Trevathan sentencing on or after June 21

By TIMOTHY P. HOWSARE
 thowsare@thepampanews.com

Sentencing for Erin Dawn Trevathan, who pleaded guilty last week to one count of bank fraud, will occur on or shortly after June 21, according to court documents.

Erin Dawn Trevathan

The specific time and date will be set by a federal judge at the U.S. District Courthouse in Amarillo.

Trevathan admitted that she made false entries and loan manipulations while she was employed for two years at Pampa Teachers Federal Credit Union as a loan officer, defrauding the bank of nearly $423,000.

She faces up to 30 years in a federal prison, up to a $1 million fine, five years supervised release after she gets out of prison and could be required to pay restitution to the victim. There is no minimum sentence for her offense, so Trevathan could receive no prison time or the maximum of 30 years, said Kathy Colvin, spokeswoman for U.S. Attorney's Office Northern District of Texas.

"It's what is called a statutory sentence," she said.

House passes Texting-while-driving measure

By CHRIS HOOKS
 The Texas Tribune

House Bill 63, which would make texting while driving a statewide criminal offense, passed the House by a 98-47 vote Wednesday, narrowly surviving multiple attempts to substantially weaken its provisions.

The bill, authored by Rep. Tom Craddick, R-Midland, would make it a misdemeanor to type on a handheld device to send an electronic message while behind the wheel. HB 63 would create a fine of up to $100 for first-time charges, and $200 for repeat offenses.

The bill now heads to the Senate. Similar measures have been vetoed by Gov. Rick Perry, and a two-thirds vote in each chamber would be required to override a potential veto of the current bill.

Craddick, who has introduced similar bills in the past, argued that his bill was a critically important safety measure, and he began his opening remarks by expressing regret over his past opposition to the state's seat belt law.

"When the seat belt bill passed years ago, I voted against it," he said. "I'm very sorry I did that. When I get in my car with my grandchildren now, the first thing they say is 'Buckle up.'"

Craddick also argued that the case for banning texting while driving was even stronger than the case for a mandatory seat belt law, which he said protects "a person from themselves."

"This is to protect me from your driving," he said. "There are people in the gallery today who have lost loved ones because of texting." He added, "They're saying 90 percent of the people in the state wear seat belts. And at the time we passed the seat belt law, it was like 27 percent."

Taste of Pampa delights crowd

By TIMOTHY P. HOWSARE

Nobody left with an empty stomach. About 150 people turned out for Tuesday night's Taste of Pampa at the M.K. Brown Memorial Auditorium Heritage Room.

"We did very well," said Rochelle Lacy, past president of Altrusa International Inc., which sponsored the event as a fundraiser for its public service projects. "Some of the vendors are already talking about next year."

Lacy said turn out wasn't quite as good as last year, due to getting a late start with booking the room and publicizing the event.

"It was off a little bit but we are planning early to get the room for next year," she said. "We plan to have it in April again."

Lady Harvesters' videographer active in sports herself

By ZACHARY GREEN
 zgreen@thepampanews.com

Nearly every high school sporting event will have a designated videographer so that the team can have film to study from games as they prepare for upcoming games in the season.

Most of those are high school students wanting to get into games free, or to leave school early on game days. However, for the past two seasons, the Lady Harvesters' videographer has been the 9-year-old coach's daughter, Savannah Valentine.

Savannah is the daughter of Lori and Gene Valentine and attends Austin Elementary. She filmed all of the games for the Lady Harvesters this season and last season — making some sacrifices in the process.

"She didn't get to play Optimist basketball the past two years because she was filming. Gene bought her an electric scooter as a gift for filming this season and last year we paid her $3 a game," said her mother. "She does a great job. She has to carry all the equipment up and down the stairs. She also has to set up and tear down the equipment before and after games."

Savannah said her favorite time this season was at the Frenship Tournament. "I got to miss school and that was fun."

Savannah, who also plays volleyball and softball and is an aspiring gymnast, said that next year she will not film for the Lady Harvesters because she wants to play Optimist basketball. "I will miss it. It will be different not filming every game for them. But it will be fun to play basketball with my friends next season," Savannah said. "I liked riding the

Minn. hospital says it mishandles baby's body

ASSOCIATED PRESS

ST. PAUL, Minn. (AP) — A Minnesota hospital is apologizing for mishandling a stillborn baby who was discovered at a laundry service.

Regions Hospital in St. Paul says the body found in a sheet at a laundry service in Red Wing on Tuesday was that of a 22-week-old stillborn. The hospital says the remains had been wrapped in linens in its morgue and were mistaken for laundry that was to be sent out for cleaning.

The hospital calls it a "terrible mistake" and is extending "deep apologies" to the family. It also is offering counseling to employees of the linen service.

Chief nursing officer Chris Boese says the hospital has procedures that should've prevented the mistake and is working to ensure it doesn't happen again.

Red Wing is about 45 miles southeast of St. Paul.

bus with the basketball team and getting to know all of the players. It is like a family with three dads (coaches Valentine, Braydon Barker and Alan Segura) and a lot of sisters.”

Lori said that coach Valentine gave Savannah certificates the past two seasons at the basketball banquet to thank her for her efforts.

“This year she was recognized by the team during their senior will. They gave her a pair of pompons because she is their ‘cheerleader,’” she said.

Savannah added that filming makes her want to play. “Every time I do it, it makes me think it would be nice if someone filmed me while I was playing.”

She doesn’t stop at just filming to help the Lady Harvesters. She also helps coach Valentine with his Lady Harvester Basketball Camp each summer.

“She helps set up and run the concessions stand and is also a participant in the camp,” her mom said. “She helps organize the shirts and name tags.”

In addition to basketball, Savannah does competitive gymnastics at Madeline Graves Dance-Gymnastics, softball and volleyball. She will compete in the state gymnastics meet April 26-27 in Canyon. Savannah is a player on the Culberson-Stowers softball team with Optimist. She won first place in the double mini trampoline, level 4 at the Acrospirit Meet in Levelland in February. At that same meet, she won second place in the trampoline, level 2. Then at the Winter Classic in Lubbock later also in February she won second place in the trampoline.

