Annual Wheat Balloting Will Be Held Thursday

Hall County wheat growers will hold the polls next Thursday, July 23, to cast their ballots in the annual wheat referendum. Joe Montgomery, chairman of the County Agricultural Stabilization and Conservation committee, will preside over the voting places and the chairman of the referendum committee is as follows:

Chairman—Adams Grocery, Quilla

Members—Rear of First National Bank, Del E. Wells, Waples-Platter Co., Cawfield Grocery, Er-Foster, Memphis-ASC office, Clifton

Ballot—city fire station, Pop Ferrel.

Key—City Hall, Norris Mc-growers who are eligible to vote in the wheat quota referendum are those who, in 1960, will have more than 15 acres of wheat for harvest on a farm, it was estimated.

At least two-thirds of the voters who vote in the referendum approve the quotas, they will be in effect for the 1960 crop year. Price support will be available to growers who comply with their quotas at least 75 per cent of the market price but not less than $1.77 per bushel.

Growers who exceed the larger farm allotment or 15 acres will be subject to a marketing quota of 45 per cent of the market price on their "excess" wheat.

If the quotas are not approved by at least two-thirds of the growers, the quotas and penalties will not be in effect, and price support will be available to farmers who comply with the allotment at 50 per cent of parity, as set by law. At current market levels, that would be about $1.50 per bushel.

Commissioners Hold Quite Session Monday

County Commissioners Court was in session Monday morning for much business considered, according to Mrs. Ruby Goodnight, county clerk.

The group approved the tax assessor's supplemental assessment tax list of delinquent and current taxes as well as the regular monthly reports from other county officials.

They then voted to pay those who sit as the Commissioners Special Highway Condemnation Board a salary of $10 per month. This board was recently authorized by law and is appointed by court in the event that condemnation proceedings are necessary for highway construction, county clerk explained.

Tracy Davis were present at the meeting.

Waples-Platter Co. Honored With Breakfast Held Friday at Country Club

Approximately 60 persons were present last Friday morning for the Appreciation Breakfast honoring officials and personnel of Waples-Platter Company.

The event, held at the Memphis Country Club, was sponsored by the Memphis Chamber of Commerce and Hall County Board of Development.

Attending the event were Hugh Lee, general sales manager of the firm; Hugh Hoover, head of operations department; Dennis Hall, credit manager; and Sam Cook, sales manager for White Swan Coffee division, all of Fort Worth, along with members of the local wholesale divisions.

The breakfast was held to celebrate the recent expansion of the operations from the Waples-Platter Co. here.

The territory served from Memphis includes all of Southwest Oklahoma, and in Texas from Clarendon to Wichita Falls. The area was greatly enlarged due to moving the Vernon district to Memphis.

Dick Fowler, president of the sponsoring organization, gave the welcome address, and Hugh Lee gave the response on behalf of the company.

The theme of the white swan was carried out, with a sign on the door reading, "White Swan Inn." Table decorations and wall banners were cut-out white swans.

Ottie Jones, manager of the local branch, extended a sincere thanks this week to all who helped with the affair.

"All of the employees at the Memphis branch of the firm want to thank their neighbors and friends for this fine gesture," he said.

Cub Scouts, Dads Attend Weekend At Camp Kiowah

Cub Scouts of Pack 35 attended Camp Kiowah near Canadian over the weekend with a total of 29 youths and their fathers in attendance, Cubmaster Bill Hall said this week.

The event was the annual Cub-Dad Campout. The group left Memphis about 1:30 Saturday afternoon and arrived at the camp at about 4 p. m. After arriving at the camp the Cubs enjoyed swimming, boating, archery and rifle practice prior to the evening meal.

About 8 p. m. the Cubs gathered around a Council Fire where they told stories and played games.

Rain during the night necessitated the moving of their cots two times. Breakfast was served the next morning at 7 a. m. This was followed by more archery and rifle range practice, swimming and boating.

The group returned to Memphis about 3 p. m. Sunday afternoon. Cubmaster Hall reported that the (Continued on Page Ten)

A native Texan, he was born July 13, 1870, at Leona, Leon County. He spent his early childhood in Leon, Clay and Jack Counties.

In January, 1913, they moved to the Antelope Flat community, and in 1930 moved to the Mexican Creek Farm on the J. A. Ranch, which is the present family home.

Mr. Bullock is survived by five sons, four daughters, one half-sister, one step-sister, 20 grandchildren and 28 great-grandchildren.

Twister Results In Close Call For Local Resident

"It looked like the screen was coming over right on top of me," Mrs. Hollis Boren said this week concerning the wreckage at the drive in theatre.

Mrs. Boren was in the ticket office, located on the west side of the screen, when the storm began. After a few minutes she looked up and saw a twisting funnel coming from the northeast toward the drive in.

"Before I had time to do anything, the twister had ripped part of the screen off and it looked like it was coming right at me. Then, just as fast, it twisted the part back and then the entire screen toppled down flat," she said.

Several cars were in the path of the tornado, but they were not damaged. However, the occupants reported that they were bounced around somewhat.

Mrs. Mac Tarver Home After European Tour

Mrs. Mac Tarver arrived home this week after enjoying a five-week vacation tour of Europe. Accompanying Mrs. Tarver on the trip were her brother, his wife and daughter, Mr. and Mrs. T. E. Noel and Tommye of Denton, but formerly of Memphis.

The group left Denton May 24 flying to New York City, where they spent three days sight-seeing before boarding the Queen Elizabeth for Europe.

While gone they visited important historical places and cities in England, Holland, Belgium, Germany, Switzerland, Italy and France.

"We saw some beautiful and progressive countries while we were gone," Mrs. Tarver said.

They returned to the states aboard the Queen Elizabeth, arriving in New York City July 7.

