The Pampa H2O Aquatic Center has so far been a beneficial investment for Pampa, averaging 800 visitors a day.

SO FAR, SO GOOD

Stokes talks up H2O at PEDC meeting

MOLLIE BRYANT
 mbryant@thepampanews.com

Assistant City Manager Shane Stokes brought good news to the Pampa Economic Development Corporation at its 4 p.m. meeting on Thursday, August 18.

Stokes discussed Pampa's Aquatic Center, which has enjoyed a roaringly successful first season. A rising sales tax for the city, along with estimates that 40 percent of the center's traffic came from out-of-town visitors, suggests that the water park has been beneficial for the city as a whole. Stokes mentioned several local businesses that have also experienced higher than usual summer traffic.

"The sales tax is hopefully a good indicator of its success," he said.

PISD board holds regular session

MOLLIE BRYANT
 mbryant@thepampanews.com

Pampa ISD's Board of Trustees met at 6 p.m. on Thursday evening for their monthly meeting to discuss separation agreements with several employees and other business.

In closed session, the board discussed the possibility of separation agreements with Pampa Junior High's former principal and vice principal. Both were approved.

The board then discussed changes in Board of Trustees elections brought about by the Military and Overseas Voter Empowerment Act (MOVE Act). Elections for trustees will need to be joint elections with the city or county, but if the board decides to move their elections to join the city's election in the spring, they would need to extend their terms to 4 years and purchase voting equipment. Voting machines cost about $6,500 each.

PISD announces policy for free and reduced lunches

With the start of the school year just around the corner, the Child Nutrition Department of the Pampa Independent School District this week announced its policy for providing free and reduced price meals for students served under the National School Lunch and School Breakfast Program.

"It's a way that we can help with parents who are struggling with today's economy," said Debbie Middleton, PISD Director of Child Nutrition and Custodial Service. "Any time that we can help out students, we're very pleased to do that."

The regular price for breakfast district-wide is $1.50, with school lunches costing $2.25 for elementary students and $2.75 for junior high and high school students.

Under the reduced lunch program, breakfasts and lunches are 30 cents and 40 cents respectively.

"If you multiply that by the 187 days that we're with the students, that comes to a significant amount of money. This really could save a household quite a bit."

Students from households whose income is at or below predetermined levels (see chart on page 8) are eligible for the free and reduced price benefits.

"It is strictly based on income and how many people are in your household," Middleton said. "It is REDUCED cont. on page 10

Two-vehicle wreck on Duncan Fri. morning

ARNIE AURELLANO
 editor@thepampanews.com

The Pampa Police Department responded to a two-vehicle accident on Duncan Street near Pampa High School on Friday morning.

At 11:10 a.m., there was a collision at the 1700 block of Duncan between the 1994 Chrysler Eagle of Jessie Roberts, 17, of Pampa, and the 2001 Chevy Malibu of Christina Rodriguez, 18, of Pampa.

According to the Pampa PD, Rodriguez had two passengers in her vehicle. Per the official police report, no one in the wreck was taken to any hospitals. Both drivers were wearing their safety belts.

"Basically, both cars were traveling northbound when the car of Unit 1 (Roberts) struck the back left side of the car of Unit 2 (Rodriguez)," said Crime Prevention Officer Stormy McCullar of the Pampa PD. "No one was hurt."

Traffic on Duncan was interrupted briefly by the accident. The police department was assisted on the scene by Pampa EMS.

The investigation is currently ongoing.

Wildfires plague dry Texas

FORT WORTH (AP) — Wildfires have destroyed more than a dozen homes in several Texas towns this week.

Officials say the drought-plagued state's worst wildfire season shows no signs of stopping — even after nine months.

That's because the state is in the grips of its second most severe drought with bone-dry grasses and little rain on the horizon. Blazes have already destroyed 5,400 square miles across Texas since mid-November.

In North Texas, several homes were destroyed Thursday by separate wildfires in Johnson and Tarrant counties. Earlier this week a 30-acre wildfire in Leander, north of Austin, spread rapidly and destroyed 15 homes.

A record 250 of the state's 254 counties are now under burn bans.

The Texas Forest Service has been promoting fire prevention efforts because people cause 90 percent of wildfires.

Red light fight unresolved

HOUSTON (AP) — For now, the convoluted fight over permanently shutting off Houston's red light cameras, which were rejected by voters last year, remains unresolved.

This week, Houston City Council delayed voting on measures that would have turned them off, canceled the program's contract and repealed the ordinance allowing such cameras.

City leaders remained hesitant Friday to take any action since ending the program might result in paying the company that runs it up to $25 million in damages.

City leaders hoped to reach some compromise as both sides were to enter mediation talks this weekend.

Mayor Annise Parker says the cameras will be shut off but some residents said Friday the city should stop delaying and turn off the cameras for good.

TX jobless rate highest since '87

SAN ANTONIO (AP) — The unemployment rate in Texas jumped to 8.4 percent in July, hitting the highest level since 1987 while climbing at the fastest pace since the state was still stuck in a recession two years ago, according to employment figures released Friday.

The increase in the jobless rate came despite a 10th consecutive month of job growth, according to Texas Workforce Commission. Texas added 29,300 nonfarm jobs in July, and the state still remains below the national unemployment rate of 9.1 percent.

