Commissioners lift countywide burn ban

MOLLIE BRYANT
mbryant@thepampanews.com

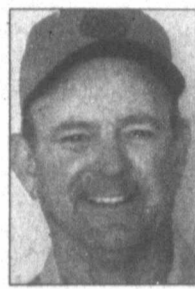

The Gray County Commissioners Court decided to discontinue the burn ban for the county following a week of initially lifting the ban. Commissioners will return to this issue in mid November.

"Our fire season really starts about November 15. That's when the freezes come in and we have dry grass really starting," said Judge Richard Peet. During the past week with the burn ban lifted, there have been 24 controlled burns, but people interested in undertaking one are advised to keep in mind what they can and can't burn.

"We're getting a lot of illegal burns," said Joe Millican, Chief of the Hoover Volunteer Fire Department, which addresses fires for Gray County outside of the Pampa city limits.

Approved items in a controlled burn include household trash, such as food products, food containers and clothes, and also natural products, like grass, undertaking a controlled burn, people must call the Sheriff's Office to get permission and be able to provide information leaves, hay and brush. Items that include treated wood, tires and anything containing hydrocarbons are not legal to burn.

Before undertaking a controlled burn, people must call the Sheriff's Office to get permission and be able to provide information as to what and where they will be burning and if they have water on hand. People are also required to stay with the fire, and to only begin burning when winds are between six and 23 miles per hour.

"We want people to be careful, because there's a lot of stuff stacked up because people haven't burned since December," said Millican. "Be careful, especially when cleaning up around fire areas. Flames are hotter than you expect."

PISD to hold meeting, talk FIRST rating

editor@thepampanews.com

The Pampa Independent School District will hold a public meeting at 6 p.m. Thursday at the Carver Center boardroom to discuss its standing under the School Financial Integrity Rating System of Texas, or School FIRST.

The PISD earned a "Superior Achievement" financial accountability rating for the fiscal year ending June 30, 2010. The rating is the highest of four possible designations from the Texas Education Agency under the School FIRST system, which was developed in response to legislation passed in 1999.

The ratings are based on data provided by districts to the TEA through various audits and financial reports. The data is scored against 22 indicators that evaluate the district's management of its financial resources. The first six of these indicators are considered "critical" and must be passed; otherwise, the school district is automatically labeled "Substandard."

"We passed on all those critical indicators," said Danny Seabourn, finance director for the PISD. "On (indicators) 7 through 22, you get points based off your financial situation and reporting things you've done. Out of a possible 80 points, we got 75, so it's a 94 percent. We're doing good. We're real pleased with it."

Dallas man pleads guilty in scam

PLANO (AP) - A Dallas man faces up to five years in prison in a $17 million real estate fraud case that featured promotions on North Texas radio stations.

Prosecutors say 41-year-old Jeffrey Brown on Thursday pleaded guilty in Plano to conspiracy to defraud more than 80 investors.

No sentencing date has been set for Brown, who from 2006 through 2010 controlled a company called Quadwealth.

Investigators say Quadwealth falsely marketed itself, in advertisements on several radio stations, as a financial planning and wealth management group in which members had the potential to double their money in a year.

Prosecutors say Brown and others instead used the investment funds to pay for their personal expenses.

Kilmer sells most of ranch

SANTA FE, N.M. (AP) - Actor Val Kilmer has sold the bulk of his 5,300-acre ranch in northwest New Mexico to a Texas oil and gas executive and his wife for $18.5 million.

The Santa Fe New Mexican reports the deed transfer filed Sept. 30 with the San Miguel County Clerk's Office indicates Kilmer sold all but 141 acres to Benjamin A. Strickling III and his wife, Roxann.

Santa Fe attorney Ralph H. Scheuer handled the agreement for Kilmer and declined to comment on whether the star whose movies include "Tombstone," "Top Gun" and "The Doors" would keep a home in northern New Mexico.

The ranch originally was put on the market in 2009 for $33 million.

Marker draws reprimand

MARSHALL (AP) - An East Texas educator has been reprimanded for using a permanent marker to color in the shaved lines of a boy's haircut.

The superintendent of the Marshall Independent School District has apologized over the incident involving 12-year-old Sheldon Williams. Bruce Gearing says an assistant principal has been reprimanded.

Williams was sent to the principal's office Monday for allegedly violating a school dress code ban on designs shaved into the hair.

The Marshall News-Messenger reported Friday that the boy's stepmother has filed a grievance. Phyllenia Williams says she was shocked that educators thought the haircut was gang related. She says her stepson is not involved with gangs and now has a new haircut with no shaved lines.

Details on the reprimand weren't immediately released.

Seagal sworn in as deputy

EL PASO (AP) - Martial arts film star Steven Seagal has been sworn in as deputy sheriff in a West Texas border county and will start working sometime this year, authorities said.

Hudspeth County Sheriff's Lt. Robert Wilson confirmed Thursday that Seagal, 59, took the oath this week from Sheriff Arvin West. The sheriff's office says the star of such films as "Hard to Kill" and "Exit Wounds" contacted West in August inquiring about work opportunities.

Seagal has been a deputy sheriff in the past while filming a reality show about his work as an officer of the law in Jefferson Parish, Louisiana.

"It became clear to me that Mr. Seagal is not in this for his celebrity or publicity. He is like the rest of us," West said in a news release.

Driver won't seek re-election

GARLAND (AP) - Rep. Joe Driver plans to retire from the Texas House after serving nearly two decades in Austin.

The Republican from Garland, who faces a criminal investigation over travel reimbursements, announced Thursday that he will not seek re-election in 2012.

Driver drew attention last year after The Associated Press reported on his use of travel funds, leading to a Travis County investigation.

Driver acknowledged that for years he collected reimbursements from taxpayers for travel he'd already paid for using donated campaign money. Driver said he didn't know he was doing anything wrong, but later reimbursed his campaign $49,426.

The 65-year-old legislator and insurance company owner, who was first elected in 1992, says he plans to return to his private life.

NASA to use NM spaceport

ALBUQUERQUE, N.M. (AP) - NASA has booked a charter suborbital flight from Virgin Galactic's Spaceport operations in southern New Mexico.

Virgin Galactic announced Thursday that the agreement calls for NASA to charter a full flight from Virgin Galactic, and includes options for two additional charter flights. If all options are exercised, the contract value is $4.5 million.

The company said each mission allows for up to 1300 lbs of scientific experiments.

Earlier this week, Virgin Galactic announced it hired former NASA executive Michael Moses to oversee its Spaceport, about 50 miles north of Las Cruces.

Virgin Galactic, owned by Sir Richard Branson's Virgin Group and Aabar Investments PJS, is on track to be the world's first commercial spaceline. It hopes to launch its first flight within the next year.

WEST MIFFLIN, Pa. (AP) - Republican presidential candidate Rick Perry pledged Friday to expand energy production on federal lands, curb regulation and create some 1.2 million jobs in the process.

"We must get America working again and a big part of the solution is right under our feet and right off our coasts," the Texas governor said at a Pittsburgh area steel plant. "Creating jobs in America is as simple as changing presidents and that is the choice facing America."

Perry's speech on a "pro-American, pro-jobs energy policy" comes as his campaign tries to move beyond some early bumps and his momentum seems to have slowed. Shaky debate performances took some of the luster off his campaign, and as voters got to know details of his record they seemed to sour on yet another GOP contender who was, at one point, an instant front-runner.

Perry hoped to calm those jitters with Friday's speech at a U.S. Steel plant that produces sheet metal used to make household appliances. While echoing the popular-with-Republicans call for increased drilling on federal lands, he also cast voters' choice in 2012 as a referendum on President Barack Obama.

"When it comes to energy, the president would kill domestic jobs through aggressive regulations while I would unleash 1.2 million American jobs through safe-and-aggressive energy exploration at home," Perry said. "President Obama would keep us more dependent on hostile sources of foreign energy, while my plan would make us more secure by tapping America's true energy potential."

