Danny Martin receives Community Builder Award

The Community Builder Award was designed by the Grand Lodge Texas to enable local Masonic lodges to recognize outstanding non-Masons who have distinguished themselves through their service to the community, to the local, state or national government, to their house of worship, or to humanity. Thus, the award is presented to individuals who, although they have never been initiated into Masonry, have followed the same precepts, ideals and standards that have been established for Masonic behavior. On April 14, 2015 Top O Texas Lodge 1381 presented the Community Builder Award to Danny Martin, Post Commander VFW Post 1657.

Pak-A-Burger debuts The Texan

STAFF REPORT

Texas people live in the hot-bed of south-west and spicy foods.

So it isn't uncommon when a restaurant wants to tap into their mouth-watering, peppery heritage by adding some flame to their menu.

That is exactly what Pak-A-Burger is doing with their The Texan.

The Texan will be the symbol of a burger made in the Lone Star State.

"It's going to be two pieces of meat, two pieces of cheese, three pieces of apple-wood smoked bacon," Pak-A-Burger manager

Stephanie Stein said. "It's going to have barbecue sauce and all the veggies, and it's going to have fried jalapeño sticks on top."

Stein added that the burger will represent everything that says Texas.

"When you think Texas, you think barbecue," Stein said. "The bacon is smoked and it will have fried jalapeños on it."

Pak-A-Burger started selling the burger this week.

"It's great to have such a Texas burger coming out of a little burger joint in Pampa," Stein said.

Homeland chief: Gyrocopter came in ‘under the radar’

WASHINGTON (AP) — The gyrocopter that landed on the lawn of the U.S. Capitol “apparently literally flew in under the radar,” Homeland Security Secretary Jeh Johnson said Thursday, as concerned lawmakers questioned how it was allowed to happen and why.

Johnson said it’s too soon to say whether Wednesday’s incident should prompt changes in security procedures. “I want to know all the facts before I reach an assessment of what can and should be done about gyrocopters in the future,” he said.

But lawmakers said the incident exposed a gap in security, especially amid revelations that the pilot, Florida postal worker Doug Hughes, was interviewed by the Secret Service almost two years ago. The agency apparently determined he did not pose a threat, said Rep. Elijah Cummings, D-Md., the senior Democrat on the House Oversight and Government Reform Committee.

Cummings spoke Thursday with the Secret Service director.

“I think that there’s absolutely a gap, and it’s a very dangerous gap, with regard to our airspace,” Cummings said. “I don’t want people to get a message that they can just land anywhere. Suppose there was a bomb or an explosive device on that air vehicle? That could have been a major catastrophe.”

Johnson said the Secret Service passed along the information from the interview with Hughes, who was to appear in court Thursday afternoon, to “all of the appropriate law enforcement agencies.”

House Minority leader Nancy Pelosi, D-Calif., called the incident “stunning.”

“What safeguards can we use? We don’t want to be a place where we’re saying ‘This is an iron-clad Capitol.’ And have such restrictions on people having access to it,” Pelosi told reporters. “Nonetheless, we have to ensure the safety of those people.”

The tiny, open-air aircraft landed without injuries to anyone, but the incident raises questions about how someone could be allowed to fly all the way from Gettysburg, Pennsylvania, right up to the Capitol. Hughes has said he was making the flight to publicize his concerns about the corrupting influence of money in politics, and deliver letters to all 535 members of Congress on the topic.

Lawmaker seeks independent review of reserve deputy program

TULSA, Okla. (AP) — A state lawmaker called Thursday for an independent review of Tulsa's reserve deputy program as more questions arose about the training of a 73-year-old volunteer officer who says he accidentally shot a suspect to death while the man was being held down by others.

The Tulsa County Sheriff's Office said it would conduct an internal investigation, but Rep. Mike Shelton fears a growing mistrust of police after a series of high-profile killings by law officers.

"There are too many variables here for me and anyone else to believe that this investigation is going to be impartial," said Shelton, a Democrat from Oklahoma City. "We simply cannot afford to have the public's trust in our law enforcement eroded any further. We need to remove the appearance of personal and political biases from this case."

Reserve deputy Bob Bates has said he mistakenly pulled out a handgun rather than a stun gun on April 2 as Eric Harris lay on the ground after running from deputies conducting a sting operation. Video from the scene captured Bates apologizing for shooting Harris, who was being detained on suspicion that he tried to sell guns to an undercover officer.

"Oh, I shot him! I'm sorry," said Bates, who has been charged with second-degree manslaughter.

Sheriff's spokesman Maj. Shannon Clark said Harris' death prompted an evaluation of the reserve deputy system.