Yet the Texas rate continued ticking upward, and the latest numbers came as Gov. Rick Perry wrapped up the first week of his Republican presidential campaign that is staked on job creation.

"Texas continues to feel the effects of a stagnant national economy," Texas Workforce Commission Chairman Tom Pauken said in a statement.

The jobless rate in Texas increased from 8.2 percent in June, and after being at 8.0 in May, the rate has now risen 0.2 in consecutive months for the first time since the recession in 2009.

Perry criticizes Obama (again)

COLUMBIA, S.C. (AP) — Texas Gov. Rick Perry says President Barack Obama gets the blame for unemployment increases that include a sharp increase in South Carolina and rising joblessness in his own state.

The Republican White House hopeful said Friday that Obama was counting on luck to move the economy instead of sound economic principles.

Perry says Obama should take responsibility for the economy's problems instead of making excuses, and he says it is time to stop looking for government solutions to the economy's problems and let the private sector lead the recovery.

Perry spoke at a fundraiser in Columbia for the South Carolina Republican Party.

The three-term governor also told doctors at a Florence hospital he would repeal much of the new federal health care law.

Firefighters rescue llama

RED SPRINGS (AP) — Some East Texas firefighters have used their rescue skills to save a llama stuck in a muddy pond for at least a day.

Red Springs volunteer firefighters freed the llama at midday Friday.

Lt. Charles Wilson says a passer-by reported seeing the animal in water up to its neck. Wilson says the 250-pound llama apparently got stuck Thursday, a day when temperatures topped 100 degrees.

Employees of the Caldwell Zoo in Tyler helped ease the llama's feet from the bog, then the creature was pulled out. The owner took the weakened llama to a veterinarian.

Wilson, who's been a firefighter for 42 years, told The Associated Press that he's saved horses and cattle, but this was his first llama rescue — and he feels good about it.

Dogs rescued after owner found

STONEBURG (AP) — More than 85 dogs in pens have been rescued after their owner was found dead in his North Texas mobile home during the excessive heat.

Montague County Sheriff Paul Cunningham says the body of 73-year-old Jack Dempsey Beasley was discovered Wednesday at a residence near Stoneburg. Concerned relatives had contacted the sheriff's department to check on Beasley.

A coroner listed the preliminary cause of death as heat exhaustion. Authorities believe the man had been dead for a couple of days.

Members of the Humane Society of North Texas helped rescue the dogs Thursday. The animals, after receiving medical attention, will be available for adoption. Dozens of other dogs were found dead.

The National Weather Service says temperatures in North Texas topped 100 degrees this week.

The park averaged 800 visitors a day this summer, with 45,000 total gate passes sold. On top of those patrons, the park was solidly booked for private parties.

"Private party rentals started out three nights a week, and within the first three weeks, we had every one of them booked through the end of the season. So he added a fourth [night], and in about a week, we had all of those booked through the end of the season," said Stokes. "Church groups, youth groups and sports teams come out and rent it. And a lot of people come out and rent it for birthday parties. So that's been a popular thing."

The aquatic center brought in $340,000 so far this season, with $92,000 of that revenue coming from concession sales.

"I like to think that we're not only bringing people to Pampa to spend their money here, but we're paying 40 to 50 teenagers from Pampa a paycheck that they can go out and spend in Pampa, too," Stokes said.

After Labor Day, the park's last day, it will undergo some minor construction before closing for the season. Then folks will have to wait until next summer to enjoy the attraction.

"It's something else that Pampa can be proud of," said Stokes.

In other business:

• Donny Hooper, Director of Public Works, spoke about the positive effect the city's surveillance cameras have had upon vandalism in town. Pampa has eight cameras stationed in area parks, including the Aquatic Center, with the capability to monitor for 24 hours a day.

"We've had incidents that have been caught on camera, but we haven't had a lot of incidents either, so I think that the cameras just being there have done what we thought they would do," said Hooper. "The knowledge that there was going to be something looking after you while you're in the parks has done a great deal, because the vandalism has really gone down. We haven't seen near the graffiti, and we haven't seen near the damage to the equipment."

Aside from deterring crime, the cameras have benefited law enforcement. Hooper said that in addition to solving a crime in Recreation Park, they have helped officers check on suspicious persons and people out past curfew.

"We're pleased to have them," he added. "We think they're going to be a big benefit in the long run."

Hooper also talked about the demolition project that has torn down 64 structures since the beginning of the fiscal year in October.

"If you're bringing (people) into town, you need to have a place that they like to come to, that they like to visit, and part of the problem that Pampa had was a lot of the blight," said Hooper. "When people come into town and they see a lot of structures in disarray, it's really a bad reflection on this community."

The city plans to tear down five structures per week until the fiscal year ends. "We're making a dent in it, but we still have a lot to go," Hooper concluded.

• PEDC also hosted a visit from David Miller of the National Institute of Renewable Energy (NIRE). Miller spoke about his organization and its goals in the region.

NIRE works on research and development of wind energy, but its main focus is on "behind the meter" projects. These projects help industrial energy users take advantage of wind energy to decrease their overall utility bill.

"Wind is variable, so it's not going to be 100 percent of their power, but if they've taken a lot of variability out so they can get a larger blended rate in the future, it makes a lot of financial sense," said Miller. "You're connecting behind the meter, so it reduces their usage that they're buying from their utility partner."

