City Golf Tourney Set For This Week

The annual City Championship golf tournament is scheduled for this weekend at the Memphis Country Club course, the tournament committee announced.

Qualifying is today in the tournament with the deadline for entry set at 8 p. m. tonight. Entry fee has been set at $5.00.

Golfers will be competing for trophies this year.

The championship flight will contain 16 men, and will be cut to eight men at the end of the first day's play (Friday). The top eight men will play an 18-hole match Saturday, with the finals scheduled for 18-hole medal (stroke) play Sunday.

The eight men who are defeated in their first match will make up the President's flight and will compete for the same trophies as the top eight men, it was explained.

All other flights will be eight men with three trophies being given away in each flight.

A stag supper will be served Saturday night to those entering the tournament and other club members desiring to purchase tickets at $1.50 per plate. The $5.00 entry fee covers the price of the stag supper for those entering the tournament.

ROW IRRIGATION—Shown above is a sample of row irrigation being used on the T. H. Gattis farm near Brice. This portion of the farm was hit three times this year by hail. Without irrigation, it is possible that no high yield could have been made. Water from two wells is pumped into a main ditch. The water is then placed in the rows through the use of siphon tubes.

Widespread Irrigation Boon To Area Farmers

Too little or too much water has always been a problem to farmers in the Hall County Soil Conservation District. However, this year the problem is too little of the wet stuff.

Interest in irrigation has been widespread during years of drought, and this interest has not missed Hall County this year.

The farmers of the Hall County Soil Conservation District have been doing quite a lot of talking, planning and work on irrigation systems the past few years. It was reported by SCS technicians that the district has approximately 200 irrigation wells in operation now.

Because irrigation is the salvation of crops when the dry years come, all citizens of Hall County are interested in what the farmers are doing toward improving their system.

Irrigation, be it sprinkler or surface, will not be efficient if inadequate designs are used and it is not operated correctly. To operate a system correctly, the operator must know the capabilities of his system, his soils and the water requirements of his crops. With this knowledge, he can apply the principles of conservation irrigation on his farms to meet the needs of the soils and crops.

The most common type of irrigation system in use in Hall County is the pipe system, where workmen move the pipe into position, connect onto the well, and

Crime On Increase!

This week, the United States Department of Justice, Federal Bureau of Investigation, released the FBI's annual Uniform Crime Reports for 1963 in which it was stated that the U. S. registered a 10 per cent increase in volume of serious crime in 1963 over 1962.

Attorney General Robert F. Kennedy released figures made available by FBI Director, J. Edgar Hoover which disclosed the sharp trend last year resulted primarily from crimes against property which had an overall 11 per cent rise. Larceny $50 and over climbed 13 per cent, auto theft 11, burglary 9 and robbery 5. These crimes comprise 92 per cent of the total Crime Index offenses. Crimes against the person likewise showed an increase of 5 per cent as a group with aggravated assault up 6 per cent and forcible rape and murder one per cent each. There were over two and one-quarter million serious crimes reported in 1963.

Mr. Hoover noted that the continued upswing in crime was consistent in all areas, led by the suburban communities up 13 per cent, while the cities averaged a 10 per cent rise and rural areas 6 per cent. Geographically, the trend was uniform with the North Central States up 6 per cent, the Western States 10, the Southern States 12 and the Northeastern States 13 per cent.

When considered in relation to our population increase, the FBI Director pointed out that crime in the United States is increasing five times faster than our population growth. Since 1958 the Nation's population rise of 8 per cent has been outstripped by a 40 per cent increase in crime. In 1963 there were 12 serious crimes and victims for every 1,000 persons in the national population.

The report continued to show the nation averaged 35 arrests for 11 types of criminal acts per 1,000 inhabitants. In the cities the arrest rate was 42 per 1,000, suburban area 19, rural areas 15.

But the most appalling fact in the report was that during 1963 arrests of young persons under 18 years of age for criminal acts soared 11 per cent. This was the fifteenth consecutive year to register an increase. Since 1958 police arrests of juveniles have increased twice as fast as the young age population growth. For all criminal acts these young offenders made up 17 per cent of all police arrests.

What was the nature of these juvenile offenses? The report stated that persons under 18 were represented in 8 per cent of the arrests for murder, forcible rape 18 per cent, robbery 26, aggravated assault 14, burglary 50, larceny 51 and 63 per cent of the auto theft arrests. Mr. Hoover cautioned that although arrests indicate our young people contribute a disproportionate share of the crime counts nationally, only 4 out of each 100 young persons actually become involved.

Other interesting facts listed were that the 15 to 19 age group had the greatest frequency of all population groups for the crimes against property of burglary, larceny and auto theft. The 20-24 year age group had the highest arrest rates for the crimes of murder, aggravated assault and forcible rape, as well as for robbery and narcotic violations. The arrest rate for gambling was highest in the 30-34 year age group.

In the U. S. last year, 88 law enforcement officers died in the line of duty, 55 of them victims of vicious killers. The Uniform Crime Reports—1963 is published in a 170-page booklet which was released Monday, July 20, 1964.

To round out the crime picture, the number of police employees remained unchanged from 1962, namely, 1.9 per 1,000 population.

Property stolen in 1963 through robbery, burglary and larceny exceeded $785 million. The average loss in each robbery was $276, burglary $211, larceny $82 and auto theft $927. These property losses were cut to 46 cents on each dollar by police recovery action. Mr. Hoover stated the annual cost of crime in the United States is now conservatively estimated to be $27 billion. This updates an earlier estimate made five years ago.

Mr. Hoover concluded his report by stating, "If we are to reverse our national crime trend, the average citizen must have a better comprehension of its cost in human suffering and economic loss. We are all directly involved, yet to some the problem seems remote despite a rapidly rising victim risk rate."

We heartily agree with Mr. Hoover. Law enforcement in performing its duty of preserving law and order and protecting life and property merely asks that each law-abiding citizen recognize his responsibility by reducing the opportunity for crime, by providing positive assistance to police and by keeping the total crime problem in proper perspective.

