Heavy Rains, Hail Lash Farms West Of Lakeview

Peace Officers To Hold Talent Contest

Rains falling during the past three days have been welcomed in most areas of Hall County. However, one hail storm late Tuesday destroyed crops in an area west of Lakeview.

Accompanying the hail were heavy rains measuring two and a half to three inches between Lakeview and Lesley. Hail damage in an area about one-half mile wide and several miles long beat crops into the ground. Included in the farms damaged by hail were James Richburg, Wendell Mitchell, Hank Reed, Mutt Wansley and Worth Howard, and possibly several more.

The Deep Lake area, just south of the halled-out area, received no damage, it was reported. The rainfall varied from one-half to one inch in this area.

Lesley area received good precipitation, and the Brice area reported about one-half of an inch from Tuesday's rainfall.

The Turkey area received an inch or more, and the rainfall apparently was general in the area.

Estelline area received about one-half inch of rain. Reports stated it was spotted in amounts from the southeastern portion of the county.

Memphis received an official total of 1.22 inches as recorded by Rayford Hutcherson, official weather observer. To the south of Memphis for several miles, the rainfall was about one inch. However, to the east of the city the amounts were light, according to reports.

The Plaska area also received good rains as did the Ox Bow crossing area.

An examination of last year's rainfall records reveals that the Memphis area has received as much rainfall this year as of July 20 as was recorded last year on the same date, 7.65 inches.

All persons of the area with talent are invited to enter the United Peace Officers of America Talent Contest which will be held in Memphis on July 28 at 8 p. m. in the Community Center, Elmer Neel, Hall County sheriff, has announced.

There is no age limit for entries, and the contest is open to anyone. The winner from Memphis will compete against the winners in four other communities in the final contest on Aug. 25. Winner from the area will be given a free trip to the Astro-dome or 6 Flags Over Texas whichever he or she prefers.

Proceeds from this series of shows will be donated to the educational fund of Boys Ranch. A boy from the Ranch will be present at the Memphis program to give his life's story.

To enter the contest, persons should contact Sheriff Elmer Neel in Memphis either personally or by mail, stating name, address and type of talent.

Rural Accidents Can Be Prevented

The week of July 23-29 has been proclaimed National Farm Safety Week by President Lyndon B. Johnson, and for residents of Hall County, the observance is certainly an important one.

The President in signing the proclamation emphasized "Agriculture remains America's first and most important industry. It supplies food for our people and many millions throughout the world, and a vast measure of the raw materials used in the making of other products.

"Therefore, whatever diminishes or impedes the efficiency and productivity of our farmers is detrimental to men and women everywhere."

The objective of the National Farm Safety Week is to draw attention to the safety problems of farm and rural people and suggest ways to prevent accidents on the farm, in the home and on the highways.

In view of the costly loss of economy and the tragic loss of life, President Johnson makes this plea to America's farmers and their families: "I urge all persons who live on farms, and those persons or groups allied with agriculture, to respond to applying full energy to the outgoing task of reducing accidents at work, in homes, at recreation, and on the highways."

Each year, farming operations on Hall County farms, grow in complexity, and its hazards grow in proportion. This is the most dangerous time of the year for the driver—not only the man on the road, but the man in the field. As the complexities of agriculture increase, as competition becomes greater, the hazards grow in proportion until farming stands No. 3 in death rates when compared with other industries. Only mining and construction surpass farming in deaths per 100,000 workers.

Farm population has been cut in half since 1950 and naturally the number of deaths on farms has dropped in annual figures. However, the death rate percentage figure has climbed to a record of 66.3 per cent by 1965, the latest figures available from the National Safety Council.

These are not someone else's dangers . . . they are Hall County's, and the injury and pain is to Hall County's people.

Our farming revolution has been swift and radical, and its dangers are new and devastating. We can, and are, learning to live with them, for mechanized farming is here to stay.

Chemical farming came quickly, too. Powerful insecticides and defoliants save our crops from infestations that only a few years ago, we stood helpless before. Yet these chemicals pack a grave danger unless they are handled properly. Manufacturers are specific in their safety instructions. It's up to the user to carry them out.

