NEW WORLD STUDY CLUB

The Study Club announced it's newly elected officers last week and they are:

- President: Florrie Wills
- Vice-President: Karen Crowder
- Secretary: Else Sauer
- Treasurer: Charlotte Golman
- Reporter & Historian: Jane Young
- Parliamentarian: J. Lee Ballantine
- Corresponding Secretary: Molly Schroeder

Members and friends who attended last weeks meeting were also treated to some great entertainment in the form of a play reading. The play, entitled "The Amazing Arabella", was narrated by Mary Rasch and the various parts were read by Else Sauer, Josephine Taylor, Sandy Herman, Charolette Corey, and Karen Crowder. Special kudos are due, in the opinion of this reporter, for Sandy Herman's realistic performance as a mischievous elderly woman, but the rest of the performers were also excellent and I'm sure none of them would have traded roles with Sandy.

Dr. Lewis is chairman of the Urban Studies Department of Trinity University. Torres serves as Council Vice-Chairperson, Lewis as secretary of the blue ribbon group.

Seargeant was elected at the May 10th meeting of the Council. At that meeting the group approved bylaws and were briefed on TDHR and social welfare legislative concerns, computer systems for the agency and its contracting procedures.

The Community Advisory Council will have its next meeting in the San Antonio offices of the agency on June 14th.

TEXAS GAS SUPPLIES SAFE IF DRIVERS DON'T PANIC

As long as Texas motorists don't start panic buying gasoline, they can avoid the miseries affecting the west Coast, fuel suppliers and retailers..

Service stations operators agree supplies in Texas are as tight as they have been since the 1973-74 oil embargo, but so far the state has avoided long lines at the pumps that California motorists have suffered.

The only problems in Texas have generally been shorter station operating hours, some lines, and some limiting of sales in Associated Press survey shows.

SHORT LINES

The survey also showed:

- *The fuel situation is slightly tighter in the big cities than it is in rural areas, but generally the problem is not concentrated in any one area of the state.
- *Most reports of lines at the pumps are less than five cars deep, but one station in Houston experienced a line of about 20 cars.
- *Service stations are receiving only 60 to 80 percent of the amount of gasoline they sold in May of last year.
- *Up to 90 percent of the filling stations in Texas cities are closed on Sundays.
- *Motorists are more likely to find stations open along interstate high ways than inside the cities.
- *There is no relief in sight, and it will be especially hard to buy gasoline during the Memorial Day holiday because many stations will have run out of their May allocations by then.

Many Texas fuel merchants feel Californians are to blame for their own shortages.

"They created their own problems out there by panic buying and because of the publicity," said Bill Ligon, director of the 1,300 member Texas Service Station Association.

"The papers show a picture of a long line, but don't say what per

People can be divided into three groups: those who make things happen, those who watch things happen, and those who wonder what happened.

Temper is what gets most of us into trouble. Pride is what keeps us there.

Lord, when we are wrong, make us willing to change; and when we are right, make us easy to centage of the stations have long lines. You know how suggestive the American people are. First thing you now you're going to have panic buying in Texas," he said.

"Let's don't create a problem that we don't have."

SALES LIMITED

Most service stations are stretching their reduced monthly allotments in Texas by limiting their daily sales and then closing for the day, according to O.W.
Brauss, who distributes Shell gasoline to stations in North, West and Central Texas.

"Most try to stay open at least part of the day Saturday, and then close on Sudnay. Monday morning lines are beginning to form because people used gasoline during the weekend. During the middle of the week it goes pretty smooth," said Brauss.

He siad the situation will probably get worse toward the end of the month as retailers use up thier allocations.

We could have more lines. We're talking about four to five cars-not long lines," he said."Also supplies are tighter in the metropolitan areas than in rural areas."

Glenn Nilsson, executive director of the Houston-based Lone Star Service Station Association, said rural supplies may be higher because city dwellers are afraid to journey into the counry-side.

"We're probably going to have a tight supply toward the end of the month, especially in the metropolitan centers more than in the rural areas," Nilsson said.