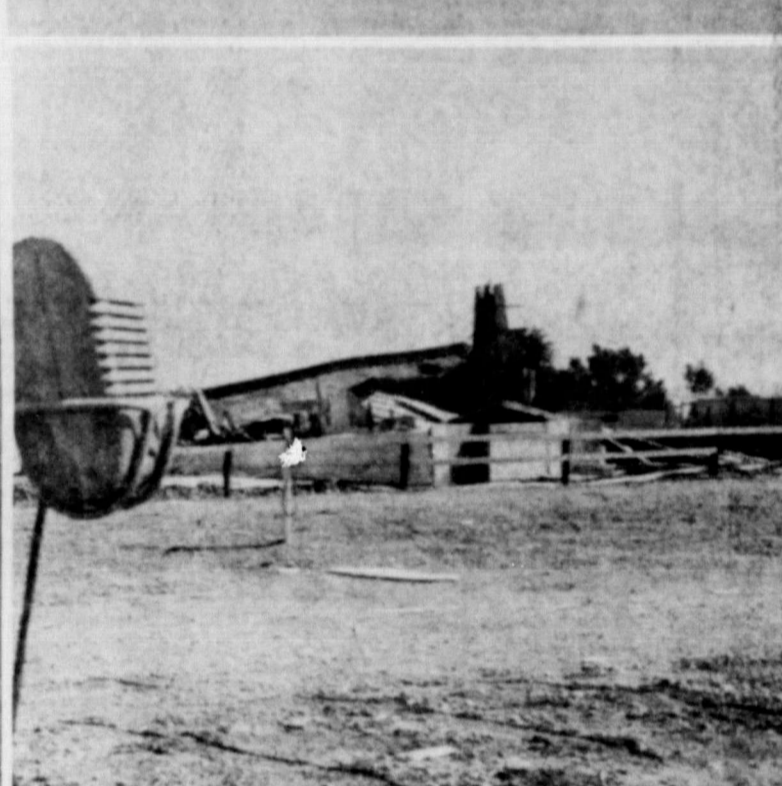

Local Telephones Being Changed To Dial Operation

Another operation toward dial telephone service for Memphis has been started, according to Roy L. Brewer, district manager for General Telephone Company of the Southwest.

Present telephones in Memphis are being replaced or converted to the dial type telephone which will make customer direct dialing possible. Special information will be sent to each customer to further acquaint them with the dialing procedures, said Brewer.

The change over of telephones should be completed by Aug. 31, and the planned date for the cut-over to this modern dial system is Sept. 20, 1959.

Production Credit Assn. Purchases Lot for Building

The Memphis Production Credit Association announced this week that the organization had purchased the lots located at the corner of 9th and Main Streets, and will use the location for the construction of an office building in the near future, James Van Pelt, manager, stated.

This week work has been completed on clearing the lot after a brick service station building was torn down there last week. The concrete drive and foundation under the station was up to two feet in thickness in some areas.

Due to the weight, it was decided to bury the large concrete blocks rather than try to load them, Van Pelt said. They were buried on a section of the lot which will be used for a parking area.

Storm Levels Cotton, Buildings

High winds over the county and hail in the eastern part inflicted extensive damage to crops and property in the worst storm of the season last Friday evening between 8 and 10 p. m.

Damage to crops are estimated at one-half to a million dollars, while damages here in Memphis to buildings and property probably ran as high as $75,000.

Winds, some of which were small tornados, destroyed the Tower Drive-In Theatre screen, Omer Hill Elevator, and the new General Telephone Co. division office building, which is under construction here in Memphis.

In addition to this, there were numerous plate glass windows broken here in town, and other damage inflicted. Tops were broken out of trees all over the area, and in some cases entire trees were blown down.

Crops were totally destroyed in the area south of Red River from Hulver to Estelline, and on down into the Baylor and Tell communities.

It has been estimated that about 2,000 acres of cotton was totally destroyed, and another 10,000 to 15,000 acres received damage.

The area of damage began a few miles south of Memphis and (Continued on Page Ten)

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

On board the Kronprinsesse Ingrid

Greetings from the North Sea:

It is a beautiful sunny day as we approach the shores of Denmark, on the North Sea. The sea is as calm and peaceful as a mill pond. My other crossing on the North Sea, when I was in Europe before, was very rough, so it is a pleasant surprise to find it so smooth on this voyage.

I took the train yesterday from London to Harwich (pronounced Hairich) where I boarded this ship. We arrived in Esbjerg after lunch today and I took a train from there to Copenhagen. I have never been to Copenhagen before and I am looking forward to the visit. I will meet my sister, Margaret Ann, there on the 27th. She is flying the Polar Route to Copenhagen from Los Angeles. We are looking forward to a wonderful time together touring Europe.

The ship I am on is called the Kronprinsesse Ingrid, meaning the Crown Princess Ingrid. It is a very modern, clean and efficient ship. The cabins are small, but comfortable, and my bed was very soft, so I had a good night sleep, once I got to bed. There are nice people on board from many different countries and I sat up until very late talking to many of them.

I am going out on deck now and take advantage of the wonderful sunshine. I will write more from Copenhagen.

JULY 1

I have been in Copenhagen a week today and it couldn't have been a more perfect week. Margaret Ann arrived on Saturday and we have truly enjoyed our visit.

Her first day here we walked around the city the first part of the morning. Then we met a Danish actor friend of mine and another very dear friend from Los Angeles for lunch. After lunch, the four of us took a boat trip up the canals and harbor. The boat took us by the famous statue of the Little Mermaid which Madron said she had always wanted to see. The Danish people are as nice and friendly as any I've met in Europe. We love them.

On Sunday we took a boat trip over to Sweden for the day. Of course one can't learn much about Sweden in one day, but we enjoyed it. The boat trip there was pleasant, and we had lunch in a restaurant in a beautiful park and ate lunch under the trees while a Swedish band played music.

Sunday night a friend who Margaret Ann met took her to all the night spots in Copenhagen and she enjoyed it. I dined with some other friends, then went to several night spots with them. We wound up at 3 a. m. at a private club room in the famous Cafe De Paris. We had a small supper there and enjoyed the wonderful entertainment.

One of the strange things about this country is that the sun doesn't set until 10 p. m. in the summer and it is daylight again at 2:30 a. m. So when I went home that morning at 4:30 it was broad daylight. When I telephoned Margaret Ann's room about 10:30 that morning I found she had been out until 4:30 too, so we both went back to bed and slept most of the day. We had planned to see more of the city that day, but sleep was just too nice to pass up.

Monday night we met another Danish friend of mine and went to a wonderful place called Tivoli for dinner. The Tivoli is a big entertainment park right in the center of Copenhagen. It is one of the most famous places in Europe. It covers several acres and has very elegant restaurants and gardens with playing fountains that change color at night. It has a lake in the middle with beer gardens, and tea gardens along it and bands and orchestras are playing in open air stands in various places. Also there are two open air theatres with a show every night and three nights a week there are fireworks display at midnight. Of course it has roller coasters, ferris wheels and all those things. It is similar to Disney Land, but much more charming in its own way. We had dinner that evening at the top of a Chinese Pagoda where we could look out at the Tivoli below us. It is one of the nicest restaurants in the Tivoli, and both Margaret and I are very fond of Chinese food. The Tivoli is not only a tourist attraction, because the Danes love it too, and go there very often, some everyday. We were there on Saturday night and were told there were 40,000 people there the one night.

