LETTERS to the editor

Dear Editor,

In response to the article in last weeks' CAVALRYMAN written by Ron Curry I would like to clarify a few things concerning the Commissioner's Court.

I know Mr. Curry was sincerely interested in helping the Fire Department and we are grateful for that. However, I don't believe Mr. Curry, and perhaps much of the public, are aware of the many things that the Commissioner's Court does for the Fire Department, to-wit:

They make an annual donation of $500.00;

The pay for the maintenance and up-keep on the Rural Truck;

They pay for the fuel and tire repairs on the Rural Fire Truck;

They also pay for one half of the above items on the 1939 Ford Fire Truck.

Through the years from time to time we have needed funds for the purchase of equipment or safety devices and I don't recall the Commissioner's Court ever refusing our requests. We have never requested anything we did not need and they are aware of this.

We have met with the Commissioners' Court concerning the use of the Civic Center and we know they have a tremendous problem in trying to arrive at a fee that would be sufficient to cover the cost of operation but due to the free use by organizations rendering public assistance it is nearly impossible to set a rate that could be afforded by other organizations and/or persons.

The Fire Department neither wants nor expects free use of the center we can afford only so much.

Our only means of financing is through donations, raffles and bingos'. It is not pleasant to always have to be asking people for donations and we regret its necessity.

In closing, I wish to thank the Commissioner's Court for the many things they have done and are doing for us and we are sincerely grateful.

Dear Sir,

Using the medium of the press, we would like to sincerely thank all people involved in the BHS One Act Play. The student actors and actresses were superb and the technical crew did a great job. The community and faculty of BHS helped so much and we are grateful. A very special thank you to Mr. Bill Johnson for his patience with all of us.

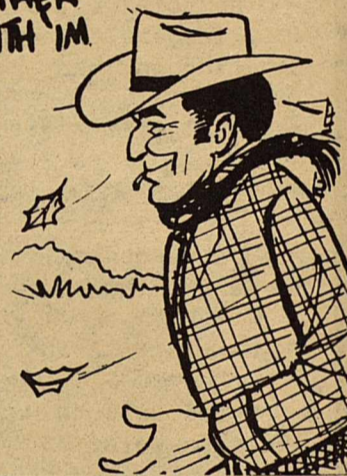

Though we did not accomplish all of our goals, the cast and crew did a great job. We would like to invite the community to the BHS auditorium Monday night, April 12, at 8:00 p.m. to see our play.

Sincerely,

/s/ Vicki Howard

JOE TOWNSEND

Lately I've had occasion to have close contact with several people that impress me very much. There people are ones who have faced and are facing very heavy problems. Death, physical problems, physical problems of loved ones, etc. In the final analysis when we look at life and it's cares there are no heavier burdens than these. Yet these persons I think of remain in the very best of spirit. If they have have hours of heavy heart they reserve them for quiet times by themselves. They never seek to burdens others with their personal loads. Maybe they have read in the Bible "For everyone shall bear his own burden." Certainly this type of life approach not only is appreciated by others but gives aid and joy to the burdened. The continuous unloading of burdens on others simply adds to the burden of the bearer. This is not to say that others do not care and are not anxious to help, it simply means the wearing of ones cares on his sleeve draws neither concern nor sympathy. The world appreciates people who can smile and be warm hearted beneath a heavy load. Besides all this it is indicative of faith in God to depend on His love rather than the sympathy of our fellowman. These folks not only are a true blessing to those with whom they come in contact but they point the way toward happier life for each of us.

COMMENTS from THE SAGEBRUSH

BY JOE TOWNSEND

It's ant fighting time again. The time of year and the rain combine to bring out the harvest or cutting ants. You should watch your plants and younger trees and shrubs carefully. These ants can strip a large tree in one night. If you see a line of ants moving it is likely they are these marauders. They are fascinating to watch but are devastating to plant life. If you find them the best thing to do is to follow the trail to the hole in the ground they come out of. When the hole is located the area around the hole for a space about 24 to 30 inches in diameter should be dusted heavily with insecticide. You will find nothing better than chlordane dust to control these ants. Irrespective of the scare propaganda used to eventually take this off the market, it is still remains a relatively harmless insecticide. Were it truly dangerous the "do-gooders" would have taken it from the retail outlets rather than simply stop the manufacture of it. Simply follow directions and you'll have no problems, now nor later. Chlordane 10% dust should be available wherever garden supplies are sold.

CPL News
CENTRAL POWER AND LIGHT COMPANY

Use of electricity in South Texas dropped in 1975 for the second year in a row, according to Central Power and Light Company's Annual Report.

The CPL report notes that total kilowatt hour sales were down 6.8 per cent from the preceding year, and use by the average South Texas family declined from 8,581 kilowatt hours in 1974 to 8,536 KWH in 1975.

Cost-cutting measures by CPL have failed to keep pace with spiraling fuel costs and inflation and the need for rate relief is becoming more apparent, the Annual Report states.