The old dangers of rusty nails and angered or frightened animals are still present on our farms and ranches, and dangers of chemicals, electricity, and machinery have been added.

Farm accidents can be prevented—by farmers themselves. The same concepts you use to assure a successful harvest will work in accident prevention: good planning, good practices and leaving as little as possible to luck.

During Farm Safety Week, we urge Hall Countians to take a close serious look at the safety regulations in farming operations. Safety must be observed at all times or accidents will continue to kill thousands of farm people and disable many more.

By Vern Sanford

On the bulletin board in the office of a large Texas firm is a huge chart. It shows the vacation schedule of each employee. Also the route each will follow on his or her vacation trip.

In nearly every instance each employee had specified where he would be spending the night. In addition, each gave a description of his or her automobile, its color, make, model, year and license number.

"So far it has never been necessary to make an emergency contact with any of our vacationing employees," said the office manager. "However, if any emergency ever arises, we can easily get in touch with any person."

Isn't this a good practice for anyone to follow who travels? This, whether he be a salesman, hunter, a fisherman or just vacationing.

Much contacting trouble can be eliminated by the simple process of keeping your automobile description and license number on file in your office or with someone who may need to contact you.

A friend of mine, who travels a great deal, files what he calls his "flight plan". He makes three copies of his itinerary. One he leaves with his secretary, the other with his wife and the third with the girl at the office switchboard. Thus he has a three-way assurance of being reached in case of an emergency.

There are all kinds of safety precautions which may prevent a serious accident, either in your car or on the water. Remember—this is vacation time. Usually it is one of the most disastrous periods of the year. People hurry to the summer vacation spot. Then dash hurriedly home to get the kiddies back to school.

As a result of all this hurry, each year several hundred motorists fail to make it home in one piece. Tragedy is even greater when we start out for pleasure and end up with a serious accident. It mars forever the joy we might have had. All the precautions we take may never be enough. But if one life is saved . . . some misery is prevented . . . it's well worth the effort to exercise care.

These same practices should be employed by the boater.

Every person who goes out in a boat should have an efficient life preserver. It shouldn't be just a makeshift, something merely to comply with the law. It should be a life preserver that will work under the most difficult conditions.

Just a seat cushion is all right for the person who is a good swimmer . . . if he can take it with him when he goes overboard (which is seldom possible) . . . or there's someone to toss it to him when he hits the water. But a cushion is inadequate for most women and children and quite a few men. Few know how to use them.

Even a ski-belt would be better. The standard, round-like-a-doughnut, life preserver, with rope attached, is much better.

A body fitting life preserver is much, much safer, especially when going out over open waters. In fact, such a preserver just could be the most important item aboard the boat.

Outdoors people should take along a first-aid kit. There are many times when a small amount of antiseptic, a simple bandaid or a piece of gauze comes in mighty handy.

One of my friends always carries with him a pair of tweezers. In hunting and fishing he soon learned it is easy to back into cacti and get a seat filled with thorns. His tweezers have paid off more than once, especially for some of his guests.

All of these things are important safety factors when going outdoors. It might be well for you to do a little checking and make some provisions for your own safety and convenience.

If this column upset you, it was entirely intentional. Just hope it makes you a bit more careful whether motoring on the highway or boating on the waters.

Some 3,500 nursing homes and related facilities with an excess of 250,000 beds are providing "extended care" for Medicare beneficiaries. In Texas, 180 of the approximately 200 medicare extended care facilities are nursing homes. Texas has the third largest number of ECF's of any state.

Members of the Riding club reported they were pleased to have a good crowd of local residents attend the event and extend an invitation to the public to attend the practice session which will be Thursday, July 20 at 7:30 p. m. at the local arena.

Charles Page of Clarendon won the Belt Buckle for the best average of individual riding with a score of 64.4 over the three events.

Other Insects
Yellow Striped Armyworm, Garden Webworm, and Cabbage loopers were found damaging the leaves in several fields in Hall County. Grasshoppers were very heavy around fields near pasture land.