"As with any critical incident, we are doing an internal review of our program and policy to determine if any changes need to take place," Clark said.

But Shelton suggested that the Oklahoma State Bureau of Investigation and the state attorney general's office should step in to help assure Harris' family and the public that any probe is unbiased.

Bates, an insurance executive, has been a volunteer reserve deputy since 2007 or 2008 and served as Sheriff Stanley Glanz's re-election campaign manager in 2012.

Ohio man accused of plot to attack US military base, prison

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — An Ohio man traveled to Syria and trained alongside terrorists, then returned to the U.S. with plans to attack a military base or a prison, according to a federal indictment announced Thursday.

Abdirahman Sheik Mohamud wanted to "kill three or four American soldiers execution style," according to the indictment.

Attacking the prison was part of a backup plan if that didn't work, the charges said.

The indictment also says Mohamud's brother, Abdifatah Aden, fought with a terrorist group in Syria until he was killed in battle in June 2014.

Mohamud, 23, of Columbus, is charged with providing material support to terrorists and providing material support to a designated foreign terrorist organization, the laws most commonly used by the government since the Sept. 11 attacks to prosecute terror suspects.

Mohamud is also charged with making a false statement involving international terrorism. He faces up to 38 years in prison if convicted.

Mohamud was arrested in Columbus in February on state terrorism and money laundering counts. Thursday's charges were expected, and Mohamud will enter a not-guilty plea at his arraignment, said his attorney, Sam Shamansky.

He said it was too early to talk about the specific charges.

Mohamud, originally from Somalia, became a U.S. citizen in February 2014, according to the government.

The indictment says Mohamud provided support to Jabhat al-Nusrah, a State Department designated terrorist group.

It also says he lied to an Ohio FBI agent by saying he didn't leave Istanbul during an April 2014 overseas trip; prosecutors say he was in Syria from April through June.

Mohamud's brother also fought for al-Nusrah, according to the indictment.

Mohamud told a colleague in the U.S. he was happy about his brother's death and said he "was next and would join Aden soon," the indictment said.

Bereavement and Healing Homemade Soap

Isn't it funny, how a simple moment can bring forward in one's mind, sweet memories of a departed loved one?

TRACY RENEE LEE

This morning as I prepared for my shower, I realized for the third day in a row, that my soap bar was now a mere sliver and completely incapable of fulfilling its purpose of providing me with ample lather to clean and refresh my body for the day's events. Fortunately, I had not yet stepped into my shower, so I walked over to my lavatory and being unable to bend due to back issues, I reached into the cabinet beneath it, blindly searching for a fresh bar of soap. As I grabbed hold of the soap, neatly wrapped in lightly colored paper, my mind reflected back to a friend of mine, who each Christmas would send me a year supply of his homemade soap.

Preston's soap was never neatly wrapped in lightly colored paper, nor was it perfectly formed into smooth ergonomic shapes. His soap was made from the finest ingredients, engineered for sensitive skin and cut into simple squares. Preston shared his wonderful soap with those he loved and cared for most in the world.

My friend Preston was so dear to me. His love of Christ and his redeeming mission was so strong. From the first time I met Preston, he always sought to share his testimony with those who were searching for meaning in life.

As I rose and prepared for my shower this morning, Preston was not on my mind. Blindly reaching under the lavatory for a bar of soap, made me miss him so deeply. I was touched by the imagery of blindly searching for soap, to those who labor in search of their purpose.

Grief Fact 149 YANKED

Grief is all-consuming, it is no respecter of persons or time. You may have several weeks of great recovery and suddenly find yourself in the pitfalls of despair. This is a normal response.

Eventually, despair and loneliness will be replaced with kind and fond memories. Even so, you will be yanked back from time to time by the least little insignificant thing.

(Tracy Renee Lee, Mourning Glory II)

I smiled as I cried, remembering Preston's kind spirit and his willingness to share it with everyone he knew. I thought to myself, how appropriate it was, that this Easter morning, an insignificant sliver of soap, yanked my memories back to Preston and his willingness to share his testimony of Christ and his redeeming mission.

This morning I miss my dear friend, I miss his wonderful soap that he so thoughtfully sent me every year, and I miss his amazing testimony of Christ. This Easter morning as I prepared for my shower, I realized my day would be filled with thanksgiving for Christ's redeeming sacrifice, along with fond memories of my dear friend's willingness to share his Savior's message.

My day was bittersweet.

My name is Tracy Renee Lee. I am a funeral director, author, and professional speaker. I write books and weekly bereavement articles related to understanding and coping with grief. ## O Rubio, Rubio, wherefore art thou Rubio?

