PRMC's health fair is Oct. 5

BY TIMOTHY P. HOWSARE
 thowsare@thepampanews.com
 Pampa Regional Medical Center is hosting its second health and wellness fair 8 a.m. to noon Saturday, Oct. 5.
 The fair will be held on the hospital's campus at One Medical Plaza off Perryton Parkway.
 The hospital's first health fair was held last October and drew a large crowd, despite the cold and windy weather.
 Brad Morse, CEO of PRMC, expects an even bigger turn out this year now that the word has gotten out.
 He said he has held health fairs at the previous hospitals he's worked at and thought it would be a good idea to start them here.
 "The reason we do it is to open our doors to the community, to let them see what we have to offer," Morse said.

He said the fair will give the public a chance to meet some of the new physicians and ask questions about whatever is on their minds.
 Morse said other health care agencies in Pampa and the surrounding areas will have booths at the fair.
 The event is free to the public and includes:
 • Blood pressure checks.
 • Low-cost lab screenings. These will include a wide range of lab tests.
 • Vendor booths with giveaways.
 • A child safety booth.
 • Tours of the hospital.
 • Free food and beverages.
 • Christmas photos to benefit United Way. Money donated for the photography will be passed on to the Pampa United Way.
 For more information, call 806-665-3721.

PPD seeking owners of stolen property

■ Car break-in suspect arrested.

STAFF REPORT
 Officers of the Pampa Police Department took 28-year-old Bruce Ellwanger into custody Sept. 19 after finding him in possession of numerous items reported stolen during a string of auto burglaries that had occurred over the previous week.

Bruce Ellwanger

A large portion of the items reported stolen were recovered and returned to their owner. In addition, other items of value, believed to be stolen but not reported, were also recovered. Among these items is a firearm.

If you were the victim of an auto burglary but failed to report it, you are urged to contact the PPD Criminal Investigation Division at 806-669-5700 so that your items can be returned.

Further, PPD wants to remind everyone to lock their vehicle. The majority of all auto burglaries that occur are those for which the vehicle's doors are left unlocked. These can be prevented by simply taking or hiding items of value and locking the vehicle's doors.

Race for the Cure tomorrow

■ 75 percent of money raised stays in Panhandle.

BY TIMOTHY P. HOWSARE
 thowsare@thepampanews.com

If you're in the mood for some exercise Saturday morning, or just want to head into Amarillo for some fun, sign up for the 23rd annual Race for the Cure to benefit cancer research and treatment in the Panhandle.

The race is organized by the Greater Amarillo Affiliate of the Susan G. Komen for the Cure. Last year, the affiliate was able to dedicate $175,000 for the 26 counties of the Texas Panhandle.

There's an event for every level a fitness — a one-mile walk, 5K walk, 5K noncompetitive run and 5K competitive run.

The course starts at 4th and Polk streets in Downtown Amarillo.

Day of race registration is $35.

Even if you're not inclined to break into a sweat, you can come to hang out, attend the EXPO and visit the sponsor booths, said co-race chair Callie Holton.

She added that even if you sign up tomorrow, you can still collect donations for the race through the end of November.

Holton said she is expecting a big turnout this year.

"We already have 5,000 registered and would love to have 6,000," she said.

Race participants will enjoy a showcase EXPO presented by national and local sponsors, a Kids for the Cure Corner featuring hands-on activities for children and their parents, and special activities for breast cancer survivors.

"This Race offers activities for all ages, and we're so grateful for the support of thousands of men, women and children in the Panhandle area who are helping us spread the breast cancer awareness message within our community," said Ashley Kelley, Race for the Cure co-chair.

Water Garden Society donates to Snack Pak 4 Kids

SUBMITTED

Las Pampas Koi and Water Garden Society has donated $1,000 to Snack Pak 4 Kids.

Las Pampas Koi and Water Garden Society annually holds a water garden tour during the summer in Pampa that helps raise money in the community for various organizations and projects.

