He is a well known after-dinner-speaker, especially among the Men's Association banquets. He how complimented we when this friend of ours ask that we become his program the year. The many friends of Lynn Kown will be glad to learn that he is recovering nicely from an operation, and will be home the latter part of this week from Amarillo. During the last few years he has become familiar with surgeons.

here is Nancy Ezzell's description of a husband, as published in a column in The Canadian word:

A husband is a man who can go through the hullabaloo of the children breakfasted off to school, booted, mitten-ear-muffed and school-booked, come wide awake in the dead-silence which sets in when their mother sits down for a quiet cup of coffee and a look at the morning paper. He is also the person who works to pay for those breakfasts and mittens and boots and smuffs — the coffee and the morning paper — and earns the money to sleep through the hullabaloo — if he can.

Orchids to Mr. and Mrs. W. Coursey, who resigned Jan. 17 from their positions as managers of water office and Carnegie Library respectively. They not only conducted their managements to the satisfaction of the public, but took active parts in church, community, and social life as good citizens should.

The Ochiltree County Herald expresses in a few words how to improve a town or community: "those of us in this community should ever get together and unite on a project and work in unison. There is no limit to what we could accomplish. But we suppose the asking is too much. As long as there are people, there will be differences of opinion. And when we get right down to it, we are going to live in a land where we have differences of opinion go on despite it. In some countries, those with differences of opinion find themselves stand-up in front of a wall."

Client Srygley, the tonsorialist, tells this on a friend who had New York some time ago: "When New York the friend saw me sign with the words 'Forty' he was worried about being continued on Page Twelve)

MHS English Students Recently Enact Personal Reading Projects

During each six weeks' term the members of the English classes of Memphis High School engage in projects which they call "personal reading."

Each student selects material, does research on it, and makes a report of his or her findings to the class. The purpose is to give the students a conversation acquaintance with the great masterpieces of literature.

Incidentally, there is hope that some of them might wish to pursue further the classics introduced.

Poetry being the fields of study for the present term, many of the students dramatized sections of their projects.

The students pictured above include, Katie Phillips and Jo Ann Stanley, who are portraying a section of "The Courtship of Miles Standish" by Henry Wadsworth Longfellow; Carol Smith and Betty Young, who are enacting the poem "Life's Lessons" by Henry Wadsworth Longfellow; and Cathy Bryant and Marcene Stephens, who represent Lady Wingate and her daughter in the popular epic

B&PW Club Is Sponsoring "Pay Poll Tax" Drive

"Pay Your Poll Tax" drive is being sponsored in Hall County this month by the Business and Professional Women's Club, Louise Howell, president, announced this week.

Members of the club have distributed posters to business houses in Turkey, Estelline, Lakeview and Memphis reminding citizens that Jan. 31, 1962, is the deadline for paying poll taxes.

All residents, except those exempt, who wish to vote in any election this year must have a poll tax, Mrs. Howell stated.

In connection with the objectives being carried out through the legislation committee, which is composed of Tops Gilreath, Wilma Leslie and Helen Combs, a program on the topic was presented at the regular noon luncheon today.

Speaker for the occasion was Herschel Combs, chairman of the Hall County Democratic Executive Committee. He discussed the importance of active participation in politics, giving sidelights of precinct, county and state conventions, and urged his listeners to become more active in affairs of government.

Service To Community Has Been Main Goal of Courseys

Two Memphis residents, Mr. and Mrs. W. V. Coursey, recently retired after almost a lifetime of public service to the people of this community.

Mr. Coursey first came to this area from Wise County in 1896 with his folks, the G. A. Courseys, who settled west of Hedley. In 1899 the family moved to Giles, north of Memphis, and then in 1916 he and his father opened a garage in Memphis in the building now occupied by Potts Chevrolet Co.

He continued in this endeavor until entering the service in World War I. After being released in 1919, Coursey worked for the Fort Worth and Denver railroad in Wichita Falls for a couple of years before coming back to Memphis and assuming the duties of the City Tax Assessor-Collector. For the next 22 years he served (Continued on Page Twelve)

MR. AND MRS. W. V. COURSEY

The annual Memphis Chamber of Commerce and Hall County Board of Development banquet will be held next Thursday, Jan. 25, in the Travis Cafeteria, H. E. Craig, president of the organization, announced this week.

Tickets went on sale this week with the various directors of the organization beginning work contacting members. Anyone desiring to attend the banquet, and who is not contacted, should get in touch with the Chamber of Commerce office or a director, it was announced.

Guest speaker for the event will be Dan Eddy, director of public relations for the Texas Division of the Salvation Army.

His talk will deal with Chamber of Commerce work. Several local residents who have heard him speak in other towns, recommended Eddy highly as speaker for this event.

