The conference was made possible due to a bill sponsored by Congressman Walter Rogers. It called for a feasibility study of Red River and Salt Fork River. After passage of the act, engineers of the Bureau had made a study of both streams. The report on the Red River was the basis of the discussion Monday afternoon.

O. R. Stark, Quitaque banker, presided at the meeting. He was serving as chairman in the absence of C. C. Broughton of Childress, president.

Farm Safety Week

Most of us balk when we see or hear any kind of list of do's or don'ts regarding our daily lives. We consider our beliefs about living our personal property, and we resent outsiders telling us how to live. "It's none of their business!" we complain.

Yet consider for a moment the number of strangers whose advice we listen to each day: bankers, doctors, machinery experts, newspaper columnists, lawyers, radio announcers—the list could go on forever. We're bombarded by advice all day from a variety of experts. An the truth of the matter is that a lot of the advice is good.

Take for example the recent releases from the Texas Farm and Ranch Safety Council concerning Farm Safety Week, July 22-29. Accidents, in addition to draining our nation's financial resources, bring death, disability, suffering and hardship to thousands of farm people annually, they said. Safety habits, therefore, are vitally needed if there are to be fewer deaths and injuries, less expense, grief and suffering on the farm.

The Texas Farm and Ranch Council, which is pushing a farm safety education campaign in Texas, tells us that farm life can be enjoyed by practicing safety each day. The council asks farmers and ranchers to check their home electric and heating systems, to check and repair equipment, to keep children away from machinery and livestock. It warns against falls, resulting from hurry and unsafe ladders. The farmer or rancher is cautioned to make sure all farm equipment is operating safely and to stop machines before unclogging, oiling or adjusting them. And this is good advice—not only during Farm Safety Week but the other 51 weeks of the year, too!

The Citizen Soldier

Early next month the members of the 49th Armored Division will be released at Fort Polk, La. and will return to their homes all over the nation. This unit, and others like it, were called up last fall for intensive training when our nation was on the brink of war. Throughout the history of this country the citizen soldiers have been on hand whenever our nation was in need. From the very beginning of the Minute Man until the present day National Guardsmen and Reservists—the citizens—have responded to call whenever necessary.

And so it was again last year when the cold war in Berlin was beginning to get hot. The nation's safety dictated that we put some more men under arms in a hurry and two National Guard divisions as well as a great number of Reservists were called into active duty. The peace of the world may have been preserved by the calling of these men. It showed Russians that we were ready to fight if necessary, and as a result, they have not pushed the Berlin situation.

In thinking of the reserves being called to duty, we always are reminded of a poem written by Everett A. Gillis titled "Letters To The People" and penned about the time of World War II. We think the citizen soldiers of this nation should take this work as their motto. The work opens with these lines:

You don't know me from Adam, America, but I'm part of you:
Farmer, doctor, fullerbrush man,
School teacher, grocer, policeman—
I'm a cross section of the land!
I'm the one you spoke to on the street with a friendly nod,
I'm the one you argued with in the public library on politics, as if we both knew what we were talking about,
I'm the one who gave you a light when you didn't have a match,
I'm the one who gave you a hand with a flat tire on a blistering August day . . .
The one who suddenly was gone from the busy routine of your life.
For a high bugle called me, America, a sharp full reveille,
Quick and strident,
That I could not fail to answer!

The poem goes on to tell of the training camps, the skilled civilians from all walks of life learning the art of war. It depicts the plodder, the gold bricker, the incorrigible, as well as the average citizen. The work closes as follows:

Yes, America,
I am the quick, the sure, the romantic,
Taking the hardships in my stride,
Flying my thunderbolt of a plane with one hand tied behind me,
Fighting with flags in my heart and banners in my eyes.
Yes, America,
I am the peaceful citizen forged like a weapon for the battle,
Sharp, tempered, proficient, and ready
For the ugly task at hand.
America, I shall not fail you!

(From the book "Signature of the Sun," a collection of Southwest verse from 1900 to 1950 published by The University of New Mexico Press at Albuquerque)

What Other Editors Say

Appeal To The People

Last year President Kennedy was assailed for not "going to the people" to argue the case for his major legislative proposals.

He nevertheless saw many important measures adopted, including a massive housing bill and the area redevelopment program. But he lost a high priority item—federal aid to education.

In 1962 he has spoken out vigorously for such items as medical care for the aged, a new, freer trade program, a farm bill with stiff production controls, tax revision with provision for withholding of taxes on interest and dividends.

It is too soon for the final returns, but the net effect of this stepped-up presidential effort has thus far not been rewarding either to him or to those of his supporters who favor the loud championing of a cause.

The original farm bill was beaten, effort now focuses on some kind of a substitute, whose prospects are unclear.

Few expect tax revision to pass in anything like its administration form.

Opponents have hammered relentlessly against medical care as proposed by Kennedy. Many observers question its chances.

Probably the odds still favor the president's trade bill, but the newest advice suggest even this measure has slipped badly on the list of likely prospects.

If all or most of these measures should finally be defeated, would that suggest the President is better advised to be less aggressive in pressing his program in Congress?

