Hail and a tornado scare were the weather picture of the week. A smaller type cloud came over the area Tuesday night and some good amounts of rain fell on a small area extending from a line through the area, where amounts of rain were recorded. The area from Memphis to Lakeview received light rain from Tuesday's system. The tornado hit Memphis at 5:15 p.m. and covered the ground with hail amounts varied considerably, from 1.25 inches to 2.50 inches in the localized area. FmHA-SCS-ASCS To Have Common Telephone Number

Farmers, ranchers and others needing to telephone the Farmers Home Administration office, the Soil Conservation Service office, or the Agricultural Stabilization and Conservation Service office in Memphis, beginning Monday, will need to dial a new number, 259-3577. All telephones in the Agricultural Building, located on the corner of 10th and Noel Street in Memphis, beginning Monday will go under the newly designated USDA Agricultural Service Center and all government Agricultural offices will have the same telephone number. "The new telephone directory will have this new number listed under U. S. Government Offices, USDA Agricultural Service Center," Henry Gregory of SCS said today. When a caller dials the new number, the answering service will answer and switch the call to either the ASCS, FmHA or SCS offices as directed by the caller. This is part of a nationwide plan by USDA to group all their offices together to form Agricultural Service Centers. Since Hall County has their offices already grouped together, the county has already received its designation as a USDA Agricultural Service Center, it was explained.

Trackmen, Golfers To Go To Amarillo

Memphis trackmen and golfers will be in Amarillo Friday and Saturday participating in the male portion of the Amarillo Relays. Last weekend, the only MHS female golfer, Miss Tina Foxhall, won medalist in the AA-A-B division of the Amarillo Relays with a 36-hole score of 180. The MHS tennis team found competition real stiff at Amarillo Relays as they were all eliminated the first day of play in earlier matches. Competition in the AA-A-B division is even tougher in the Amarillo Relays as big schools (AAAA-AAA) enter their second teams in this division to compete against the smaller schools. The MHS track team was in Shamrock Saturday afternoon and evening competing against 14 other schools for the Shamrock meet championship, and for the sixth time this season, the Memphis trackmen were victorious. Childress had 55, Crowell 41, Elk City 32, Canadian 27 1/2, Quanah 14, Booker 10, Groom 10, Wellington 8, Phillips and McLean 4 and Darrouzett 1. Coach George Berry said, "We're real proud to have the Shamrock meet trophies, they are really beautiful. Competition was real keen during the meet between Memphis, Shamrock and Paducah."

The Memphis 440-relay of Fields, Bryley, Alexander and Spruill ran a 44.0 to win that event with Paducah having a 44.5, and Shamrock a 44.9. The 880 yd. run was won by Pedro Salinas with a time of 2:08.6. In the 440-yd. dash, Eddie Williams was third with a 52.4, and Kirk Fields was fourth. The Changing Face of A Nation!

We live in rural America, and each of us realize the many changes taking place in our own sections of the country. Chemicals to control weeds have reduced the number of cotton choppers needed on the farms. Tractors with six-row or even eight-row capabilities reduce the number of man-hours needed in the fields.

Every aspect of rural life has improved, as drinking water has been or is being piped to many rural homes, and T. V. antennas pick up re-broadcast signals. The list could go on and on but it is all too familiar.

Changes are taking place in other portions of the country as well, changes we may not be so familiar with as those we see and live with each day. Changes are taking place in the big cities of this country, and the trend seems to point away from big cities getting any bigger. Actually, teachers in the field of Urban Science are saying that the trend is away from bigger cities and they see no reason to stop this trend.

The reasons for this trend is economics. Big cities, according to one highly respected leader in the field of Urban Science, are no longer needed. They developed during the days of 19th century transportation, primarily the rail roads. The railroad was important not only in development of the large cities but also in the concentration of industry near the downtown. After supplies got to the railroad terminal, it was literally a matter of getting these supplies to the factories.