Pampa has been a part of Snack Pak 4 Kids since December. At the end of last school year it was providing 120 students in Pampa with sacks of food. A large percentage of the students in Pampa ISD are on free or reduced lunches.

They provide the sacks of food on Fridays so that students have some source of food over the weekend and holiday breaks.

The parents of the students are aware of their child being in the Snack Pak 4 Kids program, but the food is placed in their backpacks discreetly. The bags are placed in the students' backpacks when the kids are either at lunch, P.E. or music.

According to its website, www.snackpak4kids.com, "A Bushland couple that discovered Amarillo was the largest city west of Dallas without a weekend backpack program in their kitchen serving 10 kids.

"The program has grown to serve over 4,000 students in 24 school districts: Amarillo, Borger, Bushland, Canadian, Clarendon, Dalhart, Dimmitt, Dumas, Friona, Fritch, Happy, Hedley, Hereford, Highland Park, Lockney, Panhandle, Pampa, Perryton, River Road, Spearman, San Antonio, Stratford, Sunray, Tahoka, Tulia, White Deer, and Wildorado."

Snack Pak 4 Kids, run heavily by volunteers, targets students who live in food insecure homes identified by school faculty. Volunteers pack 10-12 nutritious snacks in plastic bags.

For more information on Snack Pak 4 Kids, call 806-337-5252 or visit their website www.snackpak4kids.

For more information on Las Pampas Koi and Water Garden Society, call Debbie Davis at 806-665-0123 or 806-663-9453.

First Baptist to host 5th Sunday Sing

First Baptist Church is located at 203 N West St. in Pampa.

STAFF REPORT

In those months with five Sundays, churches around Pampa gather and have a Fifth Sunday Sing ceremony. At this program, individuals, groups and choirs from participating churches come together and perform songs of praise.

After the performances, there is a short fellowship, but the main focus of Fifth Sunday Sing is the music. The month of September is among those months this year with five Sundays, so at 6 p.m. this Sunday, Sept. 29, First Baptist Church will be hosting Fifth Sunday Sing. Other churches that will be present at the service will include but are not limited to Cornerstone Baptist Church, Central Baptist Church and First Presbyterian Church.

Fifth Sunday Sing is open to the public and all are encouraged to come out and enjoy the musical talent of the residents of Pampa.

Cure

for the Cure and other affiliate fundraising events has allowed Komen Amarillo to distribute more than $1.5 million to community based programs in the Texas Panhandle. Up to 75 percent of the funds raised at the Race remain here in the affiliate to provide breast health research, diagnostics, screening, treatment, services and education for uninsured or underinsured women. The remaining 25 percent goes to fund national research to discover the causes of breast cancer and, ultimately, its cures.

“Donations provide women and men in the Panhandle area with services like free mammograms and diagnostics, medical treatment, education and support services that help save lives,” Holton said.

Since its inception, the Komen Greater Amarillo Affiliate continues its mission to save lives and end breast cancer forever by empowering people, ensuring quality care for all and energizing science to find the cures.

ATF misplaced 420 million cigarettes

WASHINGTON (AP) — Government agents acting without authorization conducted dozens of undercover investigations of illegal tobacco sales, misused some of $162 million in profits from the stings and lost track of at least 420 million cigarettes, the Justice Department’s inspector general said Wednesday.

In one case, agents for the Bureau of Alcohol, Tobacco, Firearms and Explosives sold $15 million in cigarettes and later turned over $4.9 million in profits from the sales to a confidential informant — even though the agency did not properly account for the transaction.

The ATF’s newly appointed director, B. Todd Jones, said the audit covered only selected, “historical” ATF investigations between 2006 and 2011, and said the agency had tightened its internal guidelines since then. The audit described widespread lack of ATF oversight and inadequate paperwork in the agency’s “churning investigations,” undercover operations that use proceeds from illicit cigarette sales to pay for the ATF’s costs.