Hardly. The fact seems to be that Kennedy has chosen to concentrate most controversial proposals in this election year, with the exception of aid to education. Conceivably he might be in far worse shape on these bills had he not spoken out.

Yet veteran observers of "President vs. Congress" insist there is nothing very new in Congress delivering heavy rebuffs to the White House on major domestic issues.

Even Franklin D. Roosevelt could push through no more big social legislation after 1938, when huge Republican congressional gains restored a rough balance and conservative flavor to Congress. Harry Truman's Fair Deal for the most part never got off paper.

Aid to education has died a dozen deaths. Real tax reform seldom gets even serious consideration. Trade bills often have been severely chopped at. Though these fall in the "foreign affairs" field, they have important aspects for domestic industry.

In other words, Congress for more than 25 years has successfully set itself against further deep-running reforms and social changes. During this same span the law makers have rarely denied any president what authority he asked for to help implement his foreign policy.

No president likes the taste of defeat. But if Kennedy gets a large dose of it in 1962, he can at least reflect that this has been a pretty common dosage ever since the New Deal's pinnacle was passed.

The congressional appropriations process is in a jam. And it's high time it was ended.

Here's the situation: Each branch of Congress, House and Senate passes a differing version of the 12 or so appropriation bills providing the money for government to run on. When each bill has passed both houses, each appoints a conference committee to meet together to iron out differences between the two versions.

Over the years, the conference committees have met on the Senate side of the Capitol, and have been presided over by senators. Finally, the House had enough of this. Its appropriations committee asked that at least half the committee meetings be held on the House side, and that at least half be presided over by House members.

There's been agreement on a "neutral" meeting place. But the chairmanship question has not been settled. It's delaying the whole appropriations process. Not a single general appropriations bill for the new fiscal year that begins next Sunday has yet reached the President.

The two houses of Congress are theoretically, equal and co-ordinate. Each has special powers granted by the Constitution.

In asking that House members preside over half the conferences, the House is not demanding something unprincipled or selfish.

The plain fact is that House appropriations committeemen usually know far more about the details of the money bills than do their Senate counterparts. Nevertheless, it has become traditional for the Senate to raise House appropriations totals.

The House demand is, in our view, not trivial. It seems to us fair. It might, in fact, lead to reduced appropriations.

The Senate will lose neither face nor power by agreeing to the House demand. Instead, the taxpayer might benefit.

FOR BETTER HEALTH

It will arouse the wrath of sun worshippers, but this must be said: The healthful effects of a sun-tan aren't worth the time and trouble it takes to get one. After all, a sunburnlike any other burn—is a manifestation of a skin injury.

True, a sensible bask in the sun makes a fine mental pick-me-up, and there is no denying the supple appeal of a tawny lifeguard. But to overdo it can lead to trouble. In fact it can kill you. More than one person has succumbed to prolonged and unaccustomed exposure to the sun.

Even at best, overexposure can mean two or three miserable days when a mere shirt or blouse is torture, and a friendly pat on the back can end in murder.

The medical term for sunburn is "erythema solaris". It's the ultra-violet light in sun rays which does the damage. And since clouds don't remove all ultra-violet rays, it is possible to get burned even on overcast days in mid-summer.

Some people are physically unable to tan. Known medically as "heliophobes," they could spend the entire summer on Padre Island, and all they'd get would be blisters on their blisters. The reason: Their skins lack the pigment necessary to produce the tan tint. They never had a tan, they never will, so they ought never attempt one. Each new exposure will only mean a new burn.

Assuming you are the type who can tan—a "heliophilic," that is—the well-known rule about doing it by progressively longer exposure times is valid and should be followed.

Sunshine is a source of vitamin D, as most people know. What is apparently misunderstood is that ordinarily healthy people get all the D vitamin they need through routine activities such as hanging out the family wash, mowing the lawn, or walking to the store. Of persons suffering from pellagra, lung tuberculosis, high blood pressure, or hyperthyroidism sunlight may be definitely harmful.

In case you have wondered about the source of freckles, here's the answer: The color of everyone's skin is determined by the amount of pigment in skin cells. Dark-complexioned people have considerable, blondes very little, and albinos none at all. Under the microscope the pigment in skin cells looks like tiny flecks of brown paint. Sometimes, especially in children, it is manufactured unevenly and collects in the spots we know as freckles.

Ultra-violet rays can be filtered, fortunately, by smearing a thin film of olive oil over exposed skin. So if you're a heliophilic, and if you just have to have that golden sheen this summer, it might pay you to try it.

Is Seeking High Calibre Men For Career

Invitation has been issued by the Texas Department of Public Safety to any and all high calibre young men in the state who wish to compete for one of 150 positions now available in the State Law Enforcement. The challenge of the rigid qualifications for patrolmen in the four services: Highway Patrol, License and Weight, Driver's License and Motor Vehicle Inspection is expected to attract many promising young men," Major Hutchison, Commander of the No. 5 of the Department of Public Safety, said today.