"We must change the decisions we are making by changing the people who are making them," Sen. Marco Rubio, R-Fla., proclaimed in his presidential campaign kickoff Monday. It was impossible not to think of when Barack Obama in 2008 — a freshman senator with an impressive personal story — chose to challenge presumptive nominee Hillary Clinton. She had supported President George W. Bush by voting in 2002 to authorize the use of force in Iraq. By 2008, most Democrats opposed that war.

Rubio seemed especially Obama-esque when he took a swipe at former Florida Gov. Jeb Bush, the erstwhile presumptive GOP front-runner.

Like Sen. Ted Cruz, R-Texas, who also is a freshman senator and Cuban-American, Rubio tells an upbeat story of his immigrant parents' embracing of the American dream. "He's an optimistic, positive Republican voice," opined Ruben Barrales of the Latino-GOP group Grow Elect. And: "Republicans need to focus on not being perceived as the party of 'no.'"

In that spirit, Rubio tried to compromise when he got to Washington. He became a member of the Gang of Eight — a rump of four Democrats and four Republicans who collaborated on a big immigration legislative package that included a path to citizenship for many of the 11 million immigrants living in America illegally. The Senate passed an 844-page bill in 2013 — but it never made it out of the House, and Rubio had stuck his neck out for nothing.

Even before the Senate passed the package with his vote, Rubio had begun to distance himself from it. He felt the heat of tea party conservatives who were angry that the bill offered what they called "amnesty." He began to argue that Washington could not pass a big immigration bill because the public does not trust Washington to enforce it.

Advertisement Congress should first pass enforcement measures. Then it can create a path to legalization. In his announcement speech, Rubio mentioned immigration once, and he said he would work not to reform the system but to "modernize" it.

Hard-core advocates for the undocumented see Rubio's evolution as a betrayal. Others are more forgiving. Barrales has worked to elect Republicans who support a comprehensive immigration bill, yet he is sympathetic with what many would call Rubio's flip-flop on the Gang of Eight bill. "History proved he was right," Barrales told me. Supporters could not get the bill through the House. "He's now trying an approach that he thinks would be more successful."

On the other side of the issue, Rubio may be forgiven, as well. Mark Krikorian of the Center for Immigration Studies, which opposed the big immigration bill, thinks the "immigration debacle was damaging for Rubio, but he could overcome it."

After all, Rubio was a rookie in Washington. Besides, enforcement hawks such as Krikorian understand the lay of the land. "I don't trust any of these guys on this issue," he said of the GOP field. "They're all looking for a way to finesse and keep the money people, donors and voters happy."

Rubio has this much going for him: GOP primary voters won't be happy if they pick a nominee who cannot win in November. And they know they need to bump up their share of the Latino vote to get there.

Hillary's campaign: already media-assisted

It is fair to say that Hillary Clinton is as liberal as Ted Cruz is conservative. This will explain why our so-called "objective" media are already treating Hillary as the Third Coming (Obama was No. 2) while Cruz merits hide-your-children alarms.

Just the adjectives give it away. Hillary's Twitter launch on April 12 was received with words like "sleek," "savvy," "trending," "electrifying," and "approachable" She was packaged by the press exactly as she wanted it: a humble "champion of everyday Americans."

Compare that to the Ted Cruz launch on March 23. These words framed the introduction: "scary," "dangerous," "slimy," "firebrand," "rigid," "uncompromising," "hardline," "extremist," "flame-thrower."

Media elites identify their own ultraliberal spot on the political spectrum when they choose to ascribe labels to candidates and causes. Most Republicans are routinely identified as "conservative," which is fair, and often presented as radical beyond belief, which is predictable. But Hillary is almost never identified as "liberal." Instead, journalists point out that she's been pressed to sound notes of "fiery populism" (read: socialism) to attract "more progressive" Democrats who admire Elizabeth Warren.

Let's not forget: In the first six months of 2007, the CBS and NBC evening news shows offered zero liberal labels for Barack Obama. ABC mustered one.

How about the issues? While ABC insisted Ted Cruz was extreme, favoring "no abortions, no gun control," there was no mention of Hillary's comparably "rigid" or "hardline" views on those issues. What abortion has Hillary Clinton ever found distasteful? She is no different than Obama or most Democratic leaders who support any abortion at any time for any reason.

There has been no focus by the networks on Democratic National Committee chair Debbie Wasserman Schultz proclaiming (in response to a Rand Paul dare) that there were zero abortion restrictions she favored. "I support letting women and their doctors make this decision without government getting involved. Period. End of story."