“My favorite sport would be volleyball. My favorite class is math,” Savannah said. “I am deciding between becoming a teacher or a dyslexic teacher. I want to be an elementary (school) teacher.”

“She is quick in setting up and taking down the equipment. She has a very steady hand and films exactly like her dad wants the film,” Lori added. “It was interesting to see her take ownership of it. She has a good work ethic that she gets from her dad. ‘If you are going to do something, do it well.’”

The Pampa chapter of Altrusa has between 30 to 40 members, Lacy said, who volunteer in the community doing everything from reading to kindergartners and first graders at Travis Elementary to assisting the Pampa Animal Welfare Society (PAWS).

While members can pick and choose their service projects, all members are required to participate in the group’s fundraisers, Lacy said.

“Most of our members helped Tuesday in some way or another — contributing door prizes or with ticket sales,” she said.

Joe Weaver, husband of Altrusan Linda

Weaver, was the emcee and J.A. Mejia performed original music on piano and violin.

Tickets were $15 for adults and $10 for children. Children under 7 were free.

For a ticket, patrons could chow down on as much as they wanted from the vendor booths, which served everything from beef brisket to tacos, fajitas and small sandwiches. And there was quite a dessert collection, including cakes, cookies and even jalapeño cheesecake.

Booth vendors were: M&S Speciality Foods, Big Momma’s BBQ, Victorian Rose, Hamburger Station, Maja’s Mexican Bakery, U-Top-It, The Plaza Restaurant, United Supermarkets Deli and Bakery, Dixie Cafe, Hot Rods and Granny’s Home Cookin’.

Reassuring children in the aftermath of the Boston bombings

By JOHN MICHAELSON
Texas News Service

AUSTIN — In the aftermath of another deadly day in America with the bombings in Boston, parents are being reminded how such events can emotionally traumatize young children.

Psychologist Korenna Barto said the images and stories can have a negative effect on a child’s well-being, and that’s why parents need to provide a safe haven and a secure base.

“And it really just means that you have a person or persons that you know you can always turn to that make you feel safe and valued and help provide an emotional and psychological compass or barometer,” she stated.

Barto remarked that a safe haven and secure base are especially important for children through age five.

She said the key in providing a secure base for your children is consistency.

“When children don’t get that consistency, they don’t feel that their parents, who are there every day, they wake up to, they go to bed to, doesn’t give them as secure of a base, as secure a feeling, as someone who is consistently available,” she cautioned.

will be determined by a federal probation officer, who will present a presentencing report to the judge, the U.S. Attorney prosecuting the case and Trevathan’s defense attorney, Adam Tisdell.

The confidential report is sealed and not public record, Colvin said.

Both attorneys have the opportunity to object in writing to the facts and conclusions in the report, she said.

The case is being prosecuted by assistant U.S. Attorney Christy Drake.

Trevathan was employed by the Pampa Teachers Federal Credit Union as a loan officer from July 2, 2008 to Dec. 8, 2010 processing personal and auto loans.

Irregularities were noticed during an audit, and an investigation concluded that Trevathan was preparing loans with no accompanying documentation or signatures, forging the name of her manager on loan agreements and taking cash payments from a credit union customer but not applying the payments to the loan.

MAKING SENSE OF INVESTING

But the bill faced substantial resistance. Early on, supporters of the measure successfully defended the bill against two amendments that would prevent police officers from pulling over drivers if texting was the primary, or only, offense, and the driver in question was obeying all other traffic laws.

The first was offered by Rep. Charles Perry, R-Lubbock, who argued that the bill unnecessarily restricted the freedoms of Texans.

“While I am supportive of this bill, it’s very important that liberty not be sacrificed in the process,” he said. “I’m cognizant that [the bill] opens things up to a lot of subjection. And that could become an issue.”

That amendment was ultimately tabled by an 84-60 vote, but a similar amendment offered by Rep. Harold Dutton, D-Houston, received more support. Dutton argued that a ban on texting could be applied unequally across the state — and could provide an easy pretext for police officers to pull over drivers.

“I’m a little concerned that this will lead to people of color being stopped because an officer made an allegation that they were texting,” he said. “And there would be no basis with which to prove that.” That amendment was initially tabled by a vote of 74-68.

Supporters of the measure argued vociferously against Perry’s and Dutton’s amendments. Rep. Patricia Harless, R-Spring, ridiculed the legal standard by applying it to other offenses.

“Let’s make an analogy,” she said. “If I’m over twice the legal limit, driving while intoxicated, and I’m not swerving in traffic, am I not a danger to others?”

Rep. Jose Menendez, D-San Antonio, was harsher in his criticism.

“This really guts the bill,” he said of Dutton’s amendment. “The amendment is a joke. It says, go ahead and text and drive.” But an hour after his initial amendment failed, Dutton returned with an amendment almost identical to his previous one. Rep. Ryan Guillen, D-Rio Grande City, who had voted earlier to table Dutton’s amendment, had left the House floor — his wife was in labor — meaning that Dutton only needed three converts to change the outcome.

Supporters of the the original bill raised parliamentary objections about the effort, but couldn’t prevent the new amendment from coming to the floor. Amid shouts and cheers, a motion to table the amendment failed, 70-74, provoking renewed, extended debate about the merits of the amendment.

Comprehensive reform must include guestworkers

The word comprehensive is usually attached to current references to immigration reform, but the Gang of Eight's bill is stumbling over reform of guestworkers. That's the biggest bone of contention between pro-amnesty and anti-amnesty folk.

The highly paid lobbyists assigned to this issue are split. Big business interests (chanting "let the market decide") are trying to bring in as many low-paid workers as possible, while the unions want to save jobs for their members and votes for the Democrats.

H-1B visas are capped at 65,000 and supposed to be for jobs that require technical expertise (scientists, engineers, computer programmers) and be used when U.S. citizens are not available. Business welcomes the crush of applicants from Indian body shops (i.e., placement agencies), and the top 10 users of H-1Bs are offshore outsourcing firms. Asians make up half of San Jose's technology workforce, according to November Census Bureau data. That's a sharp rise from 10 years ago when it was about 39 percent.

