They are Mr. and Mrs. G. A. Blanton and Mr. and Mrs. T. E. Graham. Mrs. Graham and Mr. Blanton were members of the graduating class of Memphis High School in 1915—and that class is holding a 50th anniversary on Saturday evening of Sept. 18.

Why can't the City of Memphis adopt an ordinance like the following adopted by the City of Claude? Why not try some?

Childress and Memphis got in the front page of a large city daily last of the week because crickets became nuisances in Childress, and Memphis was the next town likely to be visited. Childress did some spraying and stopped the crickets, and most of those in Memphis evidently decided pickings were too lean for them to remain long, for the resident here has done a lot of work in beautifying the city.

EDITORIAL A September Election!

Although September is a month of many events, it has seldom been selected as an election month in Texas. Yes, 1965 normally would be an "off year" for voting, but the Texas Legislature has submitted 11 Constitutional amendments to be voted on this year, and one of them will be voted on next Tuesday, Sept. 7.

Only the proposed amendment to decide the fate of a plan to enlarge the Texas Senate from 31 to 39 members will be voted on in a special election set for Tuesday, Sept. 7, the day after Labor Day.

The other ten amendments will be voted on in the Nov. 2 election.

The Texas Co-Op Power Magazine has made an analysis of the proposal to change the number of Senators which has received favorable comment from the rural press over the state. We agree with the conclusion that this amendment should be adopted. Certainly it would be good for this area if able Senators Jack Hightower of Vernon and Andy Rogers of Childress are not required to run against each other, as it will be the case unless the amendment is adopted.

As explained by the magazine, the amendment calls for three changes:

- (1) To remove from the Constitution the restriction that no single county shall be entitled to more than one Senator.
- (2) To increase the size of the Senate from 31 to 39 members.
- (3) To make population the basis for division of the state into senatorial districts rather than the "number of qualified electors" presently provided.

Rulings of the Supreme Court of the U. S. have made it mandatory to redistrict the state on the basis of population rather than "qualified electors."

And such redistricting on the basis of population cannot be done without giving some counties—where cities such as Houston and Dallas are located—more than one senator.

So two of the changes, in effect, have already been made.

The change from 31 to 39 members, then, is the real question that voters will decide.

If the change is not approved, seven senators from the rural areas of Texas are certain to disappear from the Senate.

The 31-member plan already passed by the Legislature throws five pairs and one trio of senators into combined districts where they must run against each other or retire.

The senators who, under this 31-member plan, will have to retire or run against each other, are grouped as follows:

- (1) Louis Crump of San Saba and J. P. Word of Meridian.
- (2) Galloway Calhoun, Jr., of Tyler and Jack Strong of Longview.
- (3) William T. Moore of Bryan and Mrs. Neveille H. Colson of Navastota.
- (4) W. E. "Pete" Snelson of Midland and Dorsey B. Hardeman of San Angelo.
- (5) Jack Hightower of Vernon and Andy Rogers of Childress.
- (6) William N. Patman of Ganado, Walter H. Richter of Gonzales and Culp Krueger of El Campo.

Many of these senators are long-time supporters of rural area projects. And by virtue of their years in the Senate, they have gained both experience and seniority which gives them claims on some of the vitally-important committee posts in the Senate.

Supporters of the plan to increase the Senate to 39 members say that approval of the amendment could make it possible to keep all of these experienced senators who definitely will be lost under the 31 member plan.

These supporters also point out that some of the districts under the 31-member plan cover huge areas with little community of interest.

Lieutenant Governor Preston Smith, presiding officer of the Senate, has called the 31-member districts "monstrous."

An examination of some of the Senatorial Districts under the 31 member redistricting plan, shows one to have 20 counties, which covers a territory which is larger than any one of 17 states in the United States.

Others show little counties lumped in with large population counties.

Supporters of the amendment feel that more reasonable district lines could be drawn for 39 senators than these already set for the 31-member Senate.

If the 39-member amendment passes, a special session of the Legislature will be called to set the district lines.

Labor Day Weekend!

This weekend will be Labor Day Weekend and with it will come the holiday traffic problem. The Texas Department of Public Safety reported that "Operation Motorcade" will again be in operation this year as it has in the past.

Col. Homer Garrison, director of the Texas DPS, said that DPS statisticians estimate that 35 persons will die in traffic during the three day holiday. Violations of the Texas traffic law will be apparent in nine out of every 10 accidents which claim the human life over the Labor Day Weekend, he said.

Last year 39 persons were killed and hundreds injured during the Labor Day Weekend, and almost all had violations of the law contributing factors.

The most common violation was failure to yield right of way, followed closely by violations where the driver exceeded a safe speed for existing weather or road conditions. Other common violations contributing to accidents were: exceeding posted speed limits, failure to stop or turn in time, driving while intoxicated, driving on the wrong side of the road.

The plea is for drivers to observe safe driving regulations during this holiday weekend and we urge all motorists in our area to drive safely and live.

The Texas Junior Chamber of Commerce will have rest stops again this year and the Memphis Jaycees will operate one of these on the Cyclone Stadium parking lot on Monday from 8 a. m. to 8 p. m. Last year over 500 persons used the rest stop facilities in Memphis.