Eddy was born and educated in Dallas. He attended the University of Texas and Southern Methodist University. Following service in the Navy in World War II, he became associated with the Salvation Army when appointed director of USO Clubs in Texas, Louisiana and Oklahoma in 1944.

In 1947 he became field representative of Texas Division, The Salvation Army, organizing service unit committees, groups of volunteers who carry on the welfare program of the Salvation Army in cities where there are no SA officers stationed.

Since his accepting the position, the number of service unit committees has increased from 33 to 232.

He is a graduate of the Southwestern Institute for Chamber of Commerce Managers and holder of five graduate seminar certificates.

Eddy was chosen "Man of the Year—1954" by the Dallas Junior Chamber of Commerce, and in 1955 was named "Man of the Year" by the Oak Cliff Chamber of Commerce in Dallas.

Also on the program next Thursday night will be the installation of new officers for the local organization.

W. P. Baten Jr. is the new president. Jack Norman was re-elected vice president, and Allen Dunbar is the new secretary.

New directors of the organization include Dick Fowler, H. J. Howell, J. M. Ferrel Jr., Adrian Combs and Lee Brown.

The banquet will be held at 7:30 p. m. and tickets are $2.50 per plate. If sales are as good this year as in the past, there will probably be a sell-out crowd.

Voting Procedure

Last week we mentioned the importance of paying your poll tax this year. We would like to continue along this same line of thought with a few more facts.

Who may vote in Texas? This is a question seldom asked but one of importance. Persons meeting the following requirements become "qualified electors" and are eligible to vote in this state:

1. Twenty-one years of age. 2. U. S. citizen. 3. Resident of Texas one year immediately preceding the election. 4. Resident of county or district for six months. 5. Paid poll tax or obtained exemption certificate by January 31 preceding the election. The qualifications are the same for party primaries and for the general election.

Poll taxes must be paid by January 31. Those 60 years or older, on January 1, 1961 need not purchase a poll tax. Those reaching the age of 21 after Jan 31 may obtain an exemption certificate from the county tax assessor-collector at least 30 days prior to the election. Those who have moved into Texas in the past year may obtain a "new-resident exemption" from the county tax assessor-collector by January 31 and vote on it after they have completed a year's residence in Texas.

The poll tax for the state is $1.50, of which $1 goes to the State Available School Fund and 50 cents to the State General Fund. Counties may assess an additional 25 cents, making the total $1.75. The poll tax receipt issued between Oct. 7, 1961 and January 31, 1962 will be the tax receipt for 1961, but it may be used for voting during the 12 months from Feb. 1, 1962, to Jan. 31, 1963, inclusive.

Most election dates are established by law, but certain special elections may be called at any time. The following dates are of importance this year:

Monday, February 5 — Last day for candidates to file with party executive committees to be placed on ballots for nomination to all offices up for election this year.

Saturday, May 5 — First primaries for both Democratic and Republican parties. Also precinct conventions for both parties.

Saturday, May 12 — County conventions for both parties.

Saturday, June 2 — Second primaries (runoffs) both parties.

Tuesday, Sept. 11 — State conventions, both parties.

Tuesday, Nov. 6 — General election, with nominees from all parties.

Since this is a general election year, it is especially important that citizens pay their poll tax. During the course of history there are many examples where only one or two votes have changed the course of events. To mention only one, Texas entry into the union was possible only because one man from a northern state had won by only a small number of votes in the immediate past Congressional election.

Common Market
The Common Market is a force that can, and in all probability will, bring about something resembling an economic revolution in the world. It began, with comparatively little fanfare, in 1957, the original partners being West Germany, France, the Netherlands, Italy, Belgium and Luxembourg. Now Great Britain is joining, with certain reservations—the principal one concerning her agriculture. Other advanced European nations, including the Norwegian countries, Switzerland, Austria and Ireland are expected to come in.

The purpose of the Common Market is the establishment over a period of time, of a vast free trade area, with tariff barriers erected against non-member nations. Beyond that, the Market is designed as an increasingly potent weapon to meet the Soviet economic offensive against the West. And that brings up the question of what the role of the United States should be and is to be in this transforming world.

President Kennedy has asked for sweeping changes in the reciprocal trade law which will permit him to reduce our own tariffs, and to stimulate trade among the friendly powers. Former Secretary of State Acheson recently said, as quoted by the AP, that "the United States must move toward freer trade, particularly with the European Common Market, or run the danger of enhancing Soviet power by dividing the Western world." Many business leaders have said much the same thing.

This does not mean that the U. S. is going to become a formal, active participant in the Market in the foreseeable future—though, ultimately, that certainly could happen. It does mean that American producers—including those with factories abroad as well as here—are thinking in terms of new problems, new situations, and new opportunities.

