Key people are unpredictable. Tonight: Go with another person's suggestion.

This Week: Togetherness defines your approach, even more so this week.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23-Nov. 21)

★★★★ Others seek you out. If you screen your calls, you could eliminate a strong possibility. Be sure the plans you make are what you want. You don't want to have last-minute regrets. Think through a problem with an associate or someone who understands your life. Tonight: Don't worry about tomorrow.

This Week: Defer to others. Think positively.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21)

with a friend. This person might want to socialize, but you have other plans. Invite him or her along, even if it means he or she will be pitching in on a project. This person wants your company, right? Tonight: Choose something relaxing.

This Week: Dive into work Monday. The sooner you get going, the better.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19)

★★★★ You might want to rethink how you deal with a child or loved one. At this point, a simple change makes it easy to reorient the interaction. Rest assured you can have positive interactions with this person. Tonight: Forget it is Sunday. Pretend it is Friday!

This Week: Take a hint from Virgo, and you'll find solutions with ease.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18)

★★★★ Your version of what is going on could be much different from a loved one's. You might opt to do something very differently, causing unanticipated friction. Pull back and realize when you have had enough. Tonight: Invite friends over for a barbecue.

This Week: Anchor in Monday and Tuesday. You have some solutions to find.

PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20)

★★★★ Your words have an impact and most certainly do not fall on deaf ears. Your abilities to be assertive and ask questions emerge, though others might not see those qualities as clearly because of your affable personality. Tonight: With friends and/or family.

This Week: Understand first what is expected. Then act.

Dear Abby...

By Pauline & Jeanne Phillips

DEAR ABBY: I am a teenage girl and my family is important to me. I really wish I could treat them better. My mom and I always fight. She says little things and I get mad at her. I feel bad for snapping at her and my sisters all the time because I really want them to know how much they mean to me. They are the best family you could ever get, and I just push them away.

Mom is going through a lot of health problems, and I know my being mean won't help her get better. Abby, help me, please. — TEENAGE GIRL IN OHIO

DEAR TEENAGE GIRL: The first thing you need to remember is that because your mother is experiencing health problems, she may not be at her best — which is why she says some of those "little things" that make you angry. Before you react and take them personally, you need to remind yourself that she may be having a bad day.

When you are upset and under stress, you should not take it out on your sisters. A better way to cope would be, rather than saying something hurtful, to leave the room or take a walk and organize your thoughts. You'll then be better able to communicate your feelings in a rational way and avoid a fight.

Please try it. These are skills that take practice, but if you master them they will serve you for a lifetime. Now, go hug your mother, tell her you love her and apologize.

DEAR ABBY: I am extremely overweight (5-foot-6 and 331 pounds). I am 38 years old, and the weight is now catching up with me. It hurts to get up in the morning. My knees hurt walking up the stairs, and I can't bear to look at myself (to the point that I will not go out except to work). I have started to pull away from my family.

"Just lose the weight"? Easier said than done! I lost 110 pounds, then gained it back and more. I don't know who to turn to, but I know I need help. — TOO BIG TO ENJOY LIFE

DEAR TOO BIG: I'm glad you wrote, because I'm going to recommend a multi-pronged approach. The first person to contact is your physician, and tell him or her that you are ready to take off the weight and you need help. Then ask for a referral to a psychologist, to help you understand the emotional reasons you have put on so much weight, and also an American Dietetic Association-registered nutritionist who can help you craft a healthy eating program that works for you.

You will also have to make some lifestyle changes, but they will SAVE YOUR LIFE. And remember, losing weight will take time. You didn't put it on overnight; it won't come off overnight. But by writing to me you have already taken your first step in the right direction, and I'm urging you to continue moving down the same path.

DEAR ABBY: We are stumped about how to handle a situation with our grandchildren. Is it OK to set different rules in our home than they have in their own home?

We are inclined to limit running or wrestling indoors, but our daughter (their mother) doesn't feel that's necessary. At different times both children have been injured or gotten into trouble that could have been avoided by having a "no running or wrestling inside" rule. Is it our place to establish rules for our home? — CONCERNED IN TEXAS

DEAR C.I.T.: Absolutely, and without QUESTION it is your place to establish the rules of conduct in YOUR household!

Lefors athletes, coaches stay busy during summer

aglover@thepampanews.com

Lefors' athletes and coaches fill their summers with projects, workouts and jobs.

Head boys athletic coach Joey Czubinski said every summer, they do a project.

"Three years ago, we built the concession stand," Czubinski said. "Two years ago, we put in the visitors' stands. Last year, we built up the weight room. This year, we spent two to three days scraping the field house. Then, we caulked and repainted it."

Czubinski said he has a summer offseason program for players.

"I had a good turnout from junior high students," Czubinski said. "A lot of the high school players work, especially the junior and seniors."

Sophomore Brian McBee, who is participating in the workouts, mentioned that they are like the offseason.

"We run for an hour and lift for an hour," McBee said. "It's like offseason, except without pads and footballs."

Senior Seth Scully said he tries to work out as much as he can.

"I usually go to a football camp if I can," Scully said. "I do go work out during the summer as often as I can."

Other athletes work but not on the field of play. Junior Spencer Nicholson and senior Dennis Sprouse work on Nicholson's dad's ranch. The junior quarterback described his summer as "long hot days."

