Court Signs County-Wide Fire Protection Contracts

The City of Memphis, City of Turkey and City of Odessa entered into contracts with Hall County on Monday granting fire protection for the rural areas in the county. The contracts were approved after a discussion by commissioners and a delegation from the city council at the meeting of the Commissioners on Monday. Attorney Sam Hamilton said the contracts which allow city firemen to "act as agents for the town's city limits." The contracts set up the fee of $25 to each city for fire outside the city limits. The city's equipment goes to the city, a new clause was added to the contracts, which gave the city the right to approve or disapprove these payments on whether they are just or not.

The commissioners approved the placing of lots, located south of the Morningside School, up for public auction. These lots are owned by the county. The commissioners approved the painting of three rooms in the County Jail. They unanimously approved the raising of E. L. Hill's salary from $275 per month to $300 per month. He is employed in Precinct No. 4. They also voted to purchase a $10,000 short-term government bond out of the $51,571.66 in the general fund. of these farmers and ranchers are seeding mixtures of grasses. Included in these are such grasses as blue grama, switchgrass, sand and weeping grass, K. R. bluestem, and bluestem.

District has grass drills for use in seeding grasses. Grass drills can be obtained by vocational agriculture and District supervisors. A nominal fee for using drills. Also, there are private tractors available to seed this area.

Conservation Service personnel will be glad to help with selection of varieties, mixtures and amounts of seed necessary. It seems to be a fair supply of seed at the present, but it will last. Anyone planning to seed grass this spring should secure their seed as soon as possible.

Cooperators of the District that have already seeded grasses this year are C. L. Benson, Brice; Joe Montgomery, Memphis; and Sam Farnell. Some that plan to seed grass in the near future are Messick, Memphis; Roland Bill Montgomery, and Hudgins, Brice; Roy Russell, W. Arnold, and Edward Turkey.

Will Wilson says that people driving west from El Paso on U. S. Highway 80 cross into New Mexico and 500 yards later are confused to find themselves back in Texas.

'Battle Border' Little known facts about Texas boundaries. Includes a map of Texas showing the border area.

(Editor's Note: This is the tenth in a series of articles outlining the numerous boundary conflicts dating back to 1716, outlining little known facts which shaped the Texas of today.)

New Mexico took another small but potent bite out of Texas. "In taking this bite New Mexico made a dent in the Texas liquor laws," Attorney General Will Wilson says.

People driving west from El Paso on U. S. Highway 80 across into New Mexico and 500 yards later are confused to find themselves back in Texas. There isn't a curve in the road.

The main result is a neon-lighted area in El Paso where mixed drinks are sold across the bar — illegal in Texas but legal in New Mexico.

This unique situation developed in 1913 when the U. S. Supreme Court was asked to settle a conflict between New Mexico and

I Give You Texas

By BOYCE HOUSE

In the fall of 1914 when I was a high school student, William Jennings Bryant, the greatest orator in America, was going to speak in our city, so I went to hear him. So did several thousand others. The scene was Red Elm baseball park in Memphis. Bryant was delayed because his train was behind schedule and so the audience was entertained by speakers until he could arrive.

The governor of Mississippi apologized for his hoarseness by saying, "I have feathers in my throat" and a disrespectful listener called out, "You mean on your legs, don't you?" and someone yelled, "Hurray for Bilbo!" (Bilbo was a political foe of the governor). Then the governor of Louisiana spoke. All I remember about him was that he wore a black coat which was so tight — (he had it buttoned up)—that I was afraid, as he went through violent gestures, that the buttons would pop off, endangering bystanders.

But Governor Hays of Arkansas is still a vivid memory. Tennessee at that time had a Republican governor because of division in the Democratic party. The governor of Arkansas was tall and his head was as devoid of hair as a china nest-egg. In shrill tones, he told ing the western one third of the present United States.

The line fixed in this treaty was based on an incorrect map location of El Paso. This led to much confusion in land grants since lands in Texas were handled through the Texas state government and lands in New Mexico through the federal government.