But Perry's speech did not mention that it can be years between when drilling begins for new energy sources and a significant number of jobs can be created.

With a nod to a capital locked in partisan fights, Perry promised Congress would play only a small part in his plan.

"It can be implemented quicker and free of Washington gridlock because most of it does not require congressional action," Perry said. "Through a series of executive orders and other executive actions we will begin the process of creating jobs soon after the inauguration of a new president."

And, he promised, it would come quickly: within the first hundred days of his administration.

"We're standing on top of the next American economic boom. It's the energy that's under this country."

Perry also spoke in support of the proposed Keystone XL pipeline that is under review at the State Department.

"It's either going to go west to China or south to America. I know where I want it to go," Perry said.

The 1,700-mile pipeline, which would travel through Montana, South Dakota, Nebraska, Kansas and Oklahoma and end on the Texas Gulf Coast, would carry an estimated 700,000 barrels of oil a day, doubling the capacity of an existing pipeline from Canada. Supporters say it could significantly reduce U.S. dependence on Middle Eastern oil.

The project has become a flashpoint for environmental groups who say it would bring "dirty oil" that requires huge amounts of energy to extract and could cause an ecological disaster in case of a spill.

"The quickest way to give our economy a shot in the arm is to deploy American ingenuity to tap American energy. But we can only do that if environmental bureaucrats are told to stand down," Perry said.

The governor entered the presidential campaign in August and has spent much of the time since then talking in generalities and discussing his time as governor of Texas, a period in which jobs were created amid a recession. He boasts of his decade of leading Texas and credits the state's low level of regulation for helping it fare better than most.

Yet Perry's rivals have been relentless in calling for specifics.

Mitt Romney, who released a 160-page economic policy proposal, has hammered Perry particularly hard. Romney's aides released a 114-page document titled "Rick Perry's Plan To Get America Working Again." Inside, there were 103 blank pages.

"Mitt has had six years to be working on a plan," Perry said earlier this week when asked during a debate when he would offer specifics. "I have been in this for about eight weeks."

Perry's plan was certain to find fans among many conservatives, whose support he must recapture if his presidential plan is to succeed.

In his plan, Perry called for:

- Allowing increased energy production on federal land, including Alaska's Arctic National Wildlife Refuge.

- Changing the public's view of the nation's abundance of coal. "America is the Saudi Arabia of coal," he said.

- Increasing off-shore drilling in the Gulf of Mexico and the Atlantic Ocean.

- Reviewing the Environmental Protection Agency's air quality regulations and taking away its oversight of greenhouse gas emission regulation he called "draconian."

- Forcing advocacy groups to sue the government by taking away agencies' ability to compromise.

- Maintaining a ban on drilling in Florida's Everglades.

- The American economy shouldn't be beaten into the ground when ... lower energy costs lie right under our soil," Perry said.

Drought hampers Texas wildlife reproduction

HOUSTON (AP) - In a 30-mile area of the Texas Panhandle, biologists found 76 white-tailed deer - but zero babies. Not far away, they located only three quail on a stretch of road where they would see 15 in a normal year. In South Texas, a biologist reports a lack of water on some ranches is "killing deer like flies" and says he discovered more than 20 dead adult deer on one ranch.

And this is only the first glimpse at the harm one of the worst droughts in Texas history is causing to the state's wildlife.

The Associated Press obtained preliminary data from the Texas Parks and Wildlife Department that comes from statewide wildlife surveys the agency performs annually of deer, prong-horned antelope, quail, turkey and other animals. The data has not yet been compiled into a statewide overview, but so far confirms scientists' suspicions that the drought has hampered wildlife reproduction.

"It's having a major impact on a lot of the critters," said Trey Barron, a regulatory biologist in Amarillo for the parks and wildlife department. "If the drought continues for much longer, we will start seeing impacts on the adult population."

Today in History

Today is Saturday, Oct. 15, the 288th day of 2011. There are 77 days left in the year.

Today's Highlight in History:

On Oct. 15, 1951, the classic situation comedy "I Love Lucy" premiered on CBS with the episode "The Girls Want to Go to the Nightclub."

On this date:

In 1858, the seventh and final debate between senatorial candidates Abraham Lincoln and Stephen Douglas took place in Alton, Ill.

In 1860, 11-year-old Grace Bedell of Westfield, N.Y., wrote a letter to presidential candidate Abraham Lincoln, suggesting he could improve his appearance by growing a beard.

In 1917, Dutch dancer Mata Hari, convicted of spying for the Germans, was executed by a French firing squad outside Paris.

In 1928, the German dirigible Graf Zeppelin landed in Lakehurst, N.J., completing its first commercial flight across the Atlantic.

In 1945, the former premier of Vichy France, Pierre Laval, was executed for treason.

In 1946, Nazi war criminal Hermann Goering fatally poisoned himself hours before he was to have been executed.

In 1964, it was announced that Soviet leader Nikita S. Khrushchev had been removed from office.

In 1969, peace demonstrators staged activities across the country as part of a "moratorium" against the Vietnam War.

In 1976, in the first debate of its kind between vice-presidential nominees, Democrat Walter F. Mondale and Republican Bob Dole faced off in Houston.

In 1991, despite sexual harassment allegations by Anita Hill, the Senate narrowly confirmed the nomination of Clarence Thomas to the Supreme Court, 52-48.

Ten years ago: Officials announced that a letter sent to Senate Majority Leader Tom Daschle had tested positive for anthrax, and that the infant son of an ABC News producer in New York had developed skin anthrax.

Five years ago: A strong earthquake struck the Big Island of Hawaii, damaging buildings and roads.

One year ago: Workers hugged, cheered and set off fireworks as a huge drill broke through a last stretch of rock deep in the Swiss Alps for construction of the 35.4-mile Gotthard Base Tunnel.

Today's Birthdays: Former auto executive Lee Iacocca is 87. Jazz musician Freddy Cole is 80. Singer Barry McGuire is 76. Actress Linda Lavin is 74. Rock musician Don Stevenson (Moby Grape) is 69. Actress-director Penny Marshall is 68. Baseball Hall of Famer Jim Palmer is 66. Singer-musician Richard Carpenter is 65. Actor Victor Banerjee is 65. Tennis player Roscoe Tanner is 60. ## Country Christmas just around the corner

If you can chew gum and walk... ...then you can "Lunch & Learn". Tuesday (October 18), the Chamber and Pampa EDC will host a noon-time program to keep employers informed about employment law. Underwood Law Firm will present the material. A light lunch will be provided at a nominal cost of $5.00, but we need a head count, so call the Chamber (669-3241) with your reservation by noon Monday.

Let's get lit this Christmas

I realize it is not yet Halloween, but it's not too early to think about decorating for Christmas. The Chamber is challenging all businesses to "get lit" for Christmas. The town will be divided into sectors (old town/downtown, North Hobart, South Hobart, Price Rd, etc), to be judged by a variety of criteria (originality, most businesses decorated, representing the theme, etc). Participating businesses in the winning sector will receive certificates and bragging rights, as well as the warm feeling of knowing you made Pampa look sharp for Christmas.

...and since we brought it up

We are looking for "big doin's" at Christmastime again this year. On Dec 3, there will be a tree lighting, craft booths, breakfast with Santa, Soup with Mrs. Claus, a fun-run, and of course the Annual Christmas parade. While most of the activity will be between the courthouse and the Post Office, we want all areas of town to be represented. If you represent a business not in that area, plan now to hand out flyers, sales circulars, Christmas treats—anything to promote your business. The idea is to make that day—really the whole weekend—a big city-wide holiday extravaganza. You'll be hearing more about this. The theme for the Pampa Christmas celebration is "Country Christmas".

