the Harvesters, outplayed, outstutled, and physically beat the favored Falcons. After the game Coach Heath Parker said, "What a resilient group. They persevered though it all, and tonight got a well-deserved win, I'm just happy for the boys."

The opening toss won by Pampa was deferred until the the second half and they kicked off to Bushland. The Harvester defense held and forced a punt that Pampa recovered at the 37 yard line of the Falcons.

Despite the good field position, Pampa offense was forced to punt and downed the ball at the 1 yard line of Bushland.

CUSTOMER SERVICE

Staff photos by Ben Tinsley

It's a customer service-oriented world out there, and employees of Accolade Pampa set out Friday to prove their appreciation of that fact. Setting up an impromptu kitchen at NBC Plaza around midday, they offered free barbecue sandwich lunches to visitors and passersby. Numerous residents showed up for the tasty feast. The Pampa Fire Department was on hand with T-shirts, as well. Tax rate up for city vote on Tuesday

btinsley@thepampanews.com

PAMPA — The City Commission on Tuesday will consider formally extending its current tax rate of .621027 per $100 valuation for other year.

Tuesday's will be the second and final vote on the matter. It went through two hearings unchallenged and passed unanimously through the commission's first reading and vote on Sept. 11.

Sept. 18 was the first official city commission vote on the tax rate.

Any tax increases this year will be due to increased property values, not the unchanged tax rate, Pampa City Manager Richard Morris has said.

In other business, on Tuesday, the commission will:

- Consider adopting — on second and final reading — an ordinance amending the monthly rates charged for water within and outside the corporate limits of the city of Pampa.
- Consider adopting — on second and final reading — an ordinance of the city of Pampa amending the monthly rates charged for sewer service within and outside the corporate limits of the city of Pampa.
- Consider adopting — on second and final reading — an ordinance amending rates for solid waste disposal for residential and other customers within and outside the corporate limits of the city of Pampa.

GCARC holds its popular Autumn ride this Sept. 29

FROM STAFF REPORTS

PAMPA — Officials are urging area residents to turn out en masse Sept. 29 for the annual autumn trail ride sponsored by Gray County Association for Retarded Citizens. The rain date is Oct. 13.

The ride, the primary fundraising event for the organization is for the benefit of the Sheltered Workshop. This year their primary goal is to raise $50,000 to build a much-needed aboveground tornado shelter.

The site of this year's ride will be the Chris Britten Ranch near Howardwick.

The Britten family extended an invitation for the event. Riders are required to have their own horses, which must have proof of a valid Coggins test.

The ride will begin about 9 a.m., but registration will open at 8 a.m. It is helpful if riders can fill out entry forms ahead of time or call so that there can be an idea of how many to plan for. Entry fee for the ride is $30 per person, and includes lunch and snacks.

Each rider is asked, if possible, to collect donations or sponsorships for their ride. Prizes are given for the most funds raised over a minimum amount, and include gift certificates to Horse and Rider, Wayne's Western Wear, feed, and hay. The donations should be made to GCARC, and are 100 percent tax deductible.

GCARC is in the process of a name change to Panhandle Association for the Intellectually Disabled, or PAID, but will continue to operate under the old name until the change is official.

Riders wishing to participate can get more information, including a map to the ranch, by calling any of the following: Sherry Carlson, 669-7171; Gloria Swires - 665-2294; John Hervey - 669-0573.

Time to change the state of politics??

"I hate Obama!"

"Bush is an idiot."

"I loathe that Romney."

How many times have you heard something close to this regarding a candidate for high office?

Too often, probably.

If you have ever said that yourself or have at least thought something like that before, you have just been manipulated by the protectors of our two-party system.

With all the money now flowing into the public sector -- both in terms of government largesse and the campaigns to get into power and control all of that wealth -- the stakes for ascending to political office have never been higher.

On one hand, negative campaigning is not novel -- some of the campaigns from the 19th century in America were shockingly vile. The difference is, what separated candidates back then were actual ideas and ideology. Since government only made up a tiny percentage of the nation's economy, getting elected was not about a windfall of power, money and largesse; it was about the honor of service and the ability to imprint one's ideology on the country's future.