What Other Editors Say

Hidden Meaning?

The federal suit to ban poll tax payment as a requirement for voting in state and local elections poses another threat to private ownership of property. Those who filed the suit probably had no intention of opening up such an avenue but close study of the injunction plea reveals that the avenue is there.

It asks the court to enjoin election officials from requiring the payment of a poll tax or "any other tax" as a precondition to voting and from "conducting any election in which voting is conditioned on the payment of a poll tax or any other tax."

If the injunction is granted, there is clear implication that payment of ad valorem tax on property could no longer be a requirement for voting in a bond election.

Governmental sub-divisions in this state, school districts, make improvements through voter-approved issuance of bonds. These bonds represent a mortgage on the real and personal property in the sub-division issuing them. Ad valorem tax on such property raises money to pay off bonded indebtedness.

The theory in Texas in the past has been that only those who will bear the tax for public improvements should have power to authorize them and vote bonds for their financing.

If the federal injunction is granted as requested and no election can be conducted in which voting is based upon the payment of taxes, restriction of voting on bond issues to those who pay ad valorem tax would be impossible.

Those who do not own property then would be free to impose obligations against property owners that would be confiscatory.

What Are Editorials for, anyway?

In answer to a reader's question, "What are editorials for?" we first wish to state that they are not written to satisfy the ego of the writer—even though he may get a glow out of a compliment when someone agrees with him. On the other hand, he knows that there is someone else who is unhappy about his opinion.

Editorials are not to be agreed with. If everyone slaps you on the back, then it's a cinch you came up with a platitude which might as well have been left unsaid.

Editorials are not to be agreed with. They are written to mature minds with the ability to think on their own. Who is the editor to set himself up as superior to his readers—to tell them what they should and should not do? He is expressing only one man's opinion.

Then what are editorials for? They are to stimulate thought. They are to encourage people to crystallize their own ideas and ideals.

Many times the person who disagrees with an editorial is encouraged to think through his own beliefs and form an opinion he would not otherwise have bothered to arrive at. He is forced to defend his own conviction and thus gets on one side of the fence instead of riding the middle.

Editorials clarify opinion and inform. The editor may be wrong about an issue in most people's eyes, but most readers will grant him the right to his own opinion, just as he grants them the right to their opinion, they can better understand their own.

So, the editor doesn't expect to be slapped on the back for everything he writes; he can expect to make people think, he may persuade some. If he can only make people see the other side of the elephant, he has accomplished something.

If he gains the confidence of his readers to the point where he influences their thoughts and actions, then his responsibility indeed is great. And woe be to the editor who uses his power for other than the greatest good to the greatest number.

As the present publisher wrote when he took over The Dispatch in June of 1957, this newspaper's editorials are intended to fall into one of three categories—"push," "praise" or "prod."

Race Riots In L. A. Described By Former Memphis Resident

(Editor's Note: The following was written Aug. 18 by Virginia Chappell to her mother, Mrs. J. W. Chappell, of Memphis. Miss Chappell is a graduate of Memphis High School, and is employed at Los Angeles County General Hospital, doing social work. Part of the letter, dealing with personal matters, has been deleted.)

Life here is beginning to settle down into its normal routine. The "mop up" is beginning after the riot... with 52 dead counted, and at least $175 million in property destroyed (which insurance companies are refusing to pay because the California attorney general termed the riots "an insurrection" and insurance policies have clauses stating that they will not pay "in case of civil war or insurrection"). It has certainly destroyed a number of business men. The chain stores will probably be able to cover their losses but the little guy... corner grocer, drug store, etc., has had it.

It still seems impossible that it happened. In California in all places, where race relations are so good. But the Watts area where the riots erupted is a symbol of humanity—economical, depressed, uneducated, criminal minded people. I guess there was just bound to be trouble after a while—like a pressure cooker without any valve, it's just bound to explode when the steam builds up high enough. And the thing that scares me most is the knowledge that people back home—even the Negroes in Memphis, Texas—feel just like the ones out here. After hundreds of years of discrimination, prejudice, and ill treatment they are filled with hatred. They are too afraid to express it, but the hatred is there just the same. You can't eat at the back doors of restaurants, sit in the balconies of movies (if you're allowed in at all), watch your kids go to inadequate schools, see your wife called by her first name and you referred to as "boy" all your life without hating. (Can you imagine what it must be like to be an elderly Negro man to be called "boy"—like he had no identity other than his sex? And a woman never to be called "Mrs." with respect but always "Jane" or "Bessie" or "Mary.")

I can't imagine what it must be to look at your children and know that they'll never be able to get as good an education or as good a job without twice the required effort—just because their skin is dark. Believe me, it's the white man's burden. And if we don't do something to make conditions better they are going to rapidly get worse. If the white man doesn't try to cooperate with the Negro intellectuals he is going to be run over by the militant Negro group. Negro people are tired of the non-violent course of action because it's not accomplishing things fast enough. And the hate-whites group is soon going to gain command.

uation much better than I ever did back home. I have Negro friends out here—people on the staff all the way from Negro doctors and professional people down to Negro janitors and attendants. And I've come to know these people, to talk with them, and understand something of what it must mean to be black. That's the problem in the South—Negroes and Whites don't talk to each other. Or when they do the Negro dare not say more than the white man wants to hear (Quote "Us Niggers is happy down here. We gets along fine with white folks. It's them uppity Northern Negroes starts all the trouble"), and the white man is mollified and assured that "Southern niggers know their place."