There is opposition to the Common Market concept, just as there is to a reduction in our tariffs and an increase in our imports. It comes from several areas. Some businesses still would like a high, exclusive tariff policy. So would some labor spokesmen, who fear the effect of stimulated trade on our high-wage, high-fringe-benefit working force. Still a third is of a very different character—a fear, as one writer said "that the great dream of a single and unified Europe, if a political and economic blessing, may turn out to be a cultural nightmare"—by, little by little, making all the nations alike. The word will certainly become a drabber place if that should be the case.

In any event, the Common Market is here to stay—and is destined to become a major element in the material life of the Western World. And we, as the world's foremost single producer, must understand it and deal with it.

Agricultural 'Surplus' Was Part Of Disaster Feeding Operations

Hurricane Carla, with thousands of Texans left homeless and hungry, was one of the big events of 1961.

It's history, now. But lessons learned in accommodating evacuees from the ravishing wind can well prove invaluable in future catastrophes.

Take the matter of food. Our nation's agricultural abundance is no longer "surplus" when it becomes part of disaster feeding operations, points out the Texas Agricultural Extension Service.

Efforts of local, county, state and federal individuals and organizations, all working together, helped to minimize personal hardships.

The funneling of more than 1.6 million pounds of food donated by the U. S. Department of Agriculture to state and local welfare agencies for use in feeding Carla victims is a case in point. In a way, it was a routine job for USDA's Food distribution division.

This agency of the Agricultural Marketing Service handles food all year long for the Direct Distribution and National School Lunch programs.

Yet, a lot of machinery has to swing into action, quickly, to provide food for storm victims. Even before the vicious coquette called Carla swished her skirts through Gulf Coast areas, in September, the federal-state food distribution setup was ready.

Under the two USDA programs, foods are enroute to all parts of the nation continuously, to there's always an abundance in or near any spot that might need emergency feeding. In the cast of Carla, much was in warehouses at Houston, Beaumont and Corpus Christi. The 3,000 Texas schools participating in the National School Lunch Program also had good supplies.

All of this food was made available, as soon as needed, to local officials, Red Cross, Salvation Army and other disaster agencies. County authorities could get USDA foods for hurricane victims merely by applying to the Texas Department of Public Welfare. As normal operations, USDA makes food available, but it is up to local workers to put it to use.

No one hopes a similar disaster will recur—but it could. And if it

The program was introduced by Mrs. S. E. Denker who gave the Receipt of a Happy New Year. The devotional on "New Year Resolutions" was given by Mrs. Carl Wood.

Games were played and refreshments enjoyed during the social hour.

Members present were Meses. Mary Lelita Scott, Lenora Wood, Louise Jones, Peggy Moss, Alene Sims, Jo Carmen, Mary Johnson, Owen Lindsey, Bess Yarbrough, Margaret Hancock, Bettie Byrom, Vina Denker, Dorothy Thomson, and Mrs. Grace Foxhall.

Linda Campbell Selected As WTSC Beauty

Miss Linda Campbell, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Perry Campbell of Lakeview, has been selected as Sweetheart of Kappa Alpha Oskia, national social fraternity at West Texas State College.

Miss Campbell was presented as "Kappa Alpha Rose" at a presentation dinner earlier this fall and will be the sweetheart for the 1961-1962 school year.

Miss Campbell was recently chosen as one of the five most beautiful girls on the campus at West Texas State College. She was selected as one of the finalists from a group of 32 girls competing for the honor by a panel of eight judges.

Miss Campbell was presented along with three other runners-up and the winner at the annual Christmas Beauty Dance early in December. She will be recognized in the WT yearbook.

She is a sophomore secondary education major and is a 1960 graduate of Lakeview High School.

Baptist Circle Meets For Study Mon. Afternoon

The Daisy Lane Circle of the First Baptist Church met Monday afternoon, Jan. 16, at 3:15 p. m. in the home of Mrs. W. R. Parker.

Mrs. J. H. Smith, chairman, presided during the meeting. The opening prayer was led by Mrs. Robert Moss after which the group sang "Count Your Many Blessings."

Mrs. Cliff Pedersen sang "The Battle Hymn of the Republic." Mrs. Henry Hays taught the first chapter of the mission book, "Glimpse of Glory," using a chart to illustrate the book.

Refreshments were served to the following during the social hour: Meses. J. H. Smith, L. F. Barrett, R. H. Wherry, R. E. Lowe, Julia Smith, Estelle Barber, Charlene Douthitt, Cliff Pedersen, Irene Reed, W. F. Goffinett, Leta Ellis, Bill Billington, Theo Swift, Henry Hays, Lee Thornton, Claud Stevens and hostess, Mrs. Parker.

Of the cleverest men I ever knew. J. H. Birchfield is the name of one. The other is J. W. Delaney's son. Across the street as you go Is the drug man, Vardy, you know. He's small in stature, large in brain, And death on fevers, spasms, pain. He fills prescriptions, sells castor oil, And pulls the teeth for men of toil. He's young and active, wide awake, And seems intent a name to make.