Our national rise in crime can not be stopped unless the citizens of this nation desire to abide by the laws and help in their enforcement. And, if our future generations are to be law abiding and God fearing, we must teach them while they are young. Parents who disobey our laws are teaching their children to be disobedient.

Who Gets Food Money?
A Congressional investigation is under way, trying to figure out how come farm prices for food are declining, yet prices in the grocery stores are not dropping, but are at least holding steady. It has been determined that if the farmer were to donate the wheat for a loaf of bread, it wouldn't cut the price 2 cents. The current investigation shows that if the food stores were to donate their profits on the food sold to consumers it would reduce the food bill only a little bit. A family spending $1,078 for food would have this reduced to only $1,038 if the profits were taken out.

Where does the money go, then? What causes food to take such a big jump in price from the farm to the housewife's grocery bill? It appears that most of the costs go into the same channels that affect the cost of everything else—labor, transportation costs and taxes get the lion's share of it.

The investigation shows that of a food dollar, the farmer gets 32 per cent of it and out of this he has to pay his expenses and invest heavily in equipment. Labor, which has no such investment or expense, gets about the same, 31 percent, in the processing and marketing end of it. Transportation takes 7 per cent of it and other marketing costs such as taxes, packaging, fuel, power and interest charges, local taxes, local transportation, take 26 per cent.

This leaves about 2 per cent of the food dollar to go into corporate income taxes and 2 per cent for corporations in the food business. This takes up all of the food dollar and still leaves the question unanswered as to who is making all the money out of food these days.

Farmers naturally wonder about it when they see their prices fall and the consumer prices stay the same. It indicates that somewhere along the line somebody is making a profit out of it.

That's the kind of stuff you learn when people like Lieutenant Governor Preston Smith comes to town. Smith was the speaker at the Rotary club luncheon Tuesday and he told Rotarians all kinds of things. Like, believe it or not, the lieutenant governor's salary is set by the constitution, the same as a member of the senate, $4800 a year. # Historical Origins Of Public Notice

By Dr. Charles L. Allen, Director, School of Journalism, Oklahoma State University

Editor's Note: Too many newspapers—and readers—take notice for granted. They recognize it as one of the protections of our democratic government. In recognition of this fact, William M. Allen, manager of the Colorado Association, asked Dr. Allen to write a series of articles about public notice to educate publishers and readers alike.)

It came to pass in those days that there went out a decree that Caesar Augustus, that world should be taxed, even all that went to be taxed, even into his own city.

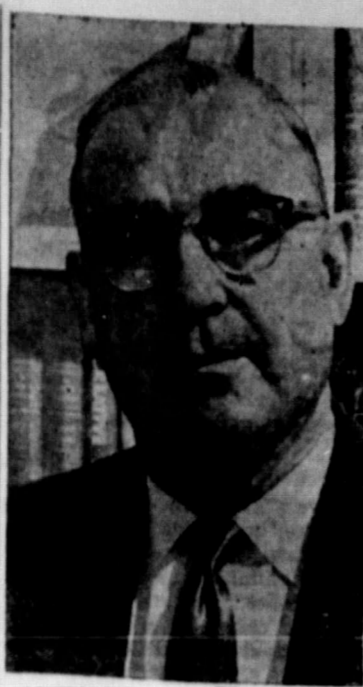

Joseph also went up from Nazareth of Galilee, into the city of Judaea, unto the city which is called Bethlehem, (because he was of the lineage of David:) to be taxed with Mary his wife, being great with child.

Bible tells of many times the people were notified to come to some government department which there was no appeal. But public notice was born long before Joseph and Mary went up to Bethlehem. Where did it begin? Its origins are shrouded in the mists of antiquity. So long as there has been a society of human beings with the barest forms of systematic government, there has been public notice.

I In the society of ancient Greece, the nation of city-states that gave modern civilization much of its present culture, the gathering place in the center of the city, called the Agora, served as the focus place for public notices. They were brought to the people's attention in several ways.

First, the Agora served as a public forum in which discussions took place between the leaders of Greek Society. Public issues were the common substance of these discussions. The populace might have been well informed if it had not been for many restrictions. To begin with, no wives were allowed to take part in these public discussions nor to hear them. Many slaves were denied all rights, including any part in the government. Women who came to be known as "courtesans" were plentiful around the Agora, but they had no part in public affairs. Those who could be informed by the Agora discussions, therefore, were the relatively small number of men who had first-class citizenship.

AUTHOR—Dr. Charles L. Allen is the author of this series in public notices. He had a long career as an educator and in the publication field.

The Roman Forum served the same purpose, and in that era, too, most of the people of the city were denied full citizenship. Posting of public notices was common in both the Greek and Roman eras, because there was no method of printing or otherwise disseminating copies for public notices.

At best, these public discussions, posted public notices, and the "town crier" type of vocal notice, were poor methods of keeping the people informed. In an age when the governing oligarchy cared little whether or not the people were informed, it made no difference how public notice was done.

II When printing was invented, it was at first used only for church printing: Bibles, psalms and the like. Then it was used in trade in small printed pieces not unlike our modern handbills. But all of these miscellaneous pieces were without system, regularity or dependable distribution. We may assume, I believe, that boys distributing handbills in the late 15th, 16th and 17th centuries (and there were relatively few printed pieces) quickly learned to throw some in the rubbish heaps, just like boys do today. No one, given his preference, would trust any serious and important notice to a handbill.