I don't know what the solution is. But the situation frightens me. The decent, middle class, educated Negro doesn't want riots and bloodshed. He just wants to be treated like a human—to be able to live where he pleases, be eligible for the same jobs as white men, see his kids get a decent education. But their sensible voices are getting lost in the roar of hate-filled crowd. And a lot of good people are going to get hurt needlessly. It will be too late for talk then.

Nothing has happened here aside from the riots. And even that seems almost as remote to me as it does to you. The fighting was miles from us and we certainly didn't venture near the area, so I'm sure you saw as many of the riot scenes via television and newspaper pictures as we did. Of course we felt a more direct effect here at the hospital. The major portion of the riot victims were brought here for care. I worked on Saturday, so I observed a lot of the results—fire, looting, fight victims. It was a sad commentary on man's "civilized" behavior. And, of course, all the public offices in the riot area were closed so that meant problems in working with other agencies, Bureau of Public Assistance, etc. And some of our hospital personnel (nurses, attendants, etc.) couldn't get into work as they lived in or near the riot area. So some of our nursing shifts had to double up, and we were left awfully short handed. It was a confused mess around here. And we also had problems of people who had been burned out of their homes, etc., and we had to send them to Red Cross Disaster Set Ups. It was really a hassle for a couple of days. Things are quiet—but tense—now.

Mr. and Mrs. Jerry Hickey and daughter, Robin, spent the weekend with his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Gerald Hickey.

By VERN SANFORD
A college football coach may have the biggest, fastest, smartest boys in the country. He may have the cleverest formation anywhere. . . "I", "A", "T", or what have you.
But if his team can't block and tackle he might as well play Po-dunk High.
That's why he's constantly teaching fundamentals.
Fishing is the same way!
You may have the best bait-casting rig on the market. You may be able to put a practice plug in the bucket at 30, 40, and 50 feet . . . nine times out of nine.
But if you don't know more than that about the fundamentals of fishing, you'll never catch a black bass except by accident.
You've got to know the FISH!
As often stated the black bass is an ornery critter.
He moves around little except to forage for food. And he doesn't do that often because he home-stays in a place where he can hide and lie in wait for something edible to be washed to him by the current.
So look for him under an over-hanging willow tree, close to the bank, and where the water is deep. All kinds of goodies falling out of the tree: caterpillars, baby birds, and mice.

If there are lily pads there, so much the better. It will be a home for frogs.
If the bank is muddy, that's fine. Crawfish will live there.
If there is a weed bed, that's wonderful. In that hideaway will be small bream and minnows that the largemouth can catch.
Point is if you want to catch fish, you have to put the lure where they are. You have to think like a fish. You have to figure out where he is at what time of day or season, and fish accordingly.
Let's take a lesson from the experts. They contend that most of the bass, and the biggest bass, are deep.
Yep, you can look at the color photographs in the outdoor magazines, and you can see the big blacks jumping after the topwater lures. It's spectacular! In fact, there's nothing else quite like it.
But if you want to catch bass—big bass and lots of them—don't concentrate on topwater lures. Fish deep!

This year the most bass and the biggest bass have been caught in deep water on black jigs. Sometimes a fisherman puts on a pork rind or a pork chunk, or a plastic worm. There's no doubt about it, they add to the efficiency of the lure.
Remember the rule about not hurrying? Take it slow and easy! That's the way to fish the jig if you expect results.
It must go to the bottom and sit there while the big bass looks it over. After awhile move it about two inches. The bass will inspect the jig with more interest. He thinks it might be something alive. But he's not likely to commit himself yet.
Remember you've got all day.
Relax. Move the jig another couple of inches . . . then look out!
If you are in a likely spot, you may get action any minute. The largemouth bass is both cantankerous and ornery. But he is not untirely unpredictable. He takes a lure for three reasons. He is either hungry, angry, or protecting his nest.
That's right, I said his nest. It's the male of the species who makes the nest, fanning out a clean place in the sand or gravel.
He drives the female into this place, where she lays her eggs. He deposits his milt on them and then acts as watchman until the little bass hatch out.
He resents any intrusion and he will pick up any foreign matter and move it out of the nest by picking it up in his mouth.
If that's your lure, you've got a bass.
Other than during nesting time, the bass, male and female will hit a lure from anger anytime it intrudes upon their peace and quietude.
Bass have no regular eating habits, like you and I. They eat when the opportunity presents itself.
A bass will lie in wait in the deep until something to eat comes along. Then he smashes it! He doesn't know what time it is. He doesn't eat by the clock. But he does know when he's hungry . . . which is most of the time.