You'll always find him at his post And not afraid of man or ghost. He keeps the medicine your health to mend, And on his word may all depend. Then back across is the Hardware store Kept by our favorite, J. W. Moore.

Around and About

By HELEN COMBS

Have you paid your poll tax? Remember this is the last month in which to do so—and you might just want to vote in the elections which is coming up not many weeks hence.

We will be electing a Governor this year, a U. S. Representative, state Senator and Representative, as well as various other officials on a state and local basis.

Members of the Memphis Business and Professional Women's Club are sponsoring a "Pay Your Poll Tax" drive and are urging everyone to buy their Poll Tax before the deadline which is Jan. 31.

I think we will all agree on one thing—the weather has been cold. We didn't object to the cold weather but will admit it was a little inconvenient to have the "Jalopy" refuse to start and the water frozen. Now we know why the weekly Saturday Night Tub Bath was so popular in days gone by.

And, speaking of frozen water, Mrs. W. A. Luttrell who operates a chicken farm at the north edge of town, really ran into trouble with her 800 hens that drink about 50 gallons of water per day. But, as usual, the good citizens came to her rescue and with their help she managed to keep drinking water for the flock.

O. S. Misenhimer, who lives on Route 2, Memphis, thought he had solved the water situation at his house by putting a heater out in the pump house. It did work last winter—but it didn't work last week. The pump froze with the heater burning nearby.

Mrs. Chas. A. Wells of Newton, Penn., the former Elizabeth Boykin, was in Memphis last weekend for a short visit with friends. Elizabeth's parents were early-day pioneers and our Boykin Drive carries their family name. Mrs. Wells was en route home after spending some time in Mexico. We understand her husband was to visit Central American countries before returning home. They spend much time traveling and were in countries in Africa during the summer months. When we met Elizabeth down-town Friday, she commented "I keep up with all my friends here—you know I take the hometown paper."

Uncle Pete Rigsby, age 88, who operates the only General Store in Estelline, sent us a poem this week written Sept. 19, 1902, about Estelline merchants. The poem belongs to Mrs. Emma Hawkins, who is the wife of Frank Hawkins, one of the men mentioned in the article. We hope some of the old-timers around here will enjoy a glimpse back into the past as the new year begins.

Easy now . . . soon her new high heels will be "old hat," too. They're just another hurdle along the road of growing up. Later in life she'll find other hurdles. Will she take these with the grown-up poise and confidence she shows now?

She will—if these characteristics of poise and confidence are nourished. And if to them is added deep religious faith and the strength that goes with it. That real, grown-up, facing-the-problem-squarely kind of strength. You, her parents, by your example and guidance can help her to find the faith that gives such strength. Hall County Soil Conservation District News

The Great Plains Conservation Program and the Agricultural Conservation Program have helped ranchers in this area of Texas take a considerable step toward the control of brush.

As brush gets the upper hand, grass production goes down. Millions of acres of our rangeland have been almost put out of production of grass by brush. In Texas, mesquite has just about taken over 55,000,000 acres. Cedar, yucca, sage, and shinnery oak have taken over many more acres.

A lot of ranchers use to think mesquite was a good plant to have around. They figured, when the drouths came along, the cattle would eat the beans. Most of the ranchers have changed their minds. Especially when they found out that it takes four times as much water to grow a pound of mesquite beans, than it does a pound of grass. Most ranchers had rather have the additional grass during a drouth, instead of the mesquite beans.

The shading from brush does not hold down the grass growth, nearly so much as the widespread- ing roots, that soak up the mois- ture from the soil. Mesquite roots have been found to grow 30 to 40 feet from the trunk of the tree or bush.

Brush control is being carried out by several methods. The best method for a particular pasture depends upon the kind of brush, ground surface, and the surround- ing country. Dozing, grubbing, chaining and root plowing, with heavy tractors, are some methods. Basal treatment with chemicals and kerosene is also used. Aerial spraying with chemicals is the most widely used method, at the present time.

Ranchers in Texas controlled 311,806 acres of brush in 1961, 231,806 acres in 1960, and 101,800 acres in 1959. These figures indicate that the battle against brush is only beginning, but it is off to a good start. Approximate- ly 15,000 acres of brush was con- trolled in the Hall County Soil Conservation District in 1961.

Another important phase of brush control is the proper man- agement of pastures after the brush is controlled. Pastures need a rest during the first grazing season following brush control, to give the grass a chance to re- cuperate and gain strength, once its competition is gone. After this, a grazing program should be es- tablished so as to graze no more than 50 per cent, by weight, of the grasses that grow each year.

This proper use of range grass- es will assure continued benefits

MINUTE MEDITATION

Misfortune and troubles are the common lot of all men.

