to send American armed forces into these areas should be tested in the President, because it was the only way that moves of dictatorship could be countered by this country. In other words, if a dictatorial country decided to move armed forces into an area, that decision could be issued at the same time; that if the President had to wait until Congress acted before an order could be given, we would be at a serious disadvantage. This group felt that all sums expended in dealing with Middle East problems should be devoted to military matters and none to economic aid grants. They argued that the military operation would be much more effective in settling the matter and that the granting of economic aid could well create a situation that would make the military operation more difficult.

Of course, there were other divisions of thought but the three groups above named seem to constitute the nucleus of the opposition, and it appeared that a unification of these three groups would result in formidable opposition to the plan. However, the sales campaign that was commenced shortly after the White House pronouncement was most effective and is gaining momentum. The result is that a substantial amount of opposition in all three groups was measurably reduced. Much of the opposition was converted to support of the overall plan, but on the condition that the power to send American boys into the Middle East should be separated from the power to spend American money in that area; that both powers be granted to the President as he requested, but that they be granted in two separate authorizations so that each could be weighed separately by the Congress and subjected to such limitations as the Congress might want to place on either or both of them. It will be approved by the House Committee on Foreign Affairs and by the House of Representatives in almost the same terms as requested by the President. There is still some doubt as to the form it will take when it is approved by the Senate. But the present trend, as indicated by the high powered sales campaign, indicates that any changes by the Senate will be minor.

The punch line that is being used with telling effect in this campaign is that "the adoption of the Presidential proposal is necessary in order to stop communism." If this could be established, the vote for the proposal in both Houses would be unanimous. In fact, there would be no need for a vote. The proposal would be adopted by unanimous consent. However, the thinking of many Members of Congress is that the adoption of this proposal is an abdication of power by the Congress of the United States and poses a serious constitutional question in strict interpretation of the Constitution.

New Publication From Texas A & M Covers Irrigation

"Thinking of Irrigation" is the title of a publication just released by the Texas Agricultural Extension Service and it is available without cost from the offices of local county agents or from the Agricultural Information Office, College Station.

Extension Irrigation Specialist R. V. Thurmond, the author, has listed in concise form the most important considerations for those contemplating an irrigation program for their farm. Illustrations are used to emphasize and clarify the facts listed.

Such items as water supply, soils, crops, methods of applying water, equipment and planning and designing the system are covered in the publication. The final test comes, says Thurmond, when these cost factors are all added together—water cost, extra equipment, taxes, maintenance, fertilizer, depreciation, interest on investment and labor—and compared with the expected increased income derived from irrigation.

To be profitable, the engineer emphasizes that income must be increased enough through the use of irrigation to offset the additional costs. Installing an irrigation system should not be looked upon as a short time proposition, but as a change in farm management and operation which will affect farm production and income for a long period of time, says Thurmond.

CHURCH ORGANIZATION

The only kind of organization or church government authorized in the New Testament is that of the local congregation, directed by elders, bishops, pastors, or presbyters (The words are used in the N. T. interchangeably). These men, always a plurality, are overseers of only one congregation (Acts 20:28). Deacons of the church of the Lord are special servants who work in a congregation with and under the elders. Nowhere in the New Testament is there an example of one official overseeing one or more congregations. Neither is there an example of a body of officials exercising any kind of oversight over more than one congregation.

When one man rules a congregation of believers he is assuming authority not condoned in the Word of the Lord, or when a group of men (regardless of their stature or prominence) rule a group of congregations they are at this point without scriptural authority and are sinning. The systems devised by men and practiced in the majority of denominations today, i. e. where one 'pastor' rules a congregation; or where a 'bishop' rules a number of congregations; are completely without scriptural precedent and authority from God.

In order for the unity prayed for by Christ in the 17th chapter of John to be a fact among Christians today we must return to the New Testament as our only rule of faith and practice. In organization, local congregational autonomy must not be violated, and the local congregation must be organized as the scripture decrees. Peter states, "If any speak let him speak as of the oracles of God." (1 Pet. 4:11). This is true in ALL matters religious.

Soil Conservation Practices Not Improve Land But helps Wildlife

Soil conservation practices in the United States are not improving the land, but they are helping wildlife, according to a report by the Soil Conservation Service.

Of the total mortality rate of wildlife each year, an estimate indicates that only 10 per cent is accounted for by hunters, and 20 per cent die by natural causes. The unbelievable part is that 60 per cent of the total meet death due to the gnawing pangs of hunger or the icy fingers of exposure due to lack of food and shelter, Swindle said.

The Soil Conservation Service which provides technical assistance to farmers and ranchers in the Hall County Soil Conservation District, regards wildlife as an important product of the land. The Soil Conservation Service will help and encourage farmers and ranchers to recognize that wildlife, like other crops, must be purposefully produced and managed.

Soil Conservation Summary Shows Increased Uses

Farmers and ranchers of the Hall County Soil Conservation District have applied many conservation practices on their land during the last half of 1956, according to reports compiled by the local Soil Conservation Service Office.