Today, central location is no longer an advantage. Actually, in many instances it is to an industry's disadvantage due to the high taxation, confining facilities, and difficulty to find labor which is not tied up by unionization.

A trend in the cities today, is that many are being taken over by the poor, because welfare payments are much higher in cities than in rural areas of this country. The poor came to the cities to find jobs, but today, these jobs are just not to be found.

The changes in industry itself is bring about further decentralization in big cities. Industries which grew near steel factories are no longer growing, for other materials are replacing steel in many industries.

Historically, poor people were drawn to the city because their labor was needed. That need no longer exists. Now some are being attracted by the fact that the levels of welfare are more respectable in the North, and because the large cities have the public housing, the model-cities programs, the neighborhood health centers, and a plentiful supply of housing. In addition, there is the natural increase—the fact that there are a lot more births than deaths.

But cities are losing more population than they are gaining, and the people who are leaving are the middle class workers, primarily because of three factors, the work picture, the crime picture, and the school picture.

According to the experts, cities like New York, who have adopted policies of being "generous" with poor people, are just attracting more poor people to their cities.

Experts feel that in order for cities to survive, they must broaden their tax structures, to take in larger and larger areas, then equalize their taxation load accordingly. This would equalize tax loads in suburbs and urban areas.

Experts see nothing in the future of cities which will bring back industrial payrolls to levels they once were because there is no need for centralization today.

Big cities in this country will not just fade away, because all roads have been built to lead to the center of these cities.

THE POLITICAL SCENE

This is a good year for farmers on the political scene. They get noticed by the politicians about every four years and mostly ignored the rest of the time.

It's wrong, but it is not too difficult to understand. It's a matter of "political clout." In order to avoid punitive legislation and to know what laws are being introduced, it takes a real lobbying effort on the part of any sector of the economy. Lobbying is of prime importance on both the state and national level.

It is tough for wheat farmers, for example, to provide much political muscle by contributing $10 a year for lobbyists while George Menay's unions pay $10 a week per man. Because of this, organized labor has managed to stay free of laws regulating their union activity while imposing more and more strict controls on political activity by business.

President Ford recently took his campaign to Illinois farmers, telling them his farm policies "had worked wonders" in returning farm production to the market place instead of government subsidies.

He said that farmers can produce all they can and sell it through new overseas markets without government interference. He didn't mention the fact the government slapped an embargo on overseas shipments last year, effectively lowering the price of grain. Farmers are still sore about this obvious knuckling down to labor boss George Meany, and Ford will have to do more than talk to overcome this feeling.

Farmers did plant for full production in 1974 and 1975, only to have prices pressed down by government interference. This is not fair, and farmers know it best of all. The presidential year might be a good time to press for improvement in the farm market place. Dear Smith County Chamber of Commerce recently had representatives in Washington, meeting with top government officials to explain to them why farmers have to see some relief from the squeeze of depressed prices and constantly rising costs.

Wheat is selling today for little more than it did in 1947, yet the cost of everything going to produce the wheat has tripled. The cattle market is now stalled around the same price of the cattle market 25 years ago. How many major products can you think of offhand that are selling for the same price as 25 years ago?

Mr. Farmer is getting some attention from presidential candidates. Let's hope they don't forget him after the election is over. —The Hereford Brand

Twin-Seeded Sorghum Going Commercial

COLLEGE STATION — The grain sorghum industry is expected to receive another production boost soon with the release of twin-seeded breeding materials by the Texas Agricultural Experiment Station.

The materials are going to commercial seed companies, where two to three years will be required to produce enough planting seed for sale to sorghum growers.

Dr. Fred Miller, the Experiment Station's research leader on the project, says the release, designated as TP11R, marks the third major advance in sorghum improvement over the past 35-40 years. First, there were the varieties developed especially for mechanical harvesting, then the hybrids of the 1950's. Now it's twin-seeding.
How much yield increase is expected from this latest advance?