It is a true saying, "Into each life some rain must fall; some day must be dark and dreary."

Be not dismayed, neither let thy heart be afraid, may faith in God rise in the heart as troubles rise in the world, and armed with the sword of the Spirit, let us sally forth to meet the foe.

Look your troubles in the face and call them by their name; face them squarely and honestly but utterly refuse to sit down with them and coddle them about thy neck.

Sooner or later, tragedy knocks on every door bringing suffering and sorrow, but brooding must not be allowed to make his habitation with us.

We must look for others who are less fortunate to give our sympathy to, and never, never permit the luxury of bestowing it upon ourselves.

Self-pity is a deadly thing!

Take your griefs, your burdens, your impossible task and lay it before the throne of God calling upon his name, and he will give thee strength to pick it up and carry it to the end of the road of life.

CYCLONE LOSES TUESDAY, 37 to 31, TO PRICE COL. IN DEFENSIVE BATTLE

The Memphis Cyclone basketball squad lost out to Price College at Amarillo Tuesday night by a slim 37 to 31 score.

"The game was a real defensive battle," Coach Bob Martin said, "with the real difference in the score being determined by the number of free throws sunk."

At the end of the first quarter Price College was ahead 14 to 10. Then Memphis went ahead by 16 to 14, but by the half were behind again 23 to 16. Price College led at the end of the third quarter 32 to 20, and then at the end of the game 37 to 31.

"Both teams hit 13 field goals," Martin said. "And both got 22 attempts at free throws. However, we sunk only five of our free tosses and they sunk 11."

"Price College has an extremely tall team, and has lost only two games so far this season," according to the coach.

Ronald Ables was high scorer for the local team with 11 points.

The Memphis B team, which played before the A squad game, also lost. The score in that game was 31 to 27.

Remember the first gun you ever owned? You tendered it with loving hands and cleaned it after every hunt or session on the gun range.

But as time passed, you spent less and less time cleaning the weapon. Then, lo and behold, one day you took it down from the rack and discovered rust.

This sort of thing usually happens the week before hunting season, and then you have to hot-foot around and get the gun in condition for hunting.

There are two ways to clean a gun—the right way and the wrong way. So let's look at the right way.

First get a good nitro powder solvent, a can of gun oil, gun patches and a rifle rod of the proper size and length.

Then disassemble the gun. Use screwdrivers of the proper size so as not to damage the heads of screws.

With the stock and bolt removed, examine the bore. Is it dusty? Does it appear to be filled with filth? Is it rusty?

If it appears too dark, some hard scrubbing with the powder solvent is in order. Insert a patch on the head of the rifle rod, soak it with solvent and insert it from the breach end of the gun.

If it can be avoided, never clean a gun from the muzzle. The last few inches of a gun's barrel are the determining factors of accuracy. Any damage here would ruin the performance of the gun.

After scrubbing the bore, run a dry patch down the barrel and check both the patch and the barrel. If the barrel is bright and shining and the patch not too dirty, then all that is needed is several more dry patches followed by one soaked with gun oil. But if the barrel is still dirty, repeat scrubbing with powder solvent.

Next, clean the action and the outside of the gun.

An old toothbrush makes a good scrub brush for the hard to get to place. In the absence of powder solvent, use hot soapy water. Clean the grit and unburned powder grains from the action and wipe the outside of the gun free from dust and grime.

If spots of rust are found, the powder solvent, or kerosene applied to a ball of very fine steel wool will do the job and not damage the weapon's finish.

Wipe dry and apply a good gun lubricating oil. If the gun is to be stored for a long period it's a good idea to swab the bore and all metal parts exposed to air with a liberal quantity of rust inhibiting grease.

Don't ever plug the bore of a rifle and expect it to survive the ravages of time. Moisture will condense and then not dissipate because of the lack of circulation of air.

Inspect the stock and its finish. If it's dented slightly, a moistened cloth placed over the dent and then touched with a hot iron will steam the compressed wood fibers back to their natural position.

But if the stock is scratched, then more drastic measures must be taken. On small scratches the application of a good commercial gunstock finish will do wonders.

Don't try to repair a cracked stock unless you know what you are doing. With a cracked stock it's best to take it by the gun shop for repairs. Or it might even be cheaper in the long run to just buy a new stock.

Clean your gun at frequent intervals. Store it in a dry room. Never store it in the guncase that is used to protect it while in transit. This is especially true if the case is lined with wool. Guns kept in such a case will sweat. And in the case of wool there are certain amino acids that will attack the steel.

Care should be given the weapon while you're in the field, too. Clean and dry the gun before standing it in the corner for the next day's hunt. Naturally, if left overnight with moisture on it, the gun will rust.

And be sure to wipe any mud or dirt from the stock. If left unchecked, mud can stain the finish on the stock.