Try this: wash off the seeds from grapefruit and plant them in shallow bowls for some household greenery.

Necks of birds have greater freedom of motion than snakes. In the sparrow there are 14 vertebrae. The swan has 23.

Texas needs to buy another million acres of land for its wildlife program before prices get out of reach. This word comes from the Parks and Wildlife Department.

Today the State of Texas already owns 146,000 acres of land scattered around various ecological areas. It is estimated that the 33,000 acres needed under this proposed program would cost approximately $23,000,000 to be paid for with $7,000,000 in funds from unappropriated Federal funds, which must be used within a two-year period.

Federal funds are a part of the excise tax on hunting and fishing equipment, which reverts to Texas and other states each year. This proposed purchase is for wildlife only. It does not include the more than 1,000,000 acres needed for park and recreation development within the state.

Funds for the wildlife purchase come from the sale of hunting and fishing licenses.

Park funds come from the general revenue, use fees and concessions.

Space problem is growing. A half-century ago, with only 4,000,000 population, wildlife had been greatly reduced in the state because of over-kills, illegal slaughter and lack of game management.

Today Texas has nearly 12,000,000 population... but more deer and turkey than any other state. Deer are so plentiful in many areas, the bag limit is three. This liberal bag has been set to improve the ratio and keep the deer herds in balance.

This year deer and turkey face serious depredation problems. There is a severe food problem. Today most of the ranchers who charge a fee for hunting must feed the wildlife on their property.

Wildlife range has been continuously reduced. Texas reservoirs of more than 2,000 acres each have taken 680,000 acres of land that might otherwise have been wildlife habitat. Of course, these lakes provide fishing and other recreational features. It is estimated that the new lakes now under construction and planned before 1990 will cover another 1,000,000 acres of land.

In addition, more than 5,000,000 acres of brush land on the Rio Grande plains of South Texas have been lost by heavy brush control aimed at increasing livestock production.

Many thousands of acres of land in the South Plains and Texas Panhandle now are cotton and grain farms, with no cover at all for wildlife.

P&W department says that game management research studies on private lands are not possible. Suitable studies of big game require several years of uninterrupted work. During that time, privately owned land can change ownership, or even its stock management practices may be changed because of weather or market conditions.

Land now owned by the state, not only has been turned into an outdoor laboratory, it also has provided free hunting for control of surplus. There several such areas.

In the Hill Country, for example, is the Kerr area. Here a management program has been in progress for something like 10 years. Here, as in many other areas of the state, one can see wildlife management first hand. It would be well for every hunter to visit the refuge in his area. He would give better support to wildlife management.

There is no doubt about it, the old game and fish commission instituted a program that will last for years. But it must be augmented for the ever increasing population and growing number of hunters and fishermen.

Perhaps the plan now at hand will do just that.

Here are some outdoor facts of interest:
Biologists say a young cottontail rabbit has only one chance in 20 of reaching its first birthday. But there are plenty of rabbits to go around.

An elephant can submerge and tread the bottom of the river as long as it can push its trunk out of the water.

Ever wonder how a bird sees so well? It's two eyes often weigh more than its brain.

Science has discovered that honey bees look first for the color of the flower, then for the scent, before they take the nectar.

Keep your hooks sharp. Always have a small hone handy in your tackle box. Pulling lures across rocks dulls the hooks fast.

Bass fishermen would do well to take a crappie rig along... especially in the poorer bass fishing weather. Gear might include small crappie jigs or a rig with a snelled crappie hook and sinker. Then you can convert to pan fishing most any time the bass quit hitting.

Night fishermen do better when they move their light out a little distance from the boat. This is easily by using a piece of plywood fastened to an inflated inner tube. Anchor the lantern on top of the board and let it float.

Need a safe rod holder on your boat? Get a piece of plastic hose, like that used in sprinkler systems—or a piece of radiator hose—large enough to take your rod handle. Fasten it to the side of the boat and place the rod handle inside. It works fine.

Always keep your stringer tied short enough that it won't get in the way of the prop when you start your outboard motor, or when trolling. Many fine stringers of fish have been lost because a stringer was severed by a prop.

