Mark Lang recently named rector at St. Matthew's Episcopal Church

BY JOHN LEE

jlee@thepampanews.com

Those who attend St. Matthew's Episcopal Church have been seeing a pair of priests lead sermons the last year or so. But Mark Lang has now been named rector of the parish.

Lang has lived in Pampa nearly his entire life except for a few years in Germany.

"(Germany) was good, it was in 1972-75," Lang said. "That's where I met my spouse. Her dad was in the military."

There will be an actual Celebration of New Ministry for Lang at 10 a.m. on Saturday, April 18. But he has been on the job as rector since Feb. 1.

Lang was ordained as a priest on Dec. 17, 2013 and did a Christmas Eve service in Shamrock and was going to Shamrock once a month to preach there until former rector Linda Kelly retired in February of 2014.

Lang was ordained with two other people, Charles Smith and Dr. Claude Betty. Dr. Betty actually to over being a priest at another church.

Lang grew up here in Pampa and actually went to St. Matthew's Episcopal Church growing up.

"I always loved the services and the liturgy," Lang said. "There were periods in my life when I did not go to church a lot but I always missed it. I always missed coming here."

When Lang and his wife, Karen, got married in 1976, they were looking for a church home. With Karen being a Baptist, Lang was not sure she would enjoy the Episcopal Church. But Lang

Stephanie Kelly has served as a CASA of the High Plains Board Member. She has taken her passion of keeping children safe to a new level. Upon completing a 30 hour Pre-Service training recently, Stephanie was sworn in as a CASA of the High Plains advocate by The Hon. Jack Graham, Northern Panhandle Child Protection Court judge. As a CASA volunteer, Stephanie will serve as an independent voice for children who tend to get lost amidst an overburdened child welfare system. CASA volunteers are trained and supervised to advocate for the best interests of children in foster care and to make recommendations that help judges decide what is best for each child. If you would like to know more about advocating for abused and neglected children, contact CASA of the High Plains 806-669-7638. Pre-Service Training Classes start Feb. 24.

Four wrestlers state bound this weekend

The Pampa High School wrestling team will be sending four wrestlers to state. Shiann Regalado won the regional championship at the 119 weight class. She will head to state undefeated this season and it will be her third appearance at state. JT Belcourt came in second in the 170 weight class. This will be Belcourt's third trip to state. Austin Hernandez placed fourth in the 285 weight class. It will be his first trip to state. Cheyenne Williams will attend state as an alternate. She finished fifth in regionals at the 185 weight class. Other notable finishes at regionals: Miranda Foreman placed sixth in the 110 weight class and Cade Ferguson placed sixth in the 138 weight class. Both Foreman and Ferguson wrestled hard but came up short of state. The wrestlers will head to Garland for state this Thursday. The tournament will take place Friday and Saturday. Best of luck to you Shiann, JT, Austin and Cheyenne and bring back some medals to Pampa! Pictured, from top, Shiann Regalado, Austin Hernandez, JT Belcourt and Cheyenne Williams. More pictures from regionals are on page 11A.

Lang

said she surprised him and told him she liked going to St. Matthew's Christian Church.

"I started getting involved, especially after my kids left," Lang said.

"I started as an acolyte, then as a master for training acolytes. Then the parish went through what's called a discernment process and then they polled all of the people here and said 'Who would be good at doing what?' Such as a deacon or the possibility of a priest and Charles and myself were lucky enough to be selected."

The two men then started a process of what used to be called reading for orders. They started the process at the diocese and took three years or longer.

Lang had also gone through the Education for the Ministry at the University of the South at Seawane, which had mentors in Pampa.

"The diocese is pretty strict," Lang said.

"You have to go through multiple interviews and psychiatric exams and profiles. Plus the discernment process. I decided since I loved the liturgy, I loved St. Matthews and the people that are here, I would see if I could finish this program. Luckily enough I did."

Lang worked as the quality manager at Cabot Corporation for 32 years and said it is pretty unusual for someone to be a member of a parish and to be named rector of that parish.

Lang retired from Cabot Corporation on Jan. 30 and began working as the rector that following Sunday.

Lang said that everything about being rector has been great so far.

"All of it," Lang said. "Children's chapel in the morning is certainly a highlight."

Lang said St. Matthew's welcomes anyone to come check out St. Matthew's.

"Regardless of anything that's going on in their lives," Lang said.

"If they come here they are going to be welcomed with open arms. They are a very supportive congregation. We are very fortunate that the music we have here, although it's not modern-type praise music, we have the most talented organist and keyboardist within 500 miles. It's a wonderful place."

Lang said St. Matthew's stresses going out and doing God's work regardless of what your ministry is.

St. Matthew's goes through all of the seasons of the church such as Epiphany, Lent, Advent and Pentecost.

"We have a pretty good congregation," Lang said.

"One of the things that we do is every third Wednesday evening we open our doors for community ministry dinner here in the parish hall and anyone is welcomed to come eat with us. We don't ask for a donation, we don't want a donation. Just come eat a meal, enjoy some fellowship and if you want to write down needed prayers we will add them to the prayer list for that month."

Lang enjoys that ministry and wishes they could do it more often.

St. Matthew's also supports the Good Samaritan House.

Mark and Karen have two children, Wes, a traffic investigator for Amarillo Police Department, and Courtney Green, of St. John's Episcopal Church in Norman, Okla.

"(Karen) is a great support and help to me," Lang said.

Lang said his favorite thing about Pampa is the people and that it isn't crowded. He also loves the sunset and the weather in Pampa.

St. Matthew's Episcopal Church is located at 727 West Browning Avenue in Pampa. They can be reached at 806-665-0701.

"I invite anybody looking for a place to find a relationship with God," Lang said. "This is a wonderful place to do it. We know that everyone's spiritual journey is not the same and we just do our best to help them find that relationship with God."

Wild boar causes flight delays

MADRID (AP) — Spain's airport authority says a wild boar that broke through a perimeter fence at Madrid's international airport caused runways to be shut briefly and two landings to be delayed.

The beast set off security alarms late Friday and when cameras focused on the spot, operators observed it turning around and loping off through the hole it had made.

The incident happened 100 meters (330 feet) from the nearest stretch of runway. It delayed an incoming flight from London 20 minutes and a domestic flight from A Coruna 10 minutes, the airport authority's statement said Saturday.

Newspaper El Pais reported the captain aboard Iberia flight 3179 inbound from London told passengers an animal had "surprisingly" forced him to abort a landing approach.

