These divisions, usually made along some type clear-cut boundary, are intended to remain permanent areas. For the most part, they are based on the communities which serve as the focal point of each area, he explained.

The statistical data for these divisions will serve as a yardstick with which to measure the sphere of influence exercised by such communities.

Palmer assured county officials that the county divisions set up by the Bureau of Census would (Continued on Page Ten)

Almost 2,000 Bales of Cotton Ginned To Date

Delays in cotton, grain harvest

County cotton gins have ginned almost 2,000 bales of cotton so far this year, according to a telephone survey conducted Thursday by The Democrat.

The crop got into the gins today after rain had pulled out of fields several days.

Saturday night and early morning 2.42 inches of rain fell in Memphis, according to John J. McMickin, official observer.

Other amounts were reported from other places over the county. Tuesday night rain fell in Memphis, measuring almost an inch.

The rainfall has benefited small grain crops, wheat, and also damaged the cotton and sorghum yields, causing farmers fear. Much county grain is ready to be harvested as soon as fields are dry.

The low temperatures for the past week in the following: Wednesday, 54-77; Monday, 52-75; Saturday, 49-74.

The enthusiasm of the late Thomas F. Mayo, Chairman of the English Department of A and M College, carried the project through its first perilous experiences; during the past two years more than 7,600 English teachers have participated in the workshops. The movement has attracted nationwide interest. Representatives from several states attended the joint meeting last spring for the purpose of taking back to their own states the techniques of the workshop.

Pathfinders' Hear Program Entitled 'It Could Be You'

Continuing the year's study, "TV Guide for Modern Living," the members of the Pathfinders' Council used as their program on Tuesday, Oct. 8, "It Could Be You." The meeting was held in the home of Mrs. A. O. Gidden.

During a brief business session, Mrs. Robert Spicer reported the joint meeting of all the clubs when they entertained the state president, Mrs. Ernest Lee introduced the program. She read, "To be a thoroughly good person is the best prescription for keeping a sound mind in a sound body." Mrs. W. F. McElreath, in giving the history of the hymn of the month, "A Mighty Fortress Is Our God," stated that Martin Luther bared this, his best known hymn, upon the forty-sixth Psalm. Luther wrote his hymns in the language of the people so the gospel's truth would spread quickly and so the people could participate in the service. This stately choral, now translated into many tongues, is probably the most widely sung of all hymns, she said.

Mrs. W. F. Ritchie, in her discussion of "What It Means to Be a Person," quoted Dr. Carl R. Rogers, professor of psychology, University of Chicago, who says when one tries to help troubled, unhappy, maladjusted individuals, he should think: "If I can create a relationship characterized on my part by a genuineness and transparency in which I am my real feelings, by a warm acceptance of and a liking for the other person as a separate individual, by a sensitive ability to see his world and himself as he sees them, then the other individual in the relationship will experience and understand aspects of himself which previously he has repressed, will find himself becoming better integrated, will be more self-directing and self-confident, will be able to cope with the problems of life more adequately and more comfortably."

She reported he concludes by saying, "The individual, in throwing off his mask, emerges with the sense of living his life as a participant in a fluid, ongoing process, continually discovering new aspects of himself in the flow of experience."

A playlet, "Roots and Strings," was dramatized by Mesdames Lee, A. O. Gidden, E. L. McQueen, J. J. McDaniel, O. M. Gunstream, and W. W. Linville. The theme involved the lives of a crippled mother, a selfish sister, and two brothers. The mother and sister, after appealing to the men for support, decided to make their own way.

Mrs. Gidden, assisted by Mrs. A. Gidden, served delicious refreshments to: Mmes. W. F. McElreath, Hester Bownds, Barney Burnett, J. R. Mitchell, Robert Spicer, A. O. Gidden, Ernest Lee, E. L. McQueen, W. W. Linville, W. F. Ritchie, J. J. McDaniel, and O. M. Gunstream.

Isotopes in Sixth Year in Use of now ranks sixth in the number of users of isotopes, a University of Texas report in an article on Atomic Energy in Tex-

G. Dale, writing in the Business Review, asserts: "It may well be that uses of radiation will have a more influence upon the industrial development of the state than the development of nuclear energy."