Assignment to one of the above positions will be made on the basis of aptitude, interest and ability at the conclusion of a period of basic training. Then specialized training will be given in the classroom and in the field after which a home station is designated. Applicants must be between 21 and 35 years of age, between 68 and 72 inches tall, not less than 2 pounds or more than 3 pounds per inch of weight, and be in sound physical condition. They must have a high school education or equivalent and must be able to stand examination as pertains to character and citizenship. Selection procedures will include written and oral examinations.

"Any young man who wants to measure himself against these high standards is urged to pick up or write for the necessary forms from any D. P. S. Field Office throughout the state," Major Hutchison said. Formerly examinations were given only three times a year, at each of 17 centrally located examination centers throughout the state.

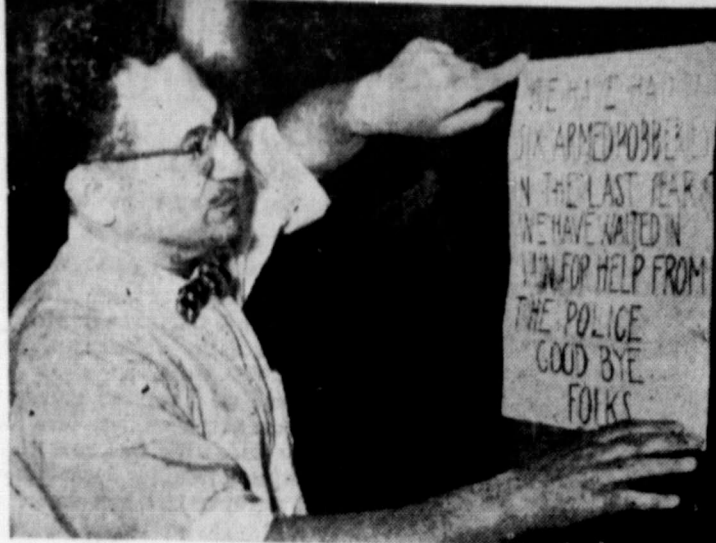

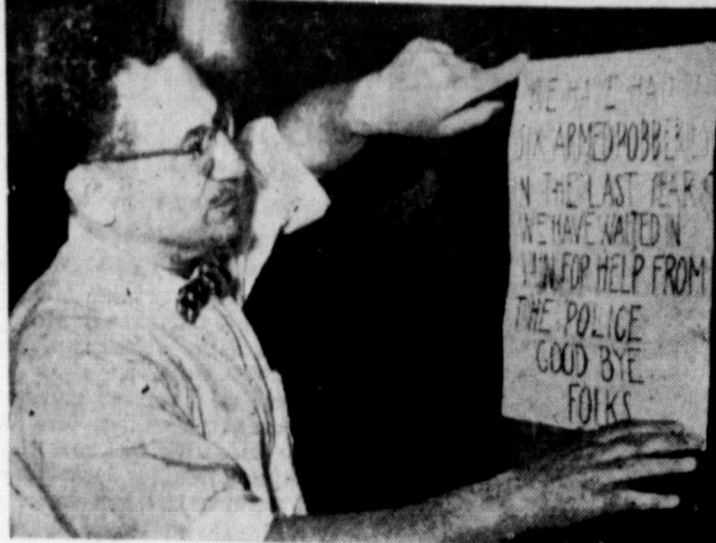

"In addition to offering a challenge which separates the men from the boys," Major Hutchison said, "the Department of Public Safety offers a rewarding career to men who want to follow law enforcement as a profession. There is always an opening and room for advancement for this type of men in the Department," he concluded.

S. E. Lanes To Attend Church Meet in San Angelo

Jehovah's Witnesses of Memphis Group will join 5,000 associates at the Courageous Ministers District Assembly in San Angelo Coliseum, July 27 to 29, according to Stephen E. Lane, local minister.

Delegates will come from 135 congregations in Texas, Oklahoma, New Mexico and seven other states for the three-day meet.

The Witnesses have undertaken a door-to-door canvass of the entire city of San Angelo to obtain accommodations to supplement the 1200 hotel and motel rooms that are available in the city.

This method of obtaining rooms is not new for Jehovah's Witnesses," said Lane. "We did the same thing in Houston, Oklahoma City and in New York for some of our larger conventions."

The meetings at the local Kingdom Hall will be discontinued during the convention week as members of the Memphis Group will attend the convention.

Twenty ministers have been appointed by the Watchtower Society to participate in the three-day program that will be climaxed Sunday at 3 p.m. with the talk, "Take Courage—God's Kingdom is at hand," according to Lane.

WANTED BY THE FBI

Eugene Francis Newman

Newman is the alleged machine gun-carrying leader of a gang that attempted the robbery of an armored car carrying $498,500 in American and Canadian currency in Buffalo, New York, on August 3, 1955. He and his associates, wearing silk stocking masks, engaged in a running gun battle with the truck's guards and Buffalo Police, and a machine gun bullet, allegedly fired by Newman, seriously wounded a guard. Two bandits were quickly apprehended but Newman remains at large.

A complaint, filed before a U.S. Commissioner at Buffalo, New York, on August 5, 1955, charges Newman with fleeing the State of New York to avoid prosecution for robbery.

Heavily armed, with a violent temper, Newman has previously been convicted for theft of Government property, interstate transportation of a stolen motor vehicle, petty larceny, and burglary.