Not anymore. It's all about power -- getting it and retaining it.

The proliferation of lobbying money, political action committees and the growth of government itself have made holding high state and most any federal office a valuable position. Yes, there are still some true ideologues in Washington but not as many as who claim that moniker.

Mostly, our federal government is made up of career politicians who have rigged the game in favor of the status quo and who battle over the head of a pin needle to see who can tip the balance of power toward one party or another.

While voter apathy plagues the nation, the party leaders know exactly what to do get their bases out to vote in November -- demonize the opponent. And too many of us fall for it, year after year.

The truth is, there really isn't that much ideological difference between the two parties. Republicans are allegedly for lower taxes, but they are often guilty of raising them. Democrats are allegedly in favor of civil liberties, but they are quick to insert government into our everyday lives.

No, it's not ideology that separates most candidates from the two major parties. But they create the illusion of big differences so that you will vote against the other guy. Think about it -- in local elections, when you are voting for people you know, you likely are casting your ballot for somebody. But too often, in federal elections, it seems like people are as much voting against a candidate -- or, even worse, people holding their noses and voting for the "lesser of two evils."

The minute people realize that they are being used and manipulated is the day we can move toward changing the dreadful system that American politics has become.

— The Jacksonville Daily News

Bill O'Reilly: Where's our energy?

BILL O'REILLY
 Columnist

Where's Our Energy?

So there I am, pulling into a gas station in my town, and Tarek is smiling. He owns the station, and right now he's charging me $4.25 a gallon. American motorists may not be better off than they were four years ago, but Tarek certainly is.

When President Barack Obama took office, the average price for a gallon of regular gas was $1.84. That means gas prices have more than doubled on Obama's watch. But why?

The primary reason is that the system is rigged. Oil companies watch the worldwide speculation market, and if the traders are bidding the price of oil up because Iran misbehaves or something, up goes the pump price. When the speculators sell short, the price of gasoline drops, but not nearly so much as it jumped. That cycle is repeated a few times a year.

Then there's OPEC, which raises prices every time the United States pumps dollars in the economy. Last week, the Fed released $23 billion into the marketplace, hoping the cash would spur lending by the banks. The oil sheiks well understand that flooding the zone with currency devalues the worth of the dollar, so they raise their prices to get more greenbacks in the hope of keeping their staggering profits stable.

Another reason Americans are getting hosed at the pump is that President Obama loathes the fossil fuel industry and does everything he can to inhibit production. He stopped the oil pipeline from Canada, makes ocean drilling very difficult and taxes the hell out of traditional energy. Of course, the folks pay the taxes.

Obama is a green guy, and his administration has invested about $100 billion of taxpayer money in clean energy projects. In theory, that sounds good. Wind power, solar energy, electric cars -- all would make the planet cleaner and the sheiks poorer. The problem is that the technology is not developed yet. The president knows that but tilts at windmills anyway.

In truth, the USA does not have an energy policy. The Department of Energy apparently has a giant dartboard, and whatever alternative energy industry is hit that day gets money. The bankrupt Solyndra solar company cost the taxpayers more than $500 million. Other failed green enterprises have added to the incredible national debt, as well.

A few people are riding around in electric cars -- something that infuriates Tarek -- but not many. Those automobiles are generally expensive, and the plug-in stuff is complicated. American society is largely driven (sorry) by easy, convenient products. Risking electrocution in a rainstorm while firing up a Prius might hold some folks back.

Finally, there may be big trouble ahead at the gas station. If Israel attacks Iran over nukes, worldwide oil prices will explode, as well. $8 a gallon? Could happen.

John Stossel: 'I like Gary Johnson'

JOHN STOSSEL
 Columnist

I Like Gary Johnson

All political candidates call themselves freedom-lovers, but they are not. Neither major party really opposes government control of the economy or of our personal lives. I'm a libertarian because I see the false choice offered by political left and right: Democrats talk about personal liberty; Republicans talk about economic freedom. But what they do once in power belies their words.

I say we're best off if government just leaves us alone to our peaceful cooperation with whomever we please. Let politicians (SET ITAL) advocate (END ITAL) moral behavior. Let them give to charities. But leave government -- which is physical force -- out of it.