Twin-flowering, which leads to twin-seeding, would seem to mean a 100 per cent jump in grain output. But Miller says nature is not that cooperative. A 20 per cent yield increase is more realistic.

There are promising possibilities, however. On carefully controlled test plots, Miller and his associates have grown some hybrids that are nearly 100 per cent more productive than single-seeded types. A few first-generation hybrids have performed about 50 per cent better than single-seeders.

TP11R is the result of four years of research, started by crossing a three-foot combine type with an Ethiopian variety. Further crossing and re-crossing eventually came up with TP11R. In the process, Miller managed to work in such traits as resistance to disease and greenbugs, good grain quality and lodging resistance.

Twin flowering, he says reduces the number of flowers that turn into grain. Seeds weigh about 12 per cent less than some standard hybrid seeds. But by increasing seeds per head, the twin-seeding gives more overall head weight and higher per-acre yields.
"That's the important thing—more yield per unit of area of land," Miller says.
Maturity varies from early to late, while seed color ranges from white to brown. Pericarp thickness also is variable.
When seed supplies build up enough for commercial production, farmers who give twin-seeded sorghums a try should recognize that more intensive management will be required.
Miller notes that the correct number of plants per acre is of particular importance. It is believed that twin-seeded materials respond to heavier doses of fertilizer, and application at different intervals may be necessary. Irrigation management and weed, insect and disease control also will require closer attention.

A weekly public service feature from the Texas State Department of Health

Accent on Health

J.E. PEAUV, M.D., Commissioner of Health

Rocky Mountain Spotted Fever, which had a startling increase in Texas last year, also is showing another pattern of concern to the Texas Department of Health Resources — the range of the disease and infected ticks is enlarging.

During the 11-year period of 1964 through 1974, a total of 105 human cases of Rocky Mountain Spotted Fever was officially reported in Texas. The vast majority of cases had contact with ticks in the eastern and northeastern areas of the state.

RMSF has shown an increase in the United States, especially in the eastern part of the country. Its vector is the tick.

Texas mirrored this increase: in 1975 when 34 human cases were reported — one - third of the total number reported for the entire preceding 11 years.

While this was significant, the apparent spread of cases into new areas, in addition to the hazardous Northeast and East Texas, was very alarming to public health officials.

The widening of the infected tick population showed this pattern:

A fatal case was reported near Bryan in August.

A severe case in a young child occurred outside of Navasota in neighboring Grimes County. Onset of the case was in March.

Two cases occurring in May were investigated in Central Texas — one in Travis County and the other in neighboring Hays County.

In Southeast Texas, one confirmed case in April and two possible cases were investigated in Aransas County.

In all these cases, epidemiological data indicated that infection was acquired in these newly - affected areas. In addition, one reported case appeared to have been contracted in Abilene, for west of any cases documented in recent years.

In addition to a significant increase in actual numbers of reported cases and the apparent spread to new areas, a third factor developed the past year is the dates of onset of the cases. During 1975, only two months — January and November — had no reported case insets.

During the 1964 - 1974 period, the earliest reported onset of human Rocky Mountain Spotted Fever was in April — two months later than the first reported case in 1975. Only one case in the 11 years has a post - September onset. The last reported onset in 1975 was in December. The three confirmed fatal cases had onsets in February, May and August. The first fatal fever was contracted in Van Zandt County in Northeast Texas, the second in Cass County, also in Northeast Texas, and the third in Bryan.

During 1975, efforts were made to collect, type and analyze ticks from a wider area of Texas. Many were collected by investigators during human case investigations, but even more were collected as a result of general surveillance activities.

The Parks and Wildlife Department cooperated in sampling activities over large areas of Texas.

The statewide surveillance program was begun about 1972 in recognition of the growing problem of Rocky Mountain spotted fever in Texas. Infected ticks have been found in widely separated parts of the state, pointing to the potential for human infection.

During the spring, the number of Texans in the out-of-doors increased sharply and continues until cold weather. The occupations of many thousands of Texans takes them into the open throughout the year.