If your boat doesn't have loops to attach minnow buckets or fish stringers, get a few eye hooks and put them through the gunwale. Just be sure you file the outside threads smooth.

You can make an easy plug knocker by using a six-inch length of garden hose. Slit it unevenly. When your plug hangs, slip the piece of hose over the line and let it down. Usually, the weight of the hose will knock the lure loose.

Protect your rods. Carry them in metal rod cases. Cases are cheap

This is the time of year when most farm accidents occur. We may hurry a little more to make up for delays. We may be so busy we become careless.

Farm Safety Week is your reminder that a few minutes of your time now is worth your life or your arm. Power farming is more dangerous than making dynamite. Every day, 11 farmers die and 89 more are seriously injured in farm accidents.

By Jim Roark

"Who will sell a blind horse praises the feet," German Proverb.

"Horse Tradin," by Dr. Ben K. Green is a dandy book for young adults and adults. Historians and writers of other categories have completely ignored horse trading. This is a collection of twenty authentic tales of Dr. Green's horse trading experiences in his earlier years, and he would have done well to heed the proverb quoted above. He is a keen observer with virtually total recall of the personalities of people, horses and mules. Before the book was published it went into its second printing, and well it might, for it is a most important book of Texanna.

The importance of the book is no greater than the importance of the author. His life has been, and is, a most unbelievably interesting one because of his outstanding authority on horses of all breeds.

He is a graduate of Cornell University in veterinary medicine with postgraduate work at the Royal College of Veterinary Medicine in England. He is now retired, and lives on his ranch at Cumbeys, Tex. Widely travelled in delivering his horses, his hooves barely taps the front of his tales.

The library in Memphis has a first edition of "Horse Tradin". We country bred folks can most thoroughly appreciate it, and be proud of a Texan such as this.

Adequate Insurance

IS ONE FORM OF

Farm Safety

You can reap greater profit by safe farming. We urge you to take every precaution against farm accidents. It will save you money . . . it will save you pain . . . It may even save your life.

One farm accident not only costs time and property loss, but replacements come out of future income . . . and that is loss of money, too . . . money earmarked for investment, improvement, or pleasure.

There are many forms of insurance you may not know about. The cost is low, and in case of farm accident, you are protected against costly loss. Let us explain a common-sense insurance program to cover your needs.

Parcel Post Deliveries To Be Made Six Days Each Week By Local P. O.

Postmaster Gene Lindsey today announced that parcel post deliveries in Memphis have been expanded from five to six days a week as of Wednesday, July 12.

This is in line with a recent directive from Postmaster General Lawrence F. O'Brien following the signing of the Post Office Department appropriation bill by President Johnson. The legislation contains an $8.5 million item for restoration of the six-day a week delivery which had been cut back in May 1964 as an economy measure.

Memphis Post Office will continue from now on to deliver Parcel Post packages six days a week, including Thursdays.

The Memphis postal official noted that the improved service will remove an inequity for many business and residential routes.

Postal customers served by "motorized" letter carriers have been receiving six-day deliveries all along. They were not covered by the 1964 cut-back inasmuch as carriers on vehicles can deliver parcels or any side. Customers living on routes serviced by foot carriers have received larger parcels from a five-day a week parcel post route covered by a truck. Carriers on foot only deliver small packages.

HALL COUNTY FARMERS ARE REQUESTED TO OBSERVE COTTON DEMONSTRATION

For the past several years, cotton quality has become very important. With the increased emphasis on micronaire, fiber strength, staple length and uniformity, it is essential to evaluate the potential mill performance of cotton fiber produced by varieties and experimental lines of cotton that are grown or may be grown in Hall county. The Hall County Agricultural Agent, W. B. Hooser, and Farm Management Assistant, D. L. Scott have set up some interesting cotton demonstrations for the benefit of Hall County farmers and farmers in the surrounding area.

Shelby Hight, one mile south on the Turkey road between Lakeview and Brice, is the demonstrator for cotton varieties on irrigated land. Twenty-one different lines and varieties of cotton were planted May 16 on this demonstration. Each variety and line consists of two-row plots 100 feet long. The plots are arranged in randomized plots and replicated three times. Classing fiber quality tests will be obtained on each variety and line grown in this demonstration.