To make matters worse the Rio Grande changed its course. A compromise was reached by making the boundary the river bed as it was in 1850.

But where was the river in 1850? New Mexico said the river ran on the eastern side of the valley while Texas insisted it ran mainly on the western side.

Private land suits followed and eventually came a suit in the U.S. Supreme Court between New Mexico and Texas.

New Mexico relied chiefly on some old Indian and Mexican witnesses who testified from personal observations. The court cocked a judicial eye at these ancients when Texas pointed out that the witnesses traveled mostly at night because the country was wild and hot.

New Mexico won and established a beachhead in El Paso. Hence, the man who orders a martini thinking he is slipping one by the law finds he is drinking a perfectly legal New Mexico martini. Only the highway signs note the difference.

the intensely partisan crowd, "I am informed that some of the Democrats in Tennessee have actually helped to elect a Republican governor. They say he is a g-o-o-d man. My friends, I would as soon go down into the murky and sulphurous depths of hell in quest of angels or up to the golden, gleaming gates of heaven in search of devils as into the Republican party looking for honest men!" The air was rent with cheers and there were cries of "Hooray for Hays! Hays for Pres-i-dent!"

The arrival of Bryant brought great applause. We saw a man of portly build, close to six feet in height, wearing a dark suit, the coat long, and a black string-tie. His face was full; his eyes were dark and their glance was penetrating; his nose was almost like the beak of a hawk; his mouth large; his jaw strong. He had a warm smile, almost one of benevolence. All in all, he was a handsome and impressive man. At that time, he was secretary of state in President Wilson's cabinet and World War I had broken out not long but before the United States had not become involved. As he sat there, waiting to be introduced, he was handed a telegram. In most families, at that time, a telegram meant a death or, at least, a serious illness so the receipt of that yellow-hued message clinched my belief that he was truly a great man.

When he arose after the introduction, he was greeted with tremendous cheers. Here was the Great Commoner, the Peerless Leader whom most of the audience three times had supported for president. He stood there, his noble face beaming. Then he began to speak; and what a voice he had. The meeting was in the open air and the platform was about where the pitcher's mound was. This was, of course, before the day of public address systems, and confronting him was an audience that filled the large grandstand and the bleachers, which were in left field.

The other speakers had been forced to bellow, except the glorious Hays of Arkansas, who had shrieked; but not Bryant. Without the slightest effort, seemingly, his voice rolled out. I was sitting in about the fifteenth row of the grandstand and I could hear him as clearly as the notes of a bugle, and so could everyone. In fact so resonant was his voice that when he turned to face the bleachers, which were to his right side and almost at his back, there was an echo; so, thereafter, when he turned, he lowered his voice. In one dramatic passage, he gave the last word, seemingly, in a whisper and yet it was like a whipcrack.

Now it happened that in Memphis in 1895 Bryant had been one of the leaders at a meeting at which the Democratic Bimetallic League was organized and this was the virtual launching of the free silver movement which resulted, the next year, in Bryan's first nomination for president. His opening words referred to this page of history: "As I was approaching this city tonight, it seemed to me that the war wheels, as they clicked over the rails, were saying" in the words of an orator of another generation, "The past rises before me like a dream." To hear the cadenced words of Robert Green Ingersoll uttered by the magnificent voice of Bryan was a mighty thrill to a schoolboy lover of oratory.

The baseball park was in a low area and the air was damp. Bryant had been speaking only a short time when he produced a skull cap and put it on, with the remark, "They used to call me 'the boy orator of the Platte' and now I have to protect my bald head from the evening dews and damp." Referring to that early campaign, he declared, "Then they said, 'If you put one of Bryan's silver dollars into a furnace, you will have only fifty cents left.' But if you put one of their paper dollars into a furnace, you wouldn't have anything left."

He wove humor into his speech, using epigrams and relating stories. Speaking of the tariff, Bryan said that each industry wanted its own product protected but desired that the raw materials it used be on the free list. This reminded him of a story: A man entered a little clothing store and began to try on a suit, but, when the owner's attention was diverted, the man ran out. The merchant pursued, shouting, "Stop Thief!" A policeman began to draw his pistol and the owner yelled, "Shoot him in de pants; do coat and vest is mine!"