Miller hopes that behind the meter projects will make it easier to recruit wind energy manufacturers and technicians to the area in the future.

Today in History

Today is Saturday, Aug. 20, the 232nd day of 2011. There are 133 days left in the year.

Today's Highlights in History:

On Aug. 20, 1911, The New York Times sent a message around the world by regular commercial cable to see how long it would take; the dispatch, which said simply, "Times, New York - This message sent around world. Times," was filed at 7 p.m. and returned to its point of origin 16 minutes later.

On this date:

In 1882, Tchaikovsky's "1812 Overture" had its premiere in Moscow.

In 1920, pioneering American radio station 8MK in Detroit (later WWJ) began daily broadcasting.

In 1940, during World War II, British Prime Minister Winston Churchill paid tribute to the Royal Air Force before the House of Commons, saying, "Never in the field of human conflict was so much owed by so many to so few."

Remember when...

I was watching PBS a few days ago, and they were airing some comedy routines from the old Ed Sullivan Show. I was amazed at how many were based on a rudimentary knowledge of history, which I don't think a lot of modern audience would recognize. Remember Bob Newhart's routines about the Wright Brothers, Abraham Lincoln, and Sir Walter Raleigh? ("So, Walt, this 'toe-bac-koe' you're talking about is a leaf that you stick in your lips and set on fire? I'm not sure I see the commercial advantages of this.")

On the program Red Buttons was quoting the wives of famous people from history. The only one that sticks in my mind is what Mrs. Whitney said to Eli: "You keep your cotton pickin' hands away from the gin!"

What's in a Name?

A few weeks ago I met a woman whose last name was "Brandyberry". What kind of berries do they make brandy from?

I had a good friend named Penny Stamps—her married name, thank goodness.

The other day I saw in the paper a man with the last name of "Bigjohnny". It seems like he may have been of Armenian descent, so I can see how someone could not pronounce the original immigrant's name, began calling him "Big Johnny", which stuck and was passed on to his descendants.

What Obama should learn from Wisconsin

With Wisconsin's epic state senate recall battle now over, the results carry a clear message that ought to resonate all the way to Washington — and especially the Obama White House. The essence of politics in America today, for Democrats at least, is to understand and communicate the political nature of the opposition.

Having suffered a bad beating last November, the Wisconsin Democrats and their allies have succeeded in building a strong movement that fights back explicitly against the right-wing policies of Gov. Scott Walker's Republican Party.

Last week, they won two out of six recall campaigns mounted against GOP state senators, which was widely interpreted as a defeat or at best a draw. But on Tuesday, they won all three recall efforts against Democrats, giving them an overall series victory, and cutting deeply into perceived support for the Walker agenda.

A third seat would have been turned over from the Republicans to Democrats, but for a thousand votes or so in a single senate district — or but for a profusion of ballot-counting irregularities that alleged benefited Republicans in a single big county.

To hear the Republicans and their supporters crowing, you wouldn't know they had held onto control of the state Senate by only a single vote. So it is clear that the governor remains vulnerable to recall himself — which must be why he now sounds more like the bipartisan, reasonable, constructive Republican, the very scarce kind that President Obama has pursued so long and so fruitlessly.

On the day after his party forfeited two state Senate seats — matching the total number of elected officials recalled in Wisconsin's entire history — Walker told reporters that he realized voters "want us to do more working together" and that he would henceforth focus on "jobs" (with no mention of his previous union-busting initiatives).

Surely he is also concerned with his own plummeting poll numbers, which show a profound sense of buyer's remorse among Wisconsin independent voters, as well as the continued determination of the state's progressives and unions to remove him from power. And if the results of the recall elections of the past two weeks have encouraged him to reconsider the confrontational attitude he displayed during his first six months in office, so much the better.

But what do the Wisconsin results mean to President Obama, whose gauzy dream of a "post-partisan" era in Washington have been so bitterly dashed by the rise of the tea party? In a battleground state that could go either way next year — and that went sharply rightward last year — the progressive Democratic mobilization over the past six months has been nothing short of remarkable.

Consider that Wisconsin has only seen 20 or so recall elections over the past century, and that of those elections only two have previously resulted in the recall of an incumbent. Consider that incumbents generally have a powerful advantage in any election, especially an off-year recall. Consider further that only a few months ago, the Republicans used their majority to pass a highly restrictive voter ID bill that probably suppressed the vote of Democratic-leaning constituencies, including low-income families, elderly Medicare and Social Security beneficiaries, ethnic minorities and students.

And finally consider the lukewarm attitude of the Obama White House toward the Wisconsin struggle, despite the president's past vow to "walk the picket line" in defense of workers' rights. Although the Obama political operation was reported to be lending help to the Democratic recall effort, there wasn't much visible support from the president or his surrogates.

Perhaps it would have been inappropriate for the president to involve himself directly in a campaign against state officials. But whether he ought to have spoken out or not, there are still two profound lessons for him in this outcome.

The first lesson is that bipartisanship seems to be encouraged among Republicans these days only when they suspect that voters may be sick of their extremism. Just as Walker is now worried about his future, so is Ohio Gov. John Kasich, who has suddenly realized that he prefers cooperation to confrontation over collective bargaining — evidently because he fears the results of a potential repeal referendum on the issue in November.