If you're hunting in a climate where there is a lot of salt in the atmosphere, wipe all metal parts with a silicone dressing: It will protect the finish and ward off rust.

With proper care, a gun purchased today can still have that "like new" look many years from now.

MARSHALL FORMBY

Formby Enters Governor Race

Calling for a return of the Government to the people of Texas, Marshall Formby, Wednesday, made his formal announcement for Governor in the Democratic Primary. Formby made his announcement from McAllen, in the Valley, where he was guest of honor at an appreciation dinner. Recently, the highway through the Valley was named the "Marshall Formby Valley Expressway".

Formby is a former County Judge; former State Senator; and a former member and chairman of the Texas Highway Commission. He is a strong advocate of the State Farm-to-Market Road System.

"Texans are demanding a more positive, progressive state administration, headed by a Governor who is not obligated to any cliques in either Washington or Austin. People are tired of the bickering and fussing among elected executives in Austin and they want a new leader — but one who will not be dictated to from Washington," Formby said in his announcement.

"Furthermore, the State needs a good solid businessman approach to solve the State's economic problems. I propose to bring sensible and logical leadership to the Governor's office when I am elected."

Formby's platform includes favoring a simplified tax system; amending the so-called unfair merit car insurance ruling; increasing the speed limit to 70 miles per hour on 4-lane divided highways in rural areas and then strict enforcement; solving the State's water and soil conservation problems; less red tape for small businessmen and farmers; and operating Texas on a cash basis. He favors greater consideration for the State's senior citizens.

Formby lives at Plainview. He was born in Hopkins County. He is a practicing attorney, farmer and co-owner of four Texas radio stations.

AMERICANA College Notebook The University of Denver

The history of the University of Denver begins March 5, 1864, when Colorado Seminary was incorporated as Colorado's first educational institution. Financial problems caused the Seminary to close its doors in 1867. A revival of mining in the late 1870's and a steady growth in Denver population made possible reopening of the Seminary and in 1880 the University of Denver was organized as the degree conferring body of Colorado Seminary. John Evans, second territorial governor, and owner of the original Seminary building, turned it over to a Board of Trustees selected by the Colorado Conference of the Methodist Church.

Dr. David H. Moore was first chancellor. The University had a College of Liberal Arts, College of Fine Arts, College of Music and Seminary, made up of a collegiate preparatory department and a junior preparatory department. Enrollment the first year was 61 students, the next year it rose to 407.

Today the University of Denver, under the chancellorship of Dr. Chester M. Alter, is composed of six colleges, nine schools, and fourteen other instructional and research units. There are some 5,500 students enrolled.

The University has two campuses—one in the heart of downtown Denver, the other seven miles to the south, in University Park.

In 1960, the University of Denver was named one of five private universities to share in a multi-million dollar grant from the Ford Foundation. This grant was designed to "strengthen American higher education" and was made to specific universities in different regions of the nation.

The academic year is divided into three quarters of about eleven weeks each. Summer Session is nine weeks in length, but some courses and workshops are held for shorter periods.

A member of the Skyline Conference and the Western Collegiate Hockey Association, the University of Denver competes in eleven varsity sports, including football, basketball, ice hockey, skiing, swimming, wrestling, gymnastics, baseball, golf, tennis and track.

University students are nicknamed "Pioneers."

Baptist Church News

Howdy, folks:

We hope some of you came to the Workers' Conference yesterday (Thursday) and ate some of the good food prepared by the ladies here at Lesley. We had a great and glorious time in Christian inspiration and fellowship. Monday and Tuesday, some of us went to the Pastor-Layman Conference in Plainview at the Wayland Baptist College. Tuesday at 3 p. m. the ladies met for a study of "Sharing My Savior." Wednesday at 7 p. m. a group of us got together and studied the 3rd and 4th chapters of the study course book in Jeremiah by Dr. Clyde Francisco. We had an upsurge in Sunday School and Training Union attendance this Sunday. Let's keep that up! See you all (in print) next week. God's blessings to all of you.

Among topics discussed in workshops were: Accreditation Standards and Program Developments, Textbook Administration, Standards for Texas School Library Program, Superior and Talented Student Program, Local Financing of Schools, Current Trends in Teacher Education and Certification, Legislation, Texas Small School Project, Current Teaching Machine Programs, Ef-

Sisters Killed In Car-Train Crash Monday

Two sisters, Mrs. Carrie Bell Porter and Miss Idalee Tabor, both of Chillicothe, were killed Monday when the automobile in which they were riding collided with a Fort Worth & Denver Ry. freight train at a crossing in the north edge of Chillicothe.

The women were sisters-in-law of Mrs. H. J. Tabor, Jr., of Chillicothe, the former Anna Ruth Williams of Memphis.

Investigating officers said the women were traveling on FM 91 south into Chillicothe and apparently did not see the train as they rounded a curve just before reaching the railroad tracks.