Present Day Myths

by: JOE TOWNSEND

Every Time I read of some consumer protection law or advocate or report I shudder and wait in anxiety to hear the latest. Now comes a report that half the dollars Americans spend on auto repairs is a rip off (Theft). Careful reading of the report shows either the abysmal ignorance of the researchers or more likely the desire to make headlines to try to justify the waste of taxpayers money. The gist of the argument was that when a person took his car in with a bad spark plug the mechanic ripped him off with additional work which was unneeded. For example, he usually put in all new plugs and perhaps points and turned the motor. There were some examples of other charges. The question immediately arises, "How does the researcher know that all that was needed was one spark plug?" Why is his word any more respectable than the man who is working hard to try to make a living for his family? After all the researchers is performing no protective service for anyone but is a leech on the hard work of others. In the second place, if I take my car to my mechanic and there is a bad plug, the points, the condenser and check the timing when he finished or he has lost a customer. If doesn't require a lot of experience or knowledge to know that when one plug goes bad the others are soon to follow and generally the points also. I have more to do than to sit around and do "muck racking" research. I don't want my car and my time tied up to replace one plug today and another every few days until all are changed out. The money I have on gas after putting in new plugs and points will soon pay for the job. I'm sure we've all has the experience of a mechanic not properly diagnosing a problem and costing us unnecessary expenditures. But I 've never known a person who was right everytime except Jesus Christ. It's been my experience that most mechanics are hard working and capable men. I've never known one to become wealthy at his trade. Most, I am sure, would gladly trade incomes with the researchers and writers of the report. They at least are performing a service for the person that needs it while the "Consumer Advocate" in this case as in most, is simply a negatinst albatross around the neck of the consumer. The heart beat of America and the blood that has made her great are the tradesmen and business mepople. America was great before the "Johnny Come Late" consumer advocates and some day the people will scrape them off like barnacles on the hull of a ship. Eat fat while you can--Ralph Nader and you leftist negatists--your day of down approaches.

other things, sell the estate to the highest bidder and re-invest his cash.

The agent for the Barker family had been somewhat reluctant to tell him much about the ouse, which was a little strange. Chet had not asked to many questions however; he had been to eager to buy the property at his price.

The asking price had been low, as a matter of fact; ridiculously so, but Chet had smelled a quick, easy profit.

His heart thumping wildly in his chest, he gave himself a mental shake, Stop this, he thought, your letting your imagination run away with you. There is msome logical explanation for all of this.

Nothing along the hall in each direction, there was only shadows. No one moved in the old house but himself.

Although he attempted to laugh at the un-nerving experience, Chet stepped to the bar, where he poured himself a stiff drink to calm his trembling hands.