He is a white American, reportedly born on October 3, 1928, at Brooklyn, New York, who is 5'8" tall, weighs 170 to 180 pounds, has blond hair, blue eyes, a medium build, and medium complexion.

He has scars near his right eye, on the back of his right hand and on the center of his left cheek. A birthmark appears on his upper left arm and a mole on his left index finger. Tattoos include the name "Danny" and a heart on the outside of his right forearm, and the number "13" within a dotted circle on the back of his left hand. He has worked as a bricklayer, clerk, construction worker, courtierman, and laborer.

Consider extremely dangerous. Please immediately notify the nearest FBI Office of any information concerning his whereabouts. WFO 52428-12

Hall County Soil Conservation District News

A wise rancher knows his plants. The same as a factory owner or other business man knows his resources, and keeps an up to date inventory. The best farmers know how they grow and how to plant and manage them. Grass is the ranchers crop and he needs to know his resources in order to know how best to manage them.

One of the first steps in developing a conservation plan based on his needs is for the rancher to learn the plants that are best adapted on the range sites of his ranch.

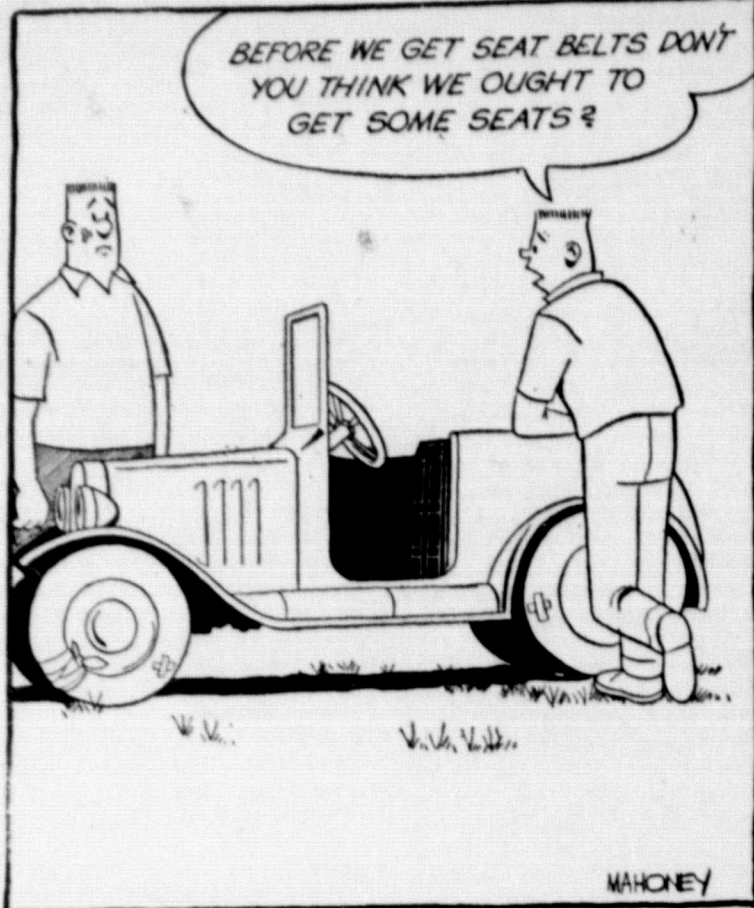

Different range sites support different combination of plants. It is sometimes desirable to fence different sites into separate pastures to permit proper management. A conservation plan will consider the grazing habits of the livestock, as well as the different kinds of range sites on a ranch.

It has been said that "Grass is the forgiveness of nature; her constant benediction." Most of the grasses found in The Hall County Soil Conservation District are of great importance to man.

Soil Conservation Service Technicians have made an extensive collection of the grasses of this area. Interested persons are cordially invited to drop by to see and discuss the numerous grasses on the display board in the Soil Conservation Service Office in Memphis.

a little girl's World

All blue skies, all serene days . . . and always within easy reach . . . everything to make her happy. Little girls expect it to be so. And, if Daddy had his way, it would be like this, always. But even the most ideal childhood—planned so carefully by the best of parents—cannot last forever.

The most we can hope to do is help the youngsters grow up strong . . . willing to assume responsibility . . . able to carry burdens with grace and dignity . . . finding meaning in their own particular lives.

But while they are still children there is this that we can do. We can show them how much we depend on weekly worship, by taking them with us, to our church

Find the strength for your life . . .

RIGHT OF WITNESSES

By far the most vital people in our system of justice are witnesses. Everyone else in a trial exists to hear what they have to say.

Our courts need witnesses. A jury to find the facts. The judge to apply the law. The lawyer to tell his client's story.

Chances are your worry about stepping up, taking an oath, and telling your story in court.

On some rare occasions you could be called upon to testify about something affecting your own standing in the community.

As a witness you too have the right, for example, not to testify against yourself in somebody else's lawsuit or crime trial.

If you are ever in such a bind, consult a lawyer of your own choice on what to do. The lawyer who called you to testify has a sworn duty to protect his client, not you. But your lawyer is sworn to keep what you tell him secret and to advise you in your own interests within the law.