Focus Magazine - 30 years

Bobbye Combs with Focus magazine was in a few days ago and told me that the publication is celebrating its 30th year. (The first issue was Winter 1982.) Congratulations Bobbye and Joel—and FOCUS—and here's wishing you 30 more (at least!)

Sheriff at Jasper

I'm not a real news hound, but I like to pick up Texas State Network (TSN) news at least once a day on KOMX radio. The broadcasts, while covering national events, focus on Texas. A few weeks ago they reported the imminent execution of the man who brutally murdered James Byrd, Jr., in Jasper in 1998. TSN played a comment by Billy Rowles, who was Jasper County Sheriff at the time. It loses something in print, as Mr. Rowles' voice has all the qualities one might expect of a small town, East Texas sheriff, but his comments were...interesting: "One down, one to go," Rowles said of the executions set for the murderers of Byrd. "That's cold, but that's the kind of the way I feel about it."

"You know, everybody came out here expecting to find a racist community and a redneck sheriff, a pot-bellied, snuff dipping, beer drinking sheriff, that was a bigot. Most of that was all right, but I wasn't a bigot," Rowles said matter-of-factly.

Do whaaaattttt?

At a dinner last week a long-time local resident told me that in the 1930s there was a woman here who "rubbed tonsils" to make a little extra money. The idea, as I gathered it, was that repeated treatments would eliminate the tonsils altogether. Medical science at that time had determined that tonsils held no purpose other than to make people sick. Surgery was out of many people's reach, but "tonsil rubbing" was not. I was quite intrigued by this. I thought I had heard about ever home remedy there was, but this was a new one. "Googling" provided little information, though I did run across one incident where a "curandero" did something similar. Do any of readers have any information on this?

What's in a name...

I can't believe I have never included this one, but I guess I was just too close to the situation. Leslie Breeding was a friend of mine in high school. He got some ribbing about his last name, but when I reconnected with him recently on Facebook, I see he has shortened his name to "Les". Though a liberal, he seems like a nice guy (I haven't seen him in 40 years) and in no way reflects "less breeding."

Joe Weaver is the Executive Director of the Pampa Chamber of Commerce.

Fighting hunger one school breakfast at a time

BILL SHORE AND JEREMY K. EVERETT

Child hunger exists in our own backyard. In keeping with national trends, hunger and poverty have increased in Texas. More than 1.8 million Texas children are at risk of hunger.

Texas children are not hungry due to a lack of food and nutrition programs. They are at risk of hunger—meaning they do not know where their next meal will come from—because they face poverty and, importantly, do not participate in available school nutrition programs. More than one in four Texas children are at risk of hunger—the fifth highest percentage in the country. However, unlike other challenges associated with poverty, we can solve child hunger and the necessary funding already exists to do so; we just need to use it.

The economic impact of federal funds earmarked for school meals and left on the table is staggering. In 2010 alone, Texas could have brought an additional $23 million dollars to the state by increasing the number of students participating in the School Breakfast Program by seven percent.

The Texas Hunger Initiative—a project of the Baylor University School of Social Work—recently partnered with national nonprofit Share Our Strength to launch the Texas No Kid Hungry Campaign this week. The goal of this campaign is to combat child hunger in Texas, and make use of available public and private nutrition funds that currently go to waste. The Texas Hunger Initiative and Share Our Strength are working to end child hunger in Texas.

Specifically, the goals of the Texas No Kid Hungry Campaign are to give more children a healthy start to the day by increasing the number of kids participating in the School Breakfast Program; keep kids nourished outside of school hours by increasing the availability and awareness of Summer Nutrition Programs and after-school programs; and ensure kids have food at home by helping eligible families enroll in the Supplemental Nutrition Assistance Program (SNAP), formerly known as Food Stamps.

Successfully increasing participation in the School Breakfast Program alone will significantly impact the health and well-being of Texas children. Across the state nearly 2.5 million students eat a free or reduced-price lunch, yet less than 60 percent of these eligible students participate in the School Breakfast Program.

Countless studies have shown that students who eat a healthy breakfast perform better on standardized tests display greater cognitive ability, are more attentive in class, and show a general increase in math and reading scores. Providing breakfast to our neediest students will ultimately allow them to succeed in and out of the classroom.

Please help us spread the word about the Texas No Kid Hungry Campaign, and if you know a child who is at risk of hunger, encourage his or her family to take advantage of available food and nutrition programs in school and in your community.

Working together, we can help to end child hunger one school breakfast at a time.

Bill Shore is the Chairman and CEO of Share Our Strength. Jeremy K. Everett M.Div. is the Director of The Texas Hunger Initiative, a project of the Baylor University School of Social Work.

Wildlife

the longer it lasts the more difficult that becomes.

And the Lone Star State no longer has the millions of acres of undisturbed habitat it once did, biologists say. Today, cities, towns, ranches, farms, electrical lines, fences, highways and other human interventions have fragmented the landscape, making it more difficult for animals to recover from a devastating drought.

Take bobwhite quail - a round, 10-inch long game bird. Their numbers are down in nearly every part of the state, except for one stretch of South Texas where Gulf Coast humidity provided enough moisture for them to forage and nest.

But in the northeastern Panhandle and north-central Texas, the quail numbers are at record lows, with only five counted in some areas, compared to 21 usually. In the Hill Country, surveyors found one quail in a 20-mile radius, compared to an average of more than five. And scaled quail in far West Texas - the Trans Pecos region - are down to six compared to an average of more than 16.

"We're seeing a total lack of reproduction by quail," said Robert Perez, the game bird program leader for Texas Parks and Wildlife.

Quail are generally resilient, Perez said, and reproduce quickly. The species has recovered from previous droughts, including the historic dry spell that swept through the state in the 1950s and has been the benchmark since then for drought and water issues.

Perez notes, however, that quail no longer have as many wide-open spaces to call home as they did in the mid-20th century.

Now, a drought can completely wipe out the bird in some places, such as around Dallas and Houston where the population has been declining for decades.

The drought could be especially devastating for antelope. In the Trans-Pecos area, the animals have been struggling with a parasite that has significantly reduced their reproduction and survival for several years, biologists said. The drought could be a harsh blow to that population.

Barron said antelopes in his northeastern Panhandle region were surveyed in June and July. Of 100 does, researchers are only seeing about 16 fawns - compared to an average of 35 during the past five years. He now fears for the adult antelope, deer and mule deer.

"Bucks ... use large amounts of energy during the rut - breeding season - and require an adequate food supply in order for them to recover after the rut is over," Barron said in an email. "Some bucks may not recover this year if it remains dry. The does are already in survival mode and that is why we have the poor fawn crops. If the drought continues, some will likely not survive through next summer."

Alan Cain, the agency's white-tailed deer program leader, gathers and analyzes statewide information to get an idea of how the 4 million deer are faring. Even before seeing all the data, he knows reproduction is down, though deer on ranches where the land has been properly managed and there is adequate surface water are doing better.

In some parts of the state, such as the Hill Country, even ash juniper - a drought resistant brush - is dying, so deer are struggling to find food. An email Cain received from a biologist in South Texas says that in some areas "deer are dying left and right," and on ranches where surface water has disappeared the lack of water is "killing deer like flies."

In a chunk of Southeast and Central Texas, fawn crops are down to about a 27 percent reproduction rate, with only 66 fawns counted for 244 does.

Cain believes the deer will recover eventually, though he expects there will be fewer bucks in about five or six years due to the low reproduction during the drought.

Right now, the bigger concern is adult bucks and does dying.

"It's probably going to happen and then if it continues dry through next spring ... animal production quality is going to be down," Cain said, explaining that does may miscarry or fail to produce enough milk to feed their fawns. In the worst cases, they may abandon their young.

John Baccus, a retired wildlife biologist at Texas State University in San Marcos, believes this is already happening. He noted that shortly after the birthing season, he saw some does with twins. But within days, they returned to his backyard with either one or no fawns, a sign of high mortality.

