Hall County SCD Supervisors Are Opposed To Cut In Conservation Funds

In their regular monthly meeting in Childress, Wednesday, March 10, the Supervisors of the Hall County Soil Conservation District went on record as strongly opposed to the proposed cut in USDA funds for conservation activities for the 1966 fiscal year. Present at the meeting were Chairman Earnest Rea of Tell; Vice-Chairman Wayne Hutcherson of Memphis; Kenneth Ellis, secretary, of Kirkland, and Lee Scrivner of Turkey.

The Bureau of the Budget has recommended a $20 million reduction in the 1966 appropriations for Soil Conservation Service technical assistance to landowners and operators in local soil conservation districts. This proposed cut in technical assistance is about one-third of the present level of direct technical help now provided to cooperators in some 3,000 local soil conservation districts throughout the nation.

Conservation leaders across the nation are convinced that this would reduce, by at least 50 per cent, the present rate of applying needed conservation measures on the nation's private land.

"The proposal would cut application in the Hall County District by 90 per cent," Wayne Hutcherson said.

The proposal, if adopted, would require landowners or operators to pay for engineering services of laying out terraces, farm ponds, etc., at the time the work is done.

"Farmers would not be willing to pay for technical assistance that is now being provided free through the local Soil Conservation Districts," Lee Scrivner said.

Earnest Rea, chairman of the board, stated, "The proposal is a complete reversal of a policy of (Continued on Page 12)

Six Days Remain In Feed Grain And Cotton Signup

Only six days remain for producers to make application to participate in the 1965 cotton and feed grain programs, Lynn L. McKown, officer manager of the Hall County ASCS, announced this morning.

The sign-up period ends for both programs on Friday, March 26, 1965.

As of Thursday morning, 165 farms had been signed up to participate in the domestic cotton program and 339 farms had been signed up in the feed grain program. There are 856 farms in Hall County eligible to participate in the feed grain program.

McKown said that a memorandum was received here from the Texas ASCS State Office on March 15, regarding division of payments under the 1965 Domestic Cotton Program, which reads as follows: "The payment due the farm shall be shared by all eligible producers on the same basis as they share in the cotton crop or the proceeds thereof." This is a change from previous interpretation of the law.

Soil Conservation Benefits Economy

Earlier this year citizens in this area suffered through several dust storms and the news media has drawn reference with the dust bowl days of the 1930's. Fear in some quarters has been expressed that we are entering an era of drought and dust storms similar to those dreary days of the 1930's.

But any examination of the situation shows that this fear is unfounded. Soil conservation techniques, the application of learning, the development of new tools, has made it possible for farmers and ranchers to control wind erosion in a manner that was never heard of back in the 1930 days.

And, probably the farmers' biggest help in the soil conservation battle is the Soil Conservation Service which administers federal aid programs. Soil conservation is a big job and during the 1930's it was a national problem, one that deserved to be met with all the resources that the federal government and skilled men could provide. It was a problem that crossed state lines and combined regions and areas into natural topographic districts that have always existed.

Our readers are familiar with the Hall County Soil Conservation District which comprises all of Hall and Childres counties, the portion of Cottle County lying north of the North Pease River and about 6,000 acres in Motley County near Turkey. The district has been in operation since 1941 and has helped farmers and ranchers carry out an enormous amount of soil saving work.

This week, the supervisors of the district went on record as strongly opposed to the proposed cut in USDA funds for conservation activities for the 1966 fiscal year. In a news release this week the supervisors stated they have contacted U. S. Congressmen and Senators urging them to oppose this cut in conservation funds.

In support of their stand, they listed several reasons, which citizens in this area should study and consider carefully, and take whatever action they deem necessary. The supervisors listed the following:

1. Residents and business people of towns such as Memphis and Childress who are not farming or ranching have shared in the better business that has resulted from this work and the increased buying power that has come about through the conservation activities.