Margaret Ann left yesterday for Germany where she will spend a few days in Frankfurt and Stuttgart as well as a day in Salzburg, Austria. Then she will go to Zurich and Geneva, Switzerland and from there to Italy. She is making most of her trip by plane, so she will have more time to stay in each city. She will make the trip from Stuttgart to Salzburg by train so she will get a chance to see the German Austrian countryside. Then she will go to Rome from Geneva by train, so she will see the Swiss and Italian countryside. I will leave tomorrow for Homburg, Germany for a few days, then on to Frankfurt and Zurich. I may arrive in Zurich before Margaret leaves, if not I am meeting her in Rome the middle of the month, where we hope to stay until around August 1. (I will add more to this along the way.)

On board M-S Kong Friderick
Well when I started this letter I was on the North Sea, now I'm on the Baltic Sea, leaving Scandinavian for Germany. I just had the most wonderful dinner on board I have ever had. There was a table the full length of the dining room filled with every kind of food you can think of. There were at least 50 different kinds of meat, both hot and cold and more trimmings than I could hope to name. For seven kroner, which is about one dollar, you could eat all you wanted and go back often as you liked. I piled my plate full and then went back twice. If I had been sea sick after, it would have been too bad. In fact, as I think about it, I get kind of an uneasy feeling, so I think I'd better get lie down before I do get seasick. (I'll write more from the steady solid ground.)

July 6, Zurich

I'm in Switzerland now, and with Margaret Ann once more. She was very surprised when I knocked on the door of her room yesterday morning, as she had no idea I might come to Zurich. When she left Copenhagen, I hadn't picked up my ticket yet, so I didn't know I would be routed through Zurich until she had gone. I spent two days in Hamburg and only one in Frankfurt. I enjoyed both places, but Hamburg more.

After Margaret Ann got over the surprise at seeing me, we had breakfast set up, then went out to see what we wanted to do. We decided on a 5-hour boat trip around Lake Zurich. The sun was so wonderful that we sat out on deck and looked at the most beautiful countryside and villages and mountains that the eye could behold. I don't know of any place more beautiful than Switzerland. We both love it here. We had a wonderful lunch on board the boat, then came back to the hotel after the boat docked at 6 p. m. We planned to go out for the evening, but the sun and fresh lake air had made us so sleepy that we decided to take a nap. Well, neither of us awakened until 9:30 and by that time we felt it was too late to get ready and go out, so we just stayed in. Today we did a bit of shopping and just walked around the city in the rain. If tomorrow is pretty Margaret Ann plans an all-day tour up into the Alps and to Lucerne. I have been before so I won't go. I am leaving for Rome tomorrow evening so I will spend my last day here seeing the city as this is my first time in Zurich. I'll try to have some interesting anecdotes and write in Rome. Until then,

Best wishes,

Roy Alvin Massey

Rules Given To Prevent Accidents On Texas Farms

Innoculation of farm animals is considered a sound practice among modern farmers and ranchers, because it has been proven time and again that it is easier to prevent disease than to cure it.

Another sound, modern and proven phase of farming and ranching, but not quite so widely accepted, is inoculation against accidents by eliminating hazards.

J. O. Musick, general manager of the Texas Safety Association, says "The average medical costs for farm and ranch injuries will run $105 per accident. This excludes the cost of hiring extra labor for replacement and lost production.

"In Texas, farm machinery poses the greatest hazard and the severity of such accidents reaches its peak during June, July and August, which is all the more reason why farmers and ranchers throughout the state should observe National Farm Safety Week, July 19-25, by eliminating as many hazards as possible."

Musick listed the following do's and don'ts that every farmer or rancher should observe in setting up his own accident prevention program:

1. Keep ladders and steps in good repair. Provide hand and guard rails where they are needed.
2. Avoid storing loose materials overhead.
3. Keep loose wires, boards and scrap metal picked up.
4. Don't allow nails or hangers to protrude unnecessarily.
5. Keep hand tools in safe racks. Urge your employees to always use the right tool for the job at hand—improvising can be expensive.

6. Keep guards in place on power shafts, belts and chains.

7. Keep pens and corrals in good repair.

8. No not step over or under moving belts.

9. Do not use foot to push a running belt from a pulley.

10. Turn off power equipment before unlogging or adjusting it.

11. Cut off electrical current when working with a conductor.

12. Remain alert to the possibilities of falls—they are one of the greatest hazards around a farm or ranch.

13. Allow gasoline motors to cool before refilling them.

14. Do not wear loose fitting or torn clothing around machinery.

15. Don't forget the home when planning an accident prevention program. During 1958, 1,202 lives were accidentally lost in Texas home accidents and more than 72,000 persons injured.

Soil Conservation News

Make Your Farm Pond Safe

The supervisors of the Hall County Soil Conservation District urge all farm pond owners to make their farm ponds safe. Ponds, like any other body of water, attract people. When the two come together, there is always the chance of drowning.

Ponds are a valuable asset and have many uses. During the last 25 years farmers & ranchers have built nearly a million ponds as part of soil and water conservation plans. You may be one of those farmers or ranchers that have built ponds with technical help that the local soil conservation district obtained, from the Soil Conservation Service. You may have wanted livestock water, irrigation, or fire protection. But your family and friends will want to picnic beside the pond, swim, fish, or boat. The small boy passing by may want to do most anything.

Your farm or ranch pond can be a source of joy as well as profit, but only if it is safe.

Before you build your farm pond, find out what the state laws say about liability, locate the farm pond so that it will not get drainage from barnyards, decide how you are going to use the water, and have your pond built by a reliable contractor who will follow the engineering specifications.

During construction remove all trees, stumps, brush, wire, and junk machinery that might hinder safe swimming. Eliminate sudden dropoffs and deep holes in the swimming area.

When the pond is complete place such lifesaving devices as ropes and long poles at the swimming area, and never swim alone. If these safety rules are followed, you may save a life preventing drowning.

He Knows Where To Go To Get The BEST RESULTS

In shopping, as in fishing, the secret of success lies largely in knowing WHERE to go to get the best results. The experienced angler "picks his spots" carefully on the best advance information he can get.

The experienced shopper does the same thing. Scans the ads in this paper to find out exactly who's got what for sale and for how much . . . uses the advertising columns as the tried-and-true guide to the best "buys" in town. Opinion Poll Shows Greatest Problem of Children Is Lax Parental Care

Most two-thirds of the readers of newspaper expressed the belief that the greatest problem of children is lack of parental care, guidance and discipline.

Governor Price Daniel announced recently in disclosing first results of a state-wide newspaper opinion poll conducted by the Governor's Committee for the White House Conference on Children and Youth.

The committee had requested readers to send their opinions on the greatest problems facing children and youth, and newspapers printed the poll results.

The first 1,000 respondents to the poll revealed that the greatest lack of parental care and guidance was the problem. Three-fifths of this group specifically cited lax parental control, while two-fifths cited lack of spiritual training and discipline.

Guy D. Newman of Brownsville, chairman of the Governor's committee, presented results of the poll to the Governor.

Other problems relating to parental care and guidance, specifically mentioned most often were: lack of spiritual training; church attendance; poor parental examples; not giving child responsibility; lack of discipline and obedience to parents; lack of family unity and teamwork; lack of parental responsibility; too much freedom with cars; teaching respect to others; problems mentioned in frequency were:

- lack of educational opportunity, 10 per cent; too much time on television, 9 per cent; poor mothers, 5 per cent; poor influences such as lewd and obscene shows, obscene literature, and drugs, 4 1/2 per cent; delinquency, 3 1/2 per cent; financial need, 3 per cent.

Opinions from the grass roots level will serve as a guide for the Committee members when they attend the White House Conference next March," the Governor stated.

Veterans May Apply Now For Korean GI Bill

"Apply now. Don't get caught in the rush."

This is the advice that the Veterans Administration gave today to all Korean veterans planning to start school in the fall under the Korean GI Bill.

By applying now, a veteran can beat the rush and can eliminate any chance of a delay at the last minute, VA said. To help veterans get started, VA issued this check list.

1. Since the law allows a veteran to change his GI course only once, he should give plenty of thought, in advance, to his goal.
2. If he is undecided about what to train for, he may ask for VA vocational counseling.
3. He should be sure that his course has been GI-approved by the state in which the school is located.
4. He should make all arrangements for gaining admission to his school before he even files his application with VA.
5. The GI training application should be completely filled out and signed. The veteran should send it, along with a photostat or certified copy of his separation paper, to the VA regional office.
6. A veteran with dependents should have the necessary proof of dependency.
7. A veteran should take along enough money of his own to tide him over the first two months of training. It takes about that long, ordinarily, for his first monthly GI check to reach him.

Hall County Is In Game Comm. Regulatory Group

Regulatory authority of the Game and Fish Commission has been extended to cover 104 counties in Texas for the coming season, according to W. J. Cutbirth, Jr., assistant secretary of the Commission.

All of the upper Panhandle counties now are under the regulatory authority, as well as the counties of the Trans-Pecos area. There is an unbroken chain of counties extending from the Panhandle southeast to include Jefferson County on the southeast corner.

Much of the North Central Texas area also is included in the list.

Hearings are now being held in each of these counties to set up hunting and fishing regulations for the coming season. At these meetings information is given concerning availability of game and range conditions.

Following these meetings recommendations will be made to the Commission at its regular meeting in Austin July 24. At that time the final regulations will be set.

Regulatory counties in the Panhandle area include: Dallam, Sherman, Hansford, Ochiltree, Lipscomb, Hartley, Moore, Castro, Hall, Lamb, Motley, Hutchinson, Roberts, Hemphill, Oldham, Potter, Carson, Gray, Swisher, Childress, Hale, Cottle, Wheeler, Deaf Smith, Randall, Armstrong, Donley, Collingsworth, Parmer, Briscoe, Bailey and Floyd.

Time To Guard Against Summer Food Poisoning

Nothing can live without food, suitable temperature and an appropriate amount of moisture. This applies to man, animals, fish—and plants.

It also applies to bacteria! The range of needs for bacteria is slim, but when they are present bacteria can be very prolific, multiplying themselves by the millions in mere minutes.

That is why food poisoning is so much more common in warm weather — and why you need to be especially careful now about preparing food and storing it.

The main rule to remember is that bacteria which are apt to cause food poisoning thrive best in lukewarm foods.

Thus, if you make it a hard-fast habit to keep hot foods hot and cold foods cold the chances of bacteria getting a foothold are slim.

However, there are certain foods that have proven to be more susceptible to bacteria growth and the resulting food poisoning conditions.

For instance, egg and milk mixtures, including custards and meat, either in salads or sandwiches, and potato salad — are often quickly suspected when food infections occur in summer.

Making sandwiches and wrapping them in wax paper to let stand for hours before eating is just asking for trouble. So keep them well refrigerated.

Potato salad can give lots of trouble. The best way to avoid it is to chill all the ingredients before mixing, and then store the salad in shallow containers in the refrigerator. Deep bowls retain the room temperatures in the center portions.

Everyone loves a picnic. Enjoy them, but a portable ice box and a thermos bottle are musts if you are going to minimize the chance of summer food poisonings.

SPORTS AFIELD

By Ted Kesting

Just a few years ago, if you told anyone there was a radio telephone on your boat, it was just another way of saying you owned a yacht. Such instruments just weren't used on lesser craft.

In those days radio telephones were not the slim, efficient, simple to operate instruments that are available today, which are suitable for yachts and outboards alike. Now many efficient models are even smaller than a master angler's tackle box, says Willard Crandall, Boating Editor of Sports Afield Magazine.

Almost a necessity as they are for yachts, marine radio telephones can be even more valuable for outboards. Radio direction finders, another new development, are of equal importance to large and small boats, while depth sounders, last of the trio of new electronic marvels for boats, even the score by being most useful for larger craft. But when the sounders are used to search for fish, their value is just as great with a standard outboard as with a 35-foot glass-enclosed cruiser.

A radio telephone is as simple to operate as an ordinary dial telephone. It clicks to the right channel, as easily as a television set. Turn the receiver switch on and listen over the speaker (few sets have headphones instead) to be sure there's no conversation going on you'd interrupt. Then flip the transmitter switch and talk into the microphone, which is usually on a flexible cord. There is no need to be mystified by the "lingo" of talking over the air.

Radio direction finders are simply radio receivers with such extras as are essential and helpful in determining as exactly as possible the direction of any radio broadcast or signal being received. Chief of these extras is a rotating loop aerial. It is spun, automatically on more expensive sets, to whatever point gives the strongest signal. This shows the exact line the broadcast is traveling to reach the boat, but does not in itself show which end of this line the station is on. Ordinarily the set has an additional, fixed antenna to tell which of the two exactly opposite directions is the correct one.