Early in the 16th century and perhaps before, a method of getting information to the people was invented that superseded both word of mouth and posting of notices. This was the "Office of Intelligence" which some say was a French invention and others trace to the Low Countries or to Germany. Whatever its origin, the Office of Intelligence (also called the "Office of Advice") became an established institution in several European countries and in England before the advent of newspapers. Here is how it worked: A man who had some pigs to sell would come to the Office of Intelligence, usually just part of a trade shop and sometimes part of an ordinary residence. There he would have the keeper of the "Book" write an entry in it saying something like: Thos. Smith, nearby the Mill, has 7-week-old pigs to sell." Another man coming later to the book in which this entry was written might get the information about the pigs and purchase them from Thomas Smith. Thus the Offices of Intelligence became actual exchanges of information about goods and services wanted and for sale in that community.

Some time later the books at the Offices of Intelligence came to hold what we would call today "news items." Perhaps it started on a day when Wm. Jones, shopkeeper, found it impossible to be at his store for a day or two. However it happened, these books served as clearinghouses for news as well as advertising.

III Only two publications were officially allowed during the period of England's history known as the Commonwealth. Mercurius Publicus was one of these, and the other, called The Publick Intelligencer, was started in 1655. Both of these were small format "newsbooks" with pages about 5x7 inches.

The public notice function of these official newsbooks were evident from the very beginning. In the first issue of The Publick Intelligencer, dated "from Monday, October 1, to Monday, October 8, 1655," the first article was headed: "A Declaration of his Highness's Council in Scotland, for Election of Magistrates." It was an official announcement of elections which Oliver Cromwell, Lord Protector of England, had authorized.

This public notice began: "Whereas by an Ordinance of his Highness the Lord Protector of the Commonwealth of England, Scotland and Ireland, and the Dominions thereunto belonging, bearing date the twelfth of April, one thousand six hundred fifty-four, Scotland is United into one Commonwealth with England and therein it appears, that the Shires and Burghs of Scotland, by their Deputies convened at Dalkeith. . . ."

The entire publication is given over to official notices to the public of England and Scotland. All other succeeding numbers of The Publick Intelligencer and its sister publication were devoted primarily to official public notices. Cromwell's decisions in all important matters were made the subject of official notices under the general head of "Advertisement" in these two official newsbooks. After 1665, after a petition from the leaders of a large group of Jewish immigrants for permission to live in England with protection. Cromwell published such an "Advertisement" of his decision. The official public notice was separated, as is done today, from the news announcement of the arrival of the Jews.

IV Entire publications were filled with official public notices, from 1655 on, whenever the King, or his ministers, or the officials of London had important regulations to establish. On July 6, 1665, at the height of the black plague epidemic in London, a special publication (probably without regularity of frequency)—called "The Newses. Published for the Satisfaction and Information of the People. With Privilege."—was put out for the express purpose of establishing regulations governing the burning of infected clothes, furniture and even dwellings.

The Newses was a four-page paper in a format similar to the Court's official London Gazette. Under the heading: ORDERS CONCEIVED AND PUBLISHED BY THE LORD MAYOR OF LONDON, CONCERNING THE INFECTION OF THE PLAGUE, 1665," regulations were given in detail under such subheadings as: "EXAMINERS to be APPOINTED in EVERY PARISH, THE EXAMINER'S OFFICE, WATCHMEN, SEARCHERS, CHIRURGEONS NURSE KEEPERS, NOTICE TO BE GIVEN OF THE SICKNESS, SEQUESTRATION OF THE SICK, AIRING THE STUFF, SHUTTING UP OF THE HOUSE, BURIAL OF THE DEAD, NO INFECTED STUFF TO BE UTTERED, NO PERSON TO BE CONVEYED OUT OF ANY INFECTED HOUSE, EVERY VISITED HOUSE TO BE MARKED, EVERY VISITED HOUSE TO BE WATCHED."

The entire publication was devoted to these plague regulations and they were signed by the Lord Mayor and the Sheriffs of London. The publication's "advertisement" was separated from the official public notices by a rule and a special heading.

V Here is an official public notice printed in a London newspaper of 1679, in paid space, following the usual advertisements:

"These are to give Notice, That the Right Honourable the Lord Maior, and the Commissioners of Surveyors for the City of London, and the Liberties thereof; have constituted and appointed Samuel Potts and Robert Davies, Citizens, to be the General Rakers of the said City and Liberties, and do keep their office in Red Lyon Court, in Watling-street, where any Person or Persons that are desirous to be Employed under them, and Carters and Sweepers of the Streets, may Repair from Eight a Clock in the morning, till twelve a Clock at noon, and from two till six at night, where they may be entertained accordingly: And if any Gardners, Farmers or others will be furnished with any Dung, Soyl or compost, may there agree for it at reasonable rates; and all Gentlemen having private Stables, and all Inholders and Masters of Livery Stables, and all others, are desired to repair thither, for the carrying away of their Dung and Soyl from their respective stables and other places, according to an Act of Common Council for that purpose."

Ads for such common chores as manure collection were not seen in English newspaper of this day. This was not an ad, but an official public notice commanded to be published by the Lord Mayor of London.

Ordinary advertisements became so numerous in English newspapers after 1688 that some papers refused to take any advertising at all, and, in fact, established separate papers to handle ads only. Here is an "Advertisement" from a paper of that era: "An ADVERTISEMENT.

"The Publication of Books, of Medicines, and other such things being remote from the business of a Paper of Intelligence, This is to notify, that we will not charge the Intelligence with Advertisements, unless they be matters of State, but that a Paper of Advertisements will be forthwith Printed apart, and recommended to the Publick by another hand."

A Summary of the Facts Relating To the Origins of Public Notice

1. Public Notice is as old as organized human society. Its origins are shrouded in the mists of antiquity.
2. The Bible records many times when the people were notified to be taxed or to obey some other governmental decree.
3. In ancient times, the Greeks and Romans discussed public affairs in their forums and market places. Few common people, however, had the right to hear, and none the right to participate in, these discussions.
4. The posting of public notices in the city square or market place was necessary in ancient times solely because printing had not been invented. There was no speedy, reliable, convenient, inexpensive way to give public notice such as we have today in the (Continued on Page Six)

Linda Lemons, Johnnie George Marry in Pretty Home Ceremony

Miss Linda Hope Lemons, daughter of Mrs. John Lemons and the late Mr. Lemons, and Johnnie Lee George, son of Mrs. Henrietta George of Clayton, N. M., were united in marriage July 1 at the home of the bride's mother, Minister Tom Posey, pastor of the First Christian Church, officiated.