The hole was repaired later.

District: 5 students wrongly given 'Fifty Shades' puzzles

MONESSEN, Pa. (AP) — A Pennsylvania school district superintendent says five middle school students were mistakenly handed word search puzzles based on "Fifty Shades of Grey" with such terms as "leather cuffs" and "spanking."

Schools Superintendent Leanne Spazak issued a statement Thursday apologizing and saying the puzzles were "mistakenly and unknowingly" put in a stack of worksheets given to five students Monday.

Spazak didn't say how that happened or whether any employees were disciplined.

Prairie Plains Perspective Enter well, exit a hypochondriac

“In filling out an application, where it says, ‘In case of emergency, notify:’ I put DOCTOR.”

DENNIS PALMITIER

Winston Churchill While motoring north last week on Boulevard de Somerville I notice two men walking, bent over carrying something between them. As I approach, whatever it is they’re carrying is difficult to hold, for one loses his grasp, forces his partner into the throes of sudden stress, but he regains control before it hits the...oh wait, they’re lugging a toilet! I slow down as I pass them, keeping a curious eye in the rear view mirror, but I don’t see them turn towards any house, just continue their crab walking the toilet down the sidewalk! Um, anyone living on or residing in close proximity to Somerville missing your loo?

Twas on the way to my doctor’s office for my quarterly arse sticking, my mind (I don’t like needles) was already working against me. Needing the distraction, I started contemplating the what if’s in regard to the two toiling toilet toters. Were they two filching a toilet? I mean, how many times in my life have I come upon two people carrying a porcelain throne down a city street? Never.

An augury perhaps, for yours truly a foreboding of bad things to come? Could be, however, this is Pampa...

weirder stuff I’ve witnessed, so to the doctor’s office I motored on. Four patients were waiting ahead of me when I checked in for my appointment. Not to worry I thought to myself, Matt (Gill) nurse practitioner extraordinaire moves patients at a thorough clip. Three of the patients are children in various forms of raucous respiratory distress, so wisely I opt for a seat away from them and opposite end from the fourth patient, a woman quietly sitting, tinkering with her cell phone.

The very second I sit down the woman goes into a coughing, hacking, phlegm filled croupy fit! Too much information? All I need is to inhale some of her ever spreading germ cloud and it’ll be Katie bar the door! I start breathing through my nose while wishing I had my lucky rabbit’s foot. More alarming, the waiting room quickly fills up with more sick kids! Every single child is now coughing, sniveling and snorting with a few adding for special sound effect, their best sobbing and crying!

Defined as heebie jeebies (don’t tell me you don’t get them!), I’m now fearful of becoming deathly ill. I’ve decided to vacate post haste the flu trap, but for fear of opening my mouth to speak (inhalation) I’m trying to figure out how best to sign language the clerk when I’m called back for my shot. Relief is short lived, for once in the diagnostic room Matt informs me the clinic is out of my much needed Kenalog injection, it’s on order, that I’ll have to return a later date for requisite arse sticking. Immediately, I start itching and scratching. Those two toilet toters were an omen!

That frightful experience brought back a recall from the days of yore. Physician house calls. Most Pampa physicians in the 1950’s into the 1960’s made house calls. Dr. Bellamy a few times came to casa Palmitier. I know Dr. Laycock did the same for his obstetrics patients. Sure would have been nice to call, especially so since I was well and did not wish to be exposed to disease, a house calling physician or nurse to come by my fifth floor aerie and give me that shot. Of note and presently operating in large cities, there is a nationwide physician house calls company. One of these days for Pampa? Let’s hope so.

Till that day, how about separate waiting rooms including separate entrances/exits in clinics? One side for the infirm, the other for those that are well, only needing physician services like physicals, routine shots, etc? If such were possible, may not have prevented my omen or two occurring, however, would have negated the need for that Valium Rx.

Playing with Peyton Peyton James: lunging towards crawling

In the last couple weeks since my last article about my bundle of joy, Peyton has taken definitely grown quite a bit. Peyton has definitely gotten more efficient with his sitting upright unaided by a pillow or Mommy or Daddy sitting behind him. He still occasionally loses balance and topples over orange cone in a West Texas wind storm, but for the most part he supports himself and plays with his toys just fine.

So, naturally, Maria and I have decided it’s time to teach Boy Wonder how to become mobile and crawling. He can hold himself on his hands and knees somewhat and in these instances we will put one of his favorite toys in front of him. We do this when he is sitting sometimes, too, in hopes of encouraging him to find means to get to his toy.

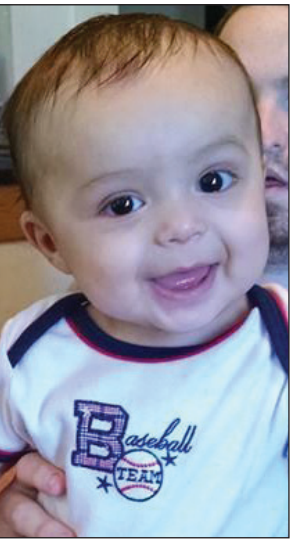

Rather than just sitting there staring and wondering how to get it, or look at Mom and Dad crying, Peyton will lunge himself at the toy. Maria and I always check on him before getting a chuckle out of seeing our son risk carpet burns to get his toy. If there is one thing he has mastered and tries to use it as a loophole to getting his toy, it’s rolling over.

Peyton is definitely growing, recently weighing in at roughly 16 pounds. He has recently figured out if he cries overnight Mom or Dad (usually Mom, I’m a heavy sleeper, guilty) will come to his rescue. I find it odd considering his first few months is was a heavy sleeper like his old man.

Peyton recently celebrated his half-birthday last Wednesday and is fixing to get ready for his first Easter in a few weeks. I am sure I will have an adventure to tell before then. Until then, everyone have a great week.

This picture was taken about a week and a half ago when Peyton was all smiles with that beautiful weekend we had a couple weekends ago.

Operation digital delta force

I was humbled and honored to see on various global news networks how my action movies that were pirated into Romania when it was a communist country inspired generations and set the stage for revolution against former dictator Nicolae Ceausescu. However, the total truth is that without the common people rising up, rebelling and supporting freedom, change and democracy, the motivation from my movies would have been short-lived or even missing in action.

