Commissioners Court Mon. Abolishes Newlin Election Precinct No. Two

The Hall County Commissioners Court met Monday morning for their regular monthly session, and among the items of business handled, passed an order abolishing Election Precinct No. 2 of Hall County, effective as of Feb. 1, 1965.

Precinct No. 2 is the Newlin election box. Since the order does not take effect until February of next year, the order does not affect the general election, scheduled for November of this year, it was explained.

In defining the boundaries, the court ordered that all voters of Precinct No. 2, after the effective date, who reside east of Highway 287 and north of Main Street in Memphis (if the streets were extended) will vote at Box No. 1 in Memphis. Those residing west of Highway 287 will vote in Box No. 13, Memphis.

Last year the court abolished Eli and Plaska election precincts at the August meeting.

In other action by the court, the tax rate for 1964 was set at the same rate as last year. It was set at $.95 per $100 valuation.

The 95 cents is divided into the following: 40 cents to the general fund, 24 cents to the road and bridge fund, 2 cents to the jury fund, 11 cents to the courthouse and jail fund, and 18 cents to the hospital fund.

The court approved the standard deductions for paying taxes early: three per cent in October, two per cent in November, and one per cent in December.

Courty Judge McMurry told the court about a letter he received concerning the resignation of the government trapper who has been trapping predatory animals in Hall County. His resignation was dated Aug. 1, 1964, the letter stated.

EDITORIAL

Safety Legislation To Save Lives!

Law enforcement officials, editors, legislators, and the general public all are concerned with the appalling toll of traffic accidents, but what to do about the situation is another matter.

Many have advocated that wrecks are not caused by people who do not know how to drive but by those "idiots" who don't care. They advocate that grounding the habitual lawbreaker is more important than any drivers' test that could be devised.

Others claim that only drunks and kids cause wrecks. (That is they do until they are involved in one themselves.)

We feel that drivers tests are essential, and serve a good purpose, but alone, they do not guarantee traffic safety. And, with the steady rise in Texas' toll of accidents and deaths, something must be done.

Governor John Connally is planning to introduce a four-point proposal to the 59th Texas Legislature convening in January, 1965. These were decided upon by the Texas Traffic Safety Council and officials of the Texas Safety Assn. They have been defined as "Texas Priority Traffic Safety Needs."

If the four proposals are passed, a revision of the present obsolete driver licensing law will be seen. Also, it is recommended that improved police supervision of traffic on rural highways be undertaken by improving the salary and benefits for Dept. of Public Safety Patrolmen to attract and keep good men and by increasing the number of Patrolmen by 200 each biennium to an eventual strength of 1,800 to 2,000 Patrolmen.

The third point would be to assure competence of new drivers by including approved high school driver education courses in the Foundation School Program. The last point deals with improved administration of justice and public respect for traffic laws through the creation of modern Traffic Courts of Record as recommended by the American Bar Association.

Public support of these proposals is being asked for because it is sincerely felt that enactment will save many lives and avoid much suffering and enormous economic loss in Texas.

It's Going To Cost Money

We once took our television set into the Foote Appliance Center for some repairs, and C. W. Foote looked it over before solemnly declaring, "There's nothing wrong with this set that money won't cure."

The educational system in Texas is in the same shape.

We are getting ready to spend quite a bit of money on education in this state, both on the higher education level and in secondary schools.

If we are going to give our

Texas youngsters the kind of education they must have, we are going to have to dig down and pay for it.

Governor Connally's Committee on Education Beyond the High School has approved a report that will shake a lot of people up, particularly those who don't want to spend any money.

A real flood of young people is pouring from Texas high schools and trying to get into colleges. More and more are finding the "no vacancy" sign posted and they are having a hard time indeed getting into school.

And it is going to get a whole lot worse. The real flood of college students hasn't hit yet, but will immerse the colleges by 1970.