The second lesson is that there is only one way to instill such fear among Republicans, in Wisconsin or Washington: By demonstrating the will to push back, as hard as necessary, on behalf of the principles Democrats have always promised to uphold.

That is what the Republicans do with great consistency on behalf of their own ideology, however extreme or unpopular. That is what inspired the Democrats who have fought them to a standstill in Wisconsin. And that is what could still save Obama's presidency.

sunday horoscope

HAPPY BIRTHDAY for Sunday, Aug. 21, 2011:

This year, you gain by just being yourself. Others respond to your ideas. The high level of charisma you exude also could help you achieve your goals and feel in touch with others emotionally. If you are single, you could meet someone through an outside commitment or through work. In the months before your birthday in 2012, you will notice the dynamics of a friendship change. If you are attached, the two of you benefit from becoming more outgoing. You can count on GEMINI.

The Stars Show the Kind of Day You'll Have: 5-Dynamic; 4-Positive; 3-Average; 2-So-so; 1-Difficult

ARIES (March 21-April 19)

★★★ You continue to weigh the pros and cons of a financial matter. Extremes and a dreamlike sense of well-being weave through your day. You might not be in sync with anyone but yourself. Avoid fussiness when someone pops your bubble. Tonight: Hang out with a pal.

This Week: Say what you mean, and mean what you say. You will be tested in that regard.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20)

★★★★★ When you look at potential plans, you could get very excited. You encounter a certain amount of nostalgia concerning an important relationship. You see all the good in this person and perhaps an illusion or two. Tonight: Make dinner your treat.

This Week: Being fiscally savvy is great, but you also need to make decisions. Try for a Friday deadline on these matters.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20)

★★★★ Use today to rest up or do some work. A call might be the natural outcome of thinking about someone at a distance. You might be taking off before you know it. You feel very comfortable with a family member. Tonight: Do anything you want to do.

This Week: You enter the week all smiles. Key issues need to be moved on quickly.

CANCER (June 21-July 22)

★★★★ Use the daylight hours to visit with friends and socialize. Some of you might want to go to an art show or do something important and delightful. Late today, you might want to quiet down from the weekend. Tonight: Get some extra zzz's.

This Week: Work hard Monday and Tuesday. Afterward, close your door, screen your calls and do whatever is necessary. You will note that many people start seeking you out mid-week.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22)

★★★★★ Think positively and deal with a sense of fascination that could be coloring your interactions. Wearing rose-colored glasses can be a plus, but knowing that you are wearing them could be far more significant than you think. Tonight: Where the action is.

This Week: Aim high and act quickly; from Wednesday on, Lady Luck moves elsewhere!

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22)

★★★★ Follow the desire to take off. Make plans for a trip soon, if you can. Some of you will be satisfied with a day trip. Others could happily become armchair travelers. A change of venue or scenery could refresh you. Tonight: A force to be dealt with.

This Week: Take the lead. You might not have a choice. You will be delighted by the end result.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 22)

★★★★ A partner makes an important gesture. You feel revived and much happier than you have in a long time. You need this type of interaction with this person. You might not reveal everything that has gone on to others. Make it OK to do that. Tonight: Follow your imagination.

This Week: Explore options, and don't forget your self-imposed mental filters. You will like being freer.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23-Nov. 21)

★★★★ Others come forward and share their invitations with you, asking you to join them. A friendship could be evolving to a new level; enjoy this transformation. Make special time for this person. You want to get to know him or her better. Tonight: Share over dinner.

This Week: Relate with others on an individual level. You'll gain through this process.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21)

★★★ Complete a project with a smile. Somewhere, a trip, a phone call or an interaction involving a foreigner distracts you. Note a tendency to know who is calling before the call happens or you hear the phone ring. Develop this skill. Tonight: Now your fun weekend begins, a little late. This Week: Others command all the attention. Don't get jealous. Enjoy an easy few days.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19)

★★★★ Your sense of direction could be more significant than you realize. A creative discussion opens up many paths that you might not have considered. Understand where you are coming from and where an adjustment could be made. Tonight: Start thinking "more."

This Week: Sometimes even you wonder if there is anything else besides work. Only you can answer that question. Only you can change the situation.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18)

★★★★ You might want to lounge around at home, catching up on some sleep or simply doing nothing. You are likely to jump to your feet suddenly, especially if a fun adventure is mentioned or you see a very special person. Tonight: Enjoy yourself to the max.

This Week: Tap into an innate resourcefulness. Use this gift in all areas of your life.

PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20)

★★★★ Make calls to those you don't often hear from. Catching up on news could be delightful. Don't be surprised if a visit is planned. Don't forget to call someone and make sure you are getting together in the afternoon. Tonight: Make it early.

This Week: If you must, call in or work from home. You might not be in the mood for work the next few days.

on gross income. I know that a lot of people have bills and that kind of thing, but unfortunately, we can't take any of that into consideration... If you're unemployed or drawing an unemployment check, that needs to be included in the income that you have."

Households receiving Supplemental Nutrition Assistance Program (SNAP) or Temporary Assistance for Needy Families (TANF) benefits automatically qualify as long as they fill out the paperwork, Middleton added. Those households only have to list their child's name and SNAP or TANF case number. An adult household member must sign the application.