"It's such a convoluted, complex situation that we're looking at here: climate and the physiology of animals and the change in the food sources and water resources and then human interference," Baccus said. "It may be a few years before we know what this drought has caused."

ND soon to be No. 2 oil producer

BISMARCK, N.D. (AP) - North Dakota is poised to surpass California and Alaska to become the nation's No. 2 oil producer behind Texas.

North Dakota's rise in oil production from the Bakken and Three Forks shale formations has propelled it from the nation's ninth-biggest oil producer to fourth since 2006.

Department of Mineral Resources Director Lynn Helms says the state is rapidly gaining ground on California and Alaska. He says North Dakota should take the No. 3 oil-producing spot from California by the third quarter of next year.

North Dakota is producing about 444,000 barrels daily. That's up about 118,000 barrels from last year.

Agronomist: Stock for drought and plan for opportunities

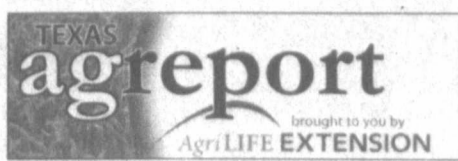

COLLEGE STATION — Though large parts of Central and South Texas received substantial rains, producers should be careful about planning as if the drought were over, said a Texas AgriLife Extension Service expert.

This is especially relevant for livestock producers who must rely on rain-nurtured pastures and rangeland, said Dr. Travis Miller, AgriLife Extension agronomist and a member of the Governor's Drought Preparedness Council.

"My philosophy is to stock for drought and take opportunities as they present themselves," Miller said. "In other words, keep your stocking numbers low, but if you get a year with a lot of rainfall, bring in some stocker cattle to use that grass but don't push the limit on your stocking rates — ever."

Miller made his comments in light of a recent forecast of not just another year, but perhaps even five to 10 years more drought, by Dr. John Nielsen-Gammon, state climatologist.

But even without the discouraging forecast, stocking for drought is still a good long-term strategy, Miller said.

"We've all just seen people emptying ranches," he said. "Was that the right maneuver to begin with? We've had six major droughts in the last decade and a half. Do we really need to stock at those levels?"

On a more positive note, where there was substantial rain, farmers and ranchers will be encouraged to plant winter pastures, he said. Most of those who earlier planted into dry soils or after minimal rain will be rewarded.

But Miller still recommended a conservative approach.

"Take another look at it come top-dressing time," he said. "Also, one of the key things to remember is we just came through a year of major drought. If we put fertilizer on the crops and forages last year, chances are we didn't use much if any of it. Soil test and look at what kind of nutrients you have in your soil before you spend a dime on putting fertilizer out."

Miller also recommended those crop producers preparing for spring plantings consider reduced and minimum tillage practices if they haven't done so already.

"You can get your fields in shape, but one of the keys things I've learned while touring parts of the world where drought is even more common than here is to utilize surface residue to trap and hold moisture," he said. "Take a second look at whether you really need to be plowing and turning moisture up to the air."

More information on the current Texas drought and wildfire alerts can be found on the AgriLife Extension Agricultural Drought Task Force website at <http://agrilife.tamu.edu/drought/>.

AgriLife Extension district reporters compiled the following summaries:

PANHANDLE: Most of the region received from a trace to 1.5 inches of rain. The counties reported soil moisture as very short. The corn harvest was ongoing. Cotton producers in some areas were applying harvest aids. Some growers began to harvest cotton. Producers continued to plant winter wheat. In some instances, they were irrigating wheat in an attempt to speed up growth to provide grazing for cattle. Rangeland and pastures remained in very poor condition. Livestock producers continued feeding cattle and were bringing in more hay from out of region for winter months.

ROLLING PLAINS: The region had several days of rain, with accumulations ranging from 0.75 inch to 6 inches on the more eastern counties. Prior to the rain, farmers and ranchers were racing farm equipment across fields planting wheat. The rain was definitely a blessing to pastures and rangelands. The areas that received more rain reported most stock tanks were filled by runoff. The runoff also helped to replenish reservoirs and lakes. Livestock producers hoped the rain was enough to stimulate the growth of winter weeds and grasses, which could provide some grazing through the winter. Early defoliated cotton was harvested.

Dear Abby...

By Pauline & Jeanne Phillips

DEAR ABBY: Our dear friends' marriage fell apart four years ago. No one had a clue they were having problems, and we were devastated. We were like family and did everything together. Our oldest children grew up as "siblings" and still remain the closest of friends. "Dorothy" remains deeply in love with "Dan."

Dan has just announced he's being remarried. We have remained close to Dorothy (we're still neighbors), but we are also friendly with Dan. Dorothy doesn't know we're on good terms with her ex, nor is she aware that he has invited us to his wedding.

Dan was never mean to her; he gave her everything in the divorce and continues to be a devoted father to their children. An added note: His children appear to like the new woman in their father's life.

Dorothy just heard about the wedding and doesn't think any of her friends should go. We love them both and feel torn. Dorothy is in counseling and I'm hoping it will help her move on.

I don't want to hurt my friend, but I also want to be supportive of Dan. Do you think we should attend? — CONFLICTED IN NEW YORK

DEAR CONFLICTED: When Dorothy's children attend their father's wedding, it will be only a short time before Dorothy finds out who was there. While your reason for wanting to attend is perfectly logical, Dorothy isn't thinking rationally and will probably feel abandoned all over again.

If you're willing to put up with the drama that's sure to follow, attend the wedding — and here's how the rest of the scenario will play out: You will continue to be friendly with Dan and his new wife and socialize with them — and Dorothy will cut herself off and feel even more isolated, alone and angry. You have described someone who NEEDS the counseling she's receiving, and I sincerely hope it works for her.

DEAR ABBY: Every weekend when I do laundry — a chore I HATE — my husband has left paper, coins, cigarette lighters, etc. in the pockets of his clothing. Sometimes the items end up getting destroyed in the washing machine. Then he gets upset with me because more than once important papers have been ruined.

He says that since I'm doing the laundry I should check the pockets and remove all items before washing the clothes. I say that because I take the time to do the laundry, he should remove the items himself. Abby, who is right? — POCKETS FULL OF TROUBLE

DEAR POCKETS: You're both right. He should check his pockets before putting his clothes into the hamper, and you should make sure there's nothing in them before putting them into the machine. And because marriage is a partnership, how about snaring the chore of doing the laundry by alternating each week (or month)?

DEAR ABBY: Could you settle a driving disagreement

I'm having with my girlfriend? When you are in traffic behind someone who has stopped and is turning left, should you also put on your turn signal to let the drivers behind you know someone is turning? I say no because you are not the one who is turning. My girlfriend says yes, so people know why the traffic has stopped. — NOT THE ONE TURNING

DEAR NOT THE ONE: Your girlfriend is well-meaning, but mistaken. You should use your turn indicator when you are making a left turn. It is not up to you — or your girlfriend — to let people know why someone up ahead has stopped, nor are you expected to.

Rating

The rating is certainly a positive one, Seabourn said, though he added that it is a standard that the district has come to expect out of itself annually.

"This is the ninth year of these ratings, and Pampa has always gotten a 'Superior' rating," Seabourn said. "It's a good record. It's something we work for every year... I think it just goes back to good leadership in the district, in the past and in the present."

No. 13 Pampa responds to pressure, downs Wolves

aglover@thepampanews.com

DALHART — For the first time in weeks, the No. 13 Pampa Lady Harvesters found their backs against the wall.

The Dalhart Lady Wolves had the ball on their side of the court and were a point away from evening the match at a game apiece. The Lady Harvesters, though, showed that pressure isn't something they shy away from.

"They are pressure players," head coach Libby Garza said. "They live for that kind of stuff."