The audit came as a new blow to a beleaguered agency still reeling from congressional inquiries into the ATF’s flawed handling of the Operation Fast and Furious weapons tracking probes in Mexico.

“ATF’s guidance regarding churning investigations lacked breadth and specificity, and managers at ATF headquarters as well as managers and special agents at ATF field offices often disregarded it,” Inspector General Michael E. Horowitz wrote in the 53-page audit.

Pa. kindergarten has 10 sets of twins

ALLISON PARK, Pa. (AP) — A Pittsburgh-area elementary school has a novel way to acclimate its kindergartners to the school experience, but it's not a technique that can be easily shared with other schools.

Burchfield Elementary School's brand-new kindergarten class has 10 sets of twins.

That means 20 out of 100 pupils in the affluent suburban school's kindergarten program started the year with at least one close friend.

Principal Jeff Rojik said that kindergartners are often nervous about starting school but that the twins are helping with that transition.

"You often have times where you have kids who are nervous about coming to school, who are anxious and have a lot of apprehension," Rojik told KDKA-TV.

"But so far, with 20 twins in a set of 100 students, it's a nice transition.

"They have a brother or a sister to help them get through the tough times."

Sally Engel agrees that it's nice to have her brother, Cy, in the same class.

"Whenever you want someone to play with and you don't have anybody else, you've got somebody in your family — you have a twin," Sally said.

Rojik said the kindergarten class isn't the only one with a glut of multiple birthed-siblings.

The school's first grade has four sets of twins and one set of triplets.

"It could be in the water," Rojik quipped.

We Bring Healthcare Home

At Accolade, we believe that all patients in our care should have expert medical care tailored specifically to their needs in a setting that they love best — their home.

If you are learning to live with a chronic illness, heart failure or diabetes; if you are recovering from surgery like a total hip or knee replacement and need physical therapy; if you are needing wound care or education on how to prevent falls, you can count on the caring nurses, therapists and aides to provide the quality care you need to recover and maintain your independence at home. No matter what challenges you may be facing — with Accolade, you are not alone.

Is Iran the Fourth Reich?

In the fall of 1956, Nikita Khrushchev threatened to rain rockets down on London for the British invasion of Suez and sent his tanks into Budapest to drown the Hungarian Revolution in blood.

PATRICK BUCHANAN

He blew up the Paris summit in 1960, banged his shoe at the U.N., and warned Americans, "We will bury you!" He insulted John F. Kennedy in Vienna, built the Berlin Wall, and began secretly to place missiles in Cuba capable of annihilating every city in the Southeast, including Washington.

Those were sobering times and serious enemies. Yet in the Eisenhower-Kennedy years, living under a nuclear Sword of Damocles unlike any the world had ever known, we Americans were on balance a cool, calm and collected crowd.

How then explain the semi-hysteria and near panic in circles of this city over the possibility President Obama might meet with President Hassan Rouhani and hold negotiations over Iran's nuclear program?

We hear talk of Hitler in the Rhineland, of a new Munich, of America failing to act as Britain failed to act, until, back to the wall, it had no choice but to fight. The old Churchill quotes are heard once again.

But is the Ayatollah Hitler? Is Rouhani von Ribbentrop? Is Iran the Fourth Reich? Should we be very very afraid?

Iran, we are told, is the most dangerous enemy America faces.

But is this true? Depending on one's source, Iran's economy is 2 to 4 percent of ours. After oil and gas, its big exports appear to be caviar, carpets and pistachio nuts. Inflation is unbridled and Iran's currency is plummeting. Here is the New York Times last month: "Rouhani's aides describe Iran's economic situation as the worst in decades. ... The signs of woe abound.

"Lacking money, Iran's national soccer team scrapped a training trip to Portugal. Teachers in Tehran nervously awaited their wages, which were inexplicably delayed by more than a week. Officials warned recently that food and medicine imports have stalled for three weeks because of a lack of foreign currency."