Households that do not list a SNAP/TANF case number must list the names of all household members, the amount and source of income received by each household member and the last four digits of the Social Security number of the adult household member who signs the application. If that person does not have a Social Security number, the household member must indicate so by writing "None" or "No Number" on the application.

Application forms will be distributed to every student district-wide, according to Middleton. But they can also be picked up at any school office or in the Child Nutrition Department Office at the old junior high school, 2401 N. Charles. Applications may be submitted at any time during the school year to the students' schools or the Child Nutrition Department.

If a household member becomes unemployed or if the household size increases, the household should contact the Child Nutrition Department. Such changes may make students within those households eligible for benefits.

Under the provisions of the free and reduced price meal policy, the Director of Child Nutrition will review applications and determine eligibility. Parents or guardians dissatisfied with the rulings may wish to discuss with the reviewing

Tigers running game, defense improves vs. Happy

aglover@thepampanews.com

The McLean Tigers made improvements but still have things to work on after their final scrimmage against the Happy Cowboys.

Head coach David Jurado said the offense improved in the running game while the defense played better.

"Offensively we executed well," Jurado said. "When executed right it looked good. I thought we were a lot smoother and ran the ball well... Our defense, when it showed up, looked good."

Senior Jordan Herring said the defense played better than last week.

"We got more experience on defense," Herring said. "We were able to shut them down better and not letting them man-handle us."

Senior Chase West said the offense executed better.

"We are making improvements," West said.

The Tigers started the scrimmage strong, scoring three times on Herring rushing touchdowns. McLean also struggled with ball handling as they had three fumbles in 15 plays.

Defensively, the Tigers held the Cowboys without a score.

Happy started strong in the two live quarters. On its first possession the Cowboys scored on an 11-play drive concluding with a 10-yard touchdown pass. The Tigers went three-and-out on their first possession. Happy scored on its next possession with a 45-yard run.

Jurado said the Cowboys made adjustments after the first part of the scrimmage.

"We had to find out what to adjust back," Jurado said. "It was kind of like a chess match. We kind of figured it out."

In the Tigers first possession of the second quarter, Herring fumbled and the Cowboys recovered at the McLean 27. Six plays later, Happy scored its third touchdown of the two-quarter scrimmage. Herring got the Tigers on the board with a 44-yard run.

The Cowboys scored their last touchdown on a 30-yard pass. Herring scored his second touchdown of the quarter on a 45-yard run. The Tigers forced the Cowboys to turn it over on downs. Herring completed a 28-yard pass to junior Braden Hambright for the final score.

Herring said the defense needs to improve.

"We can score," Herring said. "It doesn't make a difference if they are up there with us."

West said they need to step up.

"We need to shut them down and not let them get anywhere."

Jurado said the team has to step on defense.

"(Happy had a couple of good drives that ate up the clock," Jurado said. "We have to clean up a lot. Our offense had a false start, a fumble and a block in the back. We have to fix that."

Dry conditions could improve Texas dove hunting prospects

AUSTIN — Dry conditions don't necessarily equate to bad dove hunting, wildlife biologists with the Texas Parks and Wildlife Department suggest. An extended drought across much of Texas could be beneficial for dove hunters as birds will have to rely upon limited resources.

Water, especially in close proximity to dove feeding areas, should be at a premium heading into the Sept. 1 dove season opener.

"Dove hunting over a water source should be excellent," said Corey Mason, TPWD dove program leader. "Additionally, dove may be concentrated on food sources, so if you can find a stand of sunflower, goat weed, etc., hunting should be productive. Native food sources are going to be more important this year because agricultural crops aren't as good as years past."

Biologists say the drought will have some impacts on dove populations, with the greatest being on juveniles. However, they do not expect significant impacts to what hunters will see this fall. Texas boasts fall dove populations in excess of 40 million birds and its 300,000 dove hunters harvest about 6 million birds annually or roughly 30 percent of all doves taken in the United States.

Texas dove season in the North and Central Dove Zones will run from Thursday, Sept. 1 through Sunday, Oct. 23 and reopen Friday, Dec. 23 through Sunday, Jan. 8, with a 15-bird daily bag and not more than two white-tipped doves.

The South Zone dove season will run Friday, Sept. 23 through Sunday, Oct. 30, reopening Friday, Dec. 23 through Monday, Jan. 23 with a 15-bird daily bag and not more than two white-tipped doves.

The Special White-

winged Dove Area will open to white-winged dove afternoon-only (noon to sunset) hunting the first two full weekends in September running from Sept. 3-4 and 10-11 and reopen when the regular South Zone season begins on Friday, Sept. 23 through Sunday, Oct. 30 and again from Friday, Dec. 23 through Thursday, Jan. 19. The Special White-winged Dove Area season takes four of the allowable 70 days, so when the regular season opens, this area must close four days earlier than the rest of the South Zone.

Pirates scrimmage Miami with chip on shoulders

The Lefors Pirates may have only had a scrimmage Thursday night at Shaw Field with Miami, Groom and Higgins. That didn't make their rivalry with Miami any less intense, as the two met for the first time since their district meeting last season.

Senior spread back Andrew Chambers said the team has revenge on their minds after its 58-7 loss last October.