Shirley Jeanne Baker Wed In New Mexico

Wedding vows of Miss Shirley Jeanne Baker, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. J. C. Baker, Jr., of Roswell, N. M., and Kenneth Randall Thompson, son of Mr. and Mrs. Ernest J. Thompson of Greenville, S. C., were exchanged Saturday, Aug. 21, in Roswell. Vows were solemnized at 2:30 p. m. in a double ring ceremony in the sanctuary of the First Baptist Church.

The bride is the daughter of the former Mildred Lindsey, and the granddaughter of Mr. and Mrs. N. M. Lindsey of Memphis.

Officiating at the service were Dr. John H. Parrott, pastor, and Dr. James N. Morgan of Fort Worth, uncle of the bride. The setting for the occasion included pedestal arrangements of gladioli and fuji chrysanthemums in tones of yellow and bronze. Palms and seven-branched candelabra holding tall tapers completed the setting.

Mrs. Luther Tankersley at the organ presented pre-nuptial wedding selections, and accompanied Connell Taylor, soloist, as he sang "Oh Perfect Love" and "The Lord's Prayer" by Malotte. The traditional wedding processionals by Wagner was used, and the recessional was "Psalm 19" by Marcello.

Bridal Party

The bride was escorted to the altar by her father, who gave her in marriage. She was attired in a formal gown of white organza over taffeta. The empire bodice was scattered with embroidered flowers in a daisy design, and featured a bateau neckline and elbow-length sleeves. The A-line skirt was modified by soft side pleats. Her gown was finished at the back by traditional buttons and loops, and had a detachable wattleu train of embroidered organza.

Her tiered veil of silk illusion was held by a tiara of fluffed maline and pearlized sprays of lily-of-the-valley. The bride carried a cascading bouquet of feathered white chrysanthemums atop a white Bible. Her only jewelry was a single strand of pearls, a gift of the bridegroom.

Mrs. M. B. Smith, Jr., of Lubbock served as matron of honor and bridesmaid was Miss Bubbles Lankford. Both wore street-length dresses of lace over satin in shades of safe ou lait. The gowns were fashioned with slightly scooped necklines, long sleeves and skirts in controlled bell-shape. Head-dresses were matching satin bows. The attendants carried bouquets of yellow spider chrysanthemums accented with velvet ribbons.

John Baker, brother of the bride, attended the bridegroom as best man. Groomsman was Marion D. Barry of Pasadena, Calif. Ushers were John Rowe and Keith Rowe of Roswell.

Mother of the bride attended the nuptials wearing a two-piece knit dress in oatmeal shade with which she wore matching accessories and a green cypripedium orchid corsage. The mother of the bridegroom was unable to attend.

Reception

The wedding reception immediately followed the ceremony in the church hall. Mrs. James M. Morgan of Fort Worth, aunt of the bride, poured punch and Mrs. H. F. Alred served the wedding cake. Other hostesses included Mrs. Harry Burke, Mrs. Everett Lankford and Mrs. R. B. Hudgins.

The bride's table was laid with white taffeta. Swags of net, which overlaid the taffeta, were caught up with nosegays of yellow and bronze chrysanthemums and bits of greenery accented with tulle ribbon. The multi-tiered wedding cake was decorated all in white and topped with a miniature bride and groom. Silver appointments were used.

Miss Dorothy Meaders registered the guests at a table covered with a yellow bouffant cloth of net over taffeta. An anniversary candle which had a small cluster of flowers around its base graced

The skirt had a sheath effect with pleats on each side giving an overskirt look which swept into a chapel train at back. Alencon lace, re-embroidered with seed pearls, banded the entire dress. Her bouffant veil of French illusion was secured by a crown of lace and seed pearls.

She carried a bouquet of a white cattleya orchid surrounded by white elegance carnations atop a white Bible, which was given to the bride as a gift. The tradition of "something old, something new, something borrowed, something blue, with a silver sixpence in the shoe" was observed.

'Sagebrush Saga' Rehearsals In Full Swing

The "set" is being built, the players are busy and interested in learning their parts, and everything is taking shape for the presentation of the exciting melodrama, "Sagebrush Saga," at the City Park the evening of Saturday, Sept. 18.

A Lakeview character, G. D. Hall, has been added to the cast as the "mighty village smithy"! Also, Shirley Miller is to be one of "the town belles"! The search is on for suitable costumes of that era and machines are humming in the homes of The Hall County Singers where ambitious ladies are making their frocks to be worn in this notorious drama as well as on the square and in the parade.

Incidentally, there is increasing interest in the big parade to be Saturday afternoon. Soapy Tribble has secured a span of black cotton mules from John McCauley in that event. A runaway may be imminent. Cowboys are getting their gear together and there is a rumor that a real live Mexican will be riding a saddle from old Mexico properly attired in his native costume.

"You won't want to miss a minute of this gala anniversary festival. So, get your crops laid by and the kids in school and plan to celebrate with the merry-makers during this bang-up extravaganza," Virginia Browder said.

Former Memphian In Foreign Service Says W. Germany Is Top U. S. Friend

An article published last week in the Lubbock Avalanche-Journal concerning a former Memphis resident, Sumner C. Reed, Jr., is a foreign service officer in the Department of State stationed in Germany.