The governor's committee recommends that an expanded junior college program be started so that students can get the first two years of college close to home, and advises also that a revised emphasis be put on vocational courses so that a youngster who gets only two years of college

ORM — Having always form, manner, or degree; or variable. (also)

Dress of a particular style or fashion worn by persons in the same service, order, etc."

This is how Webster's dictionary defines the word "uniform," and it is used in this context by the advocates of uniformity in publication laws. Actually, however, those who advocate reducing all public notices to three insertions or to the ultimate in ridiculousness, one insertion, which was recently hailed as a "miracle" in Kentucky) are not really concerned about uniformity; they seek to establish an irreducible minimum which shall become the law of 50 states. It does not matter how much these states actually differ from each other in such significant things as geographical location, natural and acquired resources, population, form of government, establishment of courts, variety and profusion of statutes, cost of living and variations in costs of publication production.

To seek to impose such a restrictive measure on the people of all states is, of course, to disregard the rights of these states—and the rights of the people in whom all sovereignty resides. The people of the other 49 states, and the intelligent legislators and publishers who have guided them in matters of legislation, are surely competent to enact public notice laws that are fair and just, as they have in all other matters. No state needs to import laws or legal minds; and every self-respecting legislator will oppose, with vehemence and logic, every attempt to impose upon his people any law which is not intelligently conceived to fit the precise set of circumstances in his state.

In a free society such as ours, if all of the people's actions were reduced to one rule and regimen, we would suddenly, and too late, awaken to the fact that we no longer were a free society at all.

revise almost everything in life.

III
The laws of the several states are far from uniform.

Laws regarding marriage and divorce show great variations. There is no waiting period after the license is obtained in most states, but in one the couple cannot be married until the sixth day. Waiting periods before the license will be issued from none to five days and a three-day wait is very common. With parents' consent a male may be married at age 15, 16, 17, 18 or 20, and one state actually has no stipulated minimum age. Girls can get married in some states with parents' consent at 14, although most of them require the bride to be 15, and many 16.

In recent years a blood test has been required in most states and yet a number still do not demand it. Other variations in the procedures for marriage are numerous, and touch such matters as special court permission to be married, or to waive the waiting period. As for marriage ceremonies, they are as varied as the knowledge, talents and religious beliefs of the persons who are authorized by law to perform the ceremony. Certainly there is no uniformity in these matters.

Divorce may be granted for many reasons, and each state has set up its own legislative regulations. In one state residence of only 60 days is required; two others ask 90 days; two require six weeks; four stipulate six months; 32 states have a residence requirement of one year; the rest of them require two years to five years. Parties may remarry immediately in 36 states, but some require waiting periods before remarriage of 60 days; three months four months, six months, one year, two years or three years. Strangely enough, neither the number of divorces granted, nor the number of marriages in the several states seem to be closely coordinated with either the marriage or the divorce law waiting periods.

IV
In the past we have left wisely to the publishing profession and the state legislature in each state the determination of the number of times a certain public notice shall run. In most states, publishers and lawyers cooperatively determine how many times a given public notice shall be published. In the final analysis, the publisher's training and years of experience qualify him as the expert to determine how many insertions of a public notice are needed to produce maximum results. The number of insertions has never been arbitrarily fixed, but, on the contrary, has always been determined by the seriousness of the matter, the amount of time needed for due process of law, the time needed to inform all parties accurately and adequately and the time necessary to insure fairness and justice to all.

What constitutes a "good and sufficient notice" can be decided.

Proponents of the "uniformity" idea for all public notices have been loud in enunciating two contradictory contentions:

1. That the real reason public notice laws require three, six or more publications is to make the newspaperman more money; and
2. That rates can be adjusted so that he would lose no money if fewer insertions were required.

These two claims are equally false and equally ridiculous. Neither of them should be considered in deciding how many times a notice needs to be run. If you will read Article No. 6 in this series you will see that rates for printing public notices have not been fairly and properly adjusted for rising costs in the past 30 years. Either it is "good and sufficient" notice to print a public notice a certain number of times or it isn't. And it doesn't make a bit of difference whether the printers, or the newspapermen, or the lawyers or the money-lenders make money or not. Never forget this. The only consideration—absolutely the only one—in determining what constitutes "good and sufficient notice" is the question of how fairness and justice can be insured in these legal matters.

