'GRANDDADDY OF STORMS'

SUNDAY, April 14, 1935

The afternoon storm on April 14, 1935 engulfed Pampa in a cloud of dust. Many local residents who were present for the disaster still reside in Pampa today.

77th anniversary of 'Black Sunday'

Today marks the 77th anniversary of the "granddaddy" of dust storms, known as Black Sunday. On the afternoon of Palm Sunday on April 14, 1935, the epic dust storm blew into Pampa, interrupting the day's activities as fierce winds pushed the duster through town. While the storm frightened some, others were less worried by the sight.

"We weren't scared," said Lilith Brainard, who was four years old at the time. "As children, we always thought everything was exciting. We were probably disappointed that it wasn't rain."

On that day, Brainard and her brothers, Billy and Wesley, who were seven and eight at the time, were walking home from her cousin's birthday party when they stopped at a gas station on Foster.

"At the filling station, the men said, 'You kids had better get on home. There's a big thunderstorm coming,'" she said. "There were huge black clouds up in the north-west, and so we started home."

As the clouds rolled in, the kids ran into their mother, and when the storm began to hit, the group went into a home on Hobart.

"We stayed there until the storm had blown through, and it was black as it could be," said Brainard. "Whoever lived there gave us a ride home. It was piles and piles of dirt, fine sand, everywhere."

Thelma Bray, who was 11 on Black Sunday, best remembers the days after the storm.

"When we were with our parents and they were driving, I just remember seeing the dirt piled up on the fences, banked up," she said.

Bray remembers the banks of dirt being as high as three feet. Cleaning up after the duster was particularly difficult because DUST cont. on page 3A

No SANE nurse in Pampa since Sept.

MOLLIE BRYANT
mbryant@thepampanews.com

Since last September, Pampa has not had an acting Sexual Assault Nurse Examiner (SANE), a nurse who provides medical care to sexual assault victims and conducts forensic exams for evidence collection in sexual assault cases.

The SANE nurse may then testify on the results of an exam if the case reaches the courtroom. The exams, which are ordered by the District Attorney, are currently performed in Amarillo.

Switzer

Watts

"SANE exams can only be authorized with my approval, and there's a couple of reasons for that," said 31st District Attorney Lynn Switzer, whose district includes Gray County. "I make that determination whether or not that exam is justified, because it's a traumatic thing for a child to go through, or even an adult woman to go through, so we want to make sure it's absolutely necessary, and we're looking at the totality of the circumstances."

For child victims of sexual assault, the Bridge, a children's advocacy organization, is involved in an interview process prior to the exam.

"The Bridge is basically a neutral party," said Switzer. "They're not there to investigate. They're there to have the child tell them what happened, if anything happened, and it's designed so that the questions are very open ended, and they don't lead the child into saying anything."

SANE exams on children used to be performed at the office for CASA here in Pampa. CASA and the Bridge work together to advocate for children who have been abused.

"The Bridge has an exam room set up, so if that exam room can be utilized, you're not having to deal with the travel issue," said Janet Watts, executive director of CASA. "But also, the child's already in a place that they feel comfortable, because they're used to this place, so it can decrease the trauma to a child from not having to go SANE cont. on page 5A

JDRF kicks off diabetes walk season with event

editor@thepampanews.com

After a successful inaugural event in Pampa last year, the Texas Panhandle branch of the Juvenile Diabetes Research Foundation is looking to build greater awareness with the 2012 Pampa Walk to Cure Diabetes.

"(Last year) was great," said Kristy Wilkerson, branch manager of the JDRF's Panhandle division. "We were looking to expand our walk program and do a community walk. Erin Rohrbacher, who's one of our volunteers and now one of our board members, wanted us to consider doing it in Pampa where she's from, because she felt like her folks would be very welcoming and supportive of it. She was absolutely correct. It was wonderful. We had more support than we could've ever imagined, but the flip side of it is that we found out we have far more Type 1 diabetics in that part of the country than we ever imagined. That's why we're back and wanting to grow (this year's walk) into a bigger one this year."

This year's version, set for May 5 at Central Park, will include a timed competitive event in addition to the fun run/walk, Rohrbacher said. Rohrbacher, who is chairing the walk this year, was on hand at Pampa Regional Medical Center for the walk's official kickoff event on Thursday evening.

"We come into town before the walk and explain what we're doing here," Rohrbacher said. "We hand out sponsorship packages and we hand out team packets, so within these next weeks, people who want to put teams together to walk for someone can sign up. If you DIABETES cont. on page 3A

Sheen may be from natural seepage

NEW ORLEANS (AP) — A federal agency says natural seepage of oil and gas from the floor of the Gulf of Mexico is suspected of causing an oil sheen spotted this week off the Louisiana coast.

The Bureau of Safety and Environmental Enforcement said Friday that the sheen occurred near an area where such seepage is known to occur. And an initial investigation by Royal Dutch Shell PLC, using a remotely operated undersea vehicle, indicates that oil and gas is currently being released from the seep area.

"The bureau will review data taken by Shell's ROV before making a final determination concerning the source of the sheen," a BSEE news release said.

The sheen was initially measured at about 10 miles long and a mile wide when it was spotted Wednesday, but authorities say it has been dissipating.

The Coast Guard said that by Thursday night it was about five miles long and 100 yards wide.

Ed Overton, professor emeritus in the Department of Environmental Science at LSU, said oil and gas seeps are common in the Gulf. "There are thousands of natural seeps in the Gulf of Mexico that have been seeping oil for hundreds of thousands of years," he said Friday.

Various estimates put the amount in the tens of millions of gallons.

Overton said natural forces in the Gulf easily degrade hydrocarbons that seep gradually into the water. Environmental damage occurs when large amounts are dumped into the Gulf, such as happened in BP's April 2010 Macondo well explosion that killed 11 and unleashed 200 million gallons of oil.

"There's a big difference between a seep and a gusher," Overton said.

The sheen was spotted about 50 miles from the Macondo site in an area where Shell operates two production platforms. Shell aided the investigation while saying it was confident its operations were not the source of the sheen.