Should Iran start a war, the sinking of its coastal navy would be a few days' work for the Fifth Fleet. Its air force of U.S. Phantoms dating to the Shah and few dozen MiGs dating to the early 1990s would provide a turkey shoot for Top Gun applicants.

In 30 days, the United States could destroy its airfields, missile sites and nuclear facilities, and impose an air and naval blockade that would reduce Iran to destitution.

And Iran is not only isolated economically.

She is a Shia nation in a Muslim world 90 percent Sunni, a Persian nation on the edge of a sea of 320 million Arabs. Kurds, Azeris, Arabs and Baluch make up close to half of Iran's population. War with America could tear Iran apart.

Why then would Tehran want a war — and with a superpower?

Answer: It doesn't. Since the 1979 revolution, Iran has attacked no nation and gone to war once — to defend herself against Saddam Hussein's aggression that had the backing of the United States.

In that war, the Iranians suffered the worst poison gas attacks since Gamal Abdel Nasser used gas in Yemen and Benito Mussolini used it in Abyssinia. Iran has thus condemned the use of gas in Syria and offered to help get rid of it.

Last year, Iran's departing president Mahmoud Ahmadinejad, who frightened so many, made a simple logical point about Iran's supposed bomb program: "Let's even imagine that we have an atomic weapon, a nuclear weapon. What would we do with it? What intelligent person would fight 5,000 American bombs with one bomb?"

Yet, still, the beat goes on. "There is no more time to hold negotiations," says Israel's Strategic Affairs Minister Yuval Steinitz, Iran is only six months from developing an atom bomb.

Yet the New York Times reports Monday, "American intelligence experts believe Iran is still many months if not years away from having such a weapon." Time to clear this up.

Congress should call James Clapper, head of national intelligence, and pin him down publicly on these questions:

Has Iran made the decision to build an atom bomb? Does Iran even have all the ingredients for a bomb? If Iran made a decision to build a bomb would we know about it? And how long would it take for Iran to build and test a nuclear device?

Americans were misled, deceived and lied into one war. Let's not follow the same crowd into another.

Obama is being urged not to meet with Rouhani, as the man has a checkered past. Yet U.S. presidents met three times with Stalin, three with the Butcher of Budapest, once with Chairman Mao.

Compared to these fellows, Hussein Rouhani looks like Ramsey Clark.

Query: If Iran has the scientific and industrial capacity to build a bomb — and all agree it has — what could conceivably be the reason Iran has not yet done so?

Perhaps, just perhaps, Iran doesn't want the bomb.

Talk to the man, Mr. President.

Killers on the loose

Those very, very, very loose cannons, known as Muslim jihadists, have been shooting off around the world — massacring Christians in Pakistan, Africans in Nairobi and all kinds of Syrians, and in the process, reminding serious Westerners (we still have a few) of the need for clear leadership amid clear and present dangers.

So far, we can be sure only of one thing: We have no line on what's happening. Accordingly, we don't know what to do.

One might suppose we had figured out some of the essential matters 10 years ago, starting with the attack on the twin towers, followed by the U. S. counter-attacks in Afghanistan and Iraq. We were on the right track. We knew that a crazed — I used the adjective deliberately, in its dictionary sense, without theological overtones — faction in the Muslim world wants us dead or submissive on account of our disgusting commitment to human freedom, made worse by our outrageous instinct to defend and pursue that freedom abroad.

It has come to this: If you believe in freedom or in Jesus Christ or in the God of Abraham, Isaac and Jacob, you're a target for elimination at the hand of the crazies. (Aren't people who blow themselves up, and others with them, just a little, you know, tetched in the head?) The world is at war in a way unfamiliar to most of its 7 billion people, but we are at war, nonetheless, and are in need of strong leadership, as I was saying.

We seemed for a while to be waiting out the crazies, hoping they might find more fruitful pursuits, especially if we assured them of our good intentions and democratic instincts. They fling our patience back in our faces. These are villainous people, which is what they think of us, but so what? They are wrong. A concerted worldwide effort against them is of the essence.