Here’s a sample of headline news from around the globe this past week:
BBC News: “Talking Movies: How Chuck Norris changed Romania.”
Fox News: “‘Chuck Norris vs. Communism’: How American movies helped overthrow Romanian regime.”
WorldNetDaily: “Chuck Norris now credited for cracking”

Just a Thought Something is gained and something is lost

Today is here. Life is happening as you read this. The moments you spend reading this column cannot be replaced. It is always my prayer that the words that I type into my keyboard will make a difference in the lives they touch.

You see, you live life with limited resources. Resources are meant to be spent, because you can’t take them with you. Time, energy, finances, belongings, you can break your resources into numerous categories.

Some resources are equal to each of us. We all have the same 24 hours in our days. That is a constant. Other resources are not equal. We have different levels of energy, health, finances, years on this planet, and so on.

Add to this dimension that each of our lives consist of seasons. We journey from one season to another. Seasons vary some from person to person. Seasons may include childhood, high school, college, dating years, married years, parenting years, working up the ladder, retirement, and so on...

In March 1967 singer/writer Joni Mitchell was looking out the window of a plane down on the clouds below. She was motivated to write her thoughts down and the end result became the classic song “Both Sides Now.”

It was first released by Judy Collins in 1967 and climbed to number three on the charts winning a Grammy Award for Best Folk Performance. Joni Mitchell’s first recording of the song was released in 1969.

The song is about a world view. Each of our world views define our lives, because it controls how we see our world. The lyrics of her song are as follows:

“Rows and flows of angel hair and ice cream castles in the air and feather canyons everywhere. I’ve looked at clouds that way.
“But now they only block the sun, they rain and snow on everyone. So many things I would have done, but clouds got in my way.
“I’ve looked at clouds from both sides now, from up and down and still somehow, it’s cloud’s illusions I recall. I really don’t know clouds at all.

“Moons and Junes and Ferris wheels, the dizzy dancing way that you feel as every fairy tale comes real. I’ve looked at love that way.
“But now it’s just another show, you leave ‘em laughing when you go. And if you care, don’t let them know. Don’t give yourself away.
“I’ve looked at love from both sides now, from give and take and still somehow, it’s love’s illusions I recall. I really don’t know love at all.
“At all and fears and feeling proud, to say ‘I love you’ right out loud. Dreams and schemes and circus crowds, I’ve looked at life that way.
“Oh but now old friends they’re acting strange, they shake their heads, they say I’ve changed. Well something’s lost, but something’s gained in living every day.
“I’ve looked at life from both sides now, from win and lose and still somehow, it’s life’s illusions I recall I really don’t know life at all.
“I’ve looked at life from both sides now, from up and down, and still somehow it’s life’s illusions I recall. I really don’t know life at all.”

She closes with a comment on the mystery of life. And I am not sure any of us really “know life at all.” Nevertheless, each of us have been given the gift of life.

I also know that each of us sees life through our own eyes. And each of us is entitled to see life as we want to see it. Our view of life has consequences, sometimes good and sometimes bad. An “entitlement” view can lead to frustration. A “grateful” view can lead to counting blessings. An “arrogant” view can lead to broken relationships. A “humble” view can lead to lifting others up on their journey. Regardless, you see the world the way you see it from where you are standing and through the pair of glasses you choose to wear. You see the world from the season you are experiencing.
Every step you have taken in your life leads you to today. This is unchangeable. The steps ahead of you are not yet determined. Your word view today and tomorrow will determine your happiness going forward.

Life is 10 percent what happens to you and 90 percent what happens in you. You can't control the 10 percent, but you definitely control how you respond, the 90 percent.

My challenge to you today is to recognize that you choose how you see the world. If you don't like the way you see the world, change the way you see the world. Put on a new pair of glasses and watch what happens. It is really that simple...and that complex, but either way you choose.

Bottom line, life is what we make it. Period. You get one chance at life in the 80 or so trips you get around the sun.

This column can be broken down to eight simple words "Change your world view and change your world." Do you need a new prescription for your glasses?

Remember that something's lost, but something's gained in living every day. How is today lookin' for you? How about tomorrow?

Just a thought...

Gloria Mae Terry

Gloria Mae Terry slipped the surly bonds of earth on Feb. 14, 2015, in Pampa, after 82 years of mental and physical limitations following a serious illness when she was two years of age.

Gloria Mae Terry

Graveside services will be at 10 a.m. Wednesday, Feb. 18, 2015, at Fairview Cemetery, with Rev. Joel Osborne, pastor of Fellowship Baptist Church, officiating. Arrangements are under the direction of Carmichael-Whatley Funeral Directors.

Miss Terry was born June 12, 1932, to Iva M. Derryberry Terry on a farm near Magic City in Wheeler County. She was a member of Fellowship Baptist Church.

Gloria was cared for by her mother until 1994 when Eunice McMillan became her guardian and good and faithful friend.

Gloria was an only child, but her childhood was filled with many cousins and family friends who knew her as a most loving and giving person. She loved God, Roy Rogers, Elvis Presley, and almost everyone she encountered. Her joy of life was an inspiration to everyone who was privileged to know this angel on earth.

Survivors include an aunt, Wilma Hart of Pampa; and several cousins, including Scot Davey and Bernie Derryberry, both of Amarillo, Margaret Bishop of Salem, Ore., and Nita Anderson of Pampa.

Memorials may be made to Pampa Sheltered Workshop, P.O. Box 2808, Pampa, Texas 79066-2808.

Sign the on-line guest register at www.carmichael-whatley.com.

Eunice McMillan

Eunice McMillan, 92, of Pampa, died Feb. 15, 2015, in Ardmore, Okla.

Services will be at 10 a.m. Thursday, Feb. 19, 2015, at Carmichael-Whatley Colonial Chapel, with Rev. Norman Rushing, pastor of Central Baptist Church, officiating.

Burial will follow in Memory Gardens Cemetery under the direction of Carmichael-Whatley Funeral Directors.

Mrs. McMillan was born June 29, 1922, in Williamsburg, Va., to William and Virginia Austin New. She married Cecil O. McMillan on July 20, 1946 at First Baptist Church in Amarillo. He preceded her in death on May 12, 2003.

Eunice worked for First National Bank for more than 35 years where she held several positions, including being one of the first female loan officers. She was a long time and dedicated member of Central Baptist Church. She volunteered at Coronado Healthcare Center for more than 30 years and had cared for countless people in their homes, ensuring they had everything they needed, including spiritual support. Eunice was a dear friend to all she knew. She served everyone with a servant's heart.