V
How many times, then, should a "Public Notice" be published. Is once enough. Twice? Three times? Four times? Six times? Ten times?

Who can say without reference

Legal Notice

to a specific legal action.

Abraham Lincoln often joked about his long, gangling frame, was once asked: "How long do you think a man's legs out to be, Abe?"

Lincoln's answer is a classic: "Long enough to reach from his body to the ground."

How many times should a public notice be published? Enough times, obviously to make certain that all parties to a legal matter have had adequate notice, adequate time in which to do whatever has to be done, adequate time to send notice to distant persons who are affected, adequate time to prepare answers, legal papers and other matters necessary to see that justice is done to all parties. This is, and must continue to be, the American Way.

What constitutes a "good and sufficient notice," a phrase that is so often encountered in public notice literature, seems to be interpreted according to one's circumstances. To the man whose property is about to be lost, every moment in time is a sunrise of hope for saving it. To him who stands to gain by the forced sale of a property, every moment until the sale is wearisome. Whether a shoe pinches depends upon who wears it.

Is it "due and sufficient notice" to print all public notices three times or less? If it is, this small space filled with 6- or 8-point type must be able to accomplish greater wonders than have ever been performed in the communications industry.

Baldwin-Chambless Vows Read in Tyler

From Tyler comes an announcement of the recent marriage of Miss Linda Aileen Baldwin, daughter of Dr. and Mrs. R. E. G. Baldwin of Tyler, to Joe Howell Chambless, son of Mr. and Mrs. Howell Chambless, also of Tyler. They were married on Saturday evening, Aug. 1, in Green Acres Baptist Church in Tyler.

The Rev. Lester Collins officiated for the double-ring ceremony in a setting decorated with fan-shaped arrangements of pink gladioli and chrysanthemums and garlands of greenhouse simlac.

Music for the wedding was provided by Neil Davis, organist, and Mrs. Richard Highfill, soloist.

Attire of bride
Given in marriage by her father, the bride wore a gown of ivory silk peau de soie topped with a scalloped jacket of re-embroidered French lace. The controlled skirt was accented by a back bow and fullness which fell into a slight train. Her tiered veil fell from a peau de soie bow. She carried a bouquet of gardenias, stephanotis and English ivy.

Wearing a pink linen floor-length dress designed with a scooped neck, empire waist and back fullness, Miss Margaret Marsh served as maid of honor. She carried a cascade bouquet of pink pompons chrysanthemums interspersed with English ivy.

Bridesmaids were Misses Patricia Baldwin of Dallas, Deanne Johanson of Montvale, N. J., Janie Roth of Brownsville and Judy Price of Tyler. Miss Susan Chambless, sister of the bridegroom, served as junior bridesmaid. Their dresses and flowers were identical to those of the maid of honor.

Jon Van Orden was best man. Ushers were Robert McBee, Bob Heaton and Edward Bobo, all of Tyler, Charles Haymore of San Antonio, Bill Van Nostrand of El Paso and John Anderson of Lufkin.

Reception
A reception followed in the ballroom of Willow Brook Country Club. The table was covered with a white pleated organdy cloth. An arrangement of pink stock, gladioli, asters and chrysanthemums in a silver epergne flanked by silver candelabra with pink tapers, decorated the table. Fan-shaped arrangements of pink flowers were placed at vantage points throughout the ball room.

Proceeding the wedding, a number of pre-nuptial parties were given for Mrs. Chambless.

For a wedding trip to New Orleans, La., the bride chose for travel an emerald green raw silk suit, alligator accessories and a gardenia corsage.

The bride, who is the granddaughter of the late Mr. and Mrs. A. Baldwin of Memphis and a niece of Bryon Baldwin and Mrs. T. L. Rouse, is a spring graduate of Southern Methodist University where she was a member of Chi Omega. She was a Lady-in-Waiting in the 1961 Rose Festival.

