Election Day today; polls open from 7 to 7

ARNIE AURELLANO
 editor@thepampanews.com
 Gray County voters, as well as voters around the state, are being asked today to vote on 10 proposed amendments to the Texas Constitution.
 Polling places for the seven local precincts will open at 7 a.m.

and close at 7 p.m.
 Voting locations are as follows:
 • Precinct 1: Lefors Community Center, 103 N. Court, Lefors;
 • Precinct 2, Lovett Memorial Library, 111 N. Houston;
 • Precinct 3, Grandview Hopkins School, 11605 FM 293;
 • Precinct 4, Lovett Library McLean, 302 N. Main, McLean;

• Precinct 5, First Christian Church, 1633 N. Nelson;
 • Precinct 6, Zion Lutheran Church, 1200 N. Duncan; and • Precinct 7, M.K. Brown Auditorium, 1000 N. Sumner.
 Gray County Election Administrator Linda Lewis said that she expects a light turnout for this election after only 173

Gray County voters participated in early voting.
 "It's a pretty disappointing turnout considering the critical issues on that ballot," Lewis said.
 "Usually, what we see in election day has been pretty comparative to our early voting numbers, so (turnout) this year will probably

Court grants Skinner stay of execution

MOLLIE BRYANT
 mbryant@thepampanews.com
 Death row inmate Hank Skinner's appeals were answered on Monday, when the Court of Criminal Appeals of Texas granted the convicted murderer a stay of execution.
 At issue for Skinner has been the testing of DNA evidence from his case, which was denied most recently by the 31st District Court in Gray County.
 "Because the DNA statute has changed, and because some of those changes were because of this case, we find that it would be prudent for this Court to take time to fully review the changes in the statute as they pertain to this case," said the Court of Criminal Appeals in its ruling.
 The Court of Criminal Appeals ruled that the Gray County court has 15 days to enter its legal determinations, which should be forwarded to the criminal court within 30 days.
 "The Court of Criminal Appeals with its decision (yesterday), has ensured that Mr. Skinner's request for DNA testing will receive the thorough and serious consideration it deserves," said Rob Owen, lead appeals attorney for Hank SKINNER cont. on page 2

Pampa EDC mulls TIPS strategic plan

 mbryant@thepampanews.com
 The Pampa Economic Development Corporation (PEDC) mulled over a strategic plan from TIP Strategies (TIPS), an Austin based consulting firm, at a meeting yesterday.
 "They have a lot of information and ideas in here. We just need to refine it," said Clay Rice, executive director of the PEDC.
 Gary Sutherland, president of the PEDC board, saw some issues with the broadness of the proposed plan.
 "(TIPS has) done some stuff in population areas that were similar to ours, but the problem is that people that do this kind of work don't come from a community of 20,000 people," Sutherland said. "They come from the big cities. They have big city ideas. They understand metropolitan areas. They probably do more work in metropolitan areas, and when you're looking at West Texas areas where populations are declining in the small communities, you have problems that you have to deal with, and there are time constraints and money constraints in whatever you're doing. That's TIPS cont. on page 3

Election

Two face court for kidnapping

ALBUQUERQUE, N.M. (AP) — Two men arrested in connection with the kidnapping of an El Paso man who managed to get free in Clines Corners, N.M. are headed to federal court.

The Federal Bureau of Investigation says 40-year-old Jesus Manuel Gallegos and 34-year-old Brandon Lawrence Jones are scheduled Monday to appear in U.S. District Court on various charges after another man told agents that Gallegos and Jones took him from El Paso, Texas, and made him withdraw money from ATMs.

The man told authorities he escaped from the kidnappers after they fell asleep at a travel center east of Albuquerque on Sunday morning.

FBI spokesman Frank Fisher says the men were arrested Sunday shortly following the man's escape.

It was unclear if the men had hired attorneys.

Plea in prostitution ring case

EL PASO (AP) — Three men accused of being part of a ring that forced more than 10 women into prostitution in the West Texas border city of El Paso have pleaded not guilty to the charges in federal court.

Forty-three-year-old Alarcon Wiggins of Baltimore, the alleged ringleader, along with Mark Corey Williams and Deyonta Thompson waived their right to request bail Monday.