Shell's remote vessels searched for signs of leaks from plugged undersea wells in the area. When initial surveys ruled out plugged wells, natural seeps were investigated, the BSEE statement said.

Sheens spread quickly as oil breaks down and a small amount can cover a large area. Shell estimated the amount of oil involved in the sheen at about six barrels or 252 gallons.

Texas Senate hopefuls debate

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) — The top four Republican candidates for the U.S. Senate from Texas have faced off in their first televised debate.

Former Texas Solicitor General Ted Cruz immediately had to defend a text message he sent to former ESPN commentator Craig James trying to arrange a question in advance. Cruz said there was nothing wrong with it, but James said it was inappropriate.

Front-runner Lt. Gov. David Dewhurst defended his record holding statewide office, while the other candidates, including former Dallas Mayor Tom Leppert challenged his conservative credentials.

The candidates vary little on the issues and all support cutting government spending. All focused on personal style and who is the true conservative in the race.

Early voting for the primary begins May 14.

Rep wants documents released

AUSTIN (AP) — A lawmaker says he wants documents relating to an application to bury radioactive waste in West Texas to be revealed publicly.

State Rep. Lon Burnam, D-Fort Worth, has called a news conference for Monday to ask Attorney General Greg Abbott whether documents detailing the Texas Commission on Environmental Quality's concerns with the application from Waste Control Specialists can be released. Burnam says he is prohibited from sharing the documents publicly under a confidentiality agreement signed in September 2009 at the insistence of the TCEQ.

Burnam says he also will call on the TCEQ to prevent the West Texas site from becoming operational until safety can be guaranteed. TCEQ spokesman Terry Clawson said the agency believes "the license is and will be protective of human health and the environment."

Six arrested for crash

EL PASO (AP) — Immigration and Customs Enforcement agents have arrested six alleged members of a human trafficking ring that was smuggling nine immigrants killed in van wreck in South Texas on Tuesday.

A criminal complaint filed Thursday says ICE agents arrested Carmelo Diaz, Gloria Solis, Alexander Barrios Grajales, Alejandro Garcia Nava, Jose Vega Zapata and Luis Julian Vargas. The arrest was first reported by The Monitor.

ICE's investigation led to discovery of a stash house to where the victims were being transported. A dozen illegal immigrants were located there. At least four of the survivors of the crash were detained as material witnesses.

The 15-year-old driver of the van lost control of the vehicle while fleeing from Border Patrol agents. He was arrested by Palmview police but is not facing federal charges.

Not guilty plea in kidnapping

SAN AUGUSTINE (AP) — Krystle Tanner and her mother, Gloria Walker, for years had successfully concealed the true identity of the boy that authorities say they kidnapped from Houston in 2004 when he was just 8 months old.

They hid him in homes in Central and East Texas, kept him out of school and didn't call him by his given name of Miguel Morin, instead renaming him Jaquan. The boy, knowing nothing of who he really was, called Tanner mother and Walker grandmother.

And their secret might never have been discovered if Tanner's newborn son in April 2010 had not tested positive for marijuana. That prompted an investigation by child welfare officials, who were told by Tanner she had another child.

However, attempts to find that other child, who turned out to be Miguel, would go on for nearly two more years as authorities say Tanner and Walker thwarted their efforts through elaborate lies and by secretly shuttling Miguel between homes.

Tanner, 27, and Walker, 50, who each face charges of kidnapping and injury to a child, pleaded not guilty Friday during their first court appearances since being indicted last month.

Rig count down by 29

HOUSTON (AP) — The number of rigs actively exploring for oil and natural gas in the U.S. is down by 29 this week to 1,950.

Houston-based oilfield services company Baker Hughes Inc. reported Friday that 1,322 rigs were exploring for oil and 624 for natural gas. Four were listed as miscellaneous. A year ago this week Baker Hughes reported 1,772 active rigs.

Of the major oil- and gas-producing states, Louisiana lost nine rigs, Texas lost seven, Oklahoma lost six and Alaska, Colorado, North Dakota and Pennsylvania each lost one.

Arkansas, California, New Mexico, West Virginia and Wyoming were unchanged.

include Pampa and the surrounding area that we've included in — which would be Panhandle, White Deer, Borger, Clarendon, Groom, Perryton, Miami, we're kind of including that radius right there — there are about 35 that we know of Type 1 (diabetics)."

Six of those Type 1 diabetics, including Pampa High School senior and honorary walk chair Ryne Richardson, were at Thursday's kickoff, Rohrbacher said. Each of those six were also accompanied by members of the teams walking for them, with Rohrbacher expecting more teams to be added by the time the actual walk comes around.

"That's what the team packets are for," she said. "We'll be signing up teams pretty all through April."

Rohrbacher praised Richardson for being the face of the Pampa event and for being accessible to other local young people who are battling diabetes.

"Ryne has done amazing things to help other kids who have been newly diagnosed," Rohrbacher said. "He's a great example of what happens when you have Type 1 and you take care of yourself. He plays sports. He has an insulin pump, and so he's able to play football. He's able to play baseball and slide into bases. He knows exactly what he needs to do to take care of himself, and so he is a huge example."

"In fact, we're so excited to have him (at the kickoff), because we do have some fairly new diagnosed kids who are kind of having a hard time dealing. We were able to make that introduction to Ryne and he was able to give some helpful little tidbits to help them get through."

The kickoff was also attended by a handful of Pampa business representatives who received sponsorship packets to take back to their places of employment. The JDRF has already secured five business and individual sponsorships so far, and Rohrbacher is hoping that the packets will spur more local corporate interest in the JDRF's goals.

"In addition to the kickoff, we're having, the businesses can also ask us to come over and do corporate kickoffs," Rohrbacher said. "It can be an internal company kickoff, so companies can, say, donate $5 and you get to wear jeans on Friday. They can, you know, do a cookout and donations for the cookout can go to that company or donation to JDRF."

Rohrbacher added that the JDRF is also looking for volunteers for the walk.