The bridegroom will graduate from Southern Methodist University in August. He is a member of Kappa Alpha fraternity. The newlyweds are at home in Dallas.

A NEW ROLE FOR COTTON

Longer hotter summers and warmer winters in Texas have brought an increased need for more cool cotton fabrics. With the first "blue norther" hitting in late November, cotton has become more of a clothing king the year round.

What has cotton done to measure up to its new role? Texas and federal research teams are constantly seeking additional uses for our increased cotton production. The versatility of this plant becomes more evident every year as new discoveries are made in the laboratory.

Stretch cotton, a new fabric used in women's summer suits, between-season dresses, sportswear and many other garments, "gives" without bagging at the elbow and knee. The new stretch cotton retains its comfortable attractive texture.

Permanently pleated or creased wash-and-wear cotton has made light of the housewife's laundering chores. The permanently creased cotton fabric used in men's slacks keeps a sharp "just-pressed" look throughout the day. And the men owe cotton another vote of thanks for its appearance in all sports coats which have become a fashion rage have made the summer and autumn days more bearable for the suit-wearers in the family. Mother appreciates the permanently pleated cottons that keep the children cool and crisp while traveling.

Scientists have also learned that cotton fabrics can be provided with a "built-in safety factor" which opens the door to many more opportunities undreamed of just a few years ago. A new flame-resistant cotton has been developed which is used in missile fuel handlers' suits, hospitals and firemen's coats. The flame-retardant material has a promising future in draperies, slipcovers, and bedding for safety-conscious parents.

The new cotton fabrics designed for comfort and safety as well as attractiveness have added a number of new conveniences for the homemaker while at the same time increasing the wearing life of the garment.

The wise purchaser will follow a few simple tips when shopping for the new cotton fabrics. Always read the label for information on fiber content and cleaning instructions. Check the manufacturer's guarantee for color-fastness and shrinkage. Select material that is firm and closely woven. Happy cotton wearing!

IT'S THE LAW in Texas

On The Witness Stand By far the most vital people in our system of justice are witnesses. Everyone else in a trial exists to hear what they have to say.

Our courts need witnesses. A jury to apply the facts. The judge to tell his client's story.

Chances are you worry about stepping up, taking an oath, and telling your story in court.

On some rare occasions you could be called upon to testify about something affecting your own standing in the community.

As a witness you too may have the right, for example, not to testify against yourself in somebody else's lawsuit or crime trial.

Agency Dept. 8E, 2600 West 7th Street, Fort Worth, Texas.

HALF-PAST TEEN

If you are ever in such a bind, consult a lawyer of your own choice on what to do. The lawyer who called you to testify has a sworn duty to protect his client, not you. But your lawyer is sworn to keep what you tell him secret and to advise you in your own interests within the law.

Wise lawyers tell their witnesses to obey twelve rules:

1. Go to the place (say, the scene of an accident). Check your memory before you go to court. People forget and get caught up on details. But if you check what you saw and heard you are on solid ground.
2. Visit a court. Hear how other witnesses testify. It will help you see your role on the witness stand.
3. Wear clean, conservative clothes.
4. Don't memorize your story word for word. That is the surest way to sound bad. But think of what you saw and heard.
5. Listen to the questions you are asked with care and answer thoughtfully.
6. Give a simple, direct answer in your own words. Don't be rushed.
7. If you err—and people often do—correct yourself at once. If you can't remember some detail, say so. Don't bluff.
8. Tell the truth. Don't figure which side you may help. Don't identify yourself with either side.
9. Stop when the judge breaks in, and don't try to sneak an answer in before he can stop you. What you might say could end in a "mistrial".
10. Keep cool and don't sass back.

What Gives—

clevly-worded copy to sell coats, and suits, and dresses, and shoes. Do they limit their offerings to one—or three—insertions? Do grocers tell housewives just once that they have a special on T-bone steak? Any merchant who adheres to this phony philosophy would be bankrupt in 60 days. Any newspaperman who ran only one news story on an event of importance in the community would be a poor excuse for a journalist.