2. It has been a widely accepted fact for a long time that a good program of soil and water conservation on a farm or ranch will increase the income of the operator by at least 20 per cent per year. There are a number of farms in the local area that are good producers now that were so badly cut by gullies 25 years ago that operations were about to cease. This has come about through soil conservation programs that have been developed on these farms. It is the funds that have helped bring this about that are now in danger of being cut.

3. Some of the specifics of the fund cut call for a reduction of about 20 million dollars in funds for the Soil Conservation Service covering the actual running of terrace lines, staking farm ponds and such activities. It is proposed that this money be paid by the farmer at the time the work is done. Also proposed is a big slash in ACP funds that in the past have been used to help farmer or rancher apply the work to the land after it has been laid out on the ground.

4. The Supervisors of the Hall County Soil Conservation District as well as other farm and ranch leaders over the entire United States know that this is false economy because farmers will pay to the Federal Government in increased taxes in a very few years far more than the Federal Government pays to help establish the practices. Money spent by the Federal Government for soil conservation of the farms of America is an investment in the future of the United States.

5. Since in this area almost every citizen has an important stake in this issue, non farm people are also asked to contact our elected officials in Washington urging them to oppose this cut in conservation funds.

6. One of the big problems is that the rural areas are no longer represented by as many people in Congress as in the past. Many city people do not realize the stake they have in this issue.

SATISFACTION

Sometimes satisfaction can be a moment we've waited for, yet never expected to arrive.

Most of us realize a pleasant feeling of accomplishment when we feel that we have made a "good deal" in the purchase of some item for the home or for personal use. If the item proves durable and serviceable, our satisfaction grows with time.

For this reason, an important consideration should always be the availability of care and service for such things as home appliances, home equipment, power tools, and vehicles. Sometimes even the most expensive of equipment becomes inoperable merely because some minor adjustment is needed.

If you want satisfaction — and who doesn't — it's wise to trade with the established local merchant. You'll find he offers quality merchandise and guaranteed service and satisfaction.

What Other Editors Say

Weekly Newspaper

Notice a change? If you are wondering why this big change, it is because we want to give our advertisers and readers a completely different paper. A weekly newspaper is NOT a small edition or a weekly copy of a city-daily newspaper, and in no way should it be comparable. We are a newspaper in our own rights, which is weekly. There is nothing in common between a weekly and daily except they are both printed on pulp.

The methods of reporting are not the same, their evaluation of news are poles apart, their economic structures (goodness knows) are at the opposite end of the ledger, even our methods of setting type and printing are different. We are not staffed as a daily paper and thus all the way around, we are a different INDIVIDUAL.

The weekly newspaper is the senior member of the team and for the same reasons, (that still defines its policies. There is a place for both in our late Twenties Century; just as radio had to learn to live with television, the daily has to live with the weekly.

A weekly newspaper is concerned totally with people and local happenings, now with who had a car wreck in California; but the editor of a weekly should be interested in government, state, national and local, and be free to voice his opinion.

The latest happenings in Cuba, or the war in Viet Nam are facts of existence that are left to the dailies to explore and report.

This is not a random choice on the part of the weekly, but TIME is the factor. A weekly newspaper does not have the facilities for getting the news. If Cuba is blown to bits on Monday, by Wednesday the whole world knows about it, so why should we run a full-length feature? This does not mean it should be ignored, but usually the editor will have a comment to make such as, "It should have been done a long time ago."

But not so with the social, school functions, county and state happenings; these are things that concern people; in a weekly our news is personal news.

What happens to our neighbors are our joys. One man's prosperity brushes another and another's sorrows diminishes us.

Weekly newspapers print good news, or Solemn News, but they never print Dirty News; it is a family newspaper. It is read by everyone and passed on because it comes ONCE a week and there are seven whole days to read it.

The Editor's stake in the community is as great or as small as the merchant's; if they prosper, he prospers. If industry comes with its payrolls, he is first to feel its effect.—Jim Wiebe, The Coffeyville (Kansas) Press.