Eunice was preceded in death by her son, Larry McMillan.

Survivors include her daughter-in-law, Dana McMillan of Ardmore, Okla.; six grandchildren, Kim Lynch and husband Robert of Ardmore, Okla., Keith McMillan and wife Becky of Holcomb, Kan.; Brian McMillan and wife Debbie, Charlie Thrasher and wife Misty, Audra Coburn and Kelly Thrasher, all of Amarillo; 12 great grandchildren and two great-great grandchildren.

Memorials may be made to Coronado Healthcare Center Activities Department, c/o Kristie Fuller, 1504 W. Kentucky, Pampa Texas 79065, or Central Baptist Church Youth Scholarship Fund, 513 E. Francis, Pampa Texas 79065.

communism."

National Post: "Cold War hot takes: Chuck Norris and other secret weapons for tackling Russia onscreen."

New York Post: "How Chuck Norris 'defeated' Communism."

Daily Herald: "Sundance Notebook: Communism can't handle Chuck Norris."

Indiewire: "'Chuck Norris vs. Communism' Shows How the American Dream Toppled a Communist Regime."

All the recent media hoopla stems from the Sundance Film Festival premiere of the documentary "Chuck Norris vs. Communism," which utilizes my action films and me as a metaphor for heroism and strength.

The documentarian who made the film, Ilinca Calugareanu, told Fox 411 at its premiere: "We wanted to shine a light into a more serious decade in Romanian history. Movies gave people a picture of the world they wanted to have but never could have dreamed about. People could also see normal interaction between people without the fear that comes with living under a dictatorship."

Calugareanu went on to honor and humble me by explaining, "(Chuck Norris) was one of the most popular action stars in the VHS films smuggled into Romania. He was a good icon for the American films. His films gave a clear concept between good and bad, and that fascinated people."

As the New York Post further noted, many movies, including my movies "Mission in Action" and "Lone Wolf McQuade," were "forbidden by (Romanian) law and impossible to come by except in bootlegged versions." Nevertheless, pirates would smuggle bootleg copies of my movies into the country, and neighborhood viewings would embolden and inspire people. The ultimate effect, as the Post reported, was that "the films were more effective than CIA propaganda."

The truth is, as one film participant explained, "movies planted the seeds of freedom. Videotapes set the Communist regime off balance."

That's why I explained in the beginning of this column that the most important thing was the people's rebellion. The movies may have stoked some democratic fires or blew on the flames of freedom, but the people's passions enflamed liberty into an inferno that led to the overthrowing of a dictator.

As Drew Zahn of WorldNetDaily explained, Ceausescu's regime had been rocked only a few years before by the defection of its intelligence chief, the highest-ranking Soviet bloc intelligence official ever to defect to the West, Lt. Gen. Ion Mihai Pacepa. Not only did Pacepa take with him information devastating to Ceausescu's Stalinist government but also Pacepa's subsequent book, "Red Horizons," exposed the dictator's massive crimes and corruption against his own people.

Ceausescu's iron grip on Romania began to crumble after Pacepa's revelations, and the dictator himself suffered a nervous breakdown under the strain. Across Romania, the people rose up against their oppressor. On Christmas Day 1989, Ceausescu was executed at the end of a trial, wherein accusations came almost word for word out of "Red Horizons."

As powerful as Pacepa's defecting heroics were, however, my friend Joseph Farah, the CEO of WND, explained that something else also fueled the power of the people. In his column titled "How Chuck Norris helped free Romania," Farah asked: "Where did the horribly oppressed and beaten-down Romanian people get the courage and spirit to revolt in the first place? Where did they get the idea that people can fight and beat communism? What inspiration of freedom and guts might have strengthened their resolve?"

Seeing as there was only one television channel permitted in Romania during Ceausescu's reign, Farah posited the answer: "What I am telling you, according to all I can gather, is that Chuck Norris movies of the 1980s helped prepare the 'hearts and minds' of the population to eventually overthrow Ceausescu, according to documentarian Ilinca Calugareanu."

That might also explain why I heard about my films' positive influences among Iraqis while visiting U.S. troops during Operation Iraqi Freedom in 2006 and 2007. I'll never forget meeting Iraqi officers who were overly complimentary about my movies. The whole time, I thought, "I didn't even know Saddam Hussein's regime allowed my films into his country!" Now I understand they were very likely smuggled in. I can only hope they offered similar encouragement to the oppressed people under Saddam's brutal dictatorship.

Even though I haven't had an opportunity to see the movie "Chuck Norris vs. Communism," I'm truly gratified to learn that some of my action movies of the 1980s played a role in the undermining of the vicious and brutal Ceausescu regime in Romania. It illustrates, once again, the importance of cracking closed societies and giving people in horribly oppressed nations something positive and uplifting to think about, especially with regard to man's eternal quest for liberty.

If my action movies have the power to help liberate people, maybe it's time for our amazing military to covertly air-drop, smuggle and spread via computer more of them into such countries as North Korea, Syria and Iran. It can call the mission Operation Digital Delta Force!

The Pampa Independent School District board meets at 5:45 p.m. on the fourth Monday of each month at the new administration building on North Hobart Street.

Immunization clinic three times a month

The Texas Department of State Health Services (DSHS) hosts an immunization clinic in Pampa three times a month. The clinics are held from 9:30 to 11:30 a.m. and from 1 to 3 p.m. on the first three Wednesdays of each month. The first 10 people in line for the morning and first 10 in the afternoon will always receive shots. However, if there are more than 10, they still may be able to accommodate the patients, or ask them to come back at another time. The Department of State Health Services can be reached at 806-669-5323 and is located at 121 S. Gillespie St. in Pampa.

PAWS meets first Tuesdays

Pampa Animal Welfare Society meets the first Tuesday of each month at the Pampa Animal Shelter, 811 S. Hobart St. The meetings are at 6:30 p.m. and are open to the public.

There is a desperate need for more members. PAWS members are needed to work at the shelter from 3 to 5:30 p.m. each day and to work adoption days or take animals to the vets when needed, but mostly people are needed to love and work with the animals where they will be more adoptable.

For more information, call the shelter after 3 p.m. at 669-5775 and ask for the PAWS volunteer.

County Commission meetings

The Gray County Commission meets at 9 a.m. on the first and 15th of each month. If the date falls on a Saturday, the meeting will be held on Friday. If the date falls on a Sunday, the meeting will be held on Monday. The meetings are held on the second floor of the Gray County Courthouse.

