Approximately 50 persons had furnished information about themselves by Wednesday afternoon in a survey which is being conducted here by the Memphis Chamber of Commerce and Hall County Board of Development, according to Clifford Farmer, manager of the organization. The survey is being conducted to learn how many persons would be available for employment, should an industry locate here. For most of the replies have been from women, Farmer stated, and that they also needed to be considered for work in a factory or industrial plant in Memphis. He is checking the following information about myself.

4-H Livestock Judging Team Wins 6th Place

The Hall County 4-H Livestock Judging team brought home a sixth place win from the state competition held in College Station last week. W. B. Hooser, county agent, said Monday. The judging took place at the annual 4-H Roundup and saw teams from all over the state competing for honors in all types of judging events. The Hall County team, composed of Ronnie George of Turkey, Jimmy Don Molloy of Lakeview, Bobby Stephens of Turkey and Rickey Fuston of Turkey, left Tuesday and returned Thursday of last week. The team was accompanied by Hooser.

In addition to competing in the Livestock Judging event, the county group also attended a short course dealing with livestock. "The course was especially interesting," Hooser said, "because it was conducted by men who are now engaged in research into the different fields connected with livestock." More than 2,000 4-H club members from all over Texas were on hand for the event.

Charles E. Coley, Western Cottonoil Agriculturist, Moves To Memphis

Charles E. Coley has been named agriculturist for the Memphis District of Western Cottonoil Co., according to an announcement this week by Maurice Nixon, local manager. This is a new service made available to the farmers of this area by the Western Cottonoil Co. in an effort to help farmers produce cotton more efficiently, Nixon said. "This simply means anything that will increase cotton production or cut the costs of production which will result in more net profit to the grower," Coley said. There is no charge for this service and farmers may contact their local Paymaster Gin manager or drop by the oil mill in Memphis, he continued. Charles grew up on a cotton farm and is a graduate of the University of Arkansas College of Agriculture, giving him the advantage of both practical experience and technical training. For the past eight years he has been employed as a field representative for a major chemical company, spending most of this time in southwestern Oklahoma. Over 670 Area Residents Receive Chest X-Rays Here

A total of 671 area residents had free chest x-rays made last week when the Texas Department of Health X-ray unit was here for one day, according to Mrs. Herschel Combs, co-chairman of the drive. Although this is one of the busiest seasons of the year, more people took advantage of the service this year than they did in October, 1955, the date the unit was here last, she stated. In 1955, 591 persons had x-rays and the year before 568 persons were x-rayed. Equipment for making the x-ray was furnished by the Texas Department of Health and was located at the Lone Star Gas Company office. The unit which came here is one of four maintained by the (Continued on Page Ten)

Texans Invited To Attend Naval Homecoming

On Friday, July 5, a group of outstanding Texas citizens will arrive at Great Lakes Naval Training Center for the Navy's salute to Texas celebration at the world's biggest, and probably most spectacular "Homecoming" ever held.

Thousands of Texans are expected to join the Lone Star State officials and the hundreds of Texas "seabag alumni", who will revisit the world's largest naval training center.

Saturday, July 6, will bring the week's activities to a climax as an all-Texas recruit company graduates on the center's historic Ross Field before the dignitaries and thousands of visitors.

Visitors to Great Lakes will be admitted with a minimum of formality and guides will be provided to accompany them in their private automobiles. Buses will be on hand to transport pedestrians.

Scheduled demonstrations ranging actual fire fighting problems to aerial fly overs will take place daily. Ample parking space will be available for those desiring to tour the base on foot and recreation areas have been set up for families who want to picnic and spend the day.

Great Lakes Navy Homecoming runs to October 7, and the Navy will pay tribute in turn to the 21 Midwestern and Southern states which provide the bulk of the Great Lakes Recruit manpower.

According to Captain A. C. Burrows, USN, the center commander, "All visitors, old navy, new navy, or non navy, will be given the red carpet treatment during the Homecoming."

Report From Washington

By Walter Rogers
Congressman, 18th District

Alaskan Statehood bill for Alaskan statehood was reported favorably by the committee on Interior and Insular Affairs. The vote was 24 to 12. The bill was included among the measures to be reported to the House.