That's exactly where Hillary stands, a 100-percent supporter of the abortion industry.

And like so many pro-aborts they're dishonest. They want government involved — paying the bills. She could have kicked off her campaign at Planned Parenthood.

Where's the beef? The pro-Hillary media are also betraying their bias by including almost no mention of her scandals since her announcement. Scandals are presented as merely something the Republicans will try to exploit — implying that journalists have no interest in government ethics or, for that matter, investigative reporting. The Clinton era was marked by the "news" media's refusal to get to the bottom of a single Clinton scandal. Why change now?

They've all promoted her road trip to Iowa as a charming tour to meet those "everyday Americans," never noting that she's failing to grant interviews or hold press conferences. While her opponents subject themselves to hostile interviews with liberal networks, Hillary demonstrates she's still a raging egomaniac seeking to be coronated by stiff-arming any and all questions the press might have.

Instead, the pro-Hillary media explain that all this "humble" activity makes so much sense. As USA Today's Susan Page said on CBS, "Clearly, Hillary Clinton doesn't need to do a big rally in order to get our attention, right. We do nothing but pay attention to Hillary Clinton." Any strategy she attempts is all right with them. They'll sell her in any way she wants. The media also avoid any focus on Hillary's startling lack of accomplishments in her public life, unless they cite something lame like her globetrotting travels as secretary of state. Her sorry handling of security at the consulate in Benghazi is largely dismissed, forgotten. They all walked away when she asked, "What difference does it make?" As in every other modern presidential election, the Republicans will be pounded and pressed and caricatured by a hostile media. Hillary Clinton, by comparison, will have her public image carefully managed and massaged for maximum appeal. With the media, she exemplifies the phrase — to borrow from liberal lingo about the wealthy — "born on third base and thought she hit a triple." *L. Brent Bozell III is the president of the Media Research Center. # Gas price average moves slightly higher over the past week

SUBMITTED BY AAA TEXAS COPPELL — Drivers in Texas are now paying $2.23 for a gallon of regular unleaded fuel, according to the AAA Texas Weekend Gas Watch. That's one cent more than last week and $1.25 less than last year. Of the major metropolitan areas surveyed in the Lone Star State, drivers in Dallas are paying the most on average at $2.30 per gallon while drivers in Beaumont are paying the least at $2.13 per gallon. Across the nation drivers are paying an average of $2.41, which is one penny more than one week ago and 18 cents more than the statewide average.

The price at the pump remains heavily influenced by the global price of crude and the ability of domestic refineries to manage scheduled and unscheduled maintenance. Analysts say any changes in the global price of crude or refinery issues will cause the price at the pump to fluctuate; however it is estimated that even with varying prices common during this time of year, drivers are expected see prices move lower leading up to the peak summer driving season in July and August. Global supply continues to outpace demand, and news of sustained production from OPEC along with high-cost production countries like the U.S is expected to keep downward pressure on global crude prices. "As many people begin to consider summer travel destinations, long road trips may be a great option as fuel costs will likely be less this summer than in previous years," said AAA Texas/New Mexico Representative Doug Shupe. "Today drivers in Texas are paying about $17.50 less to fill up their gas tanks compared to one year ago." To help members and non-members identify quality auto repair shops that can assist in the maintenance and repair of their vehicles, AAA offers the Approved Auto Repair program as a free public service. AAA-approved repair facilities meet and maintain high professional standards for training, equipment, cleanliness and customer service. Motorists can look for the Approved Auto Repair sign at local auto repair facilities, or search for a nearby AAA-approved shop online at AAA.com/Repair. AAA Texas branch offices throughout the state can be found by visiting www.AAA.com. Follow AAA Texas on Twitter: @AAA-Texas and Facebook: www.facebook.com/AAATexas.

Strong first, fourth innings drive Lady Harvesters above .500 in District play

jlee@thepampanews.com

The Pampa Lady Harvesters (9-13, 3-2) finished their sweep of the Dalhart Lady Wolves on Wednesday with a 16-1 win in a game that was delayed from Saturday due to the rain Pampa received that morning.

"I felt like the girls had a goal in mind coming into this game and that was to play error-free and to play as a team and to back up the pitcher on the mound and make routine plays. I felt like they did that," head coach Bobbi Gill said.

"The run earlier was earned, it was on base hits and they came out swinging and aggressive at the plate, and we shut that down and didn't allow that to happen anymore. We were tuned with our pitches and made sure we didn't put the ball in the middle of the plate."

Trailing 1-0, the Lady Harvesters wasted little time getting on the board, scoring seven runs alone in the bottom of first inning.