James Moss, six miles and one mile south of Lakeview, is the demonstrator for cotton fertilizer on irrigated land. The purpose of this demonstration is to determine the feasibility of using fertilizer and at what rate under irrigation.

Memphis Trail Riders Place At Childress

Memphis Trail Riders placed third in the Riding Club Division at Childress, on Thursday, July 13, in the parade at 4 p. m. which started a three day celebration of Childress County Old Settlers Rodeo and the 79th Anniversary of Childress.

A delicious meal of barbecued beef, beans, potato salad and all the trimmings was enjoyed following the parade.

The Trail Riders also participated in the Grand Entry of the Thursday night Rodeo performance.

Riders attending the Childress celebration were: Paul and Thursa Mae Smith; John and Beatrice McCauley; R. B. and Kay Roland; Barney and Jean Baten; Amos Weddell; Coy Johnson; Pat Patterson; Paul J. Smith; Earlene Mize; and Grady Worthington.

CANDY BY TOM DORR

The rates used in this demonstration are as follows:
40-0-0 60-30-0
40-40-0 60-60-0
40-40-40 80-40-0

The first number designates the amount of Nitrogen, the second, Phosphorus, and the third designates the rate of Potash in the fertilizer.

The fertilizer was put down April 27 on 20-inch spacing. The field was pre-watered April 29 and cotton was planted May 11. The cotton is up to a good stand now.

The county agent suggests that Hall County farmers observe these demonstrations as they progress. In the past, similar demonstrations for dryland farming of cotton were set up on the Wayne Hutcherson and Roy Gresham farms. The results of these demonstrations are available at the county agents office to any farmer who does not already have it.

FOUR POINTS OF PESTICIDE SAFETY

"There are four points of pesticide safety to remember each time you consider the use of a pesticide chemical on your farm or ranch," says W. B. Hooser, county agricultural agent. "Just as you are responsible for the decisions on the use of pesticides in your agricultural enterprise, you also assume responsibility of their safe use. Pesticide safety, then depends on you and your actions."

You can "practice safety" by remembering the following points: (1) take appropriate protective measures, as called for on the label, each time you use the product, (2) always strive for accurate applications, to hit the right pest in the right place at the right time, (3) remember to protect those around you with locked proper storage, and (4) never neglect correct disposal of the left-over chemicals or empty pesticide containers.

"Pertinent information about the first three points of safety will be found on the label of the pesticide. Pertinent information about the fourth point, disposal, is found in the label information. Different types of containers also call for different kinds of disposal," says Hooser.

Here are tips to remember when the time comes to safely and effectively dispose of unwanted pesticide containers.

To safely break glass containers roll them first in old newspapers, then break them. Metal and plastic containers should be punched full of holes to make them unusable. Crush all containers for this same reason, and bury the remains.

The best practice to follow in the disposal of paper containers is to bury them. Paper containers can be burned, but do so only on a windless day and stay out of the smoke. Some of the pesticides residue in the "empty bags" will remain in the ashes after burning; so, it is always a good idea to bury the ashes.

Do not punch or burn aerosol (pressurized) bug bombs. When dealing with bug bombs, bury them, or take them to a sanitary land-fill dump. For further information on pesticides and their safe use, contact the county agents office.

LOCAL CITIZENS FIND SCALE INSECTS ON FRUIT TREES AND SHRUBS

"Now is the time to check fruit trees and ornamental shrubs for San Hose Scale", says County Agent W. B. Hooser. "A number of office calls and phone calls have been received by the local Extension office concerning what looks like a fungus growth on trees and shrubs. On close inspection, a tiny white insect is observed on the branches of the plant. This tiny sucking insect often spreads throughout the orchard during the late summer and late fall. It is carried from tree to tree by the wind, on the feet of birds or the insects may move about on their own. The scale is first noticed as a gray, ashy surface on the bark of the tree or shrub. Eucynonimus Japonica, a broad leaf evergreen, and peach, plum and apple trees are especially susceptible to the insect. Many Hall County residents have stated that they have a whole hedge of japonica effected by the scale and they can lose the hedge if control methods are not used."