Just like previous games, the Lady Harvesters rose to the occasion and took a 2-0 lead, then won a tight game to complete a sweep (25-15, 26-24, 26-24) Friday in Dalhart.

Senior Caitlin Sieck said it was great how the team won the last two games.

"We knew it would be a hard atmosphere," Sieck said. "Once we got down it got intense. We just came together."

Senior McKinlee Stokes said they let Dalhart have a chance.

"I think we let them get to us," Stokes said. "We came together as a team and finished strong."

Garza said she was pleased with how her team stayed composed.

"Having who I have on the court, I think we have the best around," Garza said. "They never have doubt in themselves or teammates on the court. That's something we've focused on."

The first game started close, but that was in part due to Pampa's errors. The Lady Harvesters had four serving errors and hit a couple of balls out of bounds. Pampa recovered with the score tied at 12. Senior Kailyn Troxell scored two kills to put the Lady Harvesters up by two. After another score, Dalhart took a timeout, trailing 15-12. However, it didn't turn momentum as Pampa scored five more points, resulting in another timeout by the Lady Wolves. The game ended on a serving error.

The Lady Harvesters' serving struggles continued in the second game as they hit their first two into the net, allowing Dalhart to build an early lead. Senior Alanna Stephens turned momentum Pampa's direction with two serving aces, giving the Lady Harvesters an 8-6 lead. The game remained close the whole way. Pampa didn't lead by more than three. The Lady Wolves (9-22, 4-2) put Pampa's backs against the wall, taking a 24-23 lead on a five-point run. Pampa rallied with a kill by Stephens, which was just inside the backline to tie the game at 24. Troxell scored a serving ace and senior Ramie Hutto scored the game-winning point.

Garza said she likes how the team kept fighting.

"(Dalhart) definitely pushed us," Garza said. "It was what we needed... I'm happy how we stuck with it and didn't give up. These girls don't have that in them and they will keep fighting to the end."

Behind Troxell's serving, Pampa started in control of Game Three. Sieck scored a kill to increase Pampa's lead to 8-5. Troxell scored an ace to make it 9-5. Dalhart didn't quit and rallied to get within one. The Lady Wolves eventually grabbed the lead at 12-11, drawing the ire of Garza. Dalhart didn't relinquish the momentum, scoring four straight points. Behind senior Kirsten Kuhn's serving, Pampa cut the lead to one. Troxell scored a kill and Kuhn scored an ace. Stephens would ultimately tie the game at 18 with a kill, forcing Dalhart to take a timeout. The game remained tight until Dalhart was unable to return Hutto's hit to end the game.

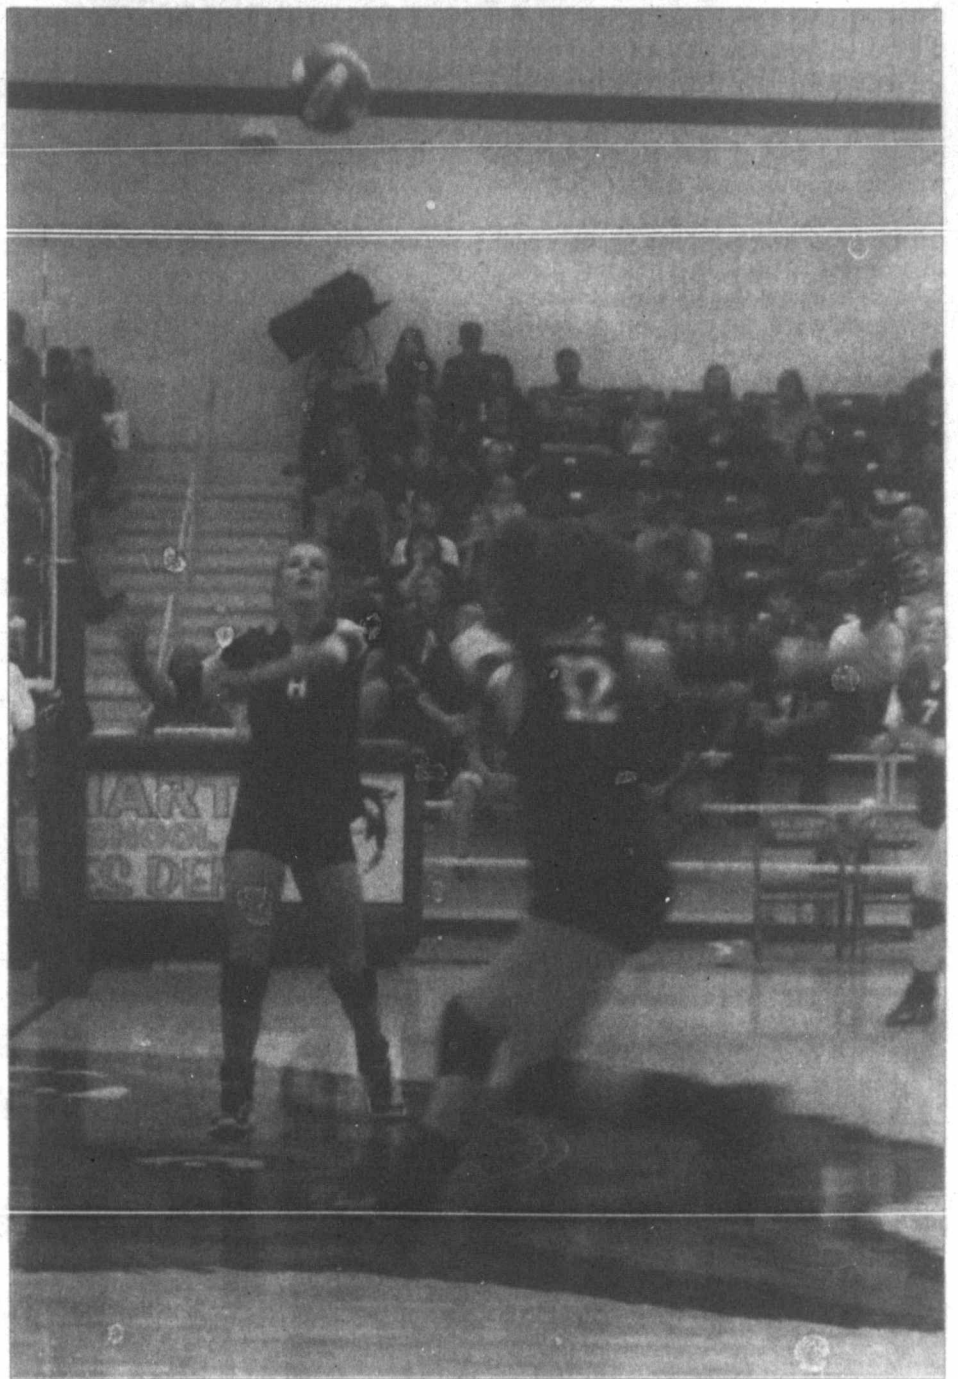

The Lady Harvesters (26-8, 6-0) are now a win away from clinching their second straight district title and will get their first shot when the Borger Lady Bulldogs (18-17, 0-5) visit 6 p.m. Tuesday.

Sieck said having the game at home should help them.

"We usually feed off (the crowd)," Sieck said. "I think we should do good."

Garza said she hasn't made her players aware of that, but thinks they will have no problems being motivated.

"It's Borger and (the Lady Harvesters) are going to take care of their job," Garza said. "They are going to take care of business."

Harvesters spend bye week perfecting fundamentals

ANDREW GLOVER
aglover@thepampanews.com

During two-a-days last August, the Pampa Harvesters weren't concerned with an opponent and spent two weeks just working on themselves. This week, Pampa again doesn't have an opponent and used the week to fine-tune certain skills before next week's district opener.

"We are using the bye week to address things we need to be better at," head coach Heath Parker said. "Hopefully we can make some of our deficiencies into strengths before district play."