Junior Kassie Jerome doubled to left field, setting Gonzalez up in scoring position at third base, who scored on a throw in play to make it 2-1. After sophomore Kaylee Arzen reached first on an error but Jerome was called out at third, junior Jacie Stuebaker hit a fly ball to center field Dalhart couldn't field and first and second were loaded.

After some miscues by Dalhart's pitcher and catcher, Arzen and Stuebaker were situated at second and third respectively. Arzen scored on a passed ball next, setting Stuebaker up at third with a 3-1 lead and junior Shiann Regalado up to bat.

Regalado nailed a ground ball past the pitcher, plating Stuebaker and making the lead 4-1.

Junior Ally Roberson was walked, followed by senior Cheyenne Lockhart reaching on error by Dalhart's shortstop. Next up was freshman Gracee Gill, who doubled to left field and scored Roberson and advanced Lockhart to third, increasing the lead to 5-1.

Lockhart advanced to home on an errant throw during Schaub's at-bat which, by the way, was her second at bat of the inning as Pampa had batted around with a 6-1 lead. Schaub ended up being walked, followed by a Gonzalez single to right field, loading the bases with Gill at third, Schaub at second and Gonzalez at first.

Gill advanced to home on a throw to extend the lead to 7-1 during Jerome's at bat. Jerome was struck out to finally end the inning.

"The offensive side of it was putting your mind to what happened," Gill said.

"If they committed an error we were going to make them pay for it by putting the ball in the ground and executing some things like bunt-n-runs, some steals, hit-n-runs, some slap-n-runs and just moving base runners around and being aggressive on the plate and being aggressive on the bases and I felt like that's what we did today."

Both teams went 1-2-3 in the second inning, and Dalhart continued the trend in the top of the third. Gill was the starting pitcher for the game and she went the full five innings of run-rule only allowing one run on two hits, two walks and three strikeouts. Gill was touched for one earned run in the first, but went on to pitch four shutout innings.

Roberson was the lead-off hitter in the bottom of the third and hit a base hit to third. Lockhart bunted and reached and Roberson was able to advance to third. During Gill's at bat, Lockhart advanced to second on a defensive indifference. Gill was walked on a passed ball, which allowed Roberson to score, Lockhart to advance third and Gill to second.

Schaub was walked on her third at bat, loading the bases with Lockhart at third, Gill at second and Schaub at first.

Gonzalez was walked, scoring Lockhart and moving everybody one base with a 9-1 lead.

Jerome was at bat next. She singled to left field on a hard ground ball, scoring Gill and Schaub, and placing Jerome at first and Gonzalez at second.

Leading 11-1, Arzen doubled to left field, scoring Gonzalez and placing Jerome at third.

Now leading 12-1, Stuebaker grounded out to second base, but this allowed Jerome to score and advanced Arzen.

Holding a 13-1 lead, Regalado reached on error by the shortstop, which also allowed Arzen to score.

With a 14-1 lead, Roberson was walked after the Lady Harvesters batted around, followed by a Lockhart single to bring home Regalado and take a 15-1 lead to end the frame.

Dalhart went in order in the top of the fourth, and it was the Lady Harvesters' turn to pad their lead.

With two outs and Gonzalez positioned at first, senior Tori Robles reached first on an error. Gonzalez stole third during Arzen's at-bat, and a base hit by Arzen brought home Gonzalez as the Lady Harvester's last run.

Arzen played a part in two of Dalhart's final two outs, sending a ground ball to first and fielding a popup fly. Gonzalez was very impressive during the game, fielding two balls in the fourth that got caught in the West Texas wind. Regalado tracked down one in the outfield during the second inning.

Final: Pampa 16, Dalhart 1.

"I commend Brittney for walking those two balls down in the outfield and playing the wind the way she did," Gill said. "It was a total team effort, and the offensive side was stellar today."

The win pushes Pampa to 3-2 in district play heading into a game Saturday at Perryton.

Cameron Schaub went 1-2 with two walks and two runs scored; Brittney Gonzalez 2-3 with three runs scored, two RBIs and one walk; Kassie Jerome went 2-3 with a run scored and two RBIs; Kaylee Arzen went 3-4 with two runs scored and two RBI; Jacie Stuebaker had a run scored and an RBI; Shiann Regalado had a run scored and two RBIs; Ally Roberson went 1-1 with two runs and two walks; Cheyenne Lockhart went 2-3 with two runs and an RBI and Gracee Gill went 1-2 with two runs, an RBI and a walk.

The Lady Harvesters return to action on Saturday at Perryton where they will look to sweep their second straight opponent. Varsity plays at noon and junior varsity will follow.