"The U. S. housewife who comes home from a hard day's shopping complained of the rudeness of sales clerks might sing a different tune if she had ever visited Russia."

Thus states Newsweek in a brief article aptly entitled "Service With A Snarl." It seems that in Russia—where the state owns and runs practically everything—discourtesy and indifference have long been the order of the day in it or lump it. On every hand, he is faced with an entrenched and immovable bureaucracy, backed by an all-powerful state.

In a free system, to the contrary—and American retailing in all its branches and kinds, from the biggest chain to the smallest independent is a prime example of that system—the customer is king. Competition sees to that. And, because of competition, the discourteous clerk is not long tolerated, for management knows that competent, pleasant and helpful personnel are essential to obtaining and keeping customers—Olney Enterprise.

early days when you had to draw water with a bucket and rope from an 80-ft. deep well. You had a cow, and it seemed like she would drink a thousand gallons a day after burning your hands on that old grass rope.

We think now we have to have a bath every day and sometimes two in one day, but not then. No bath tubs, just a No. 3 zinc tub, and that was used on Saturday night. The same water was used for all the kids, starting with the cleanest, which was the baby, and so on until it was the older child's turn to bathe. The water was pretty cloudy.

During the week, the boys' feet would get too dirty to get in bed, so they had to take a cob and ashes or brick bat and scrub their feet. We had tough feet then! The first dipper for water that I remember was made from a gourd, and finally we elevated to a tin dipper.

In my early school days here, we had a bucket and tin cups tied with string so the cups would not walk off. After several years, the school board decided that was unsanitary and put in outside drinking spouts. If you were out hunting and close to a spring or dug in the quicksand until we found water, we curled up the brim of a hat and drank out of it.

We did not have any swimming pools for the young, but after a rain we had a place off Parker Creek, east of town, called Rock Hole with gyp rock all around, and usually deep holes were washed out. I don't believe any boy ever drowned there, but there were some narrow escapes as bathing trunks were nil, and they had to be pulled out by the hair. With these crew cuts now it would have been hard to save a life.

One of the most memorable sights to me was when Mack D. Browder and his sons, Jim and John, turned the water loose on Mrs. Buster Hanna was returned to her home at Turkey Monday afternoon after a week's stay at the Groom Memorial Hospital.

Mrs. R. E. Young of Turkey remains a patient in the Groom Memorial Hospital this week.

Mr. and Mrs. Clinton Richburg of Estelline were visiting in Turkey with relatives Tuesday.

Mr. and Mrs. Leland Pinkerton and children of Floydada visited over the weekend with his mother, Mrs. Vera Pinkerton.

We note from our Rotary magazine that Rotary Clubs are sponsoring deep wells in some of the deserts of a few countries, where they can have more abundance of water, that is service above self.

Oh, yes. I was about to forget. Most of the early-day homes had gutters all around the house to catch the rain water, which was a lot softer, that ran into a cistern. Sometimes the snails got into the cistern, but one could strain the water through a cloth and it was 100 per cent pure—we thought. We have come a long way on water in Hall County.

Well, Claude, I would have written a sandman story! Thought you would like a water boy better, but while we are talking about water what we need now is a three- or four-inch slow rain. Water is very important to all of us.

Stanley Family Donates Papers To Southwest Collection At Texas Tech

Many private documents and letters belonging to the paternal side of the family of George Edward Stanley of Memphis and Lubbock and Mrs. Jerry Shields, the former Jo Ann Stanley, of Lelia Lake, have been donated to the Southwest Collection at Texas Tech.

Stanley, a recent graduate of Texas Tech, found most of the documents and papers in old trunks during a visit last summer with his relatives who live in eastern Oklahoma and western Arkansas.

Since that time, the family had donated other material to the collection. The document and letters, to be called the Stanley-Couch Papers, cover a period from 1843 until 1945.

The papers describe vividly the lives of the residents of the then Indian Territory. Especially interesting are the bills and receipts concerning the sale of groceries and the buying and selling of furs.