Double ring vows were exchanged before a mantel decorated with a centerpiece of yellow mums and white tapers and flanked by large baskets of white and yellow mums. Decorations throughout the receiving rooms carried out the bride's chosen colors of white and yellow. Tapers were lighted by Miss Camella Lemons.

The bride's gown of Chantilly lace over satin was fashioned with a fitted bodice, scooped neckline and long sleeves tapering to points at the wrists. Her elbow-length veil of imported French illusion fell from a crown of lace and seed pearls. She carried a bouquet of white feathered carnations atop a white Bible.

The bride was attended by Miss Sue Edwards, who wore a dress of yellow dacron accented by white accessories and a corsage of white carnations.

J. L. Stewart of Clayton, N. M., served as best man.

Following the ceremony, the couple was honored with a reception.

The refreshment table was laid with a lace cloth over yellow satin. Appointments were in crystal and silver. The three-tiered wedding cake, decorated in white with yellow rosebuds, was topped with a miniature bride and groom. Miss Johnnie Lemons served the cake, while Miss Bobbie McBrayer poured punch.

Little Miss Marie George of Clayton, N. M., niece of the groom, registered the guests.

As a traveling costume, Mrs. George chose a two-piece dress of yellow Shantung accented with yellow accessories and the corsage from her wedding bouquet.

The couple will make their home in Amarillo where the groom is employed as manager for Golden Spread Oil Co. The bride, who has been employed in the First State Bank here, has accepted a position in the bookkeeping department of North State Bank, Amarillo.

Bruce Home Scene For Strike Party

The members of the cast of the musical drama, "The Music Man", experienced several "firsts". This production was their first performance in the new community building, their first programs containing their pictures, their first direction under Kerry Moore, and their first complete midnight dinner for the strike party. Heretofore, Cokes, sandwiches, and cookies had been the bill of fare.

After the show on Friday night, the students and many of their parents enjoyed on the spacious patio of the Glenn Bruce home, 1104 North Eighteenth Street, a delectable dinner of hot fried chicken, potato salad, baked beans, condiments, iced Cokes, and brownies, all of which had been prepared by the mothers of the cast members.

Autographing programs and reminiscing about the practices and performances, singing snatches of the songs to the accompaniment of the record of "The Music Man", and dancing employed the time of the young people; while Glenn Bruce served Cokes with both hands, Bob Douthitt and Les Sims complained about the bruised fingers they suffered while building the bridge. Olton Pate moaned that three children in one show make too big a task for papa, Mrs. Bruce made repeated trips to the oven for more chicken, and one hundred and twenty people relaxed in happy fellowship on the candle-light patio.

In addition to the students, their sponsors, and the parents, guests included Mr. and Mrs. Gene Murry of Canyon; Mr. and Mrs. Noel Bruce and Dale and Debra of Amarillo, Mrs. Jack Leath of Houston; Mr. and Mrs. Tom Hulsey, Lynn, and Roy of Fort Worth; Connie Judd, California; Marjorie Graham, Amarillo; Mike Spencer, Paducah; Terry Jones and Norma Swinney, Perryton.

Local Director Comments On 'The Music Man'

By VIRGINIA BROWDER

Judging from the attention, laughter, and applause of the audience at the second night's showing of "The Music Man", this musical presentation by The Theban Society and The Cyclone Band was well received. Nevertheless, few people realize the tedious planning, long hours of rehearsals, toil, sweat (and maybe tears), that went into the staging and performance of this well-rounded production.

When we consider that the players and musicians, amateurs all, with the adult sponsorship of Mrs. Guthrie, Mr. Bradley and the McKowns were able (in six short weeks) to "whip into shape" a musical such as "The Music Man" we glory in their ambition, hard work, and talents.

Well cast to begin with, the staging, costuming, and acting would be a credit to a much larger school. The singing, capering, and characterizations on stage were well supported by a small but capable group of musicians. Most of the band members had acting parts in the show, but those left in the orchestra pit carried on nobly.

The scenery, painted by Mrs. Lynn McKown, assisted by Dr. Rose, was most effective. The eighteen changes of scenery, quite an undertaking for an amateur group, was efficiently handled and quickly done. The beautiful proscenium and concert curtains with the woodland backdrop and the cyclorama made a proper setting for an excellently staged musical.

The Community Center, since its opening in April, seems to have served adequately for entertainments of all kinds. Certainly, the citizens of Memphis can be justly proud of their municipal auditorium and the most recent smash-hit performance there of "The Music Man"! Hats off and bouquets to its players and producers!

sprinkle the water out of sprinkler nozzels. Since the pipe must be moved frequently, a hard and heavy task, the farmer must have additional labor. Also, it is a must that the water pressure in the pipe be kept up so that an adequate area is covered.

There have been several types of self-moving irrigation systems in use. One of these is in use by Paul Thompson. The wheel move system can be operated by one man and has 60-foot spacing between each wheel. Sprinklers are 30 feet apart on the main line and the system has two drag sprinklers between each wheel. The system is moved by its five-horse power engine at a rate of 12 feet a minute any direction desired because the wheels will turn a complete circle.

This particular system has 72 sprinklers that deliver six gallons of water per minute at each sprinkler. The system can be moved from one to four times a day depending on the needs of the soils and crops.

Jimmy Hill of Memphis has another unique system in use now. He has five small wells that pump into a central reservoir, using electric pumps. The total delivery of these wells is about 1,000 gallons per minute. Jimmy then pumps a six-inch main from the central reservoir with a fuel powered motor into the sprinkler irrigation system.