Reed, Mr. and Mrs. Sumner C. Reed, Jr., lived in Memphis for 17 years and he was reared by Mrs. N. A. Hightower of Memphis, his aunt.

West Germany is as progressive as Memphis, Tex.," was the definite opinion in the article. Reed is a native of Memphis, attended Lubbock schools, including Texas Tech, and has been in the Department of State since 1954.

Over two years he has been the security officer for the American diplomatic and consular mission in Germany and Switzerland and maintains headquarters in Bonn, the temporary capital of Germany.

Reed, his wife (a native of France) and two sons recently visited in Memphis with his mother, Mrs. Hightower, and in Lubbock with other relatives. They were in Memphis for at least another year stint in Germany and Switzerland.

Reed said in the Avalanche-Journal article that he might possibly retire in Lubbock, "for our boys are 10 and 15, are sold on Texas Tech." Presently the boys are attending an American school set up by the U. S. in Bonn.

Reed explained that his responsibility as that of a security officer, declined to elaborate on foreign policy and other fields separate from his own, but he was enthusiastic in reporting the economic well-being in West Germany.

Political Thinking
Political thinking and the emphasis of the common people are parallel to those found in the United States. Bonn, to me, is a choice assignment, as I find the people very pro-American, friendly and cooperative on every level," he says.

Actual mechanics of his job entails investigations throughout the area, physical security including protection of American establishments from riots, demonstrations, surreptitious entry, etc., at the same time setting up safeguards for movement and handling of classified material.

"We actually have no problems at all on riots and demonstrations in West Germany, as that is one of the most friendly countries anywhere toward America," Reed said.

He hinted, however, that the German people were gravely concerned about Soviet influence, having known the Russian domination first-hand. "On the other hand," he said, "the West Germans respect and trust us, and West Berlin is a place where Americans can do no wrong."

West Germany is in the midst of a booming economy, he reports, with conditions actually improved over those prior to World War II. "The Berlin Wall? Well, it has served to bring about definite reaction against the Soviets."

Since leaving Lubbock in the late 1930s, Reed has served as a captain in the Army overseas, both in Europe and the South Pacific, from 1941 until 1954, and has been stationed since at embassies in Karachi (Pakistan) and Paris.

Joe Reheis returned Saturday after visiting a week in Wichita and Douglass, Kansas, with his two brothers, William and H. F. Thomas Jefferson was the first president of the United States to be vaccinated against smallpox.

A half-brother, B3R Anokamere 5120, topped the late senior bull calf class and was named reserve calf champion. Two other Bradley bulls stood first and second in their respective classes.

In the female show, B3R Blackcap Bell 5907, a flashy late senior heifer calf won her class and was later tabbed for the reserve champion honors. Three other B3R heifers stood second, fourth and fifth.

The show herd will return home on August 30 and will hit the tan-bark trail again on September 10 at the West Texas Fair at Abilene, followed by the New Mexico State Fair, Amarillo, Lubbock and Dallas.

Richard Stotts, herdsman for the Bradley Ranch, is in charge of the show herd and was assisted by Monte Bradley at the Colorado Fair.

YOUR COUNTY AGENT SAYS

Now is the time to pick up loose ends of this year's work and to start planning for next year's soil usage. Fertilizer is not new, says County Agent W. B. Hooser. For more than 4,000 years, farmers have used fertilizers to increase crop yields.

The Chinese, Greeks and Romans used animal manures, chalk and wood ashes for plant food. They had no knowledge of the chemistry of soils and fertilizers to guide them, but they knew that animal residues and manures increased plant growth.

When white men came to America, Indians were placing a fish under each hill of corn at planting time. They had learned that often this practice meant the difference between a crop and no crop.

First commercial fertilizers were used about 1830, when Chilean nitrate was imported. Guano was also brought from Peru. These two materials stimulated farmer interest in fertilizer and prompted further study into its usefulness.

In 1868, the production of superphosphate from chemicals began in Baltimore. For many years the fertilizer industry remained largely a salvage outlet for waste products from meat-packing plants, fish canneries and oil-seed industries.

Two new processes made it possible for fertilizer to grow into a large chemical industry. These were the recovery of ammonia from by-product coke ovens and the chemical separation of nitrogen from the air.

Don't be led to believe that fertilizer is a "new-fangled" device to drain the farmers' pocketbook, says Agent Hooser. On the contrary, it is a necessity for producing good crops just as food is a necessity for growing strong bodies.

When thinking of increasing forage and livestock production, I would like to remind you that proper management following brush control is more important than the particular method used, says County Agent Hooser.

The objective of brush control is to get the longest control for the least cost, with the largest increase of forage and livestock production. It's always important to maintain a good grass cover, too.

CANDY by Tom Dorr

Since brush control is only one important phase of the overall ranch management program, it should be combined with proper stocking and deferred rotation grazing to be most beneficial.

Deferred grazing following any brush control operation is a must. If a livestock man plans to kill trees without a follow-up of other good range management practices, he would be better off spending the money for supplemental feed.