The bill undoubtedly will prove to be a highly controversial issue in the year as it has been each year in the past. One of the reasons that it has been so controversial is that it has been reported to the committee by the House of Representatives in the past. The bill will probably be the subject of more debate in the House than any other portion of the bill. The amendment was offered by Mr. Pillion, New York. Its purpose is to delay for an election to be held on the question of "statehood" or "no statehood" a condition precedent to Alaska becoming a state when, as, and if the bill passed. One of the arguments in favor of such a condition is the fact that in a recent election in Alaska, the vote was more than 2 to 1 against statehood. It has always been my belief that under any and all circumstances, the people of Alaska should have the opportunity to vote or disapprove the issue.

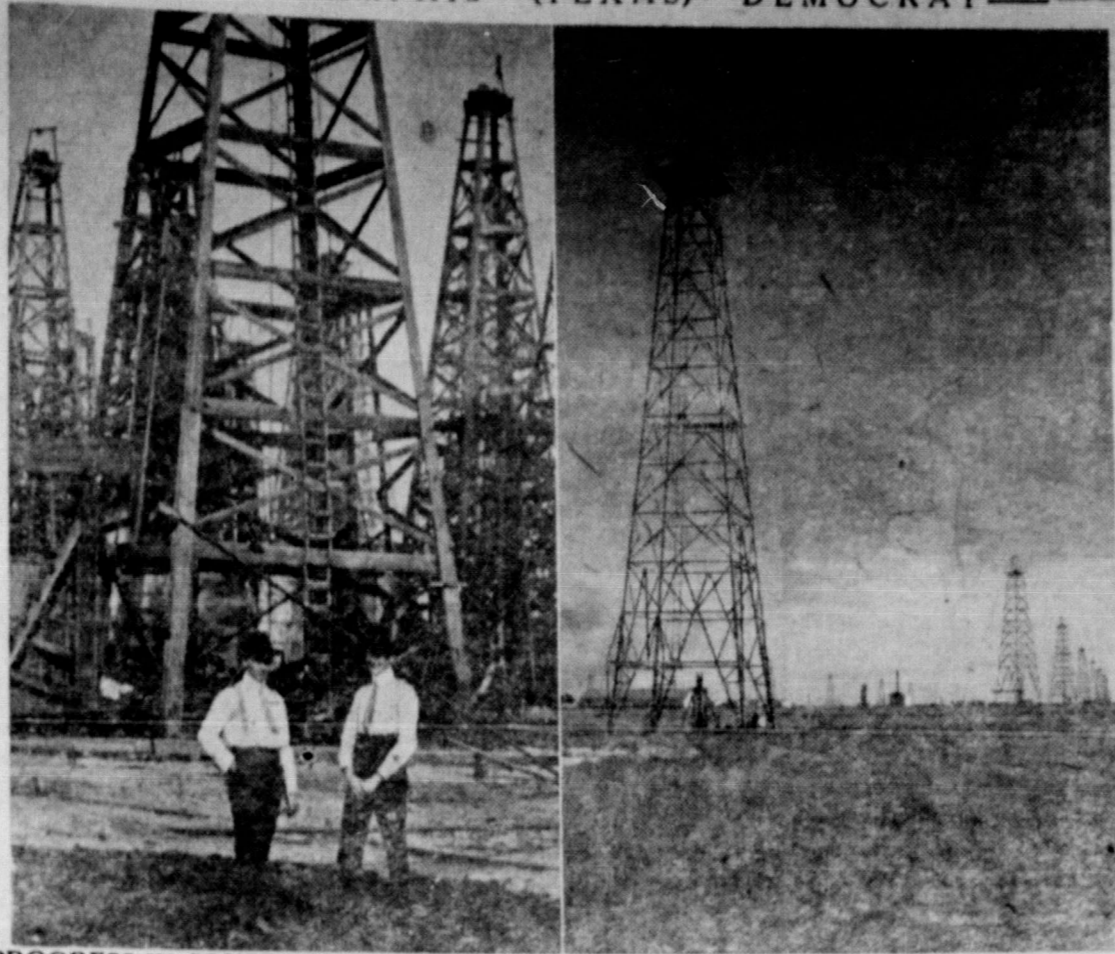

Committee between the House and the Senate. The 4 that have already been written into law are appropriations for the Treasury Department, Post Office Department, U. S. Tax Court and Second 1957 Urgent Deficiency bill. The Presidential request was for approximately $87 million more than the Congress allowed him in these 4 appropriation matters. The other measures, now on the president's desk for his signature, authorize expenditures of approximately $100 million less than the President asked. These cuts were very carefully weighed and it was the intention of the Congress to cut only those things that appeared to be in the nature of waste or budgetary fat. There are more cuts to come on the other appropriations. These cuts will be weighed in the same careful manner.

The mail is bringing in many letters both for and against the President's budget. These are running about 59 per cent for and 50 per cent against. Many concern the Mutual Security (Foreign Aid) program. This is one of the bills we have not yet considered. It will be one of the most controversial measures because of the very nature of the program. Many feel that projects in this country which should be developed are being delayed because of the high cost of the foreign aid program. In keeping with this general thought, one of the newspaper columnists in this country, Mr. H. I. Phillips, wrote a poem entitled, AMERICA SPEAKS, which is as follows:

To meet both ends I seldom can
(But I'm a help to Pakistan);
It's hard to keep my shirt and pants
(But after all, I'm fond of France);
I guess I'll have to break my lease
(I must cooperate with Greece);
Hedged in by debts quite vast
I am

The wolf from door I can't repel
(Still I must help keep Burma well);
By Tuesday I am out of dough
(Malaya's felling better though);
My dollar very little buys
(But Egypt's safer, I surmise);
My own financial outlook's murky
(But still my heart belongs to Turkey).