Wiggins did not appear and entered his plea in writing while Thompson stood mute, the equivalent of a not guilty plea.

The three defendants were among five men and five women arrested in October in Baltimore. They are accused of enticing a group of women to move to El Paso, where prosecutors allege they ran a forced prostitution ring and seized the women's profits and cellphones so they couldn't seek help.

Defense starts in polygamy trial

ROBERT LEE (AP) — The defense will begin arguing its case in the trial of a 75-year-old ex-polygamist bishop accused of performing an illegal marriage ceremony.

The defense for Fredrick Merrill Jessop plans to call two or three witnesses Monday.

The prosecution rested Thursday after one of Jessop's wives identified him in the courtroom. Much of the prosecution's case rested on documents seized in a 2008 raid on the Yearning for Zion Ranch near Eldorado. It is owned by the Fundamentalist Church of Jesus Christ of Latter Day Saints.

Jessop is accused of "sealing" a marriage between church leader Warren Jeffs and a 12-year-old girl. Jeffs is serving a life sentence for sexually assaulting that girl and another 15-year-old girl.

Jeffs excommunicated Jessop sometime after he performed the wedding ceremony.

Blagojevich sentencing set

CHICAGO (AP) — Ousted Illinois Gov. Rod Blagojevich is scheduled to be sentenced on his multiple corruption charges Dec. 6.

The new date appeared on a federal court website Monday. In September, Judge James Zagel had indefinitely delayed an Oct. 6 sentencing date for Blagojevich — apparently because it would have conflicted with a related trial.

The 54-year-old impeached governor was convicted at his retrial this year on corruption charges including attempted extortion for trying to sell or trade an appointment to President Barack Obama's vacated U.S. Senate seat. Jurors at his first trial had deadlocked on all but one count, convicting Blagojevich of lying to the FBI.

Blagojevich faces a maximum sentence of 305 years in prison. Most legal experts say Zagel is likely to sentence Blagojevich to around ten years.

Defense can't show 9/11 video

BOSTON (AP) — Lawyers for a Massachusetts man charged with conspiring to help al-Qaida have lost a bid to bar federal prosecutors from showing jurors gruesome videos of the World Trade Center burning after the Sept. 11 terrorist attacks and the beheadings of Americans.

Tarek Mehanna's lawyers argued that showing the videos would shock jurors and be unfair to Mehanna. The Boston Globe reports Judge George O'Toole Jr. denied the motion Monday and twice denied a defense request for a mistrial.

Prosecutors say that after Mehanna made an unsuccessful trip to Yemen to try to get training at a terrorist camp, he returned home to Sudbury and began helping al-Qaida by translating and distributing online texts and videos promoting violent jihad.

be pretty thin."

Still, Lewis encouraged Gray County residents to turn out and vote today given the variety of issues covered by the 10 amendments in the election, which range from water stewardship to the education funding to the governor's authority to grant pardons.

"(The issues) are very important," said Lewis. "If you can vote in any election, you should exercise that right. We take it for granted... We need to pay close attention, because some of these issues will affect us right here in our community, and the way to make our voices heard is to vote."

what we're trying to address in this document."

The PEDC board views some items in the plan as unrealistic from their standpoint. For instance, TIPS suggested that an absence of middle income housing could pose a potential roadblock for businesses when it comes to workforce needs.

The board preferred the term "housing and apartments" to middle income.

"We can't fund any type of housing project other than low income," said Rice. "It doesn't mean we couldn't market the community to builders and developers."

The plan also emphasized the importance of community assistance to the area's medical facility. However, PEDC board members doubted they could have a direct hand in the PRMC, currently up for sale.

Similarly, they doubted they could do anything to revitalize the Pampa Mall — another bullet point from the TIPS strategic plan that was discussed at Monday's meeting — aside from answering questions potential investors may have.

The PEDC also discussed other items on the TIPS strategic plan, including the exploration of annexing portions of the city, encouraging the establishment of a recycling center, the beautification of Pampa and proper code enforcement.

As of yet, no final decisions have been made regarding the TIPS plan, and the PEDC plans to finalize its economic development plan in January of next year.

TIPS has consulted with 17 rural areas including Pampa, as well as metropolitan areas like Dallas, Houston and Midland.