Mrs. Porter, about 60 years old, driver of the car, was reportedly killed instantly and Miss Tabor, about 50 years old, died a short time after reaching a Chillicothe hospital.

The women were daughters of the late Mr. and Mrs. H. J. Tabor, Chillicothe area pioneers.

Survivors include a brother, H. J. Tabor, Jr., of Chillicothe and Attendance was about half the usual number this year due to weather conditions, Miss Gilreath added.

The House of Quality

Report From Washington

By WALTER ROGERS
Representative, 18th
Congressional District

The New Session
On Jan. 10, 1962, the House of Representatives of the U. S. convened for the second of the 87th term of Congress. The session commenced with handshaking and greeting the Members returning to the Nation's Capital for consideration of the old problems attacking the new. The new administration to be administered by the man who has served in the House, to-wit: Honorable Carl Vinson of Chairman of the Committee on Armed Services. The speaker then administered the oath to the new Members replacing those who had passed away or resigned. The year 1962 has claimed another Member of the House in the passing of my friend, John Riley of South Carolina. John was a Southern man in the best traditions, a staunch character and a man of ability. It will be most difficult to replace the people of South Carolina with him.

be pushed without delay in all of the Committees.

There is no doubt but that there will be many heated debates during this session on the several subjects mentioned in the President's State of the Union message. There are also a number of bills left on the calendar from the last session which will prove equally controversial.

On the subject of international matters, you can expect to hear much from the Select Committee which we in the last session formed for the purpose of looking into shipment of goods to Red and Red-satellite countries. In fact, information will be forthcoming within the next few days as the opening salvos in clearing up this problem and in putting a stop to practices that should not be followed.

There will be opportunity for action on three measures passed by the House last year. One of these, H. R. 4469, bars the employment on waterfront facilities and U. S. merchant vessels of persons who refuse to appear or to answer questions on Communist affiliations or commit perjury before any Federal agency. Another, H. R. 3247, clarifies the term "organized" as used in the Smith Act to make it apply to continuing as well as original Communist activities. This bill will plug up a legal loophole that the Communists were trying to avail themselves of. Another is H. R. 8465, which prohibits shipments in interstate or foreign commerce of articles imported to the United States from Cuba. This measure passed the House and it is hoped that it will become a law this year.

The Congress should also address itself to continuing and vigorous action to ferret out any possible infiltration of Communists or Communist sympathizers into the Federal government or any organizations doing business with the Federal government. This is a continuing job and one that must be of primary concern at all times. Several measures which I have introduced can be effective weapons in this battle to aid and assist the security agencies of our government in fighting this battle. I expect to prepare and introduce others as the needs of the enforcement agencies are made known.

No Men To Be Drafted From Here in February

There will be no men inducted during February from local board No. 20, according to information released this week by Frances Starkey, clerk for the board.

The state quota for Texas in February is 296 men, according to Col. Morris S. Schwartz, state Selective Service Director.

This compares with a quota of 440 for January. The February call of 296 men is the state's share of the national call of 8,000 men, all for the Army.

The February quota will be filled with men who are at least 22 years old on Feb. 1, with the exception of volunteers or delinquents, who may be younger.

Bill Kesterson Announces For County Judge

This week Bill G. Kesterson, of Memphis, authorized The Memphis Democrat to announce that he is a candidate for County Judge of Hall County, subject to the action of the Democratic primaries. He issued the following statement with his announcement: "To the Voters and Citizens of Hall County:

"After giving this matter serious consideration for several months, and upon the advice of to Midland with her husband in April, 1961 from Plainview.

Funeral services were held from the Asbury Methodist Church in Midland with Rev. Aubrey White, pastor, officiating, assisted by Rev. J. H. Crawford, pastor of the Plainview Methodist Church. She was a member of the First Methodist Church of Plainview.

many friends from all parts of Hall County, I have decided to enter the race for County Judge.

"I was born and reared in Hall County, and my mother and father moved here before 1900. Due to this fact, I know most citizens of my county, and believe I am familiar with our problems. I am 33 years of age, married, and the father of one child. Since 1957, I have been engaged in the general insurance business in Memphis. Prior to that time, I farmed our place, located north of Newlin.

"Being a property owner and tax payer in Hall County, I am sincerely interested in the progress of my county. If you elect me your County Judge, I will endeavor to provide a much-needed progressive leadership, at the same time work for conservative use of county funds.

"It shall be my aim to work diligently to promote better teamwork and harmony among the people of our county. Such cooperation will enable the county to progress as it should.

"I realize the office of County Judge is a responsible office; and, if elected, I promise I will work to the best of my knowledge and ability to fulfill this responsibility to each and every person in Hall County.

ing able to pick out the right lane until he came to another sign, "Forty Lane Bowling — stop and bowl a while."