An effort led by whom? Whether there is a point in landing with both feet upon the self-absorbed, self-adoring Barack Obama, I tend to doubt. Obama is Obama, with three years left to serve as president. It may not be possible to wake him up. The very least others may do while we wait out our national penance for the last election is try to focus with energy and intelligence on the role of the United States in the world at large. That role is one that continues to trouble Americans.

Are we the world's policeman — a rhetorical question popular in post-Vietnam times? Are we just people who prefer being left alone, eschewing foreign entanglements — the precious myth that neo-isolationists cultivate, in defiance of the historical record (the Monroe Doctrine, the Barbary pirate war, the Spanish-American War, etc.)?

The main thing we might want to be considered is bright. A bright people is unlikely in the extreme to let foreign enemies circle it, taunting it, beating up on its friends and associates, not to mention murdering their citizens and distorting relationships of all kinds. The crazies lack the ability to topple the republic. The damage of which they are capable, nevertheless, here and abroad, is extensive and costly.

A serious public debate, led by serious people — of whom there are relatively few in government these days, in either political party — could reinvigorate thinking and planning. As it is, we just sail along in these confused, leaderless times, taking in the view, reacting to discrete and specific events, unprepared, consequently, to react with intelligence and decision.

I hadn't meant to make these points today. I'd intended to speak to the miserable plight of ordinary people like the Pakistani Christians and the mall shoppers in Nairobi, caught between the crazies and their own semi-tuned-out governments, which doesn't count the government of the world's theoretically most liberty-loving nation — our own. Then I got to thinking. Are we going to do anything serious in our post-Syria mood, or do we go right on vegetating, waiting for the vegetable peeler to descend upon. Oh, not us! Surely not us! Care to bet?

No restraints on political opinions

We live in a vicious world. It took about one hour before the Russians started gloating about the Washington Navy Yard massacre. Alexei Pushkov, chairman of a foreign affairs committee in the Russian parliament, tweeted: "A new shoot-out at Navy headquarters in Washington — a lone gunman. ... Nobody's even surprised anymore. A clear confirmation of American exceptionalism."

The last paragraph of Vladimir Putin's New York Times op-ed from last week claimed there is no such thing as "American exceptionalism."

Russia remains a bad country, full of internal corruption and, in its foreign policy, supportive of the worst elements on Earth. Folks like the Syrian tyrant Bashar al-Assad and the murderous mullahs in Iran can expect the full cooperation of Russia along with all the arms they can buy.

Outrageous? You bet. But the sad truth is that the United States has largely lost the moral authority to call Russia out, and the world knows it.

Much of America's problem lies within. We are living in a narcissistic age in which millions of folks have withdrawn from life as we used to know it and have fabricated a false world for themselves on the Internet. Instead of experiencing life in its many natural forms, folks are now rejecting face-to-face social interaction, preferring to spend their time on machines.

According to his friends, the Navy Yard killer, 34-year-old Aaron Alexis, spent almost every night playing violent video games, isolating himself from reality. Then he apparently snapped. It will happen again.

With its emphasis on abundance, the United States has become a target of intense jealousy from all over the world. Even poor Americans have conveniences many people overseas will never have. A recent study by the Census Bureau says the poorest Americans have color TVs, air conditioners, computers, cellphones — almost every modern convenience. Poverty is a serious situation, and I don't mean to belittle it, but here in the USA, the poor are better off than in most other places on the planet, proving that democracy and capitalism do work.

But you'll never convince the anti-American people of that. And they will seize any excuse to diminish this country. We the people are giving our foes tons of ammunition, so to speak.

We continue to be a violent society, with much of the carnage fueled by angry young men who lacked a father while growing up.