"We were angry," Chambers said. "We were irritated that (Miami) didn't play all of their starters. They didn't have Ian Smith and Jared Roberts play against us. We wanted to send a message to the whole team and let them know that we aren't playing around and this will be our year like the previous years."

Junior Lane Stegall said the team improved from last week's scrimmage.

"The first scrimmage was a learning experience," Stegall said. "This week we got everything down: Our plays and coverages, but we still had problems."

Stegall said the team has to work on its coverage and spread offense before Thursday's opener with Hedley.

"Most people want to kill-shot and aren't looking for them to go out for a pass," Stegall said. "They are looking for a run. In the spread, Andrew (Chambers) needs to look to run more because that's how he can gain more yards. The upbacks need to block better. The receivers need to run the pass patterns the coaches call and not just run what they think they will get open on."

Chambers said the team has a few tweaks it has to work on.

"If we blow a coverage, that could be a winning touchdown for the other team," Chambers said. "If we improve our coverage, we can be on of the best teams in the district."

Chambers said the defense played better and limited big plays.

"The only times they scored was when they ran a spread against us," Chambers said. "We didn't allow them to run on us."

Chambers said the team will be ready when it opens the season against the Hedley Owls 7 p.m. Thursday. Lefors won last year 27-20.

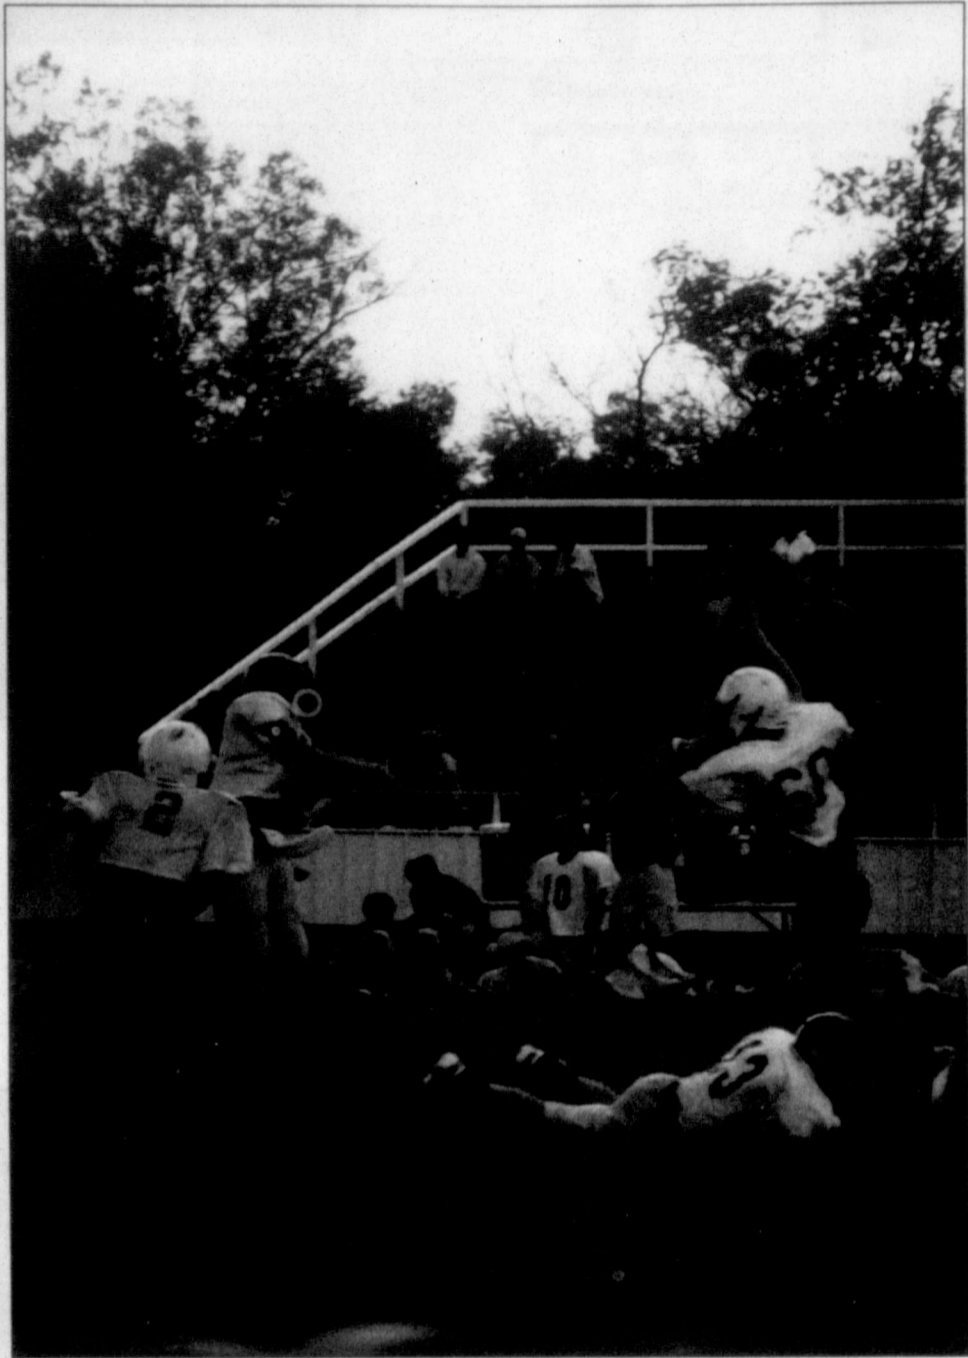

"This Thursday, when we play Hedley, they will say 'This isn't the same Lefors team as last year,'" Chambers said. "We are not. We will tear up Hedley and show everyone we aren't letting anyone stand in our way."