Bryan spoke deliberately but not slowly. He never grew excited; always, even when evoking emotions, he was the master of himself and therefore of the situation. He used few gestures and these were natural accompaniments of the utterance. The address, which consumed perhaps an hour, was interrupted many times by applause. Perhaps the most enthusiastically received was his tribute to President Wilson but for whose wisdom and steadfastness "the wails of the widows and orphans of Europe might tonight be echoed at thousands of American firesides."

To have seen Bryan and to have heard that rolling, sonorous, melodious voice was to have seen and heard one of the dozen greatest orators the world has ever known; it was an experience always to be remembered.

Local Residents Attend Wesleyan Guild Meeting

Mrs. John Fowler, Mrs. A. O. Gidden, Mrs. Rhupert Wynn, Mrs. Hester Bowns and Mrs. Barney Burnett attended the nineteenth annual meeting of the Wesleyan Service Guild at the First Methodist Church in Levelland recently.

Special guests for the meeting were Miss Lucy Gist, Director of Bethlehem Center, Fort Worth and Miss Ann E. Jones, State Secretary of Missionary Enlistment. The meeting was held on Saturday and Sunday, March 12 and 13.

rectors of the Greenbelt Municipal and Industrial Water Authority recently. The assurance was given by Congressman Walter Rogers during a special closed meeting with directors held in Childress.

Attending the meeting from Memphis was Wendell Harrison, this city's member of the board of directors.

According to information released by those attending the closed meeting, Congressman Rogers stated that the Bureau of Reclamation office, located in Amarillo, was now handling all the work in this area instead of the Oklahoma City office. Personnel of the Bureau are currently making a feasibility study of the Salt Fork and Prairie Dog Town Fork of Red River.

The site of the proposed Greenbelt dam is on Salt Fork, north of Hedley. Tests have been taken at the site for nearly five years show that the water is excellent for human consumption.

In discussing the water in Red River, Congressman Rogers was quoted as saying that "tests show it is not usable for human consumption and irrigation. However, years in the future, we may develop equipment to clean the water. The price for treating brackish water has been reduced from around $2 per 1,000 gallons to around 80 cents per 1,000 gallons; and the price could be reduced more as improved methods are learned.

Visiting in the home of Mrs. A. R. Jones here over the weekend were Dr. and Mrs. L. C. Cox of Tonganoxie, Mo. They have been in Phoenix, Ariz., for the winter and are returning home. Dr. Cox is a first cousin of Mrs. Jones.

Mr. and Mrs. Henry Phillips and children of Rialto, Calif., visited Mr. and Mrs. Jeff Welcher Wed.

Unanimous

Jury duty is an experience everybody ought to have.

In a criminal case twelve jurors have a duty to do justice as each one sees it, and yet be unanimous. In most trials both sides have much to say, and the evidence is conflicting. The twelve jurors vary in their ability, temperament, character, education, and their experience in the world, and in the question at stake.

Yet a jury made up of both sexes, with wide age and educational differences, jobs and origins must all come up with the same verdict. Upon their verdict much depends — the life or liberty of others, and the public good. So it may take them days of talking among themselves for all to agree.

Jury duty calls for insight, common sense, courage, tact, fairness, patience, (especially toward the jurors who disagree with you), good humor, tolerance, balance, willingness to hear others out and change one's mind, readiness to go over and over the facts

About Your HEALTH

A weekly public service feature from the Texas State Department of Health. HENRY A. NOLLE, D. D., Commissioner of Health.

Wildlife rabies is running two to one ahead of rabies among domestic animals, the State Department of Health record for February shows.

In February, there were 69 cases of rabies diagnosed in all animals. Only 17 of the 69 were dogs and cats.

The rabies picture in Texas has recently been taking on a new look. The present trend indicates a decline in the number of rabies in domestic pets, but a rise in the number of wildlife rabid animals.