The only solution to the violence problem in America is a return to traditional parental involvement. Every elected official should encourage this. Also, the abandonment and neglect of children by their parents should have civil consequences. Who exactly is looking out for children who are ignored? The answer right now: No one.

America remains a great country, a place where most people have a decent chance at a successful life if they're honest and work hard. But we have lost our way when it comes to family matters.

The bullets prove it.

daily horoscope

HAPPY BIRTHDAY for Saturday, Sept. 28, 2013:
This year you make a difference in a way that surprises many people. You become more emotional than you have been in years. You often seem cool and collected to others, but there is a newfound intensity. If you are single, you attract a very different type of person. You might enjoy relating more with your feelings. If you are attached, the two of you enjoy a greater sense of intimacy because of your willingness to be who you are. CANCER often has an attitude with you.
The Stars Show the Kind of Day You'll Have: 5-Dynamic; 4-Positive; 3-Average; 2-So-so; 1-Difficult
ARIES (March 21-April 19)
★★★★ You might be taken aback by a choice that you've made. Your desire to please a loved one or a child comes to the forefront. This person -- most likely a family member -- appreciates your positive caring and responds accordingly. Tonight: Make it cozy. Put your feet up and relax.
TAURUS (April 20-May 20)
★★★★ What you say and do could be very different from what you originally anticipated. Pressure could build to a level of discomfort if you attempt to go along with someone else's agenda. Be realistic; he or she probably realizes what an effort you're making. Tonight: Snuggle.
GEMINI (May 21-June 20)
★★★ Be aware of the cost of heading down your present path. You might want to switch gears and try something very new and different. Keep an eye on the long-term costs of taking the course you want. Ask yourself if it is really worth it. Tonight: Make it your treat.
CANCER (June 21-July 22)
★★★★★ You'll beam in many opportunities, but you might want to stop and think about which ones you really would like to jump on. Understand your limits and make choices accordingly. Others seem to agree to what you want, no matter what it is. Tonight: Surrounded by friends.
LEO (July 23-Aug. 22)
★★★ If you want to take a day to yourself, do. You might have a great time having no plans or restrictions. Let your imagination lead the way, and you might have a surprisingly good time. If you are attached, be careful, as you could incur some jealousy. Tonight: Let it all hang out.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22)
★★★★ Your ability to make a situation work emerges. In fact, you suddenly might realize that you would enjoy bringing friends from all walks of life together. What happens could be talked about for a very long time. Enjoy the people around you. Tonight: Out late.
LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 22)
★★★★ Take a stand with a boss or an older friend, if you must. This person respects your opinion and values your feedback and perceptions. Go with the flow of a certain situation, for you understand the process and know that the debate will be lively. Tonight: Near good music.
SCORPIO (Oct. 23-Nov. 21)
★★★★ You might want to relate on a one-on-one level, whether you are going to the movies or having a late brunch. Resist inviting others to come along. All relationships need this quality time. A brief tiff could make both of you lighten up and laugh. Tonight: Where the action is.
SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21)
★★★★ You might feel entitled to make an investment when someone gives you the OK. However, what if others involved are not in agreement? Consider their perspectives, and listen to what they have to say. Manipulation probably won't work. Tonight: Go on a good old-fashioned date.
CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19)
★★★★ You can't help but enjoy a sudden surge of popularity. Having to make a choice about what to do -- especially if you are single -- could be somewhat difficult. Resist the urge to follow your knee-jerk reaction. Tonight: You are the honey, and everyone wants a taste!
AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18)
★★★★ You have the ability to see beyond the obvious. You will be able to surmount a problem with ease, if you detach. Get into a project or perhaps do some early season raking and get ready for fall. You might feel the tension ease as a result. Tonight: Invite a friend or two over for pizza.
PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20)
★★★★★ You'll make this day as close to perfect as possible. You know what you want and where you are heading. Others might decide to be your companions. Go off and allow your inner child to romp around. You will be much happier as a result. Tonight: Let the good times roll.

Dear Abby...