A news story in the McLean News last week announces that ground-breaking has been done and construction of a big new building to enlarge the facilities of Marie Foundations will start right away. At present the factory employs 180 persons. The additional building will enable the factory to employ a good many more. This news story recalls to mind that Memphis was seriously considered, but somewhere along the line, Memphians failed to really get into making offers that would have induced the company to locate here.

If anyone goofed on the Marie Foundation business—it is past history. But a co-operative effort of the entire citizenship, can overcome any mistakes, and build upon such experience in being successful in the future. The Chamber of Commerce is the only organization in which all can have a part—one that was formed a half century ago, and has been kept going continuously, having for its aim the development of all resources for the good of the entire community—and our belief is that the C. of C. will be actively engaged in promoting projects this year, as it has in the past, but with greater energy and ambition. Tony Craig, present president of the C. of C., informs us that a meeting of all connected with any kind of business is to be held at the General Telephone's regional office this Thursday night to hear a man, who has had a lot of experience in city improvement, tell of the things needed to promote worthwhile projects.

Dr. J. A. Hill, ex-veteran educator of West Texas College, writes a column "Hilltop Views," for the Canyon News. In last issue of that newspaper he discusses at length the first-of-the-year business of making inventories—trying to discover profits and losses. In other words, he wants to start the new year with a better understanding of the problems before him. Dr. Hill likens merchandising to life-building, as follows:

Life-building is not unlike merchandising in this one respect. If we expect to prosper—become bigger and better men and/or women—we need occasionally to close the doors to all comers and is the responsibility of a pastor, layman, and woman co-chairman, according to information received this week. Each of the 122 associations have a set of similar officers. Together these district and associational chairmen are responsible for the carrying out of the crusade program.

The purpose of the crusade is to strengthen the denomination's schools by encouraging more Baptist students to attend Baptist colleges, to participate in the Baptist Student Union at whatever college they might attend, and to consider prayerfully church related vocations as careers and by raising $28 million for buildings and equipment on Baptist campuses.

Texas Baptist schools are Baylor University, Waco; Decatur Baptist College, Decatur; East Texas Baptist College, Marshall; Hardin-Simmons University, Abilene; Howard Payne College, Brownwood; Mary Hardin-Baylor College, Belton; San Marcus Baptist Academy, San Marcus; University of Corpus Christi, Corpus Christi; and Wayland Baptist College, Plainview. Also included in the crusade are two new Baptist colleges at Dallas and Houston.

quietly and honestly make a self-inventory. Can I stand before the mirror, look myself squarely in the eyes, and assert positively that I have done better this year than last; that I think less of my selfish interests and more of the welfare and happiness of others; that I have my temper and my tongue under better control; that my physical appetites have been bridled; that I have not taken advantage of a customer or a friend in a business or other transaction; that I am more conscious of my responsibility to my family, my community, and my country; that my conduct is the kind I would like my children to accept as a pattern; that I respect and obey the laws of city, county, state, and nation because I know that failure to do so contributes to the rapidly increasing lawlessness that endangers every household (including my own), imperils all the freedoms our forefathers vouchsafed to us, and weakens our country in its contest with all the evilisms of our times; that I am better informed on the issues of the day and have determined, God helping me, to take my stand immovably for God and country so far as my intelligence enables me.

the people of Memphis in this capacity.

In 1943 Mr. Coursey began work for the First National Bank as a teller and worked in that position for the next two years.

The Community Public Service Company hired Coursey in 1945 as manager of the water system here and he continued with them until they sold to the Donley Water Control and Improvement District No. 1. After the sale, Coursey continued as manager until this month when he retired from the position.

In speaking of improvements to the system, Coursey said, "During the time I was with the company we completed all of the deep wells which now constitute the major water supply for Memphis." Coursey attended Clarendon Junior College for two years and North Texas State at Denton one year, when he was a young man. "Of all the happenings during the past years, the one which made the greatest impression in my mind was the community chest organized here in about 1930," he recalled.

"At that time the depression was in its first stages and the community businessmen organized to help those in need," he explained.

During that first year, before the federal assistance program got in operation, it fell Coursey's duty to buy and distribute food to those here who were in need.

"There were about 90 families here at one time being almost entirely supported by the businessmen," he said. "As I went into the homes distributing the meager food supply, the situation was pitiful. I don't ever want to see another time like that."

On the most pleasant side of community activities, Coursey has served as a board member of the Methodist Church and also as a steward. He is also active in the Brookhollow Country Club Lake organization.

Mrs. Coursey has also been much in the public service business, serving as librarian at the Carnegie Library here for the past 18 years, before retiring recently.

In discussing the library, she said that there are approximately 10,000 volumes available to the public. In addition to this number the library subscribes to 35 magazines and has three new sets of encyclopedias.

She received her education at Clarendon College and West Texas State College at Canyon.