It's a good plan to use brush control practices on an entire pasture rather than parts of a pasture. The reasoning behind this is that livestock will concentrate their grazing in the areas where brush has been controlled, since this grass will be more nutritious and palatable. Soon the controlled areas will become badly overgrazed. If the entire pasture cannot be treated, it should be deferred following control measures.

Agent Hooser notes that returns from brush control amount to much more than just increased grass production. Added benefits are: (1) Ease of working and caring for livestock, (2) Increased offspring numbers, (3) Less screw-worm and other parasite damage.

(4) Livestock is more tame, (5) Increased food and cover for deer and quail and (6) Less breeding males are required.

If a good seed source is not available on the area to be controlled, defer for one growing season to determine the kind of grasses present and to determine whether additional native grass seed should be planted.

For methods of brush control, Agent Hooser says there are several Extension bulletins available in his office.

Keeping the tractor in good repair is a loose end often overlooked. Farmers who fail to service air cleaners on tractor engines are buying a quick ticket to the repair shop, says County Agent W. B. Hooser. He explains that more tractor troubles result from lack of air cleaner service than any other single cause.

An average tractor engine takes in about 8,000 gallons of air for every gallon of fuel it burns. Therefore, an engine burning four gallons of fuel per hour will use almost one-third of a million gallons of air in every ten-hour period.

Under normal field conditions this amount of air will contain close to one-half pound of dust and dirt. Without an air cleaner, this dust would destroy a tractor engine in about half a day.

Oil bath air cleaners should be serviced after every ten hours of engine operation. Old oil should be removed, the cup scraped clean of dirt, washed with kerosene and refilled to the oil mark with clean oil.

Dry type cleaners should be serviced according to manufacturer's directions in the operator's manual, Hooser concludes.

Social Security Changes To Be Given At Meeting

"A general public meeting, about the new changes in the social security law, will be held in Memphis," Hal Geldon, District Manager of the Amarillo Social Security District Office, stated today.

"We realize there is intense interest in the 1965 Social Security Amendments, and this meeting is open to all citizens of the community and county," Geldon declared. The meeting will be held at 7 p. m. Monday, Sept. 6, at the American Legion Hall.

Speaker at the meeting will be Gerald Millard, Field Representative of the Amarillo Social Security District Office.

Geldon pointed out that the meeting is free of charge and is being offered as a public service. It is in addition to the regular visits to the community by the social security representative. He suggested that persons wanting general information about the new social security law attend this night meeting rather than visit the social security representative during the day.

"By attending this meeting, the person will avoid having to take time off from work and also having to wait an undue length of time to get the information from the social security representative during the day," Geldon stated.

Skin divers should be aware of the danger of using ear plugs while diving, as the plugs can seal the external auditory canal and cause ear damage or they can be rammed deeply into the canal during a deep dive and do direct injury to the middle ear.

Five or six out of every 100 social drinkers may become excessive drinkers, and one or two of every 100 possibly may become chronic alcoholics.

FARMING as an occupation is getting more hazardous each year. Although the Texas farm population is declining, farm accidents are on the rise.

Increased mechanization is a big factor. Machines allow the farmer to do much more work than previously, but they also increase his work load. And as fatigue sets in, the accident potential rises.

The number of Texas farmers decreased some 45 percent in the last 15 years. But accidents have jumped an alarming 66 percent.

On the national average, death rates from farm accidents varied by age groups. Increasing rapidly after age 49, the rate was more than double the U. S. average for those farmers who were still active at 75. Highest farm accident death rate for any group under 50 is among those 15 to 24 years of age.

The leading cause of accidents on farms is machinery, followed by drowning, then firearms, falls blows, burns, electricity and poison. Machinery accounted for 37.6 percent of the more than 9,000 fatal accidents on U. S. farms in the last three year period. This makes farming more dangerous than work in mines, quarries and industrial factories combined.

February through July is the most hazardous part of the farming year. Machinery accidents are highest during planting and harvesting season. Firearm fatalities increase throughout the summer and fall, then decline steadily from January through May.

Texas Agriculture Commissioner John C. White recently joined the National Safety Council in urging greater safety factors to be built into farm machinery. "Automobiles are claimed to have more attention among safety engineers," White points out. "We'd like the same attention to be directed towards farm machinery."

DON'T TURN A WEAPON ON YOURSELF

Pesticides are weapons a farmer's natural enemy like all weapons, they should be used with caution, Agriculture Commissioner John C. White warned recently.

The summer months are of heavy pesticide use—of danger when chemicals are properly handled.

"Read the directions on the label," Commissioner White said. "Private and government agencies spend millions of dollars terminating proper use of chemicals but no power on earth can protect the user from accidents unless he follows instruction."

Full and explicit directions on maximum safety and effectiveness are required by the Texas Department of Agriculture to be on the container. Much time and money are also spent state and federal authorities checking to see that these instructions are followed according to the directions.

"But farmers must realize that pesticides are a weapon against his natural enemy should be 'pointed' only at enemies—never at himself or his production," White said. "Residues from pesticides improperly applied to crops result in those crops being off the market."