The industry now is applying isotopes in at least three ways: in testing, process control research (utilizing tracer elements) and fundamental research in the petroleum and chemical industries (oriented to possibilities of product processing via nuclear reactions).

Isotope testing, particularly of products, is conducted by x-ray radiography for a study of the cost of comparative equipment, Dale says. In the petroleum industry, techniques are being developed rapidly," he notes.

Because of the increasing importance of applied radiation in industry, Dale foresees construction of specialized reactors for the production of isotopes for direct irradiation of materials, plus an increase in the number of "hot" laboratories for research involving isotopes. He sees "good possibilities" for the development of independent facilities for irradiation time to small and medium size manufacturers.

Cottons Use More Than Any Other Product

Cottons are the number one cotton product in the United States, according to figures just released by the National Cotton Council's research section.

The production of shirts consumed almost 600 thousand bales of cotton last year. In preliminary figures for 1956 released by the council in a publication entitled "Cotton Counts Its Customers," the largest end uses, both in value and volume, were accounted for well over a billion bales last year.

Other top ten uses in value were men's and boys' trousers, men's and boys' underwear, automobile uses, dresses, and carpets and retail piece goods.

The registered substantial increases in such items as women's nightgowns, pajamas, shirts and children's and adult shirts, dresses, suits, and coats. Consumption gains registered in sheets, towels, machinery belts. But cotton consumption declined somewhat in automobile uses and rugs and carpets.

However, the automobile industry still used almost a third of a billion bales of cotton in 1956, more than a quarter of a billion bales went into rugs and carpets.

THE WONDROUS YEARS OF OUR TIME...

Man's use of petroleum — of oil and natural gas — began before the first records of history.

But petroleum's full usefulness to man has been a matter of decades only.

They have been wondrous years, those decades. Years that saw automobiles built by the millions because gasoline was available as a cheap source of power. Years that saw the oceans dwindle under the high speed of great ships powered by oil. Years that saw the evolution of a more comfortable living in homes warmed by oil and natural gas. Years that saw rubber, fibers, paints and many other useful items of everyday living produced from petroleum's hydrocarbons. Years that saw the earth shrink under the wings of the airplane, and great wars decided by the availability of oil.

Thus, the oil industry has led the way into the wondrous years of our time. The industry, through foresight, ingenuity, research, and risk-taking, has found and produced the oil required in greater quantity each year, has conserved oil for the future, has devised the transportation systems that move oil economically, has built the refineries and plants that convert crude oil and natural gas to the hundreds of useful products needed by a growing United States.

The Humble Company, founded in 1917, has participated in petroleum's progress during four great decades, and has pioneered in the development of many current techniques for finding, producing and refining oil. This week, with the industry, Humble invites you to consider the variety and extent of oil's progress . . . Surely no other industry has contributed more to the making of modern America.

Desert Sheep Back In Texas From Arizona

Wild desert sheep which once roamed the mountains of the Big Bend area of Texas are now being given a chance for a comeback. Five of these animals, three ewes and two rams, are getting acquainted with their new home in Texas.

They are the sole occupants of a one-section trap in the Black Gap Wildlife management area in West Texas.

Capture of the five sheep was a long and tedious job for Biologist Tom Moore of the Game & Fish Commission and personnel of the Arizona Game & Fish Department this summer. Traps were set near waterholes in the Arizona desert country. The wary sheep, however, failed to fall into the traps as rapidly as hoped for. Finally four were caught and moved from Arizona to Texas, via airplane.

Then a couple of weeks ago, a big ram was found tangled in a wire fence in Arizona. It was moved to Texas via truck. Apparently it also likes its new home, according to the director of Wildlife Management of the Commission.

"From here on, it is a proposition of watching and waiting," he said. "We hope we may have two or three lambs next spring. We may try to trap some more of the big horns. If they do well, it is possible that some day we may again have a controlled hunt of desert big horns in Texas."

Benson's Popularity

Last week the farmers' friend, Secretary of Agriculture Erna T. Benson, found out exactly how popular his programs have been with South Dakota farmers. Benson was speaking in defense of his flexible farm price support policies before 7,500 farmers at the South Dakota mechanical corn picking contest at Sioux Falls when he was bombarded with about half a dozen eggs from the farmers.