In the Department of Health Resources surveillance program, ticks are received live for testing in the Department's Medical Entomology Unit, Bureau of Laboratories. If the species is determined to be infected with Rickettsia rickettsii, the organism causing Rocky Mountain spotted fever, animal inoculations are used to determine the degree of pathogenicity or strain of Rocky Mountain spotted fever.

Three varieties of ticks normally are associated with the disease in Texas — the Dermacentor variabilis, or American dog tick; the Rhipicephalus sanguineus, the brown dog tick; and Amblyomma americanum, the lone star tick.

The increase in reported human cases may in part be due to better recognition of the disease. However, looking over the changing picture of Rocky Mountain spotted fever in Texas some things are evident. The apparent increase in cases, the reporting of cases from new areas and the finding of infected ticks in areas, not previously known to be infected, very clearly establishes the need for continued and ex-

This special telecast is the sixth and final in the series of hour-long presentations, based on Carl Sandburg's Pulitzer Prize winning biography of the 16th President.

The first four programs in the series has already won awards from the American Better Broadcasters Assn., the Freedoms Foundation at Valley Forge and the Columbus, Ohio Film Festival.

Broadward Tony Award—Winner Hall Halbrook plays the title role of the series. His wife, Mary Todd Lincoln, is portrayed by Tony Award - winning actress Sada Thompson.

"Lincoln, Last Days," covers Lee's surrender to Grant, the debates between the President and his Cabinet over reconstruction plans, and Lincoln's final carriage ride, hours before his fateful Ford Theater visit.

Each of the six programs in the series concentrates on a per-

Persons with normal hearing ability can gain an insight into the silent world of hard-of-hearing by watching a favorite television program with the sound turned down to low to hear, according to the Beltone Crusade for Hearing Conservation. While such an experiment can be interesting for a short while, it soon becomes irritating and even terrifying to most people as they discover they are cut off from communication.

Texas Farmers Union President Is Speaker at Annual Meeting in Memphis

Jay Naman of Waco, president of the Texas Farmers Union, speaking to the local Farmers Union at the annual dinner meeting here March 26 charged that Secretary of Agriculture Earl Butz has planned and instigated a massive attack on the last remnants of supply management in federal farm programs.

Citing a story which appeared in a weekly newspaper supplement recently which was highly critical of federal farm programs in general, and the peanut program specifically, Naman said, "because Secretary Butz and the Administration is anxious to destroy the last vestige of a workable farm program, an all out campaign has been launched against it."

Naman charged that the story which appeared in PARADE was a combination of "propaganda, half-truths, distortions and out-and-out lies." He further charged that the Secretary and the Department of Agriculture planned and instigated the attack.

The Farmers Union president emphasized that the attack was strictly a political move.

Naman urged farmers to get involved in the political process as their only means for survival. "I talk about politics, particularly federal politics, because the important decisions are made on the federal level. It comes as no surprise to you when I say that farm prices are not made in heaven; they are made at the federal level by politicians who elect or their representatives."

The farm leader insisted that the Administration's agricultural policy is not working in the best interests of the farmer or the consumer.

Naman called for a return to programs which utilize acreage allotments, set-aside and marketing quotas to end the boom and bust economics of the present farm policies.

Presiding at the meeting was Noel Long, president of the local Farmers Union.

A delicious steak dinner was served to Farmers Union members and a number of guests.

During the evening door prizes were awarded. The prizes were donated by the following members business firms, Mr. Long, stated.

Fowler Drug, Shields Implement Co., Perry Bros., Hightower Texaco, Memphis Compress, Memphis Feed Store, Thompson Bros. Co., Lockhart Pharmacy, Hall County Electric Co-op, Inc., Messick Implement Co., and Ferrels.

A straw poll for president was taken during the meeting and included the following results: Hubert Humphrey, 27; Ronald Reagan, 22; George Wallace, 19; Jimmy Carter, 15; Lloyd Bentsen, 4; Senator Jackson, 1; President Ford 1 and Senator Church 1.