Extension horticulturists recommend the use of a solution made by mixing one pound of dry lime sulfur in three gallons of water. The solution should be applied to the trunk and framework branches of the tree or shrub. An old paint brush makes a good applicator. Caution should be used again allowing the solution to come in contact with the foliage because it will burn the leaves.

This is only a stop-gap remedy but will help hold the insects in check. Effective control can be obtained by spraying the tree or shrubs with a mixture of Dormant Oil and Malathion during the dormant season. The Dormant Oil mixture has been used by several Memphis people and has proved successful. The spray treatment should be repeated at two week intervals for three or four times or until the insect disappears. One should be careful to follow carefully the manufacturer's directions for mixing and applying the spray.

CHIGGERS ATTACK LIVESTOCK

Chiggers are not limiting their activities to humans. They are infesting poultry; especially turkeys being raised on the range.

The small red mites often called red bugs, attach themselves to the skin of the birds in clusters, mainly on the thighs, breast and wings, says County Agent W. B. Hooser. Where the chiggers are feeding, abscesses and extensive inflamed areas often develop and cause a lowering of the market value of the birds. Infested birds become droopy, refuse to eat and lose weight, adds the county agent.

The best means of controlling chiggers on the range is to treat the birds with malathion. Good results have been obtained by using a rectangular section of pipe fitted with several spray nozzles, says the county agent.

The rectangular frame is set flat on the ground with the spray nozzles pointing upward. The spray solution is injected on one end of the pipe and comes out of the nozzles to a height of about two feet. The birds are guided across to the spray to treat them.

For effective control, the birds should be treated at weekly intervals.

"RANGE WEED CONTROL" PUBLICATION IS AVAILABLE

A revised edition of range weed control has been released by the Texas A&M University Agricultural Extension Service, County Agent W. B. Hooser points out.

Methods of mechanical, biological, and chemical controls are listed, and the various advantages and disadvantages discussed. Precautions on the use of herbicides are suggested and a list of safety rules is provided.

Management following the use of these controls is developed to enable the rangeman to maintain a high level of production. A range management guide is listed to provide guidelines for profitable management.

The new publication, "Range Weed Control," MP-746, is now available at your county agent's

FARMING IS HAZARDOUS

Farming is one of the most hazardous occupations in the United States.

According to County Agent W. B. Hooser, there are five main reasons which lend support to the above statement.

Hooser says that because the farmer engages in a wide variety of operations, he does not develop a high degree of proficiency which is acquired by factory workers who perform a single task in and year out. In doing his kind of equipment in the course of a single day.

"A Second Reason," says county agent, "is that today's agricultural production depends on the use of vast and varying amounts of power, ranging from fractional horsepower motor drill press to hundreds of horsepower on heavy equipment. Control of this wide range of power, under widely varying conditions, depends upon the knowledge, training and skill of the operator."

Hooser cites the general lack of training in operation of high and high powered equipment being the third reason for the rate of farm accidents, according to the county agent, stems from cultural workers learn in a hazard manner—either from their (picking up bad habits as well as good), or from experience which can be costly.

The county agent says the lack of supervision in most operations causes a wide departure from accepted farm safety procedures. This factor keeps accident figure high.

The final reason for the rate of farm accidents, according to the county agent, stems from a lack of safety promotion and safety consciousness. The history of farm safety goes back 23 years as compared to 40 years in industry.

FARM SAFETY STARTS WITH YOU

National Farm Safety Week July 23-29

Farmers of this area are quick to adopt new methods of operation to step up production or cut work or costs. Each bring with it inherent dangers, adding to the already heavy hazards of the farming industry.

This bank believes that Farm Safety is a part of sound, business-like farm operation, just as we believe that increased mechanization and chemical farming are now a permanent part of our way of life. We urge our customers to be alert, both to the dangers that are always a part of farming, and to those hazards that grow out of our new ways of agriculture.