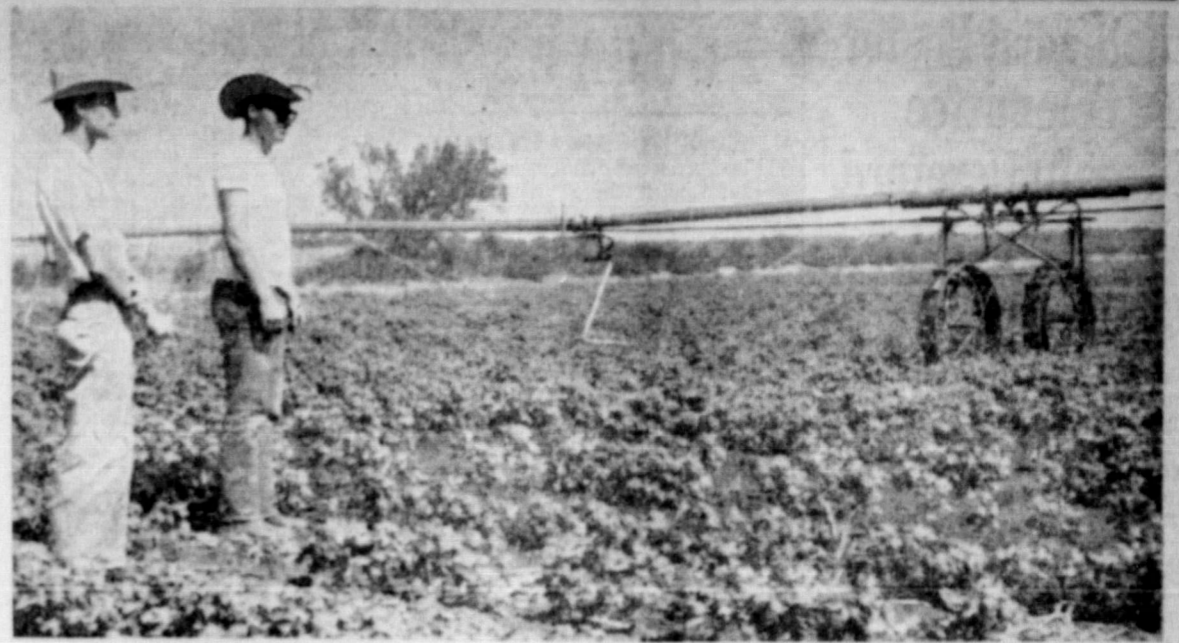

This is one way of using several small wells to go a good job of irrigation water management, SCS technicians said.

T. H. Gattis of Brice uses a row irrigation system. Water from two wells is pumped into one main ditch. This water is then put into the rows from the main ditch with siphon tubes. The amount of water that goes down each row is determined by the number and size of siphon tubes.

The specifications of an irrigation system to fit a particular farm is a complicated problem, and sometimes the irrigator may need the services of a specialist in irrigation design. In the Hall County SCD, technicians of SCS are available for this work.

One problem encountered by Hall County farmers in the spring of the year is too much rainfall too fast, causing run-off water to cut through their fields.

Grassed waterways are one

may be a natural drain going through the farm that carries off water from the farm and water above the farm.

By shaping and smoothing these natural drainage ways, they can mean of disposing of outside water in the Hall County Soil Con-be made into a good waterway.

T. U. Hughes, whose farm is near Lakeview, has constructed such a waterway which carries a drainage of 1,100 acres. It has a 134 foot flat bottom and has been sprigged to Midland bermudagrass.

The waterway in addition to providing erosion control provides grazing for livestock and can be mowed for hay production.

SCS technicians can assist in designing these waterways. Cost-share assistance can be obtained through the Agricultural Conservation Program of the Great Plains Conservation Program.

WATERWAY—Shown above are Cyril Keith, SCS technician, and T. U. Hughes, a farmer near Lakeview, examining a grassed waterway on the Hughes farm. The waterway carries a drainage of 1,100 acres and has a 134-foot flat bottom. It is sprigged to Midland bermudagrass and Hughes uses it for livestock grazing. Before the waterway was constructed, a sandy ditch caused much erosion, Hughes said.

RESERVOIR—Shown above is the irrigation reservoir located on the Jimmy Hill farm near Memphis. He has five small wells that pump into a central reservoir with a total delivery of 1,000 gallons per minute. From the reservoir he pumps a six-inch main to irrigate fields.

LONE STAR AGRICULTURE
BASED BY THE TEXAS DEPARTMENT OF AGRICULTURE

Advantages of Soil Testing.
One crop year just behind us farmers are already taking steps for starting the fall over again.

Important step that can be taken now is to send soil samples to laboratories for analysis. This helps assure the farmer the best results from his soil. And early testing gives time to place orders for proper types of fertilizer.

State and federal laboratories, as well as private ones, offer this service to the farmer. Those who get a diagnosis of their soil can consult their county agent for the location of the laboratory. The test can result in richer yields on less areas but a composite sample from cores or slices of soil taken from 15 to 20 different spots of a field is usually the rule. Small areas that differ in color, texture, or drainage should be avoided or sampled separately.

Soil testing should be considered on a crop rotation basis where it is possible. Sampling soils every three to five years, or once during a rotation cycle is sufficient to maintain an adequate mineral level and make necessary adjustments in fertilization practices.

The value of maintaining a healthy soil cannot be overestimated. Just like humans, soil can get "sick" due to deficiencies in its "diet." When planning crops for a certain plot of land, the farmer should know what that soil needs in the way of proper fertilizers. The initial cost will be returned in better yields.

Keeping tax records throughout the year usually proves beneficial at tax filing time.

Selecting Boot Tops

Don't wear excessively high top boots when unnecessary. The added weight can slow you down perceptibly on an arduous hunt. Also, they put additional pressure on the tendon back of the ankle.

For usual wear a seven-inch top, or even a pair of high-top shoes, is ample. Use high-top boots only in swampy, snake-infested areas.