By Pauline & Jeanne Phillips

DEAR ABBY: I am the mother of a 4-year-old daughter and pregnant with my second child. My boyfriend and I live in a nice house and have a comfortable lifestyle. We each pay our own bills, and I pay half the mortgage that is in his name. I am extremely unhappy at my job. The job itself isn't the problem; it's the management team and its effect on office morale. They treat us employees like dirt, thus everyone is always fighting with each other. I try to stay out of it, but I am unhappy to the core there. I want to find another job after my maternity leave, but I'm afraid my soon-to-be-fiance won't be willing to pick up the slack financially while I'm temporarily unemployed. Isn't this the normal give-and-take that "married" couples go through? Shouldn't I expect him to help me if I'm going through a rough patch? Are my expectations unreasonable? — EXPECTING AND DEPRESSED IN TEXAS

DEAR EXPECTING: I assume that you have discussed this with your boyfriend and he wasn't receptive. Your expectations wouldn't be unreasonable if you WERE married or at least engaged. But you're not. While you and I think he should help you financially over this rough patch, he may feel no obligation to do so. If that's the case, your not-quite-fiance appears to be treating you like a roommate-with-benefits. Because you are not on the title of the house you pay half the mortgage on, there is no guarantee you will ever have anything to show for your contribution. In light of that, of course he should be supportive emotionally and financially if you leave your job. Expecting him to step up to the plate is not unreasonable. But whether he agrees with you and me is another matter. Please find out before you invest any more money or he impregnates you again.

DEAR ABBY: My husband and I are well into a relaxed retirement. His successful, middle-aged son "Rory" has developed the habit of stopping by unannounced occasionally on his way home from work. This would be fine except that it falls in the middle of the dinner hour. Although we ask Rory to join us, he prefers to just stand over us and talk about his day while we eat. This wasn't his childhood home, so it's not a matter of an extended familiarity with this residence. I have asked his father to speak to him about it, and while he agrees that his son's actions are rude, he refused to say anything. My husband is mild-mannered and seems to be happy that Rory takes the time to see him. To me, it looks like this is the most convenient time for Rory to get the occasional parent visit out of the way while not considering our feelings. Because I have had a good long-term relationship with my stepson, I took him aside and politely explained that these dinner interruptions are discourteous. Rory blew up at me! I was astonished to see a mature man I respected act in such a childish manner. Now I'm the culprit in a family rift, while my husband remains mute. Should I have focused on digestion and held my tongue? — DISAPPOINTED STEPMOM

DEAR STEPMOM: might have been better because your husband refused to say anything and won't back you up, it appears the answer is yes. While some people consider the dinner hour to be sacred, not everyone does, and your stepson's visits were only occasional. Your request

Harvesters tennis wins match at Borger

STAFF REPORT

The Pampa Harvesters won their tennis match against Borger Tuesday night.

“Everyone contributed to the team win. Players played hard and I was very proud of their effort that they gave, great play by all,” tennis head coach Sarah Corse said.

Winners on girls include Emily Terry, Genevieve Zavala, Harley Elliott, Kaycee Sellers, Kristi Klusmeyer and Zoe Hulsey.

On the boys side winners include Blake Chisum, Chase Cree, Ajay Mitchell and Jordan Moore.

The next tennis meet is against Perryton at Harvesters Courts, starting at 9 a.m.

Chase Cree is one of the players who won Tuesday night.

Pampa Harvesters look to take on fellow 3A Vernon

Improving Harvesters versus undefeated Lions.

By JOHN LEE

jlee@thepampanews.com

Last week against Bushland, the Harvesters were facing what many believe to be a Division 1 recruit at quarterback for Bushland High School. It will be a complete flip as they take on the Vernon Lions.

Quarterback David Garza for Vernon has only thrown 19 passes all season. He has completed 12 of them, for 227 yards, three touchdowns and two interceptions.

So how is this team undefeated? Look at the backfield. They are averaging 377 yards a game on the ground.