Wise lawyers tell their witnesses to obey twelve rules:

1. Go to the place (say, the scene of an accident). Check your memory before you go to court. People forget and get caught up on details. But if you check what you saw and heard you are on solid ground.

2. Visit a court. Hear how other witnesses testify. It will help you see your role on the witness stand.

3. Wear clean, conservative clothes.

4. Don't memorize your story word for word. That is the surest way to sound bad. But think of what you saw and heard.

5. Listen to the questions you are asked with care and answer thoughtfully.

6. Give a simple, direct answer in your own words. Don't be rushed.

7. If you err—and people often do—correct yourself at once. If you can't remember some detail, say so. Don't bluff.

8. Tell the truth. Don't figure which side you may help. Don't identify yourself with either side.

9. Stop when the judge breaks in, and don't try to sneak an answer in before he can stop you. What you might say could end in a "mistrial."

10. Keep cool and don't sass back.

11. If they ask you: Certainly, you have talked to other people—the lawyer, for example; and yes, you may be reimbursed for certain of your expenses incurred in attending the trial.

12. Remember, without witnesses our law would fail to do justice. If you are called, be a good witness.

(This news feature, prepared by the State Bar of Texas, is written to inform—not to advise. No person should ever apply or interpret any law without the aid of an attorney who is fully advised concerning the facts involved, because a slight variance in facts may change the application of the law.)

Texas' Lumber Industry Faces New Potential

Strong prospects for the development of new lumber products and a general advancement of Texas' forest-based economy have arisen from the results of tree studies made by a federal research agency.

Commenting on recent field surveys, Dr. Edward G. Locke, Madison, Wisconsin, Director of the United States Forest Products Laboratory, had this to say:

"The modern crop of Southern Pine, produced under good forestry practices, has quality as well as quantity. This quality is exceptional—so much so, in fact, that it should lead to many new and improved uses of wood as a building material."

Dr. Locke's agency is the world's foremost authority on the properties of wood. His statement applies to conditions in the South as a whole, without singling out any particular region or state. However, the findings are being studied with special interest by manufacturers in Texas, a leading Southern Pine lumber producing state.

According to Dr. Locke, federal research studies have pinpointed the density, strength, stiffness and other properties of the South's principal tree species. These and other findings have led him to believe that Southern Pine is well adapted to the manufacture of pre-assembled structural sections, building components and panelized parts.

Much progress has already been achieved in the development of these engineered devices, designed to increase the efficiency and lower the cost of construction.

Dr. Locke believes wood components could be made by lumber mills as well as by specialized plants.

He is convinced that the Southern Pine industry's standardization of seasoning will be highly beneficial in engineered design. Seasoning is a process of drying which "pre-shrinks" lumber and greatly increases its strength.

There is quantity as well as quality in the forests of Texas and other Southern Pine producing states, where more than 39 million acres of "tree farms" are flourishing.

Recent figures from the U. S. Forest Service indicate that the growth of Southern Pine "saw-timber" (trees of sufficient size and quality for lumber) exceeds removal by at least 30 per cent. Despite a steady volume of lumber output, the volume of standing timber is increasing every year. The Forest Service predicts the South will eventually become the main source of the nation's lumber supply.

If the prospects envisioned by the Forest Service and by Dr. Locke materialize, the economy of Texas, heavily dependent on timber, would be advanced immeasurably.

At the present time, Texas has 1,100 lumber mills. Forest products manufacture gives work directly or indirectly to nearly 130,000 Texans. The total annual value of lumber, paper, furniture and other forest products made in Texas averages nearly three-quarters of a billion dollars worth a year.

These impressive figures could be greatly increased if the lumber industry succeeds in realizing its new potential.

Other encouraging signs for the state's lumber economy are:

1. During the first half of 1962, orders, shipments and production of Southern Pine lumber increased 8, 9 and 10 per cent respectively over the same period last year. These increases were indicated by figures from the mills reporting to the "Weekly Trade Barometer" of the Southern Pine Association.

2. Movements of lumber from South to Midwest have been the largest in several years. Recently, a record 62 carload of kiln dried Southern Pine arrived in Cincinnati for distribution to points through the Ohio Valley territory.

Report From Washington

By WALTER ROGERS
Representative, 18th
Congressional District

Second Session of 87th Congress of Congress lasts for two of Congress last for two sessions. The first session is held during that year in the Congress is convened the general elections. The session is actually a continuation of the first in most cases except name. All bills after the beginning of the session of the term of the session on the calendar remain on the calendar full two years unless otherwise disposed of by defeat, passage or other action. At the end of the session, all pending bills are re-introduced in the following session of the Congress, not before the Congress. The bills now in the second session of the 87th Congress, which opened on January 10, from that time through the 99 days, the House has passed 94. The Senate has passed 43. The House has passed 350 bills. The time in the House is no doubt to the House in the Senate it is not. In the House it is very seldom a member is allowed to talk for more than 10 or 15 minutes during any session while scheduled business is being handled. The rules followed in the House are different from those followed in the Senate, hence the Members of the Senate are not limited in debate, and in fact have set some records in recent years. There are many, many times that I wish the House had unlimited debate, because things that should be said are blocked by the limitation rules. The pages in the Congressional Record reflect the difference in the time in session. The Senate had placed 7,058 pages in the Record as of June 30th, while the House had placed 4,456.