These reports indicate that 19 different practices were used out of a possible 47. A few of the practices that have been applied for the first time to rangeland and cropland in this District since July 1, 1956, are as follows: Contour farming, 1,038 acres; cover cropping, 585 acres; crop residue utilization, 4,909 acres; rotation hay and pasture, 172 acres; brush control, 452 acres; deferred grazing, 2,573 acres; proper use of rangeland, 10,366 acres; range seeding, 25 acres; wildlife area improvement, 134 acres; 2 waterways; and 925 miles of new and rebuilt terraces.

A total of 402 ACP requests were serviced by the Soil Conservation Service technicians. Of the 402 farmers and ranchers requesting assistance, 328 have established various conservation practices on their land. There were 263 district cooperators requesting assistance out of the 328, and 65 non-cooperators.

Getting Something Back For Our Money

As a nation we are famous for giving. Usually, when we give, we don't expect to get anything back. But we now can give, and get through the March of Dimes.

What we get is protection against the greatestcrippler of mankind—paralytic polio.

It cost the March of Dimes 17 years of research and $26,000,000 to perfect the Salk vaccine which provides that protection. We Americans gave that money.

So far, so good. But the dark shadow of polio hasn't vanished entirely. Before that happens, two big jobs must be done.

Job No. 1. Get vaccinated. Everybody under 35 should be inoculated. About 45 million of us have been. About as many haven't. If your next door neighbor has and you haven't, polio can still blight your world. YOU alone can prevent this.

Job No. 2. Give to the March of Dimes. No vaccine can help the 80,000 Americans already crippled by polio. They need iron lungs, wheel chairs, braces, crutches, doctors, nurses and special care for years to come. That's the second big job for 1957. This one is up to you too.

Two big jobs to be accomplished by a two-way action—giving and getting. You give to the March of Dimes; you get your inoculation—and security against a mercilesscrippler. Do both jobs now.

Send your contributions to the local March of Dimes, R. C. Lemons, county chairman.

Communist Propaganda

"In our country political parties exist to elect governments, and governments themselves govern," writes Conger Reynolds, Chief of the Office of Private Cooperation of the United States Information Agency, in Public Relations Journal. "In communist lands, governments are tools of the party. All their resources and facilities can be used to carry out party doctrines and decisions. This puts tremendous manpower and money in the hands of the dedicated few who rule the whole vast mechanism with absolute authority." And they are few indeed, comparatively speaking—"There are only 7,000,000 true believers in communism in the Soviet Union, but the other 193,000,000 have been so propagandized that they docilely accept the communist way of life."

Mr. Reynolds' point is implicit in the title of his article—"The Soviet Propaganda Weapon: Dagger At the Heart." This propaganda apparatus is as thoroughly organized as a modern army. The command is at the very top, in the Central Committee of the party. It extends downward through every agency and activity of an all-powerful system—the diplomatic service, the various communist parties outside Russia proper, all media of communications, the lavish sports programs. The propaganda line is carefully tailored to fit each particular locale at which it is aimed.

The extent of Soviet propaganda is enormous. Mr. Reynolds summarizes a study of 1955 Soviet Orbit propaganda in communications media. At the end of that year, official communist broadcasting facilities were sending 1,673 hours per week of programs to all parts of the world. The Soviet press service, TASS, is the main source of news for a third of the world's population, and in 1955 it was responsible for a million words a day of communist-slanted material. Russia—not including satellites—publishes about a billion books a year—and a book is hardly a book in Russia unless it contains some propaganda." In 1954, nearly 30 million of these books were printed in one or another Free World language, and the number constantly increases. Various Soviet periodicals are distributed widely throughout the world in many languages. Communist libraries exist in many of the world's cities. Soviet trade fairs and films serve important propaganda purposes.

Mr. Reynolds believes that this communist menace can be words: "The real test in our contest with communism is now shaping up in the field of diplomacy, in rivalry in helping to solve the world's social problems, and in ideological persuasion. . . . They are just as much part of the struggle as use of soldiers and ships and airplanes would be. The stakes are world control. . . ."

Mr. Reynolds believes that this communist menace can be met and conquered. In his words, "Truth is on our side. . . . Freedom has extraordinary vitality in the breast of man." He then makes a specific suggestion which, while it was addressed to professional public relations people, certainly can be followed in some way and to some degree by a far greater number. "Think how much more you have to offer the world than the communists have. Consider what you can do to make known to other peoples the positive benefits of their looking to the American freeway of life, beliefs, and ideals for a proved road to social happiness. And act!"

Tax-Man Sam Sez:

The tax folks say that thousands of us fail to send in a check for the tax we owe when we file our income tax returns. They think a lot of people read the instructions, check their records, figure their tax, check their arithmetic, get all their W-2s attached, but fail to enclose their check. These fellows sure went a lot of trouble to get their tax right and then forget to enclose a check. Most of us know we have to pay the tax. Let's all save Uncle Sam time and money by putting in our checks with our return. Don't send in your check without identifying what the check is for. The tax office has thousands of payments. They have trouble finding who to credit the payment to when you don't attach the check to your return.