Infected skunks and foxes were more numerous than the total of rabid dogs confirmed by the State Health Department laboratory during 1954. Livestock rabies has shown an increase also, probably due to exposure to wildlife.

Public health veterinarians point out that, numerically, there isn't a high enough immune pet population in Texas to prevent the spillover of wildlife rabies into the dog and cat population.

Right now, three counties, Milam, Washington and Falls, have emergency rabies control programs in effect.

Since November, 1957, when lactobacilli counts were made available through the State Health Department laboratory patients of all Texas dentists, over 4,100 tests have been made. The lactobacillus is a kind of bacteria associated with much of the decay in teeth.

When laboratory tests show a high lactobacilli count, a recommended sample diet list is mailed to the dentist along with the results of the test. It is a joint project of the Dental Health Division and the Laboratory Section of the State Health Department.

In caries-susceptible people, the count will ordinarily range in the amount of 50,000 lactobacilli per milliliter of saliva. Counts under 10,000 are considered to indicate caries immunity.

The method of taking saliva samples is simple. Only dentists may submit samples from patients. Kits for taking saliva swabs are available to dentists from the State Health Department. The service is free.

Cotton Production Bulletin Released

Cotton is the most valuable cash crop in Texas, although it now ranks second in acreage to sorghum for grain. For five years, 1952-56, the Texas cotton crop, including lint and seed, had an average yearly value of more than $720,000,000. This was more than three times the combined value of wheat, sorghum grain and rice during the same period.

"Cotton Production in Texas," a new bulletin released jointly by the Texas Agricultural Experiment Station and Texas Agricultural Extension Service, discusses in detail virtually everything cotton producers should know about this important crop. Production practices, varieties, soil and climatic adaptation, preparation of land and seedbed, planting, cultivation, weed and insect control, and irrigation are a few of the many topics covered.

Trends in cotton production in the State is one of the most interesting features. The bulletin points out that since 1933 cotton production in Texas has been shifting from certain areas to others. A remarkable shift has been made to the extreme western, northwestern and southern portion, or to the Trans-Pecos, High Plains and Rio Grande Plain of Texas. These areas accounted for about 12 per cent of the acreage at the start of governmental control programs in 1933, but now have more than one-third of the total production. During the same period, the Blackland, Grand and Coast prairies, and East Texas Timberlands experienced the greatest decline in percentage of planted acreage.

It may be obtained by writing the Agricultural Information Office, College Station, Texas. Ask for B-938.

Rural Fire Fighting

Hall County Commissioners Court entered into contracts with the cities in the county which have fire fighting equipment. This makes them agents of the county to put out rural fires.

The contracts with Turkey, Estelline and Memphis, besides making the firemen agents of the county, which relieves the cities of a liability in the case of accident suits, approved the payment of $25 to the cities for each fire the departments answer outside the city limits.

Last year the county paid out $982 in fire protection. However, this amount also includes the $25 per fire the county has agreed to pay the Volunteer Firemen's organizations in each of the towns.

This total cost for rural fire protection comes to around 30 cents per tax payer in the county, per year.

Why is this payment necessary? Several years ago when several Sunray firemen were killed in a chemical plant explosion near Dumas, The Texas Municipal League came face to face with a problem they hadn't had before. Who was to be held liable for suits after such a tragedy. Could the city be held responsible? It wasn't within the city limits, and the firemen weren't agents of the county; so the county couldn't be liable. Thus, the only payments the firemen's families received were from the company and contributions.

The result was the making of volunteer firemen agents for the county to fight county fires. Without this, some cities have forbid their firemen to leave the city limits.

The $982 a year is very small in comparison to the cost county taxpayers would have to bear if the county had to own and operate fire fighting units.

Fire fighting is a joint, neighborly activity. We, here in Memphis, were and are grateful for the help given us on that Saturday in 1954, by neighbor towns. May the need never arise when we have to repay such visits to our neighbors.