"We would like to have hydration stations along the walk route, so we'll need volunteers to man those," Rohrbacher said. "Any business that wants to put up a booth at Central Park, that would be fabulous. We'll need help at the check-in area, and we'll also need help since it is a timed event. We've brought the new equipment from one of the runner clubs here in Amarillo that we're going to be able to use, so we'll have to have volunteers for that. It's absolutely a 'the more, the merrier' kind of thing."

Entry fee for the competitive run is $15. For more information on the event or to volunteer, sponsor or sign up, contact Rohrbacher at 806-440-1571 or erohrbacher@aim.com.

of the type of dust, which was very fine and also oily, by some accounts.

Folk icon Woody Guthrie, who lived in Pampa during his early adulthood, wrote several songs about the Dust Bowl, including one about Black Sunday, called "The Great Dust Storm," which talks about the "cloud that looked deathlike black." This dark song describes the fear felt by people who experienced the storm and touches on the damage it created. While many of Guthrie's songs approach difficult topics with humor, that is not the case in "The Great Dust Storm," which ends by saying, "It covered up our fences. It covered up our barns. / It covered up our tractors in this wild and dusty storm. / We loaded our jalopies, and piled our families in. We rattled down that highway to never come back again."

Today in History

Today is Saturday, April 14, the 105th day of 2012. There are 261 days left in the year.

Today's Highlight in History:

On April 14, 1912, the British liner RMS Titanic collided with an iceberg in the North Atlantic at 20 minutes before midnight ship's time and began sinking. (The ship went under two hours and 40 minutes later with the loss of 1,514 lives.)

On this date:

In 1775, the first American society for the abolition of slavery was formed in Philadelphia.

In 1828, the first edition of Noah Webster's "American Dictionary of the English Language" was published.

In 1865, President Abraham Lincoln was assassinated by John Wilkes Booth during a performance of "Our American Cousin" at Ford's Theater in Washington.

In 1902, James Cash Penney opened his first store, The Golden Rule, in Kemmerer, Wyo.

In 1910, President William Howard Taft became the first U.S. chief executive to throw the ceremonial first pitch at a baseball game as the Washington Senators beat the Philadelphia Athletics 3-0.

THE HAVES AND THE HAVE NOTS

Looking back on the last half-century

Younger than the Mountains, Older than the Trees

A few columns back I mentioned the woman in Amarillo who had just turned 108. I will be 58 in a few weeks and don't want to live for 50 more years, but I began to think about the last half-century. Fifty years ago I was eight years old (or nearly so).

Since that time there have been ten Presidents. One was assassinated, one was shot, and one had a gun pulled on him (twice). One resigned. There were a father and son. There was an actor and a farmer, but mostly career politicians. Some countries that existed then don't exist anymore. The Iron Curtain fell. So did the Berlin Wall. Unthinkable in 1962.

Operator

That was about the time we got a telephone. (We lived way out in the country—not too far from Bootleg Corner!) Phones were the property of the phone company and hard-wired into the wall. Phones in colors other than black were just coming into vogue—ours was tan. If you had a problem—with the line, the phone, or something unknown—you had but to call the phone company. They would trace the problem and fix it. Most people only had one phone, but the phone companies were pushing people to buy extensions. They all had dials, though the new models had plastic dials with smaller holes. (My aunt had complained about it.) Around 1980 the big guys were split up and everyone thought it was about time, since they had a monopoly. Some of it has not worked out like we thought, but most of it was good.

What's On the Tube?

Television. Wow. Three channels no matter where you lived, generally speaking. There were a few programs in color, but it didn't matter because only rich people had color sets. When the President came on, you had two choices—watch it or turn it off. In 1963, Kennedy was assassinated. Then Oswald was shot. Then there was the President's funeral. The coverage went on for days, and there wasn't even a different view—every channel showed the same shot. The Weaver family—along with most of America, I think—had grown weary of it and my sister gave the knob a spin. There was a commercial for Tab! The powers-that-were at ABC had decided enough was enough and went back to regular programming. We were elated. That was the beginning of the rise of ABC, who had always been treated as the runt of the litter.

JOE WEAVER

My degree is in Mass Communication. Well, not exactly. In those days, at WTSU it was called Speech with an emphasis on radio and TV. I recall that cable was in its infancy—still pretty much experimental—and the idea was that cable television, sold by subscription, would not have any commercials! I even remember when instant replays were new. (Would it replace referees and umpires?)

Classical Gas

When I started driving, gasoline was leaded. When unleaded was introduced in the 70s, it was cheaper than leaded, so the public clamored for it until it was the only thing available. Guess what happened? Yep, it went right up to—maybe beyond—the price of the old stuff. Somewhere near the whopping price of thirty-five cents a gallon. (I remember saying shortly after we were married, "They won't be happy until it hits fifty cents a gallon. Was that really in MY lifetime?")

The Doctor is Out...Far Out

I was vaccinated for smallpox and polio, but suffered with measles and mumps. German measles almost killed my sister. Band-Aids came in one color — "flesh" — but pity the person who had that skin tone. Casts were white and made of plaster that couldn't get wet. (I dreamed I melted mine off under a faucet!)

Having a baby meant days in the hospital. So did cataract surgery, and you were doomed to thick glasses and eyedrops for the rest of your life. Contact lenses were hard and uncomfortable, and had to be fitted by a specialist.

When they x-rayed your teeth, they threw a lead apron on you and left the room. Last week the dental assistant stood next to me and held the "film" in my mouth. (Some sort of digital receiver, I expect)

Cereal Killers

There were two kinds of Shredded Wheat: biscuit and bite-size. One kind of corn flakes (called Post Toasties, no matter who made them): About the only thing left was Skinner Raisin Bran and Rice Krispies (I insist that Pop's the sound!) I oversimplify, I know, for who can forget "Silly Rabbit..." (I'll bet if you're over fifty you finished that sentence for me.)

What's in a Name...?

Saw a wedding announcement for Caitlyn Trickey and Israel Rice, billed as the "Trickey-Rice" wedding. Well, you DO have to be careful you don't slip on the stuff!

Texas Supreme Court board mulls changing divorce forms

AUSTIN (AP) — A Texas Supreme Court advisory board on Friday debated forms intended to make it easier and less expensive for poor Texans to get divorced — hearing from proponents who say the forms would make the legal system more accessible, and attorneys' groups who argue family law is too complicated to manage without a lawyer.

Last year, the court created a task force to design forms so that people who can't afford attorneys could participate in legal proceedings, such as filing for divorces, especially in simple cases involving no children and few assets. Texas is one of just 13 states where couples can't simply fill out a court-approved form and file for divorce.

But the State Bar of Texas has opposed the proposed forms — arguing that family law is too complex and expressing concern that allowing people to practice it themselves could encourage them to tackle other legal endeavors on their own.

The task force presented its proposed forms to the full advisory board, which spent hours debating them. It's unclear, however, whether members will vote to approve them to the Supreme Court. And, whether they formally approve the forms or not, the court will still consider the forms on its own.

Patricia McAllister, executive director of the Texas Access to Justice Commission, said 6 million Texans qualify for court-assisted legal aid but there are only enough pro bono attorneys and other legal groups to assist about 20 percent of them. She said that even if every licensed lawyer in the state agreed to represent a low-income client for free, only about 40 percent of demand would be met.

"What you're seeing is that there are more people who are coming to the courthouse to represent themselves because they can't get help through legal aid and they cannot afford a lawyer," said McAllister, whose group was created in 2001 with the support of the state Supreme Court and the state bar.

Do-it-yourself legal forms are available for purchase on the Internet or at Office Depot — but they are sometimes not admissible in Texas courts. Steve Bresnen, a lobbyist for the Texas Family Law Foundation, suggested the task force's proposed forms may not hold up in court either, saying they were "riddled with errors."

Both Bresnen and Tom Vick, speaking on behalf of the state bar, bristled at suggestions that attorneys around the state oppose the forms because they could ultimately lead to decreased income for family law lawyers.

"The forms that are before you aren't going to cost any private lawyer to lose a dollar," Vick said.

During Friday's discussion, board members raised the point that some Texas judges currently refuse to accept forms that have been filed without aid of an attorney, while others demand forms in English. By approving its own forms, the Supreme Court could compel judges to accept divorce forms more readily.

But others questioned how the state could guarantee the people using the forms are actually too poor to afford an attorney.

Judy Warne, a district judge in Harris County, suggested that poor Texans should be encouraged to wait until they had enough money to hire a lawyer before filing for divorce.

"They don't understand the law," Warne said. "They don't need a form. They need advice."

As an alternative, she said that a hotline could connect poor couples looking to separate with lawyers that charge as little as $500 for an uncontested divorce. The state bar also suggested requiring lawyers just out of law school to take more pro bono cases.

Stem cell therapy rules get OK

AUSTIN (AP) — The Texas Medical Board on Friday approved new rules on experimental stem cell therapies such as the one Gov. Rick Perry underwent during back surgery last year, despite objections they don't do enough to protect patients and could lead to an explosion of doctors promoting unproven, expensive treatments.

The rules require patients to give their consent, and a review board must approve the procedure before doctors use stem cell treatments.

Supporters say establishing formal rules will lead to more medical innovation by opening doors for researchers in Texas. At the same time, board members acknowledged they don't know how many doctors are already performing stem cell procedures, and several who voted in favor said the rules provide the first layers of patient protection.

"We're trying to be safe. It's the wild, wild west right now," said Dr. Scott Holliday, an anesthesiologist from Arlington.

The Food and Drug Administration hasn't approved using adult stem cells to help people heal from surgery, but experimentation is common.

Some scientists tout possible benefits of stem cell treatments, including treatment for heart disease, diabetes and some cancers. Others argue adult stem cell experimentation actually increases the risk of cancer and can cause blood clots.

Perry, who appointed the board, had stem cells taken from the fat in his own body that were then grown in a lab. They were injected into his back and his bloodstream during an operation to fuse part of his spine.

Celltex Therapeutics Corp. of Houston, which is co-owned by Dr. Stanley Jones, Perry's friend who performed his operation, supported the rule approved Friday.

Nathan Kottcamp, a Celltex attorney, testified before the board and dismissed predictions of an explosion of new stem cell labs promoting therapies. Harvesting stem cells is a complex, expensive process that cost patients up to $35,000, Kottcamp said.

Texas doctors using stem cell treatments are ethical and trying to help their patients, Kottcamp said.

"Critics seem to believe stem cell theories are little better than snake oil," he lamented.

Jones appeared before the board last year to tout stem cell therapies and said thousands of Americans are going to other countries for treatments. Texans should be able to get care in their home state, he said.

Supporters of the rules said requiring treatments to be approved by review boards is a critical step in favor of patient safety. Boards could be attached to medical schools or hospitals, or be accredited, independent for-profit review boards.

But Leigh Turner, an associate professor at the University of Minnesota's Center for Bioethics & School of Public Health who has complained to federal regulators about Celltex, warned that doctors will be able to "shop around" for a for-profit review board that will give them a favorable ruling.

"(Review board) is not necessarily high-quality review," Turner said.

Texas joins at least 10 other states, including California, Illinois and New York, who have enacted rules governing stem cell research.

Board member Dr. W. Roy Smythe, a surgeon from Temple, voted against the rules, saying they do too little to protect patients or rein in doctors touting unproven treatments.

"This doesn't put the cat in the bag. It allows more cats to proliferate," Smythe said. "I believe in giving patients hope. I'm against giving false hope that empties patient's bank accounts."

MAKING SENSE OF INVESTING

Cathy Land, the Director of Acute Care at Pampa Regional Medical Center, worked as the SANE nurse here in Pampa from 2006 until last year, when she served Pampa, Gray County and the surrounding area.

"At the time, there was a strong need for it in the community," said Land. "Let's say we had a sexual assault here in Pampa, and they would have to go to Amarillo. It'd take an hour drive there. The exam takes at least two hours and an hour drive here. They've already been traumatized, and they're more comfortable in their hometown, so why traumatize them more by taking them away from their family and their loved ones for four hours."

Land completed two weeks of classes and 96 hours of clinicals in order to become certified to become a SANE nurse. Out of around 10 people who began the program back in 2006, she was the only one to complete it.

"We had a lot of interest in (the program)," said Switzer. "Unfortunately, because of the requirements, a lot of our nurses were not able to go ahead and fulfill the program."

In order to maintain accreditation, a SANE nurse must perform a minimum of eight adult exams and 10 child exams. In 2011, law enforcement in the 31st district requested reimbursement for 11 sexual assault exams, all of which were in Gray County, meaning that the number of exams performed fell below the state mandated quota.

And the number of confirmed exams still falls below the 26 sexual assaults in 2011, as reported by the Pampa Police Department and the Gray County Sheriff's Office, since not all of those incidents go down the criminal justice path.

While there is a need for the exams, Land didn't meet the required number per year to keep her accreditation.

"With a sexual assault exam, it is a very serious, very delicate examination, and it's very time consuming, and the more you're exposed to the exams, the more expertise you have in them," she said. "Last year we had very few exams, so I was losing my skills."

Depending on Amarillo for the sexual assault exams adds to the amount of time spent by law enforcement and victim services on the exams, while adding to the stress of the victim.

"It's a tremendous effect on us, because when we had a SANE nurse here in Pampa, we could respond to the victim within a manner of minutes and be there," said Dee Dee Laramore of the Tralee Crisis Center, which provides assistance to victims of domestic abuse and sexual assault.

"Now, with having to go to Amarillo for this, it takes commonly four to six hours. I was on one that it was 12 hours. It makes a huge difference. It's hard enough on a vic-

To the Citizens of Gray County:
It has been my privilege to serve you this past 15 years as your Sheriff. I can think of no greater honor than to be entrusted by you to do this job. I have served the public as a Peace Officer most of my adult life, beginning in 1963. I have been a city police officer, a deputy sheriff, and served 27 years as a Texas DPS Trooper. In total, I have 47 years experience in my profession. I know what it takes to be a law enforcement officer.

In addition, I know what it is to be an administrator in this day and age. The Sheriff's Office and Gray County Jail are staffed and operated every minute of every day. There are state and federal regulations that have to be followed to remain in compliance, and we are well-versed in these issues. Integrity and trust have always been a priority during my time as Sheriff, and will continue to be.

We have in the past and continue to have a good working relationships with the Courts, the District and County Attorney offices, the Pampa Police Department, the Texas Department of Public Safety, and other law enforcement agencies.

I want to thank you for supporting me as your sheriff these past 15 years. I still have the passion for law enforcement and greatly desire to be your Sheriff for another FULL 4 year term.

Forecasters caution Middle America on Saturday storms

OKLAHOMA CITY (AP) — In an unusually early and strong warning, national weather forecasters cautioned Friday that conditions are ripe for violent tornadoes to rip through the nation from Texas to Minnesota this weekend.

As states across the middle of the country prepared for the worst, storms were already kicking off in Norman, Okla., where a twister whizzed by the nation's tornado forecasting headquarters but caused little damage.

It was only the second time in U.S. history that the Storm Prediction Center issued a high-risk warning more than 24 hours in advance, said Russ Schneider, director of the center, which is part of the National Weather Service. The first time was in April 2006, when nearly 100 tornadoes tore across the southeastern U.S., killing a dozen people and damaging more than 1,000 homes in Tennessee.

This weekend's outbreak could be a "high-end, life threatening event," the center said.

The strongly worded message came after the National Weather Service announced last month that it would start using terms like "mass devastation," "unsurvivable" and "catastrophic" in warnings in an effort to get more people to take heed. It said it would test the new warnings in Kansas and Missouri before deciding whether to expand them to other parts of the country.

Friday's warning, despite the dire language, was not part of that effort but just the most accurate way to describe what was expected, a weather service spokeswoman said.

It's possible to issue earlier warnings because improvements in storm modeling and technology are letting forecasters predict storms earlier and with greater confidence, said Chris Vaccaro, a spokesman for the National Weather Service. In the past, people often have had only minutes of warning when a siren went off.

"We're quite sure tomorrow will be a very busy and dangerous day in terms of large swathes of central and southern plains," Vaccaro said. "The ingredients are coming together."

The worst weather is expected to develop late Saturday afternoon between Oklahoma City and Salina, Kan., but other areas also could see severe storms with baseball-sized hail and winds of up to 70 mph, forecasters said. The warning issued Friday covers parts of Illinois, Iowa, Kansas, Missouri, Nebraska, Oklahoma and Texas.

The weather service confirmed a tornado touched down about 4 p.m. Friday near the University of Oklahoma campus in Norman, where it is based. Non-essential personnel at the storm center and students were ordered to take shelter, officials said.

Sunday horoscope

HAPPY BIRTHDAY for Sunday, April 15, 2012:

This year you experience a lot of pressure in your life. You often feel as though others are working against you. They simply have different views and choose to express them. Be grateful for their honesty. If you are single, you could meet someone who professes friendship but acts in quite a romantic fashion. Be sure you can deal with this behavior before you jump in. If you are attached, the friendship that exists between you becomes even more important. Do not allow insecurity to develop. Be open about your feelings. Romance will intensify because of a new level of trust. AQUARIUS is very nurturing, but in an intellectual manner.

The Stars Show the Kind of Day You'll Have: 5-Dynamic; 4-Positive; 3-Average; 2-So-so; 1-Difficult

ARIES (March 21-April 19)

★★★★ Look at your expectations. Could they be the reason that you sometimes feel let down? Expectations help create dreams, but they also might cause a downer or two. A partner or family member explains his or her feelings.

Remember, this person has been off-kilter for a while. Tonight: Remain sensitive to others.

This Week: Don't push an important cause until Wednesday. TAURUS (April 20-May 20)

★★★★ If you feel a little tired, take a hard look at what you have done as of late. You cannot be everywhere all the time. Make Sunday your day to do whatever you must. Tonight: Make it early.

This Week: Assume on Monday that the world is your oyster; you might get what you want.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20)

★★★★ Keep reaching out for that stubborn person who is standing on ceremony. Eventually he or she will respond and realize that the situation is not desirable. If you're not involved with taxes, opt for listening to some music and spending time with friends. Tonight: Go for something exotic.

This Week: Take a stand, but also be willing to get off the bandwagon.

CANCER (June 21-July 22)

★★★★ Resist getting into a tango with a partner or the IRS. Just do what you must.

Some of you might decide to spend your money differently after taking a look at what you spend and why. Tonight: Chill out.

This Week: See how you can reframe a problem, and you might find an answer. LEO (July 23-Aug. 22)

★★★★ Tension builds around a key person. He or she seems to be in a dark mood -- or is that you? Lighten up the moment; a somber attitude gets you nowhere fast. Take a walk or drive to revive your spirit, or accept someone's invitation. Tonight: Go along with others' plans.

This Week: Let a partner or loved one call the shots. This gives you time to think, research and dream.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22)

★★★★ Understand your role in facilitating someone's day. Sometimes, when you do too much, resentment comes out. Juggle your needs with this person's. A child or new friend loves to have your attention. Learn to say "no." Tonight: Get a head start on tomorrow.

This Week: Others want control. Let them have it. Experience is the best teacher.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 22)

★★★★ Avoid projecting any negativity. Someone you adore might catch it, and you love this person's usually happy ways. Allow more serious conversations to occur, but put them in perspective. Your sense of humor emerges when dealing with a child. Tonight: Let the good times roll.

This Week: Consider a mini health regime. In fact, start it now.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23-Nov. 21)

★★★★ You are on top of what you must do. A last-minute financial matter or problem at home could occupy your time. At first, you might feel overwhelmed. Don't; however, do change plans rather than squeeze everything in. Tonight: Find time to relax.

This Week: Your creativity soars. You have the answers, but not everyone will appreciate your resourcefulness.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21)

★★★★ Help a friend who is down in the dumps. Your presence could help turn this person's day around. Your sense of humor helps him or her lighten up. Touch base with family or friends afterward, even if it is simply a call. Tonight: Visit with a sibling.

This Week: You bound into action Wednesday, after a slow start to the week.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19)

★★★★ How you handle your finances and what you do could change a lot in your life. If you are doing taxes, be thorough and careful. A sense of completion will follow and you'll feel great later. Tonight: Treat yourself well.

This Week: You tell it like it is. No wonder someone starts avoiding you.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18)

★★★★ Though friends and family might be a bit aloof, you are able to move past limitations imposed by their moods. You understand, though -- you have been moody too. Go visit a loved one who is always happy to see you. Tonight: Go with an impulse.

This Week: Be aware of the financial implications of a decision. Gather other suggestions, too.

PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20)

★★ You might want to go on a retreat, or at least play it low-key today. Understand what you expect from someone, but know that he or she cannot give that to you at the moment. It will happen at a later date, though. Tonight: Think "Monday."

This Week: You beam into Monday. You can accomplish a lot right now.

Junior J'Cee Holmes races to the front in the 1600-meter run. Holmes won and will compete in regionals on April 27 at Texas Tech University.

The Pampa Harvesters track team entered the final event, the 1600-meter relay, only trailing by one point for the District 1-3A title on Friday. The Harvester faithful rose to their feet, but in the end, the Harvesters finished short, as they finished fourth in the event and finished runners-up for the meet.

"It was a great finish," Tad Smith, boys head track coach, said. "We dropped our time in that mile relay by 11 seconds. Couldn't quite catch them, but man, we ran hard."

Pampa's previous best time was 3:42 and led the first 300 meters, with freshman Brenden Ponce running the first leg. Dalhart's and Borger's runner caught up to Ponce in the last 100-meters. Senior Colten Adams, junior Samuel Smith and senior Joseph Vizcaino got within striking distance of the lead but weren't able to grab it.

Dalhart won the meet with 190 points, 13 ahead of Pampa. Perryton finished third with 154 and Borger finished fourth with 81.

The Harvesters qualified many to regionals. Sophomore Kody Maddox won the 100-meter dash (10.9). Maddox said he's excited about advancing.

"My first year running track, I feel pretty good about it," Maddox said. "There's going to be some pretty good competition."

Maddox said he's looking forward to the competition at regionals.

"I get faster when I have more competition," Maddox said. "Every time I don't have competition my times get slower. When I have competition, it rises."

Maddox also advanced with the 400-meter and 800-meter relay teams. Senior Latigo Collins was a member of both relay teams. Junior Zane Robles was on the 400-meter team and senior Joseph Vizcaino was on the 800-meter relay team.

Senior Daniel Hulseley won the 300-meter hurdles and said he's excited about advancing.

"I'm ranked seventh right now, I think," Hulseley said. "It's going to be fun. Win or lose."

Senior Reid Miller advanced in the 400-meter relay, 800-meter relay and the 110-meter hurdles.

"Going into the sprint relay, we had the fastest time in that and won that again," Miller said. "We didn't run our best on that and could have done better. At this time of year, all that matters is winning. Then the hurdles, the false start scared me. It kind of throws you off. ... The 800 relay we ran good. best time of the year."

Last year Miller missed qualifying for the regional finals in the 110-meter hurdles by tenths of a second. Miller said he is looking for redemption.

"That's sitting in the back of my mind," Miller said. "That hasn't left yet. I got something to prove when I go down there."

Senior Trent McAnear advanced in the 1600-meter run with a second place finish. McAnear said he is happy about going to regionals but not with his performance.

"I feel like I couldn't get in gear today," McAnear said. "I ran the same time as last week but I was a little tighter today. I'm going to improve my results a ton at regionals."

Others advancing included junior Samuel Smith advanced in the 100-meter dash and the 200-meter dash. Ponce advanced with a win in the 200 and qualified in the long jump.

"We went crazy in the 200," Tad said. "We had a photo finish."

The Lady Harvesters finished third with 176.5 points despite having a 14-point lead after the fielding events. Perryton repeated as District 1-3A champions with 212.5 points.

"We had a couple of places that we didn't get what we thought," Mark Elms, girls head track coach, said. "When you enter the running events in first place by 14 points and finish third by a total of 40 points, something slacked I feel a little bit. The girls that performed well did a good job and we're proud of all of them."

The Lady Harvesters added to their numbers going to regionals. Pampa finished second in the 400-meter relay, first in the 800-meter relay and third in the 1600-meter relay.