TOT Republican Women's Club

Top O' Texas Republican Women's Club meets at noon on the third Wednesday of every month at the Pampa Senior Citizens Center, 500 W. Francis St. For more information call 806-669-1990.

Jam sessions every Friday night

The Woody Guthrie Folk Music Center has a jam session every Friday night starting at 6:30 p.m. Everyone is welcome to play or listen. The center is located at 320 S. Cuyler St. For more information, call 806-664-0824.

FIRST BAPTIST CHURCH HOMECOMING PEP RALLY

The PAMPA NEWS

Church Calendar

Hi-Land Christian Church

Wednesday nights, Pastor Mike Sublett teaches 2 special advanced classes at Hi-Land Christian Church.

From 7 - 8 p.m. The Judges and Kings of Israel (broken people, faithful God); from 8-9 p.m. 1-2 Corinthians (Jesus and His messy people).

Pastor Sublett said, "Both classes are advanced in that they have a weekly reading assignment and weekly handout pages that will supply each student with a significant notebook for continued study."

I will also be recording each class so that everyone can have the audio in case they want to review something later."

The classes are open to anyone interested in learning more about their Bible.

Child care will be provided for anyone who is attending either class.

Cornerstone Baptist Church

Cornerstone Baptist Team KID (Kids in Discipleship) meets Wednesdays at 6:30 until 8:00 pm at 2410 W. 23rd St. All children ages 4 thru 5th graders are invited to attend.

For more information call the church at 669-6509.

New Life Assembly of God

New Life Assembly of God is located at 1435 N. Sumner Street in Pampa. New pastor, Sergio Urrutia, said their mission is "New life Assembly of God is committed to fulfilling a four-fold mission."

Our primary reason for being is to evangelize the lost, worship God, disciple believer and to show compassion, to build a multi-ethnic body of believers.

New life commits to reaching out to Pampa in all areas of the township with special emphasis to our Latino brothers and sisters.

Our worship will be a reflection of our multi-ethnic mixture of disciples including Christian Latino music, contemporary music as well as the traditional hymns and songs of the church.

Outreach will have as its goal to produce new believers who in turn are able to witness effectively and make disciples who will in turn continue this cycle.

This will be effected through small group bible studies, both Bi-lingual services, and bibles."

Services are Sunday at 10 a.m. and Sundays and Wednesdays at 7 p.m.

Mary Ellen and Harvester Church of Christ

Mary Ellen and Harvester Church of Christ is located at 1342 Mary Ellen St. Corner of Mary Ellen and Harvester.

Winter storm slams the South; bitter cold freezes Northeast

FRANKFORT, Ky. (AP) — Snow swirled sideways in Kentucky and the typically bustling state capital of Frankfort came to a frozen halt Monday as a storm walloped parts of the South, which unlike the Northeast, had been mostly spared this winter.

That all changed with a mix of snow, sleet and freezing rain across the region, making roads treacherous and knocking out power to thousands of people. Luckily, the storm arrived on a holiday, Presidents Day, when many schools and businesses were already closed and the morning commute was not as busy.

Officials also made certain roads were prepared this year after Southern cities — most notably Atlanta — were caught off guard a year ago when a winter storm stranded thousands of people on interstates overnight. Raleigh suffered a similar fate last year.

Still, some weren't quite ready for the winter blast.

RL Doss said he had already used his 1987 GMC Suburban — which can haul up to three-quarters of a ton with ropes and chains — to rescue several people and their cars on the hills surrounding Frankfort. Cars were fishtailing and sliding off the slick roads.

"I look at it this way. Everybody is trying to get out, to get their last bit of food and stuff, getting home from work and people leaving for work and stuff, and it happens," he said, shivering in a pair of tan overalls pulled over a hooded sweat shirt.

Glancing at his truck, the burgundy behemoth, he said: "I like to see what the truck can do and what it can't do. I push it to its limits."

In the Northeast, which has been slammed by seemingly endless snow, the white stuff stopped falling but the temperatures were bitterly cold. New York City came close to breaking a 127-year-old record when the temperature in Central Park hit 3 degrees, just 2 degrees above the record set in 1888, said Jeffrey Tongue, a National Weather Service meteorologist.

Boston Mayor Martin J. Walsh said the latest snow storm left one person dead, apparently due to a heart attack while shoveling snow. A partial roof collapse at an eight-building apartment complex in Portsmouth, New Hampshire, left 500 to 700 people looking for warmth. In New Jersey, a 66-year-old woman who had been drinking at a benefit was found dead in the snow, just two doors from her home. Firefighters working on a blaze in Philadelphia left behind a building coated in icicles. No one was hurt.

West Virginia getting hit hard by the snowstorm when a train carrying crude oil derailed about 30 miles Charleston. At least one tanker went into the Kanawha River and nearby house caught fire. It wasn't clear if the winter storm had anything to do with the crash.

The storm was headed toward the Carolinas overnight, and then expected to march through the Mid-Atlantic and Northeast.

Kentucky Gov. Steve Beshear urged people to stay home if possible. By Monday afternoon, 9 inches of snow had fallen in Louisville and other parts were buried under a foot of snow.

In central Kentucky, home to much of the state's signature thoroughbred industry, horses kept warm by galloping through the deep snow, pausing occasionally to shake it off from their thick winter coats. Ned Toffey, general manager of Spendthrift Farm in Lexington, said the horses enjoy running in the snow because it gives them a nice cushion as opposed to the harder, packed earth.

Arkansas, where temperatures plummeted from the 70s on Saturday to highs in the 30s a day later, had nearly 30,000 people without power at the peak of the storm.

Roads were slushy and traffic was moving slowly in Tennessee. Justyn Jackson, a meteorologist with the National Weather Service in Nashville, said the last bad winter storm in the city was 2010 when up to 4 inches of snow fell.

"A lot of cities up North, they deal with this several times during the winter. It's really not uncommon for them at all," Jackson said. "Down here, especially in Nashville, although it's not rare, it certainly on average happens once or twice a winter."

Georgia officials were taking no chances, bringing in more personnel to the state operations center and pre-treating roads with a mixture of salt and water. Atlanta was expected to get rain, dodging any icy or snowy conditions. Up to a quarter of an inch of ice could accumulate in a handful mountainous northern counties.