"We'll prepare similar to what we prepared for with this team," Gill said.

"They are pretty much the same and we will make sure we stay solid on defense and stay solid on offense and just making sure we are staying crisp and clean."

Harvesters ride hot bats to 14-2 run-rule of Dalhart

By ZACHARY GREEN
zgreen@thepampanews.com

The Pampa Harvesters (1-3, 7-8-1) hosted the Dalhart Wolves on Wednesday afternoon. The game was originally scheduled for Saturday but was moved due to the heavy rains on Saturday.

Before the game seniors Misti Bowers (trainer), Ty Hooper (catcher), Brody Gaines (pitcher) and Braden Keown (center field) were honored on Senior Day.

After the senior day festivities the Pampa Optimist Youth Club players got to run on the field with the Harvesters for the National Anthem.

“Big win. For us to win on senior day is always important for me,” Snelgrooes said. “And I know it is for these seniors. For us to come out and have 12 hits and no errors that’s a great job on our behalf.”

Brody Gaines started the game on the bump for Pampa. He went the distance in the five-inning run-rule. He allowed just four hits, two runs, only one was earned, struck out six and walked one. He also picked up the win.

In the top of the first, the Wolves went down in 1-2-3 fashion on three straight fly outs.

Pampa didn’t waste anytime getting the scoring going in the bottom of the first.

Hooper reached on an error and was followed by sophomore Brendon Woelfle’s single to fight. Hooper scored on a passed ball during junior Cade Engle’s at-bat.

Engle had a double to play Woelfle. Junior Adam Zuniga had a sacrifice bunt to score Engle.

Just like that Pampa had three runs on the board.

After one, Pampa led 3-0.

Dalhart looked like they might try to mount a comeback in the top of the second. A single, a walk and a batter reaching first on a dropped third strike led to two runs being scored.

Junior Nathan Furgason singled to center to start things off in the bottom of the second but after that, there were three quick outs.

After two, Pampa led 3-2.

The Wolves’ top half of the third was much like Pampa’s bottom half of the second. A runner got on via a single but then there were three straight outs to leave the runner stranded.

Woelfle smashed a home run over the right field wall to get the scoring going in the bottom of the third.

Engle then hit a single that was followed by a Zuniga walk. Junior Rhett Harden reached on an error and Engle scored on the play.

Sophomore Derek Norris grounded out to second but Zuniga scored on the play. Furgason walked.

Junior Colton Thompson tried to sacrifice bunt, but he reached first on the sacrifice attempt. Harden came home on the play.

Keown singled to left to score Furgason. Hooper singled to second to score Thompson and Keown.

Woelfle walked and Engle singled to second. Junior Ryan Lee courtesy ran for Hooper and Lee scored on a passed ball during Zuniga’s at-bat.

In all, eight runs were scored for Pampa in the inning.

After three, Pampa led 11-2.

Dalhart had a single to start the fourth but it was followed by two strikeouts and a runner caught stealing.

Harden walked to lead off the bottom of the fourth. Norris reached on a fielder’s choice as they got Harden out at second. Thompson singled to center to score Norris.

Keown doubled to center to score Thompson. Hooper doubled to score Keown.

After four, Pampa led 14-2.

Dalhart was now down to their final three outs as they faced a possible run-rule. Yet again, the Wolves had one runner get on base but it was followed by a ground out. The next batter reached on a fielder’s choice as Zuniga tagged a guy out at third.

Gaines ended the game by striking out the final batter.

Final/5: Pampa 14, Dalhart 2.

Ty Hooper was 2-4 with three RBIs, a run scored, a stolen base and a double. Brendon Woelfle was 3-3 with a walk, a home run, an RBI, a stolen base and two runs scored. Cade Engle was 3-4 with a double, two runs scored and two stolen bases. Adam Zuniga was 0-1 with a walk, an RBI and a run scored. Rhett Harden was 0-2 with a walk and a run scored. Derek Norris was 0-3 with an RBI, a run scored and a stolen base. Nathan Furgason was 1-2 with a walk and a run scored. Colton Thompson was 1-1 with two RBIs, two runs scored and a stolen base. Braden Keown was 2-3 with two RBIs, two runs scored, a double and a stolen base. Pampa left four men on base as they knocked in 14 runs on 12 hits.

“Hopefully that translates into more wins the second half for us. But we gotta come out....we’re gonna have our hands full at Perryton Saturday,” Snelgrooes said.

Pampa will now travel to Perryton at noon Saturday to start the second round of district play.

From the Press Box

Denver Broncos probably waiting for Dallas Cowboys on DT signing.