Rust Remover

When you're on an extended hunting trip rust is likely to appear on your gun barrel, due to constant exposure.

Such spots easily can be removed by dipping in oil a piece of tough cardboard (or an empty shotgun shell) then rubbing it in some fine abrasive such as dust or powdered charcoal. Next, rub the rust spots with this made-on-the-spot gun cleaner.

Killing A Snake

When shooting a snake, don't aim at the head.

Just weave your gun barrel back and forth. The snake will follow the barrel, putting himself on target for your shot.

Well—anyway it's supposed to work.

This wing, now under construction also, will provide 10 additional resident rooms and the permanent kitchen and dining room for the well care building.

The admissions committee of the board reports all rooms of the first unit of the well care building occupied and all of the rooms in the addition under construction reserved. The hospital rooms are almost all reserved, also.

The third and final wing of the well care building is being planned and when built will bring the value of the home to approximately a million dollars and the capacity of both buildings to 84. Ten duplex apartments for employees of the home are being added this summer, also.

Plans are being formulated for the open house program for these new facilities early in September.

Historical Orgins—

5. The earliest "news book," Mercurius Gallo-Belgicus, was useless as a vehicle of public notice because it was published only every two years.

6. "Offices of Intelligence" and "Offices of Information" sprung up on the continent (date unknown) to serve as a central exchange of information about things for sale and things wanted.

7. These Offices of Intelligence soon came to be central exchanges of news and public affairs as well.

8. The first English news sheets, called "Corantos," had nothing in them but news about foreign wars. They were irregularly published.

9. "Newsbooks" published regularly, usually once a week, came into being about 1641, when the reign of King Charles I was succeeded by the parliament of the Commonwealth.

10. Throughout most of the Commonwealth period, only two such newsbooks were allowed to exist. Mercurius Publicus and The Public Intelligencer, sometimes censored by James Milton, became the two official newsbooks of Cromwell's government. They were devoted mainly to official notices.

11. King Charles II, when he and his court fled the Black Death in London in 1665, established the Oxford Gazette, later called the London Gazette. It was the Court's newspaper and for quite a while carried only official Court notices. Later it printed official public notices for the officials of London and for some other parts of the kingdom.

12. Public notices became common in English newspapers after 1588.

13. In some cases entirely separate newspapers were established exclusively to publish public notices and advertisements.

14. All of these public notices, from the beginning, were set in small type; usually the regular body type of the newspaper. Italics were used for purposes of emphasis.

15. Public notices came to be set apart from the rest of the paper. They soon were separated even from other "Advertisements." In many papers they were set in a different size or kind of type.

16. "Required" was the word used to designate public notices ordered to be published by English officials. This word was not used in ordinary advertising nor in news articles.

17. Very early, the public notices were departmentalized, that is, they were set off from the rest of the paper, most often placed on the last of four pages, and run below a cut-off rule.

18. It is significant that the public notices ran in advertising space, not mixed in with the news, at least as early as 1690.

19. No illustrative materials were ever used in connection with public notices in English papers, such as were used in commercial advertisements.

20. Public notices in American newspapers followed the English style. Such notices were common as early as 1700 and newspapers from 1721 on were seldom without some of these public notices.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

July 21, 1964

Mr. J. Clude Wells, Editor
The Memphis Democrat
Memphis, Texas
Dear Claude:

We appreciate so much the help you have given the 325 boys now making their home with us by reprinting the editorial we carried in the "Boys Ranch Roundup", "Nothing to do", and for sending one issue of your fine paper to us.

Our boys are quite busy this summer with their various work, athletic and recreational programs. We have had a number of them traveling this summer, some going to Ringgold, Louisiana, for the BMA encampment there, all of them going on their summer trips, and participating in the various parades and livestock shows around the country.

Ninety-eight of our boys are in summer school this year in order to catch up on the grades they need to graduate from our high school later on. So many of our boys are way behind in their school work when they come to us, and we try to emphasize the necessity of their getting a high school education while they are with us, and these ninety-eight boys who are taking extra work this summer have volunteered to do so and we are proud of them for that.

Thank you again for reprinting the editorial in your paper, and I hope it will be possible for you to visit the Ranch one day in the near future and have a meal with all of our boys.

With all good wishes to you, I am

Sincerely yours,
Cal.
Cal Farley.

Mr. and Mrs. Elmont Branigan and Mary Lou Simmons visited Mr. and Mrs. Freddie Smith in Hitchcock, Okla., over the week-end. Mary Lou stayed for a few weeks visit with her grandparents.

Electricity Is Helpful Tool For Hall Farmers

Electricity is probably one of the most helpful tools on the farm in Hall County. However, it can be one of the most dangerous if it is abused. Farm Safety Week is being observed this week.

Today, electric power is distributed to nearly every farm in Hall County and in Texas. The power lines which bring it to the farm seem harmless, and they are if left alone by inexperienced people.

Each year, a number of farmers are killed in the Panhandle because they get a joint of irrigation pipe too close to a power line. The pipe doesn't have to make contact with the line because the high voltage can produce an arc several feet long, says W. B. Hooser, Hall County Agent.

Other farm equipment which can get tangled in high voltage lines might include tractor loaders, augers, elevators, cranes or booms and well digging equipment, says the Hall County Agent.

Remember when working around these lines, they carry 2,400 volts or more. Use caution in crossing them, and always look ahead and above you when working in an area with high voltage power lines.

Are you climbing up in the world? If so, do it safely, Hooser said.

Here are a few safety tips to heed when working with ladders. Never climb higher than two steps from the top. If you still are not high enough, get a longer ladder. Make sure the ladder is in good condition. Check to see that all joints are tight and there are no cracks or breaks before you start to climb.

Place ladder in a firm position and use side rails when climbing. Never lean off balance to reach work; instead, move ladder.

By following these and other common sense rules, a ladder can serve as a useful tool on many jobs, but with careless use can prove as dangerous as any tool on the farm.