The Harvesters (3-4) enter the bye week on a two-game losing streak. Offensively, Pampa has averaged 18 points per game, the lowest in District 1-3A, only scoring 20 or more points in four games.

Senior offensive lineman and linebacker Trevor Smith said the offense did well running the ball in the Wichita Falls Hirschi game. Smith, though, said the line has to communicate better to get better in district.

"Our weakness has been knowing who to block and staying on them," Smith said. "There's been plenty of times on film where we missed a guy and he ended up making the play. We are focused on getting a body on a man."

Junior offensive lineman Kyler Allen said the bye week was productive and likes where the offense stands.

"We are getting better with the run game," Allen said. "We got to get it going in the first half."

Parker said being able to block will be key to his team being successful during district.

"You got to be able to block well and run the football," Parker said. "Vice versa. You have to have to get off of blocks and tackle the ball carrier. With not having to worry about an opponent and personnel it allows us to hone back into that."

Defensively, the Harvesters have posted two shutouts and are only giving up 24 points per game, which is second best in the district.

Senior linebacker Daniel Hulsey said the defense did some good things but got sloppy with stopping the run towards the end of non-district.

"Last week we had misreads and we weren't very disciplined with our assignments," Hulsey said. "This week and the next week is going to give us a chance to build on that and get better."

Parker said the team has worked on stopping the run all season long, adding it will be key in district.

"We have to get that shored up," Parker said. "For the most part this year we have been pretty good with the run. In district we have to be great to have a chance to compete for the district title."

Smith said the team has focused on stopping the inside run.

"Last week (Centennial) ran inside," Smith said. "We are just working on that, trying to work inside out. Make them bounce it (inside) and let our weak side players contain it."

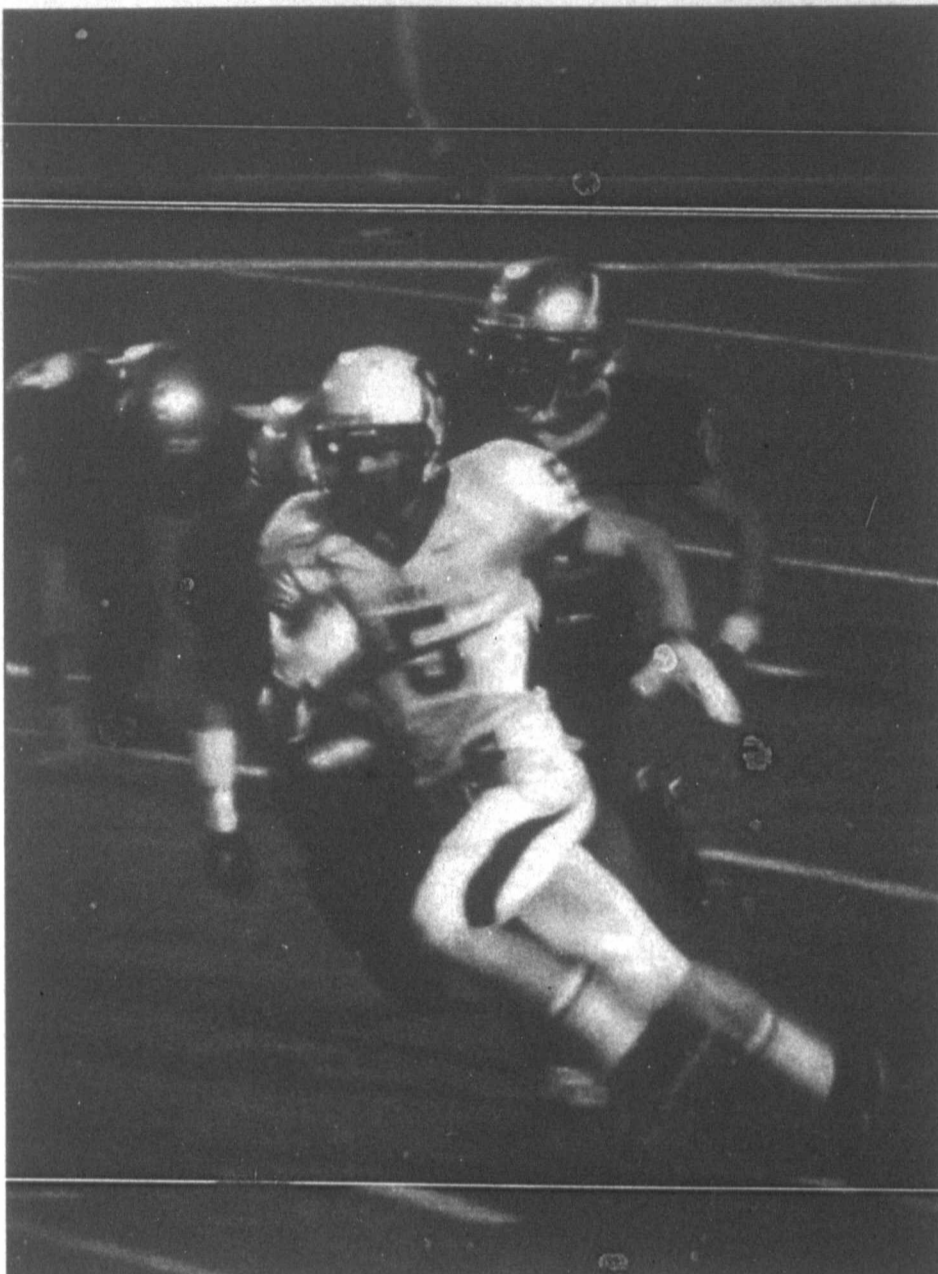

Pampa opens district at home with Borger (3-4) 7:30 p.m. Friday. The Harvesters only have one road test at Perryton (3-4) October 28 and close the season at home with Dalhart (6-1) November 4.

Hulsey said the defense will have to stay disciplined.

"We have to make our tackles," Hulsey said. "We can't arm tackle. We have to hold on."

Parker said his team has to be good at what it does.

"That's what it gets down to at this time of year," Parker said. "There isn't as many secrets against each other. You have seven films to look at for your first district opponent, then eight and nine."