Report From Washington

By WALTER ROGERS
Representative, 18th
Congressional District

C. HOME RULE IS BAD LEGISLATION

Washington, D. C., is unique among U. S. cities because every citizen "owns" a share in it and has a very vital stake in the events that take place there. Because it is the Nation's capital, every citizen can regard Washington as his city, regardless of his place of residence. Washington is the U. S. Federal Government's home. The Federal Government is responsible for being its major employer, and the major employer of the people who live here. The city of Washington is an unpopulated woody marsh on a hillside at Mount Vernon, a familiarity with lands along the Potomac River, selected the site for the Federal City. The building father had determined the seat of our National Government belonged in a Federal City in which no subordinate governmental authority could hold sway. Washington is again caught up in the emotional cry of "home rule." The objective, home rule advocates tell you, is for the residents of the District of Columbia to be permitted to govern themselves. They want Congress, which has given authority by the Constitution to direct District affairs, to hand its powers over to an elected city council. At the same time, they want Congress to continue to provide massive sums to support District of Columbia government in the style to which Washington residents have been accustomed—and a style of city government I assure you, that many U. S. cities wish they could emulate.

"Home rule" sounds good. It is a catchy phrase. It is an emotional appeal to the normal American sense of fair play and belief in democracy. Yet, "home rule" as proposed in the bill which has passed the Senate and may come before the House is repugnant to the Constitution. In effect, it creates a new State, with this exception: The Federal Government will finance it.

I find these provisions of the "home rule" bill among the most objectionable:

It provides a built-in, automatic formula for computing the Federal dollar support of the district government. The formula is based upon amounts the Federal Government would pay in private taxes, personal property taxes, and business taxes, if it were a private industry. In addition, the Federal Government would continue to pay the District of Columbia water and sewer charges. To apply this formula, the D. C. assessor would be called upon to place an assessment on the U. S. Capitol. How would he do it? On what basis? Would he use current market value, the original cost, or the cost of replacement at today's prices? All three are well recognized methods of valuation. Imagine the D. C. assessor's problem in applying them to the Capitol, the White House, the Library of Congress, other Federal buildings in this city. The Federal Government would, under the terms of this bill, have to make a payment to the D. C. Government tantamount to an ad valorem property tax, even on post offices within the District of Columbia and on flags flying over the Capitol.

Completely opposed to the Constitution, in my view, is the provision of Federal funds based on the above formula. It is an unconstitutional delegation of the appropriation authority of Congress and of the House of Representatives, which is the only body of Congress which can originate general appropriations bills.

I object also to the provision which provides for an elected D. C. mayor, 14 councilmen from 14 wards with 5 more councilmen elected at large—with complete control of the Washington police department. I object to the fact that the bill makes the U. S. President a kind of supermayor, requiring him to oversee the acts of the city council and giving him, not the Congress, veto power over them.

Our government is based on a dual sovereignty philosophy. In other words, each of the 50 States are separate and distinct sovereignties. Joined together, they constitute the Federal Government—the Federal sovereignty. To believe in "home rule" for the official Federal district is to do violence to the basic doctrine of our dual sovereignty governmental form. D. C. "home rule" is extremely bad legislation.

Tindall Gins First Bale Of Season Wed.

H. Carl Stout, who operates a farm in Collingsworth County, 11 miles east and three north of Memphis, brought the first bale of cotton to be ginned in Memphis here Wednesday morning.

The bale was ginned at the J. M. Tindall Gin yesterday and weighed 595 lbs. and yielded 1100 lbs. of seed, Mr. Stout reported.

To the knowledge of this newspaper as of Thursday morning, no Hall County bale of cotton has been gathered and ginned as yet.

Mr. Stout reported this is his third first bale to be ginned in Hall County.

The first bale he helped gather belonged to his father, the late W. M. Stout, when he was five years old, in 1893 and ginned at a gin located east of the railroad track at a two stand hand fed gin.

The second bale was ginned in 1094 at a new style gin his father helped build at Hulver, west of Estelline. This was the first new style gin built in Hall County and so much cotton was planted that year that other gins were built, he said.

Turkey Has 25 Boys Out For Turks Squad

The Turkey Turks football season gets underway Friday, Sept. 10, when the team travels to Happy for a non-district contest.

Coach Joe Bob Barnhill this week said that 25 boys are out for the team and the squad has 11 returning lettermen.

Returning lettermen include: Barry Lane, 165-lb. fullback and a senior; Jerry Lane, a 165-lb. fullback, senior; Jim Robison, a 170-lb. senior guard; Benny Setliff, a 160-lb. senior guard and tackle; Harvey Case, a 170-lb. senior end; Rod Mullin, a 180-lb. junior tackle; Denis Denton, a 140-lb. junior guard; Charles Hamner, a 155-lb. junior halfback; Alton Setliff, a 145-lb. junior quarterback; David Brown, a 160-lb. sophomore center, and Johnny King, a 145-lb. sophomore halfback.

Branding Iron Party Set For Next Thursday

All cattlemen are invited to attend a branding iron party and wiener roast at the Memphis City Park beginning at 7:30 p. m. Thursday, Sept. 9, Tommie M. Potts, chairman of the 75th Anniversary Celebration, announced today.