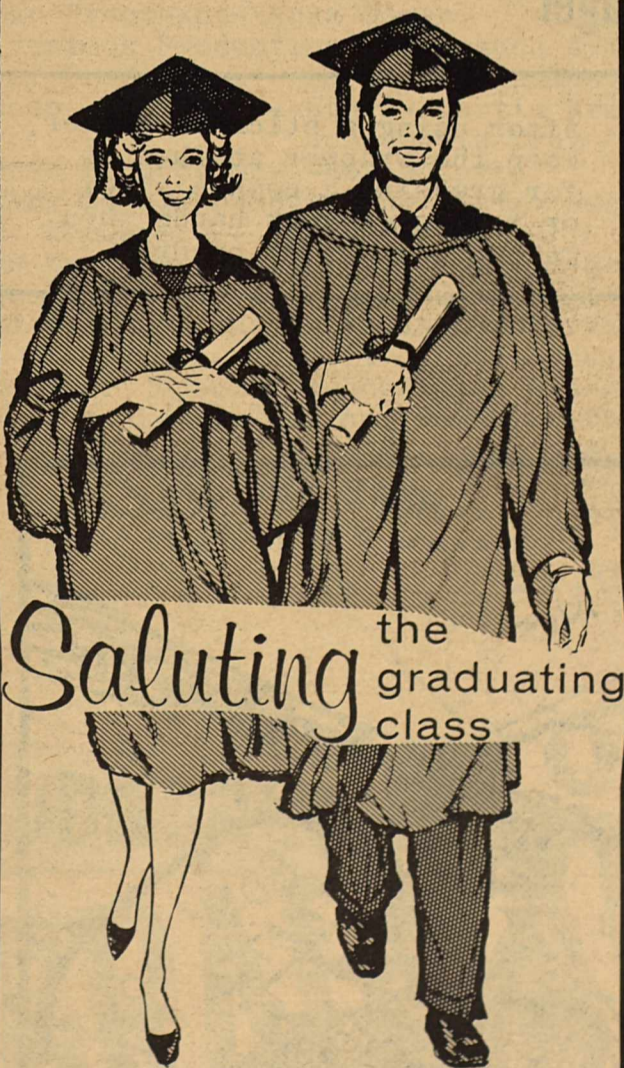

In the morning, he told himself, I have got to go talk to the real estate guy, what was his name: Oh yes, Gordon.

Outside the study door, something scratched at the bottom of the heavy oak panel. Chet froze, his fingers white, and locked around the cool glass that shook, spilling bourbon on the old, worn carpet.

There it was again, that horrible, eerie whinning noise. His hair standing up on his neck, Chet stumbles backward against the wall. The doorknob began to.....

Chet got up swiftly, put down his paper, and moved quietly toward the door. There was no mistake, he had heard it again; that strange sound as of someone walking down the hallway.

Easing into the hall, he blinked in the semi-gloom of the old house. He had bought the place more as an investment than anything else, but now his curiosity was piqued. Originally, Chet has planned to live here only long enough to fix the plumbing and a few

U. I. L. Alive and Well

The current energy shortage apparently does not apply to Texas high school students involved in University Interscholastic League activities. Participation in the athletic, literary and academic, and music programs reached record highs in 1978-79, reinforcing the long-standing contention that this one has, you must operate under a one of two graduating seniors in Texas has taken part in a UIL activity during his high school career.

"Certainly, the UIL has had its problems the past year, with the numerous court cases and occasional one-sided press coverage," said Dr. Bailey Marshall, League director. "But I would be remiss to emphasize the negative and overlook the positive aspects of our programs.

"More students were involved in UIL activities this past year than ever before and this participation by students on a fair and equal basis has been and remains our ultimate goal: This is the reason the UIL exists," he added.

Across the board, participation by schools remained stable, with the exception of girls' basketball, which increased by 55 schools. Football, girls' volleyball, boys' basketball, swimming and track and field remained on a per-school participation basis near their 1977-78 marks.

Individual participation, however, continued its upward surge, with more than 42,000 playing football, 30,000 and 23,000 in boys' and girls' track respectively, and 23,000 and 19,000 in boys' and girls' basketball respectively.

Elsewhere, participation in boys' baseball neared the 16,000 mark, while more than 20,000 took part in boys' and girls' tennis. Approximately 8,000 participated in boys' golf and 4,000 in girls' golf. Swimming figures reached 3,500 for the boys' and 2,500 for the girls', while cross country boys' and girls' totals sped near the 600 plus mark.

In the UIL music program, some 71,000 took part in choral competition while 40,000 participated in the solo and ensemble contest, and a whopping 215,000 joined bands and orchestras in UIL contests.

Participation in the UIL literary and academic contests was equally as impressive: Speech-Debate-5,000 Informative speaking 17,500, Persuasive speaking 15,000, Poetry interpretation 17,500, Prose reading 15,000, Oral reading 18,000

Others-One-act play-20,000, Journalism 24,000, Number sense 55,000, Picture memory 25,000, Science 22,500, Slide Rule 20,000 Shorthand 15,000, Type-writing 16,000, Ready writing 55,000, Story telling 12,500, and Spelling 80,000

"The University Interscholastic League embraces more than a half-million participants and anytime you're working with a program having the scope of this one has, you must operate under a system of uniformly enforced rules and regulations," Dr. Marshall said. "The school administrators and educators of Texas have voted for and support rules governing inter-school competition. To abandon these rules would be detrimental to the educational benefits of the overall program.

It is wise to keep in mind that Texas school people, with the support and counsel of their local patrons, have built the UIL into the most outstanding organization of its kind."