Centralization of Power

Rep. Walter Rogers, speaking at the Rotary Club Friday, pointed out that there is a constant fight on in Washington between those who want more and more power for the federal government and those who feel that the government needs curbing rather than enlarging of powers and that many of the powers now considered federal are actually right and privileges that belong to the individual states.

If you follow the course of our democracy, it is quite evident that with each succeeding year the U. S. government has taken over more and more power and entered into more and more activities. The government has entered into business, it has competed and is competing with private utilities on a major scale, it assumes more and more control of commerce and the business activities of every citizen.

With increasing growth in our nation and the problems this entails, it is natural to assume that some added federal control is necessary, but it is hardly a necessity to have Uncle Sam going into competition with the very private industry that has made our country the envy of the world.

One speaker pointed out recently that if the U. S. government would get out of private business the saving would almost make us able to do away with personal income tax. I don't know how true this is, but I do believe that every time you set up a new government agency, it is going to cost more money than you would be able to spend if it were a private organization.

It is time that the average citizen let Congress know they are tired of antics that enhance federal power and are interested in supporting those senators and representatives who fight governmental centralization. Rep. Rogers said it was his opinion that the so-called Civil Rights legislation was just another means of letting the government get a foothold in defining individual rights. Under that legislation, the government could appoint a referee to decide whether your rights had been infringed upon. An earlier bill, luckily defeated, gave the Attorney General the right to decide if your rights had been infringed upon and bring suit in your name whether you wanted to or not.

The point is, if we sit here in complete apathy, not telling what might transpire. We must elect worthy representation and we must see that they do the job they are sent to Washington to perform.

Socialism is not the kind of life our forefathers envisioned, nor is it the life an energetic, rugged individual would want.

Unusual Problem

"No matter what the weatherman sends us from now on, we will be able to grin and take it after Tuesday. Truly, it was like old times. When an old Panhandle boy gets sand between his teeth and Vitamin K coursing through his veins, he can face almost anything."
"Luther Lesley, the soil conservation expert, is quite happy about the sand. Like the physician who could do little about the common cold, but could give penicillin for pneumonia, Luther says:
"This sand and wind, we have seen before and know how to fight. All of that moisture was something we didn't know much about in this country — and if it kept on, it might have become serious."

Who Shall Control?

The smell of censorship is in the air. It stinks!
There are those who would have governmental censorship of literature, movies, television and other sources of entertainment and information.
Such censorship is wrong. Individual control and responsibility is the only answer.
Some who believe that governmental agencies should not have the power of censorship would place this control in the hands of movie producers and book publishers. Still others think the local businessman should censor the material.
This is a job that only parents can do.
Only as parents meet this responsibility do we have adequate control. This is not censorship. This is meeting a parental obligation of authority in maintaining moral standards.
Local business people have a residual responsibility as to what they offer the public for consumption. This, however, is a much lesser obligation than that of parents. Business can best understand what people want by what they buy. An attempt to put a burden of censorship on their backs is merely an attempt to shirk our own duty.
The publishing and entertainment industries have an obligation too, but as we attempt to place the whole blame for shoddy standards on these industries we seek only to cover our own inadequacies.
Many would turn to governmental agencies to do our job for us. This of course is fraught with real danger. When we push our problems off on government it is axiomatic that we lose part of our freedom. This is the easy way out. Power-hungry, self-appointed "public servants" are more than willing to take on the task for they know that with responsibility

What Other Editors Say

Governmental censorship is not needed.
If the stench of censorship is to be replaced by the clean air of freedom, each individual must meet his responsibilities.

March Is the Month to Remember Red Cross Services

With the annual Red Cross Drive now on us, it is well to consider just what it means to us. Some of us have never had the need to know the personal—the individual — side of this organization.
It is not in the big things it does, such as work in flood or storm, that comes close to us, although we could receive help in that way, too.
Most of the Red Cross assistance to Collingsworth families comes to an individual, or an individual family.
The bulk of the work here concerns men in the armed forces, for Red Cross is the contact between the service man and his family, or the service man and his military unit, in case of emergency.
Requests for emergency leave in case of serious illness or death in the man's family are handled through the Red Cross, and a service man who because of circumstances beyond his control can not get back to his base on time from a leave takes his request for an extension of time to his Red Cross Home Service Chairman.
We have known these things through the years, but it is well to remember them again before we write our check for this year's Red Cross donation.