Depth sounders merely transmit sound or similar waves straight down, then measure the length of time it takes for them to bounce or echo back. A pointer, dial or substitute indicates the depth, or on more elaborate models it is sketched on a graph. Outboarders usually have little concern about depth; the larger the inboard the more concern. Of course, the sounder does not distinguish between the bottom and solid object, such as an old wreck, above the bottom; but the inboard doesn't want to bend a propeller on twisted steel any more than on a rock.

Miss Diane Geter, after visiting the past three weeks in the home of her grandmother, Mrs. S. S. Montgomery, returned home to Dallas last Sunday.

Mr. and Mrs. Garland Moore enjoyed fishing at Possum Kingdom this week. According to a news release from their camp, they caught 26 channel cat fish by Monday.

History of WTS Described in New Book by Dr. Hill

On the eve of the Golden Anniversary of West Texas State College, Dr. J. A. Hill is announcing the publication of the history of the institution.

According to A. Kirk Knott of the department of English at West Texas State, "More Than Brick and Mortar" carries the documentary detail of the growth of the college from its beginning. It tells of the struggles and triumphs of the college from the two-year normal school to the present status of the modern five-year institution with its 25 departments and 125 faculty members.

One of the original faculty members, Dr. Hill is the only living person who is in a position to present the history.

The Ex-Student Association of the college is announcing the pre-publication price of $5.95. The book can be reserved through the office of the Ex-Student Association at Canyon. The publication price will be $7.50.

Mr. and Mrs. Merle Padgett and children of McGregor spent the weekend with relatives in Memphis after vacationing in Old Mexico and Arizona, last week.

High Interest Rates Cost You

Last week citizens were able to see the results of the high interest rate policy which has been followed by the present administration in Washington for the past several years. The Treasury Dept. announced that it was going to have to pay four and three-fourths per cent to borrow two billion dollars on a short term one-year bill. This is the highest interest rate the Treasury has had to pay in 38 years and is well above the four per cent which is being paid on money which was borrowed in May.

The lenders actually set the yield on the securities by bidding for them at less than face value. The discount represents the effective rate of interest and, in this case, was 4.728 per cent. The interest payment on this much money will probably run over nine million dollars. How many years will Hall County citizens have to pay taxes at the present level in order to just pay the interest? This is a good question and we don't know the answer, but it does point out how the high interest rate on government borrowing actually affects us here at home. If the government could have borrowed the money at three per cent then we tax payers could have saved about three million dollars. And there is only one place for that money to come from, out of our pockets.

There is another side to the high money problem also. When the government pushes up the interest rate, it costs every one of us average citizens more to live. The reason for this is that most of the Joe Citizens depend on credit for their major purchases. The higher the interest rate, the more they have to pay in order to have a home, automobile and the other things of life. There is also another phase which tends to push prices. A lot of businesses operate on borrowed money as far as some of their merchandise is concerned; and when the interest is higher then they must get a little more for the merchandise in order to pay the tab. This problem of high interest affects all of us in many ways and the higher it goes the more those with money stand to take away from those who didn't have it in the first place.

Criminal Case Jury Should Have Facts

In Texas it is held to be illegal for a Corporation Court judge, in passing sentence upon a traffic offender, to have before him a record of previous offenses by that defendant.

It is held also that a jury in a criminal case can not have information as to a defendant's criminal record in deciding upon the sentence in his case. Too, the rulings in Texas say it is improper for a jury to discuss or to inquire about the length of time a defendant will have to serve if sentenced to a given number of years in the penitentiary.

Though it is the responsibility of the jury to fix punishment in criminal cases, the law feels that it is not entitled to exact information as to the consequences of any penalty it might fix. The law places upon the jury the duty of exercising judgement, but denies it the knowledge it needs to judge intelligently. Though the jury is an agency of society to enforce justice, the law compels it to perform its function partly in the dark.

Certainly a jury can not sentence properly unless it knows what a prescribed sentence means. Certainly it can not do properly its job of protecting society and of dealing justly with the person before it for judgement unless it has knowledge of the defendant's previous record of performance.

In traffic cases, the objective is not so much to punish as to prevent. Except in the more serious cases, traffic offenses often are due more to ignorance, carelessness or lapses than to criminal intent. Often the penalty is intended chiefly as an admonition—a reminder to be alert against danger-causing infractions of the driving rules. But in cases of repetitive offenses, where an offender has proved himself oblivious to mere reminders, penalties must be stiff enough to be effective restraints. How can a judge know when he is dealing with an isolated instance of carelessness or with a confirmed violator and potential killer unless the record of the offender is before him?

The Legislature, at its regular session this year, missed a good chance to correct the prohibition against a jury having knowledge of the previous record of a convicted criminal. The bill was one recommended by the Texas Law Enforcement Study Commission. It was so drawn as to prevent the information from reaching the jury until after it had passed on the guilt or innocence of a defendant, thus precluding it from having prejudicial effect. Two years ago the Legislature declined to pass a measure permitting judges to be aware of the record of defendants in setting fines.

Undoubtedly the Legislature will get new opportunity to pass legislation. In the interest of common-sense justice and the safeguarding of the public, it should do so.

Save-Driving Tips For Teenagers

The National Safety Council describes a free booklet of safe-driving tips for teenagers, which is distributed by a leading American oil company and its marketing affiliates as one of the most important contributions to safety ever made.

The tips come from professionals—the state patrolman, the test track driver, the trucker. Here are some of them:

- 1. Don't show off or clown behind the wheel. 2. Have guts enough behind the wheel to chicken out when common sense tells you it's time to give in. Never mind who's right—Be smart—stay alive! 3. The public highways are for sharing, not competing. 4. The squeal of tires and roar of the exhaust may sound like hot stuff to a driver who needs it to build up his ego. But it tags him as strictly an amateur to the real pro. 5. The pro gives in to bad weather, bad roads, and traffic jams, and slows down. 6. Would your coach send in a player who has been drinking? Well, it goes double for driving. Remember—a half-loaded driver is more dangerous than a loaded gun.

Teenagers are involved in twice as many fatal accidents for the number of miles they drive as drivers over 25. This tragic and needless picture will change in a hurry if the young drivers will follow sound and simple tips like these.