The purpose of the party and wiener roast is to make a branding iron display to place in the showroom window of West Texas Utilities Co. office, Potts said.

All cattlemen are asked to bring their branding irons and a short history of their branding irons to the park. Potts explained that at the party, the association will provide boards for the cattlemen to brand.

"We are having the branding iron party early so we will be able to have the brands on display prior to the celebration," he said.

The branding irons will give quite a history of the cattle industry in this area over the years.

It was explained that the irons do not have to be in present use, only that at one time they were legal markings for livestock, he said.

Flood District Meeting Set At Lakeview Sept. 7

An invitation was issued Wednesday to all persons residing in the area comprising the Hall and Donley Counties Water Control and Improvement District to attend a meeting in Lakeview next Tuesday night, Sept. 7. The session will begin at 8 p. m., and will be held in the Lakeview Grade School auditorium.

In making the announcement, Paul Montgomery, president, said that a full report of the flood control district would be made, as well as plans for the future would be outlined.

"We want to urge all interested persons to attend this meeting," he stated. "Whether you are a resident of the district or not, come on out. This will be an important meeting."

thing that will help to get Memphis beautified before the 75th Anniversary?

City of Claude adopted a "weed and litter" ordinance the purpose of which is to "require owners of any lot or lots within the city to keep the property free from weeds, rubbish, brush and any other objectionable, unsightly or unsanitary matter." It provides that the city notify the property owner and request he clean his property and provides the city may clean each lot and impose a lien against the property for cost if the owner fails or refuses. A plan was also approved whereby the out-of-town property owners could authorize the city to have their property looked after and be billed for the same.

Learn to sympathize with all your fellow creatures. Put yourself in their position, and invest yourselves with their circumstances. Look at things from their point of view; and whenever you feel inclined to slight any person, try to fancy what you would have been if you had been born and brought up amid the same surroundings. You will come to the conclusion that you would have been very much the same as he is, and you will now be inclined to make less of his faults and more of his virtues than you would otherwise have done.

Sympathy is the best of all the poetical graces. The poet has fancy, has imagination, has the gift of language, but he is sympathy personified, a living embodiment of sympathy.

Why is Shakespeare the greatest of the poets? Because he has given the fullest and most faithful representation of all classes of mankind. How was he able to do this? Because his sympathy was boundless. It roamed at large, and inhabited the whole of humanity. It entered the hearts of all men, from the king to the clown, felt and understood all their families and represented them impartially and yet lovingly.—The Libeionist, Findlay, Okla.

I let an anniversary of sorts go by last week without mention. Maybe I should try to forget the month and year I first worked in a print shop, but I doubt it as I have no regrets for the forty years I have spent in the newspaper business in various capacities. Forty years in one profession might seem like a long time to a beginner, but when you are looking back it doesn't seem so long. We have had many happy experiences in the weekly newspaper business. It is the ideal spot to be in touch with all segments of community life. The lack of financial remuneration is more than made up for in the satisfaction that goes with the privilege of being an active participant in the projects designed for the betterment of the community.—B. M. Nelson, in The Castro County News.

He was employed by the Board for Texas State Hospitals and Special Schools Nov. 12, 1962, in which employment business in 64 counties of the state were transacted, plus some out-of-state work. Most of this has been in probate work.

While studying at the university, a course in federal income tax was taken, along with a course in legal accounting.

The bride's going-away costume was a three-piece beige knit suit with which she wore brown accessories. Her corsage was a cypripedium orchid. After a short wedding trip to Ruidoso, N. M., the newlyweds will be at home at 4520 James Ave., Fort Worth. Mr. Thompson will be attending Southwestern Baptist Theological Seminary and the bride will be teaching in the Fort Worth Public Schools.

The bridegroom attended NMMI two years, and received his B. A. degree from Pasadena College in Pasadena, Calif., this summer. Mrs. Thompson was graduated magna cum laude from Baylor University in June. Both are 1961 graduates of Roswell High School.

Out of town guests included Mr. and Mrs. J. C. Baker of Crockett; Dr. and Mrs. James N. Morgan, Janice and Judy of Fort Worth; and Mrs. Dennis Gastineau of Pasadena.

Memphis fans will see a different type of offense run by the Cyclone this season in the "pro set", a winged T with split ends. The coach said he felt this would open up the game and allow the Cyclone's lighter boys to have some maneuvering room.

B Team

The Memphis B football team will begin its season play next Thursday night at 7 p. m. in Cyclone Stadium against Childress B team.

The Memphis lads will play a full 10-game schedule, playing each Thursday night at home or away. The B team plays six home games and four on the road.

Teams to be played include Childress, McLean, Wellington, Clarendon and Canadian.

Junior High begins its seven game schedule on Sept. 16 at McLean.

Quick Attaching Sinkers

Mrs. Mollie E. Welcher of Brownfield died Thursday, Aug. 26. She is the mother of Jeff Welcher of Memphis.

Mrs. Theo Swift is undergoing treatment at a Dallas hospital.

Mr. and Mrs. J. R. Adamson, Sr., were in Lubbock Monday to attend the funeral of John B. Miller.