Employers prefer to hire foreigners because they are paid less, can't quit and are treated like indentured servants. Guestworkers are supposed to go back home when their visas expire, but we have no guarantee that they depart. The wage differential is significant. In New York City, the prevailing wage for an entry-level computer systems engineer is $68,370, but is $120,037 for a fully competent worker. The foreigners are usually hired as entry-level. The guestworker system explains why college students tell me they have been opting out of engineering and switching to a business major. American student enrollment in graduate science and engineering programs fell 10 percent after 1993, while enrollment of foreigners rose 26 percent. Estimates are that at least 50 percent and as many as 70 or 80 percent of our nation's agriculture workers are here illegally. Guestworker shepherds brought in from Peru to tend U.S. sheep just "disappeared" to hunt for better jobs.

According to Senator Jeff Sessions' "10 Questions for the Gang of Eight," the U.S. allows 700,000 guestworkers to enter our country each year. He estimates that the Gang's proposal will increase the number to over a million a year, not counting the legalization of those now illegally in the U.S. and anticipated future immigration. Business is now demanding a large new "lesser-skilled" guest-worker category to take retailing and janitorial jobs. Economist Jared Bernstein, in his book "Crunch: Why Do I Feel So Squeezed?" accuses the guestworker program of being a power play by the business class and a disruption of the free market, which actually shifts wealth to the powerful. The free market is supposed to let prices and wages rise whenever there is a shortage, but that doesn't happen when our government artificially nullifies any shortage by bringing in more lower-paid workers.

H-4 visas are given to spouses of all classes of H-visa holders (H-1B, farm workers (H-2A), and non-agricultural unskilled workers (H-2B)). There were 74,205 H-4s issued in 2011, and it's been estimated that the total population of H-4s (which is not counted by the government) is roughly a quarter million.

And don't forget J-1 visas that take summer jobs, which have traditionally been so important to young people, giving them an opportunity to learn the work ethic. Now summer jobs go to seasonal hiring of foreign students.

What are the positives of a prenuptial agreement?

Dear Carrie, My fiance and I are both in our mid-30s, so we've each had time to accumulate some assets. I'm thinking we should have a prenuptial agreement, but he thinks it's a betrayal of trust. What do you think? — A Reader

CARRIE SCHWAB-POMERANTZ

Dear Reader, In my opinion, there are a lot of positive reasons to have a prenuptial agreement. While I understand your fiance's hesitation — so often a prenup is associated with divorce — to me it's not a sign of distrust. In fact, creating a prenuptial agreement takes a willingness to be completely open and honest about everything — what you own, what you owe and how you want to live your financial lives together. That takes absolute trust.

Plus, there's a basic tenet in any prenup that you can't include anything that a court would consider "unfair" to either of you. There's lots of room for different arrangements, but fairness is a given.

That said, a formal prenuptial agreement is most important if either one of you has considerable assets, large debts or kids from a previous marriage — anything that makes your finances more complicated. If this isn't you, a formal agreement is less necessary. Every couple, though, should provide complete financial disclosure and share their feelings about money. This will undoubtedly head off disagreements down the road and create a closer bond.

Look at the whole picture — savings, investments, retirement accounts, real estate, cars, artwork, jewelry — and decide what you'll share and what you'll keep separate. Then ask yourselves questions like: Will you pool your money to buy a house? Do you want to keep individual control of a certain amount for some personal future goal?

—How you'll handle current and future debts

While you're not legally responsible for debts incurred by your spouse before the marriage, put all your debts on the table and decide how you're going to handle them. If one of you has a mountain of debt, the other could agree to help pay it down to lighten the load. It would be smart to agree on this in advance.

Debts incurred during your marriage are another story. State laws vary, but, in general, if you have joint credit cards, car loans or mortgages, you'll be jointly liable. If one of you is a spender and one a saver, confront this now and come to an understanding about how you'll handle debt.

—Who will be financially responsible for what

Some couples choose to stipulate upfront how they'll split up household expenses. For instance, those you'll share (commonly the mortgage, utilities, groceries, etc.) and those you'll keep separate (perhaps clothes, personal entertainment, etc.). You can also decide on a system for how this will work (for example, a joint account for shared expenses, individual accounts for personal things). Deciding this in advance can help keep small financial decisions from becoming large bones of contention.

The government likes to play favorites

People say government must "help the little guy, promote equality, level the playing field."

People often go into government to do that.

JOHN STOSSEL

But even when people mean well, it's natural for them to help out their cronies. David Stockman, who ran the Office of Management and Budget under Ronald Reagan, was criticized for saying the government's budget numbers didn't add up. But he was right.

Now, in his book "The Great Deformation," he says both major political parties failed ordinary Americans when the housing bubble burst, and they rushed to bail out cronies at big banks. Government continues to threaten our future by printing gobs of money and guaranteeing trillions in loans to banks, homeowners, students and other politically connected groups.

The political class claims the economy would have been destroyed in 2008 without a bailout of the big banks.

Stockman says that's a myth: "The Main Street banks were not going to go into a huge retail bank run ... and (Fed chairman Ben) Bernanke is totally wrong when he says we were on the verge of Depression 2.0. We weren't close. We would have worked our way through it. We've done it many times in history."

Worked our way through it? Without the bailouts, there might have been a bigger stock market drop, and more businesses would have closed! But Stockman says, so what? It would have been worth it. And I agree with him.

Today, taxpayers would be $1 trillion richer and not on the hook for trillions in loan guarantees. Prices would now have found a natural floor, business would be eagerly hiring again, and America would be free of moral hazards like "too big to fail" banks. What do I mean by "moral hazard"? I once built a beach house on the edge of the ocean — a very risky place to build — but I did so because federal flood insurance guaranteed my investment. Eventually, a storm swept away my house, but I didn't lose a penny. Government "insurance" covered my loss. Thanks, taxpayers!