To others, usually the aged or the ill, the Red Cross may furnish medicine or food in an emergency.

There are other services available to us from Red Cross—first aid courses, swimming safety and life-saving, as well as others, if we want to take advantage of them.

Our gift to Red Cross is a two-fold gift — one part helps those at home who need its services or help, through the other we help mankind's needs wherever there is suffering or want.

Let us ponder these things before the Red Cross worker knocks on our door sometime this month.

State Capital NEWS

By Vern Sanford

Texas politicians have been finding it hard to make hay with no sun shining.

A number of statewide candidates are stumping the state, and legislative contenders are getting invitations to speak at rallies and before special groups.

Bad weather and the unaccustomed earliness of this year's election schedule have made it harder for most to get campaigns rolling.

Legislative candidates report they are most often quizzed on whether they favor (1) a teacher pay raise and (2) a general sales tax. "Yes" to the first and "no" to the second are generally regarded as safest answers. But many old hands have misgivings, feeling that the two commitments together may put them in a hard situation come the next session.

AMENDMENT LINE-UP—In the hoopla of a presidential campaign year, amendments to the Texas constitution probably will get only secondary attention, though they are of vital importance to all Texans.

Four are to be voted on by the people at the general election on Nov. 8. Their order on the ballot, as determined by a drawing conducted by Secretary of State Zolie Steakley, will be:

1. An amendment authorizing the Legislature to create a hospital district in Lamar and Hidalgo Counties and part of Comanche County.

2. An amendment authorizing the Veterans Land Board to issue bonds at 3 1/2 per cent interest instead of the present 3 per cent maximum.

3. An amendment giving members of the Legislature annual salaries of $4,800 a year and $12 per day allowances for a 120-day session. Sessions could go no longer than 140 days.

4. An amendment authorizing the Legislature to license and regulate lenders and fix maximum rates of interest.

SCHOOL COSTS JUMP—A baby boom in the fifties means soaring school bills in the sixties, as indicated by the State Board of Education's 1960-61 estimate.

Board reported that cost of Texas public school program for next year will be $365,000,000. This is an increase of some $15,000,000 over the previous year.

Reason for the rise is more children — requiring more teachers, more books, more desks, etc. Total enrollment for next year is expected to be 2,254,574, an increase of more than half a million since the 1954-55 year.

Counties will have to pay $73,080,000, or 20 per cent of the $365,000,000 total.

TEACHER FUND GROWS—Texas' teachers retirement fund has increased more than 35 per cent in the past decade, according to State Auditor C. H. Cavness.

Cavness reported that at the end of the last fiscal year the fund stood at $389,341,289. This is $140,000,000 more than 10 years ago.

Teachers pay 6 per cent of their earnings up to $8,400 into the fund. State matches their payments.

Fund provides for a minimum of $100 per month retirement pay for teachers and $75 a month for other school employees. To make the fund grow, it is invested in municipal, state and federal bonds and certain corporate securities under supervision of a board of trustees.

NEED FOR ECONOMY CITED—Need for the next Legislature to raise between $150,000,000 and $200,000,000 in new tax revenue has been predicted by the director of the Texas Research League.

Alvin A. Burger, head of the private organization which studies state government, said state spending will require $1,000,000,000 a year in the 1961-63 biennium.

Burger urged careful analysis of the highway, education and welfare programs which take 85 per cent of the state budget.

As a money saver, he recommended taking the cost of maintaining farm-to-market roads out of the farm road funds. At present, this money can be used only for new construction, and farm road repair has to be paid out of other highway funds.

He suggested school consolidation as another avenue for economy. County governments, he said, need reorganization to eliminate duplication and problems in the efficient handling of money.