I'm busted flat, and feeling blue
(But I'm a pal of Timbuktu);

We're adding breadcrumbs to our hash
(Who cares? Ain't Tito short of cash?);
The sheriff's knocking on my door
(However, England's asking more);
I'm in a hole, but feeling noble
I wish things are not quite so global!

Stubble Mulching Will Help Hold Small Grain Land

The harvesting of small grains such as wheat, oats, and rye is about to begin in the Hall County Conservation District. The stubble that is left behind the combine is of great value to the land. William C. Swindle, SCS technician, said this week.

The operating of farm machinery in such a way as to leave this stubble on the surface of the soil is called stubble mulching.

Stubble mulch farming benefits farming operations in many ways according to Soil Conservation Service technicians. It provides cover for the land when crops are not growing; helps to conserve moisture; it intercepts and reduces the impact of raindrops, permitting greater penetration; and reduces surface water runoff.

Subsurface, sweep type equipment is highly recommended by the district to aid in the practice of stubble mulch farming.

These Forty Years!

Forty years ago, in June of 1917, the Humble Company received its charter from the State of Texas.

The Company was formed through a merger of the properties of a number of independent oil operators. Its founding brought together a remarkable group of men who occupy an important place in the annals of the oil industry:

R. S. Sterling and his brother, F. P. Sterling, the principal organizers of Humble Oil Company from which the present company acquired its name; W. S. Farish and R. L. Blaffer composing Blaffer and Farish; H. C. Wiess with assets from Paraffine and Reliance Oil Companies; Walter W. Fondren and C. B. Goddard, producers; and L. A. Carlton and E. E. Townes as lawyers.

All of these men contributed greatly in adopting the principles, in shaping the policies, and in laying out procedures that have guided the Company's progress through these forty years. Their influence will survive as long as the Company continues.

They possessed courage and business judgment. They established high standards of performance. They built a strong organization of competent men and women.

The Company, as it stands today, is a tribute to the leadership, the vision, and the work of its founders.

But it is doubtful that these men, with all their foresight, visualized the changes that have occurred in the oil industry since 1917, or the size and complexity of Humble's present operations, or the extent of the Company's contributions through the years to the progress of our society.

To all who have made those contributions possible—employees, customers, shareholders and the people of the states in which the Company operates—Humble extends its thanks.