North Carolina Gov. Pat McCrory says he hopes the government is "over-prepared and underwhelmed." It's been almost a year since a winter storm dumped as much as 22 inches of snow in the North Carolina mountains and pelted the eastern part of the state with ice. In Raleigh, much like Atlanta, many abandoned their cars alongside the road or in parking lots — if they could navigate.

John Moore, a meteorologist with the National Weather Service in Memphis, said he believes Tennessee was prepared in part because of the embarrassing scene that paralyzed Atlanta last year.

"We got the word out ahead of time to let people know, that even if we're not expecting a lot, still check your forecast before you leave home in the morning because stuff can change so quickly," he said.

Judge issues no-contact order against Kurt Busch

DOVER, Del. (AP) — NASCAR driver Kurt Busch was ordered by a judge to stay away from his ex-girlfriend Patricia Driscoll and not communicate with her.

The decision Monday by Family Court Commissioner David Jones comes after he held four days of hearings in December and January that included conflicting testimony from Driscoll and the driver known in NASCAR circles as "The Outlaw."

The judge's order, which is good for a year, says Busch can't buy or possess firearms or ammunition and must be evaluated for "mental health problems related to anger control and impulse control." It also orders him to stay 100 yards away from Driscoll except for "at NASCAR races and related events where closer proximity is required" for Busch to "perform his duties as a driver or sponsored athlete."

Busch's attorney, Rusty Hardin, released a statement Monday after the ruling saying he was "deeply disappointed" and intends to appeal.

"It is important to note that the Commissioner's ruling is a civil family court matter and totally unconnected to any criminal investigation or finding. Regardless of the Commissioner's finding, we know that Kurt never committed an act of family violence," Hardin said in the statement.

Driscoll, 37, filed for protection in November, saying Busch assaulted her inside his motorhome at Dover International Speedway in September, grabbing her by the face and neck and slamming her head three times into a bedroom wall. She said she drove to Dover from her Maryland home to check on Busch after he sent several texts that led her to believe he might be depressed.

In addition to seeking a no-contact order, Driscoll filed a criminal complaint with Dover police. Police submitted the results of their investigation more than a month ago to the Delaware attorney general's office, which has yet to decide whether to prosecute Busch.

Busch's racing team also put out a statement Monday saying it takes the allegations seriously and that it is awaiting a decision by the attorney general's office on possible criminal charges before deciding what if any action to take.

Busch, 36, has denied the assault allegations. He testified that he repeatedly told Driscoll to leave after she showed up uninvited and unannounced at his motorhome a week after he broke off their relationship. He said Driscoll demanded that he tell her son to his face that their relationship was over, and that she ignored his repeated requests to leave.

Finally, Busch said, he cupped Driscoll's cheeks with his hand, looked her in the eye and told her once again that she needed to leave. A Dover police detective testified that Busch told him Driscoll's head "tapped" the wall at that time.

Driscoll's neighbor testified that she saw marks on Driscoll's face and neck when she returned to her Maryland home several hours after the alleged assault.

Nick Terry, a chaplain who ministers to NASCAR drivers and who saw Driscoll at the Dover track immediately after the alleged assault, testified that he and his wife did not notice any marks on Driscoll.

Terry also denied Driscoll's allegations that he had been threatened and offered bribes by Busch's attorneys, who have portrayed Driscoll as a scorned woman out to destroy the NASCAR star's career.

The Family Court hearing included sensational testimony in which Busch said he believes Driscoll is a trained assassin and a "badass" who could take him down at any moment if he tried to hurt her. Busch's motorhome driver also testified that Driscoll told him she was a trained assassin for the U.S. government.

Driscoll, who runs a small Washington, D.C.-based defense consulting firm and is president of the Armed Forces Foundation, a nonprofit for veterans, says claims that she is a mercenary and hired killer are "ludicrous." She suggested that they stem from a fictional movie script that she has worked on and which Busch proof-read for her.

Harvesters' bench puts up 39 as Pampa romps Dalhart 62-30

■ Pampa secures third seed as they prepare for playoff game versus Lamesa.

jlee@thepampanews.com

DALHART — The Pampa Harvesters (22-5, 4-4) traveled to Dalhart (0-7) last Friday night for their final game of the regular season. The Harvesters won the game 62-30 and secured the third seed in the playoffs thanks to a strong showing by sophomore Brendon Woelfle and the Harvester bench.

“Dalhart’s had a tough season and sometimes the kids, they tend to overlook opponents they know they are superior to and we came out slow, there’s no other way to put it,” head coach Matt Embry said.

“So we ran the bench and they came out and responded. In fact, the bench played a great game, they probably had more than half of the points in the game.”

Dalhart got on the board first with a bucket to take the lead 2-0. Senior Jett Gibson had a steal for a fastbreak layup to take tie the game at 2-2. Junior Cade Engle added to the run with a bucket of his own and the Harvesters took the lead at 4-2. They did not lose the lead the rest of the game. Sophomore Brendon Woelfle took control of the game from there and scored seven unanswered points with a pair of fastbreaks and a trey. Following a Dalhart trey, with the final ticks of the quarter looming, Woelfle just launched the ball in the air from half court and nailed it for three and the 14-5 lead to end the quarter. Engle and Gibson each had two points in the quarter while Woelfle had 10.

“(Brendon) Woelfle played great, too. He played with a lot of energy on defense which was leading to him getting layups,” Embry said. “He was attacking the rim like we know he can and I am proud of his efforts tonight. (Cade) Engle got picked up early in the second quarter and created some separation for us. Shanoaha (Bridges) got a couple buckets and our defense tightened up and that’s when things took off.”

Sophomore Corbin Hair started the second quarter off with a bucket inside the paint. Junior Shanoaha Bridges hit a three on the next Harvester possession to make it a 14-point game at 19-5. Woelfle earned a trip to the charity stripe following a Dalhart foul and went 1-2 making it 20-5. Pampa continued their run following points from Bridges, Engle and a traditional three-point play from senior Johnathan Stevens. Following a pair of Dalhart free throws, Pampa finished the quarter on a 5-0 run to take the 32-9 lead heading into the half.

Engle had two points in the quarter, Bridges had five points, Stevens had three points, senior Bryson Burrell and Woelfle had two points and Hair had four points in the quarter.

Stevens started the second half with a bucket followed by an Engle bucket to extend their lead to 36-9. Dalhart started to show life as they went on a 6-3 run until Engle hit bucket to make it 41-15 and stop the run. After being fouled, Stevens went 1-2 from the line to continue a 5-2 run to end the quarter. Engle had seven points in the quarter, Bridges had four and Stevens had three.