Annual Meeting Of GTC Re-Elect Beck President

Learn To Listen Most Effectively

COLLEGE STATION — A conversation has to have at least two parties — the speaker and the listener. Nearly everyone can be a speaker, but it takes extra attention to be a good listener. Mrs. Ilene Miller, a family life education specialist, contends.

"Many people listen far below their potential. But following some guidelines can help improve listening ability at least 25 per cent," she said.

Mrs. Miller is with the Texas Agricultural Extension service, The Texas A&M University System.

"Develop a positive attitude about listening to what others are saying. Concentrate on the person who is talking — rather than be preoccupied with your own thoughts and problems. Also, it takes concentration on the message to understand exactly what the person is saying," she explained.

Listeners need to consider the accuracy and source of what is being said. Is the speaker stating facts or giving his own opinion? Analyze his ideas and try to determine whether the speaker's feelings, experiences or position are influencing his statements, she added.

"Keep an open mind — and let the speaker finish what he is saying. You may not always agree with what he says, but it is important to keep an open mind and try to understand why the person thinks as he does. Asking questions may help him explain some statements which seem unclear to you.

"Be an active listener. Let the speaker know that you are interested in what he is saying by remaining alert and keeping eye contact. Facial expression often lets the speaker know whether he has his audience 'tuned in' or 'turned off,'" the specialist said.

Mrs. Bo Graham and Mrs. Lucille Walls of Amarillo visited with Mrs. Evelyn McWhorter Sunday. Also visiting with her were Mr. and Mrs. Cecil Ginn of Dimmitt, Mr. and Mrs. Lon Moore and Marlene and Mr. and Mrs. Joe David McWhorter.

Mrs. John Shadid and Terri, Mrs. H. R. Crawford, Mrs. Harold Smith and Mrs. Lester Campbell were Lubbock visitors Saturday.

Americans may be free and equal but
COTTONSEED IS NOT.

There is nothing free about cotton seed. Even ordinary cotton planting seed costs money. Good seed costs a little more.

And all cottonseed isn't equal. There are two varieties of cotton planting seed that stand out from the crowd. They are the product of years of research by two of the most respected firms in Southwest cotton. The seed for each variety is produced under the most exacting quality control. Depending on your land, one of them is a superior variety for your particular farm. They are:

LANKART® BRAND LX 571
It is an excellent, storm-proof, stripper variety capable of high yields of long, strong fiber with good micronaire ratings. It has good seedling vigor and matures somewhat earlier than the famous Lankart Selection 57. It is highly recommended for the dryland areas of Texas and Oklahoma.

LOCKETT® BRAND BXL
Lockett BXL has excellent resistance to nematodes and fusarium wilt. It has high yield potential of quality fiber on all types of soils either dry or irrigated. It has staple length in the 1" and longer range with storm-proof type bolls. It is an excellent stripper variety well-adapted to this area and is especially recommended for the light soils where fusarium wilt-nematode complex causes heavy losses.

"CERTIFIED" SEED WORTH THE MONEY
The only way you can be sure you're planting the variety you select is to buy certified seed in the Lankart or Lockett trademarked bag. You can get them from your ginner.

The next meeting will be at the home of Mrs. W. C. Dickey on April 20.

Mrs. Carol Wood and Mrs. Ronny Wilson and Mrs. Janie Ballew of Amarillo left last weekend for Houston to be with their sister, Mrs. Sue Goodman, who is seriously ill.

Nearly half of the total U.S. population is presently or potentially entitled to benefits and services provided by the Veterans Administration.

Each year, it costs more to manage each acre of land. But the dollars-per-acre investment is not as important as the farmer or rancher himself. The real strength of American agriculture is found, not only in better machines and better methods, but in the man. When we consider a long-term loan, we put a value on your experience... and on your skills as a manager.