Think how many things may prevent a man from seeing any given item in today's newspaper, no matter how regularly he reads it. For example, he may be: (a) on vacation; (b) in the hospital; (c) on a business trip to another town; (d) out of the country for a week or a month; (e) attending a meeting of the town council, or the county commissioners, or any other civic body on which he serves; (g) kicked out while the Mrs. entertains her bridge club; (h) done out of the sports page by junior; (i) missing a section of the paper that his daughter needs for something in school; etc., etc., etc., etc., etc., etc., etc., etc.

The things that can happen to prevent a man from seeing a specific item in his favorite newspaper are limitless and the idea that all notices printed three times or less can be "due and sufficient notice" becomes more foolish by the minute.

Across The Desk—

will be able to prepare himself for employment with that.

Salaries of college faculty members will have to be boosted in order to hold them in Texas. The state ranks way down the list in the amount of money paid faculty members and the amount of money spent on higher education. The only way to get competitive is to get more money in the pot.

The governor's committee has been concerned not only with the pressing problems of handling an ever increasing number of students in Texas colleges, but is also concerned with the very acute problem of upgrading higher education in Texas through the use of better physical facilities and better qualified college professors.

Both of these approaches cost money.

Where is the money coming from? It might come from Uncle Sam. It might come from big gifts from big hearted individuals. It might fall down from the sky. But we know that it is going to come out of our pockets in the form of higher state taxes, one way or another.

If we are going to preserve and cultivate our biggest natural resource — young people — we ought to be glad to foot the bill. —Ochiltree County Herald.

9. Nowhere is our business, or professional or social affairs do we assume that one notice or three will be sufficient.

10. Display advertisers repeat their offerings twice, thrice or a dozen times, as their judgment dictates.

11. New stories are told again and again modern communications so that people in this Age economy may be kept informed.

12. Established rules and regulations governing public notice will properly protect the people's interests.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

This is an appeal to the general public to stop fast driving and in many cases speeding on 6th Street. I live on this street and love it. I love the little children who live on this street. It's impossible for these mothers to carry on their household duties and at the same time keep an ever watchful eye on these little tots. So, please heed this warning lest one of these little children is run over right before my eyes. Thanks, Mrs. George Greenhaw

AUSTIN—The "magical pill" can be both a bane and a boon. If we depend on our modern drugs to the extent that we neglect good hygiene and proper first aid, we are in effect making the pill—or wonder drugs—our bane. There are several reasons why the prevention of infection, through good personal hygiene and proper first aid, is important. Many kinds of germs and most viruses are not controlled by chemical agents. The germs of whooping cough, brucellosis, and certain other bacterial diseases respond rather unsatisfactorily to our weapons. Chemical agents other than antibiotics, which we had long ago, do not neutralize the toxins or poisons produced by germs. Therefore, tetanus and botulism, which are associated with toxins, are still dread diseases. The story is told about a mother of several children who thought she was "building up" her children's resistance against winter colds and infections by giving them regular doses of antibiotics. How mistaken she was. The increasing resistance of many germs to antibiotics is causing more and more concern. Accordingly, it is advisable to prevent infection and to obtain proper care early, if infection appears. In case of wounds and burns, however minor they may seem, make sure of proper first aid preliminary to medical care. Wounds and burns usually require sterile dressings after application of other indicated first aid. If infection develops in a wound, evidenced by local redness, swelling, and tenderness, obtain immediate medical care. Adhere to an immunization schedule advised by your physician.

Consider Your Dog

Remember that dogs suffer more than you realize in hot weather.

Yours will be a happier and healthier dog if you'll make sure he has access to shade, plenty of fresh water, and freedom from fleas and ticks.

Exercise him in the cool of the evening and underfeed him a bit until hunting begins.