"I check cattle," Nicholson said. "I'm helping build a fence and help the neighbors brand cattle."

Nicholson said working on the ranch is definitely tougher than football workouts.

"Physically, they are the same," Nicholson said. "Working on the ranch is definitely a longer period."

Senior Taylor Ray is working at Raymond Henderson Services.

"I've worked there the last five summers," Ray said. "On the weekends, I mow lawns. Landscaping is something I want to get into."

Czubinski said in early July he works on the field. Later in the month he attends coaches' school in Lubbock.

"The first day we have Coaches' Corner," Czubinski said. "It's like a chalk-talk session where all of us will get up and talk about what we are doing."

Czubinski said that on the last couple of days, they have meetings. On the last day, the UIL visits and they have district meetings and go over state issues. Czubinski said after coaches school he starts getting ready for two-a-days.

"When it comes to enhancing my family's health, I rely on a Doctor of Chiropractic. The same chiropractic care that powered my athletic career, nurtured my natural childbirth and enriches my parenting."

— Sarah Harding
2x Ms. Fitness USA, First-Time Mother

Since first utilizing chiropractic to recover from a career threatening back injury, Sarah Harding, 2x winner of Ms. Fitness USA, has relied on natural chiropractic treatments throughout her career as an All-American gymnast, professional acrobat and Pilates expert. Now as a first-time Mom and the founder of Asobi Sport™ Family Fitness, a playful Pilates program for busy parents, Harding is once again relying on chiropractic care — only this time the "spot" is parenthood.

"When we feel great, our baby benefits! The safe, gentle techniques used by my chiropractor proved effective during my pregnancy and postpartum period — especially now as a breastfeeding, baby-wearing Mom."

daily horoscope

HAPPY BIRTHDAY for Monday, June 27, 2011.

This year, you might react to others and their choices often. It is also the same for others — they will have a similar reaction to you! You often act in a quirky manner, causing a strong reaction, especially publicly. You might make a swift change professionally that could draw some strong comments. Learn to express your temper in a more effective manner. Otherwise, you could have problems with authority figures. If you are single, you could meet someone through your friends. Note the amount and quality of communication around this person. If you are attached, the two of you will make some unanticipated decisions. Spend more downtime together to bond more deeply. You can count on TAURUS.

The Stars Show the Kind of Day You'll Have: 5-Dynamic; 4-Positive; 3-Average; 2-So-so; 1-Difficult

ARIES (March 21-April 19)
 ★★★ Understand the expense of not handling your anger in an acceptable fashion. You don't realize the behavior you trigger when you don't express yourself. Communication flourishes, especially about expenses, great ideas and what you have to offer. Tonight: No wild spending.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20)
 ★★★★★ Your high energy could provoke some reactions. At the same time, you gain a sudden insight into your own actions and spending. You could be expressing some good ideas, but are others hearing you? Try another route to make your point. Tonight: As you like it.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20)
 ★★★ Know when to say little and listen. Friends act in the most unanticipated manner. You have a hard time sorting out what is important. You get a strong hunch as to which way to go on a key issue. Tonight: Make it OK to vanish.

CANCER (June 21-July 22)
 ★★★★★ You might want to juggle your schedule in order to accommodate a meeting or get-together. Evaluate what is happening with others, especially if you see that an element of confusion or the unexpected runs high. Tonight: Where the action is.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22)
 ★★★★★ A must appearance — whether it is unrelated to work or not — could be critical. Unexpected news marks your decisions. You might want to rethink a situation. Use your instincts if you have a strong feeling. Tonight: Out late.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22)
 ★★★★★ Keep reaching out for others. You might want to brainstorm with others for another, more effective approach on a key issue or project. Read between the lines with an unpredictable partner. Tonight: Get past rigid thinking.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 22)
 ★★★★★ You might want to do whatever is necessary to motivate a partner. This person might be stuck in rigid thinking. Once he or she gains a key insight, the situation will change, in a fashion you might not expect. Tonight: Say "yes" to an offer.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23-Nov. 21)
 ★★★★★ Continue to defer to others. Feel no need to pursue the path you have chosen. Watch what occurs when others have a similar situation or responsibilities as you. Lying back serves you in many ways, even if you don't see it immediately. Tonight: Sort through offers.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21)
 ★★★ Know what your objectives are before you get started. Someone might be pushing you beyond your normal levels. Think positively about an unexpected offer. You could be quite surprised. Tonight: Call it a night when you get tired.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19)
 ★★★★★ Creativity allows greater options and opens you up to a new idea. Listen with care to news that involves real estate, a family member or some other domestic matter. Don't shy away from asking necessary questions. Someone might not grasp what you are saying. Say it differently. Tonight: Put your feet up.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18)
 ★★★★★ You could be a bit more feisty than you realize. You create options when you think outside the box. Although, an idea could be overwhelming to others. Find an easier way of explaining your ideas. Tonight: Happily mosey on home.

PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20)
 ★★★★★ Keep conversations active. Refresh a situation with a new idea. You might be careless, as you are in your head. As a result, observe a tendency to be accident-prone. Do use good sense handling machinery or a car. Tonight: Join a friend.