Now that I'm wiser — and more libertarian — I'm ashamed that I took your money and understand that the whole program is a mistake. The same government that worries about global warming causing flooding spends billions to compensate risk-takers who live next to oceans. That's moral hazard.

But beachfront property owners have political connections. They make desperate calls to legislators. Politicians respond to whoever screams loudest.

When the housing bubble burst, politicians got panicked calls from their friends on Wall Street — in many cases former colleagues. Instead of letting their old friends take big losses and trusting smaller banks to expand and take their customers, the political class propped up risk-takers who made bad bets.

It's not that those who move back and forth between Wall Street and government are evil. But when you are close to a problem, you are quicker to panic. A few years back, brilliant scientists who studied SARS or bird flu sincerely thought a mass epidemic was coming, and therefore government had to "do something." (It didn't hurt that "doing something" meant spending more on their area of research.)

In 1999, computer techs really believed computers would freeze when the calendar turned to 2000, causing planes to fall from the sky. Killer-bee researchers were convinced bees would sting us to death. Anti-pesticide environmentalists, flesh-eating bacteria researchers and today's global warming fanatics are all sincere in their fear.

But unlike Wall Street bankers, none could confiscate a trillion of your dollars and give them to their cronies. Believe me: If Al Gore could have done that, he would have.

Politicians accuse those of us who advocate limited government of being heartless when we say that government should not protect us against loss. But government efforts to "protect" us create a moral hazard that just makes our problems bigger over time.

Politicians say, "Yes, we can!" But don't be fooled: "No, They Can't."

Food That's for the Birds!

Recipes reprinted from Bluebird Journal of the North American Bluebird Society (Vol. 21, No. 1)

During the summer months the bluebirds' diet consists of insects, worms, spiders, crickets and grasshoppers. During late fall when insects become scarce, bluebirds will eat fruit. But you can give them a meal that all birds will enjoy. Work with an adult and make these dishes bluebirds love.

Peanut Butter Sticks

- 5 parts old-fashioned oatmeal
- 1 part corn syrup
- 1 part peanut butter
- 1 part bacon grease, melted suet, or lard

Mix well and smear into 1-inch holes drilled into a suspended log suet feeder.

Tweety Cakes

- 2 quarts water
- 1 cup margarine
- 4 cups grits (not instant)
- 1 cup peanut butter
- raisin or peanut hearts

In a large saucepan, bring water and margarine to a boil. Slowly add grits, stirring and cooking until mixture begins to thicken. Remove from heat and add peanut butter, raisins and peanut hearts. Mix together well, then place in feeders. Freeze the balance in foil for future use.

Birdy Ball

- 1 cup peanut butter
- 1 cup vegetable shortening
- melted beef suet or bacon drippings
- 4 cups yellow corn meal
- 1 cup white flour

Mix ingredients together to make a soft doughy mix. Roll into balls and put out in a dish.

Bluebirds

Bluebirds are considered to be one of the true signs of spring. They are songbirds and are about the size of a teacup.

In recent years their numbers have steadily declined and they are now seldom seen in areas where there are many houses.

But the future of bluebird populations is promising because, with the help of the National Bluebird Society, people are setting out nest boxes and starting bluebirds trails with a series of nest boxes along a certain route in suitable habitat to help increase populations.

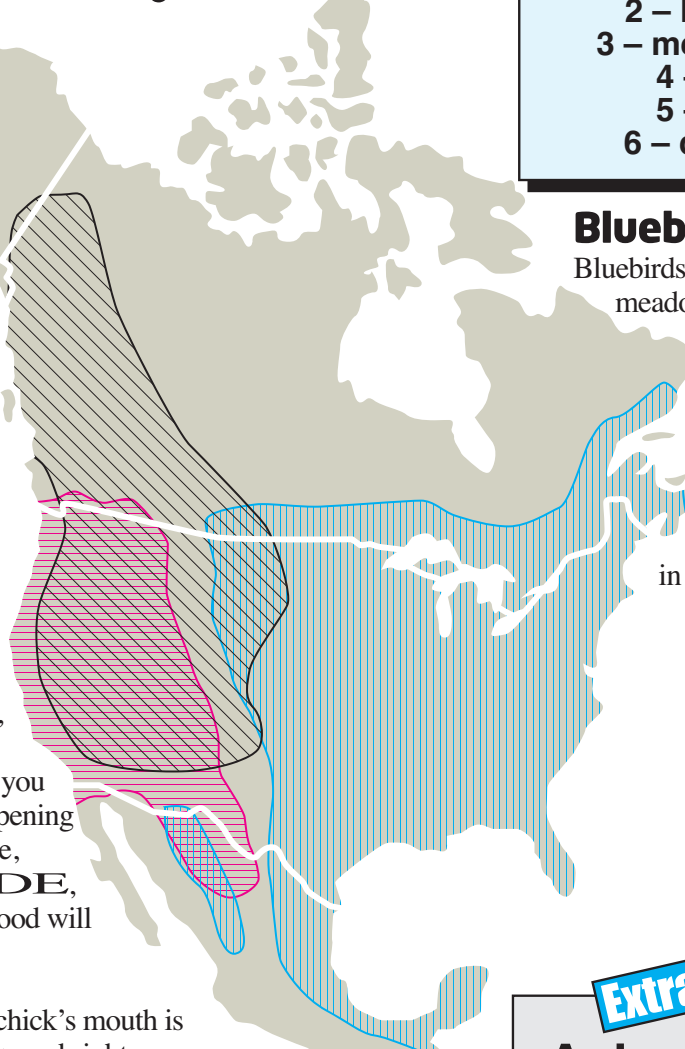

Enjoy the beauty of a bluebird as you color in the three kinds of bluebirds found in North America.

- 1 – red
- 2 – light blue
- 3 – medium blue
- 4 – white
- 5 – black
- 6 – dark gray

Bluebirds Habitat

Bluebirds like to live near meadows dotted with trees.

In warm months, they eat insects that they find in grassy fields. In the fall and winter, they eat berries that grow in wooded areas.