USDA Reports Plentiful Foods For Month of July

Turkey and ice cream are the featured foods on the U. S. Department of Agriculture's July plentiful foods list. These two foods will get special promotions during the months . . . Mid-Summer Turkey Time, July 25- August 4 and Ice Cream Festival, July 1-31.

Turkeys have long been thought of in terms of Thanksgiving and Christmas, but changes in production methods have made this old favorite available the year-round. Ice cream just goes with summer time and increased supplies of milk and butterfat have also increased the amount of ice cream available.

John J. Slaughter, southwest division chief of the USDA's Agricultural Marketing Service, says monthly surveys form the basis for determining the plentiful foods.

Fresh fruits are prominent on the July listing and include peaches, lemons and limes. Frozen strawberries will also be in good supply.

Milk and other dairy products in addition to ice cream, will continue seasonally plentiful. Eggs are another high protein plentiful.

Texas new crop of onions will be abundant, but other fresh vegetables are not listed for the state. Peanuts and peanut butter and vegetable fats and oils are shelf items included on the July list.

"Few indeed are those who today will disagree that soil conservation is a major driving force for a permanent and prosperous American and world agriculture." — Dr. Hugh H. Bennett.

WOOD PRESERVATIVE ADDS TO LIFE OF LAWN FURNITURE

Homeowners invest considerable money and effort in furnishing their lawns and backyards with picnic furniture, swings and gliders and other accessories to outdoor living and entertaining. If you are among these persons, naturally you would like these things to last as long as possible. You can add years to the useful life of wooden outdoor furnishings by treating them with a wood preservative, suggests C. W. Simmons, extension farm forester. Such a material is pentachlorophenol, often referred to as "pen-

Game Harvest In Panhandle Proves Good Last Fall

The Texas Panhandle provided a satisfactory game harvest in 1956, according to a summary report made by employees of the Texas Game and Fish Commission covering 28 counties.

The report shows a kill of 258 deer, 397 turkey and 229 antelope, checked in by the hunters. The antelope hunts were staged on 29 ranches which had contracts with the game department to permit hunting.

There were 305 antelope hunt permits issued, with a kill of 229, or 83.27 per cent. The average checked out at 75.3 pounds. The average weight of the mule deer killed was 124 pounds, against 120 pounds on the white tail deer.

Hunters from the area also contributed 4,708 bob white and 899 scaled quail wings for study. The quail kill was said to be as good as the previous year.

In a check of dove hunters, 564 reported a killing of 2,616 doves, or an average of 4.6 doves per man. These results equalled the previous year's hunt.

Wood decay is caused by the action of fungi—small plant-like organisms present everywhere in soil. Numerous insects also attack wood. Both need warmth, moisture and air in which to work. Rain-soaked wood and all wood in contact with the soil are ideal for their destructive activity, says Simmons.

The preservative suggested by the forester is poisonous to both insects and fungi. When mixed with oil, it is not soluble in water and wood soaked with it becomes water repellent. Soaking is essential. Surface treatment, such as painting, is inadequate, points out the specialist.

For some furniture, such as tables, benches and chairs, Simmons suggests letting each leg stand overnight in a container filled with the solution. Other vulnerable spots can be treated by repeatedly flooding the surface with the preservative and allowing it to stand until it disappears into the wood.

Wood should be dry and unpainted, according to Simmons. If desired, paint can be applied over the preservative after it is thoroughly dry.

Your Child and the Doctor It's a good idea to give written consent for necessary medical care if your child leaves home for a visit or a camping trip, or if you plan to be away for any length of time.

For example, a summer camp nurse may bring a boy into a hospital with an acute case of appendicitis. But the doctor may well hesitate to go ahead and operate without the parents' consent.

Is the doctor arbitrary, and is such permission just a legal technicality? No, he is well within his rights, though he may give first aid — but only for emergency treatment where a child's health or life may be at stake. He is likely to put off follow-up care until he can reach the child's parents. A relative or baby sitter generally cannot grant consent for a child's treatment.

Even an adult must request treatment and grant consent to medical care on his own before a doctor can give it to him. Children cannot do this.

By going to your doctor you show your willingness and consent to accept his treatment. Your consent is assumed also when you ask for a house call by the doctor, or if as a result of an accident you come to a hospital for emergency care, yet later he should get your consent for further treatment.

Minors cannot consent to medical treatment, and except in dire emergencies their parents or guardians must give it for them.

The consent should not be broadly or loosely phrased, but should be as specific as circumstances permit.

The principal reason for having the consent in writing is to avoid later misunderstandings. It is a precaution for both the patient and physician.

ABOUT YOUR HEALTH

A weekly public service feature from the Texas State Department of Health. HENRY A. HOLLE, M.D., Commissioner

AUSTIN — Last month an Austin State Hospital physician called the State Health Department to report that a radium needle, being used to treat a patient with skin cancer, had been dislodged or lost.

Did the Department have radiation equipment with which the needle might be located? The Department did, and the needle was subsequently found in a gauze bandage.

This incident, one of many that take place every month, illustrates the manner in which the Department's Division of Occupational Health, working in cooperation with private physicians and other agencies, is quietly going about the task of protecting citizens from the dangers of excessive radiation exposures.

A great deal has been said about the imminent peril the entire nation is facing from excessive radiation exposures. Much of that information has been true in general, but some of it has been misconstrued to the point where people have cancelled much-needed x-ray treatments or examinations because of unjustified fear of radiation exposure.

One of the state's leading radiologists, writing in the Texas Medical Association Journal, has summed up the situation by saying that the curtailment of radi examinations would cause a ure in many times the number of this then would theoretically 20 generations from now.

There is no question but the various sources of energy now in use — in usage in industry and medicine search and the so-called "fall from unclear weapons testing are potentially dangerous.

But the very fact that exists serves as a sort of valve. Persons engaged in a time use of radiation equipment and materials, acutely aware the hazards, act with extreme caution.

Competent physicians and tists keep accurate records their patients' radiation exposure level. Wealthy foundations been set up to train technicians in the safe use of radiation and federal governments — with medical, dental, and engineering schools — have made considerable investments of money insure the proper control of iant energy equipment.

And as a sort of clinch Texas State Department of th is one of five states which complete regulations regarding the registration and proper of all radiation-producing ment and materials.

So while it is true that increasing uses of radiance in national defense, medicine industry does demand that ercise every precaution, that tion must be tempered common sense. Radiation trolled amounts can be more ficial than hazardous.

Johnson Favors Reduction Arms Spending

Senator Lyndon B. Johnson decried Sunday that for the first time in history mankind faces the threat of destruction not from man but from preparations for war.

Two scientists agree on the danger of risk involved in the "fallout" from atomic explosions. "But they all agree that there is some danger that they call strontium-90 fallout."

The United States cannot stop Russia also stops, the Senator said, adding, "We cannot assume they have any safeguards."

Johnson called for American and Russian leaders to exchange views over test facilities in the two countries.

Social Security News

By JOHN R. SANDERSON

More than 100,000 severely disabled people in communities all over the Nation will receive their first social security disability insurance checks in August, John R. Sanderson, district manager of the Amarillo Social Security office announced this week.

But many other eligible disabled workers 50 to 65 years of age, have so far failed to make application to their social security offices. Those who have been disabled for work for a long time must apply before June 30, Mr. Sanderson pointed out, or they will lose their rights to these new benefit payments.

Any severely disabled person who has worked under social security for at least five years and who has been disabled for six months or more should get in touch with his social security office right away, the social security district manager said.

If he is between 50 and 65 years of age, he may be eligible to have his social security record frozen to protect his future right to disability payments, and also his family's rights to old-age and survivors insurance benefits.

"Unfortunately there is a lot of misunderstanding," Mr. Sanderson said, "as to how disabled a worker has to be to get social security disability insurance benefits or to have his social security record frozen. The rules in the social security law for deciding whether a person is 'disabled' are different from the rules in some other government and private disability programs."

To be found "disabled" under the social security law, he said, a worker must have a disability which, in the words of the law, makes him unable "to engage in any substantial gainful activity." It must be the kind of physical condition, such as walking several blocks, using public transportation or doing small chores.

4. Cancer which is inoperable and progressive.

5. Damage to the brain or brain abnormality which has resulted in severe loss of judgment, intellect, orientation or memory.

6. Mental disease (e. g., psychosis or severe psychoneurosis) requiring continued institutionalization or constant supervision of the affected individual.

7. Loss or diminution of vision to the extent that the affected individual has central visual acuity of no better than 20-200 in the better eye after best correction, or has an equivalent concentric contraction of his visual field.

8. Permanent and total loss of speech.

9. Total deafness uncorrectible by a hearing aid.

Mr. Sanderson said most individuals with such serious disabilities are unable to work. There are cases, however, where a person with such a severe disability is working, or able to work, because of his special knowledges and skills. He would not be entitled to benefits, the district manager said, because he would be able to engage in substantial gainful activity.

A person might work occasionally or intermittently and this would not necessarily mean that he was able to engage in substantial gainful activity. Both the nature of the work and the amount of money he earned would have to be considered.

On the other hand, some persons with conditions somewhat less severe than the ones listed above might be found unable to engage in substantial gainful activity because of the actual facts in their cases. If a person's condition coupled with his work background, his lack of education, training and other physical and mental resources does in fact prevent him from working, he would have a disability which prevents him from engaging in substantial gainful activity, and would therefore be found eligible under the social security disability provisions.

Biologists Study Algae in Lakes

Many Texas lakes right now are showing an overabundance of unicellular green algae brought on by an overdose of land fertilizer, according to Marion Toole, director of inland fisheries of the Texas Game and Fish Commission.

"We are watching it very closely," the director said. "Right now there is a very heavy covering of this algae on some lakes, particularly Lake Travis."

"It can do two things. First, it can be beneficial by affording food for plankton feeding fishes. On the other hand it can get so heavy it will cut off oxygen in areas, which will result in killing off some fish."

Ken Jurgens, aquatic biologist for the Highland Lakes area, says he has been checking on the algae situation. He says it is caused by fertilizer. This sudden burst of rains flooding over lands rich in fertilizer into the lakes, fed by the sunshine, is responsible for the rapid growth.

Population Rise Will Mean More Vegetarianism

A University of Texas sociologist says Americans are moving steadily toward vegetarianism because of expected rapid population increases.

More people can be kept alive on smaller amounts of land if they eat vegetable matter, rather than animal matter, Dr. Carl M. Rosenquist, specialist in population trends, or demography, points out.

At the present rate of increase, U. S. population will double within the next 50 years. Scientists at the University of Texas and elsewhere are attempting to develop new food sources, such as algae, so that future generations will not go hungry.

U. S. population now stands at 171 million. World population is 2,700,000,000.

Grass Seedlings Need Protection From Weeds

Many farmers and ranchers of the Hall County Soil Conservation District have small grass seedlings that have come up recently. These plants need some protection from the many weeds that are trying to take over the fields.

Soil Conservation Service technicians recommend that these weeds be mowed as soon as possible. This should be done while there is still a lot of moisture in the soil. The moisture will help the small plants weather the hot days after the weeds have been mowed.

A Healthier Place In Which To Live

Next Wednesday the citizens of Memphis will join together in the annual clean-up drive, designed to make the city a more beautiful and healthier place in which to live.

Everyone who is able should consider it not a duty but a privilege to pitch in and help with this worthy project, because he or she will have helped not only the community but himself as well.

For one thing, we will have a neater and more attractive community in which to live. Besides making life more pleasant for ourselves, it will be a matter of pride to have visitors say, "You have such a clean, beautiful town."

Another reason for wanting a clean town may not be as evident to the eye but, in our opinion, is more important, even than appearance. We have reference to sanitary conditions which play such a major role in the health and well-being of any community.

We are entering the summer, a season of the year when flies and other breeders of disease and illness flourish as at no other time.

There is also another reason for keeping the city as clean as possible. It will be a lot easier to interest an industrial prospect in moving here if we can show him a neat, clean town where the people all cooperate together in making life better for everyone.

On the front page of this issue there is a complete story covering the details of the drive scheduled for Wednesday, but keep in mind that all of the cleaning up can not be accomplished on that day.