None of the eggs hit Benson but his 20-minute speech was received in almost absolute silence from the hostile farm audience. State troopers shoved their way through the crowd and collared the five farmers who admitted lobbing the eggs from about 40 yard away. Policemen took the farmers' names but made no immediate arrests. They quoted the farmers as saying they had written letters to Benson and "never got any satisfaction."

Things have indeed reached a sad state when the man who is appointed to look after the agricultural interests of the country seems to do so little with which the farmers agree. Those of us here know how we have fared during the past few years, and now it appears that the farmers in other parts of the country seem to be in the same position. The Benson line of propaganda has, through the years, sounded good, but there has been one fault—the farmers' share of the national income has continued to go down, down, down. This is no doubt what the Dakota farmers were thinking about as they tossed the eggs. As one news commentator put it, "They decided to adopt their own method of disposing of surplus eggs."

We don't necessarily agree with the idea of pelting the Secretary of Agriculture with eggs, but we do think that it is time that he quit trying to bankrupt farmers and begin figuring out how to help them survive in this continuing inflation. Since the Republicans have been in power the dollar has been stable for a short three-year period. This stability was only achieved by a constant lowering of the price paid to farmers for their products, while all the costs farmers had to pay continued to rise.

We believe that there is a real danger to the economy of the nation by the policies designed to bankrupt all small farmers. This has already been felt on the stock market as many of the stocks took the biggest dive in two years last week. The big investors are already beginning to slow down on their buying and survey the economic picture. Over a year ago we pointed out that if the agricultural segment of our economy reached a point where they could no longer buy, then the country was in for an economic crisis. Every depression, recession, or what ever you want to call it, has been preceded by a drop in farm prices. We don't pretend to know all the answers to the farm problems, but we do know that the policies during the last few years have put a lot of men out of business.

U. S. Blunders Again

The Russians may have startled everyone in the U. S. with their announcement of the world's first satellite but it seems unlikely that anyone will get a bigger jolt out of the incident than the Republican administration. For a party who claimed to have the leader who would be better able to cope with the Communists on every front, they have suffered major defeats on the international scene while only arousing more trouble at home.

The reasons for the satellite lag are probably many but intra-service rivalry will no doubt top the list when the truth is known. German scientists, who are assisting the Army with their missile work, claimed last week that they have had a rocket capable of launching a "Sputnik" for over a year but due to orders from Washington they have had to allow the project to gather dust while research continued under another branch. Soon after a scientist made the announcement he received orders from Washington by teletype to make no further comment. This group of men helped develop the German V2 during World War II.

For a man who has been a military leader for almost all of his life, President Eisenhower surely must have been able to realize the great military and propaganda value of launching the first earth satellite. Predictions are now that a "crash" program will be implemented to get our satellite into the air as soon as possible. This program will cost from 5 to 10 billion dollars, according to estimates and will probably erase any hope of a tax cut for next year. It might also be interesting to point out that Congress has appropriated whatever amount of money the missile experts have asked for in the past so they will not be able to claim that they didn't have enough money.

Many persons are now asking themselves if maybe the program would not have progressed faster under a civilian project, instead of being left in the hands of the military. Our military organizations have always done a good job of fighting but they have also always been noted for their slowness in exchanging ideas and cooperating with one another. Could this have been the main thing which held back the U. S. Satellite? We don't pretend to know and seriously doubt if the truth will ever be known. It is doubtful if the Republican administration will actually admit who is responsible for the greatest propaganda blunder in all history.

Unusual Happenings Around the State

Not Much Bull
NOCONA—Somewhere around Ringgold there is a bull wagging nothing behind him. He was one of the losers in a bull-car accident. Highway Patrol reported Alfred B. Clayton Jr. of Dallas had $150 damage done to his car in the encounter, but neither he nor the bull suffered bodily damage. The bull did, however, lose his tail in the mishap. That's very little.

Useful Theft
HOUSTON—Thieves may find themselves outfitted in what they stole from Mrs. Leone Hurlbert. Mrs. Hurlbert dumped a package into her car and went off to continue shopping. The package was gone when she returned. Appropriately enough, the package contained ten yards of black and white prison stripe material. "If they catch the thief, he can wear it," Mrs. Hurlbert said.

Press Paragraphs— QUOTING OUR NEIGHBORS

Change Water District Laws

Gov. Price Daniel has shown great concern for the water problem in Texas, to the extent that he has called a special session of the Legislature to deal with it. At no time has the governor, or any other state official discussing the water situation, mentioned one phase of it which is in great need of legislative action.