Mrs. Sam Moore is staying with her grandchildren in Childress while her daughter, Mrs. I. D. Russell, is recovering from surgery in the Highland General Hospital in Pampa.

About Your HEALTH

A weekly public service feature from the Texas State Department of Health.

AUSTIN—Without the sun we would all die. But use of sun, like anything, can be carried to extremes.

The sun is necessary for growth processes of all—man, animal and vegetable. Sunshine is a source of vitamin D, as most people know. But what apparently is misunderstood is that ordinarily healthy people can get all the D vitamin they need through routine activities such as hanging out the family wash, mowing the lawn or walking to the store.

As some of our senior citizens will tell you, the skin hue of choice fifty years or so ago was a fragile, pale white. One elderly Texas resident tells how she never went to the barn or field without protection of a sunbonnet. And she tells of spending hours trying to bleach her skin with lemon juice and buttermilk.

Today, the skin hue of choice by many is a golden brown. And many a person sweats out a frequent sun bath to attain a coat of bronze.

Overdoing a good thing—trying to acquire a suntan in a day's time—is where the problem begins.

The sun, as a heat source, can give the body first, second and even third degree burns. The medical term for sunburn is "erythema solaris." It's the ultraviolet light in sun rays which does the damage. Since clouds don't remove all ultraviolet rays, it is possible to get burned even on overcast days in mid-summer.

There are other dangers, too. Ultraviolet is associated in many minds with cancer. The rays stimulate cells to divide, and sometimes the cells "forget" to stop, thus becoming cancerous. It's likely, they say, that this could happen from any ultraviolet source—either the sun or sun lamps. Of course, only a person subjected constantly to large amounts of ultra violet is in danger. For example, farmers who work under sunlight are frequent victims of skin cancer.

Ultraviolet may also harm the eyes—even when they are closed. The skin of the eyelids is the thinnest on the whole body, and the light can go right through causing sunburn of the eyes. Ordinary sunglasses offer some protection, but a thicker material—like cotton—offers more protection.

Back in the sun, if you like, but do it with discretion.

Mr. and Mrs. J. D. Wallace of Fresno, Calif., and Mrs. Cora Ryan of Pottsville, Calif., are visiting here this week with Mrs. J. H. Grimsley and Mr. and Mrs. W. G. Young in Lakeview.

JACKSON'S LAUNDRY

Mr. and Mrs. Sam Jackson

Game calling is one of the most thrilling of all hunting sports.

Probably the most fascinating time to call nature's killers is at night. Foxes, coyotes and bobcats have a way of comin'-a'-runnin' in the darkness that makes the sport one of fast action and excitement.

Although predators can be called throughout the day and night, they are more susceptible after nightfall since, by nature, they are nocturnal prowlers and are out under the protection of darkness to seek food. The dying-rabbit squeals of a predator call lures them into believing that a quick and easy meal beckons at the source of the squalling. When a predator decides to answer the means business, call, he comes quickly, and anyone can learn to call predators with a minimum of practice at home. Commercial calls put the sport within the reach of anyone's ability.

Basically, there are two types of predator calls. One simulates the cries of a rabbit in distress, the other imitates the cry of a crippled bird.

On most predators the former works best. But sometimes the latter is more effective. Wounded-bird call is more appealing to raccoons.

Report From Washington

By WALTER ROGERS
Representative, 18th
Congressional District

Science and Technology
Science and technology have transformed life in the States in the past 100 years. They have helped us achieve the highest living standard in the world. As we all recognize, the development in science and technology continues to be amazingly swift.

In the past 100 years, the farm population required to feed the Nation has decreased from 8 out of 10 to less than one out of 10. Through mechanization and improved production techniques, the average life of Americans has increased from 35 years to 70 years because of advances in the prevention and cure of disease and in nutrition and sanitation. All the food products available today, 66 percent did not exist 10 years ago.

More than 5,000 companies are engaged in missile-aero-space research or production—a development that has led to the development of more than 3,000 products or techniques in the enterprise. Scientific progress today not only is an essential factor in determining the character of tomorrow's civilization, it is vital in determining the safety and security of the United States and Free World. For that reason the United States Government is deeply interested in research and development programs. In 1940, Americans spent $74 million on scientific activities directed by the Federal government. In the current fiscal year, research and development expenditures will be $15 billion. Most of this is being spent by three agencies heavily engaged in matters directly related to national defense. In Fiscal Year 1963, the research and development obligations of these three agencies are as follows: Department of Defense $7.7 billion, National Aeronautics and Space Administration $3.7 billion, Atomic Energy Commission $1.5 billion. Of all the funds spent in research and development, 75 percent is in industry, 8 percent in universities, 15 percent within the Government itself.

According to the National Science Foundation, about 2.7 million Americans are working in science and technology—3.6 percent of the civilian labor force.

A fundamental constitutional responsibility of the Congress is appropriating funds wisely. If Congress is to appropriate wisely in scientific fields, it must have a sound understanding of what is to be accomplished and what the Nation's research priorities should be. Because of the Constitutional Obligation, only Congress can make these decisions. It is a job that cannot be delegated to experts not directly responsible to the electorate, although Congress must depend on the sage counsel of scientists, men in industry and in the Government's executive branch, and other citizens who are well qualified to offer advice. Because Federal budget projections indicate that our defense responsibilities will require increasing, not decreasing, expenditures in science and technology, I have been pleased that several important steps have been taken in the 88th Congress to enable members of the House and Senate to serve more effectively in this regard. Congress must be prepared to make sound decisions, mindful of the need to effect all possible economies.

I very much enjoy my associations with men and women of the scientific community. They are indeed dedicated citizens. I was greatly privileged to be invited to address, on July 18, the Amarillo Chapter of the American Association for the Advancement of Science, meeting in Amarillo.