Hammer Guard
Rifles, especially carbines, have projecting hammers that are apt to wear holes in gun cases.

Such holes are unsightly, expensive and unnecessary.

A one-inch piece of small rubber tubing makes an excellent hammer guard. It can be removed instantly by a slip of the thumb, should an emergency arise.

When To Train Beagles

Increased interest in rabbit hunting here in Texas, and the use of dogs to hunt them, has presented several questions as to when a beagle's training should begin.

The answer is from eight to ten months, depending on the dog's aptitude.

A good rule is to wait until the pup shows a genuine interest in the field and strikes out boldly. Meantime, the experts say, teach him obedience at home—to heel and come directly to you when called.

First convent in Texas, the Ursuline Academy, was established in Galveston in 1847.

Memphis Fire Department Commended For Service by Local Ranch Owner

By Virginia Browder

During these protracted 'dry spells' when fires become a constant menace; when even the thought of fire strikes fear to the hearts of townspeople and country folks alike, it is comforting assurance to know that 27 stalwart men trained but unpaid for the business of fighting fires have an ear tuned to the sound of the siren calling them to stop whatever they are doing jump in their trucks and, with troubleshooter lights flashing, hasten to the site of alarm.

Probably country folks are more fearful even than their fellow townsman knowing help would be long forthcoming to the rescue should fire break out on their property. Several years ago, we had a big old-fashioned red barn burn to the ground in less time than it takes to relate its happening. It was during extremely dry weather and while, within thirty minutes after flames shot through the roof, friends and passersby were covering the hillside with an offer of assistance a smoldering bed of ashes and the charred carcasses of three polo ponies told the grim tale.

While I was never able to faint and am disinclined to panic, that awesome experience left me with a horror of fires. So, when I turned into the ranch lane about a year ago at noon and discovered the soil-bank field to the south burning furiously, I beat it toward Memphis and help. Fortunately, my good neighbor had already turned in the alarm and, before I returned, the fire truck and chemical power wagon had arrived and the whole area was alive with men bent on extinguishing that inferno, sweating busy fellows who had come at a moment's notice because they were members of the Memphis Volunteer Fire Brigade.

The days slipped by and so did my good intentions to write personal notes of thanks to each of those firemen, but their diligent efforts for more than two hours was greatly appreciated by this 'country gal.' And that feeling of gratefulness was regenerated only a few nights ago when, from my front porch, I witnessed flames shooting skyward along the railroad right-of-way and wondered if a stray spark might not ignite the whole countryside.

Some passing motorist alerted the fire department and it wasn't long before I heard the siren blast off and, in a few minutes, the fire truck came charging up the highway, chug to a halt and start the pump going. Willing and busy men silhouetted against the flames soon had the fire and my fears under control.

Much water has gone down the creek and under the bridge since the old two-story wooden Fire Station stood on the corner of Seventh and Robertson. The Montgomerys lived in the quarters above the ground floor which housed the fire wagon equipped with hose and ladders. Two big white horses were kept in the corral to the south of the station and 'Uncle Pritchett' as Fire Chief (except when there was a fire) kept the station and equipment in order and tended the trusty steeds, and took life easy.

But, when the fire siren sounded, business picked up around the station. The horses were hurriedly backed alongside the wagon tongue, a rope was pulled which automatically dropped the harness into place on their backs and, in less time than it takes to tell, Uncle Pritchett went galloping down the street with the town-folk and dogs trailing in his wake to the scene of the conflagration.

After 1907, thanks to Jim Browder, there were fire hydrants then as now with plenty of water flowing through them from the hills to the northwest to quench the flames. It is to be hoped, with Memphis expanding as it is these days, the township will not only fully appreciate the tireless efforts of their firemen but will be able to support a salaried crew.

Whether or not the present fire brigade enjoys their work, they do a willing and wonderful job of insuring the safety of Memphis citizens and their country neighbors.

Only two Texas Governors, Pendleton Murrain and Beauford Jester, died in office.