Taking a 46-19 lead into the final quarter of the season it was time for the bench to finish the game off. Hair was the first bench player to score in the quarter, scoring buckets on back-to-back Pampa possessions. Dalhart scored three points on a bucket and a free throw, then it was time for Woelfle to take over. Woelfle scored eight points in the final moments of the game, including four off assists from senior Dante Jordan. Jordan added a bucket of his own in the closing ticks of the game. Final: 62-30.

Engle and Jordan each had two points in the quarter. Hair had four and Woelfle had eight.

“Dante (Jordan) brought great energy, too. It’s not secret when he comes out on the court, the pace of the game picks up,” Embry said. “I thought he played a fantastic game tonight and I am proud of his efforts.”

The Harvesters clinched the third seed in District 1-4A. They will take on the Lamesa Tornadoes, the second seed of District 2-4A. Embry feels like the team needs to work on finding multiple ways to attack the rim to be successful in the postseason.

“I’ve got film, they are super athletic, they can shoot the ball around and attack the rim. There are some holes in their defense that I think we can attack, they are a great team and they are going to be the two seed in there for a reason,” Embry said.

“We need to work on scoring the basketball in the half court. These teams have known Cade and they know what he is going to do and they are taking away his penetration lanes. When he kicks that ball we have to do a better job of having a secondary attack and getting to the rim and I felt like Woelfle did a great job of that tonight.”

For those who may be concerned about facing a three-point shooting team, Embry said they have a way to defend against it.

“We will widen that zone out,” Embry said. “When we play teams that have a lot of size we pack it in and when we play teams that have a lot of shooters we widen the zone out and we run at shooters to get them off their spots and take away their good looks, so that’ll be our plan.”

Brendon Woelfle led the team with a pair of threes, went 2-5 from the line en route to 20 points; Cade Engle had a trey and 13 points; Shanoaha Bridges had a trey and scored nine points; Corbin Hair had eight points; Johnathan Stevens went 2-5 from the line and scored six points; Dante Jordan, Bryson Burrell and Jett Gibson each had two points. The team went 4-12 from the line, good for 33 percent shooting.

The Harvesters play a playoff preview game against Lubbock-Cooper at 8:30 p.m. at Randall High on Friday. Their playoff game versus Lamesa is Monday, Feb. 23, at Wayland Baptist University in Plainview.

EXTRA INNINGS

■ Baseball season is officially here for next seven months.

While watching the NBA All-Star game on Sunday night a commercial for MLB the Show 15 came on.

My baseball itch gets scratched when I see that commercial as that means we are nearing the start of the baseball season.

The Pampa Harvesters baseball team and Lady Harvesters softball teams have already started their seasons.

My beloved Oklahoma State Cowboys started their season last weekend, even though they lost the series 2-1.

The MLB season starts tomorrow as pitchers and catchers report to spring training at various clubs.

Positional players will report as early as next Monday. Spring training games will start on March 1.

I plan on doing my weekly Texas Rangers report each week again this season. I will start it the week of March 1 as there will not be much news to report upon until the games get underway.

According to Atlantis sports book the Rangers’ projected win total is at 76.5, just above the Astros at 73.5.

Other divisional teams are the Angels at 87.5 and the Athletics at 82.5.

Personally, I expect bigger things for the Rangers this year.

Last year the team was riddled with a MLB record number of injuries.

Many guys that were filling in for injured all-stars, were guys that had not even stepped foot on an MLB field in their entire careers.

That number is a little low, I expect the Rangers to compete for not just a playoff spot, but the divisional crown.

I am torn by the latest report that MLB may shrink the strike zone in 2016.

To me, it could go either way. Their thinking is that the game times and scores will increase.

(Last year had a record low average scoring in the MLB per game.)

If the strike zone shrunk that could however lead to more 3-1, 3-2, 3-0 counts to lengthen the game and eventually lead to more walks.

Granted, the guys need to step up and swing and pitches near them to help, but I am just not sure if the strike zone will help speed the game up.

I know one thing that will for sure speed the game up and that would be the time clock for pitchers.

Some of these pitchers sit there and take almost a minute in between pitches. If you cut their time down to 15-20 seconds, the games will for sure speed up.

Let me know some ways you think the game could change to speed it up, but also keep traditionalists happy.

I may give you a shout-out next week!

Also before I go I have to give a shoutout to the Lady Harvesters and coach Kim Chaffin.

Girls, go out there tonight and get that first gold ball in girl’s basketball history for Pampa.

I know you can do it and it’s been fun watching you grow together as a team this year.

For those that may want to attend the game is at 6:30 p.m. tonight in Littlefield against the Big Spring Lady Steers.

Zachary Green is the sports editor of The Pampa News and youth minister at the Mary Ellen and Harvester Church of Christ. He can be reached at zgreen@thepampanews.com or on Twitter: @okiecowpoke14.

DAILY Horoscope

A baby born today has a Sun and Moon in Aquarius if born before 3:50 p.m. (PST). Afterward, the Moon will be in Pisces.

HAPPY BIRTHDAY for Wednesday, Feb. 18, 2015:

This year you express extra determination and endurance. Once you decide to do something, you are more than likely to arrive at that goal. You express ingenuity and a willingness to work with others. Know that when you make a resolution, it is likely to stick. If you are single, you are more in control than you are aware. You are likely to meet someone of significance in the summer. If you are attached, you could be more willful with your sweetie than you have been in the past. Be aware of this behavior, and be more willing to relax and let him or her make more decisions. PISCES understands you better than you might realize.

The Stars Show the Kind of Day You'll Have: 5-Dynamic; 4-Positive; 3-Average; 2-So-so; 1-Difficult

ARIES (March 21-April 19)

★★★★ You could stumble into a very agreeable situation before late afternoon. You are likely to get what you want if you act quickly. A decision made today is more likely to stick than you might choose to believe. Tonight: Get some rest; you will need it very soon.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20)

★★★ You'll handle responsibilities with ease, but you might want to stop being so open to taking on additional ones. Come midday, a friendship is likely to take on a special significance. Reach out to your loved ones for some feedback. Tonight: Only where the gang is.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20)

★★★★ Detach from a difficult situation, but also strive to understand how others feel. It might be best to remove yourself completely before the matter becomes volatile. Stay on top of someone who might be acting a bit irrationally. Tonight: A force to be dealt with.