Late in the first round of the 2010 NFL Draft, the Denver Broncos selected Georgia Tech's wide receiver Demaryius Thomas at No. 22 while the Dallas Cowboys selected controversial wide receiver Dez Bryant out of Oklahoma State at No. 24. In my opinion, the two are somewhat linked and could easily be argued at 1-2 as the best wide receivers in the league.

The Broncos likely passed on Bryant because of the controversy of Bryant eating dinner with Hall-of-Fame corner Deion Sanders. Bryant has also shown to have trouble with attitude as well.

With Bryant being the best remaining wide receiver available in the draft, the Cowboys selected him and the rest, is of course, history. Both players were scheduled to be free agents this summer, and both got slapped with the franchise tag, which they haven't signed (the deadline is not until July 15 at 3 p.m. local time).

Thomas already has, and will continue, to skip offseason workouts in hopes of getting a long-term deal. Thomas has even skipped the annual workouts held by quarterback Peyton Manning at Duke University.

Bryant hasn't said he is skipping workouts, but it wouldn't surprise me if he isn't at Valley Ranch when workouts begin on Monday.

Both players have put up great numbers in their careers. Thomas, who was riddled with injuries his first two seasons, and played in an offense with quarterback wanna-be Tim Tebow in 2011, has played in 69 games with 351 receptions, 5,317 yards and 41 touchdowns. Bryant, who has only missed five games in his career, has played in 75 games, 381 receptions, 5,424 yards and 56 touchdowns.

So what's taking so long to sign these two stud wideouts. They both make even the most average quarterbacks look like all-pros. Again, look at what Thomas did with Tim Tebow at quarterback (11 games, 551 yards and four touchdowns).

Bryant has had to play with Cowboys fill-ins Brandon Weeden, Kyle Orton and Jon Kitna at quarterback.

As of March, Cowboys owner Jerry Jones has said that Dez will be playing for the Cowboys in September, whether he is tagged or a long-term deal is reached.

I think a deal is reached because the Cowboys are doing what they can to free up the cap space for him, not Adrian Peterson like many talking heads believe.

Broncos president of football operations and Hall-of-Fame quarterback John Elway has said he believes a long-term deal will get done for Thomas, the question is when.

Historically for the Broncos, the past two players to get tagged, linemen Ryan Clady and kicker Matt Prater, signed long-term deals before the next training camp opens. I bet that's what the Broncos do.

I imagine they are waiting to see what Dallas does with Bryant and see what they pay him, and then they will make a deal with Thomas.

But wouldn't it just be nice if one of these guys just said, "I don't care what the other guy is going to make, I will take substantially less. I am just grateful to be able to play."

Unfortunately, even the most humble, quiet and least arrogant athletes have a hint of greed.

HAPPY BIARTHDAY for Saturday, April 18, 2015:

This year you express extremely dynamic ideas. Others often seek you out just to pick your brain. You might need to curb your risk-taking when it comes to money matters; you will be a lot happier that way. If you are single, you'll find that you have quite an assortment of people around you. The next few months could introduce an interesting suitor, who will have a lasting effect on your life. If you are attached, it is likely that you will make a long-term investment together. Know that you don't always have to agree, except on major decisions. TAURUS can be unusually touchy.

The Stars Show the Kind of Day You'll Have: 5-Dynamic; 4-Positive; 3-Average; 2-So-so; 1-Difficult

ARIES (March 21-April 19)
★★★★ Use the morning for any important matters. Your creativity allows you to create some fun plans, but persuading others to join in could be tough. You would be wise not to react to someone else's disappointment, as it likely has nothing to do with you. Tonight: Your treat.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20)
★★★★ You might be slow to get started in the morning, but by midafternoon, you can't be stopped. Your burst of energy could create a lot of fun activity, if you allow yourself to go with the flow. A loved one might be jealous of your charisma. Tonight: Go for what you want.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20)
★★★★ If you remain responsive to your friends and their suggestions, you can't go wrong. As the afternoon greets you, make sure you can be found with friends or among crowds. You could become quite bored if you stay at home. Why do that to yourself? Tonight: Where the party is.