Aside from the letters and documents pertaining to life in the Indian Territory, many letters written during the 1830's describe life in the area of the United States hardest hit by the depression—eastern Oklahoma, the area immortalized by John Steinbeck in his novel, "The Grapes of Wrath." Working with such material is very laborious and, although the material was donated to the Southwest Collection last October, the job of inventory was only completed the first of this month.

Historians of the Southwest Collection have now begun the task of researching the material, and have notified other interested historians of the papers.

Residents of the Memphis area who are interested in preserving their family histories should familiarize themselves with the work being done in this Archives for the American Southwest.

The Southwest Collection is located in the Social Sciences Building on the campus of Texas Tech. The Southwest Collection was established as a separate department of the college for the acquisition and preservation of archival materials and books pertaining to the American Southwest.

The quarters in which the Southwest Collection is housed include beautifully paneled reading rooms, individual study areas, and four levels of stacks which afford excellent shelf storage.

The primary goal of the collection is the compiling, preservation, and cataloging of historical data, with the immediate secondary objective of making these materials available for use by students, scholars and interested citizens.

The Southwest Collection will eventually build up at Texas Tech the nation's finest research center in southwestern history through sustaining support from state funds and from private donations of money and materials.

Officials of the collection said they were in need of diaries, scrapbook, ledgers, correspondence, minute books, maps, books, newspapers, tape recordings. The Collection also wants personal papers, business records and other types of historical materials from a wide variety of associations and enterprises.

Economics Expert Tells How To Attract Tourists To Texas

Members of the Memphis Lions Club were told to provide facilities and improve attractions for tourists at the regular luncheon meeting, Wednesday, Mar. 10. The speaker was James A. Covell, economic development representative of General Telephone Company of the Southwest.

other National Park in the Guadalupe Mountains. We do not have restored, beautified, historical or tourist attractions to compare with Virginia City, Montana, Natches Atebellum Homes, the Slave Market in Saint Augustine or nearly any famous battlefield. If you doubt this, compare the site of Custer's Last Stand, Vicksburg or Fort Ticonderoga with any battle in the State of Texas. When it comes to making places known to the public, compare the number of historical markers in New Mexico with those in Texas. Other sights such as the Oregon Trail or the Route of Louis and Clark are marked from one end to the other.

states, adding that few of them have facilities for overnight stay. He cited the attractions to be found in California where missions have been restored, saying that "our missions are in ruins. No effort has been made to preserve their heritage. Most people don't even know where the missions are in Texas."

Covell is devoting his full time to aiding towns and cities to be served by economic development from many standpoints. He told the group that Texas must make the necessary effort to preserve its historical landmarks. This is particularly true when compared with the effort to preserve its historical landmarks such as California, Mexico and Colorado, he said.

"Where are the Chisolm, Goodnight, or Butterfield trails in Texas? These early stage and cattle trails were equally significant in this development of the Southwest but not one has bothered to preserve their location."

He criticized local communities who have not established their City Parks, and named several in other states which are known to all tourists.

A 1/c R. L. Smart To Re-Enlist In Air Force

Airman First Class Roger L. Smart, son of Mr. and Mrs. Charles P. Smart of Rt. 2, Somerset, Ohio, has re-enlisted in the U. S. Air Force for another term of service following his selection for career status.

Covell then compared Texas State Parks to those of other states. "If we will provide the facilities and improve the outstanding attractions that are available and make them presentable to the public, we will stop many more of these tourists and gain a much needed income which will benefit the small towns and cities alike," the speaker concluded.

Sandra Shults Compiles Data On Memphis High School Drop-Outs

(Editor's Note: Sandra Shults, senior student in Memphis High School and members of the FHA Class, recently completed a study of drop-outs in high school, including the local high school. In an article below, Miss Shults gives an explanation of her findings. The study will be applied toward her state degree in P.H.A. The article follows:)

ger of shame to society. Recently a survey of the drop-outs in Memphis High School was made by FHA. It was found that twenty students have left school for various reasons. Ten of the twenty transferred to different schools; seven dropped out to get married (only one of these seven was a boy); and three just did not want to go to school.

The national Future Homemakers of America project is to reduce the problem of high school drop-outs. Youth who drop out of school before graduation are finding themselves involved in a serious situation as a consequence of insufficient education. They find themselves not only lacking in the three "R's", but also in the three "U's"—unskilled, uneducated, and unemployed.

Unskilled and immature, the dropout finds himself in a huge market place with nothing to sell. Even among graduates two and three years out of high school, the unemployment rate holds steadily at about thirteen per cent; among dropouts of the same age, it seldom dips below twenty per cent and frequently climbs as high as thirty per cent.

This waste of human abilities and talents is not the burden of the dropout alone. A failure to himself, he also points a long fin-

Policy Statement Given Concerning Agricultural Jobs Offered Aliens

Tracy C. Murrell, Regional Administrator of the Bureau of Employment Security, released a policy statement from the U. S. Department of Labor concerning agricultural jobs offered alien immigrants under the provisions of Section 212 (a) (14) of the Immigration and Nationality Act.

The Secretary of Labor on Dec. 19, 1964, established new adverse effect rates, which, effective April 1, 1965, provide a minimum wage for unskilled agricultural labor of $1.15 per hour or the equivalent at piece rate, if such a method of payment is used.

Because of the change on Dec. 19, Mr. Murrell stated his office was releasing the following policy statement, effective April 1, 1965.

This is to advise agricultural employers seeking an endorsement of Form ES-20 that this office will certify adverse effect in accordance with Section 212 (a) (14) of the Immigration and Nationality Act of 1952, as amended, when the job offer (Form ES-20) shows a wage rate less than the following:

"For Farm Hands, general—Not less than $1.25 per hour for any kind of general year-round farm work. The job offer must guarantee the worker $50 per week. All hours in excess of 40 hours will be paid at the $1.25 rate. Housing, utilities and transportation to and from the worker's house to the field to be furnished free by employer. Employer must carry on-the-job insurance at no cost to the worker.

"For Ranch Hands—Not less than $207 per month plus room and board. All hours worked in excess of 208 hours during a calendar month shall be overtime and the worker shall be paid $1.25 per hour for all hours in excess of 208. The employer must carry on-the-job insurance at no cost to the worker. If the alien the employer is sponsoring is going to bring in his family the employer need not furnish board. If he does not, however, he will offer to furnish housing and utilities and pay the worker $260 per month (including $53.00 in lieu of board) for 208 hours during a calendar month."

Mr. Murrell stated, "We wish to make it clear that this action in no way establishes wage rates for domestic agricultural workers. The employer can, as in the past, employ domestic workers at any rate agreeable to the domestic worker."

In certifying that able, willing, and qualified workers are available in the United States for jobs offered alien immigrants under provisions of Section 212 (a) (14) of the cited Act, the Regional Administrator makes his determinations based on the best available current market information. He is not required to have specific information on individual work availability. Upon certifying that domestic workers are available, the Administrator does not obligate the Bureau or the State agency to produce such workers. While the Employment Service is expected to cooperate fully with employers, in the final analysis the employers are responsible for obtaining the worker.

Mr. Murrell stated that this action in no way establishes wage rates for domestic agricultural workers. The employer can, as in the past, employ domestic workers at any rate agreeable to the domestic worker."

Hall County District News Soil Conservation

Management of cover crops is 90 percent of their worth. Regardless of what you produce or grow for soil improvement, management is the factor that makes the difference in a good crop or a failure.

There are several important points in good management of cover crops. Early fall planting is very important in getting a good stand and good growth before winter for winter cover crops. Summer cover crops can be planted whenever moisture is available in early summer. All legumes should be inoculated before planting.

The more a plant grows the more benefit the soil receives. A good root system that penetrates the soil several inches is the best soil builder. Therefore, cover crops should be managed so as to produce the largest amount of root growth as well as top growth. Winter cover crops should be managed until about April 1. Winter cover crops such as rye may be mowed to prevent seeding and later trouble with volunteer rye. Summer cover crops such as rye may be mowed to the winter as residue on the ground or managed until about August 15 if followed by wheat or other winter crops. Legumes should be managed to leave the root system in the ground so that the nitrogen that the plant has accumulated will not be lost.

Cost-share on cover crops can be obtained through your local ACP program. Both winter and summer cover crop seeds are cost-shared. Consult your local County Handbook for conservation practices for 1965 for more information on cost-share.

Your local Soil Conservation Service technicians assisting all County Soil Conservation District will be glad to help you with any questions you might have concerning management of cover crops.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

(Editor's Note: The following letter, addressed to Tomie M. Potts, was submitted to us for publication since it passes on an idea for the 75th Birthday Celebration.)

P. O. Box 3191
San Leandro, Calif.
March 11, 1965

Hello, Mr. Potts,
Little did we realize that Memphis will have the 75th celebration this coming September. So thrilled to read you are giving wonderful leadership to organize the great occasion!

I read in Claude Wells' Comments that you and your committee are interested in suggestions. This is a challenge to all native born Hall County folk. There is one suggestion I've been thinking over and think it was about a year ago I wrote Virginia Browder. Maybe she has told you about the idea with old time and to-date cattlebrands of area.

If all the cattle branding irons can be located, have the people or cattle brand owner attend a "Branding Iron Party". The brands should be heated (at party) and then each brand burned into squares or triangles, also have the branding iron's present owner's name and date it was registered.

These old brands could be placed on display during the 75th celebration or maybe some local restaurant would like to have on their walls, or in the courthouse. Or they could be worked into display of early settlers in the local store windows.

You may do whatever you and committee like with the suggestion. Have fun choosing.

Just another moment of your time,
Thanks again for the enjoyment

"Ask your grandmother if she remembers this old 1893 Mosley oil-fired water heater and folding bathtub... I dare say, it would hardly meet the needs of 1964 living—supplying dishwashers, clothes washers, bathtubs, and lavatories with instant clean hot water upon demand.

Few of us actually realize that over 2/3 of the water used in the home is hot water. With the completely automatic electric water heater there is no fear of a flame going out when hot water is needed the most. And being totally flameless, it requires no venting, is easier to install and maintenance is practically nil.

What a change from the 'good ol' days!'"

Gamma Kappa Chapter Meets In Clarendon Sat.

Gamma Kappa Chapter of Delta Kappa Gamma met Saturday, March 6, at 2 p. m. in the Patching Clubhouse in Clarendon.

"Nations of the Communist Bloc" was the program theme as a part of the international program study of "Changing Patterns in Other Cultures." Miss Bonnie Willis of Wellington introduced the program, listing the countries of the Communist Bloc and giving the historical background. Mrs. L. C. Sweatt of Wellington discussed changing sociological and educational patterns in these countries under communism.

Miss Sara Jones of Wellington, using the subject, "Some Causes for Communist Bloc Activities," discussed the political patterns that have brought about the present international situation of insults heaped upon the United States by nations to whom help has been so freely given. "The insolent burning of our overseas libraries by second-rate states, the hostile manifestations before our embassies by other countries, the desintegration of NATO, the impotence of SEATO—these demonstrate just what a policy of peaceful accommodation has brought this might nation which, just after 1945, all free nations were eager to follow" was quoted from the writings of Ansel Edgar Mower.

Miss Jones concluded by quoting Sir Winston Churchill's warnings, "If you will not fight for the right when you can easily win without bloodshed; if you will not fight when your victory will be sure and not too costly, you may come to the moment when you will have to fight with all the odds against you and only a precarious chance of survival. There may be even a worse case. You may have to fight when there is no hope for victory, because it is better to perish than to live as slaves."

Mrs. Velma R. Weaver of Clarendon led the group singing of Delta Kappa Gamma songs. Mrs. Lola White of Childress was accompanist.

Miss Inez Blankenship of Clarendon, president, of Gamma Kappa Chapter, conducted the business meeting. Committee reports were given by Mrs. Inez Robinson of Childress, Achievement; and Miss Ethel Hillhouse of Memphis, Scholarship.

"A Birthday Tribute" was read by Miss Esta McElrath of Memphis in observance of the chapter's twenty-sixth birthday. The group sang the "Chapter Birthday Song." Both are original compositions by Miss McElrath.

In a beautiful initiation ceremony, Mrs. Gertrude Watkins of Childress became an active member of Delta Kappa Gamma. Conducting the ceremony were Miss Inez Blankenship and Edgar Mae Mongole of Clarendon, Mmes. Dora Diggs of Childress, Myrtle Hill of Wellington, Audrey Tribble of Memphis, and Miss Esta McElrath. Background music during the ceremony was played by Mrs. Velma R. Weaver.

Local members attending were Mmes. Reba Stroehle, Audrey Tribble, and Misses Ethel Hillhouse, Alma Bruce, Margaret McElrath and Esta McElrath.

Report From Washington

By WALTER ROGERS
Representative, 18th
Congressional District

As Texas' governor but also as Chairman of the Interstate Oil Compact Commission). Our own Panhandle was represented by R. P. Herrmann and Don Watson, who appears on behalf of the Panhandle Producers and Royalty Owners Association. The appearance of government officials, organization officials, spokesmen for oil industry associations, executives of oil companies, leaders in associated segments of the oil industry such as labor organizations, business groups, etc., helps measurably.

The inquiry seeks to determine whether the program is meeting its objectives. It was originally designed to maintain strength in the domestic oil industry by keeping imports in satisfactory proportion to domestic petroleum production. Everyone recognizes that the national security requirements of our nation demand a strong and vigorous domestic oil industry. Such an industry cannot be maintained unless incentive is present for our own citizens to be willing to risk their money in further exploration and development of oil and gas deposits in our nation. The number of exploratory wells has been falling far below prior years. Domestic production has not been increasing at a pace equal to demand. Adequate reserves are not being located. Operation of drilling rigs dropped sharply. When these things happen, all associated businesses in and around oil development areas suffer, whether they be the corner hamburger stand, the doctor's office, or the department store. Many U. S. oil experts feel that the Mandatory Oil Import Control Program has not gone far enough to bring imports into proper balance with domestic production. Many of the independents in our area have most impressive statistics to prove their position in support of curtailment of imports. Unless this problem can be worked out within the Department of the Interior, it can be expected that import control legislation will be sought.

The oil import problem is only one facet of the larger problem of imports generally. In the past it has been the practice of those affected by imports to remain separate and apart from other segments of the economy and to try to press for action on their own separable problem. This meant that there was no coordination between the domestic producers of cattle with the domestic manufacturers of pottery or bicycles or clothespins or steel, or the farmers trying to produce sugar, to name only a few of the groups that find imports a constant threat. The percentage of imports varies with the different products, even as regards those products in which this country could be wholly self-sufficient. For instance, it would not be necessary for this country to import cattle, yet between 10 per cent and 15 per cent of the beef consumed in this country is imported. This country could produce all of its sugar and enough to export, yet it is importing from foreign countries approximately 43 per cent or almost half of our domestic consumption. One person admonished me for supporting a reduction in sugar imports. He told me that the foreign sugar could be acquired much cheaper than domestic sugar. My reply to him was that the same rule would apply to everything from oil to automobiles and from hairpins to cattle, which happened to be this fellow's business. I told him about a former member of Congress who made a speech almost every day advocating "Buy American." Every afternoon this same member would pass me on the way home, driving his Mercedes-Benz.