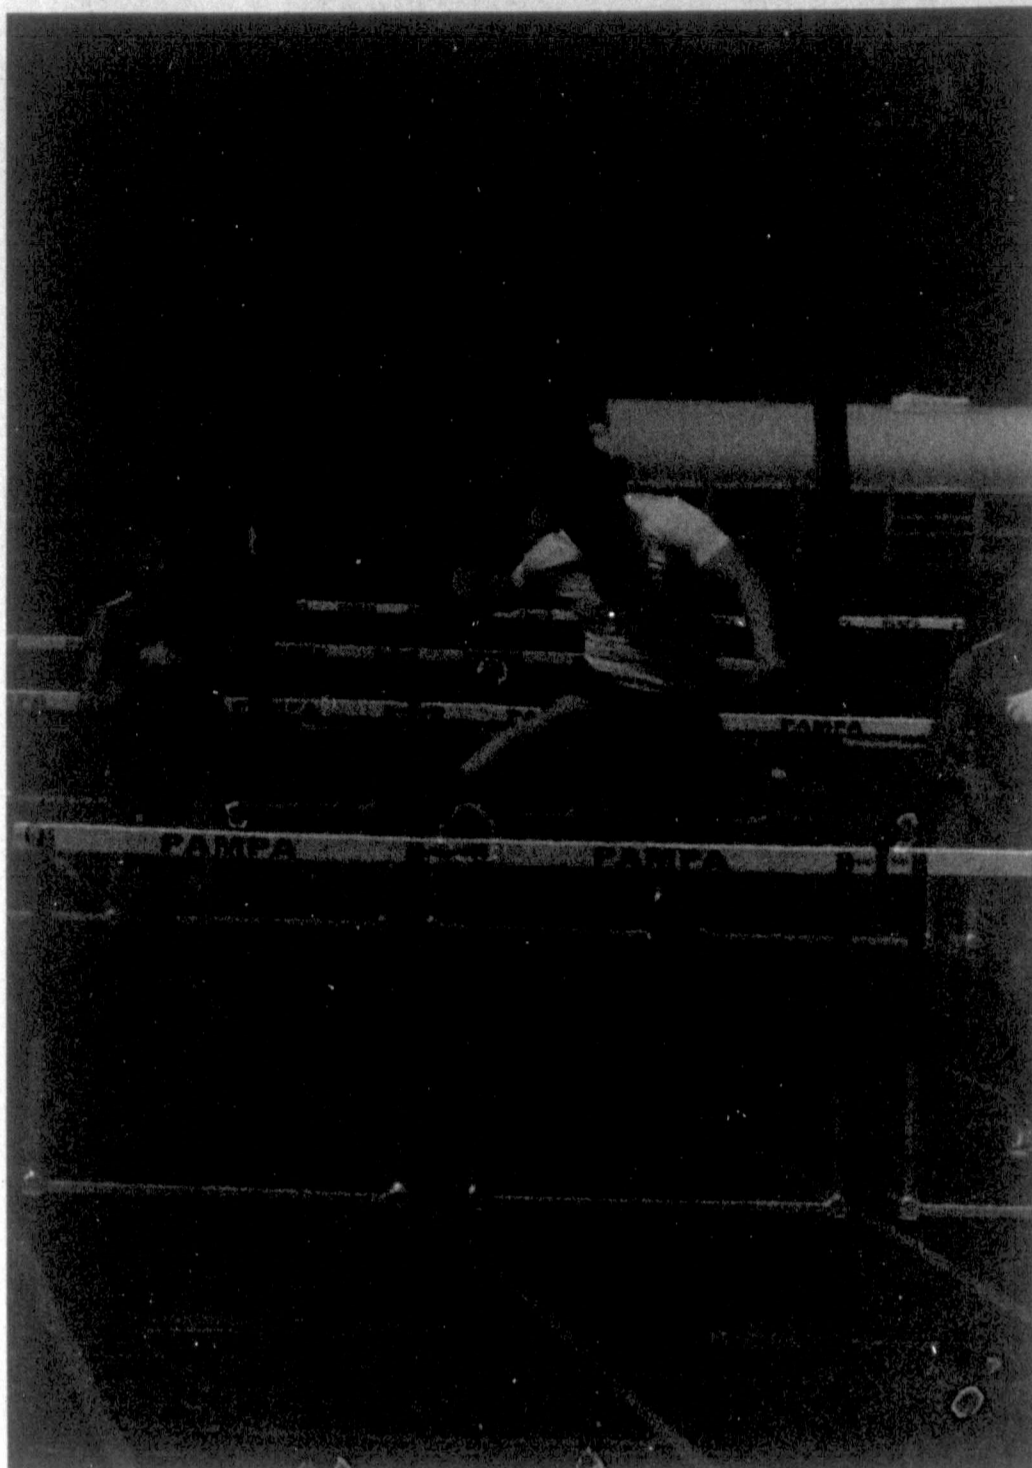

Junior J'Cee Holmes won the 1600-meter run and was apart of the 1600-meter relay team. Junior Terra Truitt finished second in the 800-meter run. Sophomore Savanna Hulseley finished second in the 100-meter and 300-meter hurdles and was a part of the 400- and 800-meter relay teams.

Elms said his team will look to make improvements before regionals.

"We got some bright spots and will work on the dim spots," Elms said. "Maybe we can polish them up."

Regionals are April 27 and 28 at Texas Tech University's Fuller Track. The top two in each event advance to state. Smith said he is looking forward to regionals.

"You don't know what is going to happen in regionals," Tad said. "You have to sit and see what every one else in their district has done. Evaluate from there. I do know we ran faster today than we did last year."

daily horoscope

HAPPY BIRTHDAY for Monday, April 16, 2012:

This year you make waves. You'll want to work on your communication, even when you feel uncomfortable with the topic. How you express your anger becomes a key issue. If you are single, many people appreciate your bright, verbal manner. Take your time choosing a relationship, as you'll tend to attract unavailable people. If you are attached, the two of you will benefit from many weekends away from others. PISCES might know more about you than you do.