That's why I like Gary Johnson, the former Republican governor of New Mexico. He's the Libertarian Party candidate for president. As governor, Johnson vetoed 750 bills, and yet he got re-elected in that blue state.

I asked Johnson what it means to be a libertarian.

"Fiscally responsible, socially accepting ... more liberal than Obama on several issues, more conservative than Romney on several issues."

Johnson proposes to cut federal spending by more than 43 percent:

"Balance the federal budget now. I think that unless we do that, we're going to find ourselves in a monetary collapse."

To do that, he'd go where the money is. He'd cut the big programs that will soon bankrupt us. That includes Medicare. Conventional wisdom says what he's proposing is cruel and, for a politician, suicidal.

"Look, we've got to slash Medicare spending. If we don't, we're going to find ourselves with no health care whatsoever. Medicaid, same thing. Military spending, same thing."

The left claims that without social spending, people would starve in the streets!

"This is the exact reaction that I got as governor of New Mexico, having vetoed all that legislation. ... Kids were going to starve, all the worst things were going to happen, and none of them did. And I got re-elected."

Who would decide what part of Medicare to cut?

"Give this up to the states. Fifty laboratories of innovation and best practice ...

(instead of) Washington top-down, Washington-knows-best -- that's what has us in the situation that we're in right now."

Johnson also says, "End the wars." Won't a pullout of our troops mean the terrorists win?

"We have hundreds of millions of enemies ... that, but for our military interventions, we would not otherwise have. So let's take military spending back to 2003 spending levels. Start out with the premise that we should provide ourselves with a strong national defense. But 'defense' here is the operative word. Not 'offense' and not 'nation-building.' We're building roads, schools, bridges, highways and hospitals in (SET ITAL) other (END ITAL) countries, and we have those needs here in this country."

In one of Johnson's campaign ads, he compares the U.S. Constitution to the U.S. tax code.

"One is simple and about equal rights for all. The other is extremely complex and anything but equal rights for all. It's crony capitalism in a nutshell. It's the root of evil. Individuals, groups, corporations pay for loopholes. Both parties sell those loopholes. Eliminate the IRS. Abolish income tax (and) corporate tax."

How will government get money?

"With a national consumption tax. I'm embracing the Fair Tax. ... Adopting the Fair Tax would issue pink slips to half of Washington lobbyists."

Johnson would also legalize marijuana.

"Control it, regulate it, tax it."

I like Johnson's message: Let no one be coerced by government beyond the small amount needed to fund a limited government that keeps us safe. Do not let government forcibly take other people's money. When in doubt, leave it out -- or rather, leave it to the market and other voluntary institutions.

But sadly that's not how most people think. Most people think problems are things that are solved by laws. They assume it's just the laziness or stupidity of the "other" side's politicians that prevents government from solving our problems.

But government rarely solves problems. Government is inefficient. There's almost nothing government can do that we cannot do better as free individuals and groups of individuals working together voluntarily.

Without big government, our possibilities are limitless.

ATTACK THE DAY

Rivera and Andrew Jimenez.

After trading punts the Harvester defense started to make plays that in the end was the margin for victory.

Tyler Powell hit the Bushland receiver and Scott Kelly scooped what would be the first of four fumbles by the Falcons. Kelly gave Pampa first and ten at the Falcons 41-yard line.

Ryan Smith threw a pass to Powell, and with two pass interference calls gave Pampa first and ten at the ten-yard line of Bushland.

Two plays later, Smith on a quarterback keeper crossed the goal line. With the extra point by Alan Stoval, Pampa lead 7-0 with 6:29 left in the second quarter.

Bushland fought back and tied the game and both teams went into the locker room at half time tied 7-7.

Pampa had deferred the kick in the first half and Sammy Smith received the opening kickoff for the second half — giving the Harvesters first and ten at the twenty five.

Runs of 33 yards by Sheldon Reeve, and a 13-yard run by tailback Sammy Smith gave the Harvesters first and goal at the Bushland seven yard line.

Two plays later on a quarterback sneak, Ryan Smith scored and put Pampa on top 14-7 with 6:55 left in the third quarter.