- Eastern Bluebird
- Mountain Bluebird
- Western Bluebird

Disappearing Bluebirds

Around the start of the 20th century, good insect-eating birds like the bluebird started to disappear. The trees where they built their nests were cut down. Two birds brought from other countries, the House Sparrow and the European Starling, took over many of the holes where bluebirds built their nests. Sometimes bluebirds died in the fight to save their nesting sites.

Farmers and others have learned that by building and monitoring special nest boxes, or birdhouses, they can help bluebirds safely raise their young. Now people in Canada and the United States are putting up nesting boxes to help the bluebird make a comeback.

Open Wide!

If you were to peek inside a bluebird's nesting area, you might find a nest with three to six eggs – each about the size of a grape. If the birds have hatched, you might see the little guys opening their mouths wide, WIDE, WIDE, hoping some food will be delivered.

The inside of a bluebird chick's mouth is bright orange. This helps its parents to find the nestling and feed it.

This silly bird found all kinds of odd things to add to her nest. Can you find all five?

While nesting boxes are a big help, the natural place for a bluebird to build a nest is in a hole in a tree or a fence post. Unlike a woodpecker, they cannot make a hole so they must find a suitable hole with a small opening in which to build their nest. Birds that build their nest in this way are called:

Harvesters survive late Dalhart rally Tuesday afternoon

■ Will host Perryton for district title at 4:30 p.m. on April 26.

BY ZACHARY GREEN
zgreen@thepampanews.com

The Pampa Harvester baseball team hosted Dalhart on Thursday afternoon.

With a win and a Perryton loss, Pampa would climb to first place in the district standings.

James Thompson singled to center to start things off for Pampa in the bottom of the first with two outs. Jordan Lemons then hit a double to center that plated Thompson in the process. Pampa led 1-0 after the first inning.

Dalhart scored a run to even up the game at one a piece in the top of the third inning.

Tyler Powell started a rally for the Harvesters in the bottom of the fourth by smashing a triple to center. Riley Douglas followed with a double to score Powell.

Taylor Woods then hit a single to third. Chris Howard hit a sacrifice bunt to score Douglas and advance Woods to third. Cade Engle then walked and scored Woods in the process of his at-bat. Ryan Powell continued the hitting barrage with a single to left. Thompson then reached on an error and the bases were loaded.

Lemons came up and hit a double to right field and scored Engle and Ryan Powell. Pampa would lead 6-1 after four innings.

Both teams were held in check until the top of the seventh when Dalhart was down to their final three outs.

A Wolves runner reached on an error. Then a batter was hit by a pitch, followed by a double to center.

Another Wolves runner reached on an error and quickly the score was 6-3 with no outs and Wolves runners on the bases.

Another batter reached on a fielder's choice and another followed with a single.

A Wolves runner came in to score on an error.

The score was Pampa 6, Dalhart 4 with the bases loaded and no one out for the Wolves.

Thompson made a game-saving catch at shortstop as he got a line drive about three feet in the air. If that ball had gone past him, the score would have easily been knotted up at six all.

Tyler Powell then bared down and struck out the next batter. The final batter flied out to center and the game was finally over but not before Dalhart made it interesting in the top of the seventh inning.

The final score was Pampa 6, Dalhart 4. Borger also defeated Perryton which means the Harvesters host Perryton at 4:30 p.m. on Friday April 26 for the district title.

"We are playing pretty well right now and we are on a three game winning streak. The kids are doing well," said coach Kaleb Snelgrooves. "Today got a little hairy there at the end but our kids bowed their necks and made plays when they had to. These kids have pretty good composure."

Snelgrooves went on to say that he believes the Harvesters have clinched a playoff spot. "That is the most important thing. I am looking forward to what these next two or three weeks hold for us. I am really excited to see what these boys do in the weeks to come."

Thompson had five strikeouts over four innings pitched. He also picked up the win and only allowed one run on two hits. Tyler Powell pitched the final three innings and struck out three batters. He allowed three runs, but only one was earned on three hits.

Engle had a walk and a run scored. Ryan Powell had a single and a run scored.

Thompson was 2-4 with two singles and a run scored.

Lemons was 4-4, with three doubles and with three RBIs. Hunt walked twice and stole a base on defensive indifference. Tyler Powell was 1-2 with a triple, a walk and a run scored. Douglas was 1-3 with a double, an RBI and a run scored. Woods was 1-3 with a single, a run scored and a stolen base. Howard picked up and RBI on a sacrifice bunt.

The team improves to 11-11 on the season and 5-2 in district play. They will host Sayre, Okla., for Senior Day at 1 p.m. on Saturday. Then they will host Perryton for the district title at 4:30 p.m. on Friday, April 26.

Pampa girls golf at regionals

BY ZACHARY GREEN
zgreen@thepampanews.com

The Pampa Lady Harvester golf team headed to regionals in Lubbock Monday and Tuesday.

They finished 10th at the regionals. Here are the results of the Pampa golfers.

Ashlee Keith 95, 97. Savanna Mertz 91, 97. Katy Velasquez 105, 93. Alison Alexander 88, 88. Gracie Little 94, 97.

"Our girls played really well over the last two days. In the four years that I have been here this is the best that I have had a team score in any two day event," said Pampa coach Alan Segura. "They played with three of the top four teams the first day and handled the pressure of playing with them really well. They stepped up and made a respectable showing. Coach Sanford and I could not be any more proud of them than we are."

Segura added he hopes they learned from this experience and know that they have the potential to compete with the top teams in our region and in the state. "Every one of the girls was a little disappointed in the fact that they knew they could have done better. This is an exciting thing to see, Segura added. "This shows us (Coach Sanford and I) that they expect more and want to get better. This is exciting for the future of the girls golf program."

The tournament concluded the Pampa girls golf teams' season. The Pampa News would like to congratulate each and every one of them for a great season.

Lady Harvesters win district for fourth straight year

Pampa avenges its lone district loss with 4-0 win.

BY ZACHARY GREEN
zgreen@thepampanews.com

The Pampa Lady Harvester softball team hosted Dalhart on Senior Day Tuesday afternoon. Pampa was looking to avenge their lone district loss from the last time they faced the Lady Wolves in Dalhart.

Claire Hopkins started things off in the bottom of the first by taking a base on balls. Bailey Beck then reached on an error on a bunt attempt and scored Hopkins in the process. Alexa O'Brien reached on an error that plated Beck in the process. Pampa would lead 2-0 after the first inning. In the third, Martecia Alexander reached on an error. Hopkins followed that up by hitting a double to left and picking up an RBI in the process as Alexander came home to score. Pampa led 3-0 after the second inning.

Both teams were held in check until the bottom of the fourth. Brittney Gonzalez laid down a bunt single to start things off in the inning. Hopkins then reached on an error that scored Gonzalez in the process. Pampa would lead 4-0 after four innings. That would also be the final score as the O'Brien and Gonzalez pitching combo did not allow a hit for the Lady Wolves all afternoon.

O'Brien struck out seven over the course of five innings pitched. Gonzalez struck out two over two innings pitched.

Hopkins was 1-2 with a double, a run scored, an RBI, a walk and four stolen bases. Britton had two steals after being hit by a pitch. Beck had a run scored after reaching on an error. O'Brien walked once. Gonzalez was 1-3 with a single, a run scored and two stolen bases. Alexander had a steal and a run scored.

"I could not be prouder of this team. They are the epitome of class. It is an example of what a team can accomplish when they want the same thing. They really wanted the district title and did what they needed to do to get it," said coach Bobbi Gill.

The win gave Pampa the district championship. It is the fourth district title in a row and seventh in eight years for the Lady Harvesters. They improve to 20-8 on the season and 7-1 in district play. They will play host to Amarillo High at 1 p.m. Saturday in a playoff warmup game.

They have a bye during the bi-district round of the playoffs. Their opponent for the Area round of the playoffs has not been determined yet. That round will most likely be on Friday, May 3 and Saturday, May 4.

In the playoffs there will be a best-of-three series. One game will occur on Friday night with another game on Saturday afternoon, followed by the if-necessary game three.

As soon as The Pampa News knows where the Lady Harvesters will be playing and who they will play in the Area Round we will inform our readers.

NY man's bad idea results in car crash

JAMESTOWN, N.Y. (AP) — It turns out coasting an SUV with no brakes downhill to a scrap yard isn't a good idea after all. Police say a 28-year-old man found that out Tuesday evening when he attempted to drive an SUV to a scrap yard in Jamestown, 60 miles south of Buffalo. Officers tell The Post-Journal of Jamestown that the man told them he had disconnected the battery before coasting down a hill to get to a nearby scrap yard. Police say he also told them the 1995 Chevrolet Tahoe had no brakes. Officials say he was unable to stop at an intersection and collided with another vehicle. The man was charged with reckless endangerment, failure to stop at a stop sign and having inadequate brakes.

Dear Abby...

By Pauline & Jeanne Phillips

DEAR ABBY: My husband and I are contemplating starting a family. When I was younger I wanted children, but over the years my personal experiences have caused trepidation. Because of divorce and the custody battles of my older siblings, I know the amount of blood, sweat and tears that go into children.

I work in the field of social services. Every day I am confronted with families who struggle with more children than they can care for and with behavioral and emotional problems. Frankly, it has turned me off. I am terrified of all the "what ifs."

I can't talk to my family because I don't want to tell them they have created part of my problem. My in-laws can't understand why we don't have children yet.

My husband keeps insisting "everything will be fine." I love him deeply and he would make an amazing father. My heart wants this, but my head isn't sure. I can't picture our future without children, but the fear of actually having them brings me to tears. Can you help me? — SCARED TO TAKE THE NEXT STEP

DEAR SCARED: Children don't come with 100 percent, money-back guarantees. What they need in order to thrive is parents who love each other and them, and who are willing to put forth the time and energy to raise them. I don't know what went wrong in your siblings' marriages, but it appears their kids have been used as pawns rather than having their own interests put first. If both parents cooperated in the interests of the children there would be no battles.

Please do not allow the dysfunction you have seen in your work to influence your decision. You and your husband will not be having more children than you can afford, and I assume you are approaching the idea of parenthood in a mature fashion. I would caution you about one thing, however. Having a child because of pressure from your in-laws would be a poor reason to embark upon parenthood.

DEAR ABBY: I'm at a crossroads. I have been married for 15 years and have two children. I love my wife and have been content with this life for a long time. However, for years I have felt like something was missing.

I recently become close friends with a man who is in the same situation. One day he confided that he is gay and has known it for more than 10 years. He told me he, too, had been content with his life but had grown increasingly depressed before we met.

As our friendship has developed I have come to realize that I'm gay as well. It was a struggle to finally admit this to myself, but I accept that it's the truth. My friend and I have been exploring our sexuality together, and he says he is happier than he has been in years.

Both of us love our wives and children; however, we desperately need to fulfill our own needs as well. Do you have any advice on the best way to move forward that will have minimal impact on everyone involved? — IN A DIFFICULT SITUATION

DEAR IN: You say you have known for years that something was missing. Well, it is possible that your wives have felt the same way, and may have blamed themselves for it. That's why it is important for you and your friend to explain everything to them honestly.

It would be helpful for everyone who will be affected to seek counseling and receive the emotional support they will need through this life-changing transition. You and your lover should go online and find the nearest gay and lesbian community center. (Visit www.lgbtcenters.org for a complete list.) Your wives should contact the Straight Spouse Network, which has been mentioned in my column many times. It can be reached at www.straight-spouse.org.

Junior Ranger Day slated for Saturday

SUBMITTED BY NPS

FRITCH — Lake Meredith National Recreation Area and Alibates Flint Quarries National Monument will celebrate National Junior Ranger Day this Saturday, April 20, at the Alibates Visitor Contact Station off Cas Johnson Road. This event kicks off National Park Week, April 20-28, when entrance fees into national parks across the country will be waived.

This year's theme is "Did you know...?" The Lake Meredith and Alibates Junior Ranger Day will begin at 9 a.m. and run until 4 p.m., with activities occurring throughout the day. Participants are invited to arrive at any time and spend a few hours or the entire day.

Children will have the opportunity to study native mammal and insect collections, learn about park ranger careers such as firefighting and law enforcement, watch flintknapping demonstrations, throw the atl-atl (an early Native American hunting tool), take ranger-guided hikes, and complete requirements to become Junior Rangers.

Parents can participate in activities along with their kids, watch the award-winning Alibates film, or enjoy a 15 percent discount in the park bookstore. All activities are free and open to the public.

For more information or directions, contact Lake Meredith Headquarters at 806-857-3151 or Alibates Visitor Contact Station at 806-857-6680.

National Park Week is April 20-28

SUBMITTED BY NPS

FRITCH — National Park Week 2013 is April 20-28, and national parks across the country will be rolling out the red carpet, welcoming visitors, and showcasing all of the great things going on with the parks and their programs.

The National Park Foundation is once again partnering with the national parks to spread the word to millions of Americans.

The joint website Nationalparkweek.org will highlight activities and invite visitors to share their park photos, videos, and tips.

Did you know that Alibates Flint Quarries National Monument... Is the only national monument in the state of Texas?

Contains a multi-colored flint, "Alibates flint," that is more correctly called ag-tized dolomite or silicified dolomite? Has more than 700 quarry pits where flint was dug out by hand? Was named for a cowboy called "Allie Bates"? Was originally authorized as "Alibates Flint Quarries and Texas Panhandle Pueblo Culture National Monument"?

Was created by the Sanford Dam on the Canadian River to provide water to 11 Texas Panhandle cities? Contains 200-foot canyons, called "breaks," that were cut and recut by the Canadian River? Has been home to humans for more than 13,000 years? Holds a yearly free fishing tournament for children ages 6-14, in partnership with the Small-Fry Fishing Tournament Association?

For more information, contact park headquarters at 806-857-3151 or Alibates visitor center at 806-857-6680.

Ill. governor calls Perry 'big talker'

SPRINGFIELD, Ill. (AP) — Illinois Gov. Pat Quinn said the Land of Lincoln doesn't need any advice from Texas Gov. Rick Perry.

The Chicago Democrat again defended Illinois' business climate on Wednesday as the former Republican presidential candidate announced that he's coming to Chicago this month to lure jobs to Texas and spurn competition between the states.

Quinn — who's pushed back on poaching attempts from Wisconsin, Indiana and New Jersey as the state grapples with monstrous financial problems— instead played up water technologies in Illinois. He cited a recent trade mission to Mexico to promote Illinois companies and the groundbreaking earlier this week of Danish water pump company Grundfos' North American headquarters in suburban Chicago.

"We know how to do it in Illinois. We don't need any advice from Gov. Perry," Quinn told reporters at the State Capitol. "His state, frankly, is water challenged, and any company thinking of going to Texas better check on their water."

Perry announced Wednesday that he's coming to Illinois from April 23-24, after purchasing $42,000 in radio advertising in the Chicago area. The ad is paid for by Texas One, a public-private marketing firm using private money.

The idea is to "spur competition between states and recruit jobs and employees to Texas," he said.

Perry, who has said he is considering running for president again in 2016, frequently travels to blue states with big Republican donors, including California, to recruit businesses to Texas. In Chicago, he will speak at the 2013 BIO International Convention.

While other governors, particularly on Illinois' borders, have tried to lure businesses from the state, the businesses themselves also have been public about their discontent with Illinois' financial problems. The head of heavy equipment maker Caterpillar Inc. blasted state officials last year in a newspaper editorial over the issue. That was after the company bypassed Illinois as a location for a new plant and 1,400 jobs.

Illinois has the worst pension problem in the country — which has led to lowered credit ratings — and billions in unpaid bills, something all the companies have noted.

In turn, Quinn and lawmakers have made extraordinary efforts to keep companies in the state. In 2011, he signed $100 million in tax breaks and incentives for Sears Holding Corp and CME Group Inc., which operates the Chicago Mercantile Exchange. Quinn has said the move saved thousands of jobs.

Quinn's office on Wednesday dismissed the Perry trip as a publicity stunt.

The governors have met before. They were roommates during a 2009 tour of Afghanistan and Iraq when several governors went to visit troops.

"He's a big talker," Quinn said.

Bill requires American history classes to graduate

AUSTIN (AP) — Texas college students would have to take six hours of comprehensive American or Texas history to earn their degrees under a bill scheduled for a hearing by a House panel.

Freshman Rep. Giovanni Capriglione, a Southlake Republican, filed his bill in March after a report critical of classes at the University of Texas and Texas A&M University.

Texas college students already take history in their core classes toward graduation. A recent report by the National Association of Scholars questioned whether classes that narrowly focus on American naval history or African-American history satisfy that requirement.

Capriglione's bill is specific that students must take a class with a "comprehensive survey" of American or Texas history, but some lawmakers have questioned whether the Legislature should meddle with specific college curriculum.

Ethics commission up for review at Legislature

AUSTIN (AP) — The Texas Ethics Commission is up for review and some possible changes at the state Legislature.

The House Elections Committee will consider significant changes to the commission, which collects campaign finance reports and investigates complaints against elected officials and lobbyists.

There are few limits on campaign contributions in Texas, so disclosure forms filed with the ethics commission are the main method of tracking political influence.

But lawmakers complain that one minor error on a form is treated the same as a major violation of law.

The disclosure process also relies on old technology, and lawmakers will consider updating the process. The details of those and other changes will be made Monday afternoon in Austin.

Senate votes to raise minimum age for tanning beds

AUSTIN, (AP) — The Texas Senate is trying to crack down on teen tanning.

The Senate voted Wednesday to raise the minimum age for using a tanning facility to 18 years old. The current minimum is 16 ½ with parental permission.

Lawmakers set the minimum age in 2009. Sen. Joan Huffman, a Houston Republican, says it should be raised to help reduce the cases of skin cancer.

According to a bill analysis, there are about 70,000 new cases of invasive melanoma each year and the disease is one of main causes of cancer deaths in women between 25 and 30.