CANCER (June 21-July 22)
★★★★ You might feel weighed down by a certain responsibility. Try to approach the situation in a creative way in order to find a solution. Go where your friends are. Come afternoon, you'll have a great time out. Reach out to a loved one. Tonight: Be where you are happiest.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22)
★★★★ You have the capability of seeing the big picture. You'll be coming from a place of understanding, which will be obvious to others. Be aware that, in some sense, you are a role model

-- all eyes turn to you, as others seem unsure of what to do. Tonight: In the limelight.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22)
★★★★ You'll see others in a new light. Togetherness is the theme in the morning. Go to a park, take photos or meet someone for brunch. By the afternoon, you'll feel relaxed and detached. A problem no longer will seem like a problem. Tonight: Make sure you have great music around you.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 22)
★★★★ Listen to news that is forthcoming. You might not have all the answers just yet. Feel free to ask questions, but don't be surprised if someone becomes hostile as a result. Be aware that you might hit a vulnerable spot. Tonight: Chat with a loved one over dinner.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23-Nov. 21)
★★★★ Get through all your errands, knowing full well that you want to make some free time in the evening to join a friend and/or go out with a loved one. You'll flourish in a social environment right now. Let go of a financial concern. Tonight: Say "yes" to an offer.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21)
★★★★ You might feel quite impulsive, and will allow your imagination to take off. Be smart and drop the stern front you've been putting up lately. Allow more fun into your morning and afternoon. Curb a tendency to wear yourself down to the point of exhaustion. Tonight: Take care of you first.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19)
★★★★ Listen to news, and understand what is happening on the homefront. Check out a matter involving real estate. Your imagination is likely to emerge in the afternoon. A child or new friend will be delighted to join you. Tonight: Let your wild side run the show.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18)
★★★★ You'll be expressing more of your thoughts than you have in the past. How you deal with someone could change as a conversation opens up. Your impression of this person might change radically. Have a long-overdue conversation. Tonight: Know that you have limits.

PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20)
★★★★ You could have an opportunity to tap into someone else's imagination. You'll find that the conversation that occurs as a result will be quite fulfilling. Be aware of what is happening to a friend. You might want to make an extra effort with this person. Tonight: Return calls.

Dear Abby...

By Pauline & Jeanne Phillips

DEAR ABBY: My wife and I have a friend, "Jonah," whom we love dearly, but he has no filter. He's college-educated, has a white-collar job and is over 50. The problem is, anytime we invite him for dinner or take food items to his house, he makes horrible remarks about my wife's cooking, particularly when it's a holiday party based on my wife's Slavic heritage.

My wife is a really good cook. No one else makes fun of these foods, many of which are common in the U.S., but Jonah makes negative comments every time. I have told him that it's rude, and so has my wife.

We would hate not inviting him to future parties with our usual crowd, but it gets me upset when he does this. My wife has actually prepared an alternative meal for him so he won't have to eat the "heritage-style" food. He even makes snide comments when I bring foods popular in other parts of the U.S.

Abby, do we continue inviting him or not? It is straining our friendship. — IN A FOOD FIGHT IN NEW HAMPSHIRE

DEAR IN A FOOD FIGHT: Because Jonah has indicated that he doesn't like the food at your parties, stop inviting him. And because he doesn't appreciate the effort when you bring regional food to his home, stop doing that, too. If he asks why he wasn't included, feel free to give him an "un-filtered" answer. If you visit him, bring a generic house gift, such as nuts, a box of candy, a bottle of wine. If he doesn't accept it graciously, stop doing that, too.

With a "friend" like Jonah, it would be better to socialize at a restaurant that serves food he does like, or at an activity that doesn't revolve around food. I am amazed that you have tolerated his behavior this long.

DEAR ABBY: My wife has gained a little weight and has become self-conscious about how she looks. I have told her she's still beautiful. We haven't been intimate in three months and I think it's because she's afraid I won't like how different she looks without clothes.

I don't know how to tell her that my love for her isn't based on her physical beauty. It's based on who she is as a person. THAT'S what is beautiful to me. Do you have any feedback for me? — LOVING HER IN LOUISIANA

DEAR LOVING HER: Before jumping to conclusions about why you and your wife haven't been intimate, I think you should ask her directly. It may have nothing to do with her weight — and it could be something she should discuss with her gynecologist.

Of course, it never hurts to tell a woman that she's beautiful because of who she is in your eyes and that she always will be. It's a song we women never tire of hearing — and the chorus is always welcome music.

DEAR ABBY: My husband helps with the kids and with the housework. But he never remembers holidays and special occasions. We have been married 15 years.

I have talked to him about how hurtful this is, but it never helps. I want him to think about me and put some effort into getting me something. My friends say, "How can you complain? He helps you do housework!" What do you think? — WIFE OF AN IMPERFECT HUSBAND

DEAR WIFE: If the problem is that your husband doesn't know what to buy for you, offer some suggestions. If he simply can't remember the date — and some spouses don't — start "reminding" him a week in advance. If he still doesn't "pop," then appreciate the fact that you have a husband who tries every day to show you he loves you by making your life easier. Many women are not so lucky.