So start now by cleaning your premises and burning all the trash that can be disposed of in that manner.

Statistics Show National Trends

From different sources in Washington, statistical data shows important trends, which should be carefully considered. They point to present-day problems which our leaders should be facing. To note only a few:

Federal civilian payroll—Cost the U. S. Taxpayers $10.6 billion in 1956. Compare this with $5.6 spent for obtaining services of federal employees in 1948. Will it nearly double again by 1964?

National debt—Now stands at highest peak in history. Net public and private debt rise $51 billion in 1955, and shows steady increase in 1956 and 1957, according to reports from Department of Commerce and Federal Reserve Board.

Small business failures—Greatest number in all U. S. history was recorded last year, and 1957 may surpass that. The trend is for big business to get bigger, and the smaller ones to fall by the wayside.

Major crime—Shows increase averaging about 15 per cent. The figures show that crime, which has been increasing nearly four times as fast as the population, is placing a much heavier burden upon taxpayers. It takes more money and manpower to combat criminals.

In all categories of American life, statistics tell a story which concerns everyone. What will be the effect of higher and higher interest rates? Should young people look to a career on the federal payroll, or should they make plans to start a small business?

More and more, as the years go by, the actions of the national congress affect the lives of individuals. Speculation as to what congress may do, or may not do, is getting heavier day by day.

The brakes must be applied soon to many of the trends pointed to by statistics.

Texas Talk

A Texas GI was playing with some English soldiers. He drew four aces. "One pound," ventured the Englishman on his right. "Ah don't know how you-all count your money," said the Texan, "but Ah'll raise you a ton."

Litterbug Law

Governor Price Daniel recently signed the litterbug law, which became immediately effective.

The law was worded so that it protects public highways, parks, bridges, public beaches and even private property when it is opened to the public for vehicular traffic.

Litterbugs have thrown refuse on the streets of Panhandle and on Carson county highways.

It has cost the highway department thousands of dollars a year to pick up tin cans, bottles and refuse on the highways of the Texas Panhandle.

Let's be good citizens and help to make Texas streets, highways, and parks cleaner. It shouldn't take a state law to make one want to have cleaner parks and roads.

Bulging Mail Bags

"Bulging mail bags crammed with calls from the folks back home to 'cut that budget' are piling into many a Congressional office," writes Douglas B. Cornell of the Associated Press. Some of the writers—as is to be expected—want the economy to be confined to projects in which they aren't personally interested.

It is reported that Secretary of the Treasury Humphrey is getting 1,700 letters a day of this nature—the greatest response to any public question since he took office.

So much for the tide of public opinion. Can the budget be cut substantially?

The citizens Public Expenditure Survey has gone into the budget in detail and states that it can be reduced by more than $4.5 billion by cutting non-defense spending back to the level of three years ago, without touching any defense spending.

Senator Byrd, a recognized Congressional authority, believes that a $5 billion cut is possible, and he intends to show congress where and how.

Other studies have produced similar opinions.

John S. Knight, of the Knight Newspapers, has this important comment: "We can't curb inflation by telling labor and industry to be good boys, or urging economic discipline upon the individual, if the government goes all out for bigger and better spending."

Flowers

A Tulian who attended the funeral of a relative in a Northern state several weeks ago described a practice concerning funeral flowers which we would like to see instituted here.

Instead of funeral sprays, the flowers are arranged in baskets and bouquets such as are ordin-ily given to the living. After the service, the flowers are not taken to the cemetery to last only a few minutes or hours at the most. Instead they are delivered to hospitals, convalescent homes, homes for the aged, and other places where they are enjoyed for several days.

QUOTING OUR NEIGHBORS

The charge is sometimes made that funeral flowers are "a waste of money," meaning of course that they are seen for a brief period at the service, when relatives perhaps cannot enjoy them to the fullest, then are gone.

We disagree. That which prompts the giving of the flowers is what counts.

A gift in the form of a kind and thoughtful deed is just as tangible and lasting as a more intrinsic gift. Personally, we think flowers have a spiritual quality not possessed by any other gift. We know of no other gift that says as much during times of illness, bereavement or joy.