daily horoscope

HAPPY BIRTHDAY for Saturday, Aug. 20, 2011:

This year, you are in the limelight. Your professional and community commitments are highlighted. Not every moment will be easy, but all in all, it will be worth the discomfort. If you're not careful, a friendship could change because of a misunderstanding. June and July 2012 witness you expanding your circle of friends. If you are single, someone very special could enter your life at the same time. If you are attached, share more of your outside life with your sweetie. TAURUS understands you well.

The Stars Show the Kind of Day You'll Have: 5-Dynamic; 4-Positive; 3-Average; 2-So-so; 1-Difficult

ARIES (March 21-April 19)
★★★ Optimism runs high in the morning. Drive a hard bargain on an expenditure for your home. Confirm meeting times. Call someone one more time. Don't stand on ceremony with someone. Tonight: Your treat.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20)
★★★★ You feel energized. Follow your whims — you will have a day full of fun and energy. Don't take someone's words personally. Let your positive energy speak. Do nothing halfway. Confirm a get-together. Tonight: Where the action is.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20)
★★★ Take your time, and if you need some downtime, take it. Use this day for you. If you are not OK, you cannot do your best. Listen to what is being shared between two people and how easily people can get hurt. Tonight: Vanish quickly!

CANCER (June 21-July 22)
★★★★ Make time to socialize and get out of your immediate environment. You'll feel wonderful in a different setting. Don't personalize a misunderstanding. A conversation easily could be misunderstood. Remain sensitive to the possibility. Tonight: Where the action is.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22)
★★★ Accept the limelight. Be ready to organize a get-together or complete a project. Don't forget an older relative or friend who might need some attention. Your instincts guide you with a decision that affects your community or immediate circle. Tonight: A force to be dealt with.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22)
★★★★ Keep reaching out for others.

Don't worry if someone doesn't call back immediately. You have an unusual decision to make involving travel or perhaps a foreigner. Be willing to open up to a different way of thinking and living. You might find this change very exciting. Tonight: Try a new place or pastime.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 22)
★★★★ Work with a partner directly. You could be quite uncomfortable at first, but open up with ease to potential changes. Remember, you have inadvertently walked down the path of negativity. Soon you will open up again, feeling better. Tonight: Dinner for two. Don't let a misunderstanding mar the moment.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23-Nov. 21)
★★★★ If you decide to go along with another person's opinion, know that your opinions are not any less important or wrong. Feelings intensify as you are willing to do something different. You can experiment. You don't always have to do everything your way. Tonight: Let someone else make the suggestion.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21)
★★★★ Extend yourself and take care of another person you dearly care about. Your ability to accomplish a lot and get the job done marks plans. You could have a disagreement with a partner or friend about spending. Decide by whose wallet is involved. Tonight: Put your feet up.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19)
★★★★ Don't worry about someone's reaction to a suggestion. You seem to have charm and charisma mixed in with suggestions. Know that a misunderstanding doesn't need to happen. Clear out the problem right away. Tonight: Living it up.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18)
★★★ Take some extra time with a family member or roommate. Though in many ways you disagree about your hobbies and the way you relax, you still have a lot in common. Kick back and reconnect once more. Tonight: Invite some friends over.

PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20)
★★★★ Sometimes, continuing a conversation in a nice, easy tone, even after you made a faux pas or someone else tripped him- or herself up, is gracious. Your nonchalant approach will be appreciated more than you realize. Think positively. Tonight: From place to place, visiting with different people.

Forage expert: It's a 'no-brainer,' sell out cattle herds now

ROBERT BURNS
Texas AgriLife Extension Service

COLLEGE STATION — With little to no grazing and hay, should livestock producers continue to try to buy feed, move cattle to another state or just sell out?

"It would be much less expensive to just get out and come back later," said Dr. Larry Redmon, Texas AgriLife Extension Service state forage specialist. "And that's the message that we're trying to convey."

Many livestock producers have already tried to cut feeding costs by extensively culling their herds, but have held onto enough cows to rebuild their herds if the drought passes, he said.

In some dry years, that might be a good strategy, but not this one, Redmon said.

"It's unprecedented," he said. "(We've had) the 12 driest months in Texas history, and there's just not many ways to combat that."

With grazing and hay supplies next to non-existent in many areas of the state, it's getting very expensive to buy feed. On average, it's costing producers "somewhere around a $100 a month to have these animals (cows) stay in the pasture and feed them," he said.

Another choice is to move cattle elsewhere, most likely another state during this drought, and lease land where there is grazing, Redmon said.

"It could be western Mississippi; it could be eastern Louisiana; or it could be maybe Missouri," he said. "I haven't talked to anybody this year, but in the past couple of years people have called me from other states and they've quoted prices of $20 to $22 per (cow/calf) pair per month. Even assuming that's $25 or $30 that's still a far, far cry from $100 a month."