We must never overlook the past accomplishments of lone scientists in their laboratories pursuing objectives in basic research—seeking entirely new processes and data without known applications. Michael Faraday in the last century developed the magnetic induction coil during his kind of inquiry, and I'm sure you can recall a number of other similar milestones in science. The magnetic induction coil led to the foundation of our new electrical industry. Someone asked Faraday what possible use the little device was. "Well, what use is a newborn baby?" asked Faraday.

Salt was the first and has remained the most continuously produced mineral in Texas. per year.

President Lyndon B. Johnson has issued a proclamation calling on the people of the nation to observe the week beginning July 19, 1964, as National Farm Safety Week. He has urged all persons and organizations, particularly those working in agriculture, to unite in a strong and purposeful effort to reduce farm accidents on the farm, home, rural highways to a minimum.

The number of people living on the farm is decreasing but the rate of fatal accidents on the farm is going up. Tractors, farm machinery and pesticides are safe if you use them safely.

There are some pesticides that should be watched when used around the farm. They are arsenic and arsenic compounds, cyanide and cyanide compounds, DDT, Nicotine and Nicotine compounds, phosphorous and phosphorous compounds. (Phosphorous in rat pois-ons accounted for 210 deaths in the past few years.) Always use label directions and keep pesticides out of the reach of children.

One third of all fatal tractor accidents occur on public roads when moving farm equipment. Use red warning flags in the daytime and lights and red reflectors at night to alert fast moving traffic when you move equipment on public roads.

Now is the time to inspect your farm buildings, farm equipment, farm land and also your work habits. When you have done this, you'll help protect lives . . . your own and others.

Let us all support the objectives of farm safety week to promote greater farm safety through-

Fresh Bread On Pack Trips
Bread is especially difficult to carry on pack trips. It is bulky and easily mashed.

Save space by taking the slices from the original package and inserting waxed paper between the slices. Return the bread to the original wrapper and press down to one-third its original size. This process will also make bread less liable to crush.

WORKMEN'S COMPENSATION

PLUS OR MINUS . . .

For you?

For your employer?

For your community?

A PLUS . . . FOR YOU . . .

Workmen's compensation insurance provides medical and hospital care for injuries sustained while pursuing duties for your employer. It also provides weekly compensation while you are disabled, and death benefits to your family if an injury is fatal.

A PLUS . . . FOR YOUR EMPLOYER . . .

Workmen's compensation is considered part of the normal operating expenses of your employer. It also helps him to rehabilitate injured employees and provide assistance to their families in the event of a fatal accident.

A PLUS . . . FOR YOUR COMMUNITY . . .

Workmen's compensation insurance as a valuable aid to the city, town or community where you live. Without its benefits many injured workers would become indigent, and many of them would of necessity become public wards.

A MINUS . . . FOR YOU . . .

When accidents increase, and padded and fraudulent claims are filed, your employer's rate must increase to take care of the additional expense. This means less profits to him, fewer salary increases and bonuses for you, and less job opportunities.

A MINUS . . . FOR YOUR EMPLOYER . . .

When rate increases force his operating expenses up, he must either charge more for his products or services, cut his work force, reduce his payroll by wage cuts, or go out of business.

A MINUS . . . FOR YOUR COMMUNITY . . .

When workmen's compensation claims and jury awards increase in quantity and amount over the normal experience of comparable communities, your community is not only threatened with the loss of existing industry, but it becomes increasingly difficult to attract new industry. A new industry desiring to locate new facilities in a community checks utilities, tax structure, available labor force, number of insurance claims and litigation experience. The insurance climate is often the deciding factor, because local industry can be priced out of the competitive market by abnormal insurance costs.

KEEP WORKMEN'S COMPENSATION A WORKING PLUS

for you . . .

for your employer . . .

for your community . . .

Reduce accidents by knowing and observing safety rules. Discourage fellow employees from filing unwarranted or fraudulent claims.

Encourage fellow employees and your employer to use rehabilitation services.

REMEMBER! THE JOB YOU SAVE . . . MAY BE YOUR OWN!

GTC Installs New Cable To Add Service

Installation of additional cable facilities in Memphis by General Telephone Company of the Southwest has been completed, according to Wayne L. Goodrum, district manager.

The new cable will provide facilities to those areas of Memphis where there is new residential construction as well as other sections of town which are requiring more telephone service.

Telephone users are requiring a higher grade of service all the time," Goodrum stated, "and we are trying to provide it."

Approximately 3000 man-hours were used to complete this job, the telephone company representative said, and already has provided service to about fifty telephone customers.

crat's special edition of May 21 for special mention.

I received a letter this week from Cal Farley of Boys Ranch thanking us for re-printing an editorial from the Boys Ranch Roundup. This editorial was selected by Editor Bill Combs, who handles most of the editorial material. We would like to thank Cal for his thoughtfulness in mailing us a letter.

Prior to 1928, when The Democrat absorbed the old Hall County Herald by purchase, this slogan was printed in that venerable newspaper: "Memphis—Best City Under 10,000 on the Denver Road." I wonder if the time is approaching when our city should begin thinking of a similar slogan? In fact, the time is NOW!

The National Aeronautics and Space Administration disclosed it is thinking of two devices to assist American astronauts to get around after they have landed on the moon.

The world's food supply must be tripled by the year 2000 for the population to have enough proper food. A Cornell development expert suggests that farmers of the underdeveloped nations be taught better agricultural methods.

President Johnson received more reports indicating the nation's economy is fairly bursting with health, and he lost no time in making them public. It was the second spate of rosy figures from the White House in less than a week.

Not very long ago, quite a lot of studies were made concerning cigarette smoking among the population. They were given a jolt when it was announced that smoking caused lung cancer. A study has been made recently by a well-known doctor, and the female smokers also are sure to get a jolt along about 1977, the prominent cancer researcher predicts. There will be as much statistical evidence to incriminate cigarettes as a cause of lung cancer in women as their is to prove the case in men today.

There are more than 60 peaks over 25,000 feet high in the Himalayan Mountains.