Help Wanted Boy of above average intelligence, capable of operating lawn mower. Must be able to tell tall grass from short grass, weeds from chrysanthemums, and have basic understanding of why rocks and scrapirons don't go neatly through a mower blade. Pay $1 per hour, which does not include breakfast. No coffee breaks, no retirement plan, no paid vacations, no Blue Cross hospitalization, no unemployment compensation, no overtime, no social security pay, no lounges for tired employees, no piped-in-music or snack bar, no consulting psychiatrist, and no chance for advancement. Only fringe benefits include developing capacity for honest work based on applicant's innate desire to amount to a tinker's dam; to enjoy the countless blessings of physical toil; to remove himself from suspicion of juvenile delinquency; and to experience a rewarding and fast-disappearing natural phenomenon vulgarly referred to as "sweat." No union card necessary. Don't bring mother or father, as I recognize no bargaining agency other than the individual. If you're not scared to death already, apply at The Ralls Banner.

Jimmy Hoffa and the federal government will probably swear out complaints against me for running this advertisement. The union goon will complain the wage is sub-standard, and that the prospective laborer in the lawn will be required to perform duties that should be split among several employees. For instance, Hoffa would object to this boy starting the engine on the lawn mower and making adjustments, mowing some weeds when the "contract" calls for grass, or edging around sidewalks. One person should be employed for each task, to preserve the dignity of labor, provide fuller employment, and increase dues paid to Headknocker Hoffa. The federal government will raise hell on its own charging exploitation of child labor and allowing a minor to work around a machine that could, by some stretch of the bureaucratic imagination, lop off an operator's finger provided said operator insisted in jamming said finger into the whirling blades. That's the chance I've got to take to get the lawn mowed regular, inasmuch as the "do-it-yourself" approach has been snucked. —Ernest Joiner in Ralls Banner.

Of Dogs There has been considerable effort made lately to clear the city of stray dogs. This happens about the first of every summer when irate citizens call in complaining of dogs in flower beds. As best we've been able to find out it's a matter of the importance of dogs vs. flower beds. This, plus a few other odds and ends like dogs getting into chicken pens, trying to take up with people here and there, and being general nuisances, has caused the city to begin exterminating what they hope are stray dogs.

This is not a good situation for the City. Occasionally they are bound to destroy a dog who has a fond owner who either did or did not get the animal tagged. Then the city is in as hot a tub of water as ever. Everyone takes it for granted this removal of dogs is the city's responsibility. But is it? Notwithstanding the argumentative proposition that a stray dog has as much right to live as an owned one, why should the city officials be called upon to do this unappetizing job in the first place? Why shouldn't the person who complains do his own dog-killing? It's a lot easier to call the city than to kill a dog in your flower bed, especially if he happens to be looking at you. It's also nice that if somebody gets mad about it he jumps on the city and not the complainer. Just because it's easier doesn't make it right. It would be an admirable person who had nerve enough to go to his neighbor and tell him that unless his dog stayed out of the person's yard then the dog would be shot. That would at least give the owner a chance to do something about the situation. Think this over before you call the City Hall about stray dogs. Just because you pay taxes is no reason for expecting someone else to do your dirty work. —Bascorn Nelson in Castro Co. News.

No. 1 Accident Cause . . . The Man Behind The Wheel What is the leading cause of traffic accidents? Bad weather? Poor roads? Mechanical failure? "None of them in themselves," says J. O. Musick, general manager of the Texas Safety Association. "The No. 1 cause of traffic accidents is the man behind the wheel. "This is clear from recent Texas Department of Public Safety statistics which show that the three leading causative factors in rural fatal traffic accidents are: (1) Driving too fast for conditions, (2) Driving while drinking, (3) Disregarding warning or stop signs." Musick said that other leading factors were: Driving on the wrong side of the road, did not have right-of-way, improper parking and following too closely. "Aggressive safety programs, good law enforcement and specially designed superhighways all make an important contribution toward greater safety," Musick said. "But the key to the traffic accident problem is really in the hands of the driver himself." —Canadian Record

Stones Awarded Luggage at Case Meeting Monday

Mr. and Mrs. J. T. Stone returned Monday from a Case meeting in Amarillo where they won a set of luggage.

The event was a meeting of Case implement dealers from this area. Mrs. Stone won a set of three pieces of luggage for herself and a train case for Mr. Stone.

Each year the company provides a five-day trip for the dealers over the area who qualify by their efforts. During the past several weeks they have been conducting a contest among dealers to see who could guess the destination of the trip this year.

Mrs. Stone and four other ladies from over the area guessed Miami, Florida, as the destination. Since they were tied, Mrs. Stone was selected as the winner by a drawing.

The event will be held at the Hotel Americana at Bell Harbor, Fla., near Miami, in October.

The Amarillo meeting was held at the Aascosa Country Club with about 300 in attendance.

NEW STAMP — In commemoration of the work of soil conservation cooperators, the stamp, shown above, will be issued by the U. S. Post Office next month.

SCS Cooperators Will Be Honored By New Stamp

Cooperators of the Hall County Soil Conservation District are among those honored by issuance of the world's first soil conservation stamp, Charley B. Cape said this week.

Mr. Cape said the stamp, to be issued August 26 at Rapid City, S. D., is a "tribute to the nation's conservation farmers and ranchers including the cooperators of the Hall County Soil Conservation District which has been operating since 1941.

"The 4-cent stamp is in recognition of the farmers and ranchers who are demonstrating good soil stewardship," Cape said. "It is a salute to their soil conservation districts, and to the professional workers of the state and federal governments who help them."

The stamp will go on sale August 26 at Rapid City, South Dakota, at the annual meeting of the Soil Conservation Society of America, a professional organization.

On the following day, the stamp will go on sale at other post offices throughout the country, including those at Memphis and Turkey.

Gurleys Make Trip to West And Northwest

Mr. and Mrs. Ward Gurley and Sybil Gurley recently returned from a trip to the West and Northwest. While staying with Mrs. Gurley's brother and family in Taft, Calif., they made a visit to Disneyland, which is "truly a fairyland," Mrs. Gurley said.

On a trip to Santa Monica, Cal., they visited a cousin and an aunt, and another aunt in Pomona, Cal., and viewed orange groves and were tempted to help themselves to those which had fallen on the ground.

They then saw the San Fernando Valley and journeyed north to San Francisco, enjoying a glimpse of the city, and then across the Golden Gate Bridge, viewing the bay and the Pacific Ocean.

The Gurleys traveled the Red Wood Highway through Oregon, and visited the "log house," also drove through one of the redwood trees, and later parked to enjoy their lunch among the huge trees.

North of Portland they drove along the rocky coast of the Pacific until they came to the State cluding those at Memphis and Turkey.

Mr. Cape said local observance of the issuance of the soil conservation stamp is being planned.

of Washington. In Olympia, they surveyed the capitol and its beautiful grounds. Mrs. Gurley reported that they law the largest roses they had ever seen in Washington and Vancouver, Canada.

Their stay in Canada was cut rather short because of the gloomy rainy weather.

After a beautiful mountain drive in Washington, they saw numerous orchards in the valleys along the Columbia River, and stopped along the way to eat delicious cherries, which had just been picked. Then through and around the mountains and by fields of green wheat (different from that grown in this part of the country) to Helena, Mont., where they visited the capitol and a museum. They enjoyed the sawmills and the smell of fresh lumber in Oregon, Washington and Montana, said Mrs. Gurley.

On the way to the Black Hills of South Dakota, they crossed a corner of North Dakota in order to report that they had visited that state.

In Nebraska they viewed fields of hay and pastures with flocks of sheep and some cattle. Then in Kansas and the Panhandle of Oklahoma they saw fields and fields of ripe wheat, some cut, some uncut.

Altogether, Mrs. Gurley reported a lovely trip with lovely weather, except in Canada and two hot days through the desert, Kansas and the Panhandle, and that it was wonderful to arrive home and find Memphis so pretty and green.

Report From Washington

By WALTER ROGERS
Representative, 18th
Congressional District

Interest Rate Raise

The demand of the Administration for the interest rate ceiling on long-term marketable government bonds has caused the most bitter, behind the scenes, debates in many years. The President wants the authority to raise the interest rate ceiling by law and permit the interest rate on these long-term government bonds to be determined by whatever the money market may require. An indication of what can happen can be seen in the closure by the Treasury last week of a two billion dollar issue of one-year bills. This highest interest rate on any issue since 1920.

As you know, money is a complex subject. One fellow could never keep any one thing simple enough to study it. Simple or non-complex, the fact of the matter is that the continued tampering with the interest rates, as done by this Administration, will produce more inflation than the already existing inflation. There has been a great deal of cry about the devaluation of the dollar because of inflationary practices; yet, those who are the inflationary trends are the proposed interest rate increases. The fact of the matter is that money is like any other commodity. Those who are producing the daily needs of the citizens of this country utilize money in their businesses. When the price of the products sold to the general public must, in turn, increase the price of the products he sells in order to absorb the additional cost of the money he has had to borrow. This is inflation at work. Not only must the individual pay more for the products he needs in his daily living, but he must also assume a larger tax burden, because the amount of interest paid on the national debt increases. Between the years 1955 and 1958 the amount of money required from the taxpayers as interest on the public debt increased by several billion dollars, simply because of increased interest rates.

Should the President be granted the authority to pay higher interest on long-term government obligations, it will follow as a matter of course that all interest rates will be increased on all transactions in lending agencies from the smallest to the largest. This could mean an extended period of curtailed activities, insofar as the expansion of the economy is concerned, and the complete control of the economy of this nation by those who control the big money. If this continues, the chances are the government will be called upon to step in and force the lowering of interest rates. Should the government do that, it would mean the creation of much distress, poverty and an economic upheaval that could be disastrous.

Senator YARBOROUGH'S REPORT

The public has been amused recently by photographs of large numbers of college students wedged into telephone booths. But when we stop to think that college classrooms and dormitories may soon present an almost similar picture, the outlook is not so humorous.

This is one reason why I feel the President's veto of the Housing Act of 1959 was extremely unwise.

By 1965, only six years away, the number of college age young people in the United States will have doubled. Our institutions of higher learning are not growing fast enough to keep up with the demand.

As it passed the Senate, the Housing Bill would have provided loans to help out colleges—$150 million for classroom construction and $300 million for new dormitories.

This is not a spending measure but an investment. The loans would have to be repaid by the colleges with interest.

Texas' colleges do not have adequate space for tomorrow's students.

This bill was the first to provide loans for college classrooms. Past laws authorized loans for dormitories—places for the students to sleep at night—but no provisions have been made for retirement programs and higher salaries were necessary in order to retain military personnel. These retirement payments and the salaries are paid by the taxpayers of this nation. It does not seem quite "cricket" for those who have requested these additional benefits to utilize the information, the knowledge, and the friendships they have acquired during their service, to aid in the procurement of contracts—the cost of which must also be borne by the taxpayers.

investigation of the practices of military personnel, who, upon retirement, obtain fat paying jobs with corporations and groups transacting business with the government. Some of the business runs into the billions of dollars. Corporations feeding at this lush taxpayers' trough are headed, in some instances, by former high-ranking military personnel. In other instances, retired Generals, Admirals, Colonels and others are employed by these corporations primarily because of their knowledge of how these government contracts are handled, their friends located in strategic positions, and their abilities to open doors that are closed to others. This nation has been very generous with the officers in the military—a great deal more generous than with enlisted personnel. In fact, arguments have been made on the floor of the House that good re-classrooms—places to go to school in the daytime.

The veto message said the president killed the bill to prevent competition with private industry, even though private industry is not generally engaged in making loans for college classrooms. Schools are not factories upon which a profit is expected; schools are institutions for the education of our youth. The veto fails to recognize the function of our schools in our society.

In addition, the Housing Act which was vetoed would have extended the program by which the Federal Housing Administration would help you and your neighbors buy homes, by providing payment insurance.

I am continuing to work in the Congress for some sort of legislation which will help meet the urgent needs of our people today.

Recruiter Says Army Schools Now Available

M-Sgt. Jabez B. Smith, Army recruiting sergeant for the Memphis area, announced today the availability of a large number of Army schools to qualified high school graduates.

"This is the first time I have ever seen so many schools available. Everything from Mechanic to Stenography is open for the high school graduate, but they are filling fast," M-Sgt. Smith said.

The high school graduate is guaranteed he will go to the school of his choice and is not enlisted until he is qualified for the school. If a man is not qualified for some reason, he is told before enlistment and he may choose another school or he may return to his home, it was explained.

M-Sgt. Smith will be in Memphis on the first and fourth Wednesday of each month from 3:00 to 5:00 p. m. He may be contacted at any time by calling Amarillo, Drake 3-4214, collect.

About Your HEALTH

A weekly public service feature from the Texas State Department of Health. HENRY A. HOLLE, M. D., Commissioner of Health.