This phase is the handling of water districts. Not only should the water district operations be investigated, but the laws under which they operate should be changed to place the vetting and selling of water district bonds under tighter restrictions.

As it is now, a handful of people can vote millions of dollars in bonds and, with the approval of the state board of engineers, sell them without supervision before or after the sale.

No better example of the situation can be afforded than the water district now in the headlines, No. 51. Records show that four persons voted $2,050,000 in bonds. There have been other instances when only a few persons have voted much larger bond issues. There is a great deal of money to be made, all within the bounds of existing laws, in water district transactions.

The abuse is not new. It has been going on for a number of years, especially in the postwar development reached a rapid pace all around the fringes of the city.

At least three other water districts have been in the headlines here in the last five or six years, because of questionable activities connected with them.

The current investigation by the grand jury of water districts in Harris County gives Gov. Daniel a perfect opportunity to initiate a state probe into the whole system of setting up and operating water districts. Then, he can submit to the special session of the Legislature which meets Oct. 14, corrective measures.

The little water user, who needs the water only for usual purposes in his home, is just as entitled to getting it without being victimized as are the big users for whom the governor's presently proposed legislation is designed principally.

WTPA Head Shocked That Amarillo Paper Missed Point In Analyzing Tech Scandal

W. H. Graham, Jr., of Farwell, president of the West Texas Press Association, last week reminded the Amarillo Daily News that it has been "missing something fundamental in analyzing the board at Texas Tech for its 'right' to discharge teachers from the staff of that institution supported by taxpaying public."

President Graham reminded the Amarillo paper of a recent resolution adopted at the WTPA condemned the firing of public employees in secret sessions.

Graham's letter to the Amarillo Daily News follows:
"Dear Editor:
"I am shocked and deeply disappointed to see that you are missing something fundamental in analyzing the board at Texas Tech for their 'right' to discharge teachers from the staff of that institution supported by the taxpaying public.

"It is true that they are delegated with authority to run the school as they feel best, within certain limitations, and this authority includes the hiring and firing of instructors, janitors, or even the school president.

"I have no idea what the real reason for their removing the teachers recently. And that's exactly the trouble. They have hidden their reasons for taking their action behind closed doors, meeting in an "executive" capacity that was shut to the public and to the press.

"They have steadfastly refused to disclose their reasons for the firings. If they won't say why, then they must have something to hide or be ashamed of. No group of persons appointed to serve the public should ever be allowed to refuse to tell the public what they are doing.

"Anyone who reads The State Line Tribune knows I have little sympathy for the "liberal" element of the Democratic Party in Texas, but I join with them in pro-

Testing the firings at Tech, not because it was purported to be "in the best interest of the college," which it may have been, but because any teacher or other employee of any tax supported organization should be entitled to an answer to his question "Why am I being fired?" and so should the press or any citizen, no matter what his station in life. In a privately endowed institution, the matter would be entirely different. But never, in a public one!

"I'm cooking dinner
with my CLEAN, AUTOMATIC Electric RANGE"

Be Happy!
Live Better—
Electrically

and nothing is as COOL, FAST and SAFE
as Electric Cooking—

At this modern kitchen clearly shows, today's trend is to electricity. And perhaps the best example of this is the electric range. Smart looking, convenient. Insulated on all 6 sides (as are all electric ovens) you get even, steady heat for baking and roasting. No guesswork with electric surface units either. The heat you set is yours automatically every time, and the heat goes directly into the bottom of the pan, not up the sides and into your kitchen.

But the thing you'll appreciate most is the way your electric range stays modern—year after year.

Report from Washington

By Walter Rogers
Congressman, 18th District

European Common Market

Developments in European countries who are joining in the Common Market Treaty with labor, as well as goods, indicate that a serious economic problem may be in store for the country in the future. There is speculation on the part of some that whether or not Germany would enter into these negotiations. However, the action of the Chancellor of West Germany, Konrad Adenauer and Foreign Minister Heierich von Scharnberg is leading the way in the Common Market, and frequent resounding re-election of Adenauer, would indicate that West Germany is most likely to be one of the two, in bending over to show itself to be a hard working member of the European community. One who felt that Germany would be better off economically if followed Britain and became a member of a Free Trade area without assuming some of the responsibilities of the Common Market. However, Germany is otherwise and is prohibited because of its substitution of coal and steel. It suffers from an agricultural standpoint, but it was, no doubt that this would be out of other benefits.