Today in History

Today is Tuesday, Nov. 8, the 312th day of 2011. There are 53 days left in the year.

Today's Highlight in History:

On Nov. 8, 1861, during the Civil War, the USS San Jacinto intercepted a British mail steamer, the Trent, and detained a pair of Confederate diplomats who were enroute to Europe to seek support for the Southern cause.

On this date:

In 1889, Montana became the 41st state.
In 1909, the original Boston Opera House first opened with a performance of "La Gioconda" by Amilcare Ponchielli.

In 1923, Adolf Hitler launched his first attempt at seizing power in Germany with a failed coup in Munich that came to be known as the "Beer-Hall Putsch."

In 1932, New York Gov. Franklin D. Roosevelt defeated incumbent Herbert Hoover for the presidency.

In 1942, Operation Torch, resulting in an Allied victory, began during World War II as U.S. and British forces landed in French North Africa.

In 1960, Massachusetts Sen. John F. Kennedy defeated Vice President Richard M. Nixon for the presidency.

In 1980, scientists at the Jet Propulsion Laboratory in Pasadena, Calif., announced that the U.S. space probe Voyager 1 had discovered a 15th moon orbiting the planet Saturn.

In 1988, Vice President George H.W. Bush won the presidential election, defeating Massachusetts Gov. Michael Dukakis.

In 1994, midterm elections resulted in Republicans winning a majority in the Senate while at the same time gaining control of the House.

Ten years ago: In a prime-time address from Atlanta, President George W. Bush called on Americans to defy acts of terror by strengthening their communities, comforting their neighbors and remaining vigilant in the face of further threats.

Five years ago: President George W. Bush announced Defense Secretary Donald Rumsfeld's resignation; Bush chose former CIA Director Robert Gates to succeed him.

One year ago: On the third and final day of his trip to India, President Barack Obama endorsed the country's bid to become a permanent member of the U.N. Security Council.

Today's Birthdays: Actor Norman Lloyd is 97. Singer Patti Page is 84. CBS newsman Morley Safer is 80. Singer-actress Bonnie Bramlett is 67. Singer Bonnie Raitt is 62. TV personality Mary Hart is 61. Former Playboy Enterprises chairman and chief executive Christie Hefner is 59. Actress Alfre Woodard is 59. Singer-songwriter Rickie Lee Jones is 57. Author Kazuo Ishiguro ("The Remains of the Day") is 57. Rock musician Porl Thompson (The Cure) is 54. Singer-actor Leif Garrett is 50. Chef and TV personality Gordon Ramsay is 45. Actress Courtney Thorne-Smith is 44. Actress Parker Posey is 43. Rock musician Jimmy Chaney is 42. Actress Roxana Zal is 42. Singer Diana King is 41. Actor Gonzalo Menendez is 40. Actress Gretchen Mol is 38. Actor Matthew Rhys is 37. Actress Tara Reid is 36. Country singer Bucky Covington is 34. Actress Dania Ramirez is 32. Actress Azura Skye is 30. Actor Chris Rankin is 28. TV personality Jack Osbourne is 26. Actress Jessica Lowndes is 23. Country singer Lauren Aaina is 17.

Thought for Today: "Happiness is not a station you arrive at, but a manner of traveling." — Margaret Lee Runbeck, American author (1905-1956).

The tension between ideology and pragmatism

When I first served in Congress, in the 1960s and 1970s, I would often sit on the floor of the House and listen carefully to members from both sides. I was trying to figure out the differences between the liberals and the conservatives, and to perceive how those differences could be narrowed or bridged. They broke over how to answer the overriding question of American government — the proper role of government — with liberals seeing an expansive role and conservatives a limited one. At the time, there was plenty of gray area where the two could find common ground.

In recent years, the attitudes of liberals and conservatives toward government's role have become more complex. In general, conservatives want just a small role when it comes to taxes, the economy, and social welfare. But they are more supportive of an expansive national-security apparatus and Department of Defense. And they advocate government taking an active role in regulating such social issues as abortion and gay marriage. They generally like Edmund Burke's definition of a statesman as a person with "a disposition to preserve and an ability to improve."