Washington Report

From Congressman BOB PRICE 10TH DISTRICT, TEXAS
1323 LEONWORTH OFFICE BUILDING, WASHINGTON, D.C. • 225-5704

A bill which could mean millions to the Panhandle was passed by the House of Representatives Wednesday.

Rep. Bob Price, who supported the plan for establishment of a National Water Commission and a comprehensive review of National water resource problems and programs, said the legislation was important to studies already underway for importation of water into the Panhandle and the efforts of the recently organized Water, Inc. group.

"An ample supply of good quality water is essential if this area and others are to continue to grow and prosper," Price said.

The Panhandle Congressman was acting as assistant floor minority leader when the bill was passed. "Our overall national water supply is not distributed in a way to meet our most urgent requirements and in order to provide better distribution and meet needs where they develop, we must give consideration to inter-basin transfers and to the movement of water over long distances," Price added.

"This bill provides for a study and recommendations by water experts on not only importation of water but on conservation and more efficient use of existing supplies, desalting, weather modification and waste water purification and reuse.

"The Commission will work closely with already existing river basin commissions, with other Federal and State agencies, and is intended to provide a broad framework for seeking solutions to regional water problems and assist the Water Resources Council established under the Water Resources Planning Act in overall water resources planning.

"An authorization for a $5 million appropriation for the Commission was included in the bill. The life of the Commission is limited to five years."

EMPHASIS MEMPHIS

... and County Comments —By HAC

The rains which fell Tuesday and Wednesday have changed the attitude of everyone in the city, and has caused grins upon the faces of our rural neighbors. The hail which destroyed crops near Lakeview was a catastrophe on many farms. Wednesday morning the fields in that area sure looked desolate. But prospects for a good crop are improving—even on those farms which have not received average amounts of rain.

The latest of gifts from our friends came last week when Mr. and Mrs. W. L. Gardenhire, who live on West Brice. It was in the form of six of the largest peaches we have seen in many years. Mrs. Gardenhire reported that she planted a seed a few years ago, which produced the tree from which the fine fruit was gathered. The seed was given to them by Gus Watson. The first year the small tree bore fruit there were about 14 peaches; the second year about 30—and this year it was "loaded." The largest measured slightly under 11 inches in circumference.

Next week, July 23 through 29, emphasis will be placed upon observance of National Farm Safety Week. Elsewhere in this issue are news features, an editorial and advertisements which point to the importance of calling attention to the causes of accidents on the farms and ranches of this nation (and Hall County). As this special Safety Week was developed, we were reminded of deaths and near-deaths which occurred in this area in recent years. As the grim facts are again remembered, all of us recognize the necessity of being cautious as we work with all the advanced methods and machines which are making possible the progress of American agriculture. The number one cause of deaths and accidents is the tractor in this area. But there are many more. So, next week, let us give thought to preventing accidents on farms—as well as everywhere else we might be in action; driving, hunting, poisoning, swimming, riding

The Texas Parks and Wildlife Department has set the open season for taking deer in Hall County (and other Panhandle counties). It is Nov 11 through Nov. 26. Have not received any reports of deer killed locally in past years . . . but hasten to report that the open season for quail will be Dec. 1 through Jan. 31. Bag limit and possession for quail is 12 and 36.

From Austin comes word that Texans will be paying slightly less for their auto insurance after Aug. 1, on a statewide average. Also pointed out is the fact that some persons will be paying more. The rating is complicated, and takes into consideration the counties, age of driver, etc. The changes are related to commercial and miscellaneous classes for bodily injury, property damage liability and physical damage coverage. Your insurance agent will be in position to explain coverage and rates in case policy holders have questions regarding the premium.

"Lie, Steal, Drink, Swear!" That motto was used 50 years ago in the weekly newspaper, Wiarnton (Ontario) Echo. Under the motto was the editor's explanation: "When you lie, let it be down to pleasant dreams; when you steal, let it be away from immoral companions; when you drink, let it be pure water; when you swear, let it be that you will support your hometown newspaper, pay your subscription, and have all your printing done locally." To all of which we add a loud "Amen."