This would of been more than enough for the win, but for good measure the Harvesters added another touchdown. (Smith scored again on a quarterback keeper after a Taylor Woods fumble recovery with 5:33 left in the fourth quarter.)

The final score was 21-7, and the Harvesters tasted victory for the first time this year.

Pat Buchanan: Nothing to apologize for, Mitt Romney

PATRICK BUCHANAN
Columnist

Mitt Romney has conceded that his thoughts, expressed at that Boca Raton, Fla., fundraiser, were "not elegantly" stated. Those mocking him might concede he has tabled one of the mega-issues of our time.

Can America continue down the path President Obama is taking us on, to a time soon and certain when a majority of wage-earners pay no income taxes but a majority of citizens receive federal benefits?

"There are 47 percent of the people who will vote for the president no matter what," said Mitt, "the 47 percent who ... are dependent upon government, who believe that they are victims, who believe the government has a responsibility to care for them, who believe that they are entitled to health care, to food, to housing, to you-name-it. ... These are people who pay no income tax" What was wrong with this? One slice of that 47 percent who receive benefits are students who will pay taxes later. A larger slice are retirees on Social Security and Medicare who paid into both programs all their working lives. But what was right about what Romney said was discerned two centuries ago by that governmental genius John C. Calhoun. "The necessary result ... of the unequal fiscal action of the government is to divide the community into two great classes; one consisting of those who ... pay the taxes ... and bear exclusively the burden of supporting the government; and the other, of those who are the recipients of their proceeds, through disbursements, and who are, in fact, supported by the government; or, in fewer words, to divide it into taxpayers and tax consumers."

A nation sundered between taxpayers and tax consumers, said Calhoun, "must give rise to two parties and to violent conflicts and struggles between them, to obtain the control of the government." Is that not a fair description of where we are today? Sen. Gene McCarthy used to say every citizen has three duties: to bear arms in defense of his country, to vote and to pay taxes. Is it a good thing that this ideal is laughed at, that the draft is abolished, that scores of millions pay nothing in income taxes? Retired Americans living on Social Security, exempt from taxes because their income is modest, are not the problem.

But in 2010, some 4.4 million Americans were on welfare rolls, 22 million on government payrolls, 23 million were receiving Earned Income Tax Credit checks, 44 million were on food stamps, 50 million were on Medicaid, and 70 million wage-earners were paying no income taxes.

For most of these folks, Obama's Party, which would expand benefits, tax the rich even more and redistribute the wealth, is their party. And understandably so. By every standard, America is a far more prosperous country than in the 1950s. Yet, then, there were no food stamps. Today, 47 million Americans are on food stamps at an annual cost of $72 billion.

Does it not say something alarming when one in seven Americans cannot rely upon themselves or their families for their daily bread? During the Chicago school strike, we learned that 86 percent of the 350,000 pupils were getting free or subsidized meals twice a day. What kind of society have we become when children in a great city cannot rely on mothers or fathers for a bowl of cereal in the morning and a brown bag with a sandwich and apple in it for lunch? Federal, state and local government together now consume 37 percent of the economy. Can we not see where this is leading us, by looking at Spain or Italy -- or California?

In the Golden Land, the state tax burden has been shifted heavily onto the most successful, while state benefits have exploded. Result: For the first time since California entered the Union, the young and middle class are moving out, not in, heading for Colorado, Arizona, Idaho and Nevada. And California has become the destination of choice for the immigrant poor, legal and illegal. Yet, the November ballot has a proposal to raise the state income tax on the rich to the highest in the nation, 13.3 percent. Romney indicated that folks deeply dependent on government are almost impossible for an advocate of smaller government to win over. Is he entirely off base when Washington, D.C., the most government-dependent city in America, went 93-7 for Obama in 2008?

In his 1935 State of the Union, Franklin Roosevelt himself warned about exactly what Mitt Romney is talking about.

"Continued dependence upon relief induces a spiritual and moral disintegration fundamentally destructive to the national fiber. To dole out relief in this way is to administer a narcotic, a subtle destroyer of the human spirit. ... The Federal Government must and shall quit this business of relief."