CAR INSPECTIONS DUE—Drivers without a green Texas-shaped sticker on their car windshields are advised to stop by an inspection station the first pretty day.

Department of Public Safety estimates that only about half of the 4,300,000 vehicles in Texas have had their 1960 inspection. Deadline is April 15. Col. Homer Garrison Jr., DPS director, suggests that the trip be made soon, before the lines get long.

Report From Washington

By WALTER ROGERS
Representative, 18th
Congressional District

Civil Rights
House of Representatives commenced the debate on the bill generally called "the Rights Bill." Actually, the name adopted for this was not intended to set a brief statement of the purpose of the bill. The major purpose of the bill is choosing that title was to something which would be appropriate to the innate sense of fair-ness of the American people; something which would be inviting to the extent that the people would not take too much in the "small print" so referred to.

approach is not different from the approach which has been the advocates of centralization and advocates of government for the past years. These proponents are making sufficient headway in approaching the problem by to sell the merits of central government in the United States and world government on a national basis, to the people of this country. Hence, they are talking about the idea of progress by means of catchy phrases and in talking about the enactment of the Federal government on the rights which had so long been exercised by the several States, or talking about replacing the dual sovereignty form of government with a single all-powerful force in Washington, or talking about subjecting the people of this country to the government of a court or legislative body made up of people from many foreign countries, they started talking about civil rights, world law, world order, Commission on Human Rights, protection of the economic development, Federal aid in all facets of the economy, under various pleasing titles. They realized that they were not able to put over the government theory on the people or to usurp the States, all in one step. So, in conjunction with the sugar-coated approach, they also conceived the idea of dealing with their program on a pie-by-pie basis. In short, adopting the same plan which has proven so successful in military operations, the "divide and conquer" program works this way: a group of people in one area of the United States is persuaded to the complete centralized government because of their traditional belief in States' rights, they have been approached on a conciliatory basis of giving to these people in the first instance those segments of the overall program such as Federal aid in several economic areas, and foregoing any of the distasteful portions of the overall program. But what the people in these geographical areas fail to realize is that the world order advocates are only foregoing these distasteful parts of the program temporarily. Next year they will be back with more demands and will expect to make a settlement by giving up some of their demands and gaining only a few. The danger is that each year there is a gain; whether it's large or small, they plan on the gain. By this method they can keep up a constant pressure and thereby wear down the opposition.

That is exactly the plan which has been utilized in this so-called civil rights bill. No one, to my knowledge, denies or wants to deny any loyal American citizen the right to vote and I daresay that a bill guaranteeing this right and conflicting the measure to that particular principle would pass the Congress by unanimous consent, if such legislation were necessary. In fact, if the so-called civil rights bills had been limited to the voting right question, there would have been no filibuster in the Senate and no long delay in the committees in the House.

Children

Now to another subject and some statistics which may not be particularly helpful, but they are indicative and informative. The White House Conference on Children and Youth has just released a report reflecting the following statistics. Families are larger—58 per cent of the children are now in families of three or more children. Seven states now have 44 per cent of the children under 18. Incidentally, Texas is listed as one of the seven States having the greatest child population. More children are going to school longer. On the other side of the ledger, we find that juvenile delinquency is still rising, that gaps in programs for delinquents are wide, that city slums still provide one of the worst environments for children, although the poorest housing is in rural areas and small cities. There are many other pertinent facts, but space in this newsletter will not permit them to be listed.

How Well Do You Know Your America?

Crater Lake, formed out of a giant cauldron thousands of years ago, is one of Oregon's most-photographed scenic attractions, and is visited annually by more than 300,000 persons. The intense blue water of the 2,000-foot deep lake continues to amaze tourists year after year. Men of science say a giant volcano, estimated to have been more than 12,000 feet high, continued upward from its present rim for another 3,000 feet. The fire mountain, in its time, is described as having been one of the most active of numerous volcanoes which studded the Pacific northwest. A geographic feature of the lake is Wizard Island (center background), a lava-formed butte rising more than 600 feet above the level of the water.