The discarded nail was hidden in tall grass. The mower blade hit it and suddenly it was buried an inch deep alongside the shinbone of the 23-year-old Williamson County secretary.

Accidents of this type will be on the increase now—this is lawn-mowing time, you know—until fall weather brings a respite from the weekly chore.

The State Department of Health does not keep statistics on non-fatal accidents, so the extent of injuries from carelessly handled power mowers is unknown. But a random check of private physicians and an emergency hospital confirms the fact that the number is considerable.

Like the man who stopped his car at the curb, intending to say hello to his perspiring neighbor busily mowing grass. Neighbor wheels up with mower to return the greeting. Man in car—elbow resting on window—finds his forearm pinned to bicep with a five-inch wire flung at him by the whirling blade.

Power equipment is a tremendous boon to the man who likes to keep his yard neat with a minimum of effort. But it takes constant concentration to do the job safely. Even experience is no substitute for concentration.

A garden club member in a major Texas city used to pride himself on his safe and sane use of power tools that helped him maintain the sharpest yard in the block. But no more. One afternoon recently, while trimming his driveway with a power trimmer, he reached down to lift a bloom-laden branch of a rose bush out of the way.

When he withdrew his hand two fingers were missing. "I wasn't alert," he wryly explained.

One of the most frequent mower accidents has this sequence:

A stick or wire or rock jams between cutting bar and blade. The operator attempts to clear the jam without going to the trouble of killing the motor. Result: Badly cut or severed fingers when the surge of power spins the freed blade.

Most power mowers come equipped with safety guards. Trouble is that the guards are removed by owners for one reason or another and never replaced.

But use one carelessly and you're liable to become a candidate for a quick trip to the emergency ward of City Hospital.

Six years ago, more than 230,000 new Texans were born, and they will be entering school for the first time in both public and private schools in September.

The right preparation for those first school days is vital to the future satisfaction and adjustment of your child in his new environment.

If he has an older brother or sister the task will be easier, but still there are many steps of getting ready for school that should be taken before September 1.

Some effort should be made to make it clear to the child that he will be on his own—without Mom or Dad watching over him all the time—a good while before the first day of school.

Clothing should be given much thought. Check the habits of your local school and find out what the predominate mode of dress is. If all the boys wear long pants, by all means make sure your son has them too.

Make sure everything is large enough, but not baggy or his classmates will make fun of him.

Proper nutrition is very important. When school starts allow enough time in the morning for a wholesome breakfast. A good breakfast includes citrus fruit or juice, milk, whole grain cereal or bread, eggs, or bacon or both.

Lunch and dinner should be leisurely and pleasant, too. The new adventure of school is pretty fast paced, but mealtime offers an opportunity for the family to pause and enjoy being together.

Now is the time to check up on your school's requirements regarding vaccinations or other health measures and take care of them well in advance.

Also, nearly every school district in Texas requires proof-of-reading for first year students in the form of a certified birth certificate.

County Suffers —

(Continued from Page 1) extended down through the Tell territory. In width it extended from Parnell over to the eastern edge of the county. In the heaviest damaged sections, only the stumps of the stalks were left. The hail which stripped the foliage was for the most part small in size.

In addition to this, numerous out-buildings were damaged and lifted from their foundations. Several residents also reported windmills blown down, as well as many television towers.

The high winds blew down the Omer Hill Elevator building. It is estimated that it will cost about $30,000 to replace the structure, Hill said. At the time of the damage there was only about two car loads of wheat in storage in the structure. The building was constructed in 1947 and 1948. Hill stated that he would probably construct another elevator in the future. The building was insured.

The winds also destroyed the screen at the Tower Drive Inn here with damages estimated at $15,000. Persons in about 20 cars were watching the movie at the time the screen toppled. Hollis Boren, owner of the theatre, plans to rebuild the screen in the near future. It was partially covered by insurance.

Also receiving heavy damage was the new General Telephone Company division office building, located on Highway 287 at the north edge of the city limits. Workmen had completed about 90 per cent of the outside walls of the building when the winds leveled all of the concrete blocks. It is estimated that damage was about $4,000 and will result in about a three-week delay.

Completion date now is set for Sept. 20. There are also two large metal warehouse buildings under construction at the site, but they were not damaged. However, some of the metal siding, stacked near the buildings, was bent.

Rainfall here in Memphis during the storm measured .81 of an inch, with heavier amounts being reported in the south part of the county.

The wind damage was reported as far west as the Brice and Lesley communities. Telephone and power lines were damaged all over the area.

Books which will be adopted this year include a multiple list of texts for science for both seventh and eighth grades; a multiple list of texts for spelling for each of second and eighth grades inclusive; a multiple list of texts for drawing for each of grades one through eighth inclusive.

Text books in the high school will include art, trigonometry and journalism. After the new books are adopted, they will go to the publisher, and should be ready for classroom use by September, 1960.

Books adopted by the state are used for at least six years.

Recommendations Are Listed for Storing Cottonseed

Preservation of quality is a major problem confronting organizations which produce and store cottonseed for planting purposes. To help solve this problem, studies were conducted by the Texas Agricultural Experiment Station to determine the effectiveness of aeration in maintaining viability and preventing an increase in free fatty acid content of cottonseed stored in large quantities.

With permanently installed fans, an air flow rate as low as 5.4 cubic feet per minute (cfm) per ton of cottonseed was effective in preventing a loss in germination and an increase in free fatty acid content of cottonseed with a maximum moisture content of 12 per cent. The time required to move a cooling zone through an entire depth of seed ranged from 110 to 120 hours of fan operation with an air flow rate of 5.4 cfm per ton, as compared with 50 to 55 hours with an air flow rate of 12.5 per ton.

All the 160 ton capacity bins were equipped with air distribution systems for aerating the stored seed. Under the weather conditions encountered in these tests, an average of 50 days was required to reduce seed temperatures from 95 to 65 degrees Fahrenheit with permanently installed fans supplying air at a rate of 5.4 cfm per ton, as compared with 60 days with a portable fan supplying air at a rate of 12.5 cfm per ton.

A chart was developed from the tests to aid in determination of air, static pressure, and horse power requirements to aerate cottonseed with the recommended air flow rate of 5.4 cfm per ton. To use the chart an operator needs to know only the floor area of a bin and the depth of seed to be stored.

The results of the tests are discussed in a publication released by the Texas Agricultural Experiment Station entitled "Storage of Cottonseed for Planting Purposes". Write the Agricultural Information Office, College Station, for a copy of the publication. Ask for MP-326.