That greatest generation got off the narcotic of dependency.

Unfortunately, for tens of millions today, that narcotic has become indispensable. And "spiritual and moral disintegration" describes exactly the condition of all too many who have come to rely upon it.

No apologies needed, Mitt.

It is that time of year again...

HAPPY BIRTHDAY for Monday, Sept. 24, 2012:

This year tension builds with your professional and community activities. Do you have too much on your plate? You might want to cut back or delegate some of your responsibilities to others, even if you don't want to. If you are single, your playfulness cannot help but come out when interacting with others. A friendship is the key to your next relationship. If you are attached, the two of you feel strongly about your personal and domestic life. Just add more fun in! AQUARIUS knows how to draw you in.

ARIES (March 21-April 19)

★★★★ When you hit an obstacle, you have no choice but to leap over it. You might try other approaches at first. Only to discover that nothing else really works. Communication demonstrates how much support you have. Tonight: Where your friends are.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20)

★★★★ You will want to understand what is going on around you. The only way to find answers is to detach and become less invested in what goes down. You might have a difficult time staying neutral and open. Tonight: Nap, then decide.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20)

★★★★ Deal with a parent, partner or associate directly. You will see this conversation as a shortcut, as you will eliminate a problem. Your creativity might be off right now. Work with the ideas at hand. Later in the day, new solutions will come forward. Tonight: Try to think outside the box.

CANCER (June 21-July 22)

★★★★ Others seek you out. On some level, you might feel as if you are in the doldrums. Your fatigue might be a result of a mini-depression. A discussion with a dear friend or loved one opens many doors -- one of which will be an escape hatch. Tonight: Dinner with a favorite person.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22)

★★★★ You have a lot to get done, and you will do just that if you can just focus. Do not approach others negatively. Your dynamic personality sometimes needs taming, and right now could be a prime example. You do not need to feel pushed or pressed. Your effectiveness will amplify with a little less impulsiveness. Tonight: Take the most sociable invitation.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22)

★★★★ Stay even when dealing with someone in your day-to-day life. Several people could be bouncing off the walls. Your creativity allows you more options than many people could provide you. You might want to bring in a dear friend who has a unique slant on creating plans. Tonight: Relax; put your feet up.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 22)

★★★★ Your mind keeps drifting toward a family matter, domestic issue or a property or real-estate investment. You have been trying to avoid this thought, but it would be better to deal with it now. You'll feel more in tune with yourself and others as a result. Tonight: Kick up your heels as soon as you can.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23-Nov. 21)

★★★★ Keep communication flowing, and understand that some topics are too taboo. If a barrier emerges, you could have more problems with opening up a situation. Help others feel more comfortable, and you will gain as well. Tonight: Try to make it early.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21)

★★★ Be aware of upcoming expenditures. You could have difficulty with a certain situation or friendship that seems to hold you back. Sometimes, you need to let go and take a leap of faith. Try it! Tonight: Catch up on someone's news.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19)

★★★★ You might feel as though you are totally in the moment, and also that someone is testing your authority. A male or assertive friend pushes you in a new direction. If you can absorb this person's ideas, you'll come up with an even better one. Tonight: Others seek you out.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18)

★★★ Much is going on behind the scenes that you choose not to share, yet a lack of communication could make you feel uncomfortable. You might need to break the ice. Someone might be too much into his or her position or being right. Tonight: Take a relaxing stroll.

PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20)

★★★★ Zero in on what is important to you. Understand that someone you care about could hold information back or even refuse to converse at all. Seek out a different source or someone who could enlighten you with even more insight. Tonight: Don't push. It is only Monday.

Harvester Hall of Fame Induction

GAYDEN HAYS
GHAYS@THEPAMPANEWS.COM

Friday morning Pampa High School celebrated the induction of two men into the Harvester Hall of Fame in McNeely Fieldhouse. Michael Davis, class of 1983, and John Campbell, class of 1945 were greeted by revelry reserved for nothing short of the President of the United States.

Presiding over the event was Claire Hopkins, President of the Pampa High School student council. Hopkins introduced the dignitaries and past Hall of Fame Members, along with families and friends.