Cowboys' Scandrick ready to face top NFL receiver Welker

IRVING Orlando Scandrick spent part of his bye weekend getting to know Wes Welker. On the flights to and from Los Angeles last week, the Cowboys cornerback studied game film of Welker. Even while visiting friends and family, Scandrick carved out time to try understanding how New England's little receiver keeps making such big plays and trying to figure out how he can prevent them when Dallas plays Welker and the Patriots on Sunday. "It's a huge challenge," Scandrick said. "He does everything 100 percent, full speed. He works. Many Cowboys fans have known about Welker since his days at Texas Tech, when he was an undersized guy making big plays in Mike Leach's wacky offense. Few folks figured that would translate to the NFL, yet the hardworking Welker seems to get better every year. This season, his eighth, Welker is putting together what could become among the greatest seasons by a receiver in NFL history. Welker has an NFL-best 45 catches for an NFL-best 740 yards through five games. He's on pace for 144 catches and 2,368 yards; the league records are 143 catches (by Marvin Harrison in 2002) and 1,848 yards (by Jerry Rice in 1995). Just think he's a remarkable football player," said Cowboys coach Jason Garrett, who was the quarterbacks coach in Miami when Welker played there. "Should watch Wes Welker in practice. I think if you came from Mars and never saw football before, you'd say, 'Who is that guy? Because he is 100 miles an hour every minute of every day. His success is not by accident. ... He is a relentless competitor. Maybe as much as anybody I've been around, he's able to take that tempo and how he practices to the game field. The Cowboys saw what kind of pest Welker can be when these teams last met, in 2007. Welker caught 11 passes for 124 yards and two touchdowns as New England steamrolled Dallas 48-27. Welker's work ethic, attitude and ability obviously is appreciated by Tom Brady. The chemistry they've developed over their five seasons together is another factor in their remarkable start this season. Brady, too, is on pace to shatter all sorts of passing records. Know what each other is going to do," Scandrick said. Garrett played in Dallas when Troy Aikman had that type of connection with Michael Irvin and Jay Novacek, and he's seen it develop again with Tony Romo and Jason Witten. "I think it's a security blanket for the quarterback, knowing that whatever situation happens, somehow I can find that guy and he's going to get me out of Dodge," Garrett said. "I think you see that on a weekly basis up there in New England. So, how can the Cowboys prepare for it? Garrett said it gets back to the same plan the defense has every week, only it's more difficult. "I try to somehow disrupt them, get them out of rhythm, get the quarterback feeling uncomfortable the same thing with the receiver so somehow that synchronicity they have goes away," Garrett said. "I just put the tape on. They play pretty well in a lot of different situations. Witten admires the Brady-Welker tandem and recognizes that they share the same sixth sense he and Romo have. Witten also pointed out that it's not luck, and I have worked on that a lot, that regardless of what the coverage is, what the down and distance is, and where you're at, we're going to find a way to make a play, he said. "I think it's a trust that you're going to find a way. Welker does most of his damage out of the slot. Scandrick's specialty is covering slot receivers, which is why all eyes will be on their matchup. Scandrick is good enough at what he does to have earned a $27 million, five-year contract extension during training camp. However, he's missed the last three games with a high ankle sprain. The only benefit was that he knew right away he would be returning for this game, and this matchup. Thus, he had more time to study Welker and try to figure out why a very good receiver has turned into a historically great threat at age 30. "It's the first time he's pretty much started running vertical," Scandrick said. "A lot of people don't expect him to run vertical, so when he runs vertical, it's normally a big play. Scandrick also pointed out that Welker not only makes guys miss, he breaks tackles, too. "I've seen plays where he's dragging linebackers," Scandrick said. "I think he's very strong. Knowing Welker like he does, Garrett isn't surprised. He's seen Welker turn short passes into long gains as well as haul in deep passes. "It's just a very difficult guy to cover," Garrett said. "He has a variety of routes that he runs. He's very reliable. He's very quarterback friendly."

No. 6 Cowboys set for Texas

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) — It used to be Texas could count on a long winning streak against Oklahoma State to all but guarantee the Longhorns would again beat the Cowboys. Texas had made a 12-year habit of beating the Cowboys with all sorts of routs and rallies.

But the old saying that "old habits die hard" does allow for habits to, well, die. The winning streak finally did when Oklahoma State joined the legion of teams that rolled into Austin and beat Texas last season.

The No. 6 Cowboys (5-0, 2-0 Big 12) return to Austin on Saturday and the No. 22 Longhorns (4-1, 1-1) are again flipping through the record book looking for some kind of edge in a game where they are a rare home underdog.

How about this? Texas coach Mack Brown is 13-0 the first game after playing big rival Oklahoma, a streak that includes six wins over ranked opponents.

But even that streak doesn't seem very solid anymore. Not after Texas gave up 300 yards passing in the first half of a 55-17 loss to No. 3 Oklahoma last week.

Oklahoma State ranks first in the nation in scoring (51 ppg) and second in passing (431 ypg) and comes in with the confidence of having already broken its long losing streak to Texas last year.

"Everybody is talking about how the Big 12 loves (Texas) and gives us all the breaks," Texas coach Mack Brown said. "I'm not sure they realized that when they made this schedule."

And coming back to Austin after a rough road trip to Dallas isn't necessarily the best thing for Texas. The Longhorns were just 2-5 at Royal-Memorial Stadium last season. They haven't played at home since needing a second-half rally to beat BYU 17-16 back on Sept. 11.

The 10-team format in the Big 12 required some scheduling quirks, including sending the Cowboys on the road to Texas two years in a row.

Oklahoma State coaches and players don't seem to mind. Cowboys coach Mike Gundy noted how good it felt to win here last season. Oklahoma State roared to a 26-3 halftime lead.

"I'm sure it had some effects in our recruiting and maybe the way we're perceived across the country in our football program," Gundy said. "Texas is maybe one of the top five tradition-rich football programs in the country, and so it'd be good to win another game against Texas."

Another win also would let the Cowboys keep pace with Oklahoma and No. 17 Kansas State in the race for the Big 12 title. Those are the only unbeaten teams in the league.

"What's nice is a lot of the same guys are still here that were able to go down there and play so well," Oklahoma State senior quarterback Brandon Weeden said.

Chiropractic is safe, effective, and NATURAL...

"...the less medications taken by a pregnant woman, the better it is for her yet-to-be born child."

Jason Rexroth, M.D., FACOG, FACS
OB-GYN Specialist

All Pregnant Women Should Read This!

If you are pregnant and suffering from neck or back pain, you need to look at chiropractic. Chiropractic can be the right alternative to living in pain or masking your discomfort with medication. Jason Rexroth and M.D. OB-GYN recommends chiropractic as an alternative. He says, "I am very familiar with the chiropractic approach to health care. As an OB-GYN, I know chiropractic care is the best treatment for common backaches and joint problems experienced by many women during pregnancy. I refer all my patients to doctors of chiropractic for these symptoms. As we all know, the less medications taken by a pregnant woman, the better it is for her yet-to-be born child.

Over the years, I have seen the benefits of the care only a doctor of chiropractic can provide significantly reduce a pregnant mother's reliance upon pain and narcotic medications."

Pregnant mothers should consider chiropractic care. The body changes and forward weight bearing stress on the neck and back can especially be improved with chiropractic treatments. Sometimes all you need is an adjustment to bring better balance to your body, reduce pain symptoms, without the need for drugs, and allow your developing baby to grow into your future beautiful, healthy child.

NATIONAL BOSSES DAY OCTOBER 16

Thanks, BOSS!

Boss' Day (alternative spelling Boss's Day, also known as Bosses Day or National Boss Day) is a secular holiday celebrated on October 16 in the United States and Canada. It has traditionally been a day for employees to thank their boss for being kind and fair throughout the year.

Patricia Bays Haroski registered "National Boss' Day" with the U.S. Chamber of Commerce in 1958. She was working as a secretary for State Farm Insurance Company in Deerfield, Illinois at the time and chose November 8 because she forgot that the birthday of her boss, who was her father, was actually on the 16th. Four years later in 1962, Illinois Governor Otto Kerner backed Haroski's registration and officially proclaimed the day.

National Boss' Day has become an international celebration in recent years and now is observed in countries such as Australia, India and South Africa and very recently Ireland and the UK.

Hallmark did not offer a Boss' Day card for sale until 1979. It increased the size of its National Boss Day line by 90 percent in 2007.

This Week: Communicate; call; be responsive. Organize meetings. Schedule as much as possible for before Thursday.

GEMINI (May 21-June

20) You see a new beginning. Don't let this opportunity slip away. Know what you want and what you need to do. Don't hesitate to state your opinions, but also zero in on what you want. Only you can take an action for yourself. Tonight: All smiles.

This Week: Money is a major priority. Communicate your needs.

CANCER (June 21-July 22)

Play it low-key. Remain sensitive to the possibilities on the horizon. The time to act is not yet. Curb a tendency to swallow hurt or anger. You could be overindulging or spending too much as a result. Tonight: Get as much rest as possible.

This Week: Your popularity peaks Monday, Tuesday and Wednesday. Use this period well.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22)

You are a fire sign and demonstrate the spontaneity that is associated with it. You have unusual magnetism and draw. The right words seem to come naturally to you. Be sensitive to a female friend. Tonight: Where the action is.

This Week: Delay what you can until Thursday, when you hit your power days.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22)

Stay on top of what is going on. Bring a key circle of friends and/or loved ones together. They appreciate you taking time for this happy get-together. Be careful about swallowing your anger. Tonight: Could go to the wee hours.