During this time, 109 public bills had been enacted into law, 70 of which were House Bills while 39 were Senate bills. And, 161 private bills had been enacted into law, 105 of these being House bills and 56 being Senate bills. All of these bills had to be passed by both houses and signed by the President. This does not mean that these were the only bills that were passed by either house. The fact is that the House had passed 571 bills and the Senate had passed 421. The committees in the Senate had reported to the Senate 636 measures; 625 measures had been reported by House committees to the House of Representatives.

Since January 10th and through June 30th, 1,069 measures were introduced in the Senate. During that same time, 3,444 measures were introduced in the House. These include bills, joint resolutions, concurrent resolutions, and simple resolutions. If you will compare this figure with the number of bills that have been enacted into law, you can see that very few of the bills introduced ever become law. Parliamentary procedure is one of the great safeguards under the democratic form of government. Once a bill is introduced, the gamut through which it must travel before it finally reaches the President's desk is quite formidable. When it is first introduced, it is sent to a committee by the Speaker of the House. Usually it is then assigned by the Chairman of that committee to a subcommittee. Public hearings are then scheduled by the subcommittee during which testimony is taken from both proponents and opponents. When this is concluded, the bill is considered in executive session, during which time amendments may be offered and acted upon. When this proceeding has been completed, the bill is reported to the full committee for further action. It is then considered in executive session for further amendments, should any be desired.

If the bill is then approved by the full committee, it is reported to the House with proper recommendation. The matter is then submitted to the Rules Committee. The Rules Committee hears testimony from other Members of Congress with reference to the measure and the time that should be allowed for its consideration. Should the Rules Committee approve of debate on the measure, it adopts a resolution fixing the time of debate for the House. This resolution is then reported to the House and called up for consideration. If it is adopted, the House is resolved into the Committee of the Whole House on the State of the Union for further consideration of the bill. The debate is then held. When this is concluded, the bill is read for amendments, at which time any Member may offer an amendment and be heard on the same for five minutes. Sometimes the discussion of the bill under the "five-minute rule" may last all day, depending upon the number of amendments that are offered.

When this proceeding is finished, the bill is reported back to the House of Representatives, at which time it is voted upon by voice vote, by division vote, by teller vote, or by roll call vote, or by all four. If it passes, it then goes to the Senate where it is considered by that body under their rules of order, which are not exactly like those of the House, but just as intricate.

Reddy Ideas

"The kitchen is a country in which there are always discoveries to be made," said a famous French chef. And, bride or matron, you've probably found that out!

To press dark garments, put a black cloth over your ironing board. This prevents dark materials from picking up white lint, saves brushing later.

Just count the ways you use electric service every day. On the job around the clock, around the calendar—can you think of anything else that does so much yet costs so little?

Want to dress up that whipped cream pie? Run your potato ricer over a chocolate bar (almonds and all!) and make fancy chocolate curls over the whipped cream topping.

Here's another use for the spray attachment on your vacuum cleaner: use it to apply liquid wax to linoleum or asphalt tile.

Freezing? Line casserole dishes first with aluminum foil. Be sure there's enough to fold over the top. Once frozen, the wrapped food can be lifted out of casserole, freezing it for other dishes. Put foil-wrapped food back in casserole for reheating. (Just a nickel a day keeps a freezer full of food!)

Your sewing machine needle won't stick when sewing plastic materials if you sew a strip of waxed paper into the seam. When finished, tear off paper; seam will be perfect.

Stews freeze very well. Freeze roast poultry unstuffed because of the danger of bacteria. Freeze pastries or meat or chicken pies unbaked. Undercook vegetables when adding to stews and casseroles so when reheated they won't have that warmed-over taste.

Something to think about! It has been estimated that in the course of his lifetime an individual eats 64,000 meals, more or less. And somebody had to plan, buy and cook 'em!

In the average American home electricity does in one day what it would take 228 hours to do by hand. Nothing else does so much for so little! And you'll never run out of electricity, because your electric company plans and builds to keep the supply years ahead of the need. Do you wonder why we say electric service is the biggest bargain in your family budget?

Rep. W. S. Heatly Speaks Wed. To Lions Club

State Representative W. S. "Bill" Heatly of Paducah addressed the Memphis Lions Club at their regular meeting Wednesday with the subject of the talk being the state finances.

Rep. Heatly told the group that about 11 million dollars per month went for old age assistance, 1 million for dependent children, and $7600 for payments to totally disabled.

On a yearly basis, education cost the state $370 million, an average of $335 per child. Next year this is expected to rise to $392 million due to a larger number of five-year-olds now.

The state colleges cost the taxpayers $120 million per year including post graduate, medical and other such schools, an average of $687 per student, according to the speaker.

The junior colleges cost $7 million per year, $265 per student. Another big block of state money is spent on highways, and this accounts for $357 million.

A total of $50 million per year goes to state mental hospitals, TB hospitals, etc.