Liberals generally accept the flip side: They'd prefer a person with the disposition to improve and an ability to preserve. They are more open to an expansive role for government on social welfare policy, job creation, and such interventions in the economy as regulation of antitrust, labor, consumer and environmental matters. They tend to look to government to help curb economic and financial power. They're more mixed on national security issues; some are doves, others hawks. And on such matters as abortion and gay marriage, they generally want government to give Americans a free hand. To some extent, these are caricatures, of course. Individual politicians rarely fit into neatly defined categories. And the truth is, trying to reach agreement on complex issues forces both sides to temper the purity of their visions. Many conservatives may want to contract the reach of social-welfare policy, but they're leery of threatening the existence of such programs as Social Security and Medicare. Similarly, while they espouse relying on market forces to solve most of our problems, they accept affecting the economy through changes in the tax code and believe government should direct some matters of social policy.

Likewise, most liberals are now open to leaving more responsibilities with the private sector. They want to see power and personal liberty diffused in a way that is compatible with a market economy — but still reliant on the government to help provide a secure old age, health and education.

The result of this tension is our mixed economy — neither entirely free-market nor controlled by the state — and our pendulum-swinging politics.

My experience is that apart from the ideologically committed, most Americans don't worry a lot about whether a given policy is "liberal" or "conservative." They worry about whether or not it works. And so as any given issue gets debated, the ideologues take stands that hew to their beliefs and only reluctantly yield on their views, while most voters want to see things get resolved in a manner that responds to the needs of the country. Taken together, the results of these debates set the country's direction and the speed at which it heads there.

When ideology trumps pragmatism, we find ourselves incapable of moving. Yet these ideological battles are engrained in the dialogue of our democracy. The argument between a smaller and a greater role for government has been with us since the very beginning of our nation; in some ways it defines our political history.

Our challenge today, as it has always been, is to balance the passions of those who find themselves firmly on one side or the other against the common sense of the great mass of Americans, who are most concerned about making progress on the problems that beset them. As the common phrase has it, they want not big government or small government, but smart government. They want political leaders to set ideological purity aside, and just get things done.

Lee Hamilton is Director of the Center on Congress at Indiana University. He was a member of the U.S. House of Representatives for 34 years.

daily horoscope

HAPPY BIRTHDAY for Tuesday, Nov. 8, 2011:

This year you have many ideas and a little too much to follow through on. Frustration and/or confusion could be the natural outcome. Focus on the quality of your life. If you are single, someone you meet this year is unlikely to be a long-term bond. If you are attached, the two of you often see life goals and the path to get there differently. Don't view each other as wrong; simply accept the other person and his or her views. Your relationship will become easier. TAURUS can be challenging.

The Stars Show the Kind of Day You'll Have: 5-Dynamic; 4-Positive; 3-Average; 2-So-so; 1-Difficult

ARIES (March 21-April 19)

★★★★ You spark like lightning. If someone is on your bad side, he or she might wish to be otherwise. An assumption you make could be totally off base. You have a lot of fire and get-up-and-go. Tap into your creativity when facing a snafu. Tonight: Don't go until the wee hours.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20)

★★★ You might feel slightly out of sorts as you try to come to a conclusion. Give yourself time; don't pressure yourself. You will see the right path, though it could be much later, or tomorrow. Tonight: Read between the lines.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20)

★★★★★ A friend points to the right path, though there is a defiant side to you that doesn't want to go along. Of course, ultimately, it is your call, and no one else's. You will experience the ramifications either way, too. Tonight: Play until you are too tired.

CANCER (June 21-July 22)

★★★ Accept your role right now, even if you aren't comfortable. We all would like more control — you are no exception. Right now you really have tremendous sway and impact. First you need to know what you want. OK? Tonight: Until the wee hours.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22)

★★★★ Look to positive changes and opportunities. Someone in your immediate environment could be a bit sour. Go forward and avoid this person for now. Mobilize your energy positively. Others feel inspired by you, making anything possible. Tonight: Make it early.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22)

★★★★ A key partner pushes you very hard. You might not always feel like you have your finances handled. Stay open to suggestions. A partner could test your limits. Be careful with anger and projecting it. Tonight: Let your imagination kick in.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 22)

★★★★ You could be sour and coloring a situation far more negatively than need be. One-on-one relating could be tense. Toss yourself into something you might enjoy doing more. Tonight: Go along with another's ideas. You will like the outcome.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23-Nov. 21)