This Week: Stop holding back. Communicate what is on your mind.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 22)

Keep reaching out for others, especially a particular person at a distance. You have a style that attracts many people. A male friend could play a significant role in your plans, even if you find him to be pushy. Know when to gently push back. Tonight: First detach and relax, then decide.

This Week: Tension and responsibilities run high until Thursday. Success follows if you respond appropriately.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23-Nov. 21)

A partner starts giving you strong feedback if you are ready to hear it. You will anyway -- this person is determined. If you want some peace, plan on not being available or not visiting with others until moods change. Tonight: A quiet dinner.

This Week: Keep reaching out for more information; then act when you're more sure of yourself.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21)

Others make overture after overture. You give new meaning to being popular. Make choices that appeal to you. You easily might opt to spend some quality time with someone you don't see very often. At least call this person. Tonight: Where the action is.

This Week: Deal with others directly. You will get important feedback.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19)

Focus on someone you care about deeply. You make this person feel special. Get into a hobby. What would be even better is to choose a hobby that you can share. Be careful with a loved one or partner who could be jealous! Tonight: Enjoy the moment.

This Week: Others want to dominate. Let them!

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18)

Tap into your creativity and just flow. Someone might be a little harsh playing devil's advocate. Don't take it personally. You can choose to have a very special day, or you could ruin the day by getting upset over a comment. What makes more sense? Tonight: Pretend it is Friday night.

This Week: Focus on accomplishment.

PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20)

A family member could get difficult on occasion. Give yourself some space from this person. You already know that he or she will change his or her mind. Meanwhile, touch base with other family members. Chip in on a major project. Tonight:

You don't have to go far. This Week: Your ingenuity carries you and others through the next few days. Others might instrument some of your ideas.

THE PAMPA NEWS

'The Thing' a perfectly serviceable, if unspectacular, addition to series

A remake of a remake of a film from 1951, "The Thing" feels oddly anachronistic for a horror movie in 2011.

In a lot of ways, it has a lot more in common with the claustrophobic, atmospheric thrillers of the 80s, like 1986's "Aliens," 1989's "The Abyss," and of course, its predecessor and namesake's, 1982's "The Thing," directed by John Carpenter.

And while the 2011 edition certainly doesn't measure up to Carpenter's slow-build, tightly tense version, it's perfectly serviceable in its own right, relying much more on geographical isolation and psychological, who-can-you-trust tension than the gore and what's-around-the-corner scares that have become so stale in recent horror fare.

"The Thing" is much more a prequel to the Carpenter version than a straight remake. Not to spoil things too much, but a series of scenes during the end credits segue directly to the beginning of the 80s film. To get to that point, though, we pick up at the beginning; a crew of Norwegian scientists working at an isolated outpost in Antarctica have found an alien creature frozen within the frigid continent's permanent layer of ice. Joined by an American paleontologist (Mary Elizabeth Winstead of "Scott Pilgrim vs. The World") and a pair of hired hands ("Warrior's" Joel Edgerton and Adewale Akinnuoye-Agbaje of "Lost") to fly their helicopter, they extract the hunk of ice encasing the interplanetary visitor and bring it to their headquarters, only for the monster to break out of its icy coffin and systematically prey on the party one by one.

The root of the movie's fear factor is in the way the Thing hunts: It replicates its victims, killing them and hiding in their bodies, so that it becomes a near-perfect replica of its last kill. The confusion leaves the members of the expedition wary of each other from the moment the monster attacks; no one can be trusted, and everyone could be a monster waiting to strike.

Now, certainly, "The Thing" of 2011 has its visceral moments. The titular monster is sufficiently disgusting, and the method in which it, uh, "eats" its victims is just plain gross. Still, it's the moments when the Thing is off-screen that the shivers are most palpable, the cast's suspicious, horrified glances at each other magnifying the mounting panic in each scene.

While it's certainly not at the same level as the aforementioned, acclaimed 80s classics, "The Thing" is a nice throwback to a different kind of horror flick. It's nothing you'll be raving about hours after you leave the theater, but with Halloween coming up, it's a suitably fine addition to the scary movie season. John Carpenter, I think, would approve.

About Mark Shell Ministries: If the ministry was to be explained in a few simple words, it would have to be described as "mind changing." Mark believes very simply Jesus came to cleanse the world with His blood sacrifice so that whoever accepted that substitution as their salvation is now the residence of the Holy Spirit and the Holy Spirit on a daily basis helps us renew our minds to think like Christ. In essence, as we change our minds we change our lives.

daily horoscope

HAPPY BIRTHDAY for Saturday, Oct. 15, 2011:
 This year you are full of surprises. You often draw out the unexpected from others. Life tends toward excitement. Trust your mental facilities to figure out problems. Try not to get so emotional, and you will do better. Detach before responding. If you are single, your dating life could be wild. You are best off avoiding a formal commitment this year. If you are attached, know that you cannot change a partner. So go for the roller-coaster ride. GEMINI is full of fun.

ARIES (March 21-April 19)
 ★★ Your energy soars, especially when you realize what day it is. Be spontaneous and slightly less organized. The end results will be far more fun, for you and for those around you. A conversation comes out of left field. Follow it through — this talk means a lot to the other party. Tonight: Hang out.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20)
 ★★ The week catches up with you. Whether you decide it is time to relax or a situation changes makes no difference. Slow down and get some much-needed R and R. Know that there is very little you cannot do over the phone, though you might prefer to do it in person. Tonight: Treat a loved one.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20)
 ★★ How you fare when dealing with another person could be very different from what you expect. You might not be aware of how very different you are and how you come off. A scheduled get-together with friends could perk up your mood even more. Tonight: Follow the natural course.

CANCER (June 21-July 22)
 ★★ Someone acts out, forcing you to take a stand. You might not appreciate the demand this situation puts on you. Lighten up and have a much-needed discussion with a loved one. You don't need to reveal all your thoughts. Remain sensitive to those around you. Tonight: Be subtle.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22)
 ★★ Zero in on what works. You'll see results that you might have only dreamt about before. Begin conversations and be willing to share more openly. News from a distance could stun you, but when you think about it, you are OK. Tonight: Be where there is a party!

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22)
 ★★ Handle responsibilities first. You might need to check in on or visit an older relative. You wonder how you can lighten this person's day. Your sheer presence adds to his or her happiness. A partner reverses his or her course out of the blue. Tonight: Out on the town.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 22)
 ★★ Be willing to take off out of the blue or investigate an event that normally might not be your cup of tea. A partner acts in a most unexpected manner. Try not to overreact, and take the situation with a grain of salt. Tonight: Off to the movies or a concert.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23-Nov. 21)
 ★★ Remain sure of yourself and in your dealings. Question less and trust your sixth sense. A partner or dear friend will respond in kind. Together you can take on nearly any project or just take off like birds. This interaction renews you. Tonight: Be with a favorite person.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21)
 ★★ Others could exasperate you with their high energy and visibility. You don't need to react to those feelings. You do know how to get another person's attention. Do just that. You actually flatter this person. Together you will have a ball. Tonight: Go with another's plans.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19)
 ★★ Pace yourself. You might want to squeeze in all you want to do in too little time. You might get a lot done, but slow down; otherwise, you won't be able to visit with someone or take your time with a decision. Why push if it takes away from the quality of your life? Tonight: Don't push too hard!

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18)
 ★★ You'll enjoy yourself to the max if you just let go and be spontaneous. You could hear some surprising news or have the unexpected occur. This little surprise only adds to the quality of your life. Be more kidlike. Tonight: Full of naughtiness.

PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20)
 ★★ Stay close to home, perhaps to complete a project or support a roommate in a particular venture. Though you might not be at a fun party, you still can have fun. A surprise purchase or token gift draws a very pleasing reaction. Tonight: Do more of what you want.