The representative told the group that these six departments accounted for 83 per cent of the state budget and that any major cut in spending would have to come within this area.

lookers-on as well as the participants. Each day and night, in good weather, many people, including a lot of tourists, take advantage of the shade, swimming pool and picnic units to spend some leisure hours. It is one of Memphis' best attractions. This growing tourist and local people's recreation center needs some rest. rooms. The Jaycees will start a campaign shortly for funds to erect a building, to house a ladies' lounge and two rest rooms— which certainly will not be un- sightly or unattractive.

Last week I mentioned a number of businesses locating in Memphis the past several months. It was called to my attention that Miller Mattress Factory had also installed dry cleaning equipment. Any others missed?

All women who wish to work at the new garment factory are asked to attend the interview to be held by company officials and local helpers Friday and Saturday. This is important, as the success of the new enterprise will depend much on the number of workers available in the area. The meeting will be held at Trav- is School cafeteria. Workers are rapidly getting the 50-foot building adjoining the Penney store on Noel Street) cleaned and painted and the floor sanded, ready for occupancy by the factory with necessary equipment for the training of workers and making garments until a factory building is completed on the 30-acre tract northwest of town. Welcome to Memphis, Mr. J. B. Parnell, who is in charge of setting up operations.

Many people remember the old-time singing conventions—the Sunday afternoon singings—and sometimes party night singings—and enjoyed them. These same people and a goodly number of younger folks would enjoy such events if such were held in Memphis regularly.

Hol-Par plastic factory is receiving orders for the products being made here, and each order brings still other and larger orders. Bert Holster and several workers had to work Tuesday night to fill a rush order. A visit to the plastic place of business on Fifth Street is really worthwhile, and the products are superior in quality. "The way orders are being received, we are confident the plant will be working full capacity soon," Holster said.

It will not be long until anyone in Memphis can pick up the phone, dial a friend or business in any city in the U. S. without even having to dial "operator," and be charged for the call automatically. Pampa, Borger and Amarillo are three stations in the Panhandle going into the DDD—Dial Distance Direct—Monday of this week. To the son or daughter attending college the DDD may mean don't dial daddy for more money.

The building of several residences in Memphis was slowed because of the rains, but should pick up and proceed at a more rapid pace since the demand for more houses becomes more acute—especially rental property. Several families are having to occupy rooms at tourist courts until they can find residences to move into.

A few drillers, who are helping to drill an oil well some 12 miles east-southeast of Memphis, which is now below 5,000 feet, are also staying at hotels and motels with their families. Add to that, various other projects, especially in the building line, bring a number of other people to Memphis.

How many of us live a humdrum life—never seeing the beauty of nature around us when it is everywhere present—but are so involved with our own daily making a living that we let the most important things of really living go by undone? Are we just existing and not really living? If we are really living we can see, feel and think of things not normal in the range of human senses.

The really living person sees and senses things of beauty, things of attractiveness, things that impress the mind, things that make one realize the greatness of the Almighty, and the feebleness of mankind, and such really make life worth living. Beauty is all about us if one tunes his eyes, mind and heart, and opens his very soul to Nature.

The whole world is just a traveled road, which one travels only once, and must see all that is on the road as he wends his way to Eternity.

Every day the world grows more beautiful if it is seen with cheerful eyes and reverent heart by those who really live. For such observant person, not only is beauty seen but sounds are heard that help to make living worth while.

The singing birds calling to their sweethearts appeals to the perceptive sense that recognize such sounds that are messengers of beauties around and about.

If one is really living, he sees beauty in the early mornings when dewdrops clothe the grass and flowers with tiaras of tiny diamonds, and the world about seems freshly new and full of life. Then comes a day of either happiness or sadness when the sun shines brightly, the breezes stir and the every day tasks of life are cheerfully done, or with a grumpy don't-care attitude.

Nearly every afternoon, fleecy white clouds float lazily in the blue sky, and frequently late in the afternoon these clouds develop into thunderstorms with deepening colors and building into mountains from which flashes of lightning take place to remind one that "The Heavens declare the Glory of God and the Firmament showeth His Handiwork."

And who has not looked toward the setting sun where clouds are clinging, and the Great Master Painter wields His brush which He dips into the sun and gets gold, silver, blood red rubies, then spreads the paint over the clouds—edging them with lacy diamond tiaras to produce the most beautiful picture where heaven and earth meet. Then who can deny that there is a God?

After the shadow of night is spread as a cover over the earth—the moon takes over for the night—the breezes of day quiet down and whispering zephyrs, like the breath of angels, touches the cheek as the humanity is ethereal instead of physical. The muted sounds of childish laughter, and the intimate voices of a family, united after a day of toil, also blend with the chirping of insects as they take their last fling before bedtime; the whippoorwill, chasing through the air for an evening meal, sings in high alto to his mate that he has just dined and is now ready to go to bed; and the humming insects as they seek the nectar from blossoms add harmony to the orchestra of night—but not without the bass voice of the bull frog in a pond nearby keeping time to Nature's music. When one can enjoy and appreciate all these he is really alive.