CANCER (June 21-July 22)

★★★★ You will see a situation in a new light if you can manage not to be reactive to the other party. When paring down the problem, you could discover that you have run into an issue of power and control. Recognize that you can't manipulate others. Tonight: In the limelight.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22)

★★★★ You will change your tune quickly if you sense a change in the mood of those around you. Get together for meetings in the morning.

By midafternoon, you'll want more alone time, whether it be at work or at home. Honor that need. Tonight: Make it a night to be remembered.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22)

★★★★ Dive into work or clear out errands quickly. By midafternoon, you could discover that your main focus has changed. Perhaps you will run into a key friend or two. Remember, you do not always need to be so serious. Tonight: Go along for the ride.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 22)

★★★★ You might want to leave most of the day open, as a new beginning becomes possible in an emotional situation. You'll be able to make a difference to someone who seems to be stuck in a rut. You often see solutions that others don't. Tonight: Don't take a comment personally.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23-Nov. 21)

★★★★ You might want to explain exactly what you want to a loved one. Once you do, there likely will be a new sense of closeness and a possibility for a new beginning. Fatigue could affect your ability to make an important decision. Tonight: Let your imagination take over.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21)

★★★★ Have an important discussion. Confirm an agreement. Handle all communication before lunch. Afterward, pressure could build to a point where you will want to vanish. Just take a deep breath, slow down and relax. Tonight: Drop the negativity.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19)

★★★★ You will be ready for a change of pace. You might be tired of trying to handle a financial matter, especially as others seem to be looking at different solutions. Communication could flourish by late afternoon. Tonight: Say "yes" to an invitation.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18)

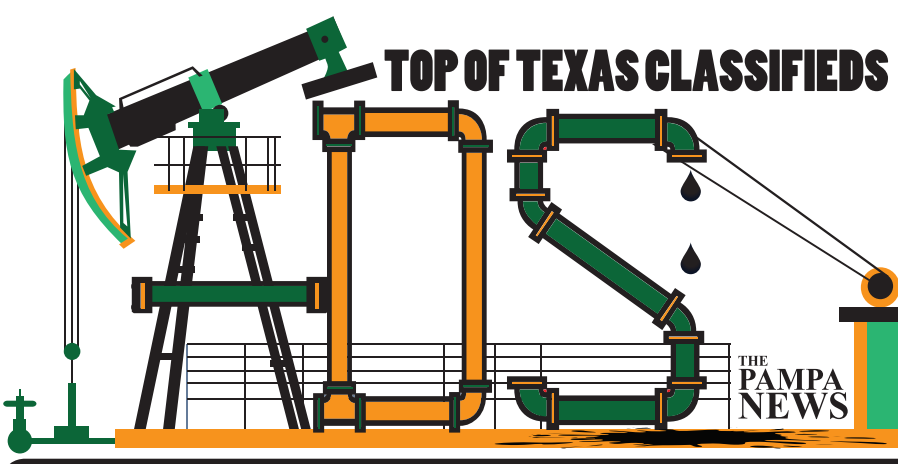

★★★★ Highlight the daylight hours, when you are more in command and likely to be very effective. If you make a decision in this time period, it is likely to work out. Be aware of the financial implications, then release any concerns. Tonight: Pay bills first.

PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20)

★★★ You could be out of sorts for a good part of the day. No matter what you do, you might not be able to shake your mood. Try to get to the root of the issue. By midafternoon, you are likely to feel energized. Tonight: Paint the town red.

Dear Abby...

By Pauline & Jeanne Phillips

DEAR ABBY: Do you know why people nowadays feel the need to announce their pregnancies via ultrasound pictures? I'm sorry, but I really don't want to see all that. I guess some folks think the image of a blurry, black-and-white fetus is "darling." But to me, all I see is an up-close-and-personal snapshot of a stranger's uterus. Even if we're best friends, I don't need all that detail. TMI, right?

I really wish people would deliver this kind of news face-to-face. Or call me, text me, whatever. It serves the same purpose and isn't nearly as graphic. — NOT READY FOR A CLOSE-UP

DEAR NOT READY: If seeing a sonogram is "TMI" for your sensibilities, all you need to do is scroll past it. It's not as if you're being forced to view the fetus. Being able to see the product they're manufacturing pre-delivery helps many couples to bond with their babies, and when people are happy, they often want to share their joy. So loosen up and let them.

DEAR ABBY: I have been married to my husband for 10 years. Prior to that, we dated for seven. (We met when we were teenagers.) My problem is, my mother-in-law still misspells my name, which is Sara. After all these years, she still adds an "h" to the end of my name, regardless of how many times my husband has pointed out the correct spelling.

I don't know why this is an issue, because we send her cards on all the holidays, her birthday, etc., with my name spelled correctly. How should I approach this with her? — SIMPLY SARA IN ARIZONA

DEAR SIMPLY SARA: If the two of you get along well, just smile and ask her why she can't get the spelling of your name right. Then listen. However, if there is tension in your relationship, recognize that this may be a form of passive aggression, that confronting her will make her defensive, and she will find some other way to needle you.

P.S. Another thought. Tell her you've changed the spelling of your name to "Sarah" and she may drop the "h"!

DEAR ABBY: My best friend is dying from lung cancer, which I think has traveled to her brain. I am heartbroken over this. My question is, she seems different now — angry. She jumped on me when we were talking about her disease. Should I just leave her be? Or what should I do? — STANDING BY IN TEXAS

DEAR STANDING BY: Your friend may indeed be angry, and she has a right to be. She may also be very scared. Continue to stand by her because she will need your support and understanding in the months to come.

A diagnosis of metastasized cancer can make someone feel alone and isolated. If she wants to talk about her prognosis, be prepared to listen. If she is too ill to get out of the house, bring the news about what is going on in her circle of friends to her. (Gossip can be distracting.) Do NOT offer advice unless you are asked for it. And if she has a bad day, try to be understanding and forgiving.

Advanced Heart Care

PRMC now has the most advanced cath lab in all of the Texas Panhandle.

This state of the art technology is used for heart catheterizations, injecting dye into arteries of heart to see if there is blockage keeping blood from getting to the heart, any kind of intervention needed to fix these blockages, to help with installing pacemakers to help with irregular heart rhythms as well as defibrillators and the lab can also be used to take pictures of various body parts.

For more information on the new cath lab and other services Pampa Regional Medical Center provides, call 806-665-3721.