Game Is Valued As A Rich Crop Not By-Product

"It is difficult to assess an over-all value to fish and game," writes T. D. Carroll in his interesting article, "Assay on Texas Game," in the March issue of Texas Game and Fish. "The aesthetic, recreational and biological values are often neglected or considered intangible when the economist views this natural resource."

Carroll, acting director of information and education, Texas Game and Fish Commission, points out that according to the Crossley Survey, 1,625,000 Texans spent over $165 million for hunting and fishing in the State in 1955. This is over $27 million more than the value of 3,882,574 tons of sulphur, 3,583,242 tons of common salt, 584,855 tons of lime, 1,349,434 tons of crude gypsum, 3,103,359 tons of clay, 139,326,188 cubic feet of helium, and $115,000 worth of gem stones produced in the State that same year.

By using the Llano County Deer County as an example, the author shows that landowners through leases possibly took in some $346,740 through deer harvests in that county alone. Local businesses in that county took in a possible $866,850.

"This coupled with the value of the deer to the landowner, would give a total of $1,213,590 realized from the deer harvest in 1959 during the 45-day hunting season in that county," writes the director.

"To consider wildlife as a by-product of the land instead of a valuable crop is a wasteful indulgence enjoyed by those who have no conception of true values of our wildlife resources."

Three Railroad Men Visit Here Tuesday

Three representatives of the railroad were visiting here Tuesday with John J. McMickin, local agent.

Visiting were Roy H. Kimble, General Passenger Agent of the Fort Worth and Denver Railway Co., A. D. Dodge, General Agent of the Burlington Lines and Cecil G. Kersey, Executive Assistant of the Fort Worth and Denver Ry. Co.

The use of nickel for coinage purposes increased by 50 per cent during 1958.

County's Rural Traffic Accidents Total 2 In Feb.

The Highway Patrol Service of the Texas Department of Public Safety investigated two rural traffic accidents in Hall County during the month of February according to Sergeant O. R. Dowdy.

In making this announcement the Sergeant reported two property damage, and two injury accidents. These wrecks caused a total property damage of $420.00 with four persons injured.

The Highway Patrol Supervisor reminded motorists that Texas law requires all registered motor vehicles to have valid inspection stickers displayed by midnight, April 15. "In addition, all trailers registered in Texas which exceed 4,000 pounds gross weight must be inspected," the Sergeant said.

The Motor Vehicle Inspection Program, since its inception in 1951, has reduced the state's traffic accidents by almost 10 per cent, the Sergeant explained. Before the inspection was started, mechanical defects in vehicles was a causative factor in 13 per cent of the state's accidents. However, only four per cent of the traffic accidents are caused by mechanical defects now.

The Patrol Supervisor stated that only 34 per cent of the vehicles in this country have been inspected and that patrolmen will be stopping all vehicles not displaying a valid sticker after the April 15 deadline. The best way to avoid the long lines expected in the last minute rush is to have your vehicle inspected now.

Its an open house celebration from 2 p. m. to 5 p. m. this Sunday at the new quarters of the Amarillo Social Security District Office, according to Hal Geldon, manager. The new location is 1006 Adams Street, which is on the outskirts of the downtown business area in Amarillo.

The Amarillo Office serves the entire 26 Counties of the Panhandle, and is extending an invitation to all persons to its open house, Geldon said.

Save Money
When You Buy Electrical Appliances

I can give you the most for the MONEY. I was here first, so get the best agencies. And I give the best trades and discounts.

EVEN MY COMPETITORS ARE KICKING ABOUT MY PRICES!

But I intend to give my customers such good trades in 1960 that it will make the DISCOUNT HOUSES look like 10 cents. I do not have rent or salesman expenses to pay, so you save the difference.

On some deals I am as much as $100 under Amarillo prices which they tell you about on Radio and TV. And besides that, I stand behind my merchandise.

Just come in and get my prices before you trade anywhere. One bargain that I have right now is a TV set at $75.00 Discount. Some only $25.00, but all new good ones of the best brands:
