Quail Road Paving Announced By State

The Texas Highway Commission recently approved the expenditure of $142,000 for construction of Farm to Market Road mileage in Collingsworth County as part of the 1965 FM Road Program, announced District Engineer V. J. McGee of Chil-dress.

The District Engineer said 13.2 miles in Collingsworth County will be involved. The work will cover the construction of base and surfacing of F. M. Road 2166, from the Hall County line, north-east to F. M. Road 1056.

The F. M. road has come to be known in this area as the Quail road.

Mr. L. Clyde Drake, Supervising Resident Engineer, Wellington, will supervise the construction of the state.

Residents will remember that last year the state approved the construction of a bridge across Buck Creek and laying of foundation for the roadbed over the 13.2

miles. The state announced that this work is part of a 911.2-mile statewide farm-to-market road-building program for 1965. The program will include 207 individual projects in 153 counties to cost an estimated $23.5 million.

County Gets Scattered Rains, Some Hail Stones

Spotted rains in Hall County over the weekend and this week have either been too heavy or too light, reports indicate.

The Estelline area received light showers last weekend and nothing during the week. However, it was reported the Turkey area received heavy rainfall.

Hardest hit were the farms in the Lakeview area and between Lakeview and Brice, where total rainfall measured over three inches, and it was accompanied by hail.

Thunderstorms last Friday and again Tuesday accounted for most of the damaging hail and heavy rains. Crops in these areas were destroyed and farmers will have to re-plant cotton fields, it was reported.

Here in Memphis, J. J. McMickin reported a total rainfall figure of 1.16 inches.

The thunder storm Friday dumped most of this amount and hail stones from marble size to over one-inch in diameter fell. A few stones were sighted in the two-inch diameter range, it was reported.

The area west of Brice, however, is still dry, having missed receiving any heavy rainfall in several weeks.

Yankees Take Early Lead In LL Playoff

At the conclusion of the fourth night of play in the Memphis Little League, the Yankees are in the top spot with a record of three wins, one loss.

The Giants and the Indians are both tied for second with a two-to record while the Tigers have won one, last three.

The teams played only one night this past week due to rain Friday night.

Tuesday night, the Yankees defeated the Indians 13 to 4 in the first game and the Giants downed the Tigers 14 to 7.

The Giants, with a two-to record, is the only ball club to defeat the league-leading Yankees. With the first half of play not quite over, anything could happen, however.

Need Help
President of the Little League Assn. Charley Grice stated, "We are needing umpires and concession stand help in the worst way, especially on Thursday nights and Saturday night when the senior league plays."

He explained that umpires are needed for the farm team games, little league games and the senior league games. Games are played on Monday, Tuesday Friday and Saturday nights.

Senior League
The four teams in the Senior League have played only one night, last Saturday, since they were rained out Thursday of last week.

So far, the Braves, managed by Jerry Carpenter, defeated the Cardinals, managed by Gordon Gilliam, 11 to 1. In the second game, Bobby Howie's Astros defeated Tony Mowling's Dodgers by a score of 5 to 1.

Farm Teams
Two teams in the Farm League are tied after two nights of play. The Indians and Giants have both won two games each, while the Tigers and Yankees have lost two each.

Monday night, the Indians downed the Yankees 3 to 2 and the Giants downed the Tigers 9 to 2.

D. D. Morgan is the Yankees' manager, while Bill Ballew manages the Giants, James Pepper and Ronald Wilson are managers of the Indians and Thomas Clayton and L. B. Snider are the Tigers' managers.

Comments

Memphis and Hall County celebrated their 25th anniversary in 1965. Much had been accomplished during the years since organization in 1890. Then in 1940 we celebrated the 50th anniversary with a humdrum celebration. . . . In 1965, every person living in this county, or had lived in the county, young and old, are expected to take part in the jubilee celebration in September — the 75th year of existence. Tommie heading the affair, will do his best to give every one a kind of work to do between the time of the celebration and the event. The time is nearer and nearer, and each period of 25 years in Hall County may be titled as past, present and future. Two noted as Silver 25th year and Past 50th year; this year is the Diamond Jubilee. Many will be living to celebrate the Future 100-year celebration. . . . The future is at hand and it tells us to make plans to do a lot to our fellow men, women and children, and forget ourselves.

Two weeks ago The Memphis Democrat printed this on Page "Number 1—Volume LXXV." It is natural that most persons do not notice this below the masthead. But it meant that this newspaper considers itself to be 75 years old—as of that date. The old Hall County Herald was established in May, 1890, and was absorbed by The Memphis Democrat in 1928 (The Democrat was established in 1908).

As we occasionally check the files, we find much which is of historical value. The files show the old-time firms of Memphis—such as Baldwin's (which Byron sold last week to Les Sims). We think that the First National Bank, early financial institution, was established in 1898. Then there's the Thompson Bros. Co. which have publicized recently as they moved into his new building at the corner of Noel and 7th streets. (Incidentally, they'll be holding their Grand Opening soon when they can get those thousands of items on the new shelves—get their breath). Then there's Harrison Hardware Co., which is 75 years old. . . . and Vallance Store which had its beginning out at Plaska in 1919. . . . Men's, established in 1909. . . . and Dunbar, continuous service since 1904. Probably have missed a few others through oversight.

We have some good news to pass on to our advertisers and interested citizens: the circulation of the Democrat has increased over 30 per cent since Jan. 1, 1962! This is another reason we here at the paper are proud of our efforts. . . . winning the General Excellence awards competing against the finest weeklies, semi-weeklies and small dailies, published in this tri-state area.

You readers know what improvements have been made. . . . the better print upon our big Miehle press; the use of our lec-Miehle press; the use of our electric half-tone pictures, our complete darkroom and camera facilities (which is offered by only few of the smaller papers in the nation). We also mention our movie camera used by Bill Combs which gives televised reports of important happenings in this area over an Amarillo TV station. . . . and his work with his cameras in covering wrecks, catastrophes and other newsworthy events in this area.

As we remember this old county-seat, family-type country farming community newspaper is the continuation of one established 75 years ago, we are recognizing with pride that we have the important readership which all conscientious newspapermen strive for. We have the newspaper in which is carried the news of this area, and the medium which is used by those shrewd advertisers who wish to pass on their (Continued on Page 12)

EDITORIAL

We're In Our 75th Year!

The Memphis Democrat is now publishing in its 75th year, according to the Roman Numerals which appear on the front page mast head. Since this is the 75th anniversary year of Hall County, we feel it is fitting to call attention to this fact.

Throughout the 75 years of publication, the Democrat has appeared before the public in many forms. It has been published as a small weekly, a bi-weekly, a daily, a bi-weekly tabloid, a weekly tabloid, and now in its present form, a 7-column weekly.

During these years, many challenges and demands have been met by its owners and editors to give the readers what they want. Changes in format and content have come slowly, but they have been forever constant.

A recent Roper poll studied the reaction of the public to advertising media. The report by Harris, who is considered the foremost private polister and who has done work for CBS, declares, "There is every sign of growing disenchantment with television on the part of the affluent, better-educated adult Americans. TV appears to be losing its audience among adults who have been to college, whose incomes are $10,000 or over, and among suburban residents. It is also less attractive than it once was to people in the 21 to 34 age group."

It went on to say TV made its best showing among people with only a grade-school education, people 50 years old and over, and those with incomes under $5,000. The poll concluded with, "The conclusion is inescapable that television and programming is directed toward the less affluent, the less articulate and older age group."

It is long known that a modern paper, even a weekly, must compete against radio and television. It must give the public news in depth, something seldom if ever done by radio and television, interested primarily in spot coverage.

The public seeks and needs a more complete picture of what is going on around them and the weekly newspaper fills this need.

One of the major movements in the publication industry today according to trade journal reports, is in the urban weekly field.

Towns are growing within cities, containing their own shopping centers, schools, churches, recreational facilities, and sometimes police departments, fire stations and city governmental offices. It is only natural that into this situation would come a weekly newspaper, which draws advertising from neighborhood stores and has circulation primarily within a 10 to 15-mile area of the shopping center.

But why have the big city residents sought subscriptions to weekly newspapers in their area? The answer is simple: the weekly carries news about the local schools, boy and girl scouting, advertising from merchants within walking or short riding distance from their homes, etc.

Are these big city weekly publications successful? According to reports, in one city, the weekly publications (about four in number) have a larger combined circulation than the big daily has throughout the city and state area. The figures were in the hundreds of thousands. The major selling points to a weekly newspaper is cheaper subscription rates and cheaper advertising rates, and a much more interested readership. Surveys have long proved that weekly newspapers are read almost cover to cover while dailies are read selectively, primarily including front page, sports page, comics, and classified advertising. In between, few readers have the time or patience to do any extensive reading.

The Democrat, taking over the beginning and life of the Hall County Herald, has been around a long time. It has its life blood in Hall County, its roots deep within the soil. Whenever there is a birth, the print is happy; a death brings sorrow to its pages.

Modern technology and changing reader demands may bring changes, rapidly or otherwise, but this paper's prime purpose of existence is to bring news of our people in depth. It will never change.

ALL TIED UP

A kitten in the knittin' yarn can be cute, but there's no fun for the homemaker who finds herself all tied up with chores and problems.

The average homemaker doesn't have the help she needs to adequately do all the things that need doing. She must learn, therefore, to do things efficiently. She must budget the time she devotes to one responsibility in order to have enough time for others.

One of the most important chores for the homemaker is the family shopping... and she is missing a bet if she overlooks the "help" offered by community merchants.

The local businessman, because he wants your business, is interested in offering reliable, efficient service at all times. He knows, too, that value received for dollar spent is the best inducement he can offer to get your business tomorrow as well as today.

What Other Editors Say

Do Unto Others

Life moves so fast and we are faced with many temptations to join the run-of-the-mill ways that we often fail to keep in mind the Golden Rule — do unto others as you would have them do unto you.

We are often tempted to join in gossip (usually speculative or half-truth gossip), or to judge others, or to say unkind words or criticize others. How many who read this editorial can say they have not succumbed to this temptation often?

If we seek the good in others, and talk about it, the results are often astonishing. Faith in the goodness of many a weary soul has brought about near-miraculous results and inspirational conduct and performance. For each of us has good in us and none among us is perfect.

Jesus once said: "Let him among you who is without sin, cast the first stone." If we could remember this, every day of the week, every week, the world would be a far better place in which to live. Shamrock Texan.

Dry In The East

The Southwest is often regarded in other parts of the country, particularly the East, as a country something between a desert and a tinderbox.

And this description often fits. In fact, right here in our own area we were something between a desert and a tinderbox most of last year and until well into the spring of this year. We didn't have much water.

Right now, however, the pastures are green and the fields are moist and things look a whole lot different than they did last summer, when the entire spring and summer growing period passed without enough rainfall to even green up the grass, much less start it growing.

But the East is having its troubles, too, if you have been keeping up with the news these days. New York City has a big campaign on to conserve water because their up-state reservoirs are down to 56 per cent of capacity.

The tornado which struck Hale Center Wednesday night, June 2, completely destroyed the home where Mrs. Vera Stuart and her daughter-in-law, Mrs. Larry Stuart and children were living. Mrs. Stuart is the sister of Mrs. H. A. Hodges of Memphis.

Mr. and Mrs. Hodges, who were unable to receive any message from Hale Center after learning of the storm there, drove to that city Thursday morning to find all of the family safe and uninjured... but their home in rubble.

The Stuart family had retired for the night and were awakened by the siren in time to get into the cellar before the tornado struck their home. They also took with them to the cellar an elderly woman who lived down the block.

After the storm passed, a matter of about 5 minutes, Mrs. Stuart came out of the cellar, clad only in pajamas, to find their home and all the contents had blown away. She then went next door to assist a neighbor man, Mr. Bandy, from the rubble of his home. Her son, Jimmy Stuart, employed by the funeral home, drove up in the ambulance and assisted her in getting Mr. Bandy to the hospital.

An employee of High Plains Hospital in Hale Center, Mrs. Stuart put on a surgical scrub gown over her pajamas and continued to work the remainder of Wednesday night helping with the injured.

PLANS JULY WEDDING—Mr. and Mrs. Stacey Waites of Memphis announce the engagement and approaching marriage of their daughter, Lana Kay to Dwight (Bud) Hubbard, son of Mr. and Mrs. John Hubbard of Lakeview. The wedding will be an event of July 2 at 7 p. m. at the Travis Baptist Church in Memphis. Friends of the couple are cordially invited to attend.

Around and About

By HELEN COMBS

Sunday marks the 75th year for the founding of the First Presbyterian Church of Memphis. An all-day celebration is being planned in observance of the occasion. Rev. Avery stated this week that they would be most happy to have their friends attend the afternoon program which begins at 2 p. m. and observe the occasion with them. A social hour is being planned in the Community Center immediately following the program.

Letters have been mailed to former members of the church who have moved away, and no doubt many of them will return for the day. We haven't seen the building, but do know work has been going on for several weeks toward complete re-decoration inside and out . . . so everything is in readiness!

Mr. and Mrs. Sam Hamilton arrived home Tuesday. Mr. Hamilton, who became ill while vacationing in Colorado, is now a patient in the Hall County Hospital.

It's noticeable how the tempo changes as soon as school is out . . . quiet seems to descend immediately . . . and you feel that summer is now here.

As yet not many local residents have enjoyed vacations . . . but already visitors are beginning to arrive here and we have noticed an increase in our personal items the past two weeks. Remember we'd appreciate it if you would drop us a card or call on the telephone to report your out-of-town visitors . . . or any vacation trip you enjoy this summer. Try as hard as we can, we simply cannot keep up with all the happenings without the help of our readers.

We did not get this account direct from Mark Stevenson, son of Dr. and Mrs. Stevenson, but a friend of his told us about the incident. Seems the Stevenson family were vacationing near Austin over the Memorial week and Mark was fishing off the pier. As a boat came near to shore, one of the three men called to Mark. "Son, are you catching any fish?" Mark did not realize it at the moment . . . but it was the President of the United States, Lyndon Johnson, who had called to him. His mother, who was up shore, came down and told Mark he was talking to the President of the United States.

Several friends have requested that we close our comments each week with a favorite recipe. Recently we were at a bridge luncheon and the salad and dessert were so delicious we asked for the recipe. This brought about comment from other guests that we print the salad recipe. This we are doing and can say that you will enjoy it as it's delicious. If you have a favorite recipe that you would like to share, please send it to us.

Work continues on the beautification project this week being sponsored by the 1913 Study Club in co-operation with the City of Memphis, Memphis Chamber of Commerce and Junior Chamber of Commerce. Also assisting with the project is the Memphis Garden Club. Those who have plants or seed to give away are asked to call Mrs. G. D. Stephens. Also those who need seed and plants to beautify their yards are asked to contact Mrs. Stephens, who is in charge of that phase of the project.

Members of the Garden Club have made an extensive study the past few months in horticulture, and some of the "Do's and Don'ts" for growing plants in Memphis was passed on this week in the hope that it will be helpful to some resident who is working toward beautifying Memphis.

The list is as follows:
DO NOT water roses when temperature is high.
DO water using soaking method.
DO water lawn early in the morning.
DO NOT water iris in summer.
DO NOT use weed sprays in the growing season. Use a weed BAR—it is safe for your yard, as well as your neighbor's. Wind will carry weed spray for several blocks.
DO read instructions given by the Chemical Company.

Mr. and Mrs. Eddie Strong and daughter of Artesia, N. M., visited here Tuesday with Mr. and Mrs. James O. Miller and family. The Miller family recently moved to Memphis from Turkey and have purchased the Roy Brewer home, located on South Seventh Street.

Mrs. Mozell Cluster of Dumas spent Thursday night of last week in the Memphis Hotel. She visited Mack Graham while in town.

OUTDOORS IN TEXAS

By VERN SANFORD

Several years ago some 1,800 old automobile bodies were chained down in 60 feet of water off the Texas coast.

Idea was to make three artificial reefs, each composed of 600 car bodies. First one was built off Port Aransas. Others are off Port Isabel and Freeport.

Only 200 wrecked bodies were dumped into the salt water the first go 'round. For a few days there were all sort of rumors about the biologists throwing away a lot of money. They said the car bodies had washed away and no one could find them.

It wasn't very long, however, until boaters smart enough to find where the bodies had been dumped were circling them and coming up with a nice big fish on every trip around. Then some of the very fellows who cried loud against the initial experiment asked for more.

As a result the other two locations were made. They now produce thousands of fish a year.

Homes for Fish

Other states are using similar programs. Some use old auto bodies. Others have dumped in old street cars. One group weighed down old beer kegs with cement and still others have hauled in old freight cars.

Enroute to Dallas, recently, I saw a half dozen old Pullman cars. Couldn't help but think what wonderful fishing reefs they would make.

There is nothing new about building such reefs. It is following the principle of nature. For millions of years fish have been hiding among rocks, old wrecked ships and other protective cover in the bottom of the oceans and lakes.

Perhaps this is one of the major secrets of the fine fishing right now in Falcon Lake, on the Rio Grande, below Laredo. The bottom of this lake is brush lined. Fish like to hide in that brush.

Also for years fishermen have learned to build brush covers in some of our lakes. We heard of one fisherman recently who chained together a bunch of old automobile casings and lowered them into the water at a secret spot where only he knows.

Since he keeps the hole baited he'll have a good fishing spot all his own, until someone else finds it. Then he'll have competition, for it will produce fish.

Building of brush covers and the lowering of automobile bodies or old tires, into a public impoundment, can cause trouble.

In the first place, unless the cover is lowered deep enough it might be a hazard.

Also water supply lakes would not be benefited by such practice.

And on the lakes built by the Corps of Engineers the practice probably would be frowned upon.

For that reason I'd suggest that, if you plan to build a cover in any lake, you first check legal requirements. Then proceed accordingly.

Baited Fishing Holes

Many pole fishermen now bait holes. There are numerous legal ways.

You can lower a bale of alfalfa hay, a sack of corn chops, some old bones or even a gallon of syrup with a hole in the bottom of the bucket. Any of these things will attract fish.

Now we're getting around to a discussion of pole fishing.

With all that can be said of plugging or fly casting, the pole fisherman still is one of the few real lucky persons. After all, it's THE fishing for a man or woman who has the patience and who really enjoys the sport.

Every time I see a woman with a sunbonnet and a man with a straw hat and a cane pole, I feel sentimental. It's a way of life for these people. It's an easy, relaxing, enjoyable life which most of them follow methodically.

But these pole fishermen are learning a few tricks for comfort. I've seen them drive their station wagons to the water's edge, set up nice folding chairs, put a pole holder into the bank, bait the hook, then sit back and take it easy. That is the original way to relax.

Barge Fishing Is Fun

Another way to fish liesurely is to barge fish.

When it comes to easy fishing, barges now offer all the comforts of home. Practically every lake has one or more. Some are just in barns. Others are deluxe structures. Many of them are heated in winter and air conditioned in summer.

They have comfortable chairs, a place for the rod to rest and a snack bar where you can buy a sandwich or something to drink.

All are baited, so most of them pay off real well. At night floodlights are turned on to attract crappie. And usually there are quite a number of big old carp swimming around ready to take a worm or dough bait.

One thing for sure about barges—they provide fishing ease for a lot of people. These folks don't come home dead tired from a day of casting. They sit down in comfortable chairs and enjoy a relaxing few hours, or an evening of neighborly fishing.

And they usually catch fish!

Least understood, yet the most vital piece of equipment for the fisherman, is the hook.

Most anglers are casual in their selection of hooks. Yet the hook is the primary link between fisherman and quarry. More fish are lost because of inferior hooks than any other piece of equipment.

In any sporting goods store there will be countless bins of different hooks. Offhand, most of them look pretty much alike. But upon closer inspection you'll find that all differ in one or several respects. A seemingly insignificant thing like the point can distinguish whether or not a hook is run-of-the-mill or quality merchandise.

A poorly manufactured hook has a conventional round bend, has a point which won't hold its sharpness and rusts easily. When you buy a cheap hook you get just what you pay for... a hook that will lose its sharpness after one or two fishing trips. And unless you inspect the point periodically, dullness may cause you to miss fish.

CAMP SITE—Pictured above are the 23 Troop 35 Boy Scouts at their camp site at Camp Kiowa, as they prepare to attend the Wednesday night Order of the Arrow tap out ceremonies at the corral. Scoutmaster Les Sims and Asst. Scoutmaster Bob Douthitt are checking the boys to see that they have their neck scarfs rolled properly. The annual summer camp for the troop will come to a close Saturday morning when they break camp. So far, the weather has been good and scouts stated the camp was one of the best ever. This morning, the youngsters, working on their nature study badges, got up at 5 a. m. to go bird watching. The boys cooked three meals yesterday climaxing with a fried chicken dinner for themselves and visiting parents yesterday afternoon.

For example, when angling with live minnows you should use a thin-wire hook, preferably one with a wide bend. A heavy-sanked hook wounds the bait, often mortally. On a thin-wire hook the minnow will remain alive much longer.

With a wide bend hook, the point extends farther beyond the minnow and allows easier hooking of a fish that might take the bait.

Most common hook is the ordinary round bend hook. But hooks with a more oblong shape, like the Eagle Claw, are very popular among Texas fishermen.

Two of the more common hooks are the Aberdeen and the Carlisle. The Aberdeen (a style of hook and not an exclusive brand name) usually is made of thin wire with a large bend. The Carlisle has a long shank and a round return bend and is made of regular wire.

Basically, hooks come in three shank length: short, regular and long.

Size of the hook is important. A general tendency among fishermen is to employ hooks that are too large. Even a small hook will catch big fish if the fisherman plays the catch properly and knows how to handle his equipment efficiently.

A perch or bream fisherman, for instance, might select a No. 6 hook when a smaller No. 10, would be far more appropriate.

What goes with this numbering system? Largest number for smallest hooks?

Well, hooks are graded according to different sizes, designated by numbers. In the smallest sizes, hooks range from No. 1 to No. 22 (the later is the tiny one kids catch minnows on). The larger sizes run from 1-0 up to about 20-0. The difference between a No. 1 and a No. 1-0 is four sizes, so don't confuse the two.

Basically, hooks have one of three different bends—round, parabolic and square, or variations of the three. The Aberdeen, as an example, is slightly square, while the O'Shaughnessy is parabolic.

You don't see extremely square hooks anymore since they have a tendency to break at the abrupt bends.

A hook is composed of the eye, where you tie the line, the shank, the bend, the barb and the point.

That protrusion which prevents a hook from slipping out is the barb. That part of the hook from the barb to the tip, and probably the most important feature on the hook, is the point. One with a bad point is practically worthless.

Quality hooks come with hollow-ground points. These feature razor-sharp points and curved barbs which insure maximum penetration and holding power. The "claw" point, a feature of the Eagle Claw hook, curves in slightly. This cuts down on penetration a bit but it holds better once imbedded.

Straight spear points generally are found only on cheap, inferior hooks. They won't hold their edge very long.

Hooks come in several different finishes—bronze, bright, gold-plated, nickel finished, tinned, japanned, and blue. The bronze hook is perhaps the most common. But finish-wise it is a poor choice since it tends to rust easily if not kept dry and away from moisture. Bronze hooks usually are cheap hooks.

Nickel-finish hooks are found on salt-water lures. They resist corrosion and stay sharp. Almost as good is the tinned hook. Hooks with these two finishes are the most expensive.

Third in quality is the japan-finish, which is a lasquer finish of blue-black. This hook has fair resistance to rust and runs slightly cheaper in price than the nickel plated or tinned.

Gold-plated hooks are very popular, but they have a tendency to tarnish easily. Wise fishermen know and understand hooks. In that moment of truth, it may mean the difference between adding something to the stringer or just a story to tell about the big one that got away.

YOUR COUNTY AGENT SAYS

Good cotton insect control just doesn't happen. It must follow a plan. And, according to County Agent W. B. Hooser, the planned program must include use of the right insecticide at the right time, in the right amount, and in the right way. Then when you are right all the way, you can't be wrong, he adds.

In order for cotton producers to have the latest available information on insect control methods and recommended insecticides, Experiment Station and Extension entomologists at Texas A&M University working with their U. S. Department of Agriculture counterparts annually provide this current information.

The information was recently released by the Texas Agricultural Extension Service as L-218, "Texas Guide for Controlling Cotton Insects." Also, in order to further localize the recommendations, guides have been prepared for certain specified areas of Texas, Hooser said, including South Texas, Rolling Plains, the Blacklands and a combination for the High Plains and Trans-Pecos.

Copies of the publications containing information needed by Hall County growers are available at Hooser's office, he said.

He also suggested that growers pick up a copy of B-933, "Cotton Insects." This publication contains valuable information on the life history of cotton insects and how to identify them. The county agent also stated that he has other publications available on

"REMEMBER THE ALAMO" -- the cry that fanned Texas' defeat to victory!

On March 1, 1836, thirty men from Gonzales broke through the lines of Mexican Army Commander Santa Anna to increase the Alamo's defense to 187. This little band of heroes held the Alamo against overwhelming odds for five more days in one of the most heroic struggles to be found in the annals of man.

On March 6 Santa Anna with over 4,000 troops stormed the Alamo, and the last of the heroic band of Texans died fighting. Names like William Barret Travis, James Bowie, Davy Crockett and James B. Bonham became immortal.

The massacre at the Alamo inspired General Sam Houston's men at the battle of San Jacinto. Crying "Remember the Alamo!", the Texans sprang upon Santa Anna's soldiers and in a swift bloody fight won Texas its freedom.

SPEAK OUT FOR FREEDOM ... with U. S. Savings Bonds!

Through the years that have followed, other "Alamos" and "San Jacintos" have inspired Americans to lead and win the fight for Freedom—Pork Chop Hill, Iwo Jima, the Meuse-Argonne Forest.

Today, by purchasing a United States Savings Bond, you can also speak out for Freedom as clearly as the battle cries of old. Every Savings Bond you buy is an investment in Freedom. Buy Bonds at your bank or on the payroll savings plan where you work.

HALF-PAST TEEN

TIPS for OUTDOORSMEN

Live Crawfish

Wise fishermen allow their live crawfish bait to sink to the bottom—where crawfish naturally are found. Also, they remove the two claws so the bait won't be able to grab hold of underwater weeds and brush.

Chamois Skin Bait

Fishermen are a resourceful breed. One angler's idea is to use an old chamois skin for bait.

He washes the skin through several waters, then cuts it into strips of various sizes to resemble real pork rind strips.

He argues that chamois skin is just as pliable as pork rind, and fish don't know the difference.

An added feature is that you can carry the strips in your pocket.

Boy Scout Watch Trick

Every Boy Scout knows how to use his watch as a compass.

Here's how to do it: Hold the face flat in your hand, face up, with the hour hand pointed toward the sun. South then will be halfway between the hour hand and 12 o'clock.

Use standard time and forget the minute hand.

Scale, Or Not To Scale

Whether a fish should be scaled or skinned before cooking depends largely on where the fish was caught.

If it came from cool, clean water, scale it.

But if the fish was taken from a turbid pond or stream, it will taste much better with the skin pulled off. This eliminates most of the muddy flavor.

Don't Snag Your Handgun

Hunters wearing handguns experience constant annoyance at the their holsters hang up on projections when passing through brush.

This needn't be.

Just fasten a left-handed holster to your belt at the back. There the gun will be out of the way of brush, yet can be easily reached by the right hand.

Instant Traction

Hunting and fishing enthusiasts often travel over icy roads—and they often find their wheels spinning helplessly on a spot of glazed ice.

When this occurs, relief can be had in many cases by scraping off the mud that has accumulated under the fenders. This dirt will afford enough grit on the slick spot to supply the necessary traction.

Make Oars Wear Longer

If you will cover the part of your oars that rub against oarlocks, and also the oar trips, with strips of fiberglass and epoxy resin, the oars will last much longer.

Drying Sleeping Bags

Sometimes sleeping bags get downright soggy overnight. You can dry them quickly by spreading them over an opened car hood and starting the motor.

Turn bags now and then, just as you would a pancake.

Gun Rack Cushioning

Most gun racks come with felt strips to prevent gunstock damage.

Replace these strips with ordinary weather stripping. Its foamy cushioning afford better protection and will outwear felt.

Keeping Soap Clean

Keeping soap clean and handy in camp can be something of a problem.

It needn't be, if you will take the precaution to place a bar of soap in the toe of an old nylon stocking. Just hang the stocking close to the wash-up pan, and it will always be ready for use.

Suds come through the nylon mesh as though the stocking wasn't there.

Protecting Axe Blades

A sharp bladed axe or hatchet is dangerous to have around camp, if not protected.

Keep all such tools covered by forcing a length of ordinary garden hose (slit lengthwise) over the cutting edge.

Hose is rigid enough to remain clamped firmly in place when the blade is not in use.

Excellent Match Holder

You can't beat the plastic case of an empty nasal inhaler as a match container for use in camp, or in the field.

Shortened to size it will hold about a dozen matches and keep them dry and ready for use.

For added waterproofing just smear a little melted paraffin on the cap threads.

Outboard Motor Care

Many outboard motors have been ruined by careless handling.

For instance, never turn the motor upside down immediately after taking it off the boat. Water hasn't had time to drain from the cooling system, and will seep into the heated cylinders.

Let the motor cool off and dry out a bit before turning it over.

Non-Fogging Eyeglasses

Fogging eyeglasses can be the ruination of a hunting or fishing trip.

But if you used a commercial non-fogging compound, this nuisance can be avoided.

However, should you fail to bring along any of the commercial stuff, you can get the same protection by covering both sides of the glasses with a thin coating of soapy water. Let the lather dry, then polish with a soft cloth.

This will leave a transparent protective coating that prevents fogging.

Old Motor Fuel

Trying to save the few cents worth of gasoline that might be left in an outboard motor tanks from one season to the next is unwise.

Stale fuel loses a lot of zip and can really foul up your outboard. The old kicker will start more easily, and run better, with fresh gasoline in the tank.

Asthma which afflicts some three million people in the country is not a new disease. The Greeks mentioned asthma as early as the fifth century B. C., using this term to describe all types of shortness of breath. In fact, the word asthma is strictly Greek in origin and comes from the word meaning "to gasp for breath."

Still earlier mention of this allergy is noted as far back as 1550 B. C., at which time relief was sought in inhaling vapors from burning plant drugs.

Thirteen Pioneers Organize Church On Chilly Winter Night

Presbyterian Church, which will observe its 75th anniversary Sunday, has not always been an imposing edifice. In an imposing edifice, beaming with glass windows to catch the Texas sunlight, a base for the primary Sunday classes and an upstairs for entertaining.

The church had its humble beginning on a chilly winter evening in 1890. Thirteen pioneers of the county gathered at the Stephens Hotel to organize the Cumberland Presbyterian Church. The group was led by Reverend A. W. Rogers.

Among the charter members were John G. Noel, his wife Susan, and their children, Mont, Mary, Pearl, George H. Montgomery and (Patty) and children, Maud, George, Jr., and Steven Scott Montgomery.

At the time the group worshipped alternately with the Baptist church in the old frame school house in the southwest part of Memphis. They joined the Baptist in the use of a wooden church on Sixth Street. For the next two years they met together.

In 1912, the Presbyterians purchased the old hotel at Salisbury Street and moved to Sixth and Robison Streets in Memphis. With the addition of a pulpit arch, a steeple and the appearance of the church house and the home of Memphis Presbyterians.

The township of Memphis was growing steadily. Ranchers and farmers, as well as merchants and businessmen, were coming to settle around Memphis. Finding country promising and the acreage, the women and children followed the menfolk to the housekeeping and became citizens in a busy community. Some of these newcomers, brought by faith and upbringing, were Presbyterians who were pleased to join the church circle.

While the ministers for one or another continued to go, Rev. Rogers, the first pastor, had left in 1898. Then came the Reverend H. M. Franks who were well in work with young people organized the first Sunday school. They had come to this "fresh" from the mission in Alaska and on leave from Memphis. Mr. Frank accepted the position as manager of the Orphanage in Dallas.

A. Johnson, editor of the County Herald, and his family were among the early-day members of the church. There was a newspaper published in Memphis even before the church was formally organized in 1890. Blanchard sold his interest in the Salisbury Record to J. C. Holmes in 1889 and the Holmes editorials during the county seat contention made history. After Memphis became the bonified county seat of Hall, the Salisbury Record was purchased by one Eugene de Baurenfiend and renamed the Hall County Herald.

The W. A. Johnson family gave the first stained glass window to the little wooden church on Sixth Street.

By 1911, the congregation had grown sufficiently to feel the need of more room, a new and larger building. So it was that during the pastorate of Rev. R. T. Caldwell, plans were drawn and arrangements with the bank made to construct the present brick church on the corner of Eighth and Robertson Streets. The contract for the building was let to a member of the church, J. S. Cobb.

Built to last forever of bricks burned in the Memphis kiln, the new church was an imposing edifice with a domed roof like St. Peter's cathedral in Rome, but on a smaller scale, beautiful stained glass windows, and a rose window above the pulpit of Christ ascending to heaven. All of the wood trim was solid oak, as were the pews and the magnificent pipe organ, the first in Memphis, was operated by water pressure until it was electrified during the Rev. Swaim's ministry.

Early in its history, the Presbyterian Church became known for its fine choir and though the talented came and went, music played a prominent part in the services from the beginning.

Though the new church was finished in 1911, for some unknown reason, it was not formally dedicated until November 10, 1916, while Brother Swaim was pastor. Dr. B. Wren Webb came all the way from Sherman for the dedication ceremony. It took 29 years to pay for the beautiful structure, but during that time and since, it has been fully appreciated and enjoyed as a place of worship by its members and friends.

Rev. Will T. Swaim served as pastor of the church from 1913 to 1921 and during his residence in Memphis the church and Sunday school reached a peak attendance record. Among other fine things remembered about the Swaims were the way Bro. Swaim closed his prayers with the words, "In the name of Jesus Christ whom, having not seen, we love."

Through the years of Presbyterianism in Memphis, as the need arose, improvements were added for the comfort or edification of its members and all others who enjoyed the facilities of the church. More often than not, it was the ladies of the church who discovered the need and the men who financed it. So in 1913, the pastor's helpers, an organization of the older ladies of the church, purchased individual communion services. To that time, silver cups and pitcher had been used. Henceforth, tiny glasses and a container for carrying and dispensing the elements were used.

In fact, the Presbyterian ladies had been busy in the Lord's work since the early days of "The Ladies' Aide" in the little wooden church. It was while Rev. W. F. Cunningham was pastor that a sort of district missionary society (the forerunner of The Presbyterian) was organized in the parsonage in Memphis. On the morning of April 5, 1907, a local missionary society was organized with Rev. J. M. Cocke of Vernon presiding at the meeting.

Until 1921, the frame house on Sixth Street had been used for a manse. At this time, at a cost of $3,800, the J. F. Folkner house, west of the brick church, was purchased for a parsonage. The realtor in the negotiations, Charlie Webster, was kind enough to refuse his usual commission of $200. This note was finally paid off during Mr. Richer's residence in the manse.

In April, 1959, Richard and Sue Avery came to live in Memphis. The Averys set about their task of keeping the flock interested in the Lord's work and regular attendance to the services. Among other constructive pursuits, Rev. Avery conducted classes in church government about which his newly acquired congregation knew little. Their sincerity and concern for the spiritual welfare and edification of the church members has endeared the Averys to the Memphis Presbyterians.

Also Rev. Avery's work with the young people has been most commendable. As a counselor for the vacation church camp at Ceta Glen, he is as busy in the summer as at other times and his activity in the Amarillo Presbytery identifies him with the district as well as the local business of the church.

Recently, a concerted effort of the membership has made possible some decided improvements in the physical aspects of the church house and premises. A new manse was purchased and moved onto the location of the Old Forkner house, west of the church, in 1962. And, even before that, Frank Finch bought new seats for the choir loft and foam rubber cushions for the pews.

In recent weeks, extensive work has been done in the re-decorating the interior and exterior of the church building. The building has been replastered, repainted and floor tile added.

"We are now ready to extend a 'red-carpet' welcome" to our former members and guests when they arrive June 13 for a grand and glorious day of reminiscing, fellowship and praise to the Lord for our many blessings," members of the committee stated.

Present elders of the church are Temple Deaver, Sr., Clifford Farmer, O. L. Helm, Paul Montgomery, John Deaver, Bill Cosby, Bill Leslie, Mrs. Carl Harrison and Mrs. Allen Grundy.

Present trustees are Joe Montgomery, Temple Deaver, Jr., and Mrs. C. W. Kinslow.

In the 75 years since it was founded the Presbyterian Church has had only five treasurers. They include John Noel, H. E. Deaver, Ewell Noel, Scott Montgomery and Bill Cosby, present treasurer. Sunday School superintendents include D. H. Arnold, Scott Montgomery, Dr. M. McNeely, O. V. Alexander, W. E. Leslie and Virginia Browder.

Former ministers and terms of office are as follows: 1890-1891, A. W. Rogers; 1891-1898, visiting preachers, W. R. Wear and J. L. Lackey; 1898-1900, W. M. Robison; 1900-1902, no pastor; 1902, S. G. Davis; 1903, S. E. McDonnell; 1904-1907, G. M. Hamby.

In 1907, the Cumberland and Presbyterian Church USA in the Pease River Presbytery were united and Brother Cunningham was sent to Memphis.

1907-1908, William F. Cunningham; 1908-1910, H. M. Frank; 1910-1912, R. T. Caldwell; 1912-1921, William T. Swaim; 1921-1922, Eugent B. Kuntz; 1922-1927, Charles E. ## Report From Washington

By WALTER ROGERS
Representative, 18th
Congressional District

I noted in this newsletter recently, the spectre of starvation in much of the world while in the United States we are abundantly blessed as to face the opposite kind—surpluses created by food surpluses less developed parts of the world's 3.1 billion people, now containing 2.2 billion, are having an extremely difficult time keeping food production at pace with their growing nations. Many countries are in the effort and no solution in sight. An increasingly part of their population is being sustained by commodities shipped from the developed areas of the world, particularly the United States and Canada. In the years to come, it is likely that this trend will be accelerated. We may anticipate increases in U. S. agricultural exports, and, I am convinced, the day will yet come when our own increased requirements and those of greatly expanded foreign markets will make a major part of our American farm production.

The challenge to agriculture is to insure that we possess a strong and powerful agricultural economy on into the future. That means we must pre-empt strength throughout rural America, strength from the farm-land through the clusters of communities, through the towns and regional city centers. Agriculture ties the web of America beyond the great industrial centers; when agriculture is damaged, all else in rural America is damaged. It is unfortunately true that all Americans are aware of the problems faced in agriculture, increasing pressures on farm-land from the cost-price squeeze; population away from the cities and smaller cities and leaving economic distress in their wake; continued drought in some sections of the Plains; the decline of rural area representation in Congress and State legislatures because patterns are being realigned through "reapportionment" to reflect the new urban population concentrations. Reapportionment is an issue again being fought in Congress, as those of us who see the growing threat to rural strength exert our best efforts in support of a Constitutional amendment to permit at least one house of two-house State legislatures to be organized on factors other than population.

The full effects of Congressional district reapportionment have not been felt in the House of Representatives. The 90th Congress, to be sworn in January, 1967, will present—regardless of party alignment—a massive majority of urban-oriented House members. Now, with reapportionment planned but not yet in effect in many States (as in Texas), the strategy favoring enactment of farm legislation requires that all farm proposals be combined in one legislative package, tied up in an "omnibus" farm bill drafted with the widest possible appeal to as many groups, on and off the farm, as it is possible. This package approach being taken this year to farm legislation is the reason that no farm bill has as yet been reported by the House Agriculture Committee. The bill won't be ready for debate by the full House of Representatives until the Committee has finished shaping the cotton program section of the bill. Then the House will debate it, and the "city" members, who now outnumber their rural counterparts in a ratio of about seven to three, will provide sufficient support for the bill to pass. The "omnibus" approach is the 1965 strategy. What will be required in 1967 with even heavier city representation is anybody's guess, but this much is certain: All of us interested in the future of rural America must repeat and repeat again, in any quarter where we can find an audience, that American agriculture and the rural economy it sustains must not be damaged further.

As I have told farm groups coming to Washington recently in the interests of agricultural legislation, it is absolutely essential that all elements interested in a strong agriculture speak to Congress and to the rest of the country with a united voice. There are, as there have always been, interests ready to ravage rural America to their own selfish ends. Only unity of approach can assure against their success.

Longtime Businessman Celebrates 70th Birthday

Surprise Party At Store Marks Baldwin Retirement

By HELEN COMBS
"Well, I see it pays to advertise," said Byron Baldwin last Thursday. In making the announcement of the sale of his business to Les Sims the week before, Byron had stated he would turn over operation of the firm to Les Sims on his 70th birthday.

Thursday, June 3, started out as any other day for Byron. Allen Dunbar came by early in the morning for that quick cup of coffee at the local drug store as a beginning for the day!

Looking back, there was one thing that did puzzle Byron . . . Allen seemed to have lots of leisure time that morning and wanted to linger over that cup of coffee, chatting and even taking time to jot down notes in a pocket notebook.

Then, under the pretense of business, he managed to accompany Byron back to the store which was a bit unusual. But, even so, Byron still did not catch on that anything unusual was happening that day. Therefore, when he arrived at the store to find the building filled with friends and business associates, he was completely surprised.

The chorus of "Happy Birthday, Byron" gave him the clue to what was taking place.

Friends of many years had gathered to pay tribute to the man who had rendered service to his community for more than 50 years. Approximately 150 persons called at the store Thursday morning from 9 to 10 o'clock. The telephone rang many times during the day, including six long distance calls from friends and relatives who lived out of town. Byron also received six telegrams that day with "Happy Birthday Greetings."

Serving as master of ceremonies Thursday morning was a friend of many years' standing, Tomie Potts.

Mr. Potts, in his usual clever and unique manner, paid tribute to Mr. Baldwin for his dedicated service to the church and community.

He presented him with a cob pipe after reading the original birthday message inscribed on a card:

"It's just an ordinary cob pipe, Ordinary things are what you like.

As you smoke your Pipe of Peace,
May your enjoyment never cease.
Some blow smoke rings, now and then;
Some blow more than Three Score and Ten.
Whether your smoke rings be large or small,
You'll always have many friends In the County of Hall."

Following the presentation of the pipe, Mr. Potts then presented Mr. Baldwin with an engraved plaque which read as follows:

"The Citizens of Memphis In Recognition of Byron Baldwin Seventieth Birthday, June 3rd, 1965 Retiring on same date from active to private life. Reputable merchant for 50 years. Respected boss . . . outstanding citizen . . . sterling character . . . consideration for others . . . devoted husband and father . . . consecrated Christian . . . active in church, school and civic affairs . . . loyal to town and community. Everybody's Friend . . . A Friend to Everybody. The Man Without an Enemy."

Adding a bit of humor to conclude the program, Mr. Potts said: "Let's take the name of Byron and see what we have. The B stands for Baptist; the Y stands for yarn teller; the R stands for Republican; the O stands for Optimist, and the N stands for neighbor. Take the first three and add Optimistic Neighbor and you have Byron!"

Decorated birthday cake and coffee were served.

messages to the citizens who read our paper. We are proud of our acceptance and our readership. Naturally, we know things like this are taken for granted. But we thought this would be a good time to pass on the facts this year of the 75th anniversary of Hall County.

Also to remember that the First Presbyterian Church is celebrating its 75th anniversary this week. Sure would like for someone to bring in to me an early-day picture of the original church. Just drive by the church . . . the members are giving it a complete renovation job!

A portrait in oils of the late Judge Luther Gribble was presented to Collingsworth County in a brief program of tribute to his memory held Tuesday morning in the district courtroom in Wellington.

The portrait was presented by the Collingsworth County Bar Association and the Wellington State Bank. Area lawyers and friends of many years standing were on hand at the unveiling.

C. A. Williams of Childress, dean of the 100th district lawyers, spoke in tribute to the Wellington jurist who had served for 20 years. Before that time he had served as teacher Cherokee College, teacher Clarendon College, city attorney, county judge.

R. F. Curry, who now lives in Memphis, a lifelong friend of Judge Gribble, gave the invocation. Paul Spillman was master of ceremonies, and also unveiled the portrait. The benediction was given by Rev. Ellis Todd.

Those attending from Memphis were R. F. Curry, Miss Helen Madden, and Mrs. J. C. Wells and Comments.

About—
Civil Defense

By W. B. Hooser
Hall County Agent

Q. We have decided we should be better prepared for emergencies. What kind of training should we take?

A. There is a wide range of training available to fit the needs and interests of most everybody. We feel the most urgently needed training that would help in any emergency or disaster situation is the Medical Self-Help course. This course is designed to go beyond first aid and train us to do what is needed when professional help is not available.

Q. Our local veterans auxiliary would like to have a Medical Self-Help training course. How do we go about it?

A. First, get the facts about the Medical Self-Care program from the local Health, Civil Defense, or Extension office. The Medical Self-Care program must be well organized in order to be effective. Any good leader in your branch" by members of the congregation.

Concluding the program, a Memorial Service will be conducted by Rev. Avery.

A social hour will be held in the Community Center immediately following the afternoon program. Refreshments will be served and those present may inspect a display of pictures, artifacts and documents being set up by one of the church committees.

On display will be many items which will be of historical interest.

Plans for the celebration have been worked out by a steering committee composed of Mrs. Allen Grundy, chairman, John Deaver, Mrs. Gladys Power, W. H. Goodnight, Mrs. C. W. Kinslow, Virginia Browder and Gertrude Rasco.

organization can take this responsibility. Usually it is done under the guidance or leadership of Health or Civil Defense. Your county Extension office is experienced in organizing such a group and can help you locate a capable instructor.

Q. Who is responsible for the Medical Self-Help instruction and program supervision?

A. The State Health Department. The actual instruction can be given by health personnel or by a trained lay person. It is not necessary for the physician to teach the course, but it probably will be more effective if you can get professional leadership of a practicing physician, particularly for Lesson XI.

Q. Why should I prepare and stock my own shelter when the government is marking and stocking public shelters?

A. For many reasons, public shelters are not available or will not meet the needs of many of our people. In a large number of our Texas counties there are no buildings that meet the specifications for government shelters and government stocking. In these areas and in all rural areas, families or groups of families need to develop their own shelter. Even in urban areas more family shelters are badly needed for adequate protection.

Q. Should fallout protection be included in the design of new houses and barns?

A. Definitely. It will be easy to develop dual purpose shelters at little extra cost with proper planning for new construction.

Q. Are new school designs available with fallout protection included?

A. Yes, the Department of Defense, in 1962, requested that the American Institute of Architects conduct a National School Fallout Shelter Design Competition. Twenty-seven designs received included?

Q. What is civil defense?

Civil defense is a calm steady approach for conditioning people against the hazards of all disasters. It makes as much sense in everyday living as in times of emergency.

Q. Why is civil defense important?

A. There are many reasons. Civil defense is preparation to meet many different kinds of emergencies. Civil defense planning and preparation could save millions of lives. Adequate fallout shelters would be a great deterrent to attack. Good civil defense preparation will prevent panic and save lives in any natural disaster. It is

"do-it-yourself" insurance of self-protection. It is good citizenship. Any community that takes its citizenship and civil defense responsibilities seriously will be able to rebuild after any disaster.

Q. What does civil defense mean in international relations?

A. Secretary McNamara has indicated that adequate shelter protection is more than additional retaliatory power. No nation is going to attack a nation that is able to survive and still be prepared to fight back. "Bullies only start fights when they are convinced they can win." A nation's most valuable resource is its people. America will gain the respect of other nations when we demonstrate a constant willingness to protect the democratic principles upon which this nation was founded. This includes respect for the dignity of the individual and concern for his welfare.

Q. When and by whom was the National Shelter Survey conducted?

A. Starting in the fall of 1961, the Department of Defense contracted with a specially trained task force of 5,000 architects and engineers all over the United States to identify potential shelter space in existing buildings, tunnels, caves, mines, and subways—wherever space for 50 or more people could be found that would meet Office of Civil Defense specifications. These spaces were to be the backbone of a national community fallout shelter program.

Q. What were the results of the National Shelter Survey?

A. One hundred and nineteen million shelter spaces were found, but 240 million spaces are needed. This difference could be met largely through the creation of shelter in new construction, as the country builds, and by the improvement of existing structures with good shelter potential. Good community planning certainly will result in the location of additional shelter spaces.

Q. What emergency preparations has our food industry made?

A. Far too little, but a movement is now underway both the USDA agencies and Office of Civil Defense to make adequate food industry emergency preparations. An important new publication has been released. This is the "Guide to Civil Defense Management in the Food Industry" Agriculture Handbook 254. This publication will help the food industry prepare.