If one cannot see the beauty of things about him, and has hate, prejudice, selfishness in his heart, is he really alive and living happily?

Recently a news story was run in The Democrat concerning J. J. McMickin having spent 50 years in the railroad business, 50 years as a weather reporter, a member of the Masonic Lodge for 50 years—making a total of 150 years that he spent doing things for and in Memphis. I have just learned that he has been a member of the Methodist Church here for 50 years—so the total number of years is now 200, and still he is active and has many qualities of youth. So, Friend Mc, here's another handful of orchids to you for being such a useful citizen.

able for industrial use. They produce 75 to 80-foot candle power of light at a distance of three to four feet above the floor, the normal working height. They are also shadow-free.

Due to the limited space of the present building, it is planned that two trailer trucks will be parked at the back door. From one material will be unloaded, and the other will receive the finished sheets, it was stated.

Three company representatives will be here to conduct the interviews. They will be assisted by the Welcoming Committee of the Memphis Chamber of Commerce.

Parnell, who is in charge of the operation here, has been in the textile industry throughout all of his business career. He arrived in Memphis this week and plans to be here until the plant is in operation, at which time a resident manager will be appointed.

The production here will begin with 60 women, mostly as sewing machine operators, with more to be added later. Experienced power machine operators will be brought here for the training program, it was stated.

It is expected that employment will climb to 250 persons within two or three years. Circulars have been circulated in Memphis and the surrounding territory to notify persons of the job interviews.

Formal announcement of the name of the firm from the parent company is expected soon.

Cotton Measuring Underway Here

Measuring of cotton in Hall County is continuing this week with 13 reporters and three supervisors in the field. Lynn Mc-Known, manager of the Agricultural Stabilization and Conservation Service office here, said this week.

"In addition to this number we have seven employees in the office working on cotton measuring also," he added.

As soon as the cotton is measured in the office the farmer will be notified in the next mail.

Tops Gilreath, Miss McElreath Attend Workshop

Tops Gilreath, county superintendent, and Margaret McElreath, Lakeview teacher, are in Austin this week attending a school workshop at the University of Texas. The workshop opened on July 23 and will continue through July 27. Also meeting at the same time will be the Texas Association of School Administrators and the Texas Small School Association. Both organizations will hold two-day meetings.

pointed out. Exact location of the proposed dam is not known, but mention was made of a site north-west of Childress.

Among the points discussed by the group were the factors which would be considered pertaining to benefits from the dam and the lake it formed. Among them are: health, wildlife development, recreation, pollution and siltation.

Pollution from salt and alkali deposits in the watershed area were reviewed by the group. It was disclosed that these minerals are causing concern at Lake Texoma, where siltation is also a factor. Directors pointed out that the construction of a large dam would be the most practical manner to alleviate the above problems.

Both directors and representatives agreed that there were problems, but that they were not unsolvable. Cooperation of other agencies will be sought in the future, it was pointed out. Especially mentioned were the data gathered by the Texas office of the Health Department and the Geological Survey. The help of the Texas Board of Water Engineers will be sought.

Officials of the Bureau recognized that the directors of the Red River District were familiar with area conditions due to the fact that all were long-time residents of the counties involved. The physical aspects of the proposal were discussed fully at the session.

It was pointed out during the discussion that qualifications for feasibility of dam sites are being liberalized in keeping with water consciousness of the nation as a whole.

"Conditions that were not feasible in the past may well be adequate in the years to come," directors stated.

The board will meet again in September with the Bureau.

Wine Violation Charges Filed Against Man

Charges were filed against Henry C. Henderson, negro, Saturday for the possession of wine for the purpose of sale, Sheriff W. P. Baten, Jr., said this week.

Henderson was arrested Saturday and came before County Judge Tracy Davis Monday where he pleaded innocent to the charges. His bond was set at $1000, and as of Wednesday he was still in the county jail pending posting of the bond.

Mrs. Anna Dickson is seriously ill in Goodall Hospital, and some of her children are here to be with their mother. One daughter, Mrs. Jack Sitton, and son of Carlsbad, and three of her sons, Boyd of DeQueen, Ark., Hubert of Lubbock and Edgar of Bakersfield, Calif. The other two sons and one daughter, as well as her son-in-law, Jack Sitton, are not expected to arrive until later, being detained for business reasons.

the amount to approximately $21,000. Increases for individual employees range from 2 cents to 9 cents an hour depending upon specific job classification, and length of employment service.

Other items of settlement were related to contract language improvements, shortened period of time during which an employee may perform work in a higher job category before wage rate readjustment, one-year extension of a special area wage differential for Perryton, Tex., employees, and clarification of procedures involving classifications, and reclassifications, of employees according to job duties.

The new contract will be a primary term of one-year, running from July 21, 1962, through July 20, 1963. The new wage schedule was effective Sunday, July 22, 1962. Although final settlement has been reached, formal signing of the new contract will not be until sometime this week. The document has been prepared for execution. Negotiations sessions were held on June 19, and were conducted in the General Office of the telephone company here in San Angelo. The Communications Workers of America represent some 600 employees working in the United States and Canada in addition to those working for the general Telephone Company in Southwest.