The bill has been supported by doctors and opposed by the tanning industry. It now goes to the House for consideration.

Skip the trip: Renew online before summer rush

SUBMITTED BY DPS

AUSTIN — The Texas Department of Public Safety is encouraging residents to beat the summer rush at driver license offices across the state by renewing their license or identification card early or online. The summer months are typically the busiest time of year at driver license offices, and individuals can avoid the crowds during this time. Residents who are eligible can skip the trip to the office completely via online renewal of their license, identification card or change of address at Texas.gov.

"The summer months can mean more customers at driver license offices with students and families out of school or off work, but many Texans can avoid the rush or even skip the trip to the office altogether," said DPS Director Steven McCraw. "DPS currently offers several customer-convenient options, including online renewal of licenses and identification cards and our new high-capacity driver license mega centers in major metropolitan areas."

Licenses must be renewed in person every 12 years, so an updated photo can be taken and eyesight can be tested.

If residents need to come into the office to renew, they can do so within one year prior to the expiration date, which means they can pick a time that is convenient for their schedule.

To be eligible to renew online, the expiration date on the card must be within one year. When a resident renews their card, the expiration date on the new card will be six years after the current card's expiration date, even if customers renew early. The renewal fee is the same for online, in-person and telephone renewals.

In order to renew online, the card cannot have been expired for more than two years. Requirements for renewing online are available at Texas.gov.

If Texans do need to visit a driver license office, DPS is encouraging customers in the major metro areas to visit mega centers in their areas.

The six driver license mega centers are located in the Metroplex, Houston, San Antonio and Austin areas and feature technology that allows customers to reserve a place in line before arriving at the office. Customers can virtually enter the line via phone, mobile device or the Internet.

The system also allows customers to adjust their place in line — for instance, if they are running late, they can push themselves back in line.

Walk-in customers can use self-service check-in kiosks and have the option of returning later, closer to their appointment time.

For more information about the new mega centers and the technology that allows you to get in line before coming into the office, visit Tx.dps.state.tx.us/. Those eligible to renew online can also renew by phone by calling 1-866-DL-RENEW (1-866-357-3639)

Horticulture experts to answer questions on all things gardening

SUBMITTED BY TEXAS A&M AGRILIFE EXTENSION

AMARILLO — The Potter County AgriLife Extension Horticulture Committee, Potter County Master Gardeners and other local and regional experts will hold an open community round table forum from 6 to 7:30 p.m. April 22 at the Amarillo Botanical Gardens event room.

"My horticulture committee recognized a need for this public forum so we could answer clientele questions with correct, research based answers," said Brandon Boughen, Texas A&M AgriLife Extension Service agriculture and natural resources agent for Potter County.

"All too often clientele ask questions and the answer is 'buy this product' and it will fix everything," Boughen said. "We want to give the people of Amarillo and the surrounding area the correct information so they can make more informed decisions when it comes to their landscape, flower garden and vegetable garden."

Seating is limited, but no RSVP is required, he said.

"We just want to help people solve their problems by getting them good information. Several handouts and fact sheets will be available during the event."

Boughen said those unable to attend the community forum can submit questions by calling the AgriLife Extension office in Potter County at 806-373-0713 or by filling out the online question form at Potter.agrilife.org/links.

'Luke Comes to Life' at First Baptist

SUBMITTED

This dramatic presentation of the Gospel of Luke by mime Wesley Brainard captures audiences and moves them to first century Israel where Jesus is born, lives, is crucified and rises triumphantly from the grave. The public is cordially invited to attend this unusual moment of worship.

The event will be held 6 p.m., Sunday at First Baptist Church, 203 N. West St.

Brainard studied mime under Marcel Marceau — arguably one of the best nonverbal storytellers the world has ever known. For more than 25 years, he's been combining this art of gesture and action with the rich text of the Bible in his traveling one-man dramatic presentations of Luke, Acts, and Hebrews.

For more information, call Barry Owens, music minister, at 806-669-1155.

Perry announces recruiting trip to Illinois

AUSTIN (AP) — Gov. Rick Perry is heading to Illinois to recruit businesses to relocate to Texas.

The former presidential candidate made the announcement Wednesday, after purchasing $42,000 in radio advertising in the Chicago area. Perry calls Texas' business-friendly.

The ad is paid for by Texas One, a public-private marketing firm using private money.

His office says Perry will spend one night in Chicago from April 23-24 meeting with business leaders in the biotechnology and financial industries. He will also speak at the 2013 BIO International Convention.

Perry says he wants to "spur competition between states and recruit jobs and employees to Texas."

He frequently travels to blue states with big Republican donors, including California, to recruit businesses to Texas.

Perry has also said he is considering running for president again in 2016.

Key senator: Texas casino bill's odds 'very slim'

AUSTIN (AP) — A key advocate for approving casino gambling in Texas calls the chances of his bill passing "very slim."

The Austin American-Statesman reports that Texas Sen. John Carona, a Dallas Republican, decided not to have the business and commerce committee vote on his bill.

The bill would allow voters to decide on a constitutional amendment to allow casinos.

Carona said Tuesday his colleagues told him they didn't want vote on a controversial bill with little chance of success. He says the best chance for gambling might be if a special session is called for lawmakers to pass more school funding in the wake of a state-wide lawsuit.

Gambling supporters say casinos would create jobs and keep gambling revenue from leaving the state. Conservative and religious groups have opposed the bill.

The customer isn't always right

BROOKVILLE, Pa. (AP) — Police in one western Pennsylvania town are investigating a case of bar kill: dead animals tossed into a tavern by dissatisfied customers.

Brookville police Chief Ken Dworek says police believe they know who tossed the dead groundhog and, later, a grouse into Bill's Bar on Sunday, but they just can't prove it — yet. The (Dubois) Courier-Express reports the groundhog was tossed into the bar about 70 miles northeast of Pittsburgh about 5 p.m., before a man sped off in a pickup. About four hours later, two men returned and tossed in the dead grouse for good measure.

The chief tells The Associated Press he's hoping bystanders will help identify the men.