★★★ You have a lot to get done, but you will get it done. Simply focus on one project after another. Do yourself a favor and try not to isolate yourself or spend too much time alone. You could be a very sorry camper otherwise. Tonight: The later it gets, the better it is.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21)

★★★ Focus on getting the job done, whatever that looks like. Push comes to shove with a friend or loved one. You might wonder why you are doing what you are doing. Stay centered knowing full well when enough is enough. Feelings run to extremes when dealing with others. Tonight: At home.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19)

★★★★ If you can work from home, by all means, do. A boss or higher-up could be close to impossible. Why would you subject yourself to that treatment? A communication is vague. The other party might not be as sure as he or she would like to be. Tonight: Yipping up a storm.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18)

★★★★ You might find it a little difficult to get someone to talk who has no intention of spilling the beans. Try as you might, you get nowhere very fast. Frustration builds to unprecedented levels. You might feel unusually inspired and pick up on what is going on. Confirm, please. Tonight: Visit on the way home.

PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20)

★★★ Discord easily could continue if the topic is finances. Someone has a vested interest in your thoughts and ideas. Realize what is happening behind the scenes. Know what you need to occur. Understanding evolves once you put yourself in another person's place. Tonight: Catch up on calls.

Lady Pirates struggle at free throw line, drop opener

aglover@thepampanews.com

Free throws can be crucial in determining a basketball game. The Lefors Lady Pirates left several points off the scoreboard as they struggled to convert from the charity stripe in a 40-33 loss to the Miami Lady Warriors in Miami.

"We shoot 100s in practice everyday," head coach Tory Peet said. "It wins and loses games for you. That's our Achilles heel right now."

Miami fouled 17 times to Lefors' six. The Lady Warriors had to play the last 30 seconds with only four players because two fouled out. The Lady Pirates only converted nine free throws. Senior Story Pairsh said the team needs to improve its free throw shooting.

"We didn't shoot well tonight," Pairsh said. "We will get better."

Lefors was without junior Brittany Bengé, who was sick. Senior Kaittlyne Porter said it affected the team.

"We were all freaked out because we were missing one of our starters," Porter said. "It was nerve-wracking."

The Lady Warriors (1-0) were able to break the game open in the second half with a 5-0 run to increase their lead to 18-12. Miami was able to create easy transition baskets off of defensive rebounds and steals. Jesse Gibbs hit two layups and a three-pointer to led the Lady Warriors offensively. Miami led 26-17 after the third.

Pairsh said the Lady Pirates couldn't hit a shot and allowed Miami to take control.

"We were letting passes go," Pairsh said. "Shots fell that didn't fall for us. It wasn't what we had planned."

In the fourth quarter, Miami gained its largest lead of the game at 36-22. The Lady Pirates rallied and got within six. Lefors forced a pair of turnovers at half court. On the offensive end, the Lady Pirates were able to get the ball inside and draw contact. With a minute left, Porter was fouled outside the three-point line and had the opportunity to cut Miami's lead to three. Porter was only able to convert one of the three free throws. Sophomore Khori Lott contributed seven points in the fourth leading Lefors offensively.

Porter said the team needs to get going earlier in the game.

"We just have to get our heads together and get our heads on the same page," Porter said.

Peet said he was proud of how his team fought in the fourth.

"These girls in the past when stuff goes bad they get their heads down and it's over with," Peet said. "Today, we got down by double digits and we fought back. We started a little late but they never gave up."

The first half was very competitive as the teams exchanged the lead six times. Pairsh and Porter led the Lady Pirate offense, scoring eight of Lefors' 11 points in the first quarter. The Lady Pirates led 11-10 after one. In the second quarter, both teams struggled to score as the Lady Warriors scored the first points with less than two and a half minutes left. Miami led 15-12 at halftime.

Porter led the Lady Pirates in scoring with 10. Pairsh and Lott each scored seven. Porter also led the team in rebounds with 10. Pairsh grabbed nine and Lott grabbed eight. Gibbs led the Lady Warriors in scoring with 18. Samara Cummings led the team in rebounds with eight.