QUOTING OUR NEIGHBORS

The Farmer's Plight
The Amarillo Daily News informs us . . . "every farmer should be concerned about the imposition of government policies which are in opposition to economic trend. They impose another limitation on an already economically hazardous business."

But what the daily didn't tell us is how the farmer is going to get around having to compete with his products on a world free market but is forced to buy on a highly protected and controlled home market.

It is the simple fact that when a farmer goes to sell he asks "What will you give me?" and when he goes to buy he asks "How much do you want?"

On the "What will you give me?" market he is competing with farm products from every country in the world, much of which comes into the United States completely duty free. He also has to compete with every new synthetic discovery of modern science, sponsored or underwritten by the government. But the crowning thorn is the simple fact that he has to turn his product over to speculators without any protection whatsoever in a free economy.

On the farmer's "How much will protected against foreign markets by high tariffs. Not only that, the market is skillfully controlled through secret agreements, monopolies and government regulations and subsidy in favor of the manufacturer. He is also forced to pay all freight, distribution costs and taxes on any equipment he buys plus the added burden of the equipment becoming virtually worthless on trade-in value. Claude News

The Farm Problem

The number one problem faced by the United States concerns the farms of this country. Although a recent report by Secretary of Agriculture Ezra Taft Benson is encouraging, the farm situation remains acute.

Benson reports that farm income in 1956 was five per cent up over 1955 income, and that exports will set a record. Moreover, he admits the price squeeze is continuing and that production costs are going up but, if farm prices continue to go up this year, farmers will feel some relief. He believes that we are headed toward a better era for the farmer.

This is encouraging news, although we are not yet convinced. We hope that Benson's forecast proves accurate.

The farmer has been suffering a price squeeze for some five years and if he is not bailed out, so to speak, then serious economic repercussions are sure to be felt in the United States. Those who argue that the farmer's spending power and income comprise only a small percentage of the total U. S. economy, are theoretically correct, but they do not take into consideration the fact that no one segment of the population can be starved economically for a period of five or six years, and many of them put out of business, without a snowball effect developing.

Part of the reason for the drop in automobile sales in 1956, and the direct cause of a farm machinery slump, is the price squeeze which has been experienced by the farmer. If Mr. Benson's forecast is correct, and the farmer is to come out of his economic pit, then the nation may well move on toward reinvigorated prosperity. But seeing is believing, and we will have to see this before we will believe it.—Shamrock Texan

Senator Johnson Introduces GI Loan Bill Changes

Senator Lyndon B. Johnson has introduced in the Senate a bill designed to speed up housing loans to veterans without any increase in the present interest rate of four and one-half per cent.

The Johnson bill has three principal provisions:

1. It would make available 25 per cent of the National Service Life Insurance Fund for direct veterans' loans at four and one-half per cent interest.

2. It would increase the authorized amount of the mortgage limit from $10,000 to $14,000.

3. It would eliminate some of the delays in processing applications, which in many cases have actually prevented loans from being made.

"This measure would make available to veterans money out of their own fund," Johnson said. "It also would eliminate the dampening effect of the present $10,000 mortgage limit, which has caused many applications to the Veterans Administration simply not to be processed."

In order to speed up action on applications, Johnson's bill would require action, either affirmatively or negatively, by the VA on each application for direct loan at the same time that efforts to obtain private financing are being made. If private financing should be made available within a 20-day period, it would be preferred and used. If not, the VA would be in a position to make qualified loans much faster than at present.

A number of other Senators have joined Senator Johnson in sponsorship of his bill.

Mrs. Hulda Wilson and Mrs. Linnie Cauthen had as dinner guests Sunday Mr. and Mrs. Richard Cannon and Mr. and Mrs. Geo. Bowman, all of Clarendon.

Mr. and Mrs. Bennie Dennis and sons of Borger visited here over the weekend with their parents, Mr. and Mrs. L. O. Dennis and Mrs. Ed McCreary.

Long Distance Phone Users Can Get Credit Cards

Long distance calls may now be made on a credit card plan, H. E. Craig, district manager for General Telephone Company of the Southwest, announced this week.

Telephone credit cards are now available making it possible for subscribers to call from any phone to any other phone in America and have the charges made to their regular monthly bills, Craig said.

He pointed out that "credit cards help calls go through faster and easier. All you have to do is give the operator your credit card number. This eliminates the annoyance of fumbling for change or getting a pocketful before placing a long distance call if you are away from your own residence or business telephone."

As an example of credit card convenience, he cited credit card use for businessmen who must use the telephone while at a customer's office or friend's home. Credit cards save possible embarrassment of asking to use another's phone and paying for the call.