ARIES (March 21-April 19)
★★★★ Your fiery side could lead to dissatisfaction. Look carefully at your lack of patience. Communication seems to straighten out if you are open and accept that you're part of a problem. An attitude adjustment will help you regain your sense of well-being and confidence. Tonight: Relax with a good friend.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20)
★★★★ Zero in on what is workable. A meeting helps you focus and see different routes. There could be a disagreement between you and a loved one or a child. Your creativity might not be appreciated by this person. Don't pout, instead, remain confident in your abilities. Tonight: Indulge a loved one.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20)
★★★★ Responsibility lands on your shoulders, but you cannot change gears right now. Someone could undermine you without realizing it. Stay calm, and do not play into his or her personal problems. Today could present a new beginning. Tonight: Others look to you for their cues.

CANCER (June 21-July 22)
★★★★ Remember, there is always another solution or path. You do not need to worry so much about a logjam. Start thinking about alternative ways to get around this impasse. Your ability to convert a problem into a solution catches the admiration of at least one person. Tonight: Go with an imaginative solution.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22)
★★★★ Have a much-needed discussion with someone, and you'll make sound decisions. You have stretched as far as you can go. News from a distance could be quite shocking, if nothing else. You had a strong premonition of what was going to happen. Know that you do not have to act on this sixth sense. Tonight: Time for a special person.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22)
★★★★ You are excellent at deferring to others, and now you can demonstrate that skill. A raise or some other unanticipated source of money could pop into your life out of the blue. Your creativity and desire to take risks will escalate. Tonight: Sort out the possibilities, then decide.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 22)
★★★★ Stay in touch with your needs and obligations. You might be frustrated as you try to get everything done. Focus, and don't let a personal matter create too much angst in your day. A discussion illuminates a situation. Tonight: Choose a stress-buster, then go home.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23-Nov. 21)
★★★★ Your creativity is heightened by a disagreement. You want to find a resolution, and you would prefer to keep others involved. Discussions could become inflammatory. Someone you sometimes take for granted will make you smile. Tonight: Fun, with a touch of mischief.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21)
★★★★ Your mind is on your home and possibly a personal matter. If you are dealing with other matters, or even a social lunch, you will need discipline if this issue is not handled. Be smart and make important calls early. Tonight: Time to veg.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19)
★★★★ You are up for nearly anything. Your instincts and premonitions seem to weave together. Be careful if you run into someone who seems to be unusually frustrated or angry. Stay out of this person's issues. A purchase for your home could add to the quality of your life. Tonight: Out and about.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18)
★★★★ Be aware of your need to have certain issues under control. You could tire yourself out if you continue like this. If you can maintain your caring ways, the results could be phenomenal. Go with the flow, and say "no" to fighting city hall. Tonight: Treat yourself.

PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20)
★★★★ Your warmth helps melt barriers and establish better ties. A card or special gift can make all the difference to someone. You might assume that he or she knows how you feel. Don't. A close associate could become less than reliable. Tonight: Make yourself happy.

AXYDLBAAXR
is LONGFELLOW

One letter stands for another. In this sample, A is used for the three L's, X for the two O's, etc. Single letters, apostrophes, the length and formation of the words are all hints. Each day the code letters are different.

Yesterday's Cryptoquote: THE SECRET OF STAYING YOUNG IS TO LIVE HONESTLY, EAT SLOWLY, AND LIE ABOUT YOUR AGE.

— LUCILLE BALL

Dear Abby...

By Pauline & Jeanne Phillips

DEAR ABBY: I am a 16-year-old girl and I want to become famous. My mom says that's not a real job. I was in magazines when I was little, but now that I'm older, I want to be a singer or actress. What should I do? — HEADING FOR FAME IN OHIO

DEAR HEADING: Listen to your mother. Fame, if one can achieve it, is usually accomplished after years of planning and hard work. If there is community theater in your area, volunteer and become involved. Plan to study music, drama and speech — as well as another subject so you can support yourself if it takes awhile for you to become famous. (This is called "Plan B.")

There's an old saying: "Luck" happens at the intersection of opportunity and preparation. The trick is to be there at the right time.

DEAR ABBY: My father passed away four years ago. Right after his funeral I found a bottle of Viagra hidden in the trunk of his car. My sister and I agreed that we should keep it to ourselves and not tell my mother, but Mom and I are extremely close and I feel guilty keeping this secret.

My father had multiple affairs while he was married to Mom, so it wouldn't surprise me if he was cheating on her. Because of conversations that I have had with her, I am 100 percent sure she didn't know he was using Viagra. My mother remarried two years ago. Does she have the right to know, or should my sister and I take it to our graves? — TWO SISTERS IN CALIFORNIA

DEAR SISTERS: Your father's time on earth is over. Your mother is happily (I hope) remarried and has gone on with her life. I see no reason to revisit your father's probable indiscretions at this late date. It's time to let him and this subject rest in peace.

DEAR ABBY: I love my husband dearly, but I have a problem. He talks too much. I'll give you an example: Instead of saying I'd had surgery, he told people I'd had surgery because when I laughed I would wet my pants, so they had to go in and re-suspend my bladder. I could hardly believe my ears.

The latest is, he posted something on Facebook about a family member that was also very personal. I have asked him many times to keep details between us, but it does no good. What can I say to him to get this point across? I'm at a loss. — FRUS-

TRATED IN THE SOUTH

DEAR FRUSTRATED: It's not what you should say to him, it's what you should NOT say. Because your husband lacks judgment, be careful about sharing sensitive information with him and warn your relatives to do the same.

DEAR ABBY: I have a message for seniors and others who live alone: You need a friend or neighbor to keep in touch with you. Recently at the condo complex where I live, someone complained to the management office about a dog that wouldn't stop barking. When there was no answer on the phone or at the door, they went in. The woman had died and no one knew but her dog.

Our single neighbors now make a point of keeping in touch, if only to say hello and let us know they're OK. — CONNECTED IN PALM COURT, FLA.

DEAR CONNECTED: That's good advice — because the sad circumstance you described happens more often than most people would think. A similar thing also occurred in a condominium development where I lived. A word to the wise ...