Senior Story Pairsh goes up for a shot between two defenders. The Lady Pirates lost 40-33. Lefors' struggles at the free throw line was key to its loss.

Lady Harvesters open season with challenging opponents

The Pampa Lady Harvesters aren't shy away from challenging competition as they open the season with 1A Division 1 No. 14 Canadian 6 p.m. today at McNeely Fieldhouse and the Frenship Tournament Thursday through Saturday.

Junior swing Taylor Morgan said it will be a great way to start the season.

"I'm excited," Morgan said. "I think we will do very well. We just got to push ourselves and run the plays."

Head coach Gene Valentine said Canadian is very aggressive on both sides of the ball adding his team can handle it.

"Obviously they are going to be very aggressive," Valentine said. "They like to push the ball. They will pressure us on offense."

Pampa will have a full team as seniors Kirsten Kuhn, Kailyn Troxell and Caitlin Sieck return from volleyball.

Valentine said the volleyball players will see action.

"The good thing about them is they have played with me for three years now," Valentine said. "They aren't behind on anything, they just have to work on conditioning."

Kuhn said they were given the option of jumping in or waiting a week but decided to go in.

"This is our first real practice," Kuhn said. "We know the plays and stuff. We just got to get conditioned. Basketball and volleyball are totally different."

In the Frenship Tournament, Pampa opens with El Paso Irvin, which was a bi-district finalist in the 4A playoffs last year, at 1:30 p.m. Thursday. At 12 p.m. Friday, the Lady Harvesters face Dumas. Pampa closes the tournament 10:30 a.m. Saturday against host Frenship who is ranked 10th in 4A.

Morgan said it will be good to face this competition and it will help them in district.

"The competition is really good," Morgan said. "It will help when we face Borger, Perryton and Dalhart."

On November 5, Pampa scrimmaged White Deer, Borger and Amarillo Tascosa in Borger. Valentine said he thought the scrimmage went well.

"We won 3 quarters and lost 2," Valentine said. "Watching film today it was some mental things we have to work on. I felt good about it. I felt good that we can stay with some teams."

Dear Abby...

By Pauline & Jeanne Phillips

DEAR ABBY: "Pregnant with Apprehension" (Sept. 9) said she's dreading the birth of her second baby because her fiancé's mother wants to witness the birth. Apparently, "PWA" wants only her mother and her fiancé, "Cliff," in the delivery room. You said her wishes should be paramount. I agree.

I am a labor and delivery RN in a major medical center in California. More and more people today view birth as a sporting event. It's worse when the mother-in-law wants to be there because "it's her right."

"PWA" should let Cliff know if he can't stand up to his mom, her labor nurse will! I will be the one who informs visitors that it's hospital policy that there be only two people at the bedside, and there is NO bending the rule. That way, the mother-in-law can hate the nurse, but not her daughter-in-law or her son. I'll willingly take the heat for my patient if it means a better labor outcome for her and the family. — "BECAUSE I SAID SO"

DEAR "BECAUSE": Thank you for agreeing with me. However, those who disagreed shared experiences that are worth noting. My newspaper readers comment:

DEAR ABBY: For "PWA" to say she doesn't want Cliff's parents to see their grandchild for two weeks is selfish, and I don't think she should demand that her fiancé back her up on this. Her mother is going to be there from the moment of birth. While it's understandable she doesn't want anyone else in the delivery room, she shouldn't be surprised that his mother is hurt. His parents have a lot to offer and can be a big help to her.

Cliff needs to tell "PWA" she's being unreasonable. I wish my son had spoken up on my behalf. Being shut out of this blessed event is hurtful and causes tension. She has the right to dictate who is in the delivery room with her, but she shouldn't deny his parents their right to be a part of their grandchildren's lives. — BLESSED TO BE

A NANA
DEAR ABBY: I didn't want my in-laws in the delivery room either, but I was sensitive to the fact that they are just as much family as my parents. My solution was present for the birth. Blending families together used to hold a greater importance, and I feel for parents who are feeling left out of their children's lives. — MAGGIE IN AIKEN, S.C.

Don't be afraid to correct investing mistakes

TERRY SAVAGE
Creator's Syndicate

Sometimes it's important to stick to your convictions despite the emotional urge or outside pressures to change your mind. But other times, you need to be flexible enough to change your mind when presented with a new set of facts.