According to the report, CPL cut its work force by nearly 125 to 2,291 during 1975, cut construction expenses by $24.1 million by postponing or rescheduling projects and effected substantial savings by reducing inventory.

Expenses, moreover, continued to rise while sales decreased, and CPL Chief Executive R.W.Hardy termed 1975 a "disappointing" year. Fuel expense rose 71 per cent over the previous year's average and other expenses were up 12.2 per cent.

"The need for rate relief is becoming more apparent and plans are being made to seek an increase in rates later this year," Hardy pointed out.

Hardy also noted that virtually all of the increased revenues "resulted from the pass through of additional fuel costs, which has no effect on earnings." He added that the company would "continue its intensive efforts to hold down expenses" but warned that there was a limit to what could be done in this area if the company is to maintain an acceptable level of service to its South Texas customers.

On the surface, the Report seems to indicate that 1975 was a good year for CPL, but on closer inspection, it becomes evident that most of the year's increased revenues were attributed to the pass through of increased fuel cost. Through intensive cost cutting efforts, the company's net income showed a slight increase of six-tenths of one per cent over 1974. This slight increase provides practically no return on the $66 million of gross plant additions made during the year.

The big increase in fuel costs can be seen in a large rise in the average cost per million BTU's of fuel burned at CPL power stations. During 1975, CPL paid an average of $1.44 per million BTU's, compared to 85 cents in 1974.

A decrease of over 18 per cent in sales to CPL industrial customers was the primary reason for a 6.8 per cent drop in total KWH sales. The big industrial drop was due to decreased electrical loads at two of the area's large aluminum plants.

The average residential customer's usage of electricity dropped for the second consecutive year. A decline of 45 kilowatt hours in 1975 came after a drop of 300 kilowatt hours in 1974. In 1973 the average use was 8,881 kilowatt hours.

Cool weather throughout the year, conservation efforts, and concern with costs accounted for the drop according to CPL/

While the average CPL customer's yearly kilowatt hour usage was decreasing, the cost for those kilowatt hours continued in increase. In 1975 the average CPL residential customer paid $337.43, compared to $273.30 in 1974. Virtually all of this gain was due to fuel costs. At the same time, the cost per kilowatt hour increased from 3.18 cents to 3.95 cents. In 1973 the cost per kilowatt hour was 2.49 cents.

Because of the slower growth rates and decreased usage of electricity, CPL was able to trim its construction budget to $71.3 million in 1975. The company continued modification at all major plants for limited use of fuel oil to fire the boilers. At the end of 1975 the company had spent $14.5 million on the modification program, and the budget this year includes $6.5 million for oil conservation.

Two new additions to CPL's generating capability were made in 1975. A 105,000-kilowatt unit capable of burning both gas and oil was added to Laredo Power Station, an a combustion turbine designed to burn oil and rated at 50,000 kilowatts has been added to La Palma Power Station in San Benito.

The switch to alternate fuel sources continued in 1975 as construction started on the South Texas Nuclear Project in Matagorda County and progress was made on the coal-fired Coletto Creek generating unit between Goliad and Victoria. The company is also engaged in its own gas exploration program with the principals of Corpus Christi Oil and Gas Company and it conducting research into fuel gasification and geothermal energy as possible future power sources.

Bentsen Opposes Rural Shutdown

WASHINGTON, D.C.—Senator Lloyd Bentsen said any legislation providing Federal aid to the U.S. Postal Service should bar post office closings for a two or three year period.

Bentsen wrote Senator Gale McGee, Chairman of the Senate Post Office Committee, after Postmaster General Benjamin F. Bailar testified before the Committee this week that more postal cutbacks will be necessary unless Congress acts within two to four months.

"I don not think Congress should approve additional aid for the U.S. Postal Service without requiring postal officials to drop their plans to close rural post offices," Bentsen said in his letter to McGee.

"I urge that any legislation authorizing such aid include a prohibition against further reductions in mail service to rural areas for two or three years, giving Congress time to investigate the Postal Service and pass remedial legislation if necessary."

Senator Bentsen pointed out to McGee that reductions in mail service would be especially harmful to Texas. Proposed shutdowns of 3rd and 4th Class post offices threaten more than 600 post offices in rural areas and small towns in Texas.

Bentsen has already introduced legislation requiring the Postal Service to take into account the number of families served by the post office, its nearness to other post offices and the amount of travel required to reach the alternate facilities before it could close a post office.

He brought home two first places, one in the 120 hurdles and one in the 330 intermediate hurdles. Buck Smallwood was no slouch either, bringing home a second in the broad jump and second in the 100 yard dash. Rounding our a good was Mark Tidwell, placing third in the discus. "The LP was released in February, and it's #27 in Billboard, #30 in Cash Box with a bullet, and #30 in Record World for the week of April 10. That's very good for a new artist," Dea said, "Or good chart action for any artist for that matter." Dea reported they can't keep the item in stock in Nashville because it's a popular item with the Nashville pickers.