The ratification of the Treaty surprised many, including some. Some looked upon the move toward the solution of its most troublesome. Actually France has more to gain in joining than to have stayed on its own. Especially in the specifications for French imports to escape clause for French subsidies, France also gains the price it can ask from its agricultural surpluses upon early exchanges of goods in a free movement of the expanded market and prices for food. It was pointed out that even those of the community but all admit it will want to speed up the ratification of such a program.

so that British automobiles may go into Europe duty free, as well as Danish bacon and butter.

Whether the full 12 to 15 year trial period is required or whether the Common Market is in full force and effect in less time, there will be an economic impact on this country and it would be well for the matter to be thoroughly and completely debated in the early days of the coming session of Congress and before the time for extension of the Reciprocal Trade Agreements Act.

Passenger Penalty

The commercial airlines have recently adopted a plan to penalize passengers who fail to show up for a flight on which they have a reservation. This plan is bound to run up against trouble. The fact is that the airlines have had trouble for some time with passengers who promiscuously make reservations and then fail to show up. This means that some other person who wanted to make the trip is not able to get a confirmed reservation and doesn't know whether he will be able to go until time for the plane to take off. There is no doubt that this has been a serious problem, but I feel that the airlines are going to be in for considerable criticism when they start collecting a money penalty from a passenger. This matter was discussed at length in the Congressional hearings when the Civil Aeronautics Board appeared before our Committee. At that time I asked the Chairman, Mr. Durfee, about this plan and why it was that nothing had been done in the nature of providing a penalty to be paid by the airline to the passenger when the airline sold a ticket and then denied transportation to the passenger at the last minute because the plane had been oversold at some other point, or because of some other reason in which the passenger had no control. The Chairman was unable to answer the question and, in fact, indicated that no thought had been given to it by the Board.

I pointed out to him that it was my understanding the CAB had been set up to protect the traveling public, as well as the airlines, and that if the passenger was going to be penalized for not showing, then by the same token, the airlines should be penalized for failing to provide the service it should provide.

Coming Home

Mrs. Rogers and I will be at home by the time this reaches you. We made the trip by automobile stopping at Nashville, Tennessee, for hearings before a subcommittee of which I am a member. We then proceeded on to Bonham, Texas, where we attended the dedication of the Sam Rayburn Library. It is a beautiful structure and filled with many, many mementoes and records that have come into the hands of this great Texan in his long years of public service. Bonham and Fannin County are certainly proud of this splendid monument to their native son. I hope all of you will have an opportunity to visit it. Nothing would please the Speaker better than to have you stop by if you are in that section of the State.

Miss Betty Stewart, who is teaching in the Snyder school system, visited this weekend with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Robert Stewart.

Soil Conservation News

By CHARLIE B. CAPE
Work Unit Conservationist

How much rain did you get? It is not necessarily how much rain you get, it is how much you save that counts. Test holes on several different types of soil were dug on bare ground and ground that had different types of cover.

It was found that on land where cotton is growing that moisture penetration was around 16 to 19 inches, depending on the type soil. On soil that had been fallowed, moisture penetration to 20 inches was found. This was on good sandy loam soil, and in a place where no extra water had collected. On land of the same type and same condition except where a good crop of wheat stubble had been left on the surface, moisture penetration had reached a fraction over 24 inches.

On pasture land it was found that cover again played a very important part. On land that had a good grass cover it was found that the moisture penetration was 22 inches. On land of the same type except that the grass had been grazed to within about 2 inches of the surface of the ground, only 12 inches of moisture penetration was recorded.

Farmers in the Hall County Soil Conservation District are urged to find out on their own farms how much moisture was saved. Soil Conservation Service employees will be glad to help if needed.

One of the main efforts of the joint committee is the change from the traditional system of teaching one semester of high school work devoted exclusively to grammar and one to literature to the system of integrating the year's work so that all the communication media will be studied together.

In this effort the Memphis School administration is to be highly commended because Memphis instituted the integrated system many years ago and ranks among the successful pioneers of the movement.