Never has that been more apparent than in the business headlines in recent weeks. First, the CEO of Netflix decided to reverse his decision to split the company into two parts, after the announcement and its pricing changes caused an uproar from shareholders and customers.

Then the new CEO of Hewlett-Packard Co., Meg Whitman, decided to reverse the company's multibillion dollar decision to dump HP's personal computer division — a decision made under the previous CEO, but one in which she had participated as a board member.

Each of these reversals cost shareholders a huge chunk of money. HP stock is down 36 percent for the year and Netflix lost 75 percent of its market value, not to mention 800,000 customers.

Everyone makes mistakes. But when leaders of companies — or countries — make mistakes, the costs can be catastrophic. It takes courage to admit a mistake and reverse course. But that can be a better decision than continuing down the wrong road.

Take Bank of America, for instance. It saw an opportunity to replace lost profits from debit card swipe fees by instituting a monthly $5 charge for using a debit card to access your own money. What a fiasco!

When I asked Warren Buffett, who recently invested $5 billion in B of A preferred stock, what he thought of the move, he lifted his glass of Coca-Cola and said, "New Coke." He was referring to the historic marketing mistake of 1985, which caused Coca-Cola Co. to quickly bring back "Classic Coke."

Sometimes experience is the great teacher. But it's important to learn the lesson quickly and reverse course before too much damage is done. Hopefully, research will prevent those mistakes. Just this week, Chase said that after testing the market, it had decided against imposing a fee for debit card use. Of course, their decision was certainly influenced by the negative reaction to B of A's blunder. Sometimes it doesn't pay to be first to market!

So what does all this mean for your own investment decisions and money-management plans? Well, first you have the comfort of knowing you're not alone if you make a big mistake on an investment decision. But at least your mistake won't make headlines. On the other hand, as embarrassing as CEO mistakes may be, they are cushioned by huge salaries and golden parachutes as they depart.

Your mistakes could cost you your retirement. That's why it's so important to do your research, create a sensible plan — and diversify your investments so you don't have all your nest eggs in one basket.

The recent volatility in the stock market makes this advice all the more important. It may surprise you to learn that although the Dow Jones industrial average is just about 750 points higher than where it started the year, it has traversed 22,350 points on a closing basis so far this year.

Adding up all those closing moves — both up and down — has resulted in tremendous anxiety and a lot of second-guessing of investment decisions. But if you had determined an appropriate portion of your assets to invest in a diversified stock portfolio, you could have taken comfort in knowing that historically that portfolio would produce weekly returns over a 20-year period.

And if another portion of your assets was in safe but low-yielding "chicken money" investments such as Treasury bills, CDs or money-market funds, you would have had more comfort in sticking with your stock market investments.

What happens if you make a mistake? What if you sold out on one of those fearful down days? Don't be paralyzed by fear or embarrassment. The market doesn't know your emotions — or care about your portfolio. The market is moving on. And so should you.

Take a lesson from those CEOs who aren't afraid to recognize a mistake and reverse course to get back on track. The only thing worse than being wrong is staying wrong. And that's the Savage Truth.

By Steve Phillips
Staff Writer

Last week in Indianapolis hundreds of people lined up to cash in at the Empire Roadshow. People gathered carrying Antiques, Watches, Gold and Silver Jewelry, Coin Collections, and even Guitars. The roadshow comes to town and sets up in several locations so anyone can attend without having to drive any great distance.

One customer said this "I couldn't believe that a few pieces of broken gold and some old coins I had got me $700.00 in less than 15 minutes. That stuff had been sitting in my dresser for over 20 years". Another gentleman said that he had brought in his father's Gibson guitar that his dad bought as a kid for $60.00 and received a check for $3,500.00. One of the experts at the roadshow said that most people have no idea what their broken gold, sterling flatware, coin collections, watches are really worth. The service the roadshow offers is truly genuine.

It Offers the general public an opportunity to a free appraisal and even a chance to sell their items on the spot. The roadshow is free and anyone with anything is welcome. About 80% of the attendees sell their items to the experts. Antiques are not all that the roadshow is interested in, they also want to see any kind of coin or collection you have, any kind of jewelry whether gold or costume, watches, and all of your musical instruments.