County Has Received Social Security Benefits

Hall County has received social security benefits each month totaling $18,824, according to Bill Amabile, social security manager.

These are among many millions people now receiving social security and the total will reach $12.2 billion in 1965, according to Amabile.

Twenty-five years ago on Oct. 10, 1939, President Franklin Roosevelt took the hand and signed into law the Social Security Act, which established the Social Security Amendments of 1939. The little fanfare or publicity which this event because he realized that the act would ultimately affect the lives of nearly every American.

On the 25th Anniversary that legislation, Hal County subscribes the 1939 anniversary the "most significant security changes ever enacted" that the amendments to the Social Security Act for monthly benefits by January 1940; not only for workers, but also for dependents of retired workers.

The 1939 amendments, Golden, "made social security program viable for retired workers also; they, the program has come way toward realizing the for it in the 1939 and amendments—that of basic protection against earnings when the family winner becomes disabled, retirees in old age. Today of 10 working people are protection for themselves their families under the security law."

Report From Washington

By WALTER ROGERS
Representative, 18th
Congressional District

As Adjournment Nears

Friends and foes in foreign lands have often miscalculated the ability of Americans to unite for a common purpose when our national security is threatened. But it would come as no surprise at all to see our people suddenly and solidly behind the Commander in Chief when his rights and our freedom are at stake.

In this writing, it is impossible to forecast events in the next days arising from the crisis in southeast Asia. But, as our leaders have repeatedly warned, aggressive Communists, aggressive Chinese, will be, and are being, met—and met decisively. Actions taken by our President and our armed forces following the Tonkin Gulf torpedo attacks should signify clearly to all the United States means and firmly by its committee.

President Johnson made several statements that should receive the attention of unified bipartisan American purpose. These decisions sum up the unified American attitude: "There is no need to any peaceful power from secure passage of all of the bills from the United States of America. But there can be no peace by aggression and no unity from reply." And: "Let us need needlessly fear, and no vainly hope, that this is a divided in this election. Our free elections, our full free debate, are America's strength, not America's weakness. The resolution passed overwhelmingly by Congress declared:

"... The Congress approves and supports the determination of the President, as Commander in Chief, to take all necessary measures to repel any armed attack against the forces of the United States and to prevent further aggression."

Since this is the end of a term of Congress, all bills not favorably acted upon by the Congress end up in the legislative graveyard. This means that such measures must be reintroduced at the next term of Congress and the same long, hard road through committee hearings, the Rules Committee, and debate before the full House and Senate must be again pursued. Hence, every member of Congress is most anxious legislation he has introduced. This is what makes the closing days of a Congress so hectic and chaotic.

Although there are many measures that need to be passed affecting the entire country—such as a proper adjustment of the sugar quotas that the American farmer can produce more sugar needed by our country; legislation providing protection for the United States cattle industry against excessive beef and meat imports; the final versions of the appropriations bills; and many other measures—there is one action that is of tremendous importance to the whole nation. I refer to the need for approval by the Congress of a resolution submitting to the States an amendment to the Constitution permitting the States having bicameral legislatures to appropriate one house of such legislature on factors other than population. Unless this is accomplished, the strength of rural districts and sparsely populated areas will be lost, and these people will be at the mercy of big-city machines.

The international situation may require that Congress remain in session into autumn. In that event, many decisions will be reached on pending measures that otherwise would have to be put over to next year. This 88th Congress has been a constructive, productive one: Up to August 1, the Congress had passed 388 public bills. The Senate had been in session 331 days and the House in session on 297 days. House members introduced 15,272 measures of all types; Senators introduced 3,691 measures of all types.

When the days are hot you probably use more electricity

Certainly you do, that's because your air conditioning system is working harder, your refrigerator is working harder and all of your other electric appliances are performing tasks which, without them, you would have to do. Let's face it---there's no substitute for all the comfort and convenience that electricity can give. Besides, the average WTU residential customer is paying an average of 17% less per KWH than in 1953---isn't that a happy thought?

Electricity costs so little you can use lots of it.