On the ground, seniors Orlando Haymon and Danny Valverde have 728 yards and 441 yards respectively.

The Pampa Harvesters looked stronger last week against Bushland. Defensively they put pressure on the quarterback and held their rushing game to 76 yards, but they were playing a passing team.

According to Top of Texas Magazine, the Vernon Lions' weakness is their line play on both sides of the ball, which is opposite for the Harvesters who are very experienced on their lines.

If the Harvesters can push the Lions around at the line of scrimmage, and continue the momentum running the ball, they can open up a passing game that was successful last week.

Brycen McClendon and Daymon Flores ran the ball well for the Harvesters last week. This opened up the passing game and allowed the offense to be productive.

The Harvesters would love to pull out the upset before they go on the road for consecutive weeks.

Game time is Friday at 7:30 p.m. at Harvester Field.

NFL Briefs

Twitter, NFL reach deal to show football videos

NEW YORK (AP) — The National Football league struck a deal to show game highlights and other video content on Twitter ahead of the short messaging service's initial public offering of stock.

The deal is part of Twitter's "Amplify" program, which lets TV broadcasters show ad-supported video clips in users' Twitter feeds as the users discuss what they are watching on TV in real time. Other partners include The Weather Channel, the National Basketball Association, Warner Music and CBS.

Terrelle Pryor not practicing for Raiders

ALAMEDA, Calif. (AP) — Terrelle Pryor is not practicing for the Oakland Raiders two days after suffering a concussion late in a loss to the Denver Broncos.

Backup Matt Flynn worked with the first-team offense in practice Wednesday as the Raiders (1-2) prepared to play the Washington Redskins (0-3) on Sunday.

Pryor is not able to practice or attend meetings until he is cleared by doctors. He got hurt late in Monday night's loss in Denver when he was knocked out on a helmet-to-helmet hit by Broncos linebacker Wesley Woodyard while running a quarterback draw.

O-line beat up as Chargers prepare for Cowboys

SAN DIEGO (AP) — Right tackle D.J. Fluker was the only starter on the offensive line practicing Wednesday as the team began preparing for the Chargers' game with the Dallas Cowboys.

Otherwise, the line was made up of a mixture of backups as the Chargers compensate for a wave of injuries.

Houston's Mercilus: Fined $15,000 for Flacco hit

HOUSTON (AP) — Houston outside linebacker Whitney Mercilus says he's been fined $15,000 for a hit on Baltimore quarterback Joe Flacco.

Mercilus was fined for a play where his helmet hit the chin of Flacco. Mercilus was given a penalty for roughing the passer on the play.

Golf Thought of the Week

Focus on each and every shot

When you play golf, do you care of the day weigh on your mind and interfere with your game? Or do you find golf the perfect escape from the trials and tribulations of a normal day?

The golf swing is not natural. The game provides numerous challenges on each and every shot. This is a game that demands your total concentration on every single shot. Just ask Henrik Stenson. It is well documented by now that Stenson experienced a personal nightmare after some dubious investment decisions — coincidence that his form suffered dramatically?

Well, back on an even emotional and mental keel, he has been on a pretty hot run of form for quite a while now and it seems he has saved the best for last in the pursuit of the huge prize money at the finish of the FedEx Cup tournament. His concentration may have wavered on a few back-nine holes each day, but when you're shooting very low 30's for the front nine each round, maybe that's OK.

TIM STADLER

When you step out on the course next time, try very hard to leave behind your issues and challenges. Look at each shot as an opportunity to produce your very best swing and to enjoy the thrill of the end result. And if it doesn't come off, focus on what you think went wrong, learn from that and then move on to the next shot and focus on the challenges and opportunities that shot offers you.

Golf, for Stenson, is a job. For the rest of us it's the opportunity to challenge ourselves and to have a whole lot of fun. Contact us if you think we can help grow the fun you're going to have next time out!

Regards,
Tim