But we also believe that the satisfaction derived from funeral flowers can be multiplied when they are shared after the funeral instead of left at the cemetery to die.

Tulia has many shut-ins and elderly folks who would enjoy these flowers. And in many instances the flowers could be used at church services.

While we're on the subject, we don't like to hear it said that it is foolish to give funeral flowers because "the dead can't smell them." 'Tis true—but funeral flowers are for the living, not for the dead.

MR. & MRS. BOB PRITCHETT

Juanella Goffinett, Bob Pritchett Marry In Home Wedding, June 7

A lovely wedding on Friday, June 7, united in marriage Miss Juanella Goffinett, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Frank Goffinett of Memphis, and Bob Pritchett, son of Mr. and Mrs. Luther G. Pritchett of Amarillo. Vows were exchanged at 2 p.m. in the home of the bride's parents at 1308 West Main St.

Rev. Dorian Blaisingame, Amarillo minister, read the double-ring ceremony before an arch entwined with white chrysanthemums and greenery highlighted by a large bow of white satin ribbon holding twin wedding bells. Jade trees and greenery flanked the nuptial space.

Preceding the exchange of vows, Miss Marietta Byars of Memphis presented a piano selection, "Always," and accompanied Miss Joyce Inman, Amarillo vocalist, who sang "I Love You Truly" and "The Lord's Prayer." The traditional wedding marches were used for the processional and recessional.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride was attired in a waltz-length gown of imported French nylon lace covering bouffant skirts of white satin and ruffled tulle. Fashioned with a fit-neckline embroidered with seed pearls, the sleeves end in tapered points over the hands. The finger-tip veil of French illusion fell from a lace and satin crown studded with seed pearls and sequins. The bride carried a white Bible topped with a single white orchid surrounded by satin streamers.

The traditional custom of something old, new, borrowed and blue was carried out. The Bible was a graduation gift; her wedding ensemble was new. She borrowed a strand of pearls and wore a blue garter.

Miss Bobbie Nell Long of Memphis attended the bride as the maid of honor. She wore a dress of orchid cotton satin styled with a full skirt, fitted bodice and scoop neckline. Her hat was a band of lace and flowers and she wore white gloves and shoes. Miss Long carried a nosegay of white pom-poms tied with white satin ribbon.

Dan Pritchett of Amarillo attended his brother as best man. Mrs. Goffinett, mother of the bride, chose for the occasion a dress of navy blue linen complemented by white accessories. The groom's mother, Mrs. Pritchett, wore a navy blue dress. Both wore corsages of white carnations.

Immediately following the ceremony a reception was held. The bride's table was covered with hand-drawn cloth of white Yucca over orchid. The bride's chosen colors of orchid and white were carried out in the table appointments and the three tiered wedding cake, which was decorated with orchid roses, pale green leaves and topped with a miniature bride and bridegroom underneath an archway.

Mrs. Omer Johnsey of Amarillo served the wedding cake and Miss Doris Pritchett, the groom's sister, of Amarillo presided at the punch bowl. Mrs. Dean Collins of Dumas secured names of the guests for the bride's book.

Mesquite Trees Use 1900 Lbs. of Water Per One of Wood

Mesquite trees are one of the largest robbers of moisture in the Hall County Soil Conservation District. It takes about 1900 lbs. of water to produce a single pound of dry mesquite.

Originally this pest was in limited amounts on certain areas. However, it is now spread over the entire district. It has increased aggressively in pastures that have been overgrazed to the extent that the grass cover has been reduced.

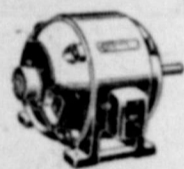

One of the most common methods of control is by pouring kerosene around the tree base. This may be done almost any time of the year by using one to two pints of kerosene per tree, making sure the entire base of the tree is wet. Usually 60 to 70 per cent is considered a good kill.

Root-plowing, and other chemical methods are also used to control mesquite. However, root-plowing is generally the most expensive, but gets the best kill.

For additional information on brush control, contact the local Soil Conservation Service office.