Of course, one has to add the cost of hauling a trailer load of cattle to the leased grazing, but even with that added cost it still cheaper than trying to buy hay and feed at today's prices, he said.

"It's probably going to be $3 to $3.50 a loaded mile something like that," he said. "If you just put all that together ... the savings could still be tremendous if a person could find a place to put those animals."

But completely selling out makes more sense yet, Redmon said, given there's no guarantee this drought will end anytime soon.

"Some people would counter and say it'll cost more to come back into the business later because conditions will have improved, and more people will be getting back in," he said. "That's true. But again, looking at the difference in what it would cost to buy cows and come back in at some later date — versus what they would spend trying to go through this drought — mathematically, it's just a no-brainer."

More information on the current Texas drought and wildfire alerts can be found on the AgriLife Extension Agricultural Drought Task Force website at <http://agrilife.tamu.edu/drought/>.

AgriLife Extension district reporters compiled the following summaries:

PANHANDLE: Most of the region received scattered showers and cooler weather. Accumulations ranged from a trace to 1.5 inches. The rain and cooler weather was welcomed, but it was not enough moisture to help the very thirsty crops. Soil moisture levels remained very short. Irrigators were watering full swing trying to keep up with water demands. Gray County received hail along with the rain, which stripped the leaves off some cotton and corn. Also, high winds toppled six pivots in that county. The rain greened up some pastures, but more was needed to really make a difference in the very poor conditions. However, the cooler weather did ease water needs and heat stress on cattle. Supplemental feeding of livestock continued. Producers who were trying to hang on to their cattle were buying hay from other states, with hauling costs running $20-$30 per ton.

ROLLING PLAINS: Rain! But the amount varied greatly from county to county. Throckmorton County received from 0.5 inch to 3 inches of rain, while Stephens County received from 0.5 inch to 5 inches. Haskell County received as much as 2.8 inches. Other counties received from 0.1 to 0.8 inch.

However, the majority of counties did not receive any measurable moisture. The rain was no help for cotton producers, though it did help wheat growers who would like to plant in September. More moderate temperatures, especially nighttime lows, helped relieve stress on livestock. Cotton was fruiting, but even under heavy watering, fields still looked weak. Producers were weaning and selling calves. Some producers are selling or shipping their cows to out-of-state grazing. Hay was scarce and expensive when available. A few hay producers hoped to have a late-summer cutting. Large trees were beginning to show the effects of too little moisture.

Dear Abby...

By Pauline & Jeanne Phillips

DEAR ABBY: A friend recently purchased a mother's ring from a pawn shop. When "Caron" told me about it, I told her she didn't have the right to wear one because she's not a mother. I discussed it with some other friends and they agreed with me, but Caron says I "overreacted" and that everyone is on HER side.

Caron says it's "just a ring" with different colored stones and she has every right to wear it if she wants to. The women who agree with me say a mother's ring is set with varied birthstones to commemorate the birth of a child born in a certain month, and that's why Caron has no right to wear it.

Caron says I'm crazy and need a therapist. She's ending our 10-year friendship because I will not agree with her. Am I right or wrong? — RING OF TRUTH IN ARKANSAS

DEAR RING OF TRUTH: A ring with multicolored stones is not a military medal. There are no laws or official rules governing who may or may not wear one. Shame on you for trying to take the pleasure out of her purchase, and that you would drag others into your disagreement with Caron is disappointing and puzzling.

DEAR ABBY: I have been married 11 years and have four children. During those years my husband and I struggled with our relationship. I couldn't understand why he wouldn't do the things I asked of him, and I became very resentful.

Last December we agreed to a divorce and, suddenly, it seemed like everything changed between us! We started getting along and treated each other with respect — I guess because we had the answer to our problems and we were looking forward to change. I began reflecting on our relationship and put myself in his shoes. I realized that if he treated me the way I had treated him, there would be no way I'd want to do anything for him.

I'm still trying to understand the changes I have gone through, but I feel more love now for my husband than I have for a very long time, and I have started treating him that way.

He is struggling with this change and keeps waiting for me to revert to my old ways. We have put talk of divorce on the back burner and are just taking it day-by-day. I want other couples to know that if you want something to change, to look in the mirror. The only one who can change your circumstances is you. — SECOND CHANCE IN TACOMA, WASH. DEAR SECOND CHANCE: That's perceptive, and it applies to more situations than marriage. I wish you and your husband a successful reconciliation.

DEAR ABBY: "Maria" and I lived together for two years. She had wanted eyelid surgery but couldn't afford to pay $5,000. I offered to give her $2,000.

A few months ago, Maria told me she didn't love me anymore. (She now has a new boyfriend.) She called me yesterday evening asking for the money I said I'd give her for the surgery.

Do I owe her this money? She's the one who ended it. I told her to ask her new boyfriend to pay for it, but she claims I need to keep my word. — SEEING THINGS DIFFERENTLY

DEAR SEEING THINGS: Excuse me? YOU need to keep your word? No, MARIA needs you to keep your word. When she replaced you, your generous offer to pay for her cosmetic surgery ended. So tell her she'll have to arrange for replacement financing or work out a time payment plan with her surgeon.