The FFA Students presented the Colors, and the PHS Band and Concert Chior lead the audience in the Star Spangled Banner and the Pledge of Allegiance.

Principal Tanya Larkin and Superintendent David Young greeted visitors and welcomed everyone to the event.

Before the Introductions of the new Hall of fame members, Ted Swindle class of 1956 of "Who is this Harvester?" fame awarded the Who is this Harvester award, to the student that presented the best written essay of what those words embody. This years award went to Zane Roblese.

After a short history about the Hall of Fame by Terra Truitt, Ryan Smith and Tyler Powell Introduced the newest members into the Hall of Fame.

Davis speaking first emphasized that a person is defined by what they do after the leave the confines of High School, and he challenged the teachers in teaching life lessons.

"I have been trying to give back, I have been doing what I can." said

Davis when looking back on his appreciation of his younger life.

Campbell was second to speak, explained his experiences and great people that he encountered while going to school here, and working later in life in Pampa.

Campbell used examples of Jimmy Bond, the star basketball player of the 1953 and 54 state basketball Championships, and Randy Matson, Gold Medal winner in the Olympics.

His main emphasis was on what he considered to be three areas that a person needs to address to be a success. Physical, Mental, and Spiritual health has been key to his longevity and his business success.

"I read the Bible every morning and night and pray to the lord all the time." Explained Campbell.

Principal Larkin closed the ceremony, along with the Pampa High School band, and cheerleaders leading the people present in singing, "Dear Old Pampa High School".

The Event was closed with the Concert Choir performing the Benediction.

Dear Abby...

By Pauline & Jeanne Phillips

DEAR ABBY: I'm 15 and I really like this boy, but I can't find the courage to ask him out. I'm pretty sure he likes me, too, because whenever we're together he holds my hand or puts his arms around me.

He has a great smile and personality. We have many things in common, such as we both play an instrument, we make each other laugh and we're both close with our families. What I don't understand is why he hasn't made a move yet to ask me out. — NEEDS LOVE HELP

DEAR NEEDS LOVE HELP: I can think of a few reasons, and none of them have anything to do with how much he likes you. He may not be able to afford to ask you out, he may feel shy, he may not feel ready to date, or his parents may prefer that he concentrate on something other than romance. Some teens get around this by socializing in groups, so instead of asking him "out," consider asking if he'd like to join you and a group of your friends sometime.

DEAR ABBY: I'm an 18-year-old woman who lives at home with my parents. I have been seeing an amazing person for a while now. There is just one problem. My mother has decided to put "rules" on our relationship.

By rules, I mean: a curfew, how often I see him, where I am to be with him and various other things. Also, she randomly blurts out that I am "never to move in with him until I am married." I don't plan on moving in with him until we both have our college degrees.

I am technically an adult, which means to me that I can make my own decisions and suffer the consequences if there are any. I know I live in my parents' home. I follow their rules and respect their wishes — but this is a bit extreme, don't you think?

Abby, please advise me on how to explain to my mom that I'm an adult and not a newborn baby as she regards me? — NOT A CHILD ANYMORE IN OHIO

DEAR NOT A CHILD: Although you may be an adult in the eyes of the law in Ohio, you are not INDEPENDENT. As long as you are dependent upon your parents for shelter, food or anything else there is a price you will have to pay. In this case, the price you are paying is your mother's loving but hawklike supervision. And if you think you or I can talk her out of it, you're dreaming.

DEAR ABBY: My wife and I were invited to my brother's wedding, and we accepted. Later, my brother asked me to be a groomsman.

My wife is upset because I didn't ask her if she minded that I'll be in the wedding and I will walk down the aisle with one of the bridesmaids. She feels that my walking with another woman is a "date" and disrespectful to her. Is it proper wedding etiquette to accept an invitation to be in a wedding if you are married? — GROOMSMAN IN THE SOUTH

DEAR GROOMSMAN: It is very common for the brother of the groom to be in his wedding party — and marital status has nothing to do with it. Escorting an assigned bridesmaid to and from the altar is NOT a "date," nor is it disrespectful to your wife, who may really be upset because she wasn't also asked to be part of the wedding party.
